(8) In salt, brine or vinegar, and eats it.

(9) He crushes and pounds them so that the acrid sap should go forth from them.

(10) To anoint his skin.

(11) Because that which he puts into his hand can be considered as if he had put it into a small cistern or pit into which the oil flows.

(12) Boiling fixes liability to tithing, v. supra I, 7.

(13) He removes the kernels which float above the wine after it has been put in a dish; when he skims it the work is complete. v. supra I, 7.

(14) Liability to tithing is not fixed here by this skimming, since the wine has been already mixed before the skimming.

(15) Before he puts the food into it he puts the wine into it and skims it, therefore it is as one skimming wine in a small tank, and is therefore liable.

(16) Whose intention usually is of no effect.

(17) On the Sabbath eve.

(18) Not even a chance meal.

(19) Sabbath fixes the liability to tithing; now since their intention to have them for the Sabbath meal has fixed the liability of them to tithing, they therefore remain forbidden for ever until they have been tithed.

(20) A basket full of fruits which has been set apart for the Sabbath.

(21) The dispute here is in the case of one who wishes to make a 'chance meal' of them before the Sabbath.

(22) This selection fixes the liability of the fruits to tithing, and he must not make a chance meal of it until it has been tithed, even if he does not eventually send it.

(23) The place where they pile up olives in order that they should become soft, and capable of exuding their oil.

(24) Normally salting itself is sufficient to fix liability to tithe, provided, however, some time is allowed for the salt to penetrate and to soften the produce; if, however, it is immediately eaten as salted, salting does not fix liability to tithing.

(25) That is, at least the two together.

(26) Since they cannot be put back: for by so doing, the olives in the vat would be defiled; the salting fixes the liability to tithing.

(27) Outside the wine-press the liability to tithing is fixed and it is forbidden to drink of the wine

(28) Whether the wine is mixed with hot or cold water.

(29) This enactment has been made by R. Eliezer as a precaution lest the wine is taken outside the wine-press, and drunk there.

(30) If mixed with hot water, the wine which is left over cannot be put back, because the wine in the press will thus be spoiled; the taking out of the wine thus fixes the liability to tithing; but if it is mixed with cold water, what is left over can be put back, hence it is exempt.

(31) One barley-corn. This applies only when it is not near the threshing-floor.

(32) Even if only three kernels are husked together he is liable (T.J.).

(33) He parches ears of corn over the fire and crushes them in his hand to remove the worthless matter.

(34) He shakes them from one hand to the other, and blows to separate.

(35) The seed is the principal and the herb or plant secondary. The plant here means the herb or foliage.

(36) Var. lec.: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel.

(37) תַּמְרוֹת . Either the shoots or the berries.

(38) Because they can be eaten.

(39) Its sprouts or stalks.

(40) Which protects the fruit that surrounds it.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aseroth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE UPROOTS SEEDLINGS¹ OUT OF HIS OWN [PROPERTY] AND PLANTS THEM [ELSEWHERE] WITHIN HIS OWN [PROPERTY]. HE IS EXEMPT FROM TITHE.² IF HE BOUGHT SUCH AS WERE ATTACHED TO THE GROUND,³ HE IS EXEMPT;⁴ IF HE GATHERED THEM IN ORDER TO SEND THEM TO HIS FELLOW, HE IS EXEMPT.⁵ R. ELIEZER SON OF AZARIAH SAID: IF THEIR LIKE WERE BEING SOLD IN THE STREET,⁶ THEY ARE LIABLE TO TITHE.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN UPROOTS TURNIPS AND RADISHES FROM WITHIN HIS OWN [PROPERTY] AND PLANTS [THEM ELSEWHERE] WITHIN HIS OWN [PROPERTY] FOR THE PURPOSE OF SEED,⁷ HE IS LIABLE TO TITHE,⁸ SINCE THIS WOULD BE

MISHNAH 3. NO PERSON MAY SELL HIS FRUITS¹⁴ AFTER THE SEASON FOR TITHING HAS ARRIVED¹⁵ TO ONE WHO IS NOT TO BE TRUSTED CONCERNING TITHES, NOR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR [MAY ONE SELL SABBATICAL YEAR PRODUCE]¹⁶ TO ANYONE SUSPECTED OF [INFRINGING] THE SABBATICAL YEAR. IF ONLY [SOME] PRODUCE RIPENED,¹⁷ HE TAKES THE RIPE ONES AND MAY SELL THE REMAINDER.

MISHNAH 4. A MAN MAY NOT SELL HIS STRAW,¹⁸ NOR HIS OLIVE-PEAT,¹⁹ NOR HIS GRAPE-POMACE²⁰ TO ONE WHO IS NOT TO BE TRUSTED IN [THE OBSERVANCE OF] TITHES, FOR HIM TO EXTRACT THE JUICE FROM THEM.²¹ IF HE, HOWEVER, EXTRACTED THEM HE IS LIABLE TO TITHES, BUT IS EXEMPT FROM TERUMAH; BECAUSE WHEN A MAN SEPARATES TERUMAH HE HAS IN MIND THE FRAGMENTS,²² AND WHAT [IS] BY THE SIDES,²³ AND INSIDE THE STRAW.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN BOUGHT A FIELD OF VEGETABLES IN SYRIA²⁵ BEFORE THE SEASON FOR TITHING ARRIVED, THEN HE IS LIABLE TO TITHE²⁶; AFTER THE SEASON FOR TITHING HE IS EXEMPT, AND MAY GO ON GATHERING AFTER HIS USUAL MANNER.²⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MAY ALSO HIRE WORKMEN AND GATHER.²⁸ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: THIS²⁹ APPLIES ONLY IF HE HAS BOUGHT THE LAND; IF, HOWEVER, HE HAS NOT BOUGHT THE LAND, THOUGH IT WAS BEFORE THE SEASON FOR TITHING ARRIVED, HE IS EXEMPT.³⁰ RABBI SAYS: HE MUST ALSO TITHE ACCORDING TO CALCULATION.³¹

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN MAKES POMACE WINE,³² PUTTING WATER ON BY MEASURE, AND HE FINDS [AFTERWARDS] THE SAME QUANTITY, HE IS EXEMPT FROM GIVING TITHE.³³ R. JUDAH RENDERS HIM LIABLE.³⁴ IF, HOWEVER, HE FOUND MORE THAN THE SAME QUANTITY, HE MUST GIVE [TITHE] FOR IT FROM ANOTHER PLACE, IN PROPORTION.³⁵

MISHNAH 8. BAALBEK GARLIC,³⁹ RIKPA⁴⁰ ONIONS, CICILIAN BEANS AND EGYPTIANS LENTILS (R. MEIR INCLUDES ALSO COLOCASIA, AND R. JOSE SAYS: ALSO WILD LENTILS)⁴¹ ARE EXEMPT FROM TITHES⁴² AND MAY BE BROUGHT FROM ANY MAN IN THE SEVENTH YEAR.⁴³ THE HIGHER SEED-PODS OF THE ARUM,⁴⁴ THE SEED OF LEEKS, THE SEED OF ONIONS, THE SEED OF TURNIPS AND RADISHES, AND OTHER SEEDS OF GARDEN PRODUCE WHICH ARE NOT EATEN, ARE EXEMPT FROM TITHES, AND MAY BE BOUGHT FROM ANY MAN IN THE SEVENTH YEAR;⁴⁵ AND ALTHOUGH THE STOCK FROM WHICH THEY GREW WAS TERUMAH, THEY MAY STILL BE EATEN [BY NON-PRIESTS]⁴⁶.

(1) E.g., onions or leeks which are fit to be eaten. It was customary for gardeners to uproot them and to plant them in another place, where they became thicker and broader.

(2) He may make a chance meal of them, even though they have been fixed for tithe before he plants them again, since it was his intention to sow them again at the time he uprooted them, and not to eat them.

- (3) If one buys fruits when they were still attached.
- (4) Sale fixes liability to tithe only in the case of plucked produce, but not attached.
- (5) A gift does not fix liability to tithe (v. supra IV, 2) in respect of that which is attached.
- (6) It must be considered as though their growth was complete.
- (7) So that the seed should increase and multiply in the place where it was planted in the second time.
- (8) Before he re-plants them.
- (9) Their uprooting is the final work completing their harvesting.
- (10) Where they have been stored.
- (11) The floor of the upper storey is treated like the natural ground that frees anything sown in it from Levitical impurity in accordance with Lev XI, 37.
- (12) I.e., the leaves remained uncovered.
- (13) I.e., he who plucks of them on the Sabbath is liable, and the law of the Sabbatical year and of tithes applies to them.
- (14) In an unplucked condition. This ruling is laid down on the basis of the Biblical command: 'Do not put a stumbling block before the blind', Lev. XIX, 14.
- (15) V. supra II, 2.
- (16) Under conditions defined Sheb. VIII, 3.
- (17) And thus reached the season for tithing.
- (18) Ears of corn which have been threshed out and sometimes some wheat grains remain.
- (19) The residue of the olives after they have been pressed out.
- (20) The residue of squeezed-out grapes.
- (21) From the peat and grape-pomace, and in the case of straw, to gather wheat from it.
- (22) The wheat fragments which have not yet been threshed.
- (23) The sides of the pile (store) of grain, similarly with grapes and olives; cf. supra I, 6.
- (24) Also what is in the peat, and grape-pomace.
- (25) V. Demai VI, 11; supra p. 75, n. 5.
- (26) Since at the time of liability for tithing they were under the control of an Israelite.
- (27) He is exempt from tithe even as regards that which grows whilst already in his possession. But he should not hire workmen since he might do likewise in a field which he bought before the season for tithing arrives.
- (28) V. preceding note.
- (29) That he is liable if he buys before the season for tithing arrives.
- (30) Since he possesses nothing in the actual land.
- (31) This statement reverts back to the first authority. Just as he is liable, if he bought it before the tithing season, to tithe all he had acquired, so is he liable if it was after the tithing season had arrived, to tithe according to calculation that which has grown whilst in his possession; e.g., if the produce had reached only one-third of its normal growth at the time of the purchase (v. supra I, 3) he must tithe the two-thirds which grew after it came into his possession.
- (32) He puts water upon the lees of wine which is untithed so as to obtain the taste of wine from it.
- (33) Because it is mere water, though it has slightly absorbed the appearance and taste of wine from the husks and kernels.
- (34) Because its appearance and taste determine its status as wine, v. B. B. 96b.
- (35) I.e., he can even give tithe for it from other wine according to the proportion of the wine he found more than the measure of water he had put in it.
- (36) Cf. supra I, 6.
- (37) The produce which is found inside the holes is liable both to teruma and tithe.
- (38) Since it was near the pile.
- (39) Enbekhi, later Heliopolis, an ancient city of Syria, v. 'A.Z. 11b. Aliter: weeping garlic, i.e., the garlic is so pungent that it makes the eyes water.
- (40) A tuberous rooted plant used for dyeing Aliter: a name of a place.
- (41) Kind of lentil.
- (42) Because they grow wild.
- (43) Even from one who is normally suspected of selling fruits in the Sabbatical year.
- (44) It is classified with onions and garlic.
- (45) Because all these are not considered food.

(46) I.e., although the seedlings from which they grew were terumah (cf. supra 1) and the law is that what grows out of terumah is terumah, these species may be eaten even by non-priests, since they are not considered food.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. ANY LIQUID¹ WHICH WAS DESIRED AT THE BEGINNING² THOUGH IT WAS NOT DESIRED AT THE END, OR WHICH WAS DESIRED AT THE END THOUGH IT WAS NOT DESIRED AT THE BEGINNING, COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.³ UNCLEAN LIQUIDS RENDER UNCLEAN⁴ WHETHER [THEIR ACTION] IS DESIRED OR IS NOT DESIRED.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE SHOOK A TREE⁹ AND IT FELL¹⁰ ON ANOTHER TREE, OR A BRANCH AND IT FELL ON ANOTHER BRANCH, AND UNDER THEM WERE SEEDS OR VEGETABLES [STILL] JOINED TO THE GROUND, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THIS COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THIS DOES NOT COME¹¹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JOSHUA SAID¹² IN THE NAME OF ABBA JOSE CHOLIKOFRI,¹³ A CITIZEN OF TIBEON:¹⁴ MARVEL AT THYSELF IF THERE IS ANYTHING IN THE TORAH ABOUT A LIQUID CAUSING SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS EXCEPT ONE PUT IT ON WITH INTENTION, FOR IT IS SAID: 'IF WATER BE PUT UPON THE SEED'.¹⁵

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE SHOOK¹⁶ A BUNDLE OF VEGETABLES AND [WATER] DROPPED DOWN FROM THE UPPER [SIDE] TO THE LOWER [SIDE], BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THIS COMES¹⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THIS DOES NOT COME¹⁸ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BETH HILLEL SAID TO BETH SHAMMAI: IF ONE SHAKES A STALK, DO WE APPREHEND LEST WATER DROPS FROM ONE LEAF ON THE OTHER LEAF?¹⁹ BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: A STALK IS ONLY ONE, BUT A BUNDLE HAS MANY STALKS.²⁰ BETH HILLEL SAID TO THEM: LO, IF ONE LIFTED²¹ A SACK FULL OF FRUIT AND PUT IT BESIDE THE RIVER,²² DO WE APPREHEND LEST WATER DROPS FROM THE UPPER [SIDE] TO THE LOWER [SIDE]?²³ IF, HOWEVER, HE LIFTED TWO SACKS AND PLACED THEM ONE UPON THE OTHER, THE LOWER [SACK] COMES²⁴ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JOSE SAYS: THE LOWER [SACK] ALSO REMAINS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE RUBBEL²⁵ A LEAK OR PRESSED HIS HAIR²⁶ WITH HIS GARMENT, R. JOSE SAYS: THE LIQUID WHICH CAME OUT COMES²⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BUT THE LIQUID THAT REMAINED DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BECAUSE HIS INTENTION WAS THAT THE LIQUID SHOULD COME OUT OF ALL OF IT.²⁸

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE BLEW ON LENTILS IN ORDER TO TRY WHETHER THEY WERE GOOD,²⁹ R. SIMEON SAYS: THIS DOES NOT COME³⁰ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT³¹ THE SAGES SAY: THIS DOES COME³² UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE ATE SESAME WITH HIS FINGER³³ AND LIQUID CAME ON HIS HAND, R.

SIMEON SAYS: THIS DOES NOT COME³⁴ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THIS DOES COME³⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE HID HIS FRUIT IN WATER FROM THIEVES, IT DOES NOT COME³⁶ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. ONCE IT HAPPENED THAT THE MEN OF JERUSALEM HID THEIR FIG CAKES IN WATER FROM THE ROBBERS,³⁷ AND THE SAGES DECLARED THAT THEY WERE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF ONE PUT HIS FRUIT IN THE STREAM OF A RIVER TO MAKE IT COME DOWN WITH HIM, IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

(1) Any one in the list given infra VI, 4-5.

(2) The moistening of the produce by the liquid first pleased the owner, but afterwards displeased him; or, on the contrary, it first displeased him and then pleased him. According to other commentators the meaning is that the owner was pleased with the beginning of the flow of the liquid for some other purpose, but was displeased when in the end the liquid settled on the produce, or the reverse.

(3) Lev. XI, 38; i.e., such a liquid when it has moistened the produce renders it capable of contracting an uncleanness by the touch of an unclean thing; cf. Introduction.

(4) When they moisten produce, they render it susceptible to uncleanness and at the same time make it unclean by their touch.

(5) Such as a piece from a dead creature left in the branches by a bird.

(6) If the rain water fell on produce, it does not render it capable of contracting an impurity, because he did not intend to shake down the rain water.

(7) If what remains in the tree afterwards falls on produce. His intention to bring down the rain water extends also to what remains in the tree.

(8) And since he left some behind in the tree, it follows that he did not attach any value to this remainder.

(9) To bring down its fruit.

(10) And the fruit fell from the second tree or from the second branch on to the ground into seed or vegetables which had water on them.

(11) Because he did not intend them to fall on the other tree or on the other branch. The text and the interpretation of this passage are very uncertain. The explanation given here follows Maimonides and Bertinoro.

(12) In support of Beth Hillel's opinion.

(13) So named after some unknown locality.

(14) A town in lower Galilee.

(15) And since in this case it was not put on with intention, it cannot render susceptible.

(16) To shake off some water.

(17) Because the water fell on the lower side by the owner's deliberate act.

(18) His intention was to shake off the water altogether, and not to wet the lower side.

(19) And render it susceptible to uncleanness. But if no susceptibility is caused in the case of a stalk, why should it be caused in the case of a bundle?

(20) Therefore in the case of a bundle it is like dropping liquid from one fruit to another fruit.

(21) From the river in which it had fallen accidentally.

(22) To let the water run out of the sack.

(23) No, because the fruit in the lower side of the sack does not become susceptible. Similarly, the lower stalk in a bundle of vegetables should not become susceptible by the water coming down upon it from the upper stalks of the same bundle.

(24) Because by placing one sack upon the other he must have intended that water should flow from the upper sack upon the lower sack.

(25) To remove its moisture.

(26) Which had become wet by rain.

(27) It renders produce susceptible to uncleanness, because it came out by his deliberate act.

(28) In accordance with the opinion of Beth Hillel, supra p. 470. n. 1.

(29) And his spittle fell upon the lentils and moistened them.

(30) The moistening was done without intention.

(31) Some texts omit this sentence.

(32) His blowing was done with intention, and the moistening is the direct act of the blowing.

(33) By wetting his finger so as to pick up easily the grains of the sesame, and thus transferring moisture to the sesames on the palm of his hand.

(34) His intention was only to wet his finger but not the palm.

(35) The moisture on the palm is a direct consequence of his wetting the finger.

(36) It was not his intention to moisten the fruit.

(37) מִיִּקְרִיין, Latin sicarii, armed terrorists who infested Jerusalem in the last days of the Second Temple. Another reading is מִיִּקְרִיין, confiscators of property; cf. Bik. I, 2; II, 3; Git. 55b.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THE EXUDATION OF HOUSES, OF CISTERNS, OF DITCHES AND CAVERNS¹ DOES NOT CAUSE² SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. A MAN'S PERSPIRATION DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A MAN DRANK UNCLEAR WATER AND PERSPIRED, HIS PERSPIRATION DOES NOT CAUSE³ SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. IF HE ENTERED⁴ INTO DRAWN WATER AND PERSPIRED, HIS PERSPIRATION CAUSES⁵ SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. IF HE DRIED HIMSELF AND THEN PERSPIRED, HIS PERSPIRATION DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 2. THE EXUDATION OF AN UNCLEAR BATH⁶ IS UNCLEAR,⁷ BUT THAT OF A CLEAR BATH⁸ COMES⁹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF THERE WAS A POOL IN A HOUSE WHICH CAUSED THE HOUSE TO EXUDE AND THE POOL WAS UNCLEAR, THE EXUDATION OF ALL THE HOUSE WHICH WAS CAUSED BY THE POOL¹⁰ IS UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 3. IF THERE WERE TWO POOLS, THE ONE CLEAR AND THE OTHER UNCLEAR, WHAT EXUDES NEAR THE UNCLEAR POOL IS UNCLEAR, AND WHAT EXUDES NEAR THE CLEAR POOL IS CLEAR, AND WHAT IS AT EQUAL DISTANCE [FROM BOTH POOLS] IS UNCLEAR.¹¹ IF¹² UNCLEAR IRON¹³ WAS SMELTED WITH CLEAR IRON AND THE GREATER PART [CAME] FROM THE UNCLEAR IRON, IT IS UNCLEAR; IF THE GREATER PART [CAME] FROM THE CLEAR IRON, IT IS CLEAR; BUT IF THERE WAS HALF OF EACH, IT IS UNCLEAR. IF IN POTS WHICH ISRAELITES AND HEATHENS USED FOR PASSING WATER THE GREATER PART [OF THE CONTENTS CONSISTED] OF UNCLEAR [URINE],¹⁴ IT IS UNCLEAR; IF THE GREATER PART [OF THE CONTENTS CONSISTED] OF CLEAR [URINE],¹⁵ IT IS CLEAR; BUT IF THERE WAS HALF OF EACH, IT IS UNCLEAR. IF IN SLOP-WATER, IN WHICH RAIN HAD FALLEN, THE GREATER PART CONSISTED OF THE UNCLEAR WATER,¹⁶ IT IS UNCLEAR; IF THE GREATER PART CONSISTED OF CLEAR WATER,¹⁷ IT IS CLEAR; BUT IF THERE WAS HALF OF EACH, IT IS UNCLEAR. WHEN [IS THIS THE CASE]?¹⁸ WHEN THE SLOP-WATER CAME FIRST; BUT IF THE RAIN WATER CAME BEFORE [THE SLOP-WATER]. IT IS UNCLEAR¹⁹ WHATEVER THE QUANTITY [OF THE RAIN WATER].

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE SECURED HIS ROOF OR WASHED HIS GARMENT²⁰ AND RAIN CAME DOWN UPON IT,²¹ IF THE GREATER PART²² CONSISTED OF THE UNCLEAR WATER, IT IS UNCLEAR; IF THE GREATER PART CONSISTED OF THE CLEAR WATER, IT IS CLEAR; BUT IF THERE WAS HALF OF EACH, IT IS UNCLEAR. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF THE DRIPPING INCREASED,²³ [IT IS CLEAR].

MISHNAH 5. IF IN A CITY IN WHICH ISRAELITES AND HEATHENS DWELT TOGETHER THERE WAS A BATH WORKING²⁴ ON THE SABBATH, IF THE MAJORITY [OF THE INHABITANTS] WERE HEATHENS, ONE MAY BATHE THEREIN IMMEDIATELY²⁵ [AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SABBATH]; IF THE MAJORITY WERE ISRAELITES, ONE MUST WAIT UNTIL THE WATER CAN BE HEATED;²⁶ IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, ONE MUST [ALSO] WAIT UNTIL THE WATER CAN BE HEATED. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF THE BATH-BASIN WAS SMALL AND THERE WAS THERE A [HEATHEN] AUTHORITY, ONE MAY BATHE THEREIN IMMEDIATELY²⁷ [AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SABBATH].

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE FOUND VEGETABLES SOLD THEREIN [ON THE SABBATH]. IF THE MAJORITY [OF THE INHABITANTS] WERE HEATHENS, ONE MAY BUY THEREOF IMMEDIATELY²⁸ [AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SABBATH]; IF THE MAJORITY WERE ISRAELITES, ONE MUST WAIT UNTIL [VEGETABLES] CAN ARRIVE FROM THE NEAREST PLACE;²⁹ IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, ONE MUST [ALSO] WAIT UNTIL [VEGETABLES] CAN ARRIVE FROM THE NEAREST PLACE; BUT IF THERE WAS THERE A [HEATHEN] AUTHORITY, ONE MAY BUY IMMEDIATELY [AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SABBATH].

MISHNAH 7. IF AN ABANDONED CHILD WAS FOUND THERE, IF THE MAJORITY [OF THE INHABITANTS] WERE HEATHENS, IT MAY BE DEEMED A HEATHEN;³⁰ IF THE MAJORITY WERE ISRAELITES, IT MUST BE DEEMED AN ISRAELITE; IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, IT MUST [ALSO] BE DEEMED AN ISRAELITE. R. JUDAH SAYS: WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THOSE WHO ABANDON THEIR CHILDREN.³¹

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE FOUND THERE LOST PROPERTY, IF THE MAJORITY [OF THE INHABITANTS] WERE HEATHENS, HE NEED NOT PROCLAIM³² IT; IF THE MAJORITY WERE ISRAELITES, HE MUST PROCLAIM IT; IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, HE MUST [ALSO] PROCLAIM IT. IF ONE FOUND BREAD THERE, WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THE BAKERS.³³ IF IT WAS BREAD OF PURE FLOUR,³⁴ WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THOSE WHO EAT BREAD OF PURE FLOUR. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF IT WAS COARSE BREAD, WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THOSE WHO EAT COARSE BREAD.³⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE FOUND MEAT THERE, WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THE BUTCHERS. IF IT WAS COOKED MEAT, WE MUST CONSIDER WHO FORM THE MAJORITY OF THOSE WHO EAT COOKED MEAT.

MISHNAH 10. IF ONE FOUND FRUIT BY THE WAYSIDE,³⁶ IF THE MAJORITY [OF THE INHABITANTS] GATHERED FRUIT FOR THEIR HOMES,³⁷ HE IS ABSOLVED [FROM TITHES];³⁸ IF [THE MAJORITY GATHERED IT] FOR SELLING IN THE MARKET,³⁹ HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHES]; BUT IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, THE FRUIT IS DEMAI.⁴⁰ IF THERE WAS A GRANARY INTO WHICH BOTH ISRAELITES AND HEATHENS LAID IN THEIR PRODUCE, IF THE MAJORITY WERE HEATHENS, [THE PRODUCE MUST BE CONSIDERED] CERTAINLY UNTITHED;⁴¹ IF THE MAJORITY WERE ISRAELITES, [IT MUST BE CONSIDERED] DEMAI;⁴² IF THEY WERE HALF AND HALF, [IT MUST BE CONSIDERED] CERTAINLY UNTITHED. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: EVEN IF THEY WERE ALL HEATHENS, AND ONLY ONE ISRAELITE LAID HIS PRODUCE INTO THE GRANARY, [IT MUST BE CONSIDERED] DEMAI.⁴³

MISHNAH 11. IF THE FRUIT OF THE SECOND YEAR⁴⁴ EXCEEDED IN QUANTITY THE FRUIT OF THE THIRD YEAR, OR THE FRUIT OF THE THIRD YEAR EXCEEDED THE FRUIT OF THE FOURTH YEAR, OR THE FRUIT OF THE FOURTH YEAR EXCEEDED THE

FRUIT OF THE FIFTH YEAR,⁴⁵ OR THE FRUIT OF THE FIFTH YEAR EXCEEDED THE FRUIT OF THE SIXTH YEAR, OR THE FRUIT OF THE SIXTH YEAR EXCEEDED THE FRUIT OF THE SEVENTH YEAR,⁴⁶ OR THE FRUIT OF THE SEVENTH YEAR EXCEEDED THE FRUIT OF THE YEAR AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SEVENTH YEAR,⁴⁷ WE MUST CONSIDER WHAT FORMS THE GREATER PART; IF THEY ARE HALF AND HALF, WE MUST DECIDE ACCORDING TO THE MORE STRINGENT ALTERNATIVE.⁴⁸

(1) From their walls. Cf. Mik. I, 4.

(2) Exudation and perspiration do not come within the category of liquids enumerated infra VI, 4ff; cf. ibid. 7.

(3) The water he drank was digested, and the perspiration is not the same as the water.

(4) Even without intention.

(5) Because the perspiration mingled with the water which adhered to his body, and which was drawn by a deliberate human act. But if he had entered without intention into a pool of water which had been filled automatically without human agency and perspired, his perspiration would not cause susceptibility, because there was no deliberate human act in connection with that water.

(6) A bath containing unclean drawn water; cf. Mik. Introduction.

(7) When it touches food it renders it both susceptible and unclean.

(8) Consisting of a spring or a pool of rain water.

(9) It renders produce susceptible if, namely, the exudation is acceptable to the owner.

(10) But what is not caused by the pool is like the exudation of houses spoken of in Mishnah 1.

(11) There being a doubt whether it came from the clean pool or from the unclean pool, we must adopt the stringent alternative.

(12) Cf. Kelim XI, 4. From here to the end of the chapter a series of cases is given to illustrate the principle that where is a doubt we must adopt the more stringent alternative.

(13) Derived from broken vessels which were unclean.

(14) Viz., of the heathens, whose urine is unclean according to a rabbinic enactment, like the urine of persons with a running issue (צִנּוֹר); cf. Shab. 17b.

(15) Of the Israelites.

(16) The presumption is that the slops are unclean.

(17) The rain water.

(18) That the slop-water is neutralized by the larger quantity of rain water.

(19) The unclean slop-water when poured into rain water rendered it unclean.

(20) With unclean slop-water.

(21) On the dripping roof or on the dripping garment.

(22) Of the mixture of dripping water.

(23) In frequency, though not in volume. The increased frequency proves that the rain water is more than the dirty water.

(24) And heated on the Sabbath for bathing. It is forbidden to make use of the work done on the Sabbath by a non-Jew for a Jew.

(25) The bath was heated on the Sabbath for the majority who are non-Jews.

(26) After the conclusion of the Sabbath, when one may presume that the bath was not heated for the Jews on the Sabbath.

(27) It is assumed that it was heated on the Sabbath for the non-Jewish authority for whom a bath must ever be ready.

(28) They were cut and brought into the city on the Sabbath for the non-Jewish majority.

(29) Where vegetables are grown for the market.

(30) And may be given food forbidden to an Israelite.

(31) And these as a rule are non-Jews.

(32) So that the owner may report himself and recover his lost property; cf. B.M. II, 1. In the case of the lost property of a heathen one is not bound to make an effort to trace its owner, because heathens do not restore lost property to its owner.

(33) If the majority are heathens, the bread is forbidden by a rabbinic enactment; cf. Shab. 17b.

(34) Lit., 'of dough'.

(35) This was the kind of bread generally in use in the place of R. Judah (Tosaf. Yom Tob).

- (36) On the way from the field to the city.
- (37) In such a case the fruit does not become liable to tithes till it is brought into the house.
- (38) And also from setting apart the priestly terumah. But only if he wants to make of the fruit a light meal; cf. Ma'as. I, 5.
- (39) In such a case the produce becomes liable to tithes and terumah as soon as it is gathered in the field.
- (40) 'Doubtful', like the produce of an 'am ha-arez, who is suspected of failing to tithe his produce; cf. Demai, Introduction. In such a case the produce is liable to tithes only, but not to terumah.
- (41) This Tanna being of the opinion that the produce grown on the soil of a heathen is liable to tithes.
- (42) Subject only to the rules regulating the produce of an 'am ha-arez, because it is assumed that there is an 'am ha-arez among the Israelites who stores his produce in the granary.
- (43) The Sages hold that the produce grown on the soil of a heathen is exempt from tithes and consequently, unless the granary is used also by at least one Israelite, there is no liability to tithes.
- (44) Of the Sabbatical cycle (שמיטה); cf. Lev. XXV, 2ff. In the first, second, fourth and fifth years of the cycle, produce was liable to the First Tithe given to the Levite, and to the Second Tithe which had to be consumed, itself or its value, in Jerusalem (cf. Deut. XIV, 23ff). In the third and sixth years of the cycle, produce was liable to the First Tithe of the Levite and to the Third Tithe which was given to the poor; cf. Demai, Introduction 2 (3). In the case of a mixture of the produce of the different years enumerated in the text, the question arises whether the mixture is liable, beside to the First Tithe, also to the Second Tithe or to the Third Tithe or to both.
- (45) Some texts omit this clause, since the fourth and fifth years are alike in their obligation respecting tithes.
- (46) The Sabbatical year, when produce was subject to the special regulations set out in Tractate Shebi'ith. Seventh year produce was exempt from all tithes.
- (47) Viz., the first year of the new Sabbatical cycle.
- (48) Viz., according to the rules governing both years. In the case of a mixture of the produce of the second and third years and of the fifth and sixth years, beside First Tithe, Second Tithe must be separated and its value given to the poor to be consumed in Jerusalem. In the case of a mixture of produce of the sixth and seventh years, First and Third Tithes must be given, and in a mixture of the seventh and first years. First and Second Tithes must be given, and in both these cases the regulations of seventh year produce must be observed.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IF A SACK FULL OF FRUIT WAS PUT BY THE SIDE OF A RIVER OR BY THE SIDE OF THE MOUTH OF A CISTERN¹ OR ON THE STEPS OF A CAVERN, AND [THE FRUIT] ABSORBED WATER, ALL [THE FRUIT] WHICH ABSORBED THE WATER COMES² UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALL [THE FRUIT] WHICH FACED³ THE WATER COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BUT ALL [THE FRUIT] WHICH DID NOT FACE THE WATER DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 2. IF A JAR⁴ FULL OF FRUIT WAS PUT INTO LIQUIDS, OR IF A JAR FULL OF LIQUIDS WAS PUT INTO FRUIT AND [THE FRUIT] ABSORBED WATER, ALL [THE FRUIT] WHICH ABSORBED THE WATER COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. OF WHAT LIQUIDS HAVE THEY SAID IT? OF WATER, WINE AND VINEGAR;⁵ BUT ALL THE OTHER LIQUIDS⁶ DO NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. R. NEHEMIAH DECLARES PULSE INSUSCEPTIBLE,⁷ BECAUSE PULSE DOES NOT ABSORB [LIQUIDS].

MISHNAH 3. IF⁸ ONE DREW OFF⁹ HOT BREAD¹⁰ AND PUT IT UPON THE MOUTH OF A JAR OF WINE, R. MEIR DECLARES IT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;¹¹ BUT R. JUDAH DECLARES IT INSUSCEPTIBLE.¹¹ R. JOSE DECLARES IT INSUSCEPTIBLE¹¹ IN THE CASE OF WHEATEN BREAD AND SUSCEPTIBLE IN THE CASE OF BARLEY BREAD, BECAUSE BARLEY ABSORBS [LIQUIDS].

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE SPRINKLED HIS HOUSE¹² [WITH WATER] AND PUT WHEAT

THEREIN AND IT BECAME MOIST, IF [THE MOISTURE CAME] FROM THE WATER, IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF [THE MOISTURE CAME] FROM THE STONY FLOOR, IT DOES NOT COME¹³ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE WASHED HIS GARMENT IN A TUB AND PUT WHEAT THEREIN¹⁴ AND IT BECAME MOIST, IF [THE MOISTURE CAME] FROM THE WATER,¹⁵ IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF [THE MOISTURE CAME] OF ITSELF,¹⁶ IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE MOISTENED [PRODUCE] WITH SAND, THIS COMES¹⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IT HAPPENED WITH THE MEN OF MAHOZ¹⁸ THAT THEY USED TO MOISTEN [THEIR PRODUCE] WITH SAND, AND THE SAGES SAID TO THEM: IF YOU HAVE ALWAYS DONE THUS,¹⁹ YOU HAVE NEVER PREPARED YOUR FOOD IN PURITY.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE MOISTENED [PRODUCE] WITH DRYING CLAY, R. SIMEON SAYS: IF THERE WAS STILL IN IT DRIPPING LIQUID, IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF THERE WAS NOT, IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE SPRINKLED²¹ HIS THRESHING-FLOOR WITH WATER, HE NEED NOT APPREHEND LEST WHEAT BE PUT THERE AND IT BECOME MOIST.²² IF ONE GATHERED GRASS WITH THE DEW STILL ON IT IN ORDER TO MOISTEN WHEAT THEREWITH,²³ IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF HIS INTENTION WAS FOR THIS PURPOSE,²⁴ IT DOES COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE CARRIED WHEAT TO BE MILLED AND RAIN CAME DOWN UPON IT AND HE WAS GLAD OF IT, IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JUDAH SAID: ONE CANNOT HELP BEING GLAD OF IT;²⁵ NAY, [IT COMES UNDER THE LAW] ONLY IF HE STOPPED [ON HIS WAY].²⁶

MISHNAH 6. IF HIS OLIVES WERE PUT ON THE ROOF AND RAIN CAME DOWN UPON THEM AND HE WAS GLAD OF IT, IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE CANNOT HELP BEING GLAD; NAY, [IT COMES UNDER THE LAW] ONLY IF HE STOPPED UP THE RAIN-PIPE²⁷ OR IF HE SHOOK [THE OLIVES] THEREIN.

MISHNAH 7. IF ASS-DRIVERS WERE CROSSING A RIVER AND THEIR SACKS [FILLED WITH PRODUCE] FELL INTO THE WATER AND THEY WERE GLAD OF IT, IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE CANNOT HELP BEING GLAD OF IT; NAY, [IT COMES UNDER THE LAW] ONLY IF THEY TURNED OVER [THE SACKS].²⁸ IF ONE'S FEET WERE FULL OF CLAY (LIKewise, TOO, THE FEET OF HIS BEAST) AND HE CROSSED A RIVER AND HE WAS GLAD OF IT,²⁹ THIS COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.³⁰ R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE CANNOT HELP BEING GLAD OF IT; NAY, [IT COMES UNDER THE LAW] ONLY IF HE STOPPED AND RINSED³¹ [THE FEET]. BUT IN THE CASE OF A MAN³² OR AN UNCLEAN BEAST³³ IT ALWAYS CAUSES³⁴ SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE LOWERED INTO WATER WHEELS OR GEAR OF OXEN AT THE TIME OF THE EAST WIND³⁵ IN ORDER THAT THEY MIGHT BECOME TIGHTENED, THIS COMES³⁶ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE TOOK DOWN A BEAST TO DRINK, THE WATER WHICH CAME UP ON ITS MOUTH COMES³⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BUT THAT WHICH CAME UP ON ITS FEET DOES NOT COME³⁸ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF, HOWEVER, HE INTENDED THAT ITS FEET SHOULD BE WASHED, ALSO THE WATER THAT CAME UP ON ITS FEET COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. AT THE TIME OF FOOTSORENESS OR OF THRESHING³⁹ IT ALWAYS CAUSES SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A DEAF-MUTE OR AN IDIOT OR A MINOR TOOK IT DOWN, EVEN THOUGH HIS INTENTION WAS THAT ITS FEET SHOULD BE WASHED, IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BECAUSE WITH THESE THE ACT ALONE COUNTS, BUT NOT THE INTENTION.⁴⁰

- (1) Containing a pool of water.
 - (2) It becomes susceptible to uncleanness, because it is the owner's wish that the fruit should become fuller and heavier by the absorption of moisture.
 - (3) And thus absorbed moisture direct from the water.
 - (4) Of porous material like earthenware which absorbs water.
 - (5) These are capable of being absorbed.
 - (6) Of the list infra VI, 4.
 - (7) Even if moistened by water, wine or vinegar.
 - (8) Cf. Ter. X, 3.
 - (9) From the sides of the baking-oven.
 - (10) Which was kneaded in fruit juice. Bread kneaded in water becomes susceptible by the water before it is baked.
 - (11) Or, according to another interpretation, unclean, clean. The bread had been kneaded in water, and was thus already susceptible before it was baked. But the wine was unclean, and the controversy turns on whether the exudation of the wine absorbed by the hot bread can render the bread unclean.
 - (12) The floor to lay the dust.
 - (13) Like the exudation of houses, supra II, 1.
 - (14) After emptying the tub.
 - (15) Which may have adhered to the inside of the tub.
 - (16) From dampness in the air, or the like.
 - (17) The sand contained some moisture.
 - (18) Which was rich in sand dunes; cf. 'Ar. III, 2. It was probably situated near Jabneh.
 - (19) Under the impression that the produce did not become susceptible.
 - (20) It had become susceptible by the sand, and then may have contracted an impurity.
 - (21) To lay the dust on it.
 - (22) The floor is sure to get dry before the wheat is put there.
 - (23) In the grass itself.
 - (24) To use the moisture of the dew.
 - (25) And on your view, the law should apply in any case.
 - (26) To let the wheat get wet by the rain, thus showing by his action that he desired it. Mere intention without an attendant action does not impart, on the view of R. Judah, susceptibility to uncleanness (Bert.).
 - (27) That the water should not escape from the roof.
 - (28) To let them get wet on all sides.
 - (29) That the water of the river had washed off the mud of his feet.
 - (30) The water on the feet causes susceptibility to uncleanness.
 - (31) The feet of a domestic animal like an ox which is used for rough work, and its owner is indifferent about the cleanliness of its feet. Therefore, water on its feet cannot be considered as desired by the owner, unless he stopped and rinsed its feet.
 - (32) Who is fastidious about the cleanliness of his feet.
 - (33) A domestic animal, the flesh of which is forbidden for food (Lev. XI, 2ff.; Deut. XIV, 4ff.), like a horse or an ass, which is used only for riding. The owner is anxious that the feet of a riding-animal should be clean.
 - (34) One is particularly pleased when the feet of a man or of a riding-animal are washed in the river, therefore even R. Judah admits that the water falling from their feet after crossing a river can render produce susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (35) Which causes wooden articles to crack by its dry heat; cf. Kelim XX, 2.
 - (36) Water dripping from them causes produce to become susceptible, because the water came on these articles by the wish of the owner.
 - (37) Because it is usual for its mouth to get wet, and is therefore considered as if intended by the owner.
 - (38) Because it is not necessary that its feet should become wet when drinking, and is therefore not considered as if it was desired by the owner.
 - (39) Because then the wetting of the feet is desired by the owner for the sake of the health of the animal, or for the cleanliness of the corn.

(40) Cf. infra VI, 1; Toh. VIII, 6; Kelim XVII, 15.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE STOOPED DOWN TO DRINK,¹ THE WATER WHICH CAME UP ON HIS MOUTH OR ON HIS MOUSTACHE COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT';² BUT [WHAT CAME UP] ON HIS NOSE OR ON HIS HEAD OR ON HIS BEARD³ DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE DREW WATER WITH A JAR, THE WATER WHICH CAME UP ON THE BACK THEREOF, OR ON THE ROPE WHICH WAS WOUND ROUND ITS NECK, OR ON THE ROPE WHICH WAS NEEDED FOR ITS USE,⁴ COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. HOW MUCH ROPE IS NEEDED FOR ITS USE? R. SIMEON B. ELEAZAR SAYS: A HANDBREADTH. IF HE PUT THE JAR UNDER THE RAIN-PIPE, IT⁵ DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 2. IF RAIN CAME DOWN UPON A PERSON,⁶ EVEN IF HE WAS UNCLEAN WITH A PRINCIPAL DEFILEMENT,⁷ IT DOES NOT COME⁸ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF HE SHOOK IT OFF, IT⁹ DOES COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE STOOD UNDER A RAIN-PIPE TO COOL HIMSELF OR TO WASH HIMSELF, [THE WATER FALLING ON HIM] IS UNCLEAN¹⁰ IF HE IS UNCLEAN; BUT IF HE IS CLEAN, IT [ONLY] COMES UNDER THE LAW OF IF WATER BE PUT.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE INCLINED A DISH AGAINST A WALL THAT IT MIGHT BE RINSED,¹¹ IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF IN ORDER THAT THE WALL MIGHT NOT BE DAMAGED,¹² IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 4. IF DRIPPINGS [FROM A ROOF] FELL¹³ INTO A JAR,¹⁴ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT SHOULD BE BROKEN.¹⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MAY BE EMPTIED OUT.¹⁶ BUT THEY¹⁷ AGREE THAT ONE MAY PUT OUT HIS HAND AND TAKE FRUIT THEREFROM AND LEAVE IT INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁸

MISHNAH 5. IF DRIPPINGS [FROM A ROOF] FELL¹³ INTO A TUB, THE WATER WHICH SPLASHED OUT OR RAN OVER DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE MOVED THE TUB IN ORDER TO POUR OUT THE WATER, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT COMES¹⁹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT DOES NOT COME²⁰ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE PLACED THE TUB IN ORDER THAT THE DRIPPINGS [FROM THE ROOF] SHOULD FALL INTO IT,²¹ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE WATER THAT SPLASHES OUT OR RUNS OVER²² COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT²³ DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE MOVED THE TUB IN ORDER TO POUR OUT THE WATER, BOTH AGREE THAT IT²⁴ COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE IMMERVED VESSELS OR WASHED HIS GARMENT IN A CAVERN,²⁵ THE WATER THAT CAME UP ON HIS HANDS²⁶ COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT WHAT CAME UP ON HIS FEET²⁷ DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF IT WAS NOT POSSIBLE FOR HIM TO GO DOWN INTO THE CAVERN WITHOUT SOILING HIS FEET, WHAT CAME UP ON HIS FEET ALSO COMES²⁸ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 6. IF A BASKET FULL OF LUPINES WAS PLACED IN A MIKWEH,²⁹ ONE MAY PUT³⁰ OUT HIS HAND AND TAKE LUPINES THEREFROM AND LEAVE THEM CLEAN.³¹ BUT IF HE LIFTED THEM³² OUT OF THE WATER, THOSE THAT TOUCH THE

BASKET ARE UNCLEAR,³³ BUT THE REST OF THE LUPINES ARE CLEAN.³⁴ IF THERE WAS A RADISH IN A CAVERN,³⁵ A MENSTRUANT WOMAN MAY RINSE IT AND LEAVE IT CLEAN.³⁶ BUT IF SHE LIFTED IT, HOWEVER LITTLE, OUT OF THE WATER, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.³⁷

MISHNAH 7. IF FRUIT FELL INTO A CHANNEL OF WATER,³⁸ AND ONE WHOSE HANDS WERE UNCLEAR PUT OUT HIS HANDS AND TOOK IT, HIS HANDS BECOME CLEAN³⁹ AND THE FRUIT [ALSO] REMAINS CLEAN.⁴⁰ BUT IF HIS INTENTION WAS THAT HIS HANDS SHOULD BE RINSED, HIS HANDS BECOME CLEAN AND THE FRUIT COMES⁴¹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT.'

MISHNAH 8. IF A POT⁴² FULL OF WATER WAS PLACED IN A MIKWEH, AND A MAN WHO WAS UNCLEAR WITH A PRINCIPAL DEFILEMENT PUT HIS HAND INTO THE POT, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁴³ BUT IF [HE WAS UNCLEAR] BY THE TOUCH OF A DEFILEMENT,⁴⁴ THE POT REMAINS CLEAN,⁴⁵ BUT ANY OF THE OTHER LIQUIDS⁴⁶ [CONTAINED IN THE POT] BECOMES UNCLEAR, FOR WATER CANNOT PURIFY THE OTHER LIQUIDS.⁴⁷

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE DREW WATER THROUGH A CHANNEL,⁴⁸ IT CAUSES⁴⁹ SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS FOR THREE DAYS. R. AKIBA SAYS: IF THE CHANNEL WAS DRIED, IT AT ONCE DOES NOT CAUSE⁵⁰ SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT IF IT WAS NOT DRIED, IT CAUSES SUSCEPTIBILITY EVEN FOR THIRTY DAYS.

MISHNAH 10. IF UNCLEAR LIQUIDS FELL UPON WOOD AND RAIN CAME DOWN UPON IT⁵¹ AND [THE RAIN WATER] EXCEEDED [THE LIQUIDS] IN QUANTITY. THEY BECOME CLEAN;⁵² BUT IF THE WOOD HAD BEEN TAKEN OUTSIDE IN ORDER THAT RAIN SHOULD COME DOWN UPON IT, THEY ARE UNCLEAR⁵³ EVEN THOUGH [THE RAIN WATER] EXCEEDED IN QUANTITY. IF [THE WOOD] HAD ABSORBED UNCLEAR LIQUIDS,⁵⁴ THEY BECOME CLEAN EVEN THOUGH THE WOOD HAD BEEN CARRIED OUTSIDE IN ORDER THAT RAIN SHOULD COME DOWN UPON IT.⁵⁵ BUT ONE MAY NOT LIGHT THE WOOD IN AN OVEN EXCEPT WITH CLEAN HANDS.⁵⁶ R. SIMEON SAYS: IF THE WOOD WAS FRESHLY-CUT WHEN IT WAS LIGHTED, AND THE LIQUIDS THAT CAME OUT OF IT⁵⁷ EXCEEDED IN QUANTITY THE LIQUIDS WHICH IT HAD ABSORBED, THEY BECOME CLEAN.⁵⁸

(1) From a river.

(2) Since the mouth and the moustache necessarily get wet when one is drinking, the water on them may be considered as desired by the drinker.

(3) These need not get wet, and therefore the water on them cannot be considered as desired by the drinker; cf. supra III, 8, nn. 8, 9.

(4) These necessarily get wet.

(5) Any water on the back of the jar or on its rope, since in this case they need not get wet.

(6) Accidentally.

(7) Cf. Kelim I, 1; 'Ed. (Sonc. ed.) p. 9, n. 4.

(8) Since the rain water fell on the unclear person without his wish, it does not become unclear (cf. infra VI, 8), and therefore does not come within the category of unclear liquids which render unclear and cause susceptibility even when not desired (supra I, 1, n. 4).

(9) The water that fell off, in accordance with the opinion of Beth Hillel, supra I, 2.

(10) And renders produce susceptible and unclear at the same time; cf. supra I, 1 n. 4.

(11) In the rain water coming down the wall.

(12) By the rain water, which is not wanted.

- (13) Against one's wishes.
- (14) Containing produce.
- (15) In order to get out the produce inside it; for if he tilts the jar over to empty it, the water running out together with the falling produce will render the produce susceptible.
- (16) By tilting over the jar, since he only wishes to empty the produce and not the water.
- (17) Beth Shammai.
- (18) Even though his hand may cause the water to come on the produce.
- (19) Since he poured the water away only when the tub was moved to another place, it may be said that he did not object to the water when the tub was in its original place.
- (20) His pouring away showed that he did not want the water even in the tub's original place.
- (21) And not in the courtyard.
- (22) And all the more so the water inside the tub.
- (23) Only what splashed out and what ran over, but not what is inside.
- (24) Even what splashed out and what ran over.
- (25) Containing a pool of water.
- (26) He is satisfied with this water.
- (27) This is against his wish.
- (28) Because he wishes his feet to be cleaned by the water.
- (29) A pool for the purification of a defilement by immersion; cf. Mikwaoth Introduction.
- (30) Even a person affected with a principal defilement; cf. supra 2, n. 7.
- (31) The water in the mikweh being joined to the ground cannot cause susceptibility to uncleanness; cf. Introduction.
- (32) The lupines together with the basket.
- (33) The basket becomes unclean with a secondary defilement of the first degree (ראשון לטומאה), and the lupines, having become susceptible by the water which adhered to them when lifted, contract a secondary defilement of the second degree (שני לטומאה); cf. 'Ed. (Sonc. ed.) p. 9, n. 4.
- (34) In spite of their contact with the unclean lupines of the second degree, for a second degree defilement cannot convey uncleanness to produce of a common character (חולין), like these lupines, but only to produce of priestly heave-offering (תרומה).
- (35) In a pool of water.
- (36) V. p. 486, n. 4.
- (37) The water on it when lifted makes it susceptible to contract uncleanness from the touch of the menstruant woman.
- (38) Joined to a valid mikweh.
- (39) Although this washing of the hands was unintentional, it suffices for handling produce of a common character.
- (40) Since it fell in accidentally, it did not become susceptible.
- (41) It becomes susceptible by the water on his hands.
- (42) Of earthenware.
- (43) An earthenware vessel becomes unclean by the entry into its air-space of a principal defilement, but cannot be made clean by the water of a mikweh; cf. Lev. XI, 33; Mik. (Sonc. ed.) VI, 6, n. 4.
- (44) He was unclean by a secondary defilement of the first degree after he had touched a principal defilement; cf. supra 6, nn. 13, 14.
- (45) An earthenware vessel cannot be rendered unclean except by a principal defilement. The water in the pot is also clean, by coming in contact with the water of the mikweh; v. Mik. (Sonc. ed.) X, 6, n. 5.
- (46) Enumerated infra VI, 4, 5.
- (47) Because they cannot mingle with the water of the mikweh; cf. Mik. (Sonc. ed.) X, 6, n. 8.
- (48) חולין, . Maimonides and others explain it as a swape-pipe or bucket; cf. Mik. VIII, 1.
- (49) Any moisture in the channel.
- (50) The moisture cannot be from the water which had passed through the channel.
- (51) Unexpectedly.
- (52) The rain water neutralizes the unclean liquid.
- (53) Because the rain water, being expected and desired, becomes itself unclean by the liquid.
- (54) And the liquid disappeared from the surface of the wood.
- (55) Because there is no contact between the unclean liquid and the rain water.

(56) The hands may render the rain water on the wood unclean, and this may convey uncleanness to the oven.

(57) The natural sap of the wood.

(58) The unclean liquid is neutralized by the sap.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN IMMERSED HIMSELF IN A RIVER¹ AND THERE WAS IN FRONT OF HIM ANOTHER RIVER AND HE CROSSED IT,² THE SECOND [WATER] PURIFIES³ THE FIRST [WATER]. IF HIS FELLOW WHO WAS INTOXICATED PUSHED HIM IN OR HIS BEAST,⁴ THE SECOND [WATER] PURIFIES THE FIRST [WATER]; BUT IF [HE DID IT] OUT OF PLAYFULNESS, IT COMES⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN SWAM IN WATER, THE WATER THAT SPLASHED OUT⁶ DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF IT WAS HIS INTENTION TO SPLASH HIS FELLOW, THIS COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE MADE A 'Blrd'⁷ IN THE WATER, NEITHER [THE WATER] THAT SPLASHED OUT⁸ NOR WHAT REMAINED IN IT⁹ COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 3. IF DRIPPINGS [FROM A ROOF] CAME DOWN INTO FRUIT AND IT WAS MIXED UP IN ORDER THAT IT MIGHT BECOME DRY¹⁰ [QUICKLY]. R. SIMEON SAYS: IT COMES¹¹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT DOES NOT COME¹² UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 4. IF A CISTERN WAS MEASURED WHETHER FOR ITS DEPTH OR FOR ITS BREADTH, IT COMES¹³ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. TARFON. BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: IF [IT WAS MEASURED] FOR ITS DEPTH,¹⁴ IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF FOR ITS BREADTH, IT DOES NOT COME¹⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE PUT HIS HAND OR HIS FOOT OR A REED INTO A CISTERN IN ORDER TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER IT HAD ANY WATER, IT DOES NOT COME¹⁶ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF TO ASCERTAIN HOW MUCH WATER IT HAD, THIS COMES¹⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF ONE THREW A STONE INTO A CISTERN TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER IT HAD ANY WATER, [THE WATER] THAT WAS SPLASHED DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', AND ALSO [THE WATER] THAT IS ON THE STONE¹⁸ IS CLEAN.¹⁹

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE BEAT UPON A HIDE²⁰ OUTSIDE THE WATER, IT COMES²¹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF [HE BEAT IT] INSIDE THE WATER,²² IT DOES NOT COME²³ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. R. JOSE SAYS: IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT' ALSO IF [HE BEAT IT] INSIDE THE WATER, BECAUSE HIS INTENTION WAS THAT THE WATER SHOULD COME OFF TOGETHER WITH THE FILTH.²⁴

MISHNAH 7. THE WATER THAT COMES UP INTO A SHIP OR INTO THE BILGE OR ON THE OARS DOES NOT COME²⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. THE WATER THAT COMES UP IN SNARES, NETS, OR GINS, DOES NOT COME²⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF THEY WERE SHAKEN,²⁶ IT DOES COME²⁷ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF A SHIP WAS LED OUT INTO THE GREAT SEA²⁸ IN ORDER TO TIGHTEN IT,²⁹ OR IF A NAIL³⁰ WAS TAKEN OUT INTO THE RAIN IN ORDER TO TEMPER IT. OR IF A BRAND WAS LEFT IN THE RAIN IN ORDER TO EXTINGUISH IT, THIS COMES³¹ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 8. [WATER ON] THE COVERING OF TABLES OR ON THE MATTING OF BRICKS DOES NOT COME³² UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF THEY WERE SHAKEN, IT DOES COME³³ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IT WATER BE PUT'.

MISHNAH 9. ANY UNINTERRUPTED FLOW OF LIQUID³⁴ IS CLEAN,³⁵ EXCEPT [THE FLOW] OF HONEY OF ZIPHIM³⁶ AND OF BATTER.³⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ALSO [THE FLOW OF] THICK POTTAGE OF GRITS, OR OF BEANS, BECAUSE IT BOUNDS BACKWARDS.

MISHNAH 10. [THE FLOW] OF HOT WATER POURED³⁸ INTO HOT WATER, OF COLD WATER [POURED] INTO COLD WATER, OF HOT WATER [POURED] INTO COLD WATER REMAINS CLEAN; BUT [THE FLOW] OF COLD WATER [POURED] INTO HOT WATER BECOMES UNCLEAR.³⁹ R. SIMEON SAYS: ALSO [THE FLOW] OF NOT WATER POURED INTO NOT WATER BECOMES UNCLEAR IF THE STRENGTH OF THE HEAT OF THE LOWER [WATER] IS GREATER THAN THAT OF THE UPPER [WATER].⁴⁰

MISHNAH 11. IF A WOMAN WHOSE HANDS WERE CLEAN STIRRED⁴¹ AN UNCLEAR POT AND HER HANDS PERSPIRED, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.⁴² IF HER HANDS WERE UNCLEAR AND SHE STIRRED A CLEAR POT AND HER HANDS PERSPIRED THE POT BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁴³ R. JOSE SAYS: ONLY IF HER HANDS DRIPPED.⁴⁴ IF GRAPES WERE WEIGHED IN THE SCALE OF A BALANCE, THE WINE⁴⁵ IN THE SCALE IS CLEAR⁴⁶ UNTIL IT IS POURED INTO A VESSEL.⁴⁷ LO, THIS IS LIKE BASKETS OF OLIVES AND GRAPES WHEN THEY ARE DRIPPING [WITH SAP].⁴⁸

(1) The water of this river which was still on his body could render produce susceptible, because he wished it to come on his body.

(2) Against his wish.

(3) I.e., neutralizes it, so that neither the water from the first river nor from the second river can cause susceptibility.

(4) Into a river after they had become wet with intention.

(5) The second water was also acceptable.

(6) Without the intention of the swimmer.

(7) A game for blowing bubbles by means of a tube placed in water; var. lec. 'a tube'.

(8) Without intention.

(9) In the tube.

(10) The owner mixed up the wet fruit with the dry fruit, so as to accelerate the drying of the moisture by spreading it over a wider space.

(11) The dry fruit was deliberately moistened by the owner's act.

(12) His intention was not to moisten any of the fruit, but to remove the moisture from the whole fruit as quickly as possible.

(13) The water of the measuring-rod.

(14) When the water on the measuring-rod is necessary, in order to indicate by its mark on the rod the exact depth of the water.

(15) In measuring the breadth the water on the measuring-rod is immaterial for ascertaining the extent of the cistern.

(16) The water on the hand or on the foot or on the rod is not wanted.

(17) The water on the hand or on the foot or on the rod is wanted, in order to show by its mark the exact quantity of water in the cistern.

(18) Even on the part of the stone above the surface of the water in the cistern.

(19) It cannot contract an uncleanness nor can it cause susceptibility to uncleanness.

(20) To remove the moisture after washing the hide in a pool.

(21) The moisture coming out of the hide causes susceptibility, because there is here the intention of removing the moisture, as in the case of a tree which is shaken in order to drop the rain water from its branches, supra I, 2.

- (22) The hide is beaten while inside the pool in order to remove its hair and its filth.
- (23) There can be no intention here of removing moisture, since the hide still remains in the water.
- (24) In order to get on it fresh clean water and complete its cleansing.
- (25) One is indifferent to such water.
- (26) To remove the water.
- (27) The removal was done by intention, as in p. 490. n. 10.
- (28) The Mediterranean, or into any other sea.
- (29) To tighten the wooden planks which had become loose while the boat was ashore.
- (30) Hot from the fire.
- (31) In all these cases the water is desired.
- (32) The water is not wanted.
- (33) Cf. p. 490, n. 10.
- (34) Poured from a clean vessel into an unclean vessel.
- (35) In the upper vessel; cf. Toh. VIII, 9; Yad. IV, 7.
- (36) According to an explanation in Sot. 58b the honey is so named after Ziph in the south of Judah; cf. Joshua XV, 55; Ps. LIV, 2.
- (37) צִפְּחַת. The meaning of this word is uncertain. It is usually taken as צִפְּחִית. Ex. XVI 31. Maim. explains it as honey from a place called Zappahath. These are thick liquids, and when the flow stops suddenly, it is likely to bound back from the unclean vessel into the clean vessel, and thus render it unclean.
- (38) From a clean vessel into an unclean vessel.
- (39) The hot water in the unclean vessel causes steam to rise which mixes with the water in the clean vessel and renders it unclean.
- (40) Thus forming steam in the lower unclean vessel, which rises into the cooler clean vessel.
- (41) With a ladle.
- (42) The perspiration caused by the steam of the unclean pot renders her hands unclean.
- (43) By the perspiration of her unclean hands.
- (44) But not by the steam of the hot sweat.
- (45) The sap that escapes from the grapes.
- (46) Nor can it cause susceptibility to uncleanness.
- (47) Only then can it be considered a liquid.
- (48) Which likewise is not considered a liquid until it is poured into a vessel; cf. infra VI, 8.

Mishna - Mas. Makshirin Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE CARRIED UP HIS FRUIT TO THE ROOF BECAUSE OF MAGGOTS,¹ AND DEW CAME DOWN UPON IT, IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'; BUT IF HIS INTENTION WAS FOR THIS PURPOSE,² IT COMES UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. IF A DEAF-MUTE, OR AN IDIOT, OR A MINOR CARRIED IT UP, ALTHOUGH HE EXPECTED THAT DEW SHOULD COME DOWN UPON IT, IT DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT', BECAUSE WITH THESE THE ACT ALONE COUNTS, BUT NOT THE INTENTION.³

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE CARRIED UP TO THE ROOF BUNDLES [OF VEGETABLES] OR CAKES OF FIGS OR GARLIC SO AS TO KEEP THEM FRESH, IT DOES NOT COME⁴ UNDER THE LAW OF 'IF WATER BE PUT'. ALL BUNDLES [OF VEGETABLES] IN THE MARKET PLACES ARE UNCLEAR.⁵ R. JUDAH DECLARES THEM CLEAN IF THEY ARE FRESH.⁶ R. MEIR SAID: WHEREFORE HAVE THEY DECLARED THEM UNCLEAR? ONLY BECAUSE OF LIQUID FROM THE MOUTH.⁷ ALL COARSE AND FINE FLOURS OF THE MARKET PLACES ARE UNCLEAR.⁸ CRUSHED WHEAT, GROATS, AND PEARL- BARLEY⁹ ARE UNCLEAR EVERYWHERE.¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. ALL EGGS MAY BE PRESUMED CLEAN EXCEPT THOSE OF DEALERS IN

LIQUIDS;¹¹ BUT IF THEY SOLD WITH THEM DRY FRUIT, THEY ARE CLEAN.¹² ALL FISH MAY BE PRESUMED UNCLEAN.¹³ R. JUDAH SAYS: PIECES OF ILTITH,¹⁴ EGYPTIAN FISH WHICH ARRIVES IN A BASKET, AND SPANISH TUNNY, THESE MAY BE PRESUMED CLEAN.¹⁵ ALL KINDS OF BRINE MAY BE PRESUMED UNCLEAN. CONCERNING ALL THESE¹⁶ AN 'AM HA-AREZ¹⁷ MAY BE TRUSTED WHEN HE DECLARES THEM TO BE CLEAN, EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF FISH,¹⁸ SINCE THEY¹⁹ ARE USUALLY STORED WITH ANY 'AM HA-AREZ.²⁰ R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: CLEAN BRINE INTO WHICH WATER FELL IN ANY QUANTITY MUST BE DEEMED UNCLEAN.²¹

MISHNAH 4. THERE ARE SEVEN LIQUIDS:²² DEW, WATER, WINE, OIL, BLOOD,²³ MILK AND BEES' HONEY. HORNETS' HONEY DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS AND MAY BE EATEN.

MISHNAH 5. A SUB-SPECIES OF WATER²⁴ ARE THE LIQUIDS THAT COME FORTH FROM THE EYE, FROM THE EAR, FROM THE NOSE AND FROM THE MOUTH, AND URINE, WHETHER OF ADULTS OR OF CHILDREN,²⁵ WHETHER [ITS FLOW IS] CONSCIOUS OR UNCONSCIOUS. A SUB-SPECIES OF BLOOD ARE BLOOD FROM THE SLAUGHTERING OF CATTLE AND WILD ANIMALS AND BIRDS THAT ARE CLEAN, AND BLOOD FROM BLOOD LETTING FOR DRINKING.²⁶ WHEY IS DEEMED LIKE MILK, AND THE SAP OF OLIVES IS DEEMED LIKE OIL, SINCE IT IS NEVER FREE FROM OIL.²⁷ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. SIMEON. R. MEIR SAYS: EVEN THOUGH IT CONTAINS NO OIL. THE BLOOD OF A CREEPING THING IS DEEMED LIKE ITS FLESH,²⁸ IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS BUT DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS, AND WE HAVE NOTHING LIKE IT.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. THE FOLLOWING CAUSE UNCLEANNESS AND ALSO SUSCEPTIBILITY³⁰ [TO UNCLEANNESS]; THE ISSUE³¹ OF A PERSON WHO HAS A RUNNING ISSUE, HIS SPITTLE, HIS SEMEN AND HIS URINE, A QUARTER-LOG FROM A CORPSE, AND THE BLOOD OF A MENSTRUANT WOMAN. R. ELIEZER SAYS: SEMEN DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY. R. ELEAZAR B. 'AZARIAH SAYS: THE BLOOD OF A MENSTRUANT WOMAN DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY. R. SIMEON SAYS: THE BLOOD OF A CORPSE DOES NOT CAUSE SUSCEPTIBILITY, AND IF IT FELL ON A GOURD, IT SHOULD BE SCRAPED OFF,³² AND IT REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. THE FOLLOWING CAUSE NEITHER UNCLEANNESS NOR SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS: SWEAT,³³ ILL-SMELLING SECRETION, EXCREMENT, BLOOD ISSUING WITH ANY OF THESE, LIQUID³⁴ [ISSUING FROM A STILL-BORN CHILD] OF EIGHT MONTHS (R. JOSE SAYS: EXCEPT ITS BLOOD).³⁵ [THE DISCHARGE FROM THE BOWELS OF] ONE WHO DRINKS THE WATER OF TIBERIAS³⁶ EVEN THOUGH IT COMES OUT CLEAN, BLOOD FROM THE SLAUGHTERING OF CATTLE AND WILD ANIMALS AND BIRDS THAT ARE UNCLEAN, AND BLOOD FROM BLOODLETTERING FOR HEALING.³⁷ R. ELIEZER DECLARES THESE³⁸ UNCLEAN. R. SIMEON B. ELEAZAR SAYS: THE MILK OF A MALE IS CLEAN.³⁹

MISHNAH 8. A WOMAN'S MILK RENDERS UNCLEAN WHETHER [ITS FLOW IS] DESIRED OR IS NOT DESIRED,⁴⁰ BUT THE MILK OF CATTLE RENDERS UNCLEAN ONLY IF [ITS FLOW IS] DESIRED. R. AKIBA SAID: THE MATTER CAN BE PROVED BY AN INFERENCE FROM MINOR TO MAJOR: IF A WOMAN'S MILK, THE USE OF WHICH IS CONFINED TO INFANTS, CAN RENDER UNCLEAN WHETHER [ITS FLOW IS] DESIRED OR IS NOT DESIRED, ALL THE MORE SHOULD THE MILK OF CATTLE, THE USE OF WHICH IS COMMON TO INFANTS AND TO ADULTS, RENDER UNCLEAN BOTH WHEN [ITS FLOW IS] DESIRED AND WHEN IT IS NOT DESIRED. BUT THEY⁴¹ SAID TO HIM: NO;

A WOMAN'S MILK RENDERS UNCLEAR WHEN [ITS FLOW IS] NOT DESIRED, BECAUSE THE BLOOD ISSUING FROM HER WOUND IS UNCLEAR;⁴² BUT HOW COULD THE MILK OF CATTLE RENDER UNCLEAR WHEN [ITS FLOW IS] NOT DESIRED, SEEING THAT THE BLOOD ISSUING FROM ITS WOUND IS CLEAR? HE SAID TO THEM: I ADOPT A MORE RIGOROUS RULING IN THE CASE OF MILK THAN IN THE CASE OF BLOOD, FOR IF ONE MILKS FOR HEALING,⁴³ [THE MILK] IS UNCLEAR,⁴⁴ WHEREAS IF ONE LETS BLOOD FOR HEALING, [THE BLOOD] IS CLEAR.⁴⁵ THEY SAID TO HIM: LET BASKETS OF OLIVES AND GRAPES PROVE⁴⁶ IT; FOR LIQUIDS FLOWING FROM THEM ARE UNCLEAR ONLY WHEN [THE FLOW IS] DESIRED, BUT WHEN [THE FLOW IS] NOT DESIRED THEY ARE CLEAR.⁴⁷ HE SAID TO THEM: NO; IF YOU SAY [THUS] OF BASKETS OF OLIVES AND GRAPES WHICH ARE AT FIRST A SOLID FOOD AND AT THE END BECOME A LIQUID, COULD YOU SAY [THE SAME] OF MILK WHICH REMAINS A LIQUID FROM BEGINNING TO END?⁴⁸ THUS FAR WAS THE ARGUMENT.⁴⁹ R. SIMEON SAID: FROM THENCEFORWARD WE⁵⁰ USED TO ARGUE BEFORE HIM: LET RAIN WATER PROVE IT, FOR IT REMAINS A LIQUID FROM BEGINNING TO END, AND RENDERS UNCLEAR ONLY WHEN [ITS FLOW IS] DESIRED. BUT HE SAID TO US: NO; IF YOU SAY [THUS] OF RAIN WATER, IT IS BECAUSE MOST OF IT IS INTENDED NOT FOR MAN⁵¹ BUT FOR THE SOIL AND FOR TREES, WHEREAS MOST MILK IS INTENDED FOR MAN.

(1) To prevent the fruit from becoming wormy.

(2) To get the fruit damp by the dew.

(3) Cf. supra III, 8.

(4) If dew fell on the vegetables.

(5) Because the dealers are wont to sprinkle them with water to keep them fresh, thus rendering them susceptible to uncleanness, and then they are handled by unclean hands.

(6) Fresh vegetables are not sprinkled by the dealers, and thus have not become susceptible to uncleanness from unclean hands.

(7) R. Meir holds that the reason why vegetables in the market have been declared unclean is not because they are handled by unclean hands, but because the dealers, who may be affected by a running issue (cf. infra 6), undo the bundles with their teeth, and thus cause unclean spittle from their mouth to come upon the vegetables. Therefore there is no difference whether the vegetables are fresh or not.

(8) Because the wheat is damped before milling, and thus the flour has become susceptible to uncleanness by the contact of those who handle it.

(9) For the exact meaning of these kinds of grain, cf. M.K. 13b.

(10) Even not in the market place, because they are damped in the process of crushing, and are then handled by unclean hands.

(11) Who handle the eggs with liquid dripping from their hands and thus render them susceptible to become unclean by those who handle them.

(12) Because they are careful to keep their hands dry.

(13) Cf. 'Uk. III, 8. They have been rendered susceptible by the water shaken off from the nets.

(14) A species of large fish.

(15) These are spoilt by water, and have therefore been kept dry.

(16) Eggs, fruit and brine.

(17) עַם הָאָרֶץ. Lit., 'the people of the land', the untutored peasant, or any other person who is lax about the observance of the laws of purity and the laws of tithing produce, as distinguished from the learned חֶבֶר, or associate of those who are scrupulous about these laws. Cf. supra II, 10. n. 4; Demai, Introduction 3; 'Ed. I, 14 (Sonc. ed.) p. 8, n. 1.

(18) According to some commentators 'the brine of fish'. The 'am ha-arez is not to be trusted when he declares that fish (or the brine of fish) has not become susceptible.

(19) Var. lec. 'it', viz., fish.

(20) Which proves that he can be trusted.

(21) Water renders it susceptible, and it then becomes unclean by handling.

(22) Which render produce susceptible to uncleanness.

- (23) Human blood, v. next Mishnah.
- (24) That causes susceptibility under the heading of water.
- (25) According to other commentators: 'Whether liquid excrement or real urine'.
- (26) Its flow is desired.
- (27) It contains a proportion of oil.
- (28) It can be added to the flesh to make up a lentil's bulk which is the minimum quantity of a creeping thing to convey uncleanness; cf. Me'il. IV, 3.
- (29) That blood should be accounted as flesh.
- (30) Simultaneously.
- (31) Cf. Kelim I, 3.
- (32) Because blood is forbidden to be eaten.
- (33) Cf. supra II, 1.
- (34) Such as blood, urine, etc.
- (35) Its blood conveys impurity.
- (36) Which acts as a purgative.
- (37) Its flow is not desired.
- (38) The last two kinds of blood.
- (39) Like mere perspiration.
- (40) If it dripped from the breast automatically; cf. Kelim VIII, 11.
- (41) The Sages holding the opinion as given in the beginning of the Mishnah.
- (42) Like the blood of a corpse, and this blood flows from the wound automatically.
- (43) An animal to relieve its pain.
- (44) It is capable of becoming unclean, since its flow is desired.
- (45) As stated in the last Mishnah.
- (46) Animal's milk may be compared to the juice flowing from such baskets, since both serve as human food.
- (47) Cf. supra V, 11, n. 11.
- (48) Milk is more of a liquid than fruit juice.
- (49) Between R. Akiba and his colleagues.
- (50) R. Akiba's disciples.
- (51) The use of rain for man is limited, therefore rain cannot render human food susceptible to uncleanness unless a man desires its flow upon his food.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. THE MEGILLAH¹ IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH, THE TWELFTH, THE THIRTEENTH, THE FOURTEENTH, AND THE FIFTEENTH [OF ADAR], NEVER EARLIER AND NEVER LATER.² CITIES³ WHICH HAVE BEEN WALLED SINCE THE DAYS OF JOSHUA SON OF NUN⁴ READ ON THE FIFTEENTH; VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS⁵ READ ON THE FOURTEENTH. THE VILLAGES, HOWEVER, MAY [SOMETIMES] PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY.⁶ HOW DOES THIS WORK OUT? IF [THE FOURTEENTH OF ADAR] FALLS ON MONDAY,⁷ THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS READ ON THAT DAY AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY: IF IT FALLS ON TUESDAY OR ON WEDNESDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY,⁸ THE LARGE TOWNS READ ON THE DAY ITSELF, AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY. IF [THE FOURTEENTH FALLS] ON THURSDAY, THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS READ ON THAT DAY AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY: IF IT FALLS ON FRIDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY⁹ AND THE LARGE TOWNS AND WALLED PLACES READ ON THE DAY ITSELF.¹⁰ IF IT FALLS ON SABBATH, THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY.⁹ AND THE WALLED PLACES READ ON THE NEXT DAY.¹¹ IF IT FALLS ON SUNDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY,⁹ THE LARGE TOWNS READ ON THE SAME DAY, AND THE WALLED CITIES ON THE DAY FOLLOWING.

GEMARA. THE MEGILLAH IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH. Whence is this derived? — [How can you ask,] ‘Whence is this derived’? Surely it is as we state further on,¹² ‘The Sages made a concession to the villages, allowing them to push the reading forward to the Court day, so that [they should have leisure to] supply food and water for their brethren in the large towns’? — What we mean [by our question] is this: Let us see now. All these dates were laid down by the Men of the Great Assembly.¹³ For if you should [deny this and affirm] that the Men of the Great Assembly laid down only the fourteenth and fifteenth, [is it possible that] the [later] Rabbis should have come and annulled a regulation made by the Men of the Great Assembly, seeing that we have learnt, ‘One Beth din cannot annul the ordinances of another unless it is superior to it in number¹⁴ and in wisdom’?¹⁵ Obviously, therefore, all these days must have been laid down by the Men of the Great Assembly, [and we ask therefore], where are they hinted [in the Scripture]? — R. Shaman b. Abba replied in the name of R. Johanan: Scripture says, To confirm these days of Purim in their times.¹⁶ [which indicates that] they laid down many ‘times’ for them. But this text is required for its literal meaning?¹⁷ — If that were all, Scripture could say simply ‘at the [appointed] time’. What then is implied by ‘their times’? A large number of ‘times’! But still I may say that [the expression ‘their times’] is required to indicate that the time of one is not the same as the time of the other?¹⁸ — In that case, Scripture should say [simply], ‘their time’. Why does it say ‘their times’? So that you may infer from this all of them. But cannot I say that ‘their times’ means ‘numerous times’?¹⁹ — The expression ‘their times’ is to be interpreted in the same way as we should interpret ‘their time’: just as ‘their time’ would indicate two [days], so ‘their times’ indicates two [in addition].²⁰ But why not make these the twelfth and thirteenth? — For the reason given [elsewhere] by R. Samuel b. Isaac, that the thirteenth is a time of assembly for all,²¹ and no special indication is required for it in the text; so we may say here that the thirteenth day is a time of assembly and no special indication is required for it in the text. But why not say that the sixteenth and seventeenth are meant? — It is written, and it shall not pass.²²

R. Samuel b. Nahmani, however, explained thus. Scripture says. As the days wherein the Jews had rest from their enemies.²³ [The expression] ‘the days’ [would have sufficed] and we have ‘as the days', to include the eleventh and the twelfth. But cannot I say rather the twelfth and thirteenth? — R. Samuel b. Isaac said: The thirteenth is a time of assembly for all, and does not require special indication. But cannot I say the sixteenth and the seventeenth? — It is written, 'and it shall not pass'.

Why did R. Samuel b. Nahmani not derive the rule from the expression 'in their times'? — He does not accept the distinction [made above between] 'time', 'their time' and 'their times'. And why did R. Shaman b. Abba not derive the rule from the expression 'as the days'? — He can say to you: This is meant to make the rule apply to future generations.

Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This [rule stated in the Mishnah] is the ruling of R. Akiba the anonymous authority,²⁴ who draws the distinction between 'time', 'their time' and 'their times', but according to the Sages the Megillah is to be read only on the proper day.²⁵ The following was adduced in refutation of this: 'R. Judah said, When does this rule hold good? When the years are properly fixed²⁶ and Israel reside upon their own soil. But in these days, since people reckon from it,²⁷ the Megillah is to be read only on the proper day'. Now which authority is R. Judah here following? Shall I say, R. Akiba? This cannot be, because [according to him] the regulation²⁸ is in force in these days also. It must be then that he follows the Rabbis, and [even according to them] we read [on the other days] at any rate when the years are properly fixed and Israel reside on their own soil! Is not this a refutation of R. Johanan? — It is.

Some report as follows. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This rule follows the ruling of R. Akiba the anonymous authority, but the Sages held that in these days, since people reckon from it, we read it only on the proper day. It has been taught to the same effect: 'R. Judah said: When does this rule hold good? When the years are properly fixed and Israel reside upon their own soil, but in these days, since people reckon from it, it is read only on the proper day.'²⁹

R. Ashi noted a contradiction between two statements of R. Judah

(1) Lit., 'scroll'. The scroll of the Book of Esther is meant (v. Introduction).

(2) Lit., 'neither less nor more'.

(3) כרכין (Sing. כרך). This word is generally applied to large centres of population with a more or less metropolitan character. In Mishnah Megillah, (cf. 19a), however, it seems to be used exclusively of walled towns, whatever their size.

(4) The Gemara infra discusses what is meant by this.

(5) כפרים ועיירות גדולות. The expression 'villages and large towns' in the Mishnah here seems to be merely a periphrasis for 'other places', since, as appears from the Gemara, the distinction here is between places which were walled in the days of Joshua and places which were not. The epithet 'large' is added because the word עיר (or עירה) is also often used of a small place, hardly distinguishable from a village.

(6) Lit., 'the day of assembly', i.e. Monday or Thursday, when the Beth din sat in the towns, and the people came in from the villages. They were allowed to read the Megillah then because they were more likely to find someone who could read to them in the town than in their own village (Rashi). Another reason is also given in the Gemara infra.

(7) Lit., 'the second (day of the week)'. In the Talmud the days of the week are distinguished by the ordinal numbers.

(8) I.e., the previous Monday.

(9) I.e., the preceding Thursday.

(10) Reading on the Sabbath was prohibited, for fear the scroll might be carried from place to place. V. infra.

(11) On the Sunday.

(12) V. infra p. 116.

(13) Or 'synagogue'. A name given to Ezra and his Beth din and their successors, up to the time of Simon the Just. V. Aboth, Sonc. ed. p. 1, n. 5. According to the Talmud, the Book of Esther was composed by or under the direction of the Men of the Great Assembly.

(14) Of the members of the Beth din.

(15) Cf. M.K. 3b; Git. 36a.

(16) Esth. IX, 31. E.V. 'their appointed times'. The plural form 'times' is stressed.

- (17) Lit., 'for itself'; viz., the 14th and 15th mentioned in the text.
- (18) Viz., the time for the villages is not the same as that for the walled towns.
- (19) E.g., five or six.
- (20) To the fourteenth and fifteenth, viz., the eleventh and twelfth.
- (21) Rashi explains this to refer to the statement in the Scripture that on the thirteenth the Jews assembled and defended themselves. Asheri, however, points out that this has nothing to do with the reading of the Megillah, which was instituted to commemorate the resting, and he therefore prefers the explanation of R. Tam, that on the thirteenth the Jews assemble to observe the fast of Esther.
- (22) Ibid. 27. These words are interpreted to mean, 'the observance shall not pass beyond the fifteenth day'. E.V., and it shall not fail.
- (23) Ibid. 22.
- (24) So called because Rabbi in compiling the Mishnah usually followed R Akiba when he mentioned no authority.
- (25) Viz., the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar.
- (26) I.e., when there is a Beth din which fixes new moons and leap years as occasion arises.
- (27) I.e. count thirty days from Purim to Passover, since the new moon of Nisan will not be promulgated by the Beth din
- (28) That the Megillah may be read on the eleventh, twelfth, or thirteenth.
- (29) And there is now no contradiction between R. Johanan and Rabbi Judah.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 2b

, and therefore attributed the statement in the Baraitha to R. Jose son of R. Judah. [He said]: Can R. Judah really have said that in these days, since people reckon from it, it is read only on the proper day? To this may be opposed the following:¹ R. Judah said, When [do they push forward the reading]? In places where the villagers go to town² on Monday and Thursday; but in places where they do not go to town on Monday and Thursday, it is read only on the proper day. But at any rate in places where they do go to town on Monday and Thursday it is read [on the earlier dates] even in these times'? He accordingly ascribed the statement in the Baraitha³ to R. Jose son of R. Judah. And because he finds a contradiction between two statements of R. Judah, is he entitled to ascribe the one in the Baraitha to R. Jose son of R. Judah? — R. Ashi had heard some report the statement in the name of R. Judah and some report it in the name of R. Jose son of R. Judah, and to avoid making R. Judah contradict himself he said that the one who ascribed the statement to R. Judah was not [reporting] accurately, while the one who ascribed it to R. Jose son of Judah was [reporting] accurately.

CITIES WHICH HAVE BEEN WALLED SINCE THE DAYS OF JOSHUA SON OF NUN READ ON THE FIFTEENTH. Whence is this ruling derived? — Raba replied: Because Scripture says, Therefore do the Jews of the villages that dwell in the unwalled towns,⁴ etc. Since the villages [are to read] on the fourteenth, the walled towns [must read] on the fifteenth. But why not say that the villages [should read] on the fourteenth, and those in walled towns not at all?⁵ — But are they not also Israelites? And moreover is it not written, From India into Ethiopia?⁶ But why not say that the villages [should read] on the fourteenth and those in walled towns on both the fourteenth and fifteenth, as it is written, that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month of Adar and the fifteenth day of the same yearly?⁷ — If the text had said, 'the fourteenth day and [we] the fifteenth', you would have been right. Now, however, that it is written 'the fourteenth day and [we-eth] the fifteenth — the eth⁸ comes and makes a distinction, so that the one set is on the fourteenth and the other set on the fifteenth. But why not say that the villages are on the fourteenth, and those surrounded [by a wall] can [celebrate] if they like on the fourteenth or if they like on the fifteenth? — The text says, in their seasons,⁹ the season of one is not the same as the season of the other. But why not say that they¹⁰ should celebrate on the thirteenth? — [They must do] as Susa [did].

We have accounted for the celebration [of Purim]; how do we know that the recital¹¹ [of the Megillah must be on these days]? — The text says, that these days should be remembered and kept;¹² ‘remembering’ is put on the same footing as ‘keeping’.

Our Mishnah does not take the same view as the following Tanna, as it has been taught: ‘R. Joshua b. Korha says: Cities which have been walled since the days of Ahasuerus read on the fifteenth’. What is the reason of R. Joshua b. Korha? — [They must be] like Susa: just as Susa has been walled since the days of Ahasuerus and reads on the fifteenth, so every city that has been walled since the days of Ahasuerus reads on the fifteenth. What then is the reason of our Tanna? — He draws an analogy between the two occurrences of the word perazi [villagers]. It is written here, Therefore the Jews of the villages [ha — perazim],¹³ and it is written in another place, beside the unwalled [ha — perazi] towns, a great many;¹⁴ just as there the reference is to towns which were [not] walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun, so here the reference is to towns which were [not] walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun.¹⁵

I can understand why R. Joshua b. Korha did not adopt the view of our Tanna; he does not accept the analogy of perazi and perazi.¹⁶ But why does not our Tanna accept the view of R. Joshua b. Korha? — [You ask] why does he not? Why, because he draws the analogy of perazi with perazi, of course! What the questioner meant was this: [On the view of our Tanna], whom did Susa follow?¹⁷ It followed neither the villages nor the walled towns!¹⁸ — Raba, or, as some say, Kadi,¹⁹ replied: Susa was an exception, because a miracle was performed in it.²⁰

We can understand according to the view of our Tanna why the text should say, city and city, town and town;²¹ ‘city and city’²² to make a distinction between those which were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun and those which were walled in the days of Ahasuerus; ‘town and town’ likewise to distinguish between Susa and other towns.²³ But according to R. Joshua b. Korha, it is true we can account for ‘city and city’, as being intended to distinguish between Susa and other cities,²⁴ but what is the purpose of ‘town and town’? — R. Joshua b. Korha can answer: And can our Tanna explain the words satisfactorily? Since he draws the analogy between perazi and perazi,²⁵ why do we require the words ‘city and city’? The truth is that the text is inserted for a homiletical purpose, and to teach the rule laid down by R. Joshua b. Levi. For R. Joshua b. Levi said: ‘A city²⁶ and all that adjoins it and all that is taken in by the eye with it is reckoned as city’.²⁷ Up to what distance? — R. Jeremiah, or you may also say R. Hiyya b. Abba, said: As far as from Hamthan²⁸ to Tiberias, which is a mil. Why not say [simply] a mil? — We learn from this what is the extent of a mil, namely, as far as from Hamthan to Tiberias.

R. Jeremiah — or you may also say R. Hiyya b. Abba — also said: The [alternative forms of the] letters M'N'Z'P'K²⁹ were prescribed³⁰ by the Watchmen.³¹ Do you really think so? Is it not written, These are the commandments,³² which implies that no prophet is at liberty to introduce anything new³³ henceforward? And further, R. Hisda has said: The Men and the Samek in the tablets

(1) Infra n. 4.

(2) Lit., ‘assemble’.

(3) The former of the statements quoted.

(4) Esth. IX, 19.

(5) Since no mention is made of walled towns in the context.

(6) These words occur in Esth. I, 1, and are used here loosely instead of the words in Esth. IX, 30. and he (Mordecai) sent letters to . . . the hundred and twenty — seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus.

(7) Ibid. 21.

(8) Eth is a sign of the accusative, and as its use is optional, it is usually interpreted as indicating something not specified in the text. The interpretation placed upon it here is rather unusual.

(9) Ibid. 31.

(10) Those in the walled towns.

(11) Lit., ‘remembrance’.

- (12) Ibid. 28.
- (13) Ibid. 19.
- (14) Deut. III, 5, referring to the territory of Sihon conquered by the Israelites in the time of Moses.
- (15) The word 'not' is not in the text of the original here, but is necessary for the sense. Rashi greatly simplifies the text by reading: 'Just as there (the villages were such) from the days of Joshua, so here, (the villages must have been such) from the days of Joshua'.
- (16) I.e., he had not learnt this particular gezerah shawah from his teacher, and therefore could not reply upon it.
- (17) Since there is no evidence that it was walled in the days of Joshua.
- (18) These last words make no satisfactory sense, and seem to be interpolated. [They do not occur in MS.M.]
- (19) Aliter: 'an unknown authority', v. B.M., Sonc. ed. p. 3, n. 1.]
- (20) Since they were allowed to continue slaying their enemies on the fourteenth and did not rest till the fifteenth, they were allowed to celebrate that day (Rashi).
- (21) Esth. IX, 28. The word medinah which the Talmud here takes as equivalent to כרך is translated in E.V. by 'province'.
- (22) As much as to say, 'Some cities one way and some another'.
- (23) Susa also having been an unwalled town till the time of Ahasuerus.
- (24) Rashi here reads, 'to distinguish between those which were walled from the days of Ahasuerus and those which were not yet walled in the days of Ahasuerus', and this seems to be required by the sense.
- (25) That the wall must have been in existence since the days of Joshua.
- (26) כרך v. supra p. 1, n. 3.
- (27) For purposes of reading the Megillah on the fifteenth.
- (28) [The Hammath mentioned in Josh. XIX, 35.]
- (29) The five letters of the Hebrew alphabet, mem, nun, zadi, pe, and kaf, which have two forms — a middle and final form, the latter being more closed than the former. remained in place by a miracle.¹ — That is so; they were in use, but people did not know which form came in the middle of a word and which one at the end, and the Watchmen came and ordained that the open forms should be in the middle of a word and the closed forms at the end. But when all is said and done, [we have the text] 'these are the commandments', which implies that no prophet was destined ever to introduce an innovation hereafter?² — What we must say therefore is that they were forgotten³ and the Watchmen established them again.

R. Jeremiah — or some say R. Hiyya b. Abba — also said: The Targum⁴ of the Pentateuch was composed by Onkelos the proselyte under the guidance⁵ of R. Eleazar and R. Joshua.⁶ The Targum of the Prophets was composed by Jonathan ben Uzziel under the guidance of Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi,⁷ and the land of Israel [thereupon] quaked over an area of four hundred parasangs by four hundred parasangs, and a Bath Kol⁸ came forth and exclaimed, Who is this that has revealed My secrets to mankind?⁹ Jonathan b. Uzziel thereupon arose and said, It is I who have revealed Thy secrets to mankind. It is fully known to Thee that I have not done this for my own honour or for the honour of my father's house, but for Thy honour I have done it, that dissension may not increase in Israel.¹⁰ He further sought to reveal [by] a targum [the inner meaning] of the Hagiographa, but a Bath Kol went forth and said, Enough! What was the reason? — Because the date¹¹ of the Messiah is foretold in it.¹²

But did Onkelos the proselyte compose the targum to the Pentateuch? Has not R. Ika said in the name of R. Hananel who had it from Rab: What is meant by the text, And they read in the book, in the law of God, with an interpretation. and they gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading?¹³ ‘And they read in the book, in the law of God’: this indicates the [Hebrew] text; ‘with an interpretation’: this indicates the targum,¹⁴ ‘and they gave the sense’: this indicates the verse stops; ‘and caused them to understand the reading’: this indicates the accentuation,¹⁵ or, according to another version, the massoretic notes?¹⁶ — These had been forgotten, and were now established again.

How was it that the land did not quake because of the [translation of the] Pentateuch, while it did quake because of that of the prophets? — The meaning of the Pentateuch is expressed clearly, but the meaning of the prophets is in some things expressed clearly and in others enigmatically. [For instance,] it is written, In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon,¹⁷ and R. Joseph [commenting on this] said: Were it not for the targum of this verse, we should not know what it means.¹⁸ [It runs as follows]: ‘On that day shall there be great mourning in Jerusalem like the mourning of Ahab son of Omri who was killed by Hadadrimmon son of Rimmon in Ramoth Gilead¹⁹ and like the mourning of Josiah son of Ammon who was killed by Pharaoh the Lame in the plain of Megiddo’.²⁰

And I, Daniel, alone saw the vision; for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, and they fled to hide themselves.²¹ Who were these ‘men’ — R. Jeremiah — or some say, R. Hiyya b. Abba — said: These were Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. They were superior to him [in one way], and he was superior to them [in another]. They were superior to him, because they were prophets and he was not a prophet.²² He was superior to them, because he saw [on this occasion] and they did not see. But if they did not see, why were they frightened? — Although they themselves did not see, their star saw.²³ Rabina said: We learn from this that if a man is seized with fright though he sees nothing, [the reason is that] his star sees. What is his remedy? He should recite the shema’.²⁴ If he is in a place which is foul,²⁵ he should move away from it four cubits. If he cannot do this, he should say this formula: ‘The goat at the butcher's is fatter than I am’.²⁶

Now that you have decided that the words ‘city and city’ have a homiletical purpose, what is the purpose of the words ‘family and family’ [in the same verse]? — R. Jose b. Hanina replied: This contains a reference to the families of the Priests and Levites, [and indicates] that they should desist from their [Temple] service in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. For so said Rab Judah in the name of Rab: The Priests at their [Temple] service, the Levites on their platform,²⁷ the lay Israelites at their station²⁸ — all desist from their service in order to hear the reading of the Megillah. It has been taught to the same effect: Priests at their [Temple] service, Levites on their platform, lay Israelites at their station — all desist from their service in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. It was in reliance on this dictum that the members of the house of Rabbi²⁹ were wont to desist from the study of the Torah in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. They argued a fortiori from the case of the [Temple] service. If the service, which is so important, may be abandoned, how much more the study of the Torah?

But is the [Temple] service more important than the study of the Torah? Surely it is written, And it came to pass when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold there stood a man over against him, . . . (and he fell on his face.³⁰ Now how could he do such a thing, seeing that R. Joshua b. Levi has said that it is forbidden to a man to greet another by night, for fear that he is a demon? — It was different there, because he said to him, ‘I am captain of the host of the Lord’. But perhaps he was lying? — We take it for granted³¹ that they do not utter the name of heaven vainly).³² He said to him: This evening you neglected the regular afternoon sacrifice, and now you have neglected the study of the Torah.³³ Joshua replied: In regard to which of them have you come? He answered, 'I have come now'.³⁴ Straightway, Joshua tarried that night in the midst of the valley [ha-emek],³⁵ and R. Johanan said:

(1) According to tradition, the letters on the tablets of Moses were cut completely through the stone, and therefore a letter which was wholly closed could keep in place only by a miracle. Hence the mem to which R. Hisda refers must have been wholly enclosed; which shows that such a mem must have been used already by Moses. This objection against R. Jeremiah is valid only if we suppose him to have been speaking of the closed forms of the letters, which is not necessarily the case. Cf. Shab. 104.

(2) And the determining which letters should go in which place (in the Sefer Torah) was an innovation.

(3) Viz., the correct place of each.

(4) Apparently what is meant is the official Aramaic version of the Pentateuch used in the synagogue.

(5) Lit., 'from the mouth of'.

(6) We know on good authority that a Greek translation of the Bible was composed under the guidance of R. Eleazar and R. Joshua by a proselyte named Aquilas. The Aramaic Targum probably took shape about the same time, but there is no authority except this passage for connecting it with anyone of the name of Onkelos. We may surmise therefore that we have here some confusion between the two translations. For the discussion and literature on the subject v. J.E. s.v. Targum, and Silverstone, E.A. Aquila and Onkelos.

(7) Jonathan b. Uzziel was a disciple of Hillel, so he can hardly have had any direct contact with the prophets mentioned. He may, however, have had traditions handed down from them (Maharsha).

(34) I.e., on account of the study of the Torah which you are neglecting now.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 3b

This shows that he tarried in the depths [‘umkah] of the halachah.¹ And R. Samuel b. Unia also said: The study of the Torah is greater than the offering of the daily sacrifices, as it says. ‘I have come now’ — There is no contradiction; in the one case² [the study] of an individual is meant, in the other³ that of the whole people.⁴ But is that of an individual unimportant? Have we not learnt: Women [when mourning] on a festival make a dirge⁵ but do not beat the breast. R. Ishmael says: If they are near the bier,⁶ they can beat the breast. On New Moon, Hanukkah and Purim they may make a dirge and beat the breast, but on neither the one nor the other do they wail;⁷ and in reference to this, Rabbah b. Huna said: The festival involves no restrictions in the case of a scholar, still less Hanukkah and Purim? — You are speaking of the honour to be paid to the Torah. The honour to be paid to the learning of an individual is important, the study of an individual is [comparatively] unimportant.

Raba said: There is no question in my mind that, as between the Temple service and the reading of the Megillah, the reading of the Megillah takes priority, for the reason given by R. Jose b. Hanina.⁸ As between the study of the Torah and the reading of the Megillah, the reading of the Megillah takes priority, since the members of the house of Rabbi based themselves [on the dictum of R. Jose].⁸ As between the study of the Torah and attending to a meth mizwah,⁹ attending to a meth mizwah takes precedence, since it has been taught: The study of the Torah may be neglected in order to perform the last rites or to bring a bride to the canopy. As between the Temple service and attending to a meth mizwah, attending to a meth mizwah takes precedence, as we learn from the text or for his sister,¹⁰ as it has been taught: ‘Or for his sister. What is the point of these words? Suppose he was on his way to kill his Paschal lamb or to circumcise his son, and he heard that a near relative had died,¹¹ shall I assume that he should defile himself? You must say, he should not defile himself. Shall I assume then that, just as he does not defile himself for his sister, so he should not defile himself for a meth mizwah?’¹² It says significantly, ‘or for his sister,’ it is for his sister that he may not defile himself, but he may defile himself for a meth mizwah.¹³ Raba propounded the question: As between the reading of the Megillah and [attending to] a meth mizwah, which takes precedence? Shall I say that the reading of the Megillah takes precedence in order to proclaim the miracle, or does perhaps [the burying of] the meth mizwah take precedence because of the respect due to human beings? — After propounding the question, he himself answered it saying, [Burying] the meth mizwah takes precedence, since a Master has said: Great is the [obligation to pay due] respect to human beings, since it overrides a negative precept of the Torah.¹⁴

The text [above states]: ‘R. Joshua b. Levi said: A city¹⁵ and all that adjoins it and all that is taken in by the eye with it is reckoned as city’. A Tanna commented: Adjoining, even if it is not visible, and visible even if it is not adjoining. Now we understand what is meant by ‘visible even though not adjoining’: this can occur for instance with a city situated on the top of a hill. But how can there be ‘adjoining but not visible’? — R. Jeremiah replied: If it is situated in a valley.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said: A city which was first settled and then walled is reckoned as a village.¹⁶ What is the reason? Because it is written, And if a man sell a dwelling house of a walled city,¹⁷ one, [that is,] which was first walled and then settled, but not first settled and then walled.

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: A city in which there are not ten men of leisure¹⁸ is reckoned as a village. What does he tell us? We have already learnt this: ‘What is a large town? One in which there are ten men of leisure. If there are less than this, it is reckoned as a village’. — He had to point out that the rule applies to a city,¹⁹ even though [leisured] people come there from outside.²⁰ R. Joshua b. Levi also said: A city which has been laid waste and afterwards settled is reckoned as a city. What is meant by ‘laid waste’? Shall I say, that its walls have been destroyed, in which case if it became settled²¹ it is reckoned as a city but otherwise not? [How can this be], seeing that it has been taught: R. Eleazar son of R. Jose says: [The text says], which has a wall;²² [which implies that it is to be reckoned as a city] even though it has not a wall now, provided it had one previously?²³ What then is meant by 'laid waste'? Laid waste of its ten men of leisure.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said:

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 4a

Lod and Ono and Ge Haharashim¹ were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun. But did Joshua build these? Was it not Elpaal who built them, as it is written, And the sons of Elpaal Eber and Misham and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod, with the towns there of?² — But on your showing³ Asa built them, as it is written, And he built fenced cities in Judah?⁴ — R. Eleazar replied: These places were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun. They were laid waste in the days of the concubine of Gibeon,⁵ and Elpaal came and rebuilt them. They again fell, and Asa came and repaired them. There is an indication of this in the text also, as it is written, For he said unto Judah, Let us build these cities.⁶ From this we can infer that they had already been towns beforehand; and this may be taken as proved.⁷

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Women are under obligation to read the Megillah, since they also profited by the miracle then wrought.⁸ R. Joshua b. Levi further said: If Purim falls on a Sabbath, discussions and discourses are held on the subject of the day. Why mention Purim? The same rule applies to festivals also,⁹ as it has been taught: Moses laid down a rule for the Israelites that they should discuss and discourse on the subject of the day — the laws of Passover on Passover, the laws of Pentecost on Pentecost, and the laws of Tabernacles on Tabernacles! — It was necessary to state the rule [separately] in the case of Purim. For you might suggest that we should forbid this for fear of breaking the rule of Rabbah.¹⁰ We are therefore told that this is not so.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said: It is the duty of a man to read the Megillah in the evening and to repeat it in the day, as it is written, O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou answerest not, and in the night season and am not silent.¹¹ The students took this to mean that the [Megillah] should be read at night, and the Mishnah relating to it should be learnt in the morning.¹² R. Jeremiah, however, said to them: It has been explained to me by R. Hiyya b. Abba [that the word ‘repeat’ here has the same meaning] as when, for instance, men say, I will go through this section and repeat it. It has also been stated: R. Helbo said in the name of ‘Ulla of Biri:¹³ It is a man's duty to recite the Megillah at night and to repeat it the next day, as it says, To the end that my glory may sing praise to thee [by day]. and not be silent [by night]. O Lord, my God, I will give thanks to thee for ever.¹⁴

THE VILLAGES, HOWEVER, MAY PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY. R. Hanina said: The Sages made a concession to the villages by allowing them to push the reading forward to the Court day, in order that they might furnish food and water to their brethren in the cities.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 4b

This would show [would it not] that the regulation is for the benefit of the cities; but we have learnt: ‘If Purim falls on Monday, the villages and large towns read on that day’. Now if it is as you say, they should push the reading forward to the [previous] Court day? — This would bring it to the tenth, and the Sages did not fix the tenth [as a possible day].

Come and hear: ‘If it falls on Thursday, the villages and large towns read on that same day’. Now if it is as you say, they should push the reading forward to the [previous] Court day which is the eleventh? — We do not shift it from one Court day to another. Come and hear [again]: ‘R. Judah says: When [is the reading pushed forward]? In places where the villagers come into town on Mondays and Thursdays, but in places where they do not come into town on Mondays and Thursdays it is read only on the proper day'. Now if you assume that the regulation is for the benefit of the cities, because they do not come into town on Mondays and Thursdays; are the cities to be deprived of the benefit? — Do not read [in the dictum of R. Hanina] 'in order that they may furnish food and water', but read, 'because they furnish food and water to their brethren in the cities'.¹

HOW [DOES THIS WORK OUT]? IF IT FALLS ON MONDAY, VILLAGES AND LARGER TOWNS READ ON THAT SAME DAY etc. How is it that in the first clause of the Mishnah² the dates of the month are mentioned and in the second³ the days of the week?⁴ — Since (in the second clause) the dates of the month would have to go backwards,⁵ the Mishnah prefers to mention the days.⁶ IF IT FALLS ON FRIDAY etc. Which authority does our Mishnah follow? — [You may say], either Rabbi or R. Jose. How Rabbi? — As it has been taught: 'If it falls on Friday, villages and large towns push the reading forward to the Court day, and walled cities react on the day itself. Rabbi said: I maintain that towns should not have to shift their date,⁷ but both one and the other read on the day itself'. What is the reason of the First Tanna? — Because it is written, every year:⁸ just as every year towns read before cities, so in this case towns should read before cities. But why not argue thus: 'Every year': just as every year towns have not to shift their date, so here towns should not have to shift their date? — There is a special reason [for not reasoning thus here] since this is impracticable.⁹ What is Rabbi's reason? — [It is written], 'every year': just as in most years the towns have not to shift their date, so here they should not have to shift their date. But why not reason thus: 'every year': just as in most years towns read before walled cities, so here towns should read before walled cities? — There is a special reason [for not arguing thus here], because this is impracticable.¹⁰

How R. Jose? — As it has been taught: 'If it falls on Friday, walled cities and villages push the reading forward to the Court day, and large towns read on the day itself. R. Jose said: Walled cities do not read before towns, but both read on the day itself'. What is the reason of the First Tanna? — Because it is written, every year': just as in most years towns react on the fourteenth and their time is not the same as the time of the walled cities, so here towns should read on the fourteenth and their time should not be the same as the time of the walled cities. But why not reason thus: 'Every year': just as in most years walled cities do not read before towns, so here walled cities should not read before towns? — Here the case is different, because it cannot be avoided. What is R. Jose's reason? — [It says], 'every year': just as in most years walled cities do not read before towns, so here walled cities should not read before towns. But why not reason thus: 'Every year': just as in most years the time of one is not the same as the time of the other, so here the time of one should not be the same as the time of the other? — Here the case is different, because it cannot be avoided.

But did Rabbi really hold that towns should not shift their time to the Court day? Has it not been taught: 'If it falls on Sabbath, villages push the reading forward to the Court day, and large towns read on Friday and walled cities on Sunday. Rabbi said: My view is that, since the towns have to shift their time, they may as well shift it to the Court day'?¹¹ — Are the two cases parallel? In this last case, the proper time is Sabbath, and since they must shift they can shift [further]; but in our case the proper time is Friday.

Whose authority is followed in this dictum enunciated by R. Helbo in the name of R. Huna: 'If Purim falls on Sabbath, all shift the reading to the Court day'? 'All shift their reading', do you say? [How can this be] seeing that we have the walled cities which read on the Sunday? — What we should say is, 'All who are shifted are shifted to the Court day'. Which authority, [you ask]? — Rabbi.

But at any rate all agree that the Megillah is not to be read on Sabbath. What is the reason? — Rabbah replied: All are under obligation to read the Megillah, but not all are competent to read it, and there is therefore a danger that one may take the scroll in his hand and go to an expert to be instructed and [in doing so] convey it four cubits in a public domain. This is also the reason for [not blowing] the shofar on Sabbath and [for not carrying] the lulab.¹² R. Joseph said: It is because the poor are anxiously awaiting the reading of the Megillah.¹³ It has been taught to the same effect: 'Although it has been laid down that villages push the reading forward to the Court day, contributions are collected and distributed on the same day'. 'Although it has been laid down'! On the contrary, it is because it has been laid down!¹⁴ — Read therefore: Since it has been laid down that villages push the reading forward to the Court day, contributions are collected and distributed on the same day, because the poor are waiting anxiously for the reading of the Megillah, but

- (1) The concession was therefore made to them as a reward, but if they do not come into town there would be no concession in allowing them to read earlier.
- (2) THE MEGILLAH IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH, THE TWELFTH etc.
- (3) IF IT FALL, ON MONDAY etc.
- (4) Lit., 'in the first clause he (the Tanna) takes the order of the months and in the second the order of the days'.
- (5) If he specified the dates of the month instead of the days of the week, he would have to begin with the reading on the fourteenth, and then take the thirteenth and so on.
- (6) Because as these go in regular order, it is easier to remember, and there is less danger of the Tanna making a mistake.
- (7) Lit., 'towns should not be shifted from their place'.
- (8) Esth. IX, 27.
- (9) It is impracticable for towns to retain this date and also to read before the walled cities.
- (10) It is impracticable for the towns to read before the walled cities and yet not shift their date.
- (11) Lit., 'since they are shifted, let them be shifted to etc.'
- (12) V. Glos.
- (13) Because they expect to receive gifts immediately afterwards, and on Sabbath these could not be given.
- (14) As otherwise they would receive them on the actual day of Purim.

Talmud - Mas. Megillah 5a

rejoicing¹ is kept only at the proper season.

Rab said: On the actual day of Purim the Megillah can be read even by an individual, but on the alternative days² it should be read only in a company of ten. R. Assi, however, said: Whether on the actual day or on the alternative days, it should be read only in a company of ten. In a case which actually occurred, Rab gave weight to the opinion of R. Assi.³ But could Rab actually have said this?⁴ — Did not Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath say in the name of Rab: 'If Purim falls on Sabbath, Friday is the proper time'? — Friday the proper time! Surely Sabbath is the proper time! What Rab must have meant therefore is this: The alternative time is like the proper time.⁵ Just as at the proper time [the Megillah may be read] by an individual, so at the alternative time [it may be read] by an individual. — No. For the reading of the Megillah⁶ Rab requires ten. What then did he mean by saying 'Friday is the proper time'? His intention was to reject the opinion of Rabbi, who said that since the towns had to shift their time they might as well shift to the Court day. Here, therefore, Rab informs us that Friday is the proper day [to which they should shift].

TO FAST, AND TO DISTRIBUTE GIFTS TO THE POOR. R. JUDAH SAID: WHEN IS THIS?¹⁵ IN PLACES WHERE PEOPLE COME TO TOWN ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS. IN PLACES, HOWEVER, WHERE THEY DO NOT COME TO TOWN EITHER ON MONDAYS OR THURSDAYS, THE MEGILLAH IS READ ONLY ON ITS PROPER DAY.

GEMARA. [TEN MEN OF LEISURE]: A Tanna taught: The ten unoccupied men who attend synagogue.¹⁶

IN RESPECT OF THESE IT WAS LAID DOWN THAT THEY SHOULD BE PUSHED FORWARD BUT NOT POSTPONED. What is the reason? — R. Abba said in the name of Samuel: The text says, and he shall not go further.¹⁷ R. Abba further said in the name of Samuel: Whence do we know that years are not to be counted by days?¹⁸ Because it says, [It is the first to you] of the months of the year,¹⁹ [which implies] that you reckon a year by months but not by days. The Rabbis of Caesarea said in the name of R. Abba: How do we know that a month is not reckoned by its hours?²⁰ Because it says, until a month of days:²¹ you reckon a month by days, but you do not reckon a month by hours.²²

THE TIME, HOWEVER, OF BRINGING THE WOOD FOR THE PRIESTS, OF KEEPING [THE FAST OF] THE NINTH OF AB, OF OFFERING THE FESTIVAL SACRIFICE AND OF ASSEMBLING THE PEOPLE IS POSTPONED BUT NOT PUSHED FORWARD. [The reason for the Fast of] the ninth of Ab is that we do not hasten the approach of trouble. [The reason for] the festival sacrifice and the assembling of the people is that the time for their performance has not yet arrived.²³

A Tanna taught: ‘The festival sacrifice and all the period of the festival sacrifice is to be postponed’. We understand what is meant by the festival sacrifice, namely, that if its day happens to be Sabbath we postpone it till after the Sabbath. But what is meant by the ‘period of the festival sacrifice’? — R. Oshaia replied: What is meant is this: The festival sacrifice [is postponed if its time] occurs on Sabbath, and the ‘burnt-offering of appearance’²⁴ is postponed even till after the festival day which is the proper time for a festival sacrifice.²⁵ Which authority does this follow? Beth Shammai, as we have learnt: ‘Beth Shammai say, Peace-offerings may be brought on the festival, but without laying on of hands; not, however, burnt-offerings; while Beth Hillel say, Both burnt-offerings and peace-offerings may be brought, and hands may be laid on’.²⁶ Raba said: [The meaning is]: The festival sacrifice may be postponed for the whole period of the festival sacrifice,²⁷ but not more, as we have learnt: ‘If one did not bring a festival sacrifice on the first day of the festival, he may go on to do so throughout the festival, including the last day. If the festival terminated without his having brought the festival sacrifice, he need not bring another in compensation’.²⁸ R. Ashi said: [It means that] the festival sacrifice may be postponed for the whole period of the festival sacrifice,²⁹ and even on Pentecost which is only one day it may be postponed [for seven days], as we have learnt: [Beth Hillel] agree that if Pentecost falls on Sabbath, the day for killing [the sacrifice] is after the Sabbath’.³⁰ and bathed in the [bathhouse of the] marketplace¹ of Sepphoris on the seventeenth of Tammuz² and sought to abolish the fast of the ninth of Ab, but his colleagues would not consent. R. Abba b. Zabda ventured to remark:³ Rabbi, this was not the case. What happened was that the fast of Ab [on that year] fell on Sabbath, and they postponed it till after Sabbath, and he said to them, Since it has been postponed, let it be postponed altogether, but the Sages would not agree. He festival peace-sacrifice (hagigah) may be brought, this offering is not brought till the intermediate days. [R. ELeazar] thereupon applied to himself the verse, Better are two than one.⁴

But how could Rabbi have planted a shoot on Purim seeing that R. Joseph has learnt: [We read in connection with Purim] gladness and feasting and a good day;⁵ 'gladness': this teaches that it is forbidden on these days to mourn; 'feasting': this teaches that it is forbidden on them to fast; 'a good day': this teaches that it is forbidden on them to do work? — The fact is that Rabbi belonged to a place which kept Purim on the fourteenth, and when he planted, it was on the fifteenth. Is this so?⁶ Was not Rabbi in Tiberias, and Tiberias was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun? — The fact is that Rabbi was in a place which kept on the fifteenth, and when he planted it was the fourteenth. But was he certain that Tiberias was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun, seeing that Hezekiah read the Megillah in Tiberias both on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being uncertain whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not? Hezekiah was in doubt, but Rabbi was certain. But even supposing he was certain, was he permitted to do this, seeing that it is written in Megillath Ta'anith,⁷ 'The fourteenth day and the fifteenth day are the days of Purim on which there is to be no mourning', and Raba said, The only purpose of mentioning these days [in Megillath Ta'anith]⁸ was to make whatever is forbidden on the one forbidden on the other also? — This applies only to mourning and fasting, but for abstention from work one day and no more is prescribed. Is that so? Did not Rab see a man sowing flax on Purim, and curse him, so that the flax did not grow? — There he [the man] was doing it on the day which he ought to have kept. Rabbah the son of Raba said. You may even say [that Rabbi planted] on the day [which he ought to have kept]: [the Jews] bound themselves [in the days of Esther] to abstain from mourning and fasting, but not from work, since first it is written, 'gladness and feasting and a good day', but afterwards it is written, that they should make them days of feasting and gladness',⁹ and 'a good day' is not mentioned. Why then did Rab curse that man? — It was a case of 'things which are permitted but others make a practice of abstaining from them'; but in Rabbi's place this¹⁰ was not the practice. Or if you like I can say that they did in fact make a practice of this, and Rabbi planted a festive shoot, as we have learnt:¹¹ If these days¹² pass and they are still not answered, they abstain to a certain extent from business, from building and from planting, from betrothing and from marrying,¹³ and a Tanna taught: 'Building' here means festive building; 'planting' means festive planting. What is festive building? If one builds a wedding residence for his son [on the occasion of his marriage]. What is a festive planting? If one plants a royal abarnaki.¹⁴

The text [above state]: 'Hezekiah read in Tiberias on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being doubtful whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not'. But could he have been in doubt about Tiberias, seeing that it is written, And the fortified cities were Ziddim-zer and Hamath and Rakath and Kinnereth,¹⁵ and it is generally agreed that Rakath is Tiberias? — The reason why he was doubtful was because one side is bounded by the lake.¹⁶ If so, why was he in doubt? It certainly was not walled, as it has been taught : Which has a wall,¹⁷ and not merely a fence of houses.¹⁸ Round about:¹⁹ this excludes Tiberias, the lake forming its wall!²⁰ In respect of the houses of a walled town he was not in doubt; where he was in doubt was in respect of reading the Megillah. [He asked]: What constitutes the difference between villages and walled towns which are mentioned in connection with the reading of the Megillah? Is it that the former are exposed and the latter are not exposed, [in which case] Tiberias [belongs to the former] being also exposed, or is it that the latter are protected and the former are not protected, [in which case] Tiberias [belongs to the latter], being protected? That was why he was in doubt.

R. Assi read the Megillah in Huzal²¹ on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being in doubt whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not. According to another report, R. Assi said: Huzal of the house of Benjamin was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun.

R. Johanan said: When I was a boy, I made a statement about which I afterwards questioned the old men, and it was found that I was right: [I said:] Hamath is Tiberias. And why was it called Hamath? On account of the hot springs [hamme] of Tiberias. Rakath is Sepphoris, And why was it called Rakath? Because it slopes down like the bank [raktha] of a river. Kinnereth is Gennesaret. And why was it called Kinnereth? Because its fruits are sweet like the music of a harp [kinnor].¹ Raba said: Is there anyone who can maintain that Rakath is not Tiberias, seeing that when a man dies here [in Babylonia] they mourn for him there [in Tiberias] as follows: 'Great was he in Sheshach² and he has a name in Rakath',³ and when the coffin is taken there they mourn for him thus: 'Ye lovers of the remnants,⁴ dwellers in Rakath, go forth and receive the slaughtered of the depths'.⁵ When R. Zera departed, a certain mourner opened his dirge thus: 'The land of Shinar⁶ conceived and bore him, the beauteous land⁷ brought up her delight. Woe to me, saith Rakath, for her precious instrument is lost'!⁸ No, said Raba. Hamath is the hot springs of Gerar; Rakath is Tiberias; and Kinnereth is Gennesaret. Why is it called Rakath? Because even the least worthy⁹ of its inhabitants are full of religious performances like a pomegranate. R. Jeremiah said: Rakath is its proper name. And why is it called Tiberias? Because it is situated in the very centre¹⁰ of the land of Israel. Rabbah said: Rakath is its name. And why is it called Tiberias? Because its aspect is good.¹¹

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 6a

Zeira said: Kitron is Sepphoris. And why is it called Sepphoris? Because it is perched on the top of a mountain like a bird [zippor]. But is Kitron Sepphoris? Now Kitron was in the territory of Zebulun, as it is written, Zebulun drove not out the inhabitants of Kitron nor the inhabitants of Nahalol.¹² Now Zebulun complained of his portion, as it says, Zebulun was a people which shamed his soul to death.¹³ Why? Because Naphtali was on the high places of the field.¹⁴ Zebulun complained to the Holy One, blessed be he, saying: Sovereign of the Universe, to my brethren Thou hast given fields and vineyards and to me Thou hast given hills and mountains; to my brethren Thou hast given lands, and to me Thou hast given lakes and rivers. [God] replied: They will all require thee for the hilazon,¹⁵ as it says, and the hidden treasures of the sand,¹⁶ and R. Joseph learnt: 'Hidden' indicates the hilazon; 'treasures' indicates the tunny fish;¹⁷ 'sand' indicates white glass.¹⁸ Zebulun then said: Sovereign of the Universe, who will inform me?¹⁹ He replied: There they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness.²⁰ This shall be thy sign: whoever takes of thee without payment will not prosper in his business. Now if you assume that Kitron is Sepphoris, why did Zebulun complain of his portion, seeing that Sepphoris is an excellent spot? Nor can you say that it is not 'flowing with milk and honey'. For Resh Lakish has said: I have myself seen the trail of milk and honey²¹ round Sepphoris, and it is sixteen miles by sixteen miles. Nor can you say that [even so] his is not as good as his brothers, since Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: I have myself seen the trail of milk and honey of the whole land of Israel, and it extends [altogether] about as far as from Be Kubi²² to the Fort of Tulbanke, twenty-two parasangs in length and six parasangs in breadth?²³ Even so, he preferred fields and vineyards. This is also indicated by the language of the text, as it says, ‘Naphtali upon the high places of the field’. This is a proof.

R. Abbahu said: [It is written], Ekron shall be rooted up,²⁴ this is Kisri the daughter of Edom,²⁵ which is situated among the sands, and which was a thorn in the side of Israel²⁶ in the days of the Greeks. When the House of the Hasmoneans grew powerful and conquered them, they called it ‘the capture of the tower of Shir’.²⁷

R. Jose b. Hanina said: What is meant by the text, And I will take away his blood out of his mouth and his detestable things from between his teeth, and he also shall be a remnant for our God?²⁸ ‘And I will take away his blood out of his mouth’: this refers to their sacrificial shrines.²⁹ ‘And his detestable things from between his teeth’: this refers to their oracles.³⁰ ‘And he also shall be a remnant for our God’: these are the synagogues and houses of learning in Edom.³¹ And he shall be as a chief in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite:³² these are the theatres and circuses³³ in Edom in which one day the chieftains of Judah shall publicly teach the Torah. R. Isaac said: Leshem is Pamias.³⁴ Ekron shall be rooted out: this is Caesarea, the daughter of Edom, which was a metropolis³⁵ of kings. Some say that this means that kings were brought up there, and others that kings were appointed from there. Caesarea³⁶ and Jerusalem [are rivals]. If one says to you that both are destroyed, do not believe him; if he says that both are flourishing, do not believe him; if he says that Caesarea is waste and Jerusalem is flourishing, or that Jerusalem is waste and Caesarea is flourishing, you may believe him, as it says, I shall be filled, she is laid waste,³⁷ if this one is filled, that one is laid waste, and if that one is filled, this one is laid waste. R. Nahman b. Isaac derived the same lesson from here: and the one people shall be stronger than the other people.³⁸ R. Isaac also said: What is the meaning of the verse, Let favour be shown to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness?³⁹ Isaac said in the presence of the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, let mercy be shown to Esau. He replied: He is wicked. He said to Him; He has not learnt righteousness.⁴⁰ He replied: In the land of uprightness⁴¹ will he deal wrongfully.⁴² He said: If so, let him not behold the majesty of the Lord.⁴²

R. Isaac also said: What is meant by the verse, Grant not, O Lord, the desires of the wicked, draw not out his bit,⁴³ so that they exalt themselves, selah?⁴⁴ Jacob said before the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, grant not to Esau the wicked the desire of his heart, draw not out his bit:

this refers to Germamia of Edom,¹ for should they but go forth they would destroy the whole world. R. Hama b. Hanina said: There are three hundred crowned heads in Germamia of Edom and three hundred and sixty-five chieftains in Rome,² and every day one set go forth to meet the other and one of them is killed, and they have all the trouble of appointing a king again.

R. Isaac also said: If a man says to you, I have laboured and not found, do not believe him. If he says, I have not laboured but still have found, do not believe him. If he says, I have laboured and found, you may believe him. This is true in respect of words of Torah,³ but in respect of business, all depends on the assistance of heaven. And even for words of Torah this is true only of penetrating to the meaning,⁴ but for remembering what one has learnt, all depends on the assistance of heaven.

R. Isaac also said: If you see a wicked man being favoured by fortune,⁵ do not contend with him, as it says, Do not contend with evildoers.⁶ Nor is this all, but he may even prosper in his undertakings, as it says, His ways prosper at all times.⁷ Nor is this all, but he may even be declared right, as it says, Thy judgments are far above out of his sight.⁸ Nor is this all, but he may even triumph over his enemies, as it says, As for all his adversaries, he puffeth at them.⁸ Is this so? Has not R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: It is permitted to contend with the wicked in this world, as it says, They that forsake the law praise the wicked, but such as keep the law contend with them.⁹ Also it has been taught: R. Dosethai b. Mathon says: It is permitted to contend with the wicked in this world. And if one should whisper to you saying, [As for the text] Do not contend with evildoers, neither be thou envious against them that work unrighteousness, one whose conscience smites him speaks thus, and the meaning is, Do not contend with the evildoer to be like evildoers, neither be envious of such as work unrighteousness; and so it says also, Let not thy heart envy sinners?¹⁰ — There is no contradiction; the one [piece of advice] refers to one's own affairs the other to religious matters.¹¹ Or if you like I may say that both refer to one's own affairs, and still there is no contradiction: the one is addressed to a man who is wholly righteous, and the other to one who is not wholly righteous,¹² as R. Huna said: What is the meaning of the verse, Wherefore lookest thou when they deal treacherously, and holdest thy peace when the wicked swalloweth up the man that is more righteous than he?¹³ He can swallow up one that is more righteous than himself, he cannot swallow up one that is completely righteous. Or if you like I can say that when fortune is smiling on him, the case is different.

‘Ulla said: ‘Greek Italy’¹⁴ is the great city of Rome,¹⁵ which covers an area of three hundred parasangs by three hundred. It has three hundred markets corresponding to the number of days of the solar year. The smallest of them is that of the poultry sellers, which is sixteen mil by sixteen. The king dines every day in one of them. Everyone who resides in the city, even if he was not born there, receives a regular portion of food from the king's household,¹⁶ and so does everyone who was born there, even if he does not reside there. There are three thousand baths in it, and five hundred windows the smoke from which goes outside the wall.¹⁷ One side of it is bounded by the sea, one side by hills and mountains, one side by a barrier of iron, and one side by pebbly ground and swamp.¹⁸

MISHNAH. IF THE MEGILLAH HAS BEEN READ IN THE FIRST ADAR AND THE YEAR HAS SUBSEQUENTLY BEEN PROLONGED,¹⁹ IT IS READ AGAIN IN THE SECOND ADAR. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE FIRST ADAR AND THE SECOND ADAR SAVE ONLY IN THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH AND THE DISTRIBUTION OF GIFTS TO THE POOR.²⁰

GEMARA. This [last statement] implies that in respect of the series of special portions²¹ they are on the same footing.²² Which authority does the Mishnah follow? [It would seem], neither the First Tanna nor R. Eliezer son of R. Jose nor R. Simon b. Gamaliel [in the following Baraita], as it has been taught: ‘If the Megillah has been read in the first Adar and the year has then been prolonged, it is read in the second Adar, since all the precepts which are to be performed in the second Adar can be performed in the first,²³ except the reading of the Megillah’. R. Eliezer son of R. Jose says that it is not to be read [again] in the second Adar, because all precepts that are to be performed in the second Adar may be performed in the first. R. Simon b. Gamaliel says in the name of R. Jose that it is to be read again in the second, because precepts which are to be performed in the second Adar may not be performed in the first. They all however agree in regard to mourning and fasting, that they are forbidden on [the fourteenth and fifteenth of] both. Does not R. Simon b. Gamaliel here repeat the First Tanna? — R. Papa replied: They differ on the question of the series of special portions — the First Tanna holding that these should in the first instance be read in the second [Adar], but if they have been read in the first, this suffices. [But he also] excludes from this ruling the reading of the Megillah, [holding that], even though it has been read in the first [Adar], it must be read again in the second. R. Eliezer son of R. Jose on the other hand held that even the Megillah may in the first instance be read in the first [Adar], and R. Simon b. Gamaliel held that even the series of special portions, if they have been read in the first [Adar], must be read again in the second. Which authority then [does our Mishnah follow]? If [you say] the First Tanna, there is the difficulty of gifts.²⁴ If [you say] R. Eliezer son of R. Jose, there is the difficulty of the reading of the Megillah also. If [you say] R. Simon b. Gamaliel, there is the difficulty of the series of special portions! — In fact it is the First Tanna, and when he mentioned the reading of the Megillah, we suppose the same to apply to the gifts of the poor, since one depends on the other. Or if you like, I can say that in fact it is R. Simon b. Gamaliel, and there is an omission²⁵ in our Mishnah and what it means is this: ‘There is no difference between the fourteenth of the first Adar and the fourteenth of the second Adar save in the matter of reading the Megillah and gifts to the poor’. from which we infer that in regard to mourning and fasting they are on the same footing, while in regard to the special portions no ruling is given.²⁶ R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah²⁷ is as laid down by R. Simon b. Gamaliel, who gave it in the name of R. Jose. R. Johanan said: Both of them [R. Simon and R. Eliezer son of R. Jose] based their opinions on the same text, in every year.²⁸ R. Eliezer son of Jose reasoned: ‘In every year’; just as in most years [we think of] Adar as the month which adjoins Shebat, so here [we keep the precepts] in the Adar which adjoins Shebat. R. Simon b. Gamaliel again reasoned: Just as in most years [we think of] Adar as adjoining Nisan, so here [we keep the precepts] in the Adar which adjoins Nisan. Now we understand R. Eliezer son of R. Jose taking the view he did, because it is inherently probable, it being a rule that we do not postpone the performance of religious precepts.²⁹ But what is the reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel? — R. Tabi said: The reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel is that more weight is to be attached to bringing one period of redemption close to another.³⁰ R. Eleazar said: The reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel is derived from this verse: to confirm this second letter of Purim.³¹ And it was necessary for the text to write

'the second' and also to write 'in every year'. For if I had to base the rule on 'every year', I could raise the difficulty stated above: therefore it is written 'second'.¹ And if I had been told only 'second', I might say that the Megillah is properly to be read both in the first and in the second. Therefore it says, in every year.² And what does R. Eliezer son of R. Jose make of this second? — He requires it for the statement enunciated by R. Samuel b. Judah. For R. Samuel b. Judah said: At first they [Mordecai and Esther] decreed the observance of Purim only in Susa, but afterwards³ throughout the world.

R. Samuel b. Judah said: Esther sent to the Wise Men saying, Commemorate me⁴ for future generations. They replied, You will incite the ill will of the nations against us.⁵ She sent back reply: I am already recorded in the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia. Rab and R. Hanina and R. Johanan and R. Habiba record [the above statement in this form]: (in the whole of the Order Mo'ed, wherever this set of Rabbis is mentioned, R. Johanan is replaced by R. Jonathan).⁶ Esther sent to the Wise Men saying, Write an account of me for posterity. They sent back answer, Have I not written for thee three times⁷ — three times and not four?⁸ [And they refused] until they found a verse written in the Torah, Write this a memorial in a book,⁹ [which they expounded as follows]: 'Write this', namely, what is written here and in Deuteronomy;¹⁰ 'for a memorial', namely, what is written in the Prophets;¹¹ 'in a book', namely, what is written in the Megillah. The difference [between the first and second of these opinions] is also found between two Tannaim. 'Write this', what is written here.¹² 'For a memorial', namely, what is written in Deuteronomy. 'In a book', namely, what is written in the Prophets. So R. Joshua.¹³ R. Eliezer of Modi'im says: Write this', namely, what is written here and in Deuteronomy; for a memorial', namely, what is written in the Prophets; 'in a book', namely, what is written in the Megillah.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel; [The scroll] of Esther does not make the hands unclean.¹⁴ Are we to infer from this that Samuel was of opinion that Esther was not composed¹⁵ under the inspiration of the holy spirit? How can this be, Seeing that Samuel has said that Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit? — It was composed to be recited [by heart], but not to be written. The following objection was raised: 'R. Meir says that [the scroll of] Koheleth¹⁶ does not render the hands unclean, and that about the Song of Songs there is a difference of opinion. R. Jose says that the Song of Songs renders the hands unclean, and about Koheleth there is a difference of opinion. R. Simeon says that Koheleth is one of those matters in regard to which Beth Shammai were more lenient and Beth Hillel more stringent, but Ruth and the Song of Songs and

Esther [certainly] make the hands unclean'! — Samuel concurred with R. Joshua.¹⁷

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Menasia said: Koheleth does not render the hands unclean because it contains only the wisdom of Solomon.¹⁸ They said to him], Was this then all that he composed? Is it not stated elsewhere, And he spoke three thousand proverbs,¹⁹ and it further says, Add thou not unto his words.²⁰ Why this further quotation? — In case you might object that he composed very much, and what it pleased him to write he wrote and what it did not please him he did not write. Therefore it says,²¹ Add thou not to his words.²²

It has been taught: R. Eleazar said: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And Haman said in his heart.²³ R. Akiba says: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all that looked upon her.²⁴ R. Meir says: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And the thing became known to Mordecai.²⁵ R. Jose b. Durmaskith said: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, But on the spoil they laid not their hands,²⁶ Said Samuel: Had I been there,²⁷ I would have given a proof superior to all, namely, that it says, They confirmed and took upon them,²⁸ [which means] they confirmed above²⁹ what they took upon themselves below. Raba said: All the proofs can be confuted except that of Samuel, which cannot be confuted. [Thus,] against that of R. Eleazar it may be objected that it is reasonable to suppose that Haman would think so, because there was no one who was so high in the esteem of the king as he was, and that when he spoke at length,³⁰ he was only expressing the thought concerning himself. Against the proof of R. Akiba it may be objected that perhaps the fact is as stated by R. Eleazar, who said that these words show that to every man she appeared to belong to his own nation.³¹ Against R. Meir it may be objected that perhaps the fact is as stated by R. Hiyya b. Abba who said that Bigthan and Teresh were two men from Tarsis.³² Against the proof of R. Jose b. Durmaskith it may be objected that perhaps they³³ sent messengers. Against the proof of Samuel certainly no decisive objection can be brought. Said Rabina: This bears out the popular saying, Better is one grain of sharp pepper than a basket full of pumpkins. R. Joseph said: It³⁴ can be proved from here: And these days of Purim shall not fail from among the Jews.³⁵ R. Nahman b. Isaac said, From here: Nor the memorial of them perish from their seed.³⁶

AND GIFTS TO THE POOR. R. Joseph learnt: And sending portions one to another³⁷ that means two portions³⁸ for one man. And gifts to the poor³⁹ that means two gifts to two men.⁴⁰ R. Judah Nesi'ah⁴¹ sent to R. Oshaia the leg of a third-born calf⁴² and a barrel of wine. He sent him back word saying,

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 7b

You have fulfilled in our person, O our teacher, the words, and sending portions one to another.¹ Rabbah sent to Mari b. Mar by Abaye a sackful of dates and a cupful of roasted ears of corn. Said Abaye to him: Mari will now say, 'If a countryman becomes a king, he does not take his basket off his neck'.² The other [Mari] sent him [Rabbah] back a sackful of ginger and a cup full of long-stalked pepper. Said Abaye: Now the Master [Rabbah] will say, I sent him sweet and he sends me bitter. Abaye said: When I went out of the Master's [Rabbah's] house, I was already full, but when I reached the other place³ they set before me sixty dishes of sixty different preparations, and I had sixty pieces from them. The last preparation was called pot-roast, and [I liked it so much that] I wanted to lick the dish after it. Said Abaye: This bears out the popular saying, The poor man is hungry and does not know it,⁴ or the other saying, There is always room for sweet things. Abaye b. Abin and R. Hananiah b. Abin used to exchange their meals with one another.⁵

Raba said: It is the duty of a man to mellow himself [with wine] on Purim until he cannot tell the difference between cursed be Haman' and 'blessed be Mordecai'.⁶

Rabbah and R. Zera joined together in a Purim feast. They became mellow, and Rabbah arose and cut R. Zera's throat.⁷ On the next day he prayed on his behalf and revived him. Next year he said, Will your honour come and we will have the Purim feast together. He replied: A miracle does not take place on every occasion. Raba said: If one eats his Purim feast on the night [of the fourteenth], he does not thereby fulfil his obligation. What is the reason? It is written, days of feasting and gladness.⁸ R. Ashi was sitting before R. Kahana. It grew late, and still the Rabbis did not arrive. He said to him, Why have not the Rabbis come? Perhaps they are busy with the Purim feast. He said to him: Could they not have had it last night? He replied: Is your honour not acquainted with the diction of Raba, 'If one eats his Purim feast on the night [of the fourteenth], he does not thereby fulfil his obligation'? He said to him; Did Raba really say so? (He replied Yes).⁹ He then repeated it after him forty times, until he had safely stored it in his mind.¹⁰

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FESTIVALS AND SABBATH SAVE ONLY IN THE MATTER OF [PREPARING] FOOD.¹¹

GEMARA . We can infer from this that in the matter of preliminaries for preparing food¹² they are on the same footing. The Mishnah then does not agree with R. Judah, as it has been taught: 'There is no difference between festivals and Sabbath save in the matter of [preparing] food'. R. Judah, however, permits [on the festivals] the preliminaries for preparing food.¹² What is the reason of the First Tanna? The Scripture says: [Save that which every man must eat], that only [shall be prepared]:¹³ that and not its preliminaries. R. Judah, on the other hand, stresses the word for you:¹⁴ for you, which means, for all your requirements. Why then does not the other also admit this, seeing that it is written, 'for you'? — [This, he says, means], 'for you' and not for non-Jews; 'for you' and not for dogs. And [why does not] the other [adopt this view], seeing that it is written, 'that only'? [He replies]: It is written, 'that only', and it is written, 'for you'; we apply the one to preliminaries which can be attended to on the day before the festival, and the other to preliminaries which cannot be attended to on the day before the festival.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SABBATH AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SAVE ONLY THAT THE DELIBERATE VIOLATION OF THE ONE IS PUNISHED BY A HUMAN COURT AND THE DELIBERATE VIOLATION OF THE OTHER BY KARETH.¹⁵

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in respect of compensation¹⁶ they are on the same footing. Whose view does the Mishnah follow? — That of R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh, as it has been taught: R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh used to put the Day of Atonement on the same footing as Sabbath in respect of compensation: just as [one who deliberately breaks] Sabbath forfeits his life but is released from the obligation to make compensation,¹⁷ so [one who deliberately breaks] the Day of Atonement forfeits his life but is released from the obligation to make compensation.

We have learnt elsewhere: If any who have incurred the penalty of kareth are flogged — they become quit of their kareth, as it says, Then thy brother should be dishonoured in thine eyes;¹⁸ once he has been flogged, he is like thy brother.¹⁹ So R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel. Said R. Johanan: The colleagues of R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel joined issue with him on this point. Raba said, They said in the school of Rab: We have [also] learnt [this]:²⁰ There is no difference between the Day of Atonement and Sabbath save that he who breaks the one is punished by a human court, while he who breaks the other is punished with kareth. Now if [R. Hananiah's opinion] is correct, then both are punished by the human court?²¹ — R. Nahman replied: Whose view is this?²² That of R. Isaac, who said that lashes are never inflicted on those who have incurred kareth, as it has been taught: Those who have incurred kareth are included in the general statement.²³ Why then is kareth specially mentioned in the case of [one who lies with] his sister?²⁴ To show that she is punished with kareth and not with lashes.²⁵ R. Ashi said: You may even say that it²⁶ is the view of the Rabbis:²⁷ in the case of the one [the breaker of Sabbath], the essential [punishment for] his presumption is inflicted by the human court, but in the case of the other, the essential punishment for his presumption consists in 'being cut off'.²⁸

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ONE WHO IS INTERDICTED BY VOW TO HAVE NO BENEFIT FROM HIS NEIGHBOUR AND ONE WHO IS INTERDICTED BY VOW FROM HIS FOOD, SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SETTING FOOT [ON HIS PROPERTY] AND OF UTENSILS WHICH ARE NOT USED FOR [PREPARING] FOOD.¹

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in the matter of utensils which are used for preparing food they are on the same footing.

SETTING FOOT. But people are not particular about this?² — Raba said: Whose view is this? R. Eleazar's, who said that [even] a thing which is usually excused³ is forbidden to one who vows to have no benefit.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VOWS AND FREEWILL-OFFERINGS SAVE THAT VOWED OFFERINGS HAVE TO BE REPLACED⁴ BUT FREEWILL-OFFERINGS NEED NOT BE REPLACED.

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in respect of 'not delaying'⁵ they are on the same footing.

We have learnt in another place: What is a vow? Where a man says, I take upon me the obligation to bring a burnt-offering. What is a freewill-offering? Where a man says, Behold this is [to be] a burnt-offering. What then is the [practical] difference between vows and freewill-offerings? — If vowed animals die or are stolen or lost, the one who offered is under obligation to replace them;⁶ if freewill-offerings die or are stolen or lost, he is not under obligation to replace them.⁷ Whence is this rule derived? — As our Rabbis have taught: And it shall be accepted for him to make atonement upon him.⁸ R. Simeon says: That which is ‘upon him’⁹ he is under obligation to replace.¹⁰ How is it implied [that this substitute is upon him’]? — R. Isaac b. Abdini replied: Since he has said ‘[I take] upon me’, it is as if he had taken it upon his shoulder.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ONE SUFFERING FROM AN ISSUE WHO MAKES TWO OBSERVATIONS¹¹ AND ONE WHO MAKES THREE,¹² SAVE IN THE MATTER OF BRINGING A SACRIFICE.¹³

GEMARA. From this it is to be inferred that in the matter of [defiling] a bed or a seat¹⁴ and counting seven days¹⁵ they are on the same footing. Whence is this rule derived? — As our Rabbis have taught: ‘R. Simai says: The text specified two [observations]¹⁶ and designated the man as unclean, and also specified three¹⁷ and designated him as unclean’. How do we explain this? Two bring uncleanness but do not entail a sacrifice, three entail a sacrifice. But cannot I say that two bring uncleanness but do not entail a sacrifice, while three entail a sacrifice but no uncleanness?¹⁸ — To this you may answer that before he has three observations he must have two.¹⁹ Let me say then that two observations entail a sacrifice but not uncleanness,¹⁸ whereas three bring uncleanness also? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it has been taught: And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord from his issue;²⁰ this implies that some persons with an issue bring a sacrifice and some do not.²¹ How is this? if he has three observations, he brings a sacrifice, if only two, he does not bring. Or shall we expound differently and say that if he has two he brings the sacrifice, but if three he does not? — You can reply to this that before he has three he must have had two.²² And both the exposition of R. Simai and the text ‘from his issue’ are necessary [to prove this point]. For if I had only the dictum of R. Simai, I could raise against it the objection mentioned, and therefore I have recourse to ‘from his issue’. And if I had only ‘from his issue’, I should not know how many observations [are necessary for a sacrifice]; therefore I have the dictum of R. Simai.²³

Now, however, that you have assumed that the words ‘from his issue are to be used for a special exposition,²⁴ [I may ask], what lesson do you derive from the words and when he that hath an issue is cleansed from his issue?²⁵ That is required for the following lesson, as it has been taught: ‘And when he that hath an issue is cleansed’: that is to say, when the issue ceases.²⁶ ‘From his issue’: that is to say from his issue [only], and not from both his issue and his leprosy.²⁷ ‘Then he shall number’: this teaches us that one with an issue who has had two observations must count seven days [without issue]. But cannot this be deduced logically [as follows]?²⁸ If he defiles bed and seat, shall he not [all the more] be required to count seven days?

(1) The latter may take these liberties, the former may not.

(2) And therefore if one takes this liberty, he cannot be said to be deriving any benefit.

(3) יִתּוּר Aliter: ‘The (retailer's customary) addition (to exact measure)’, and the accenting of which is not counted as receiving a benefit.

(4) Lit., one is responsible for them’. V. infra.

(5) To fulfil the undertaking, in accordance with Deut. XXIII, 22.

(6) Because the vow still stands.

(7) Because the undertaking applied only to that particular animal.

(8) So lit. E.V., ‘for him’. Lev. I, 4.

(9) I.e., the vow.

(10) Apparently R. Simeon renders: ‘Any animal will be accepted so long as it is "upon him"’.

(11) On a single day or two successive days.

(12) On one day or three successive days or two on one day and one on the next.

(13) V. Lev. XV, 13-15.

(14) Ibid. 4-6.

(15) For his cleansing, after the cessation of the issue. Ibid.13.

(16) Lev. XV, 2: When a man hath an issue out of his flesh, his issue is unclean.

(17) Ibid. 3: And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness, (18) Viz., the stringent uncleanness of one with an issue (cf. nn. 3-4), but only the lighter uncleanness resulting from a discharge of semen. V. Deut. XXIII, 11-12.

(19) And is already unclean as a zab.

(20) Ibid. 15.

(21) The proposition 'from' is stressed, as implying only part of these who have an issue.

(22) And so already become liable for the sacrifice.

(23) To show that it is three.

(24) I.e., for some lesson not contained in the literal meaning of the words.

(25) Ibid. 13.

(26) V. next note.

(27) If the one with an issue was also a leper, he need not wait for his counting till he is healed of his leprosy.

(28) And why therefore is a text required?

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 8b

— This argument can be confuted by the case of the woman who is keeping day for day,¹ for such a one defiles bed and seat² but does not count seven days. And thus do not be surprised that this one also, although he defiles bed and seat, should not be obliged to count seven days. Therefore it says, 'from his issue, and he shall number', which implies that after part of his issue³ he shall number; this teaches² with regard to one with an issue who has had two observations that he is required to count seven days.

R. Papa said to Abaye: Why do we use the one text 'from his issue' to include⁴ one with an issue who has had two observations, and the other text 'from his issue' to exclude⁵ one with an issue who has had two observations? — He replied: If you should assume that the former text⁶ is for the purpose of excluding, then the text could simply omit the word. And should you say, we could then derive the rule [that he is to count seven days] by a logical deduction, such a deduction could be confuted by the case of the woman who counts day for day. And should you say that this word is required to show that the text refers to one who is cleansed of his issue [only] and not [of his issue and] his leprosy, — in that case the text should say, 'and when he that hath an issue is cleansed', and no more. Why do I require, 'from his issue'? This teaches that one with an issue who has two observations is required to count seven days.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER WHO IS UNDER OBSERVATION⁷ AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH⁸ SAVE IN THE MATTER OF LEAVING THE HAIR LOOSE⁹ AND RENDING THE GARMENTS.¹⁰ THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER WHO HAS BEEN DECLARED CLEAN⁸ AFTER BEING UNDER OBSERVATION¹¹ AND ONE WHO HAS BEEN DECLARED CLEAN⁸ AFTER HAVING BEEN DEFINITELY DECLARED A LEPER SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SHAVING AND [OFFERING] THE BIRDS.¹²

GEMARA. From this it is to be inferred that in the matter of being sent outside [the camp]¹³ and uncleanness¹⁴ they are on the same footing. Whence is this rule¹⁵ derived? — As R. Samuel b. Isaac taught before R. Huna: Then the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is a scab; and he shall wash his clothes and be clean;¹⁶ which implies that he shall already have been [in a sense] clean¹⁷ from the first, not having been liable to rending the garments and loosening the hair. Said Raba to him. If that is so, then in regard to one with an issue, of whom it is written, and he shall wash his garments and be clean,¹⁸ how is it possible to say that he shall have been clean from the start? What it means then is, 'clean now so far as not to defile earthenware vessels by moving them',¹⁹ so that, even if he observes an issue again, he does not defile them retrospectively. So here, [the meaning is that] the leper is clean now to the extent of not defiling retrospectively by his entrance!²⁰ The fact is, said Raba, that we learn it from here: And the leper in whom the plague is;²¹ [that means] one whose leprosy is due to the state of his body, excluding this one²² whose leprosy is due to days.²³ Said Abaye to him: If that is so, then when it says, All the days wherein the plague is in him he shall be unclean,²⁴ are we to say that one whose leprosy is due to his state of body is required to be sent out of the camp, but one whose leprosy is not due to his state of body is not to be sent out of the camp? And should you reply that that is so, [how can this be] seeing that it states, THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER UNDER OBSERVATION AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH SAVE IN THE MATTER OF LOOSENING THE HAIR AND RENDING THE GARMENTS, from which it may be inferred that in the matter of being sent out [of the camp] and defiling by entrance they are on the same footing? — [The text might have said simply] 'the days', and it says, 'all the days', to bring a leper under observation within the rule of sending out [of the camp]. If that is the case, what is the reason that he is not required to shave and offer birds [which is not the case], as it states: THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER UNDER OBSERVATION AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SHAVING AND OFFERING BIRDS? — Abaye replied: Scripture says: And the priest shall go forth out of the camp, and behold the plague of leprosy is healed in the leper;²⁵ this means, one whose leprosy is such because it requires healing,²⁶ and excludes one whose leprosy is such in virtue not of [requiring] healing but of days [of isolation].

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN BOOKS [OF THE SCRIPTURE]²⁷ AND TEFILLIN AND MEZUZAHS²⁸ SAVE THAT THE BOOKS MAY BE WRITTEN IN ANY LANGUAGE²⁹ WHEREAS TEFILLIN AND MEZUZAHS MAY BE WRITTEN ONLY IN ASSYRIAN.³⁰ R. GEMARA. [From this we infer] that for requiring [the sheets] to be stitched with sinews³¹ and for defiling the hands³² both are on the same footing.

BOOKS MAY BE WRITTEN IN ANY LANGUAGE. The following seems to conflict with this: '[A Scriptural scroll containing] a Hebrew text written³³ in Aramaic or an Aramaic text written in Hebrew,³⁴ or [either] in Hebraic script,³⁵ does not defile the hands;³⁶ [it does not do so] until it is written in Assyrian script upon a scroll and in ink'! — Raba replied: There is no contradiction; the one statement [that of the Mishnah] speaks of [books written in] our script,¹ the other of [books written in] their script.² Said Abaye to him: How have you explained the other statement [that of the Baraitha]? As referring to their script. [If so], why should it say, 'A Hebrew text written in Aramaic or an Aramaic text written in Hebrew'? The same would apply even to a Hebrew text which is written in Hebrew or an Aramaic text which is written in Aramaic, since it goes on to say. 'till it is written in Assyrian on a scroll in ink'!³ No. [What you must say is], there is no contradiction: the one statement [in the Mishnah] represents the view of the Rabbis, the other that of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. But if it is the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, what about Greek?⁴ — No. What you must say is, there is no contradiction; the one statement [in the Mishnah] refers to scrolls, the other to tefillin and mezuzahs. What is the reason [why] tefillin, and mezuzahs [must be written in Assyrian]? — Because in reference to them it is written, and they shall be,⁵ which implies, they shall be as they originally were. What cases are there of Aramaic which can be written in Hebrew? I grant you we find in the Torah yegar sahadutha;⁶ but here [in the case of tefillin, and mezuzoth] what Aramaic is there? — No. What you must say is, there is no contradiction; the one statement [in the Baraitha] refers to the Megillah, the other to the other books [of the Scripture]. What is the reason in the case of the Megillah? — Because it is written In regard to it, according to their writing and according to their language.⁷ What case of Aramaic being written in Hebrew is possible here? — R.

Papa said: And the king's pithgam⁸ shall be published;⁹ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: And all the wives shall give yekar¹⁰ to their husbands.¹¹ R. Ashi said: That statement [in the Baraitha] was made in reference to other books [of the Scripture], and it follows the view of R. Judah, as it has been taught: 'Tefillin and mezuzahs are to be written only in Assyrian, but our Rabbis allowed them to be written in Greek also'.¹² But is it not written, and they shall be? I must say therefore, 'Scrolls of the Scripture may be written in any language, and our Rabbis permitted them to be written in Greek'.¹³ They permitted! This would imply that the First Tanna forbade it! What I must say therefore is, 'Our Rabbis permitted them to be written only in Greek'. And it goes on to state, 'R. Judah said: When our teachers permitted Greek, they permitted it only for a scroll of the Torah'.¹⁴ This was on account of the incident related in connection with King Ptolemy,¹⁵ as it has been taught: 'It is related of King Ptolemy that he brought together seventy-two elders and placed them in seventy-two [separate] rooms, without telling them why he had brought them together, and he went in to each one of them and said to him, Translate¹⁶ for me the Torah of Moses your master.¹⁷ God then prompted each one of them and they all conceived the same idea and wrote for him, God created in the beginning,¹⁸ I shall make man in image and likeness,¹⁹ And he finished on the sixth day, and rested on the seventh day,²⁰ Male and female he created him²¹ [but they did not write 'created them'],²² Come let me descend and confound their tongues,²³ And Sarah laughed among her relatives;²⁴ For in their anger they slew an ox and in their wrath they digged up a stall;²⁵ And Moses took his wife and his children, and made them ride on a carrier of men;²⁶ And the abode of the children of Israel which they stayed in Egypt and in other lands was four hundred years,²⁷ And he sent the elect of the children of Israel;²⁸ And against the elect of the children of Israel he put not forth his hand;²⁹

(2) The Scriptural text was transliterated into the characters of a foreign language.

(3) This shows, according to Abaye, that the Baraitha is speaking of the language independently of the script.

I have taken not one valuable of theirs;¹ Which the Lord thy God distributed to give light to all the peoples;² And he went and served other gods which I commanded should not be served.³ They also wrote for him 'the beast with small legs' and they did not write 'the hare',⁴ because the name of Ptolemy's wife was hare,⁵ lest he should say, The Jews have jibed at me and put the name of my wife in the Torah.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS THAT BOOKS [OF THE SCRIPTURE] ALSO ARE PERMITTED TO BE WRITTEN ONLY IN GREEK. R. Abbahu said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah follows R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. R. Johanan further said: What is the reason of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel? Scripture says, God enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem;⁶ [this means] that the words of Japheth⁷ shall be in the tents of Shem. But why not say [the words of] Gomer and Magog?⁸ — R. Hiyya b. Abba replied: The real reason is because it is written, Let God enlarge [yaft] Japheth: implying, let the chief beauty [yafyuth] of Japheth⁹ be in the tents of Shem.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A PRIEST ANOINTED WITH THE OIL OF ANOINTMENT AND ONE WHO [ONLY] WEARS THE ADDITIONAL GARMENTS¹⁰ SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE BULLOCK WHICH IS OFFERED FOR THE [UNWITTING BREAKING OF] ANY OF THE COMMANDMENTS.¹¹ THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A REGULAR¹² [HIGH] PRIEST AND ONE WHO HAS PASSED THROUGH [THE OFFICE]¹³ SAVE IN RESPECT OF THE BULLOCK OF THE DAY OF ATONEMENT AND THE TENTH OF THE EPHAH.¹⁴

GEMARA. [BETWEEN THE PRIEST ANOINTED etc.]. From this we infer that in the matter of the bullock of the Day of Atonement and the tenth of the ephah they are on the same footing. The Mishnah, it appears, does not concur with R. Meir; for with regard to the view of R. Meir, it has been taught: 'One who wears the additional garments [without having been anointed] brings the bullock which is offered [by the High Priest] for the [unwitting breaking of] any of the precepts'. So R. Meir. The Sages, however, say that he does not offer it. What is the reason of R. Meir? — As it has been taught: [If the] anointed [priest shall sin]:¹⁵ this tells me only of one anointed with the oil of anointment. How do I know that it applies also to one who [merely] wears the additional garments? — Because it says, the 'anointed'.¹⁶ How have you explained [the Mishnah]? As not concurring with R. Meir. Look now at the next clause: THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A REGULAR HIGH PRIEST AND ONE WHO HAS PASSED THROUGH THE OFFICE SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE BULLOCK OF THE DAY OF ATONEMENT AND THE TENTH OF THE EPHAH. We infer from this that in all other matters they are on the same footing; and so we come round to the view of R. Meir, as it has been taught: 'If something happened to disqualify him and another priest was appointed to take his place, when the first returns to his service the second is still liable to all the obligations of the high priesthood'.¹⁷ So R. Meir. R. Jose said: The first returns to his service whereas the second is qualified to act neither as a high priest nor as an ordinary priest. R. Jose further said: it happened with R. Jose b. Ulam¹⁸ from Sepphoris that a disqualification occurred to the high priest and they appointed him in his place, and the case eventually came before the Sages and they said: The first returns to his service. The second is qualified to act neither as a high priest nor as an ordinary priest: as a high priest, so as not to create enmity,¹⁹ as an ordinary priest, because we can raise to a higher grade of holiness but we never put down to a lower.²⁰ Are we then to say that the first clause [of the Mishnah] follows the Sages and the second R. Meir? — Said R. Hisda: Yes; the first clause follows the Sages and the second R. Meir. R. Joseph said: The whole gives the opinion of Rabbi, who combined the views of²¹ differing Tannaim.²²

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE²³ BETWEEN A GREAT HIGH PLACE²⁴ AND A SMALL ONE²⁵ SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE PASCHAL LAMB OFFERING.²⁶ THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY ANIMAL WHICH IS THE OBJECT OF A VOW OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING MAY BE BROUGHT ON A [SMALL] HIGH PLACE, ANY ANIMAL WHICH IS NOT THE OBJECT OF A VOW OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING MAY NOT BE BROUGHT ON A [SMALL] HIGH PLACE.

GEMARA. THE PASCHAL LAMB and nothing else?²⁷ — We should say, things like the paschal lamb.²⁸ Whose view is this? — R. Simeon's, as it has been taught: 'The congregation also did not offer [on the large high place] anything save paschal lambs and obligatory sacrifices for which there is a fixed time; but obligatory sacrifices for which there is no fixed time²⁹ were not offered either on the one or the other'.

MISHNAH. Talmud - Mas. Megilah 10a

THE HIGH PLACES COULD AGAIN BECOME PERMITTED, BUT AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF JERUSALEM THERE CAN BE NO SUCH PERMISSION.

GEMARA. R. Isaac said: I have heard that sacrifices may be offered in the Temple of Onias¹ at the present day.² He was of opinion that the Temple of Onias is not an idolatrous shrine, and that the first holiness [of Jerusalem] was conferred on it for the time being but not for all time,³ as it is written, For ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance.⁴ 'Rest' here means Shiloh and 'inheritance' means Jerusalem, and 'inheritance' is put on the same footing as 'rest', [to show that] just as after the [destruction of the] 'rest' the high places were again permitted, so after the [destruction of the] 'inheritance' they will be permitted. They said to him: Do you really say so? He replied, No. Said Raba: By God! he did say it and I learnt it from him. Why then did he retract? On account of the difficulty raised by R. Mari. For R. Mari adduced the following in confutation: AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF SHILOH HIGH PLACES CAN AGAIN BE PERMITTED, BUT AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF JERUSALEM THERE CAN BE NO SUCH PERMISSION. We have also learnt further: After they [the Israelites] occupied Jerusalem, the high places were forbidden, and they were never permitted again, and it was the 'inheritance'. — There is a difference of Tannaim on this point, as we have learnt. 'R. Eliezer said: I have heard that when they were building the hekal⁵ [in the second Temple] they made curtains for the hekal and for the courtyard,⁶ the difference being that in the hekal they built [the walls] outside [the curtains]⁶ and in the courtyard they built [the walls] within [the curtains]. And R. Joshua said: I have heard that sacrifices may be brought even though there is no temple; that the most holy foods may be eaten, even though there are no curtains; and that foods of lesser sanctity and second tithe may be eaten even though there is no wall, because the first holiness was conferred on Jerusalem⁷ both for the time being and for all time.'⁷ We infer from this⁸ that R. Eliezer was of opinion that it was not [at first] sanctified for all time.⁹ Said Rabina to R. Ashi: How can we draw this inference? Perhaps all agree that the first holiness was conferred upon it for the time being and for all time, and one Master reported what he had heard and the other what he had heard. Should you ask, In that case, why were curtains needed according to R. Eliezer, we can answer that they were merely for privacy. Rather it is the following Tannaim who differ on this point as it has been taught: 'R. Ishmael son of R. Jose said: Why did the Sages enumerate these?¹⁰ Because when the exiles returned they found these cities [still walled] and sanctified them;¹¹ the others,¹² however, lost their privilege when the land lost its sanctity'. This shows that he was of opinion that the first holiness was conferred for the time being and not for the future. And a contradiction was pointed out with the following: 'R. Ishmael son of R.

Jose said: Were these all? Do we not find it said, Sixty cities, all the region of Argob,¹³ and it is written, All these were fortified cities with high walls?¹⁴ Why then did the Sages enumerate these? Because when the exiles returned, they found these [still walled] and sanctified them'.¹⁵ They sanctified then,

(2) This must refer to the period of the originator of the dictum, as the Temple of Onias did not exist any longer in the time of R. Isaac.

(3) Lit., 'for the future to come'. Hence after its destruction the high places would again be permitted.

(4) Deut. XII, 9.

(5) We assume for the present that the reason for the curtains was to invest the place with holiness enabling sacrifices to be offered and eaten pending the construction of the walls.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 10b

now, [say you]! Do we not say that they did not require to be sanctified?¹ What [you should say is], they found these and enumerated them. And not only in these alone, but in every one in regard to which you shall find a tradition from your ancestors that it was walled from the days of Joshua son of Nun, all these precepts² are to be observed, because the first holiness was conferred for the time being and for all future time. There is thus a contradiction between two statements of R. Ishmael! — Two Tannaim report R. Ishmael son of R. Jose differently. Or if you like, I can say that the latter dictum emanates from R. Eleazar b. Jose, as it has been taught: 'R. Eleazar b. Jose says: That has [no] wall;³ even though it has not now, but it had in previous times.'

And it came to pass in the days of Ahasuerus⁴ R. Levi, or some say R. Jonathan said: The following remark is a tradition handed down to us from the Men of the Great Assembly:⁵ wherever in the Scripture we find the term wa-yehi [and it was, and it came to pass], it indicates [the approach of] trouble.⁶ Thus, and it came to pass in the days of Ahasuerus — there was Haman. And it came to pass in the days when the Judges judged⁷ — 'there was a famine'. And it came to pass when man began to multiply⁸ — then 'God Saw that the wickedness of man was great'. And it came to pass, as they journeyed east⁹ — then 'they said, come let us build a city'. And it came to pass in the days of Amrafel¹⁰ — then 'they made war'. And it came to pass when Joshua was in Jericho¹¹ — then 'his [the angel's] sword was drawn in his hand'.¹² And the Lord was [wa-yehi] with Joshua¹³ — then, 'the children of Israel committed a trespass', And there was a certain man of Ramathaim-Zophim¹⁴ — then, for he loved Hannah but the Lord had shut up her womb'. And it came to pass when Samuel was old¹⁵ — then, 'his sons walked not in his ways'. And David had [wa-yehi] great success in all his ways¹⁶ — then, 'And Saul eyed David'.¹⁷ And it came to pass when the king dwelt in his house¹⁸ — then, 'Nevertheless thou shalt not build the house'.¹⁹ But is it not written, — And it came to pass on the eighth day,²⁰ and it has been taught, 'On that day there was joy before the Holy One, blessed be He, as on the day when heaven and earth were created. For it is written, And it came to pass

[wa-yehi] on the eighth day, and it is written in the other place, And there was [wa-yehi] one day'?²¹ Nadab and Abihu died on that day. But is it not written, And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year,²² And it came to pass when Jacob saw Rachel,²³ and it is also written, And there there was evening and there was morning one day, and there is the second day and the third, and there are many other cases? — R. Ashi replied: The fact is that 'wa-yehi' sometimes has this signification and sometimes not, but the expression 'and it came to pass in the days of' always indicated trouble. Five times we find the expression 'and it came to pass in the days of'; viz., 'And it came to pass in the days when the Judges judged', 'and it came to pass in the days of Amrafel', 'and it came to pass in the days of Ahaz',²⁴ 'and it came to pass in the days of Jehoiakim'.²⁵

R. Levi further said: The following is a tradition that we have from our ancestors, that Amoz²⁶ and Amaziah²⁷ were brothers. What does this tell us?²⁸ — It confirms what was said by R. Samuel b. Nahmani in the name of R. Jonathan: Every bride who is modest in the house of her father-in-law is rewarded by having kings and prophets among her descendants. How do we prove this? From Tamar, as it is written, And Judah saw her and thought her to be a harlot; for she had covered her face.²⁹ Now because she had covered her face did he think her to be a harlot? Rather, what it means is that because she had covered her face in the house of her father-in-law and he did not know her, she was rewarded by having among her descendants kings and prophets; kings from David, and prophets — as R. Levi said, 'It is a tradition handed down to us from our ancestors that Amoz and Amaziah were brothers', and it is written, The vision of Isaiah son of Amoz.³⁰

R. Levi further said: We have a tradition from our ancestors that the ark took up no room.³¹ It has been taught to the same effect: 'The ark which Moses made had round it an [empty] space of ten cubits on every side'. Now it is written, And in front of the Sanctuary was twenty cubits in length [and twenty cubits in breadth],³² and it is also written, And the wing of the one cherub was ten cubits and the wing of the other cherub was ten cubits.³³ Where then was the ark itself? We must therefore conclude that it stood by a miracle [without occupying any room].³⁴

R. Jonathan prefaced his discourse on this section³⁵ with the text,³⁶ And I will rise against them, saith the Lord, and cut off from Babylon name and remnant', and offshoot and offspring, saith the Lord,³⁷ [which he expounded as follows]: 'Name' means script; 'remnant is language';³⁸ 'offshoot' is kingdom, and 'offspring' is Vashti.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle:³⁹ 'Instead of the thorn': instead of the wicked Haman who put himself up as an object of worship, as it is written, and upon all thorns and upon all brambles⁴⁰ 'shall come up the cypress': this is Mordecai who was called the chief of all spices, as it is said, And do thou take to thee the chief spices, flowing myrrh,⁴¹ which [last words] we translate [in Aramaic], mar deki.⁴² 'Instead of the brier': instead of the wicked Vashti, the daughter of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar who burnt the ceiling of the house of the Lord; as it is written, its top was gold,⁴³ 'the myrtle shall come up': this is the virtuous Esther who is called Hadassah,⁴⁴ as it is said, And he brought up Hadassah.⁴⁵ 'And it shall be to the Lord for a name': this is the reading of the Megillah; 'and for an everlasting sign which shall not be cut off': these are the days of Purim.

R. Joshua b. Levi introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: And it shall come to pass that as the Lord rejoiced over you to do you good, so the Lord will rejoice over you to cause you to perish.⁴⁶ Now does the Holy One, blessed be He, rejoice in the downfall of the wicked? Is it not written, as they went out before the army, and say, Give thanks unto the Lord, for his mercy endureth for ever',⁴⁷ and R. Johanan said, Why are the words 'for he is good' omitted from this thanksgiving? Because the Holy One, blessed be He, does not rejoice in the downfall of the wicked? And R. Johanan further said, What is the meaning of the verse, And one came not near the other all the night?⁴⁸ The ministering angels wanted to chant their hymns, but the Holy One, blessed be He, said, The work of my hands is being drowned in the sea, and shall you chant hymns? — R. Eleazar replied: He himself does not rejoice, but he makes others rejoice. This is indicated also by the text, which writes yasis and not yasus;⁴⁹ which proves [what we said].

R. Abba b. Kahana introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: For to the man that is good in his sight he giveth wisdom, and knowledge and joy.⁵⁰ This, he said, is the righteous Mordecai. But to the sinner He giveth the task, to gather and to heap up;⁵⁰ this is Haman. That he may leave it to him, that is good in the sight of God;⁵⁰ this refers to Mordecai and Esther, as it is written, And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.⁵¹

Rabbah b. 'Ofra introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: And I will set my throne in Elam, and will destroy from thence king and princes.⁵² 'King' indicates Vashti, and 'princes' indicates Haman and his ten sons.

R. Dimi b. Isaac introduced his discourse on this section with the following text:

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 11a

For we are bondmen; yet hath God not forsaken us in our bondage, but hath extended mercy unto us in the sight of the kings of Persia.¹ When was this? In the time of Haman. R. Hanina b. Papa introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads, we went through fire and through water:² through fire in the days of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, and through water in the days of Pharaoh. But thou didst bring us out into abundance,² in the days of Haman.

R. Johanan introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: He hath remembered his mercy and his faithfulness to the house of Israel, all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our Lord.³ When did all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our Lord? In the days of Mordecai and Esther.⁴

Resh Lakish introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: As a roaring lion and a ravenous bear, so is a wicked ruler over a poor people.⁵ 'A roaring lion': this is the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, of whom it is written, A lion is gone up from his thicket.⁶ 'A ravenous bear': this is Ahasuerus, of whom it is written, And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear',⁷ and R. Joseph learnt: These are the Persians, who eat and drink like bears, and are coated with flesh like bears, and are hairy like bears, and can never keep still like bears.⁸ 'A wicked ruler': this is Haman. 'Over a poor people': this is Israel, who are poor in [the observance of] precepts.

R. Eleazar introduced his discourse on this with the following text: By slothfulness he that lays beams⁹ becomes poor [yimak], and through idleness of the hands the house leaketh.¹⁰ Through the slothfulness in which Israel indulged, not busying themselves with the Torah, the enemy of¹¹ the Holy One, blessed be He, became poor. The meaning of 'mak' is poor, as it says, And if he is too mak for thy valuation,¹² and mekoreh means only the Holy One, blessed be He, as it says, Who layest the beams [ha-mekareh] of thy upper chambers in the waters.¹³

R. Nahman b. Isaac introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: A Song of Ascents: If it had not been for the Lord who was for us, let Israel now say If it had not been the Lord who was for us when a man¹⁴ rose up against us¹⁵ — ‘a man’ and not a king.¹⁶

Raba introduced his discourse on this section from here: When the righteous are increased the people rejoice, but when the wicked beareth rule the people sigh.¹⁷ ‘When the righteous are increased the people rejoice’ — this is illustrated by Mordecai and Esther, as it is written, and the city of Shushan shouted and was glad.¹⁸ ‘But when the wicked beareth rule the people sigh’ — this is illustrated by Haman, as it is written, but the city of Shushan was perplexed.¹⁹ R. Mattenah made his introduction²⁰ from this verse: For what great nation is there that hath God so nigh to them.²¹ R. Ashi made it from this verse: Or hath God assayed etc.²²

And it came to pass [wa-yehi] in the days of Ahasuerus²³ etc. Rab said, [The word wa-yehi is equivalent to] ‘wai and hi’ [woe and mourning]. With reference to this it is written, and there ye shall sell yourselves unto your enemies for bondmen and for bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.²⁴

Samuel quoted: I did not reject them, neither did I abhor them to destroy them utterly.²⁵ ‘I did not reject them’ in the days of the Greeks; ‘neither did I abhor them’ — in the days of Nebuchadnezzar;²⁶ ‘to destroy them utterly’ — in the days of Haman; ‘and to break my covenant with them’ — in the days of the Persians;²⁷ ‘for I am the Lord their God’ — in the days of Gog and Magog.²⁸ In a Baraitha It was taught: ‘I have not rejected them’ — in the days of the Chaldeans, when I raised up for them Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah; ‘neither did I abhor them’ — in the days of the Greeks, when I raised up for them Simeon the Righteous and Hasmonai and his sons, and Mattathias the High Priest;²⁹ ‘to destroy them utterly’ — in the days of Haman, when I raised up for them Mordecai and Esther; ‘to break my covenant with them’ — in the days of the Persians,³⁰ when I raised up for them the members of the house of Rabbi and the Sages of the various generations. ‘For I am the Lord their God’ — in the time to come, when no nation or people³¹ will be able to subject them.

R. Levi introduced [his discourse] from this verse: But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land before you.³² R. Hiyya introduced [his discourse] from this verse: And it shall come to pass that as I thought to do unto them, so will I do unto you.³³

Ahasuerus: Rab said: He was [as his name implies], the brother of the head³⁴ and the counterpart of the head — ‘The brother of the head’: the brother of Nebuchadnezzar the wicked who was called head, as it is written, Thou art the head of gold.³⁵ ‘The counterpart of the head’: the one slew, the other sought to slay; the one laid waste, the other sought to lay waste, as it is written, And in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, wrote they an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.³⁶ Samuel said that [as his name indicates], the face of Israel was blackened³⁷ in his days like the sides of a pot. R. Johanan said that [his name indicates that] everyone who thought of him said ‘alas for my head’.³⁸ R. Hanina said, [it indicates that] all became poor³⁹ in his days, as it says, And the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute.⁴⁰

That [hu] is Ahasuerus. — [this means that] he persisted in his wickedness from beginning to end — [Similarly] this is [hu] Esau:⁴¹ the same in his wickedness from beginning to end. [Similarly], These are that [hu] Dathan and Abiram:⁴² the same in their wickedness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], this same [hu] king Ahaz:⁴³ the same in his wickedness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], Abram, the same [hu] is Abraham:⁴⁴ the same in his righteousness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], These are that [hu] Aaron and Moses:⁴⁵ the same in their righteousness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], And David, he was [hu] the smallest;⁴⁶ he persisted in his humility⁴⁷ from the beginning to the end; just as in his youth he humbled himself before anyone who was his superior in Torah, so in his kingship he humbled himself before anyone who was his superior in wisdom.

Who reigned: Rab said: this indicates that he raised himself to the throne.⁴⁸ Some interpret this to his credit, and some to his discredit. Some interpret it to his credit, holding that there was no other man equally fitted for the throne. Others interpret it to his discredit, holding that he was not fitted for the throne, but that he was very wealthy, and by means of lavish distribution of money rose to the throne.

From Hodu to Cush.⁴⁹ Rab and Samuel gave different interpretations of this. One said that Hodu is at one end of the world and Cush at the other, and the other said that Hodu and Cush adjoin one another, and that [the meaning is that] as he ruled over Hodu and Cush, so he ruled from one end of the world to the other. A similar difference occurs with reference to the words, For he had dominion over all the region on this side of the River, from Tiphseh even unto Gaza.⁵⁰ Here again Rab and Samuel interpreted differently. One said that Tiphseh is at one end of the world and Gaza at the other, and the other said that Tiphseh and Gaza are near one another [and that what is meant is that] as he [Solomon] ruled over Tiphseh and over Gaza, so he ruled over the whole world.⁵¹ Seven and twenty and a hundred provinces. R. Hisda said: At first he ruled over seven, then over twenty [more], and finally over a hundred [more]. But if you interpret thus, what of the verse, And the years of the life of Amram were seven and thirty and a hundred years?⁵² What lesson will you derive from that? — There is a difference here, because the whole text is superfluous. See now: it is written, from Hodu to Cush. Why then do I require, seven and twenty and a hundred provinces? You must conclude that it is for a special lesson .

Our Rabbis taught: Three [potentates] ruled over the whole globe,⁵³ namely, Ahab, Ahasuerus and Nebuchadnezzar.⁵⁴ Ahab, as it is written, As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee etc.⁵⁵ Now if he was not king over them, how could he make them take an oath? Nebuchadnezzar, as it is written: And it shall come to pass that the nation and the kingdom which will not serve the same Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and will not put their neck under the yoke of the King of Babylon.⁵⁶ Ahasuerus, as we have pointed out above

(Mnemonic: Sh'S'D'K')¹ But are there no more? Is there not Solomon? — He did not retain his kingdom [till his death]. This is a sufficient answer for the one who holds that he was first a king and then a subject.² But for the one who holds that he was first a king, then a subject, and then a king again, what can we reply? — Solomon was in a different category, because he ruled over the denizens of the upper world³ as well as of the lower, as it says, And Solomon sat upon the throne of the Lord.⁴

But was there not Sennacherib, as it is written, Who are they among all the gods of these countries that have delivered their country out of my hand.⁵ — There was Jerusalem which he had not subdued.

But was there not Darius, as it is written, Then king Darius wrote unto all the peoples, nations and languages that dwell in all the earth, Peace be multiplied unto you?⁶ — There were the seven over which he did not rule, as it is written, It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom a hundred and twenty satraps.⁷ But there was Cyrus, of whom it is written, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdom of the earth hath the Lord given me?⁸ — There he was merely indulging in a boast.

In those days, when the king sat [on his throne].⁹ [How can this be] seeing that it says just afterwards, in the third year of his reign? — Raba said: What is meant by ‘when he sat’? After he began to feel secure. He reasoned thus: ‘Belshazar calculated and made a mistake; I have calculated and made no mistake’ — What is the meaning of this? — It is written, After seventy years are accomplished for Babylon I will remember you,¹⁰ and it is written, That He would accomplish for the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years.¹¹ He reckoned forty-five years of Nebuchadnezzar and twenty-three of Evilmerodach and two of his own, making seventy in all. He then brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them. And how do we know that Nebuchadnezzar reigned forty-five years? — As a Master has said: ‘They went into exile in the seventh year and they went into exile in the eighth year; they went into exile in the eighteenth year and they went into exile in the nineteenth year’ — [That is to say], in the seventh year after the subjection of Jehoiakim¹² they underwent the exile of Jeconiah, this being the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar.¹³ In the eighteenth year from the subjection of Jehoiakim¹⁴ they underwent the exile of Zedekiah, this being the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar,¹⁵ as a Master has said, In the first year [of his reign] he [Nebuchadnezzar] overthrew Nineveh; in the second year he conquered Jehoiakim¹⁶ and it is written, And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month in the seven and twentieth day of the month, that Evilmerodach King of Babylon, in the year of his reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah and brought him forth out of prison.¹⁷ Eight and thirty-seven make forty-five of Nebuchadnezzar. The twenty-three of Evilmerodach we know from tradition. These with two of his own¹⁸ make seventy. He [Belshazar] said to himself, Now of a surety they will not be redeemed. So he brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them. Hence it was that Daniel said to him, but thou hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven, and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee.¹⁹ It is further written, In that night Belshazar the Chaldean king was slain,²⁰ and it is written, And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about threescore and two years old.²¹ He [Ahasuerus] said: He calculated and made a mistake,²² I will calculate and make no mistake. Is it written, ‘seventy years for the kingdom of Babylon?’²³ It is written, seventy years for Babylon. What is meant by Babylon? The exile of Babylon — How many years [is this reckoning] less [than the other]? Eight.²⁴ So in place of them he inserted one of Belshazar,²⁵ five of Darius and Cyrus,²⁶ and two of his own, which made seventy — When he saw that seventy had been completed and they were not redeemed, he brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them — Then the Satan came and danced among them and slew Vashti.

But he reckoned correctly? — He also made a mistake, since he ought to have reckoned from the destruction of Jerusalem.²⁷ Granted all this, how many years are short? Eleven. How long did he reign? Fourteen.²⁸ Consequently in the fourteenth year of his reign he ought to have rebuilt the Temple. Why then is it written, Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem?²⁹ — Raba replied: The years were not full ones.³⁰

It has been taught to the same effect: There was yet another year left to Babylon,¹ and Darius arose and completed it.

Raba said: Daniel also made a mistake in this calculation, as it is written, In the first year of his reign, I Daniel meditated in the books [etc.].² From his use of the words 'I meditated' we can infer that he [at first] made a mistake.

All the same, there is a contradiction between the texts [is there not]? It is written [in one], when there are accomplished for Babylon,³ and it is written [in the other], for the desolations of Jerusalem? — Raba replied: [The first term] was for visitation [pekidah] only, and this was fulfilled, as it is written, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord, the God of the heavens, given to me, and he hath charged [pakad] me to build him a house in Jerusalem.⁴

R. Nahman son of R. Hisda gave the following exposition. What is the meaning of the verse, Thus saith the Lord to his anointed to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden.⁵ Now was Cyrus the Messiah? Rather what it means is: The Holy One, blessed be He, said to the Messiah: I have a complaint on thy behalf against Cyrus.⁶ I said, He shall build my house and gather my exiles,⁷ and he [merely] said, Whosoever there is among you of all his people, let him go up.

The army of Persia and Media, the nobles. And elsewhere it is written, [The chronicles] of the kings of Media and Persia.⁸ [How is this]? — Raba replied: They [the Medes and Persians] made a stipulation with one another, saying, if we supply the kings, you will supply the Governors, and if you supply the kings we will supply the Governors.

When he showed the riches of his glorious [tif'ereth] kingdom. R. Jose b. Hanina said: This shows that he arrayed himself in priestly robes. It is written here, 'the riches of his glorious [tif'ereth] kingdom', and it is written elsewhere [in connection with the priestly garments], for splendour and for glory, [tif'ereth].⁹

And when these days were fulfilled.¹⁰ Rab and Samuel interpreted this differently. One said he was a clever king, and the other said that he was a foolish king. The one who held he was a clever king said that he did well in entertaining¹¹ his distant subjects first, because he could win over the inhabitants of his own city any time he wished. The one who held that he was foolish says that he ought to have entertained the inhabitants of his metropolis first, so that if the others rebelled against him, these would have supported him.

R. Simon b. Yohai was asked by his disciples, Why were the enemies of Israel¹² in that generation deserving of extermination? He said to them: Do you answer. They said: Because they partook of the feast of that wicked one.¹³ [He said to them]: If so, those in Susa should have been killed, not those in other parts?¹⁴ They then said, Give your answer. He said to them: It was because they bowed down to the image.¹⁵ They said to him, Did God then show them favouritism?¹⁶ He replied: They only pretended to worship,¹⁷ and He also only pretended to exterminate them; and so it is written, For he afflicted not from his heart.¹⁸ In the court of the garden of the king's palace.¹⁹ Rab and Samuel gave different interpretations of this — One said that those who had the entree²⁰ of the court were [entertained] in the court, and those who had the entree of the garden in the garden, and those who had the entree of the palace in the palace. The other said: He first put them in the court, and it did not hold them — Then he took them into the garden and it did not hold them; and finally he had to take them into the palace, and he found room for them. In a Baraitha it was taught: He took them into the court and opened two doors for them, one into the garden and one into the palace.

White [hur], fine cotton [karpas] and blue.²¹ What is hur? — Rab said, fine lace-work. Samuel said: He spread for them, carpets of white silk. Karpas: R. Jose b. Haninah said: [this means] cushions of velvet.²²

Upon silver rods and pillars of marble; the couches were of gold and silver.²¹ It has been taught: R. Judah said: Silver for some and gold for others, according to their degree. Said R. Nehemiah to him: If that were so, there would have been²³ jealousy at the banquet! No; the couches themselves were of silver and their feet of gold.

Green [bahat] and white marble.²¹ R. Assi said: [This means] stones that flash back at their owner;²⁴ and so it says, as the stones of a crown, glittering over his land.²⁵

And shell [dar] and onyx marble [sohareth].²¹ Rab said: This means rows [dari] upon rows.²⁶ Samuel says: There is a precious stone in the seaports called darah. He put it in the midst of the guests, and it lit up the place as at midday [Sahara].²⁷ In the school of R. Ishmael it was taught: It means that he gave a remission of taxes [deror] to all who dealt in merchandise [sehorah].

And they gave them drink in vessels of gold, the vessels being diverse [shonim] one from another.²⁸ It should have said, in different vessels? — Raba said: A bath kol²⁹ went forth and said to them, Your predecessors³⁰ met their end on account of vessels, and yet you use them again

And royal wine in abundance.²⁸ Rab said: This teaches that each one was given to drink wine older³² than himself.

And the drinking was according to law.³³ What is meant by ‘according to law’? — R. Hanan said in the name of R. Meir: According to the law of the Torah. Just as according to the law of the Torah the [quantity of] food exceeds the drink,³⁴ so in the feast of that wicked one there was more food than drink.

None did compel.³⁵ R. Eleazar said: This teaches that each one was given to drink from the wine of his own country.³⁵

That they should do according to every man's [ish, ish] pleasure.³³ Raba said: This means that they should do according to the will of Mordecai and Haman.³⁶ Mordecai [is called ‘man’] as it is written, A Jewish man;³⁷ and Haman, [as it is written], a man, an adversary and an enemy.³⁸

Also Vashti the queen made a feast for the women in the royal house.³⁹ It should have said, ‘the women's house’? — Raba said: Both of them [Ahasuerus and Vashti] had an immoral purpose. This bears out the popular saying, He with large pumpkins and his wife with small pumpkins.

On the seventh day, where the king's heart was merry with wine.¹ Was then his heart not merry with wine until then? — Rab said: The seventh day was Sabbath, when Israel eat and drink. They begin with discourse on the Torah and with words of thanksgiving [to God]. But the nations of the world, the idolaters, when they eat and drink only begin with words of frivolity. And so at the feast of that wicked one. Some said, The Median women are the most beautiful, and others said, The Persian women are the most beautiful. Said Ahasuerus to them, The vessel that I use is neither Median nor Persian, but Chaldean. Would you like to see her? They said, Yes, but it must be naked — (For man receives measure for measure.² This [remark] teaches you that the wicked Vashti used to take the daughters of Israel and strip them naked and make them work on Sabbath.³ So it is written, After these things when the wrath of the king Ahasuerus abated, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what was decided against her.⁴ As she had done so it was decreed against her.)

And the queen Vashti refused.⁵ Let us see. She was immodest, as the Master said above, that both of them had an immoral purpose. Why then would she not come? — R. Jose b. Hanina said: This teaches that leprosy broke out on her. In a Baraitha it was taught that Gabriel came and fixed a tail on her.⁶

And the king was very angry,⁵ Why was he so enraged? — Raba said: She sent him back answer: Thou son of my father's steward,⁷ my father drank wine in the presence of a thousand,⁸ and did not get drunk, and that man has become senseless with his wine. Straightway, his wrath burnt within him.⁵

And the king said to the wise men.⁹ Who are the wise men? — The Rabbis. Who knew the times:⁹ that is, who knew how to intercalate years and fix new moons. He said to them: Try her for me. They said [to themselves]: What shall we do? If we tell him to put her to death, to-morrow he will become sober¹⁰ again and he will require her from us. Shall we tell him to let her go? She will lose all her respect for royalty. So they said to him: From the day when the Temple was destroyed and we were exiled from our land, counsel has been taken from us and we do not know how to judge capital cases. Go to Ammon and Moab¹¹ who have remained in their places like wine that has settled on its lees. They spoke to him thus with good reason, since it is written, Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he hath settled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity. Therefore his taste remaineth in him, and his scent is not changed.¹² Straightway [he did so, as we read], and the next unto him was Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish [etc.].¹³ R. Levi said: Every name in this verse contains a reference to the sacrifices. Thus, Carshena: the ministering angels said to the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, did they ever offer before thee lambs of the first year [karim bene shanah] as Israel offered before Thee? Shethar: did they ever offer before Thee two pigeons [shte torim]? Admatha: did they ever build before Thee an altar of earth [adamah]? Tarshish: did they ever minister before Thee in the priestly garments, of which it is written [that they contained] a beryl [tarshish], an onyx and a jasper?¹⁴ Meres: did they ever stir [mersu] the blood [of the sacrifice] before Thee? Marsena: did they ever stir [mersu] the meal-offerings before Thee? Memucan: did they ever prepare [hekinu] a table before Thee?

And Memucan said.¹⁵ A Tanna taught: Memucan is the same as Haman, And why was he called Memucan? Because he was destined [mukan] for punishment. R. Kahana said: From here we see that an ordinary man always pushes¹⁶ himself in front.¹⁷

That every man should bear rule in his house.¹⁸ Raba said: Had it not been for these first letters, there would have been left no shred or remnant of the enemies of Israel.¹⁹ People said: What does he mean by sending us word that every man should bear rule in his own house? Of course he should! Even a weaver in his own house must be commander!²⁰

And let the king appoint officers.²¹ Rabbi said: What is the meaning of the verse, Even prudent man dealeth with forethought, but a fool unfoldeth folly?²² 'Every prudent man dealeth with forethought': this applies to David, of whom, it is written, Wherefore his servants said unto him, Let there be sought for my lord the king a young virgin:²³ every one who had a daughter brought her.²⁴ But a fool unfoldeth folly': this applies to Ahasuerus, of whom it is written, and let the king appoint officers: whoever had a daughter hid her.²⁵

There was a certain Jew in Shushan the castle, etc. a Benjamite.²⁶ What is the point of this verse? If it is to give the pedigree of Mordecai, it should trace it right back to Benjamin!²⁷ [Why then were only these specified?] — A Tanna taught: All of them are designations [of Mordecai]. 'The son of Jair' means, the son who enlightened [he'ir] the eyes of Israel by his prayer. 'The son of Shimei means, the son to whose prayer God hearkened [shama']. 'The son of Kish' indicates that he knocked [hikkish] at the gates of mercy and they were opened to him. He is called 'a Jew' [yehudi] which implies that he came from [the tribe of] Judah, and he is called 'a Benjamite', which implies that he came from Benjamin. [How is this]? — R. Nahman said: He was a man of distinguished character.²⁸ Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: His father was from Benjamin and his mother from Judah. The Rabbis, however, said: The tribes competed with one another [for him]. The tribe of Judah said: I am responsible for the birth of Mordecai, because David did not kill Shimei the son of Gera, and the tribe of Benjamin said: He is actually descended from me. Raba said: The community of Israel explained [the two designations] in the opposite²⁹ sense: 'See what a Judean did to me and how a Benjamite repaid me!' What a Judean did to me viz., that David did not kill Shimei from whom was descended Mordecai who provoked Haman. 'And how a Benjamite repaid me', viz., that Saul did not slay Agag from whom was descended Haman who oppressed Israel. R. Johanan said: He did indeed come from Benjamin. Why then was he called 'a Jew'? Because he repudiated idolatry. For anyone who repudiates idolatry is called 'a Jew', as it is written, There are certain Jews¹ etc.

R. Simon b. Pazzi once introduced an exposition of the Book of Chronicles as follows: 'All thy words are one,² and we know how to find their inner meaning'. [It is written], And his wife the Jewess bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Socho, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah, and these are the sons of Bithya the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took.³ Why was she [the daughter of Pharaoh] called a Jewess? Because she repudiated idolatry, as it is written, And the daughter of Pharaoh went down to bathe in the river,⁴ and R. Johanan, [commenting on this,] said that she went down to cleanse herself⁵ from the idols of her father's house. 'Bore': But she only brought him [Moses] up? — This tells us that if anyone brings up an orphan boy or girl in his house, the Scripture accounts it as if he had begotten him. 'Jered': this is Moses. Why was he called Jered? Because manna came down [yarad] for Israel in his days.⁶ 'Gedor': [he was so called] because he fenced in [gadar] the breaches of Israel. 'Heber', because he joined [hiber] Israel to their Father in heaven. 'Socho', because he was like a sheltering booth [sukkah] for Israel. 'Jekuthiel', because Israel trusted in God [kiwu le'el] in his days. 'Zanoah', because he made Israel abandon [hizniah] their iniquities. 'Father of', 'father of', 'father of': he was a father in Torah, a father in wisdom, a father in prophecy. 'These are the sons of Bithya whom Mered took'. Was Mered his name? Was not Caleb his name?⁷ — The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Let Caleb who rebelled [marad] against the plan of the spies come and take the daughter of Pharaoh who rebelled against the idols of her father's house.

Who had been carried away from Jerusalem.⁸ Raba said: [We understand this to mean] that he went into exile of his own accord.⁹

And he brought up Hadassah.¹⁰ She is called Hadassah¹¹ and she is called Esther. It has been taught: Esther was her proper name. Why then was she called Hadassah? After the designation of the righteous who are called myrtles,¹² for so it says, And he stood among the myrtle trees.¹³ R. Judah says: Hadassah was her name — Why then was she called Esther? Because she concealed [mastereth] the facts about herself, as it says, Ester did not make known her people or her kindred.¹⁴ R. Nehemiah says: Hadassah was her name. Why then was she called Esther? All peoples called her so after Istahar.¹⁵ Ben ‘Azzai said: Esther was neither too tall nor too short, but of medium size, like a myrtle. R. Joshua b. Korha said: Esther was sallow,¹⁶ but endowed with great charm.¹⁷

For she had neither father nor mother. [And it continues] and when her father and mother died.¹⁰ Why these last words?¹⁸ — R. Aha said: When her mother became pregnant with her, her father died; when she was born, her mother died.

And when her father and mother died, Mordecai took her for his own daughter.¹⁹ A Tanna taught in the name of R. Meir: Read not ‘for a daughter’ [le-bath], but ‘for a house’ [le-bayith].²⁰ Similarly it says: But the poor man had nothing save one little ewe lamb, which he had brought up and reared; and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter.²¹ Because it lay in his bosom, was it like a daughter to him? Rather what it means is like a wife; so here, it means a wife.

And the seven maidens who were meet to be given to her.²² Raba said: [They were seven so that] she could count the days of the week by them.

And he changed²³ her and her maidens. Rab said: [This means that] he gave her Jewish food to eat. Samuel, however, said, it means that he gave her chinses of pork²⁴ while R. Johanan said that he gave her pulse, and so it says, So the steward took away their food and gave them pulse.²⁵

Six months with the oil of myrrh.²⁶ What is the oil of myrrh? R. Hiyya b. Abba said, Satchet;²⁷ R. Huna said, Oil from olives not a third grown. It has been taught: R. Judah says that anpikinun²⁸ is oil of olives not a third grown. Why is it used for smearing? Because it removes hair and makes the skin soft.

In the evening she went and on the morrow she returned.²⁹ From the discreditable account of that wicked man we can learn something to his credit, namely, that he did not perform his marital office by day.

And Esther obtained favour.³⁰ R. Eleazar said: This informs us that every man took her for a member of his own people.

So Esther was taken unto king Ahasuerus into his house royal in the tenth month, which is the month Tebeth:³¹ the month when body warms up body.³² And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained grace and favour in his sight more than all the virgins.³³ Rab said: If he wanted to find in her the taste of a virgin he found it; if the taste of a married woman, he found it.

Then the king made a great feast.³⁴ He made a feast for her, and she did not tell him [who she was]. He remitted taxes,³⁵ and she did not tell him. He sent gifts,³⁶ and she [still] did not tell him.

And when the virgins were gathered together the second time, etc.³⁷ He went and took counsel of Mordecai who said, The way to rouse a woman is to make her jealous;³⁸ and even so she did not tell.

R. Eleazar said: What is the meaning of the verse,

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 13b

He withdraweth not his eyes from the righteous?¹ In reward for the modesty displayed by Rachel, she was granted to number among her descendants Saul; and in reward for the modesty displayed by Saul, he was granted to number among his descendants Esther.² What was the modesty displayed by Rachel? — As it is written: And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother.³ Now was he her father's brother? Was he not the son of her father's sister? What it means is this: He said to her, Will you marry me? She replied, Yes, but my father is a trickster, and he will outwit you.⁴ He replied, I am his brother in trickery. She said to him, Is it permitted to the righteous to indulge in trickery? He replied. Yes: with the pure thou dost show thyself pure and with the crooked thou dost show thyself subtle.⁵ He said to her, What is his trickery? She replied : I have a sister older than I am , and he will not let me marry before her. So he gave her certain tokens. When night came, she said to herself, Now my sister will be put to shame. So she handed over the tokens to her. So it is written, And it came to pass in the morning that, behold, it was Leah.⁶ Are we to infer from this that up to now she was not Leah? What it means is that on account of the tokens which Rachel gave to Leah he did not know till then. Therefore she was rewarded by having Saul among her descendants — What modesty did Saul display? — As it is written, But concerning the matter of the kingdom whereof Samuel spoke he told him not.⁷ He was therefore rewarded by having Esther among his descendants.

R. Eleazar further said: When the Holy One, blessed be He, assigns greatness to a man, he assigns it to his sons and his sons' sons for all generations, as it says, [With kings on the throne;] He setteth them for ever and they are exalted.⁸ If, however, he becomes arrogant, God humiliates him, as it says. And if they be bound in fetters etc.⁹

For Esther did the commandment of Mordecai.¹⁰ R. Jeremiah said: [This means] that she used to show the blood of her impurity to the Sages.

Like as when she was brought up with him.¹⁰ Rabbah b. Lema said in the name of Rab: [This means] that she used to rise from the lap of Ahasuerus and bathe and sit in the lap of Mordecai.¹¹

In those days, while Mordecai sat in the king's gate, Bigthan and Teresh were wroth.¹² R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: The Holy One, blessed be He, [once] caused a master to be wroth with his servants in order to fulfil the desire of a righteous man, namely Joseph, as it says, And there was with us there a young man, a Hebrew, etc.;¹³ and servants with their master in order to perform a miracle for a righteous man, namely, Mordecai, as it is written, 'And the thing was known to Mordecai etc. ' R. Johanan said: Bigthan and Teresh were two Tarseans¹⁴ and conversed in the Tarsean language. They said: From the day this woman came we have been able to get no sleep.¹⁵ Come, let us put poison in the dish so that he will die. They did not know that Mordecai was one of those who had seats in the Chamber of Hewn Stone,¹⁶ and that he understood seventy languages.¹⁷ Said the other to him, But are not my post and your post different?¹⁸ He replied: I will keep guard at my post and at yours. So it is written, And when inquisition was made, he was found,¹⁹ that is to say, they were not [both] found at their posts.

After these things.²⁰ After what? — Raba said: After God had created a healing for the blow [which was about to fall]. For Resh Lakish has said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not smite Israel unless He has created for them a healing beforehand, as it says . When I have healed Israel, then is the iniquity of Ephraim uncovered.²¹ Not so, however, with the other nations: He smites them first, and then creates for them a healing, as it says: The Lord will smite Egypt, smiting and healing.²²

But it seemed contemptible in his eyes to lay hands on Mordecai alone.²³ At first he aimed at 'Mordecai alone', then at 'the people of Mordecai' — and who are these? The Rabbis; and finally at 'all the Jews'.

They cast pur, that is the lot.²⁴ A Tanna taught: When the lot fell on the month of Adar, he rejoiced greatly. saying, The lot has fallen for me on the month in which Moses died. He did not know, however, that Moses died on the seventh of Adar and was born on the sixth of Adar.

There is one people.²⁵ Raba said: There never was a traducer so skillful as Haman. He said to Ahasuerus, Come, let us destroy them. He replied: I am afraid of their God, lest He do to me as He did to my predecessors. He replied: They are 'negligent'²⁶ of the precepts. He said, There are Rabbis among them.²⁷ He replied. They are 'one people'.²⁸ Should you say that I will make a void²⁹ in your kingdom, [I reply], they are 'scattered abroad among the peoples'. Should you say. There is some profit in them, I reply, 'they are dispersed' [nifredu], like an isolated bough [peridah] that does not bear fruit. Should you say that they occupy one province, I reply, 'they are in all the provinces of thy kingdom'. 'Their laws are diverse from those of every other people': they do not eat of our food, nor do they marry our women nor give us theirs in marriage, 'Neither keep they the king's laws', since they evade taxes the whole year³⁰ by their loitering and sauntering.³¹ 'Therefore it profiteth not the king to suffer them', because they eat and drink and despise the throne. For if a fly falls into the cup of one of them, he throws it out and drinks the wine, but if my lord the king were to touch his cup, he would dash it on the ground and not drink from it. 'If it please the king, let it be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver': Resh Lakish said: It was well known beforehand to Him at whose word the world came into being that Haman would one day pay shekels for the destruction of Israel. Therefore He anticipated his shekels with those of Israel. And so we have learnt: 'On the first of Adar³² proclamation is made regarding the shekalim³³ and the mixed seeds'.³⁴

And the king said to Haman, The silver is given to thee and the people also, to do with them as it seemeth good to thee.³⁵ R. Abba said:

Talmud - Mas. Megillah 14a

To what can we compare Ahasuerus and Haman at this point? To two men one of whom had a mound in the middle of his field and the other a ditch in the middle of his field. The owner of the ditch said, I wish I could buy that mound, and the owner of the mound said, I wish I could buy that ditch. One day they met, and the owner of the ditch said, Sell me your mound, whereupon the other replied, Take it for nothing, and I shall be only too glad.¹

And the king removed his ring.² R. Abba b. Kahana said: This removal of the ring was more efficacious than forty-eight prophets³ and seven prophetesses⁴ who prophesied to Israel; for all these were not able to turn Israel to better courses, and the removal of the ring did turn them to better courses.⁵

Our Rabbis taught: 'Forty-eight prophets and seven prophetesses prophesied to Israel, and they neither took away from nor added aught to what is written in the Torah save only the reading of the Megillah'. How did they derive it [from the Torah]? — R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of R. Joshua b. Korha: If for being delivered from slavery to freedom we chant a hymn of praise, should we not do so all the more for being delivered from death to life? If that is the reason we should say Hallel⁶ also? — [We do not do so] because Hallel is not said for a miracle which occurred outside of the land of Israel. How then do we come to say it for the Exodus from Egypt which was a miracle which occurred outside the land of Israel? — As it has been taught: 'Until they entered the land of Israel, all lands were counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them] — After they had entered the land, other countries were not counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them]. R. Nahman said: The reading of the Megillah is equivalent to Hallel. Raba said:⁷ There is a good reason in that case [of the Exodus from Egypt] because it says [in the Hallel], Praise ye O servants of the Lord, who are no longer servants of Pharaoh — But can we say in this case, Praise ye, servants of the Lord and not servants of Ahasuerus? We are still servants of Ahasuerus! Whether on the view of Raba⁸ or on the view of R. Nahman,⁹ there is a difficulty in what has been taught [above], that 'after they had entered the land, other countries were not counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them]'? — When the people went into exile, the other countries became proper as at first.

Were there no more prophets than these [forty-eight]? — Is it not written, How there was a man from Ramathaim-Zophim,¹⁰ [which we interpret], one of two hundred prophets [zophim]¹¹ who prophesied to Israel? — There were actually very many, as it has been taught, 'Many prophets arose for Israel, double the number of [the Israelites] who came out of Egypt', only the prophecy which contained a lesson for¹² future generations was written down, and that which did not contain such a lesson was not written.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: This [Ramathaim-Zophim] means, a man who came from two heights which faced one another.¹³ R. Hanin said: It means, a man who came from ancestors of the most exalted position.¹⁴ And who were they? The sons of Korah, as it says, And the sons of Korah did not die.¹⁵ A Tanna taught in the name of our Teacher:¹⁶ A special place was assigned¹⁷ to them in Gehinnom and they stood on it.

'Seven prophetesses'. Who were these? — Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Hulda and Esther. 'Sarah', as it is written, The father of Milkah and the father of Yiscah',¹⁸ and R. Isaac said [on this]. Yiscah is Sarah; and why was she called Yiscah? Because she discerned [sakethah] by means of the holy spirit, as it is said, In all that Sarah saith unto thee, hearken to her voice.¹⁹ Another explanation is: because all gazed [sakin] at her beauty. 'Miriam', as it is written, And Miriam the prophetess the sister of Aaron.²⁰ Was she only the sister of Aaron and not the sister of Moses? — R. Nahman said in the name of Rab: [She was so called] because she prophesied when she was the sister of Aaron [only]²¹ and said, My mother is destined to bear a son who will save Israel. When he was born the whole house was filled with light, and her father arose and kissed her on the head, saying, My daughter, thy prophecy has been fulfilled. But when they threw him into the river her father arose and tapped her on the head, saying, Daughter, where is thy prophecy? So it is written, And his sister stood afar off to know;²² to know, [that is,] what would be with the latter part of her prophecy. 'Deborah', as it is written, Now Deborah a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth.²³ What is meant by a woman of flames²³ ? [She was so called] because she used to make wicks for the Sanctuary. And she sat under a palm tree²⁴ Why just a palm tree? — R. Simeon b. Abishalom said: [To avoid] privacy.²⁵ Another explanation is: Just as a palm tree has only one heart, so Israel in that generation had only one heart devoted to their Father in heaven. 'Hannah', as it is written, And Hannah prayed and said, My heart exulteth in the Lord, my horn is exalted in the Lord.²⁶ [She said], my horn is exalted', and not, my cruse is exalted', thus implying that the royalty of [the hour of] David and Solomon, who were anointed from a horn,²⁷ would be prolonged,²⁸ but the royalty of [the house of] Saul and Jehu,²⁹ who were anointed with a cruse, would not be prolonged.

There is none holy as the Lord, for there is none beside thee.³⁰ R. Judah b. Menashia said: Read not bilteka, 'beside thee'], but read lebalotheka ['to survive thee']. For the nature of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not like that of flesh and blood. It is the nature of flesh and blood to be survived by its works, but God survives His works. Neither is there any rock [zur] like our God.³⁰ There is no artist [zayyar] like our God. A man draws a figure on a wall, but is unable to endow it with breath and spirit, inward parts and intestines. But the Holy One, blessed be He, fashions a form within a form and endows it with breath and spirit, inward parts and intestines.

'Abigail', as it is written, And it was so, as she rode on her ass and came down by the covert of the mountain.³¹ 'By the covert [sether] of the mountain'? It should say from the mountain'! — Rabbah b. Samuel said: It means that she came with reference to blood that came from the hidden parts [setharim]. She brought some blood and showed it to him.³² He said to her: Is blood to be shown by night? She replied: Are capital cases tried at night?³³ He said to her:

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 14b

He [Nabal] is a rebel against the king and no trial is necessary for him.¹ She replied; Saul is still alive, and your fame is not yet spread abroad in the world. Then he said to her: Blessed be thy discretion and blessed be thou, that hast kept me this day from bloodguiltiness.² The word damim [bloodguiltiness] is plural, to indicate two kinds of blood.³ The passage teaches that she bared her thigh⁴ and he went three parasangs by the light of it.⁵ He said, Listen to me. She replied, Let not this be a stumbling-block to thee.⁶ The word 'this' implies that something else would be, and what was that? The incident of Bathsheba; and so it was eventually.⁷ The soul of thy lord shall be bound up in the bundle of life.⁸ When she left him she said to him, and when the Lord shall have done good to my lord . . . then remember thy handmaid.⁹ R. Nahman said: This bears out the popular saying, While a woman talks she spins.¹⁰ Some adduce the saying: The goose stoops as it goes along, but its eyes peer afar.

'Hulda, as it is written, So Hilkiah the priest and Ahikam and Achbor etc.¹¹ But if Jeremiah was there,¹² how could she prophesy? — It was said in the school of Rab in the name of Rab: Hulda was a near relative of Jeremiah, and he did not object to her doing so. But how could Josiah himself pass over Jeremiah and send to her? — The members of the school of R. Shila replied, Because women are tender-hearted.¹³ R. Johanan said: Jeremiah was not there, as he had gone to bring back the ten tribes. Whence do we know that they returned? — Because it is written, For the seller shall not return to that which is sold.¹⁴ Now is it possible that after the Jubilee had ceased¹⁵ the prophet should prophesy that it will cease? The fact is that it teaches that Jeremiah brought them back.¹⁶ Josiah the son of Amon ruled over them, as it says, Then he said, What monument is that which I see? And the men of the city told him, It is the sepulchre of the man of God who came from Judah, and proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar in Beth-el.¹⁷ Now what connection is there between Josiah and the altar in Bethel?¹⁸ What it teaches therefore is that Josiah reigned over them. R. Nahman said: We learn it from here: Also, O Judah, there is a harvest appointed for thee, when I would turn the captivity of my people.¹⁹

'Esther,' as it is written, Now it came to pass on the third day that Esther clothed herself in royalty.²⁰ Surely it should say, 'royal apparel'? What it shows is that the holy spirit clothed her. It is written here, 'and she clothed', and it is written in another place. Then the spirit clothed Amasai, etc.²¹

R. Nahman said: Haughtiness does not befit women. There were two haughty women, and their names are hateful, one being called a hornet²² and the other a weasel.²³ Of the hornet it is written, And she sent and called Barak,²⁴ instead of going to him. Of the weasel it is written, Say to the man,²⁵ instead of 'say to the king'.

R. Nahman said: Hulda was a descendant of Joshua. It is written here [in connection with Hulda]. The son of Harhas,²⁶ and it is written in another place [in connection with Joshua], In Timnath-Heres.²⁷ R. 'Ena Saba cited the following in objection to R. Nahman: 'Eight prophets who were also priests were descended from Rahab the harlot, namely, Neriah, Baruch, Serayah, Mahseyah, Jeremiah, Hilkiah, Hanamel and Shallum.' R. Judah says: Hulda the prophetess was also one of the descendants of Rahab the harlot. [We know this] because it is written here 'the son of Tikvah' and it is written elsewhere [in connection with Rahab]. 'the line [tikvath] of scarlet thread'!²⁸ — He replied: 'Ena Saba'²⁹ — or, according to another report. 'Black bowl',³⁰ — the truth can be found by combining my statement and yours'.³¹ We must suppose that she became a proselyte and Joshua married her. But had Joshua any children? Is it not written, Nun his son, Joshua his son?³² — He had no sons, but he had daughters.

We admit that [some of] those [eight] mentioned above are expressly described [as prophets],¹ but how do we know that their fathers² [were prophets]? — From the dictum of ‘Ulla; for ‘Ulla said: Wherever a man's name is given along with that of his father as the author of a prophecy³ we know that he was a prophet son of a prophet. Where his own name is given but not that of his father, we know that he was a prophet but not the son of a prophet. Where his name and the name of his town are specified, we know that he came from that town — Where his name is given but not that of his town, we know that he was from Jerusalem — In a Baraitha it was stated: If nothing is known about the character of a man or of his ancestors,⁴ and the Scripture mentions any one of them in connection with a praiseworthy action, as for instance, The word of the Lord which came to Zephaniah son of Cushi son of Gedaliah,⁵ we may know that he was a righteous man son of a righteous man; and wherever the Scripture mentions any one of them in connection with a reprehensible action, as for instance, And it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael the son....of Elishama came,⁶ we may know that he was a wicked man son of a wicked man.

R. Nahman⁷ said: Malachi is the same as Mordecai. Why was he called Malachi? Because he was next to the king.⁸ The following was cited in objection to this: ‘Baruch the son of Neriah and Serayah the son of Mahseyah and Daniel and Mordecai, Bilshan, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi all prophesied in the second year of Darius’! — This is a refutation.

It has been taught: R. Joshua b. Korha said: Malachi is the same as Ezra, and the Sages say that Malachi was his proper name. R. Nahman said: There is good ground for accepting the view that Malachi was the same as Ezra. For it is written in the prophecy of Malachi, Judah hath dealt treacherously and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem, for Judah hath profaned the holiness of the Lord which he loveth and hath married the daughter of a strange God.⁹ And who was it that put away the strange women? Ezra, as it is written, And Shechaniah the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam answered and said unto Ezra: We have broken faith with our God and have married foreign women.¹⁰

The Rabbis taught: There have been four women of surpassing beauty in the world — Sarah, Rahab, Abigail and Esther. According to the one who says that Esther was fallow,¹¹ Vashti should be inserted in place of Esther.

Our Rabbis taught: Rahab inspired lust by her name; Jael by her voice; Abigail by her memory; Mical daughter of Saul by her appearance. R. Isaac said: Whoever says. ‘Rahab, Rahab’, at once has an issue. Said R. Nahman to him: I say Rahab, Rahab, and nothing happens to me! He replied: I was speaking of one who knows her and is intimate with her.

Now when Mordecai knew all that was done¹² [etc.]. What [was his cry]? — Rab said: He said, ‘Haman has raised himself above Ahasuerus’; Samuel said, ‘The upper king has prevailed over the lower king’.¹³

And the queen was exceedingly pained [wa-tithhalhal].¹⁴ What is the meaning of wa-tithhalhal?¹⁵ — Rab said: It means that she became menstruous; R. Jeremiah said that her bowels were loosened.

And Esther called Hatach.¹⁶ Rab said: Hatach is the same as Daniel. Why was he called Hatach? Because he was degraded [hataku-hu] from his position.¹⁷ Samuel said, Because all affairs of state were decided [nehtakim] by his voice.

To know what this was and why this was.¹⁸ R. Isaac said: She sent to him saying. Perhaps Israel have transgressed the five books of the Torah, in which is written, On this side and on this they were written.¹⁸

And they told Mordecai Esther's words.¹⁹ But Hatach did not go to him on this occasion.²⁰ This shows us that a recalcitrant answer²¹ need not be taken back [by the messenger].²²

Go, gather together all the Jews . . . which is not according to the custom.²³ R. Abba said: It will not be [she said] according to the custom of every other day. Till now [I have associated with Ahasuerus] under compulsion, but now I will do so of my own will.

And if I perish, I perish.²³ As I am lost to my father's house so I shall be lost to thee.²⁴

And Mordecai passed [wa-ya'abor].²⁵ Rab said: This indicates that he made the first day of Passover pass²⁶ as a fast day. Samuel said: It indicates that he crossed a stream [on that day].²⁷ Now it came to pass on the third day that Esther put on royalty.²⁸ Surely it should say, 'royal apparel'? — R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Hanina: This tells us that the holy spirit clothed her. It is written here, 'and she put on', and it is written elsewhere, And a spirit clothed Amasai.²⁹

R. Eleazar b. Hanina also said: Let not the blessing of an ordinary man be lightly esteemed in thine eyes, for two men great in their generation received from ordinary men blessings which were fulfilled in them. They were, David and Daniel. David was blessed by Araunah, as it is written, And Araunah said unto the king, The Lord thy God accept thee.³⁰ Daniel was blessed by Darius, as it is written 'Thy God whom thou servest continually, He will deliver thee.'³¹ R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Let not the curse of an ordinary man be lightly esteemed in thine eyes, because Abimelech cursed Sarah, saying, Behold he is to thee a covering of the eyes,³² and this was fulfilled in her seed, [as it says], And it came to pass that when Isaac was old his eyes were dim.³³

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Come and observe that the way of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not like the way of flesh and blood — The way of flesh and blood is that a man places a pot on the fire and then pours water into it, but God first puts in the water and then fixes the pot, to fulfil what is written, At the sound of his giving a multitude of waters in the heavens.³⁴

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Whoever reports a saying in the name of its originator brings deliverance to the world, as it says, And Esther told the king in the name of Mordecai.³⁵

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: When a righteous man dies, he dies only for his own generation.³⁶ It is with him as with a man who loses a pearl. Wherever it is, it remains a pearl,³⁷ and is lost only to its owner.

Yet all this availeth me nothing.³⁸ R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Hanina: Because he saw Mordecai sitting in the king's gate, was this any reason why he should say, 'All this availeth me nothing'? The explanation is in the dictum of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda said: The one came [to the court] as a counsellor³⁹ and the other as an envoy.¹ R. Papa said: They also called him, The slave that was sold for loaves of bread.²

Yet all this availeth me nought. This tells us that all the treasures of that wretch were engraved on his heart, and when he saw Mordecai sitting in the king's gate he said, Yet all this³ availeth me nought.

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: God will in the time to come be a crown on the head of every righteous man, as it is said, In that day shall the Lord of Hosts be for a crown of glory⁴ etc. What is meant by a 'crown of glory' [zebi] and a 'diadem [zefirath] of beauty'? For them that do his will [zibyono] and who await [mezapin] his glory. Shall He be so to all? [Not so]. since it says, 'unto the residue of [lish'ar] his people': that is, to whoever makes of himself a mere residue [shirayim]. 'And for a spirit of judgment': this indicates one who brings his inclination to trial.⁵ 'To him that sitteth in judgment': this indicates one who gives a true verdict on true evidence.⁶ 'And for strength': this indicates one who subdues his evil passions.⁷ 'That turn back the battle': this indicates those who thrust and parry⁸ in the war of the Torah. 'At the gate': these are the disciples of the wise who are early and late in synagogues and houses of study. Said the Attribute of Justice⁹ before the Holy One, blessed be He: Why this difference between these and the others? The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him: Israel busy themselves with the Torah, the other nations do not busy themselves with the Torah — He replied to Him, But these also reel through wine, and stagger through strong drink, they totter in judgment¹⁰ [paku pelilyah]; and 'paku' contains a reference to Gehinnom, as it says, that this shall be no stumbling-block [pukah] to thee;¹¹ and 'pelilyah' contains a reference to the judges, as it says. and he shall pay as the judges determine [bi-felilim].¹²

And stood in the inner court of the king's house.¹³ R. Levi said: When she reached the chamber of the idols, the Divine Presence left her. She said, My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me.¹⁴ Dost thou perchance punish the inadvertent offence¹⁵ like the presumptuous one, or one done under compulsion like one done willingly? Or is it because I called him 'dog', as it says. Deliver my soul from the sword, mine only one from the power of the dog?¹⁶ She straightway retracted and called him lion, as it says. Save me from the lion's mouth.¹⁷

And it was so when the king saw Esther the queen.¹⁸ R. Johanan said: Three ministering angels were appointed to help her at that moment; one to make her head¹⁹ erect, a second to endow her with charm²⁰ and a third to stretch the golden sceptre. How much [was it stretched]? — R. Jeremiah said: It was two cubits long and he made it twelve cubits — Some say, sixteen, and some again twenty-four. In a Baraitha it was stated, sixty. So too you find with the arm of the daughter of Pharaoh,²¹ and so you find with the teeth of the wicked, as it is written, Thou hast broken [shibarta] the teeth of the wicked,²² and Resh Lakish said in regard to this, Read not shibarta but shirbabta [Thou hast prolonged]. Rabbah b. 'Ofra said in the name of R. Eleazar who had it from his teacher, who had it from his teacher, [that the sceptre was stretched] two hundred [cubits].

And the king said to her, What wilt thou, queen Esther? For whatever thy request, even to the half of the kingdom, it shall be given thee.²³ 'Half the kingdom', but not the whole kingdom. and not a thing which would divide the kingdom.²⁴ What could that be? The building of the Temple.

Let the king and Haman come unto the banquet.²⁵ Our Rabbis taught: What was Esther's reason for inviting Haman? — R. Eleazar said, She set a trap for him, as it says. Let their table before them become a snare.²⁶ R. Joshua said: She learnt to do so from her father's house, as it says. If thine enemy be hungry give him bread to eat, etc.²⁷ R. Meir said, So that he should not form a conspiracy²⁸ and rebel. R. Judah said: So that they should not discover that she was a Jewess.²⁹ R. Nehemiah said: So that Israel should not say, We have a sister in the palace, and so should neglect³⁰ [to pray for] mercy. R. Jose said: So that he should always be at hand for her.³¹ R. Simeon b. Menassiah said: [She said], Perhaps the Omnipresent will notice³² and do a miracle for us. R. Joshua b. Korha said: [She said], I will encourage him so that he may be killed, both he and I.³³ Rabban Gamaliel said: [She said]. Ahasuerus is a changeable king.³⁴ Said R. Gamaliel: We still require the Modean,³⁵ as it has been taught: R. Eliezer of Modi'im says, She made the king jealous of him and she made the princes jealous of him. Rabbah said: [She said], Pride goeth before destruction.³⁶ Abaye and Raba gave the same reason, saying: [She said], With their poison I will prepare their feast.³⁷ Rabbah b. Abbuha came across Elijah and said to him, Which of these reasons prompted Esther to act as she did? He replied: [All] the reasons given by all the Tannaim and all the Amoraim.

And Haman recounted unto them the glory of his riches and the multitude of his children.³⁸ How many are indicated by 'the multitude of his children'? — Rab said: Thirty. Ten died, ten were hung, and ten were reduced to beggary. The Rabbis, however, said: Those who were reduced to beggary numbered seventy, as it says, They that were full [sebe'im] have hired themselves out for bread.³⁹ Read not sebe'im, but shib'im [seventy]. Rami b. Abba said: In all they were two hundred and eight, as it says, And the multitude [we-rob] of his sons. But we-rob in gematria⁴⁰ is two hundred and fourteen?⁴¹ — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: The word is written defectively.⁴²

On that night the sleep of the king was disturbed.⁴³ R. Tanhūn said: The sleep of the King of the Universe was disturbed. The Rabbis, however, say: Those above⁴⁴ were disturbed and those below⁴⁵ were disturbed. Raba said: It means literally ‘the sleep of king Ahasuerus. A thought occurred to him: What is the meaning of Esther inviting Haman? Perhaps they are conspiring⁴⁶ against me to kill me? He thought again: If that is so, is there no man who is my friend and who would tell me? Then he thought again: Perhaps there is some man who has done me a good turn and I have not rewarded him; and therefore men refrain from informing me. Straightway, he commanded to bring the book of records of the chronicles.⁴³

And they were read.⁴³ This [form of expression]⁴⁷ indicates that they were read of themselves.

And it was found [being] written.⁴⁸ It should say, a writing [kethab] was found? — This shows that Shamshai¹ kept on erasing and Gabriel kept on writing. R. Assi said: R. Shila, a man of Kefar Temarta,² drew a lesson from this, saying: If a writing on earth which is for the benefit of Israel cannot be erased, how much less a writing in heaven!³

There is nothing done for him.⁴ Raba said: [They answered him thus] not because they loved Mordecai but because they hated Haman.

He had prepared for him.⁵ A Tanna stated: [This means], he had prepared for himself.⁶

And do even so to Mordecai etc.⁷ Haman said to him: Who is Mordecai? He said to him: 'The Jew'. He said: There are many Mordecais among the Jews. He replied: 'The one who sits in the king's gate'. Said Haman to him: For him [the tribute] of one village or one river is sufficient! Said Ahasuerus: Give him that too; 'let nothing fail of all that thou hast spoken'.

Then took Haman the apparel and the horse.⁸ He went and found [Mordecai with] the Rabbis sitting before him while he showed them the rules of the 'handful'.⁹ When Mordecai saw him approaching and leading the horse, he became frightened and said to the Rabbis, This villain is coming to kill me. Get out of his way so that you should not get into trouble with him.¹⁰ Mordecai thereupon drew his robe round him and stood up to pray. Haman came up and sat down before them and waited till Mordecai had finished his prayer. He said to him: What have you been discussing? He replied: When the Temple stood, if a man brought a meal-offering he used to offer a handful of fine flour and make atonement therewith. Said Haman to them: Your handful of fine flour has come and displaced my ten thousand talents of silver. Said Mordecai to him: Wretch, if a slave acquires property, whose is the slave and whose is the property?¹¹ Haman then said to him: Arise and put on this apparel and ride on this horse, for so the king desires you to do. He replied: I cannot do so until I have gone into the bath and trimmed my hair, for it would not be good manners to use the king's apparel in this state. Now Esther had sent and closed all the baths and all the barbers' shops. So Haman himself took him into the bath and washed him, and then went and brought scissors from his house and trimmed his hair. While he was doing so, he sighed and groaned. Said Mordecai to him: Why do you sigh? He replied: The man who was esteemed by the king above all his nobles is now made a bath attendant and a barber. Said Mordecai to him: Wretch, and were you not once a barber in Kefar Karzum?¹² (For so a Tanna stated: Haman was a barber in Kefar Karzum twenty-two years.) After he had trimmed his hair he put the garments on him, and said to him, Mount and ride. He replied: I am not able, as I am weak from the days of fasting. So Haman stooped down and he mounted [on his back]. When he was up he kicked him. He said to him: Is it not written in your books,¹³ Rejoice not when thine enemy faileth?¹⁴ He replied: That refers to an Israelite, but in regard to you [folk] it is written, And thou shalt tread upon their high places.¹⁵

And proclaimed before him, This shall be done to the man whom the king delighted to honour.¹⁶ As he was leading him through the street where Haman lived, his daughter who was standing on the roof saw him. She thought that the man on the horse was her father and the man walking before him was Mordecai. So she took a chamber pot and emptied it on the head of her father. He looked up at her and when she saw that it was her father, she threw herself from the roof to the ground and killed herself. Hence it is written . . .¹⁷

And Mordecai returned to the king's gate. R. Shesheth said: This indicates that he returned to his sackcloth and fasting. But Haman hastened to his house, mourning and having his head covered; mourning for his daughter, and with his head covered on account of what had happened to him.

And Haman recounted unto Zeresh his wife and all his friends, etc. They are first called 'his friends' and then they are called 'his wise men'. R. Johanan said: Whoever says a wise thing even if he is a non-Jew¹⁸ is called 'wise'.

If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews. They said to him: If he comes from the other tribes, you can prevail over him, but if he is from the tribe of Judah or of Benjamin, Ephraim or Manasseh, you will not prevail over him. 'Judah', as it is written, Thy hand shall be on the neck of thine enemies.¹⁹ The others, because it is written of them, Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy might.²⁰

But falling thou shalt fall.²¹ R. Judah b. Ila'i drew a lesson from this verse, Saying: Why are two fallings mentioned here? Haman's friends said to him: This people is likened to the dust and it is likened to the stars. When they go down, they go down to the dust, and when they rise they rise to the stars. Came the king's chamberlains and hastened [wa-yabhilu] to bring Haman.²² The use of this word [wa-yabhilu]²³ tells us that they brought him all in confusion [behalah].

For we are sold, I and my people etc . . . For the adversary care²⁴ not that the king is endamaged.²⁵ She said to him: This adversary cares not for the damage of the king. He was angry with Vashti and killed her,²⁶ and he is angry with me and wants to kill me.

Then said the king Ahasuerus, and he said to Esther the queen.²⁷ Why 'said' and again 'said'? R. Abbahu replied: He first spoke to her through an intermediary.²⁸ When she told him that she came from the house of Saul,²⁹ forthwith, 'he said to Esther the queen'.

And Esther said, An adversary and an enemy, even this wicked Haman.³⁰ R. Eleazar said: This informs us that she was pointing to Ahasuerus and an angel came and pushed her hand so as to point to Haman.³¹

And the king rose in his wrath...and the king returned out of the palace garden.³² His returning is put on the same footing as his arising. Just as the arising was in wrath, so the returning was in wrath. For he went and found ministering angels in the form of men who were uprooting trees from the garden. He said to them, What are you doing? They replied: Haman has ordered us. He came into the house, and there 'Haman was falling³³ upon the couch'. 'Falling'? It should say. 'had fallen'? — R. Eleazar said: This informs us that an angel came and made him fall on it. Ahasuerus then exclaimed: Trouble³⁴ inside, trouble outside!

‘Then said the king, Will he even force the queen before me in the house? Then said Harbonah, etc.’ R. Eleazar said: Harbonah also was a wicked man and implicated in that plot.³⁵ When he saw that his plan was not succeeding, he at once fled, and so it is written, And he cast upon him and did not pity, from his hand he surely fleeth.³⁶

Then the king's wrath was assuaged.³⁷ Why are there two assuagings here?³⁸ — One of the [wrath of the] King of the Universe,³⁹ and the other of Ahasuerus. Others say, one [of the wrath] on account of Esther and the other on account of Vashti.

To all of them he gave to each man changes of raiment but to Benjamin he gave five changes of raiment.⁴⁰ Is it possible that that righteous man⁴¹ should fall into the very mistake from which he himself had suffered?

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 16b

For Raba b. Mehasia said in the name of R. Hami b. Guria, who said it in the name of Rab: Through two sela's weight of fine silk which Jacob gave to Joseph over what he gave to his brothers, a ball was set rolling and our ancestors eventually went down to Egypt! — R. Benjamin b. Japhet said: He gave him a hint that a descendant would issue from him who would go forth before a king in five royal garments, as it says, And Mordecai went forth from the presence of the king in royal apparel of blue etc.¹

And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck.² How many necks³ had Benjamin? — R. Eleazar said: He wept for the two Temples which were destined to be in the territory of Benjamin⁴ and to be destroyed. And Benjamin wept upon his neck:² he wept for the tabernacle of Shiloh which was destined to be in the territory of Joseph and to be destroyed.

And behold your eyes see and the eyes of my brother Benjamin.⁵ R. Eleazar said: He said to them: Just as I bear no malice against my brother Benjamin who had no part in my selling, so I have no malice against you.

That it is my mouth that speaketh unto you. As my mouth is, so is my heart.

And to his father he sent in like manner ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt.⁶ What are 'the good things of Egypt'? R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: He sent him [old] wine which old men find very comforting.⁷

And his brethren also went and fell down before him.⁸ R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: This bears out the popular saying, A fox in its hour — bow down to it. [You compare Joseph to] a fox! Where was his inferiority to his brothers? Rather if this was said [by R. Eleazar] it was applied as follows: And Israel bowed down upon the bed's head.⁹ R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar; A fox in its hour — bow down to it.¹⁰

And he comforted them and spoke kindly to them.¹¹ R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: This tells us that he spoke to them words which greatly reassured them,¹² [saying], If ten lights were not able to put out one, how can one light put out ten?

The Jews had light and gladness and joy and honour.¹³ Rab Judah said: 'Light' means the Torah,¹⁴ and so it says. For the commandment is a lamp and the Torah is a light.¹⁵ 'Gladness' means a feast day; and so it says, And thou shalt be glad in thy feast.¹⁶ 'Joy' means circumcision; and so it says, I rejoice at thy word.¹⁷ 'Honour' means the phylacteries, and so it says, And all the peoples of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord is called upon thee, and they shall be afraid of thee;¹⁸ and it has been taught: R. Eleazar the Great says that this refers to the phylactery of the head.

And Parshandatha . . . the ten sons of Haman.¹⁹ R. Adda from Joppa said: The ten sons of Haman and the word 'ten' [which follows] should be said²⁰ in one breath. What is the reason? Because their souls all departed together. R. Johanan said: The waw of waizatha must be lengthened like a boat-pole of the river Libruth.²¹ What is the reason? Because they were all strung on one pole. R.

Shila, a man of Kefar Temarta, drew a lesson from this saying, All the songs [in Scripture] are written in the form of a half brick over a whole brick,²² and a whole brick²² over a half brick,²³ with the exception of this one and the list of the kings of Canaan²⁴ which are written in the form of a half brick over a half brick and a whole brick over a whole brick.²⁵ What is the reason? So that they should never rise again from their downfall.

And the king said to the queen, In Shushan the castle the Jews have slain . . .²⁶ The mode of expression informs us that an angel came and slapped him on his mouth.²⁷

But when she came before the king, he said along with the letter.²⁸ ‘He said’? It should be, ‘she said’! — R. Johanan said: She said, Let there be said by word of mouth what is written in the letter.²⁹

Words of peace and truth.³⁰ R. Tanhum said: [or, according to some, R. Assi]: This shows that the Megillah requires to be written on ruled lines, like the true essence of the Torah.³¹ And the ordinance of Esther confirmed.³² Only the ordinance of Esther and not the words of the fastings? — R. Johanan said: We must read thus: The words of the fastings [and their cry] and the ordinance of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim.³³

For Mordecai the Jew was next unto king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews and accepted of the majority of his brethren.³⁴ Of the majority of his brethren but not of all his brethren; this informs us that some members of the Sanhedrin separated from him.³⁵

R. Joseph said: The study of the Torah is superior to the saving of life. For at first Mordecai was reckoned next after four, but afterwards next after five. At first it is written, Who came with Zerubabel, [namely] Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan,³⁶ and subsequently it is written, Who came with Zerubabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan.³⁷

Rab — or, some say. R. Samuel b. Martha — said: The study of the Torah is superior to the building of the Temple, for as long as Baruch b. Neriah was alive Ezra would not leave him to go up to the land of Israel.³⁸ Rabbah said in the name of R. Isaac b. Samuel b. Martha: The study of the Torah is superior to the honouring of father and mother. For, for the fourteen years that Jacob spent in the house of Eber, he was not punished, since a Master has said:

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 17a

Why are the years of Ishmael mentioned? So as to reckon by them the years of Jacob, as it is written, And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, a hundred and thirty and seven years.¹ How much older was Ishmael than Isaac? Fourteen years, as it is written, And Abram was fourscore and six years old when Hagar bore Ishmael to Abram,² and it is also written, And Abraham was a hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him,³ and it is written, And Isaac was threescore years old when she bore them.⁴ How old then was Ishmael when Jacob was born? Seventy-four. How many years were left of his life? Sixty-three; and it has been taught: Jacob our father at the time when he was blessed by his father was sixty-three years old. It was just at that time that Ishmael died, as it is written, Now Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob...so Esau went unto Ishmael and took Mahlath the daughter of Ishmael Abraham's son the sister of Nebaioth.⁵ Now once it has been said, 'Ishmael's daughter' do I not know that she was the sister of Nebaioth? This tells us then that Ishmael affianced her and then died, and Nebaioth her brother gave her in marriage.⁶ Sixty-three and fourteen till Joseph was born⁷ make seventy-seven, and it is written, And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh.⁸ This makes a hundred and seven. Add seven years of plenty and two of famine,⁹ and we have a hundred and sixteen, and it is written, And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, How many are the days of the years of thy life? And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, The days of the years of my sojournings are a hundred and thirty years.¹⁰ But [we have just seen that] they were only a hundred and sixteen? We must conclude therefore that he spent fourteen years in the house of Eber,¹¹ as it has been taught: 'After Jacob our father had left for Aram Naharaim two years.¹² Eber died'. He then went forth from where he was¹³ and came to Aram Naharaim. From this¹⁴ it follows that when he stood by the well he was seventy-seven years old. And how do we know that he was not punished [for these fourteen years]? As it has been taught: 'We find that Joseph was away from his father twenty-two years.¹⁵ just as Jacob our father was absent from his father'. But Jacob's absence was thirty-six years?¹⁶ It must be then that the fourteen years which he was in the house of Eber are not reckoned. But when all is said and done, the time he spent in the house of Laban was only twenty years?¹⁷ — The fact is that [he was also punished] because he spent two years on the way, as it has been taught: He left Aram Naharaim and came to Succoth and spent there eighteen months, as it says, And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him a house, and made booths for his cattle;¹⁸ and in Bethel he spent six months and brought there sacrifices.

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. IF ONE READS THE MEGILLAH BACKWARDS,¹⁹ HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IF HE READS IT BY HEART, IF HE READS IT IN A TRANSLATION [TARGUM] IN ANY LANGUAGE,²⁰ HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IT MAY, HOWEVER, BE READ TO THOSE WHO DO NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW²¹ IN A LANGUAGE OTHER THAN HEBREW. IF ONE WHO DOES NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW HEARS IT READ IN HEBREW, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IF ONE READS IT WITH BREAKS,²² OR WHILE HALF-ASLEEP, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IF HE WAS COPYING IT, CORRECTING IT OR EXPOUNDING IT, THEN IF [IN DOING SO] HE PUT HIS MIND [ALSO TO THE READING] OF IT HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION, BUT OTHERWISE NOT. IF [THE COPY FROM WHICH HE READS] IS WRITTEN WITH SAM, WITH SIKRA, WITH KUMUS, OR WITH KANKANTUM,²³ OR ON NEYAR OR DIFTERA,²³ HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION; IT MUST BE WRITTEN IN HEBREW²⁴ ON PARCHMENT²⁵ AND IN INK.

GEMARA. Whence is this rule [not to read backward] derived? — Raba said: The text says, according to the writing thereof and according to the appointed time thereof:²⁶ just as the appointed time cannot be backward,²⁷ so the [reading from the] writing must not be backward. But does the text speak here of reading? It speaks of keeping, as it is written, that they would keep these two days? — The truth is that we derive the rule from here, as it is written: And that these days should be remembered and kept.²⁸ ‘Remembering’ is here put on the same footing as ‘keeping’: just as keeping cannot be in the wrong order, so remembering also.

A Tanna stated: The same rule applies to Hallel,²⁹ to the recital of the Shema’,²⁹ and to the ‘Amidah²⁹ prayer. Whence do we derive the rule as regards Hallel? — Rabbah said: Because it is written, From the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof [the Lord's name is to be praised].³⁰ R. Joseph said, [from here]: This is the day which the Lord hath made.³¹ R. Awia said: Let the name of the Lord be blessed.³² R. Nahman b. Isaac — or you may also say, R. Aha b Jacob — said, It is from here: From this time forth and for ever.³³

‘To the recital of the Shema’’, as it has been taught: The Shema’ must be recited as it is written.³⁴ So Rabbi. The Sages, however, say: It may be recited in any language. What is Rabbi's reason? Scripture says

(1) Gen. XXV, 17.

(2) Ibid. XVI, 16.

(3) Ibid. XXI, 5.

(4) Ibid. XXV, 26.

(5) Ibid. XXVIII, 6-9.

(8) Ibid. XLI, 46.

(9) V. Ibid. XLV, 6.

(12) [So Rashi: cur. edd. introduce passage with: ‘Jacob lay hidden in the house of Eber for fourteen years’.]

(13) This is the reading here of the Bah. The reading of the text is unintelligible.

(14) [By calculating the years Eber lived, v. Gen. XI, 17.]

, [And these words] shall be,¹ which implies, they shall be kept as they are. And what is the reason of the Rabbis? — Because Scripture says, Hear,² which implies, in any language which you understand. How then can Rabbi [hold otherwise], seeing that it is written, 'hear'? — He requires that word for the injunction, 'Let thine ear hear what thou utterest with thy mouth'. The Rabbis, however, concurred with the authority who said that if one recites the Shema' without making it audible, he has performed his obligation. But the Rabbis too — [how can they hold as they do], seeing that it is written, 'And they shall be'? — They require this for the injunction that it should not be recited backwards. Whence does Rabbi derive the rule that it should not be recited backwards? From [the use of the expression] 'the words', where 'words' [would have been sufficient]. The Rabbis, however, do not accept this distinction between 'the words' and 'words'.

May we say that Rabbi was of opinion that the whole of the Torah has been ordained [to be recited] in any language?³ For should you assume that it has been ordained [to be recited] only in the holy tongue, why should the words 'and they shall be' be inserted [in reference to the Shema']? — These were necessary. For it might have occurred to me to understand 'hear' in the same sense as the Rabbis:⁴ therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'and they shall be'. May we then say that the Rabbis were of opinion that the whole of the Torah was ordained [to be recited] only in the holy tongue, since, should you assume that it was ordained to be recited in any language, [I might ask], why should 'hear' be inserted [in reference to the Shema']? — This word is necessary. For it might occur to me to understand 'and they shall be' in the same sense as Rabbi. Therefore the All-Merciful wrote, 'hear'.

'To the 'Amidah prayer'. Whence is this derived? — As it has been taught: 'Simeon the Pakulite⁵ formulated eighteen blessings in the presence of Rabban Gamaliel in the proper⁶ order in Jabneh.⁷ R. Johanan said (others report, it was stated in a Baraitha): A hundred and twenty elders, among whom were many prophets, drew up eighteen blessings in a fixed order'.

Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we derive that the blessing of the Patriarchs⁸ should be said? Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord, O ye sons of might.⁹ And whence that we say the blessing of mighty deeds?¹⁰ Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord glory and strength.¹¹ And whence that we say sanctifications?¹² Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord the glory due unto His name, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.¹³ What reason had they for mentioning understanding¹⁴ after holiness? Because it says, They shall sanctify the Holy One of Jacob and shall stand in awe of the God of Israel,¹⁵ and next to this, They also that err in spirit shall come to understanding. What reason had they for mentioning repentance¹⁶ after understanding? Because it is written, Lest they, understanding with their heart, return and be healed.¹⁷ If that is the reason, healing should be mentioned next to repentance?¹⁸ — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, And let him return unto the Lord and He will have compassion upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.¹⁹ But why should you rely upon this verse? Rely rather on the other! — There is written another verse, Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, who healeth all thy diseases, who redeemeth thy life from the pit,²⁰ which implies that redemption and healing come after forgiveness. But it is written, 'Lest they return and be healed'? That refers not to the healing of sickness but to the healing [power] of forgiveness. What was their reason for mentioning redemption in the seventh blessing?²¹ Raba replied: Because they [Israel] are destined to be redeemed in the seventh year [of the coming of the Messiah],²² therefore the mention of redemption was placed in the seventh blessing. But a Master has said, 'In the sixth year will be thunderings, in the seventh wars, at the end of the seventh the son of David will come'? — War is also the beginning of redemption. What was their reason for mentioning healing in the eighth blessing? — R. Aha said: Because circumcision which requires healing is appointed for the eighth day, therefore it was placed in the eighth blessing. What was their reason for placing the [prayer for the] blessing of the years ninth? R. Alexandri said: This was directed against those who raise the market price [of foodstuffs], as it is written, Break thou the arm of the wicked; and when David said this, he said it in the ninth Psalm.²³

What was their reason for mentioning the gathering of the exiles after the blessing of the years? — Because it is written, But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches and yield your fruit to thy people Israel, for they are at hand to come.²⁴ And when the exiles are assembled, judgment will be visited on the wicked, as it says, And I will turn my hand upon thee and purge away thy dross as with lye,²⁵ and it is written further, And I will restore thy judges as at the first.²⁶ And when judgment is visited on the wicked, transgressors cease,²⁷ and presumptuous sinners²⁸ are included with them, as it is written, But the destruction of the transgressors and of the sinners shall be together, and they that forsake the Lord shall be consumed.²⁹ And when the transgressors have disappeared, the horn of the righteous is exalted,³⁰ as it is written, All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be lifted up.³¹ And ‘proselytes of righteousness’³² are included with the righteous, as it says, thou shalt rise up before the hoary head and honour the face of the old man,³³ and the text goes on, And if a stranger sojourn with thee. And where is the horn of the righteous exalted? In Jerusalem,³⁴ as it says, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem, may they prosper that love thee.³⁵ And when Jerusalem is built, David³⁶ will come, as it says.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 18a

Afterwards shall the children of Israel return and seek the Lord their God, and David their king.¹ And when David comes, prayer² will come, as it says. Even then will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer.³ And when prayer has come, the Temple service⁴ will come, as it says, Their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be acceptable upon mine altar.⁵ And when the service comes, thanksgiving⁶ will come, as it says. Whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving honoureth me.⁷ What was their reason for inserting the priestly benediction after thanksgiving? Because it is written, And Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people and he came down from offering the sin-offering and the burnt-offering and the peace-offerings.⁸ But cannot I say that he did this before the service? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, 'and he came down from offering'. Is it written 'to offer'? It is written, 'from offering'.⁹ Why not then say it [the priestly benediction] after the [blessing of] the Temple service? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving.¹⁰ Why base yourself upon this verse? Why not upon the other? — It is reasonable to regard service and thanksgiving as one. What was their reason for having 'give peace' said after the priestly benediction? — Because it is written, So they [the priests] shall put my name upon the children of Israel, and [then] I shall bless them;¹¹ and the blessing of the Holy One, blessed be He, is peace, as it says, The Lord shall bless his people with peace.¹²

Seeing now that a hundred and twenty elders, among whom were many prophets, drew up the prayers in the proper order, why did Simeon the Pakulite formulate them? — They were forgotten, and he formulated them afresh. Beyond this it is forbidden to declare the praise of the Holy One, blessed be He.¹³ For R. Eleazar said: What is the meaning of the verse, Who can express the mighty acts of the Lord, or make all his praise to be heard?¹⁴ For whom is it fitting to express the mighty acts of the Lord? For one who can make all his praise to be heard. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: One who descants upon the praises of the Holy One, blessed be He, to excess is uprooted from the world, as it says, Shall it be told to him that I should speak? Should a man [try to] say, surely he would be swallowed up.¹⁵ R. Judah a man of Kefar Gibboraya,¹⁶ or, as some say, of Kefar Gibbor Hayil,¹⁷ gave the following homily: What is meant by the verse, For thee silence is praise?¹⁸ The best medicine of all is silence. When R. Dimi came, he said: In the West¹⁹ they say: A word is worth a sela', silence two sela's.

IF ONE READS IT BY HEART, HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. Whence this rule? — Raba said: We explain the expression zekirah²⁰ in one passage from its use in another. It is written here, And these days shall be nizkarim²¹ [remembered] and it is written elsewhere, Write this le-zikaron [for a memorial] in the book.²² Just as there it was to be in a book, so here it must be in a book. But how do we know that this 'nizkarim' implies 'uttering'? Perhaps it means mere reading with the eyes? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it has been taught: 'Remember' [zakor].²³ Am I to say, this means only with the mind? When the text says, thou shalt not forget, the injunction against mental forgetfulness is already given. What then am I to make of 'remember'? This must mean, by utterance.²⁴

IF ONE READS IT IN A TRANSLATION, HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. How are we to understand this? Are we to suppose that it is written in Hebrew and he reads it in a translation? This is the same as reading by heart! — It is required for the case where it is written in a translation and he reads it in a translation.

IT MAY, HOWEVER, BE READ TO THOSE WHO DO NOT SPEAK HEBREW IN A LANGUAGE OTHER THAN HEBREW. But you have just said, IF ONE READS IT IN ANY [OTHER] LANGUAGE HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION? — Rab and Samuel both answered that what is referred to here is the Greek vernacular. How are we to understand this? Shall we say that it is written in Hebrew and he reads it in Greek? This is the same as saying by heart? — R. Aha said in the name of R. Eleazar: What is referred to is where it is written in the Greek vernacular.

(R. Aha also said in the name of R. Eleazar: How do we know that the Holy One, blessed be He, called Jacob El [God]²⁵ Because it says, And the God of Israel called him [Jacob] El.²⁶ For should you suppose that [what the text means is that] Jacob called the altar El, then it should be written, 'And Jacob called it'. But [as it is not written so], we must translate, 'He called Jacob El'. And who called him so? The God of Israel).

An objection was brought [against the dictum of Rab and Samuel] from the following: 'If one reads it in Coptic,²⁷ in Hebraic,²⁸ in Elamean, in Median, in Greek, he has not performed his obligation'! — This [statement]²⁹ means only in the same sense as the following: 'If one reads it in Coptic to the Copts,³⁰ in Hebrew to the Hebrews, in Elamean to the Elameans, in Greek to the Greeks, he has performed his obligation'. If that is the case, why do Rab and Samuel explain the Mishnah to refer to the Greek vernacular? Let them make it refer to any vernacular? — The fact is that the Mishnah agrees with the Baraitha,³¹ and the statement of Rab and Samuel was meant to be a general one [thus]: Rab and Samuel both say that the Greek vernacular is good for all peoples. But it is stated, '[He may read] in Greek for the Greeks' — for the Greeks, that is, he may, but for others not? — They [Rab and Samuel] concurred with Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, as we have learnt: 'Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Scrolls of the Scripture also were allowed to be written only in Greek'.³² Let them then say, The halachah is as stated by Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel? — Had they said, The halachah is as stated by Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, I should have understood them to mean that this is the case with other books of the Scriptures but not with the Megillah, of which it is written, according to the writing thereof.³³ Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

IF ONE WHO DOES NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW HEARD IT READ IN HEBREW, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. But he does not know what they are saying? — he is on the same footing as women and ignorant people. Rabina strongly demurred to this saying;³⁴ And do we know the meaning of ha-ahashteranim bene ha-ramakim?³⁵ But all the same we perform the precept of reading the Megillah and proclaiming the miracle. So they too perform the precept of reading the Megillah and proclaiming the miracle.³⁶

IF ONE READS IT WITH BREAKS [SERUGIN], HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. The Rabbis did not know what was meant by serugin,³⁷ until one day they heard the maidservant of Rabbi's household, on seeing the Rabbis enter at intervals, say to them, How long are you going to come in by serugin?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by haluglugoth, till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi, on seeing a man peeling portulaks, say to him, How long will you be peeling your haluglugoth?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, salseleah and it shall exalt thee.³⁸ One day they heard the handmaid of the house of Rabbi say to a man who was curling his hair, How long will you be mesalsel with your hair?³⁹

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, Cast upon the Lord thy yehab and he shall sustain thee.⁴⁰ Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanah: One day I was travelling with a certain Arab⁴¹ and was carrying a load, and he said to me, Lift up your yehab and put it on [one of] the camels.

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, we-tetethia bematate of destruction,⁴² till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi say to her companion, Take the tatitha [broom] and tati [sweep] the house.

if with omissions,¹ he has not performed it. R. Muna said in the name of R. Judah: Even with breaks, if he stops long enough to finish the whole of it, he must go back to the beginning. R. Joseph said: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna in the name of R. Judah. Abaye inquired of R. Joseph: [When it says] 'long enough to finish the whole of it', does it mean from where he is to the end, or from the beginning to the end? He replied: It means from the beginning to the end, as otherwise there would be no fixed standard.² R. Abba said in the name of R. Jeremiah b. Abba who said it in the name of Rab: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna. Samuel, however, said: The halachah is not as stated by R. Muna. This is the version given in Sura. In Pumbeditha the following version is given: R. Kahana said in the name of Rab: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna, but Samuel said that the halachah does not follow R. Muna. R. Bibi reverses the statement, [making] Rab say that the halachah does not follow R. Muna and Samuel that it does follow R. Muna. R. Joseph said: Adopt³ the version of R. Bibi, since it is Samuel who takes note of the view of an individual authority,⁴ as we have learnt: 'If a woman was waiting for the levir [to make his decision], and a [younger] brother of his became affianced to her sister, the rule was laid down in the name of R. Judah b. Bathyra that the Beth din say to him, Wait till your elder brother acts [one way or the other];⁵ and Samuel said, The halachah is as stated by R. Judah b. Bathyra'.⁶

Our Rabbis taught: If the scribe had omitted letters or verses and the reader read them like the translator when he is translating,⁷ he has performed his obligation. The following was cited in objection to this: 'If letters in it [the scroll] are partially effaced or torn, if they are still legible, it may be used, but otherwise it may not be used'! — There is no contradiction: the one statement⁸ refers to the whole of it, the other⁹ to part of it.

Our Rabbis taught: If the reader omitted one verse, he must not say, I will finish reading it [the Megillah] and I will then read that verse, but he must read [again] from that verse. If a man enters the synagogue and finds that the congregation has read half, he must not say, I will read half with the congregation and then I will read the other half, but he must read it from the beginning to the end.

IF HE WAS HALF-ASLEEP, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. What is meant by 'half-asleep'?¹⁰ — R. Ashi said: He is asleep and not asleep, awake and not awake; if he is called he responds, but he cannot give a rational answer, though if he is reminded [of what has been said] he remembers.

IF ONE WAS WRITING IT, EXPOUNDING IT, OR CORRECTING IT, IF HE PUT HIS MIND TO IT etc. How are we to understand this? If he was conning each verse and then writing it, what does it matter if he did put his mind to it? He is writing by heart! We must suppose therefore that he writes each verse and then recites it. But does he thereby perform his obligation? Has not R. Helbo said in the name of R. Hama b. Guria who said it in the name of Rab, The halachah follows the view of him who says that all of it [must be recited],¹¹ and even according to the one who says that it is sufficient [to recite] from 'A Jew was', it is necessary that the whole should be [already] written? We must suppose therefore that a Megillah lies before him and he reads from it, verse by verse, and then writes. Shall we then¹² say that this supports Rabbah b. Bar Hanah, for Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan. It is forbidden to write one letter [of the Megillah], save from a copy?

Perhaps [the Mishnah speaks only of a case] where he just happened [to have a copy before him].¹³

The text [above states]: ‘Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan, It is forbidden to write one letter save from a copy’. The following was cited in opposition to this: ‘It happened once that R. Meir went to prolong the year¹⁴ in Assia,¹⁵ and there was no Megillah there and he wrote one out by heart’! — R. Abbahu said: R. Meir is different, because to him could be applied the verse, Thine eyelids shall look straight before thee.¹⁶ Rami b. Hama asked R. Jeremiah from Difti:¹⁷ What is the meaning of ‘thine eyelids [‘af’apeka] shall look straight before thee’? — He replied: This refers to the words of the Torah, of which it is written, Wilt thou direct [ta’if] thine eyes from it? it is gone.¹⁸ And even so, R. Meir could produce them correctly. R. Hisda found R. Hananel writing scrolls without a copy. He said to him: You are quite qualified to write the whole Torah by heart,¹⁹ but thus have the Sages ruled: It is forbidden to write one letter save from a copy. Seeing that he said, ‘You are qualified to write the whole Torah by heart’, we may conclude that he could produce them correctly, and we see that R. Meir actually did write?²⁰ — In case of emergency it is different — Abaye allowed the members of the household of Bar Habu²¹ to write tefillin and mezuzoth²² without a copy. What authority did he follow? — The following Tanna, as it has been taught: R. Jeremiah says in the name of our Teacher:²³ Tefillin and mezuzoth may be written out without a copy, and do not require to be written upon ruled lines. The law, however, is that tefillin do not require lines,²⁴ but mezuzoth do require lines, and both may be written without a copy. What is the reason? — They are well known by heart.

IF IT WAS WRITTEN WITH SAM²⁵ etc. SAM: this is paint. SIKRA: this is vermilion. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said: It is what we call sekarta [vermilion]. KUMUS: this is gum

Talmud - Mas. Megillah 19a

. KANKANTUM: this is bootmakers' blacking. DIFTERA: this is a skin which has been salted and put in flour but not treated with gall nuts. NEYAR: this is paper.¹

IT MUST BE WRITTEN IN HEBREW. As it is written, according to the writing² thereof, and according to the appointed time thereof.²

ON PARCHMENT AND IN INK. Whence this rule? — We explain writing' in one place by the use of the term in another. It is written here, And Esther the queen wrote,³ and it is written in another place, then Baruch answered them, He pronounced all these words unto me with his mouth, and I wrote them with ink in the book.⁴

MISHNAH. A RESIDENT OF A TOWN WHO HAS GONE TO A WALLED CITY⁵ OR OF A WALLED CITY WHO HAS GONE TO A TOWN, IF HE IS LIKELY TO RETURN TO HIS OWN PLACE⁶ READS ACCORDING TO THE RULE OF HIS OWN PLACE,⁷ AND OTHERWISE READS WITH THE REST. FROM WHERE MUST A MAN READ THE MEGILLAH SO AS TO FULFIL HIS OBLIGATION? R. MEIR SAYS, [HE MUST READ] THE WHOLE OF IT; RABBI JUDAH SAYS, [HE MUST READ] FROM 'THERE WAS A JEW';⁸ R. JOSE SAYS, FROM 'AFTER THESE THINGS'.⁹

GEMARA. Raba said: This rule applies only if he¹⁰ intends to return on the night of the fourteenth; but if he does not mean to return on the night of the fourteenth, he reads with the rest. Said Raba: Whence do I derive this ruling? Because it is written, Therefore do the Jews of the villages that dwell in the unwalled towns.¹¹ See now. It is written, 'the Jews of the villages'. Why then should it be further written, 'that dwell in the unwalled towns'? This teaches us that one who is a villager for one day is called¹² a villager. We have proved this for a villager. How do we know that it applies also to inhabitants of walled towns? — It is reasonable to suppose that since a villager of one day is called a villager, a walled-city-dweller of one day is called a walled-city-dweller.

Raba also said: A villager who has gone to a town reads with the rest in any case. What is the reason? By rights he ought to read at the same time as the townspeople — and it is the Rabbis who made a concession to the villagers so that they might supply food and drink to their brethren in the large cities.¹³ Now this applies only so long as they are in their own place, but when they are in the town, they must read like the townspeople. Abaye raised an objection to this from the following: 'If a resident of a walled city has gone to a town, in any case he reads according to the custom of his own place'. 'A resident of a walled city', do you say? His rule depends on whether he means to return!¹⁴ What you must read, then, is 'a villager'.¹⁵ — But must you not [in any case] explain [the passage]?¹⁶ Read, [then] 'reads with the rest'.

FROM WHERE MUST A MAN READ THE MEGILLAH etc. It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Yohai says, from On that night'.¹⁷ R. Johanan said: All these authorities derived their lesson from the same verse, viz., Then Esther the queen and Mordecai the Jew wrote all the acts of power.¹⁸ He who says that the whole Megillah must be read refers this to the power of Ahasuerus;¹⁹ he who says it must be read from 'there was a Jew', to the power of Mordecai; he who says from 'after these things', to the power of Haman; and he who says, from 'on that night', to the power of the miracle. R. Huna said: They derived it from here: And what did they see? For this reason. And what came upon them?²⁰ He who says that the whole of it must be read [interprets thus]: What had Ahasuerus seen to make him use the vessels of the Temple? It was for this reason, that he reckoned seventy years and they had not yet been redeemed;²¹ And what came upon them? that he put Vashti to death.

He who says that it should be read from ‘there was a Jew’ [interprets thus]: What had Mordecai seen that he picked a quarrel with Haman? It was for this reason, that he made himself an object of worship. ‘And what came upon them’? that a miracle was performed [for him]. He who says that it is to be read from ‘after these things’, [interprets thus]: What did Haman see to make him pick a quarrel with all the Jews? It was for this reason, that Mordecai did not bow down or prostrate himself; ‘and what came upon him’? They hung him and his sons on the tree. He who says that it is to be read from ‘on that night’ interprets thus: What did Ahasuerus see to make him order the book of chronicles to be brought? It was for this reason that Esther invited Haman with him. ‘And what came upon them’? A miracle was performed for them.

R. Helbo said in the name of R. Hama b. Guria, who said it in the name of Rab: The halachah follows the view of him who says that the whole of it must be read; and even according to him who says that it need be read only from ‘There was a Jew’, it must all be written before him.²²

R. Hama b. Guria said in the name of Rab: The Megillah is called ‘book’²³ and it is also called ‘letter’.²⁴ It is called ‘book’ to show that if it is stitched with threads of flax,²⁵ it is not fit for use; and it is called ‘letter’ to show that if it is stitched with three threads of sinew, it may be used. R. Nahman said: This is only on condition that they are evenly spaced.²⁶

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: If one reads the Megillah from a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures,²⁷ he has not performed his obligation.²⁸ Raba said: This is the case only if it is not a little shorter or longer than the rest, but if it is a little shorter or longer than the rest,²⁹ there is no objection to it. Levi b. Samuel was reading before Rab Judah in a Megillah which was included in a volume of the Scriptures. He said to him: [I must tell you that] they have said: 'If one reads the Megillah from a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures, he has not fulfilled his obligation'.

R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: 'If one reads the Megillah in a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures, he has not fulfilled his obligation'; and he at once qualified this remark¹ by adding, 'in a congregation'.

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: It is a rule deriving from Moses at Sinai that a space should be left unstitched [in the sefer torah];² and he at once qualified the remark by saying, 'this rule was laid down³ only so that it should not be torn'.⁴

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: Had there been in the cave in which Moses and Elijah stood⁵ a chink no bigger than the eye of a fine needle, they would not have been able to endure the light, as it says, for man shall not see me and live.⁶

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: What is the meaning of the verse, And on them was written according to all the words which the Lord spoke with you in the mount?⁷ It teaches us that the Holy One, blessed be He, showed Moses the minutiae of the Torah,⁸ and the minutiae of the Scribes,⁹ and the innovations which would be introduced by the Scribes; and what are these? The reading of the Megillah.¹⁰

MISHNAH. ALL ARE QUALIFIED TO READ THE MEGILLAH EXCEPT A DEAF PERSON,¹¹ AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR.¹² R. JUDAH DECLARES A MINOR QUALIFIED.

GEMARA. Who is the Tanna that maintains that [even if] the deaf person has read, it does not count?¹³ — R. Mattenah said: It is R. Jose, as we have learnt: 'If one reads the Shema' inaudibly, he has performed his obligation. R. Jose, however, says that he has not performed his obligation'. But why should we say that [our Mishnah] follows R. Jose and [lays down that] even if the deaf man has read, it does not count? Perhaps it follows R. Judah, and [what it means is that] the deaf man may not read in the first instance, but if he has read, his reading is accepted? — Do not imagine such a thing. For a deaf man is mentioned in the same category as an imbecile and a minor; just as the reading of an imbecile and a minor is not accepted, so the reading of a deaf man is not accepted. But perhaps there is one rule for the one and another rule for the other? — Since it states in the final clause that R. Judah declares a minor qualified, we may conclude that the first clause does not state the opinion of R. Judah. (But perhaps the whole of the Mishnah states the opinions of R. Judah? — Is it possible that he should disqualify in the first and permit in the second?)¹⁴ But perhaps the whole [of the Mishnah] gives the views of R. Judah, and he speaks of two kinds of minor, and there is an omission in the Mishnah, and it should run this: 'All are qualified to read the Megillah, except a deaf man, an imbecile and a minor. Of what kind of minor are we speaking? Of one who is not old enough to be trained in the performance of religious duties. But a minor who is old enough to be trained in religious duties¹⁵ may read even in the first instance, since R. Judah declares a minor qualified! — How then have you explained [the first clause of the Mishnah]? As following R. Judah and applying to an action already performed. What then of this statement made by Judah the son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi: 'One who can speak but not hear may set aside terumah in the first instance.'¹⁶ Whose view is this? If you say R. Judah's. [this cannot be, because] he would say, his blessing [once made] is a blessing, but he may not say it in the first instance. If you say R. Jose, this also cannot be, since he disallows the action even if already performed! What then will you say? That it follows R. Judah, and that he allows it even in the first instance?¹⁷ What then of this which has been taught: 'A man should not say the grace after food in his heart,¹⁸ but if he does do so, he has performed his obligation'. Whose opinion is this? It is neither that of R. Judah¹⁹ nor that of R. Jose. For if it were to follow R. Judah, it would allow this even in the first instance, and if R. Jose, it would disallow it even when performed! —

In fact it follows R. Judah,¹ and he holds that the act may be done even in the first instance, and there is no difficulty: in the first quotation² he is giving his own opinion, in the second³ that of his teacher, as it has been taught: 'R. Judah says in the name of R. Eleazar b. Azariah: One who recites the Shema' must do so audibly, as it says, Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is One,⁴ which implies. 'Let thine ear hear what thy mouth utters'. R. Meir says: [It says], which I command thee this day upon thy heart:⁵ according to the concentration of the mind, so is the value of the words. Now that you have come so far as this,⁶ you may even say that R. Judah was of the same opinion as his teacher, and the statement made by Judah the son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi follows R. Meir.

R. JUDAH DECLARES A MINOR QUALIFIED. It has been taught: 'R. Judah said: When I was a boy, I read it [the Megillah] before R. Tarfon and the elders in Lydda. They said to him: A proof cannot be adduced from a recollection of boyhood'.⁷ It has been taught: 'Rabbi said: When a boy, I read it before R. Judah. They said to him: A proof cannot be adduced from the very authority who allows [the act]'.⁸ Why did they not say to him, A proof cannot be adduced from recollections of boyhood? They gave him a double answer.⁹ For one thing, they said, you were a boy and besides, even had you been grown up, proof cannot be brought from the very authority who allows.

MISHNAH. THE MEGILLAH SHOULD NOT BE READ, NEITHER SHOULD

CIRCUMCISION BE PERFORMED, NOR A RITUAL BATH BE TAKEN,¹⁰ NOR SPRINKLING¹¹ BE PERFORMED, AND SIMILARLY A WOMAN KEEPING DAY FOR DAY¹² SHOULD NOT TAKE A RITUAL BATH UNTIL THE SUN HAS RISEN. BUT IF ANY OF THESE THINGS IS DONE AFTER DAWN HAS APPEARED,¹³ IT COUNTS AS DONE.

GEMARA. Whence this rule [about the Megillah]? — Because the Scripture says, and these days should be remembered [mentioned] and kept,¹⁴ which implies, that they are to be so by day, but not by night. Shall we say that this is a refutation of R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: It is a man's duty to read the Megillah by night and a second time by day? — When the Mishnah makes this statement it is referring to the day reading.

NEITHER SHOULD CIRCUMCISION BE PERFORMED. Because it is written, And on the eighth day he shall be circumcised.¹⁵

NEITHER SHOULD A RITUAL BATH BE TAKEN NOR SPRINKLING BE PERFORMED. Because it is written, And the clean person shall sprinkle on the unclean . . . and on the seventh day:¹⁶ and bathing¹⁷ is put on the same footing as sprinkling.

AND SIMILARLY A WOMAN WHO IS KEEPING DAY FOR DAY SHOULD NOT TAKE A RITUAL BATH TILL THE SUN HAS RISEN. This is obvious! Why should a woman keeping day for day be different from all others who are under obligation to take ritual baths?¹⁸ — Her case had to be mentioned. For you might suppose that she should be on the same footing as the first observation of one with an issue, and the first observation of one with an issue has been put on the same footing as one with a seminal issue, as it is written, This is the law of him that hath an issue and of him from whom the flow of seed goeth out:¹⁹ just as one with a seminal issue takes his bath by day, so this one also should take his bath on the same day. This woman, however, cannot bathe on the day, because it is written, all the days of the issue of her uncleanness she shall be as in the days of her impurity;²⁰ so [you might say], by night at least she might keep watch for a short time²¹ and then bathe; therefore we are told that [she must not do this], because she requires to count [day for day];²² and counting must be by day.¹

IF ANY OF THESE THINGS IS DONE AFTER DAWN HAS APPEARED, IT COUNTS AS DONE. Whence is this rule derived? — Raba said: Because the Scripture says, And God called the light day;² that which gradually becomes light He called day.³ But according to this, [when it says] and the darkness He called night,⁴ [are we to explain] that which gradually becomes dark He called night? Is it not generally agreed that till the stars come out it is not night? No, said R. Zera; we derive it from here: So we wrought in the work; and half of them held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared;⁵ and it says further, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and may labour in the day.⁶ What is the point of the second quotation?⁷ — You might say that from the time of the first rising of the dawn it is not yet day, though from the time the sun begins to set it is already night and they were early and late.⁸ Therefore come and hear: that in the night they may be a guard to us, and may labour in the day.⁹ MISHNAH. THE WHOLE OF THE DAY IS A PROPER TIME FOR THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH AND FOR THE RECITING OF HALLEL¹⁰ AND FOR THE BLOWING OF THE SHOFAR¹⁰ AND FOR TAKING UP THE LULAB¹⁰ AND FOR THE MUSAF¹⁰ PRAYER AND FOR THE ADDITIONAL SACRIFICES¹¹ AND FOR CONFESSION OVER THE OXEN¹² AND FOR THE ACKNOWLEDGMENT MADE OVER THE TITHE¹³ AND FOR THE CONFESSION OF SINS ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT,¹⁴ FOR LAYING ON OF HANDS,¹⁵ FOR SLAUGHTERING [THE SACRIFICES], FOR WAVING,¹⁶ FOR BRINGING NEAR [THE VESSEL WITH THE MEAL-OFFERING TO THE ALTAR], FOR TAKING A HANDFUL, AND FOR PLACING IT ON THE FIRE,¹⁷ FOR PINCHING OFF [THE HEAD OF A BIRD-OFFERING]¹⁸ AND FOR RECEIVING THE BLOOD,¹⁹ AND FOR SPRINKLING,²⁰ AND FOR MAKING THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE DRINK²¹ AND FOR BREAKING THE NECK OF THE HEIFER²² AND FOR PURIFYING THE LEPER.²³ THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT IS PROPER TIME FOR REAPING THE OMER,²⁴ AND FOR BURNING FAT AND LIMBS [ON THE ALTAR].²⁵ THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY DAY MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY, AND ANY COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY NIGHT MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT.

GEMARA. Whence this rule [about the Megillah]? — Because the Scripture says, And these days shall be mentioned and kept.²⁶

FOR READING THE HALLEL: as it is written, From the rising of the sun to its going down.²⁷ R. Joseph says: Because it is written, this is the day on which the Lord hath wrought.²⁸

FOR THE TAKING UP OF THE LULAB: as it is written, And ye shall take you on the first day.²⁹

FOR THE BLOWING OF THE SHOFAR, as it is written, it is a day of blowing the horn unto you.³⁰

FOR THE ADDITIONAL SACRIFICES, as it is written, each on its own day.³¹

AND FOR THE MUSAF PRAYER: because the Rabbis put this on the same footing as the additional sacrifices.

AND FOR THE CONFESSION MADE OVER THE OXEN, an analogy being drawn between the 'atonement' mentioned in this connection and that mentioned in connection with the Day of Atonement, as it has been taught in reference to the Day of Atonement: 'And he shall make atonement for himself and for his house:³² the text speaks of atonement made by words. And atonement is by day, as it is written, For on this day shall atonement be made for you.³³

AND FOR THE ACKNOWLEDGMENT MADE OVER THE TITHE: as it is written, And thou shalt say before the Lord thy God, I have put away the hallowed things out of my house,³⁴ and in the same context it says, This day the Lord thy God commandeth thee.³⁵

FOR LAYING ON OF HANDS AND FOR SLAUGHTERING: as it is written, and he shall lay his hand . . . and he shall kill,³⁶ and it is written in connection with killing, on the same day that ye sacrifice.³⁷

AND FOR WAVING: as it is written, and in the day when ye wave the sheaf.³⁸

AND FOR BRINGING NEAR; because this is compared to waving, as it is written, And the priest shall take the meal-offering of jealousy out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the meal-offering . . . and bring it near³⁹ [to the altar].

AND FOR PINCHING AND FOR TAKING A HANDFUL AND FOR BURNING AND FOR SPRINKLING, as it is written, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel [to present their offerings].⁴⁰

AND FOR MAKING THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE DRINK: The word 'law' which occurs in this connection is explained by its use in another.⁴¹ It is written here, and the priest shall execute upon her all this law,⁴² and it is written elsewhere, According to the law which they shall teach thee and according to the judgement⁴³

: just as judgement is by day,¹ so here it must be by day.

AND FOR BREAKING THE NECK OF THE HEIFER. In the school of R. Jannai it was said: [The word] 'atonement' is applied to it² as to holy things.

AND FOR THE PURIFICATION OF THE LEPER: as it is written, This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing.³

THE WHOLE NIGHT IS A PROPER TIME FOR REAPING THE 'OMER. Since a Master has said that reaping and counting are to be performed by night and the bringing by day.⁴

AND FOR BURNING FAT AND LIMBS: as it is written, All the night till the morning.⁵

THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY COMMANDMENT THAT IS TO BE PERFORMED BY DAY CAN BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY. [The words] 'this is the general principle' are inserted to add what? — To add the setting of the cup⁶ and the removal of the cups, and in agreement with R. Jose, as it has been taught: 'R. Jose says: If he removed the old [shew-bread] in the morning and set the new one in the evening, there is no harm.⁷ What then do I make of the verse, before me continually?⁸ [This is to show that] the table of the Lord should not be without bread.⁹

A COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY NIGHT MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT. What does this add? — It adds the consumption of the paschal lamb, thus differing from R. Eleazar b. Azariah, as it has been taught: And they shall eat the flesh on that night:¹⁰ R. Eleazar b. Azariah said: It says here, on that night, and it says elsewhere, And I shall pass through the land of Egypt on that night:¹¹ just as there up to midnight [is meant], so here up to midnight [is meant].

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. HE WHO READS THE MEGILLAH MAY DO SO EITHER STANDING OR SITTING. WHETHER ONE READS IT OR TWO READ IT [TOGETHER] THEY [THE CONGREGATION] HAVE PERFORMED THEIR OBLIGATION. IN PLACES WHERE IT IS THE CUSTOM TO SAY A BLESSING,¹² IT SHOULD BE SAID, AND WHERE IT IS NOT THE CUSTOM IT NEED NOT BE SAID.

ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH,¹³ THREE READ FROM THE TORAH, NEITHER MORE NOR LESS, NOR IS A HAFTARAH¹⁴ READ FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS¹⁵ FIRST IN THE TORAH¹⁶ AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST¹⁷ MAKE [RESPECTIVELY] A BLESSING BEFORE READING AND AFTER.¹⁸ ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF FESTIVALS FOUR READ, NEITHER MORE NOR LESS, AND THERE IS NO HAFTARAH FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS FIRST AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST IN THE TORAH MAKE A BLESSING BEFORE AND AFTER. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ON ANY DAY WHICH HAS A MUSAF¹⁶ AND IS NOT A FESTIVAL FOUR READ; ON A FESTIVAL FIVE READ; ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SIX READ; ON SABBATH SEVEN READ; THIS NUMBER MAY NOT BE DIMINISHED BUT IT MAY BE ADDED TO, AND A HAFTARAH IS READ FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS FIRST AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST IN THE TORAH MAKE A BLESSING BEFORE AND AFTER. GEMARA. A Tanna stated: 'This [that one may read sitting] is not the case with the Torah'.¹⁹ Whence this rule? — R. Abbahu said: Because Scripture says, But as for thee, stand thou here by me.²⁰ R. Abbahu also said: Were it not written in the Scripture, it would be impossible for us to say it: as it were, the Holy One, blessed be He, also was standing.²¹

R. Abbahu further said: How do we know that the master should not sit on a couch and teach his disciples while they sit on the ground? Because it says, 'But as for thee, do thou stand here by me.'²²

Our Rabbis taught: From the days of Moses up to Rabban Gamaliel, the Torah was learnt only standing. When Rabban Gamaliel died, feebleness descended on the world, and they learnt the Torah sitting; and so we have learnt that 'from the time that Rabban Gamaliel died, [full] honour ceased to be paid to the Torah'.

One verse says, And I sat [wa-esheb] in the mount,²³ and another verse says, And I stood in the mount.²⁴ — Rab says: He [Moses] stood when he learnt and sat while he went over [what he had learnt]. R. Hanina said: He was neither sitting nor standing, but stooping. R. Johanan said: 'Sitting' [yosheb] here means only 'staying', as it says, And ye stayed [teshbu] in Kadesh many days.²⁵ Raba said: The easy things [he learnt] standing and the hard ones sitting.

Talmud - Mas. Megillah 21b

A Tanna stated: This is not the case with [the public reading of] the Torah.

Our Rabbis taught: As regards the Torah, one reads and one translates,¹ and in no case must one read and two translate [together]. As regards the Prophets, one reads and two may translate, but in no case may two read and two translate. As regards Hallel and the Megillah,² even ten may read [and ten may translate].³ What is the reason? Since the people like it,⁴ they pay attention and hear.⁵

WHERE IT IS THE CUSTOM TO SAY A BLESSING, IT SHOULD BE SAID. Abaye said: This rule applies only to the blessing after the reading, but before the reading it is a religious duty to say a blessing, since Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: 'Over the performance of all religious precepts a blessing is said as one passes on [‘ober] to perform them'. How can you prove that this 'passing on means 'just in front of'? — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Scripture says, Then Ahimaaz ran by way of the plain and overran [wa-ya'abor] the Cushite.⁶ Abaye said: We prove it from here: And he himself passed over before them.⁷ Or, if you prefer, I can prove it from here: And their king is passed on before them and the Lord at the head of them.⁸

What blessing is said before the reading of the Megillah? — R. Shesheth from Kateriza happened [once to read] in the presence of R. Ashi, and he made the blessings M'N'H'.⁹ What blessing is said after it? — 'Blessed art thou, O Lord our God, king of the universe, [the God]¹⁰ who espoused our quarrel and vindicated our cause and executed our vengeance and punished our adversaries for us and visited retribution on all the enemies of our soul. Blessed art thou, O Lord, who avenges Israel on all their enemies'. Raba Says: [The concluding words are], 'The God who saves. R. Papa said: Therefore we should say both: 'Blessed art thou, O Lord, who avenges Israel on all their enemies, the God who saves'.

ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THREE READ. What do these three represent? — R. Assi said: The Pentateuch, the Prophets and the Hagiographa. Raba said: Priests, Levites, and lay Israelites. But now, in the statement of R. Shimi, 'Not less than ten verses [of the Torah] should be read in the synagogue, the verse 'and [God] spoke to [Moses saying]' being counted as one',¹¹ — what do these ten represent? — R. Joshua b. Levi said: The ten men of leisure in the synagogue.¹² R. Joseph said: The ten commandments which were given to Moses on Sinai. (R. Levi said: The ten times hallel [praise] which David uttered in the book of Psalms.)¹³ R. Johanan said: The ten utterances with which the world was created.¹⁴ What are these? The expressions 'And [God] said' in the first chapter of Genesis.¹⁵ But there are only nine? — The words 'In the beginning' are also a [creative] utterance, since it is written, By the word of the Lord the heavens were made, and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth.¹⁶

Raba said: If the first reads four verses¹⁷ he is to be commended; if the second reads four verses¹⁸ he is to be commended; if the third reads four verses he is to be commended. 'If the first reads four verses he is to be commended', as we have learnt: 'There were three bags holding three se'ahs¹⁹ each, in which the priests take up the money-offerings out of the [shekel] chamber,²⁰ and they were labelled Aleph, Beth, Gimel,²¹ so as to show which was taken out first, so that sacrifices could be brought from that one first, since it is a religious duty to offer from the first. 'If the middle one reads four verses, he is to be commended', as it has been taught: '[The seven lamps] shall give light in front of the candlestick;²² this teaches that they were made to face the western lamp²³ and the western lamp faced the Shechinah; and R. Johanan said: This shows that the middle one is specially prized'. 'If the last reads four verses he is to be commended': because of the principle that 'in dealing with holy things we promote but never degrade'.²⁴ R. Papa was once in the synagogue of Abe Gobar,²⁵ when the first one [who was called up] read four verses, and R. Papa commended him.

NEITHER LESS NOR MORE [etc.]. A Tanna stated: The one who reads first makes a blessing before the reading, and the one who reads last makes a blessing after it. Nowadays that all make a blessing both before and after the reading, the reason is that the Rabbis ordained this to avoid error on the part of people entering and leaving synagogue.²⁶

ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF THE FESTIVAL FOUR READ. 'Ulla b. Rab enquired of Raba: How is the portion of New Moon²⁷ to be divided? [The paragraph commencing] 'command the children of Israel and say to them'²⁸ has eight verses. How are we to deal with them? Shall two persons read three verses each? Then two verses will be left [to the end of the paragraph], and it is not proper to leave over less than three verses to the end of the paragraph.²⁹ Shall two read four verses each? Then seven verses will be left altogether, [the paragraph beginning] 'and on the sabbath day'³⁰ being two, and [the paragraph beginning] 'and on your new moons'³¹ being five. How are we to do? Shall we read [as one portion] two from one paragraph and one from the next?

[This is not right], since we do not read less than three verses together at the beginning of a paragraph.¹ Shall the reader read two from one and three from the other? Then only two verses are left [to the end of the second paragraph]! — He replied: On this point I have not heard [any pronouncement], but I have learnt the rule in a somewhat similar case, as we have learnt: 'On Sundays, [the ma'amad² read the paragraph] "In the beginning" and "let there be a firmament",³ and to this a gloss was added, "In the beginning" is read by two and "let there be a firmament" by one', and we were somewhat perplexed by this. For that [the paragraph] 'let there be a firmament' can be read by one we understand, since it has three verses, but how can 'In the beginning, be read by two, seeing that it has only five verses, and it has been taught, 'He who reads in the Torah should not read less than three verses'? And it was stated [in answer] to this [question] that Rab says he should repeat,⁴ and Samuel says he should divide a verse. Rab said he should repeat. Why should he not say 'divide'? — He was of opinion that any verse which Moses had not divided, we may not divide, whereas Samuel held that we may divide. But surely, R. Hananiah the Bible teacher⁵ said, I was in great pain in the house of R. Hanina the great, and he would not allow me to make [additional verse] divisions save for the school children, because they are there to be taught? — Now what was the reason there [why he was allowed to make divisions]? Because it could not be avoided; here⁶ too it cannot be avoided. Samuel said that he divides. Why did he not say that he repeats? It is a precaution to prevent error on the part of those coming in and going out.⁷

An objection [against both these views]⁸ was brought from the following: 'A section of six verses may be read by two persons, a section of five verses must be read by one. If the first reads three verses, the second reads the remaining two from this section and one from the next; some, however, say that he reads three from the next, because not less than three verses should be read at the beginning of a section'.⁹ Now if it is as you said,¹⁰ then according to the one who says he should repeat, let him repeat, and according to the one who says he should divide, let him divide? — It is different here,¹¹ because this method is open to him.¹²

R. Tanhum, said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: The halachah follows the alternative opinion¹³ mentioned.

R. Tanhum also said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: Just as at the beginning of a section not less than three verses should be read, so at the end of a section not less than three verses should be left. Surely this is obvious! Seeing that in regard to the beginning of a section where the First Tanna is not so strict the alternative opinion is strict, is it not certain that in regard to the verses left [at the end of the section] where the First Tanna is strict the alternative opinion will also be strict? — You might argue that it is usual for people to come in [to synagogue during the reading of the law],¹⁴ but it is not usual for them to go out and leave the scroll of the law while it is being read;¹⁵ therefore we are told [that we do not argue thus]. But now with regard to the First Tanna: Why does he forbid [less than three verses] to be left [at the end of the section]? On account of people going out of synagogue,¹⁶ is it not? Then with regard to the beginning also he should take precautions on account of people coming in? — I can answer that a person coming in enquires [how much has been read].¹⁷

Rabbah the son of Raba sent to enquire of R. Joseph: What is the law?¹⁸ He sent him back word: The law is that the verse is repeated, and it is a middle reader¹⁹ who repeats.

THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHENEVER THERE IS A MUSAF etc. The question was raised: How many read on a public fast day?²⁰ Shall we say that on New Moon and the intermediate days of the festival when there is an additional sacrifice four read, but here where there is no additional sacrifice this is not the case? Or shall we argue that here also there is an additional prayer?²¹ — Come and hear: ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF FESTIVALS FOUR READ', from which we conclude that on public fasts only three read. Look now at the preceding clause: 'ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THREE READ', from which we may conclude that on a public fast four read! The truth is that we cannot decide from here.

Come then and hear [this]: 'Rab happened to be at Babylon²² during a public fast. He came forward and read in the scroll of the law. Before commencing he made a blessing but after finishing he made no blessing. The whole congregation [afterwards] fell on their faces,²³ but Rab did not fall on his face'. Let us now see. Rab read as a lay Israelite.²⁴ Why then did he say no blessing after finishing? Was it not because another was to read after him? — No. Rab read as kohen,²⁵ for R. Huna also read as kohen.²⁶ I can understand R. Huna reading as kohen, because even R. Assi and R. Ammi who were distinguished kohanim of Eretz Israel showed deference to R. Huna.²⁷ But as to Rab there was Samuel [his Babylonian contemporary] who was a kohen and who took precedence of him?²⁸ — Samuel also showed deference to Rab, and it was Rab²⁹ who of his own accord paid him special honour³⁰ and this he did only in his presence, but not when he was not present. It is reasonable also to assume that Rab read as kohen, because if you presume that he read as a layman, why did he say a blessing before reading? — It was after the regulation³¹ had been made. If so, he should have said a blessing after reading also? — Where Rab was present there was a difference, because people came in [late]

but did not go out [during the reading of the law].¹

Come and hear: 'The general principle is that wherever the people would be hindered from their work, as on a public fast and on the month of Ab, three read, and where the people would not be hindered from their work, as on New Moons and the intermediate days of festivals,² four read'. This settles the question. Said R. Ashi: But we have learnt differently, viz., THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHEREVER THERE IS A MUSAF BUT NOT A FESTIVAL FOUR READ: Now what is added [by the words 'THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE']? Is it not a public fast and the month of Ab? But according to R. Ashi,³ whose view then is recorded in the Mishnah? It is neither that of the First Tanna nor of R. Jose, as it has been taught: 'If it [the month of Ab] falls on Monday or Thursday, three read and one [of them] says a haftarah. If on Tuesday or Wednesday, one reads and [the same] one says the haftarah. R. Jose, however, says that in all cases three read and one [of them] says the haftarah'. But still⁴ the words 'THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE' are difficult! — No. They add New Moon and the intermediate days. But as these are stated explicitly: ON NEW MOONS AND THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS FOUR READ? — [The Mishnah]⁵ is merely giving an indication that you should not say that the festivals and the intermediate days have the same rule, but you should take this as a general principle, that for every additional distinguishing mark an additional person reads. Hence on New Moon and the intermediate days, when there is an additional sacrifice, four read; on festivals, when [in addition] work is prohibited, five read; on the Day of Atonement when [in addition] there is a penalty of kareth, six read; on Sabbath when there is a penalty of stoning, seven read.

The text [above stated]: ‘Rab happened to be in Babylon on a public fast. He came forward and read in the scroll. He made a blessing before commencing, but made no blessing after finishing. The whole congregation [subsequently] fell on their faces, but Rab did not fall on his face’. Why did not Rab fall on his face? There was a stone pavement there and it has been taught: ‘Neither shall ye place any figured stone in your land to bow down upon it:⁶ upon it ye may not bow down in your land, but you may prostrate yourselves on the stones in the Temple’, this teaching is in accord with the opinion of ‘Ulla, who said: The Torah [here] is forbidding only a pavement of stone. If that is the case, why is only Rab mentioned? All the rest should equally have abstained? — It was in front of Rab. But could he not have gone among the congregation and fallen on his face? — He did not want to trouble the congregation.⁷ Or if you like I can say that Rab usually spread out his hands and feet [when he fell on his face], and he followed the opinion of ‘Ulla, who said, The Torah forbade only the spreading out of the hands and feet. But could he not have fallen on his face without spreading out his hands and feet? — He did not care to change his custom. Or if you like I can say that for a distinguished man the rule is different, as laid down by R. Eleazar; for R. Eleazar said: A man of eminence is not permitted to fall on his face⁸ unless he is [sure of being] answered like Joshua son of Nun, as it is written, Wherefore now art thou fallen upon thy face.⁹

Our Rabbis have taught: Kidah means falling upon the face, as it says, Then Bathsheba bowed [wa-tikod] with her face to the earth.¹⁰ Keri'ah means going down upon the knees, and so it says, [Solomon arose] from kneeling [mi-kroa'] on his knees.¹¹ Hishtahawa'ah is spreading out of the hands and feet, as it says, Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren come to prostrate ourselves [lehishtahawoth] before thee to the earth.¹²

Levi displayed a kidah¹³ in the presence of Rabbi and became lame.¹⁴ But was this the cause of his accident? Did not R. Eleazar Say: ‘A man should never complain against heaven, because a great man complained against heaven and he became lame; and who was he? Levi’?¹⁵ — Both things caused it. R. Hiyya b. Abin said: I saw Abaye and Raba bend over to one side.¹

ON FESTIVALS FIVE READ, ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SIX etc. Whose view does the Mishnah embody? It is neither that of R. Ishmael nor of R. Akiba, as it has been taught: 'On festivals five read, on the Day of Atonement six, and on Sabbath seven. This number may neither be increased nor diminished. So R. Ishmael. R. Akiba says: On festivals five read, on the Day of Atonement seven and on Sabbath six. This number may not be diminished but it may be increased'. Whom [does the Mishnah follow]? If R. Ishmael, it conflicts with him over the additional number, if R. Akiba, it conflicts with him over the question of six and seven! — Raba said: The view is that of a Tanna of the school of R. Ishmael, since in the school of R. Ishmael it was stated: 'On festivals five, on the Day of Atonement six, on Sabbath seven; this number may not be diminished but it may be increased. So R. Ishmael.' R. Ishmael is now in conflict with himself! — Two Tannaim report R. Ishmael differently.

Who is responsible for the statement which has been taught: 'On festivals people come late to synagogue and leave early.'² On the Day of Atonement they come early and leave late. On Sabbath they come early and leave early'?³ Shall I say it is R. Akiba who makes an extra man [read on the Day of Atonement]? — You may also say it is R. Ishmael, [his reason being that] the order [of the service] of the day is very long.

What do these three, five and seven represent? — Different answers were given by R. Isaac b. Nahmani and one who was with him, namely, R. Simeon b. Pazzi, or, according to others, by R. Simeon b. Pazzi and one who was with him, namely, R. Isaac b. Nahmani, or according to others, R. Samuel b. Nahmani. One said that [these represent] the [respective number of Hebrew words in the three verses of the] Priestly benedictions,⁴ while the other said 'the three keepers of the door'.⁵ [The five represent] 'five of them that saw the king's face'⁶ [and the seven] 'seven men of them that saw the king's face'.⁷ R. Joseph learnt: Three, five and seven: 'three keepers of the door', five of them that saw the king's face', and 'seven that saw the king's face'. Said Abaye to him: Until to-day your honour never explained the reason to us, he replied: I never knew that you wanted to know. Did you ever ask me anything which I did not tell you?

Jacob the Mir⁸ asked R. Judah: What do the six of the Day of Atonement represent? — He replied: The six who stood at the right of Ezra and the six who stood at his left, as it says, And Ezra the scribe stood upon a pulpit of wood which they had made for the purpose, and beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema and Anaiah and Uriah and Hilkiah and Maaseiah, on his right hand; and on his left hand, Pedaiah, and Mishaël and Malchijah and Hashum and Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, Meshullam.⁹ But these last are seven? — Zechariah is the same as Meshullam. And why is he called Meshullam? Because he was blameless [mishlam] in his conduct.

Our Rabbis taught: All are qualified to be among the seven [who read], even a minor and a woman, only the Sages said that a woman should not read in the Torah out of respect for the congregation.

The question was raised: Should the Maftir¹⁰ be counted among the seven? — R. Huna and R. Jeremiah b. Abba answered differently. One said that he does count and the other that he does not count. The one who says he does count points to the fact that he actually reads [from the Torah also], while the one who says he does not count relies on the dictum of 'Ulla, who said: Why is it proper for the one who reads the haftarah from the Prophet to read in the Torah first? To show respect for the Torah.¹¹ Since then he reads [only] out of respect for the Torah,¹² he should not be counted to make up the seven.

The following was cited in objection to this: 'He who says the haftarah from the Prophet should read not less than twenty-one verses, corresponding to [those read by] the seven who have read in the Torah'. Now if it is as you say,¹³ there are twenty-four? — Since it is only out of respect for the Torah [that he reads],

- (1) Because as men of eminence they were not permitted to fall right on their faces.
 - (2) They come late because they have been busy preparing the festival meal, and they leave early to enjoy the festival.
 - (3) They come early because their food is already prepared, and they leave early to enjoy Sabbath.

no corresponding verses [to those read by him] are required [in the prophetic reading]. Raba strongly demurred to this: There is, he said, [the haftarah of] 'Add your burnt-offerings'¹ in which there are not twenty-one verses, and yet we read it! — The case is different there, because the subject is completed [before twenty-one verses]. But where the subject is not completed, do we then not [read less than twenty-one]? Has not R. Samuel b. Abba said: Many times I stood before R. Johanan, and when I had read ten verses he said,² 'Stop [both of] you'? — In a place where there is a translator³ it is different, since R. Tahlifa b. Samuel has taught: This rule was laid down only for a place where there is no translator, but where there is a translator a stop may be made [earlier].

MISHNAH. THE INTRODUCTION TO THE SHEMA IS NOT REPEATED,⁴ NOR DOES ONE PASS BEFORE THE ARK,⁵ NOR DO [THE PRIESTS] LIFT THEIR HANDS,⁶ NOR IS THE TORAH READ [PUBLICLY] NOR THE HAFTARAH READ FROM THE PROPHET,⁷ NOR ARE HALTS MADE [AT FUNERALS],⁸ NOR IS THE BLESSING FOR MOURNERS SAID,⁹ NOR THE COMFORT OF MOURNERS,¹⁰ NOR THE BLESSING OF THE BRIDEGROOMS,¹¹ NOR IS THE NAME [OF GOD] MENTIONED IN THE INVITATION TO SAY GRACE,¹² SAVE IN THE PRESENCE OF TEN. FOR REDEEMING SANCTIFIED PROPERTIES¹³ NINE AND A PRIEST [ARE SUFFICIENT], AND SIMILARLY WITH HUMAN BEINGS.

GEMARA. Whence these rules?¹⁴ — R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: Because Scripture says, But I will be hallowed among the children of Israel:¹⁵ every act of sanctification requires not less than ten. How does the verse denote this? — As R. Hiyya taught: We explain the word 'among' here by reference to its use in another place. It is written here, 'But I will be hallowed among the children of Israel', and it is written elsewhere, Separate yourselves from among this congregation;¹⁶ and we further explain the word 'congregation' here by reference to what is written in another place, How long shall I bear with this evil congregation.¹⁷ Just as there ten are indicated,¹⁸ so here.

NOR ARE HALTS MADE [AT FUNERALS]. Since [the conductor of the funeral] requires to say, 'stand, dear friends, stand; sit, dear friends, sit',¹⁹ it is not proper²⁰ [to have less than ten].

NOR IS THE BLESSING OF MOURNERS NOR THE BLESSING OF BRIDEGROOMS SAID etc. What is the blessing of mourners? The blessing of the public square,²¹ since²² R. Isaac said in the name of R. Johanan: The blessing of mourners requires the presence of ten, the mourners not being counted; the blessing of bridegrooms requires the presence of ten, the bridegroom being counted.

THE NAME [OF GOD] IS NOT MENTIONED IN THE INVITATION TO SAY GRACE WITH LESS THAN TEN. Since the one who invites has to say, 'Let us bless our God', it is not seemly to do so with less than ten.

FOR REDEEMING PROPERTIES NINE AND A PRIEST. Whence is this rule derived? — Samuel said: Ten priests are mentioned in the section [dealing with sanctifications],²³ one for the actual priest required (and [the first] one [after] to limit),²⁴ and the rest constitute a limitation after a limitation, and a limitation after a limitation has the force of an addition, to include, namely, nine Israelites and one priest.²⁵ But cannot I [rather] say five priests and five Israelites?²⁶ — This is indeed a difficulty.

AND SIMILARLY WITH HUMAN BEINGS. But can a human being become sanctified?²⁷ — R. Abbahu said: It refers to one who says, 'My money [value] be upon me', as it has been taught: 'If a man says, My money [value] be upon me, we estimate his value as we would that of a slave'. And a slave is put on the same footing as landed property, as it is written, And ye may make them an inheritance for your children after you, to hold for a possession.²⁸

MISHNAH. ONE WHO READS THE TORAH [IN SYNAGOGUE] SHOULD READ NOT LESS THAN THREE VERSES, AND HE SHOULD NOT READ TO THE TRANSLATOR MORE THAN ONE VERSE [AT A TIME].²⁹

(2) To him and to the translator.

(3) Who repeats each verse, in the Aramaic Targum.

(4) פורסין על שמע lit., 'they do not divide over the Shema' (v. Glos.). According to Rashi this means that if a number of persons (not less than ten, or seven, or six, or three, according to various opinions, v. Tosaf. and Asheri) come into synagogue after the Shema' has been said, it is allowable for the congregation to repeat the kaddish and bareku and the first blessing before the Shema' for their benefit. From the context one would say that it means here more simply 'say the Shema' with its attendant blessings'. V. P.B. pp. 37ff. V. Rabbinowitz Mishnah Megillah, ad loc. [Kohler (The Origin of the Synagogue and the Church; p. 58) explains the phrase: 'The lifting up the hands towards heaven at the recital of the Shema' — In continuation of the old practice of the Hasidim'. Krauss (Israel-Theol. Lehranstalt, Wien, Bericht, 1933 p. 53): The stepping forward of the reader to recite the Shema'].

(5) To lead the congregation in the Amidah.

(6) To say the priestly blessing, Num. VI, 24-26.

(7) V. supra p. 140.

(8) Lit., 'they do not make a halting and sitting'. It was the custom on the return from a funeral to have seven pauses during which lamentation was made in honour of the dead. V. infra.

(9) V. infra.

(21) בְּרַכַּת רַחֲמֵהָ A blessing of consolation pronounced in the open air on the mourners return from the burial; v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 41, n. 5.

(22) [To be omitted with MS.M. 'R. Isaac said etc.' beginning a new sentence v. Tosaf. s.v. וְאָמַר].

(23) In Lev. XXVII, three times in connection with personal valuations v. 8, three in connection with the valuation of animals vv. 11-13, four with sanctification of property vv. 14, 18, 23; v. 21 is not included as the word priest is not mentioned there in connection with the act of 'valuation'.

(24) These words are bracketed in the text.

(25) V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 71 notes.

(28) Lev. XXV, 46.

(29) So that the translator (who had no book) should not become confused.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 24a

IN A PROPHET, HOWEVER, [HE MAY GIVE HIM] THREE AT A TIME.¹ IF THE THREE VERSES CONSTITUTE THREE SEPARATE PARAGRAPHS,² HE MUST READ THEM [TO THE TRANSLATOR] ONE BY ONE. THE READER MAY SKIP [FROM PLACE TO PLACE] IN A PROPHET BUT NOT IN THE TORAH. HOW FAR MAY HE SKIP? [ONLY] SO FAR THAT THE TRANSLATOR WILL NOT HAVE STOPPED³ [BEFORE HE FINDS HIS PLACE].⁴

GEMARA. What do these three verses represent? — R. Assi said: The Pentateuch, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa.

HE SHOULD NOT READ TO THE TRANSLATOR MORE THAN ONE VERSE. IN A PROPHET, HOWEVER, HE MAY READ THREE. IF THE THREE VERSES CONSTITUTE THREE PARAGRAPHS, HE MUST READ THEM ONE BY ONE. For instance, [the three verses], For thus saith the Lord, ye were sold for nought; For thus saith the Lord God, my people went down aforetime to Egypt; Now therefore what do I here, saith the Lord.⁵

THE READER MAY SKIP IN A PROPHET BUT NOT IN THE TORAH. A contradiction was pointed out [between this and the following]: 'He [the High Priest] reads [on the Day of Atonement] "after the death"⁶ and "only on the tenth day".⁷ But he is skipping? — Abaye replied: There is no contradiction; in the one case the translator will have come to a stop [before the place is found] in the other case he will not have come to a stop.⁸ But it states in connection with this. THE READER MAY SKIP IN THE PROPHET BUT HE MAY NOT SKIP IN THE TORAH. AND HOW FAR MAY HE SKIP? SO FAR THAT THE TRANSLATOR WILL NOT HAVE STOPPED. From this we infer that in the Torah he may not skip at all? — The truth is, said Abaye, that there is no contradiction. In the one case [the reader deals] with one subject, in the other case with two; and in fact it has been taught: 'The reader may skip in the Torah [provided he keeps] to one subject, and in a Prophet even if he goes on to another subject'; and in both cases only so far that the translator will not have stopped [before he finds the place]. It has been taught in another place: 'The reader may not skip from one prophet to another. In the Twelve Minor Prophets he may skip,⁹ provided only that he does not skip from the end of the book to the beginning.'¹⁰

MISHNAH. THE ONE WHO SAYS THE HAFTARAH FROM THE PROPHET REPEATS ALSO THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA,¹¹ AND PASSES BEFORE THE ARK¹² AND LIFTS UP HIS HANDS.¹³ IF HE IS A CHILD,¹⁴ HIS FATHER OR HIS TEACHER PASSES BEFORE THE ARK IN HIS PLACE. A CHILD MAY READ IN THE TORAH AND TRANSLATE, BUT HE MAY NOT PASS BEFORE THE ARK NOR LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A PERSON IN RAGS¹⁵ MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA AND

TRANSLATE, BUT HE MAY NOT READ IN THE TORAH NOR PASS BEFORE THE ARK NOR LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A BLIND MAN MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA AND TRANSLATE. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE WHO HAS NEVER SEEN THE LIGHT FROM HIS BIRTH MAY NOT RECITE THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA'.¹⁶

GEMARA. What is the reason [why the one who says the haftarah has this privilege]? — R. Papa said: As a mark of honour;¹⁷ R. Shimi said: Because otherwise quarrels might arise.¹⁸ What difference is there in practice between them? — There is a difference, in the case of one who reads gratis.¹⁹

We learn: IF HE IS A CHILD, HIS FATHER OR HIS TEACHER PASSES BEFORE THE ARK IN HIS PLACE. If now you say it is to avoid quarrels, will a child pick a quarrel? What then? It is a mark of respect? Does a child receive marks of respect? What you must say is, out of respect for his father and his teacher.

(1) Because if he makes a mistake, it does not matter so much.

(2) V. infra.

(3) Lit., 'so that the translator shall not (have to) pause'.

(4) I.e., he must not have much to unroll in the scroll.

(5) Isa. LII, 3, 4 and 5.

(6) Lev. XVI, 1ff.

(7) Ibid. XXIII, 26ff.

(8) Because the passages read by the High Priest are not far apart.

(9) As these were all written in one scroll,

(10) I.e., go backwards.

(11) V. supra. Sof. XIV, 8 refers this to the Shema' recited at the taking out of the law from the Ark; v. P.B. p. 145.

(12) To read the 'Amidah, and especially the kedushah.

(13) To say the priestly blessing. Why the maftir should have these privileges is not at all clear, and the 'lifting up of hands' certainly was the privilege of every priest. V. Rabinowitz, op. cit. MS.M. omits: 'AND LIFTS UP HIS HANDS.

(14) Under thirteen.

(15) So that most of his body is exposed.

(16) Which include a prayer of thanksgiving for the creation of light.

(17) I.e., as a kind of reward for having consented to read the haftarah.

(18) Between persons eager to act as reader.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 24b

So here too, there is the question of quarrels, involving him or his teacher.

A PERSON IN RAGS MAY REPEAT etc. 'Ulla b. Rab enquired of Abaye: Is a child in rags allowed to read in the Torah?¹ He replied: You might as well ask about a naked one. Why is one without any clothes not allowed? Out of respect for the congregation. So here, [he is not allowed] out of respect for the congregation.

A BLIND MAN MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS etc. It has been taught: They said to R. Judah: Many have discerned sufficiently [with their mind's eye] to expound the Chariot,² and yet they never saw it? — What says R. Judah to this? — There [he can reply], all depends on the discernment of the heart, and the expounder by concentrating his mind can know, but here one reads for the benefit which he derives therefrom,³ and this one derives no benefit.⁴ The Rabbis, however, hold that he does derive a benefit, for the reason given by R. Jose, as it has been taught: R. Jose said: I was long perplexed by this verse, And thou shalt grope at noonday as the blind gropeth in darkness.⁵ Now what difference [I asked] does it make to a blind man whether it is dark or light? [Nor did I find the answer] until the following incident occurred. I was once walking on a pitch black night when I saw a blind man walking in the road with a torch in his hand. I said to him, My son, why do you carry this torch? He replied: As long as I have this torch in my hand, people see me and save me from the holes and the thorns and briars.⁶

MISHNAH. A PRIEST WHOSE HANDS ARE DEFORMED SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS [TO SAY THE PRIESTLY BLESSING]. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO ONE WHOSE HANDS ARE DISCOLOURED WITH WOAD⁷ SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS, BECAUSE [THIS MAKES] THE CONGREGATION LOOK AT HIM.⁸

GEMARA. A Tanna stated: The deformities which were laid down [as disqualifying] are on the face, the hands and the feet.⁹ R. Joshua b. Levi said: If his hands are spotted¹⁰ he should not lift up his hands. It has been taught similarly: 'If his hands are spotted, he should not lift up his hands. If they are curved inwards or bent sideways, he should not lift up his hands'.

R. Assi said: A priest from Haifa or Beth Shean¹¹ should not lift up his hands. It has been taught to the same effect: 'We do not allow to pass before the ark either men from Beth Shean or from Haifa or from Tib'onim,¹² because they pronounce alif as 'ayin and 'ayin as alif'.¹³

Said R. Hiyya to R. Simeon b. Rabbi: If you were a Levite, you would not be qualified to chant,¹⁴ because your voice is thick. He went and told his father who said to him: Go and say to him, When you come to the verse, And I will wait [we-hikethi] for the Lord,¹⁵ will you not be a reviler and blasphemer?¹⁶

R. Huna said: A man whose eyes run should not lift up his hands. But was there not one in the neighbourhood of R. Huna who used to spread forth his hands? — The townspeople had become accustomed to him.¹⁷ It has been taught to the same effect: 'A man whose eyes run should not lift up his hands, but if the townspeople are accustomed to him, he is permitted'. R. Johanan said: A man blind in one eye should not lift up his hands. But was not there one in the neighbourhood of R. Johanan who used to lift up his hands? — The townspeople were accustomed to him. It has been taught to the same effect: 'A man blind in one eye should not lift up his hands, but if the townspeople are accustomed to him, he is permitted'.

R. JUDAH SAYS: A MAN WHOSE HANDS ARE DISCOLOURED SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A Tanna stated: If most of the men of the town follow the same occupation it is permitted.

MISHNAH. IF ONE SAYS, I WILL NOT PASS BEFORE THE ARK [TO ACT AS READER] IN COLOURED ROBES, HE MUST NOT PASS BEFORE IT IN WHITE ROBES EITHER. [IF HE SAYS], I WILL NOT PASS BEFORE IT IN SHOES, HE MUST NOT PASS BEFORE IT BAREFOOT EITHER. A PHYLACTERY [FOR THE HEAD] WHICH IS MADE ROUND¹⁸ IS DANGEROUS¹⁹ AND HAS NO RELIGIOUS VALUE. TO PUT THEM ON THE FOREHEAD OR ON THE PALM OF THE HAND²⁰ IN THE MANNER OF THE HERESY,²¹ TO OVERLAY THEM WITH GOLD OR PUT [THE ONE FOR THE HAND] ON ONE'S SLEEVE IS THE MANNER OF THE OUTSIDERS.²²

GEMARA. [IN COLOURED ROBES]. What is the reason [why he must not act as reader]? We are apprehensive that he has a leaning towards minuth.²³

TO MAKE ONE'S PHYLACTERY ROUND IS DANGEROUS AND HAS NO RELIGIOUS

VALUE. May we say that our Mishnah teaches here the same as our Rabbis taught: 'That phylacteries should be square is a law set down by Moses at Sinai', and Raba explained [this to mean] in their seam and in their diagonal?²⁴ — R. Papa said: The Mishnah is speaking only of those which are made as round as a nut.²⁵

MISHNAH. IF ONE SAYS

- (1) A child not being forbidden to expose himself.
- (2) The first chapter of Ezekiel.
- (3) Viz., the light.
- (4) He does not enjoy the benefit of light.
- (5) Deut. XXVIII, 29.
- (6) So although blind, he does benefit by the light.
- (7) [Var. lec. add: 'or madder', a red dye].
- (8) And it is forbidden to look at the priests while saying the blessing, v. Hag. 16.
- (9) The priest said the blessing barefoot, v. Sot. 40a.
- (10) With white pustules. The deformity apparently is the same as that referred to in Lev. XIII, 39.
- (11) Towns in Palestine.
- (12) More correctly Tibe'on, perhaps the same as modern Tubun, W. of Sephoris.
- (13) V. Glos.
- (14) Lit., 'for the platform', on which the Levites stood while chanting.
- (15) Isa. VIII, 17.
- (16) Because he could not pronounce a heth and would say we-hikethi, which would mean 'And I shall smite'.
- (17) Lit. 'he had become familiar to the townspeople'.
- (18) Instead of cube-shaped.
- (19) [The capsule might penetrate his head during prostration at tahanun (supra p. 135 n. 6). V. Rashi and R. Hananel]. R. Tam takes this to mean that it will not avail him in time of danger. V. Shab. 49a.
- (20) According to the literal meaning of the text, and thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand and they shall be phylacteries between thine eyes. Deut. VI, 8.
- (21) Minuth (v. Glos. s.v. Min) Maim.: Sadducees. The reading 'Karaites' in some texts is a censor's variant.
- (22) This term apparently designates persons who followed the Rabbis only partially. According to the Rabbis, the phylacteries had to be made wholly of the skin of a clean animal and to be placed directly on the flesh.
- (23) Probably Judeo-Christianity, the Christians being particular about this. For other suggestions v. Rabinowitz, op. cit. a.l.
- (24) Apparently this means 'both in their base and in their height'.
- (25) But the shape of an egg or of a bean might be permitted (Rashi).

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 25a

'MAY THE GOOD BLESS THEE', THIS IS A CUSTOM OF HERESY.¹ [IF HE SAYS], 'MAY THY MERCIES REACH THE NEST OF A BIRD', 'MAY THY NAME BE MENTIONED FOR WELL-DOING', 'WE GIVE THANKS, WE GIVE THANKS',² HE IS SILENCED. IF HE INTRODUCES EUPHEMISMS INTO THE PORTION DEALING WITH FORBIDDEN MARRIAGES,³ HE IS SILENCED. IF HE SAYS, [INSTEAD OF] 'AND THOU SHALT NOT GIVE ANY OF THY SEED TO SET THEM APART TO MOLOCH', 'THOU SHALT NOT GIVE TO TRANSFER IT TO A GENTILE WOMAN',⁴ HE IS BOTH SILENCED AND REBUKED.⁵

GEMARA. We understand the prohibition of saying 'WE GIVE THANKS, WE GIVE THANKS', because he seems to be addressing two Powers;⁶ also of 'THY NAME BE MENTIONED FOR WELL-DOING', because this implies, for good, yes, for evil, no, and we have learnt, 'It is the duty of a man to bless [God] for evil in the same way as he blesses for good'.⁷ But what is the reason for prohibiting, 'MAY THY MERCIES REACH THE NEST OF A BIRD'?⁸ —

Different answers were given by two Amoraim in the West [Palestine], R. Jose b. Abin and R. Jose b. Zebida. One said, it is because he creates jealousy in the work of the creation,⁹ and the other says it is because he makes the commands¹⁰ of the Holy One, blessed be He, acts of grace, whereas they are only decrees.¹¹ A certain man went down [before the ark] in the presence of Rabbah and said, 'Thou hast shown pity to the nest of a bird, do thou have pity and mercy on us'; (Thou hast shown pity to an animal and its young,¹² do thou have pity and mercy on us). Said Rabbah: How well this Rabbi knows how to placate his Master! Said Abaye to him: But we have learnt, HE IS SILENCED? — Rabbah only wanted to sharpen Abaye's wits.

A certain [reader] went down before the ark in the presence of R. Hanina and said, 'The great, the mighty, the terrible, the majestic, the strong, the powerful God'. He said to him: Have you finished the praises of your Master? Even the first three, had it not been that Moses wrote them in the Law¹³ and the Men of the Great Synagogue came and ordained them,¹⁴ we should not recite; and you say all this! It is as if a man had thousands of thousands of denarii of gold and people to praise his wealth would say he had a thousand. Would it not be an insult to him?

R. Hanina said: Everything is in the hands of heaven except the fear of heaven¹⁵ as it says, And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God ask of thee but to fear.¹⁶ Are we to infer from this that fear is a small thing? — Yes; for Moses our teacher it was a small thing. In the same way, if a man is asked for a big article and he has it, it seems to him only small, but if he is asked for a small article and he has it not, it seems big to him.

R. Zera said: For one to say, 'Hear, Hear',¹⁷ is like saying, 'We give thanks, we give thanks'. The following was cited in objection to this: 'He who recites the Shema' and repeats is reprehensible'. He is only reprehensible, but we do not silence him? — There is no contradiction. In the one case we suppose he repeats each word as he says it,¹⁸ in the other that he repeats a whole sentence.¹⁹ Said R. Papa to him: But perhaps [the reason why he repeats] is because at first he was not thinking of what he said, and now he does think? — He replied: Is he to treat heaven like an ordinary acquaintance?²⁰ If he does not think of what he is saying, I will hit him with a hammer till he does think.

IF HE INTRODUCES EUPHEMISMS INTO THE PASSAGE DEALING WITH FORBIDDEN MARRIAGES, HE IS SILENCED. R. Joseph learned: [If, for example, he says] 'the shame of his father, the shame of his mother'.²¹

IF ONE SAYS, AND THOU SHALT NOT GIVE ANY OF THY SEED TO SET THEM APART etc. In the school of R. Ishmael it was stated: The text speaks of an Israelite who has intercourse with a Cuthean woman and begets from her a son for idolatry.²²

MISHNAH. THE INCIDENT OF REUBEN IS READ IN SYNAGOGUE BUT NOT TRANSLATED.²³ THE STORY OF TAMAR²⁴ IS READ AND TRANSLATED. THE FIRST ACCOUNT OF THE INCIDENT OF THE GOLDEN CALF²⁵ IS BOTH READ AND TRANSLATED, THE SECOND²⁶ IS READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE BLESSING OF THE PRIESTS²⁷ IS READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE STORIES OF DAVID²⁸ AND AMNON²⁹ ARE READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE PORTION OF THE CHARIOT³⁰ IS NOT READ AS A HAFTARAH, BUT R. JUDAH PERMITS THIS. R. ELEAZAR SAYS: THE PORTION, MAKE KNOWN TO JERUSALEM',³¹ IS NOT READ AS A HAFTARAH.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Some portions [of the Scripture] are both read and translated, some are read but not translated, [and some are neither read nor translated].³² The following are both read and translated: (Mnemonic: B'L'T' 'E'K'N' N'SH'P'H').³³ The account of the creation³⁴ is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [through hearing it] people are led to inquire what is above and what is below,

- (1) Minuth (v. supra note 4); implying that only the good are invited to bless God (Rashi).
- (2) In the 'Amidah prayer.
- (3) Lev, ch. XVIII.
- (4) I.e., beget children from a Gentile woman. Aliter: 'To render pregnant a Gentile woman'. Either version is a departure from the text which is an injunction against Moloch worship. [Aruch (s.v. מלך): 'Thou shalt not give any of thy seed to the Arameans to set them apart to Moloch', implying that the prohibition applies only to the Moloch worship of a particular nation. Albeck Ch., Bericht Hochschule, Berlin 1930 p. 55 renders it: thou shalt not give thy seed to pass to heathendom, viz., to introduce them to the knowledge of heathen culture and custom.]

- (10) Lit., 'his attributes'. [Herford sees in this a protest against the Pauline antithesis of Law and Grace, v. Christianity in Talmud and Midrash pp. 202ff.]
- (11) Which must be obeyed whether they are merciful or not.

- (17) In reciting the Shema'.
- (18) I.e., he says, 'Hear, hear, Israel, Israel' which is only a stupidity.
- (19) I.e., he says, 'We give thanks to thee, we give thanks to thee', as if he were addressing two Powers.
- (20) Lit., 'Intimacy towards heaven!'
- (21) From prudery, instead of 'the nakedness'; Lev. XVIII, 7. [Maim: instead 'of thy father', 'of thy mother'].
- (22) Cf. Pseudo-Jonathan a.l. Apparently this is in flat contradiction with the Mishnah. Possibly R. Ishmael means to explain the words of the Mishnah which are somewhat obscure (Rashi). [According to Aruch's and Albeck's explanations (v. p. 149, n. 3) the Mishnah does not denounce R. Ishmael's version.]

and what is before and what is after.¹ Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Lot and his two daughters² is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Abraham. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Tamar and Judah is both read and translated. Certainly! — We might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Judah. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]; [the passage] really redounds to his credit, because [it records that] he confessed.³ The first account of the making of the Calf is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Israel. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]; on the contrary, it is agreeable to them,⁴ because it was followed by atonement.⁵ The curses and blessings⁶ are both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] lest the congregation should become disheartened; therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. Warnings and penalties are both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] for fear that they may come to keep the commandments out of fear;⁷ therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for David. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of the concubine in Gibeath⁸ is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think [that we should forbear] out of respect for Benjamin. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The passage commencing ‘Make known to Jerusalem her abominations’ is both read and translated. Certainly! — This is stated to exclude the view of R. Eleazar, as it has been taught: ‘On one occasion a man read in the presence⁹ of R. Eleazar ‘Make known to Jerusalem her abominations’. He said to him, While you are investigating the abominations of Jerusalem, go and investigate the abominations of your own mother. Inquiries were made into his birth, and he was found to be illegitimate.

Mnemonic: R'E'B'D'N').¹⁰ The incident of Reuben is read but not translated. On one occasion R. Hanina b. Gamaliel went to Kabul,¹¹ and the reader of the congregation read, ‘And it came to pass when Israel abode’,¹² and he said to the translator, Translate only the latter part of the verse, and the Sages commended his action. The second account of the Calf is read but not translated. What is the second account of the Calf? — From ‘And Moses said’ up to ‘and Moses saw’.¹³ It has been taught: A man should always be careful in wording his answers, because on the ground of the answer which Aaron made to Moses the unbelievers were able to deny [God], as it says, And I cast it into the fire and this calf came forth.¹⁴

The priestly blessing is read but not translated. What is the reason? — Because it contains the words, May he lift up.¹⁵

The accounts of David and Amnon are neither read nor translated.¹⁶ But you just said that the story of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated? — There is no contradiction; the former statement refers to where it says ‘Amnon son of David’,¹⁷ the latter to where it says ‘Amnon’ simply.

Our Rabbis taught: Wherever an indelicate expression is written in the text, we substitute a more polite one in reading.¹⁸ [Thus for] yishgalenah¹⁹ [we read] yishkabenah;²⁰ [for] ba'apolim²¹ [we read] ba-tehorim;²² [for] hiryonim²³ [we read] dibyonim;²⁴ [for] le-ekol eth horehem we-lishtoeth meme shinehem²⁵ [we read] le-ekol eth zo'atham we-lishtoeth meme raglehem;²⁶ [for] la-mahara'oth²⁷ [we read] lemoza'oth.²⁸ R. Joshua b. Korha, however, says that the actual word la-mahara'oth²⁷ [is read] because it is a term of opprobrium for idolatry. R. Nahman said: All gibing²⁹ is forbidden save gibing at idolatry, which is permitted, as it is written, Bel boweth down, Nebo stoopeth³⁰ and the text goes on, They stoop, they bow down together, they cannot deliver the burden, etc. R. Jannai learns the same lesson from here: The inhabitants of Samaria shall be in dread for the calves of Beth Aven, for the people thereof shall mourn over it and the Priests thereof shall tremble for it, for its glory, because it is departed from it.³¹ Read not ‘its glory’ [kebodo], but ‘its burden’ [kebedo]. R. Huna b. Manoah said in the name of R. Aha the son of R. Ika: It is permitted to an Israelite to say to a Cuthean, Take your idol and put it in your shin tof.³² R. Ashi said: It is permissible to abuse a person of ill fame³³ with the term gimel shin.³⁴ It is permissible to praise a person of good report and if one does praise him, ‘blessings shall rest upon his head’.

THEY MAY BUY SCROLLS;¹ [IF THEY SELL] SCROLLS THEY MAY BUY A [SEFER] TORAH. BUT IF THEY SELL A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY WITH THE

PROCEEDS SCROLLS; IF [THEY SELL] SCROLLS THEY MAY NOT BUY WRAPPINGS; IF [THEY SELL] WRAPPINGS THEY MAY NOT BUY AN ARK; IF [THEY SELL] AN ARK THEY MAY NOT BUY A SYNAGOGUE; IF [THEY SELL] A SYNAGOGUE THEY MAY NOT BUY A TOWN SQUARE. THE SAME APPLIES TO ANY MONEY LEFT OVER.²

GEMARA. IF THE TOWNSPEOPLE SELL THE TOWN SQUARE. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This is the view of R. Menahem b. Jose the anonymous author,³ but the Sages say that no sanctity attaches to the square. What is the reason of R. Menahem b. Jose? — Because the people pray in it on fast days⁴ and at gatherings of the ma'amad.⁵ What say the Rabbis to this? — That happens only exceptionally. IF [THEY SELL] THE SYNAGOGUE THEY MAY BUY AN ARK. R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: This rule applies only to a synagogue in a village, but a synagogue in a large town, since people from all parts come to it,⁶ may not be sold, it being regarded as belonging to a wider public. Said R. Ashi: As for this synagogue in Matha Mehasia,⁷ although people come to it from all parts, since they come at my discretion,⁸ I can if I like sell it. An objection was raised: 'R. Judah says: It is recorded of the synagogue of the coppersmiths⁹ in Jerusalem that they sold it to R. Eliezer and he used it for his own purposes'. And yet that was one in a large town? — That was a very small synagogue, and they themselves had made it.

The following was further raised in objection: 'In a house of the land of your possession:¹⁰ your possession is defiled by leprosy, but Jerusalem is not defiled by leprosy'.¹¹ R. Judah said: I have not heard this laid down save with respect to the area of the Sanctuary alone. We thus see that [according to R. Judah] synagogues and houses of study are defiled; and yet why [according to you] should this be, seeing that they belong to the town?¹² — I would emend [the above statement to read]: 'R. Judah says: I have not heard this rule laid down save in relation to a sanctified place only'.¹³

On what point do these [two authorities] join issue? — The First Tanna is of opinion that Jerusalem was not apportioned to [any of] the tribes,¹⁴ while R. Judah was of opinion that it was apportioned to [certain of] the tribes; and their difference is the same as that of the following Tannaim, as it has been taught: What [part of Jerusalem] was in the portion of Judah?¹⁵ The Temple mountain,¹⁶ the priestly chambers,¹⁷ and the courts.¹⁸ And what was in the portion of Benjamin? The hall¹⁹ and the sanctuary²⁰ and the holy of holies.²¹ A strip projected from the portion of Judah into the portion of Benjamin, and in it the altar [of sacrifice] was built, and every day the righteous Benjamin fretted over it, desiring to swallow it up, as it says, Crouching over it all the day.²² Therefore Benjamin was privileged to become the host of the Shechinah'.²³ The following Tanna, however, held that Jerusalem was not apportioned to any of the tribes, as it has been taught: 'People cannot let out houses²⁴ in Jerusalem as they do not belong to them. R. Eleazar b. Zadok says: They may not hire out beds either.²⁵ Therefore householders [who took in guests] would seize the skins of [visitors'] sacrifices forcibly'.²⁶ Abaye remarked: We may see from this that it is good manners for a man to leave his [empty] wine-flask and his skin-rug at his guest-house.

Raba said: This rule²⁷ was meant to apply only where the seven 'good men' of the town²⁸ did not sell in the assembly of the townspeople. But if the seven 'good men' of the town sold in the assembly of the townspeople, even if it was for a drinking place,¹ the transaction holds good. Rabina had the ground of a dismantled synagogue. He applied to R. Ashi to know whether he could plant seeds there. He replied: Go and buy it from the seven 'good men' of the town in the assembly of the townspeople, and you may then sow it.

Rami b. Abba was building a synagogue. There was a certain old synagogue which he wanted to pull down, so as to take bricks and beams from it and use them for the other. He was doubtful, however, how to interpret the dictum of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda² said: A man should not pull down a synagogue until he has built another [to take its place]. The reason there, [he knew] was so that there should be no negligence.³ But what was the rule in such a case as this?⁴ He applied to R. Papa, who forbade him; to R. Huna, and he also forbade him.

Raba said: A synagogue may be exchanged or sold [for secular purposes], but may not be hired or pledged. What is the reason?

[In the latter case] its holiness is still adhering to it.⁵ Its bricks also, may be exchanged or sold [for secular purposes], but not lent. This rule applies only to old ones,⁶ but in the case of new ones there is no objection.⁷ And even if we adopt the view that the mere intention [to use a thing for a certain purpose] has a certain force, this would be the case, for instance, with one who weaves a shroud for a dead body,⁸ but in this case [the objects in question] are like thread which has still to be woven into cloth, and no authority says [that in such a case there is force in mere intention].

[With regard to a synagogue which has been made] a gift, there is a difference of opinion between

R. Aha and Rabina, one forbidding [it to be used for secular purposes] and one permitting. The one who forbade did so on the ground that there is nothing to which its holiness is transferred,⁹ while the one who permitted it argued that if he [the giver] did not derive some benefit from the act¹⁰ he would not give it, so that in the end the gift is equivalent to a sale.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Accessories of religious observances [when disused] are to be thrown away; accessories of holiness are to be stored away. The following are accessories of religious observances: a sukkah, a lulab, a shofar,¹¹ fringes. The following are accessories of holiness: large sacks for keeping scrolls of the Scripture in, tefillin and mezuzoth,¹¹ a mantle for a sefer torah,¹¹ and a tefillin bag and tefillin straps’. Raba said: At first I used to think that the stand [on which the sefer torah is placed] is an accessory to an accessory and that it is permitted.¹² When, however, I saw that the sefer torah is placed actually on it,¹³ I came to the conclusion that it is all accessory of holiness and is forbidden. Raba further said: At first I used to think that the curtain¹⁴ is an accessory of an accessory. When, however, I observed that it is folded over and a scroll is placed on it, I came to the conclusion that it is itself an accessory of holiness, and forbidden.

Raba further said: When an ark is falling asunder, to make it into a smaller ark is permitted, but to make it into a stand¹⁵ is forbidden. Raba further said: When a curtain is worn out, to make it into a mantle for a [whole] scroll of the Law is permitted, but for a single humash¹¹ is forbidden. Raba further said: These bags for humashim and boxes for scrolls¹⁶ are accessories of holiness and must be stored away [when disused]. Is not this obvious? — You might think that these are used not out of respect [for the scrolls] but merely for protection. Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

There was a synagogue of the Roman Jews¹⁷ which opened out into a room where a dead body was deposited.¹⁸ The kohanim¹⁹ wanted to go in there to pray, and they came and asked Raba [what they should do]. He said: Take the ark and put it down there,²⁰ since it is a wooden vessel which is meant to be stationary, and every wooden vessel which is meant to be stationary is immune from defilement and forms a partition to prevent the passage of defilement. Said the Rabbis to Raba: But sometimes it is moved while a scroll of the law is resting on it, and thus it becomes a vessel which is moved both when full and when empty? If that is so [he said], there is no remedy.

Mar Zutra said: Wrappings of scrolls which are worn out may be used for making shrouds for a meth mizwah;²¹ and this act constitutes their ‘storing away’.

Raba also said: A scroll of the law which is worn out may be buried by the side of a talmid hakam,¹⁹ even though he be one who only repeats halachoth.²² R. Aha b. Jacob said: It should be put in an earthenware vessel, as it says, And put them in an earthen vessel that they may continue many days.²³

R. Papi said in the name of Raba: To turn a synagogue into a college²⁴ is permitted; to turn a college into a synagogue is forbidden. R. Papa, however, also reporting Raba, states the opposite. R. Aha said:

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 27a

The statement of R. Papi is the more probable, since R. Joshua b. Levi said: It is permissible to make a synagogue into a beth hamidrash. This seems conclusive.

Bar Kappara gave the following exposition. 'What is the meaning of the verse, And he burnt the house of the Lord and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem even every great man's house burnt he with fire?'¹ 'The house of the Lord': this is the Temple. 'The king's house': this is the royal palace. 'All the houses of Jerusalem': literally. 'Even every great man's house burnt he with fire':² R. Johanan and R. Joshua b. Levi gave different interpretations of this. One said, it means the place where the Torah is magnified; the other, the place where a prayer is magnified. The one who says Torah bases himself on the verse, The Lord was pleased, for his righteousness' sake to make the torah great and glorious.³ The one who says prayer bases himself on the verse, Tell me, I pray thee, the great things that Elisha has done;⁴ and what Elisha did, he did by means of prayer. It may be presumed that it was R. Joshua b. Levi who said, 'the place where Torah is magnified', since R. Joshua b. Levi said that a synagogue may be turned into a beth ha-midrash; which is a clear indication.

BUT IF THEY SELL A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY SCROLLS. The question was raised: What is the rule about selling an old sefer torah to buy a new one? Do we say that since we do not thus go to higher grade [in the use of the money] it is forbidden, or are we to say that since there is no higher grade to go to, there is no objection? Come and hear: BUT IF THEY SELL, A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY SCROLLS; it is scrolls that they may not buy, but to buy a [sefer] torah with the money of a [sefer] torah is unobjectionable! [No.] But the Mishnah speaks of some thing already done, we ask whether it may be done in the first instance? — Come and hear: A sefer torah may be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash, or a humash in the wrappings of a scroll of prophets and hagiographa, but prophets and hagiographa may not be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash, nor a humash in the wrappings of a sefer torah.⁵ Now it states here at any rate that a sefer torah may be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash; [as much as to say], in the wrappings of a humash it may be, but in those of [another] sefer torah it may not be?⁶ — Look at the succeeding clause: 'But a humash may not be rolled up in the wrappings of a sefer torah', which would imply that there is no objection against wrapping a sefer torah in those of another sefer torah? — The fact is that from this statement no conclusion can be drawn.

Come and hear: 'A [sefer] torah may be laid on another [sefer] torah, and a [sefer] torah on separate humashim, and separate humashim on scrolls of the prophets and hagiographa, but scrolls of the prophets and hagiographa may not be placed on humashim, nor humashim on a [sefer] torah'! — You speak here of laying; laying is different, because it is impossible to avoid it; for if you do not suppose this, [we may ask,] how are we allowed to roll up the scrolls, seeing that in so doing we lay one sheet on another? The fact is that since this cannot be avoided, it is permitted; and so here also, since it cannot be avoided,⁷ it is permitted.

Come and hear, since Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan, who had it from Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel: A man should not sell an old [sefer] torah in order to buy a new one with the proceeds! — There the reason is lest he should [afterwards] neglect to do so; here we speak of a case where the new one is written and waiting to be paid for. What is the rule [in such a case]? — Come and hear, since R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: A man should not sell a sefer torah save in order to study the Torah and to marry a wife. From this we may conclude [may we not] that there is no objection against buying one sefer torah with the proceeds of another? — Perhaps study comes under a different rule, since study leads on to practice. Marrying also [is permitted because it says], 'He created it not a waste, he formed it to be inhabited,'⁸ but to buy a sefer torah with the proceeds of another is still not permitted.

Come and hear: 'A man should not sell a sefer torah even though he does not require it. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel went further and said: Even if a man has no food and he sells a sefer torah or his daughter, he will never have any luck⁹ [from that money]'.

THE SAME APPLIES TO ANY MONEY LEFT OVER. Raba said: This is the rule only if they had money left over from a sale; but if they had money left over from a collection, it is permitted [to use it for any purpose]. Abaye cited the following in objection to this: 'When does this rule apply? If they made no stipulation; but if they made a stipulation, they may even give it to the duchsusia'.¹⁰ Now how are we to understand this? Shall we say that they [the seven good men] sold [a holy article] and had money left over [after purchasing a new one]? Then even if they made a stipulation [that they could do what they liked with it], what does it avail?¹¹ We must say therefore that they collected money and had some left over, and the reason is given that 'they made a stipulation', but if they made no stipulation they cannot? — I still maintain that [what is meant is] that they sold and had something left, and the statement should run thus: 'When does this rule apply? When the seven "good men" of the town did not make any stipulation in the assembly of the townspeople; but if the seven good men of the town made a stipulation in the assembly of the townspeople, it may be used even for paying a duchsusia'.

Abaye said to a Rabbinical student who used to repeat¹² the Mishnah in the presence of R. Shesheth: Have you ever heard from R. Shesheth what is meant by duchsusia? — He replied: This is what R. Shesheth said: The town horseman.¹³ Abaye thereupon observed: This shows that a Rabbinical student who has heard something of which he does not know the meaning should ask one who is frequently in the company of the Rabbis, since he is almost certain to have heard the answer from some great man.

R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: If the representatives of one town¹⁴ go [on a visit] to another town and they are there rated for a charity contribution, they should pay it and on leaving they should bring the money with them¹⁵ to assist with it the poor of their own town. It has been taught to the same effect: 'If the men of one town go to another town and are there rated for a charity contribution, they should pay it, and when they leave they should bring the money back with them. If an individual, however, goes to another town and is there rated for a charity contribution, it is given to the poor of that town

R. Huna once proclaimed a fast day. R. Hana b. Hanilai and all the [leading] men of his place happened to visit him [on that day], and they were called upon for a charity contribution, and they gave it. When they were about to leave, they said to him [R. Huna], Kindly return it to us so that we may go and assist with it the poor of our own town. He replied to them: We have learnt: 'When does this rule apply? When there is no town scholar¹ in charge there; but if there is a scholar in control there, it should be given to the town scholar, and all the more so in this case, seeing that both my poor and your poor depend upon me.

MISHNAH. [A SYNAGOGUE² BELONGING TO A COMMUNITY³ SHOULD NOT BE SOLD TO A PRIVATE PERSON BECAUSE ITS SANCTITY IS [THEREBY] LOWERED. SO R. MEIR. THEY SAID TO HIM: IF SO, IT SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO SELL FROM A LARGER TOWN TO A SMALLER ONE.

GEMARA. That was a sound objection raised by the Rabbis against R. Meir, [was it not]? What says R. Meir to this? — [To sell] from a large town to a small one [is unobjectionable], because if it was holy to begin with, it is still holy now. But if it passes from a community to an individual, there is no holiness left.⁴ [And what is the reply of] the Rabbis [to this]? — If that raises a scruple [in this case], in the other case also it raised a scruple, because 'in the multitude of people is the king's glory'.⁵

MISHNAH. A SYNAGOGUE MAY NOT BE SOLD SAVE WITH THE STIPULATION THAT IT MAY BE BOUGHT BACK [BY THE SELLERS] WHENEVER THEY DESIRE. SO R. MEIR. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, SAY THAT IT MAY BE SOLD IN PERPETUITY, SAVE FOR FOUR PURPOSES-FOR A BATH, FOR A TANNERY, FOR A RITUAL BATH, OR FOR A LAUNDRY. R. JUDAH SAYS: IT MAY BE SOLD FOR [TURNING INTO] A COURTYARD, AND THE PURCHASER MAY DO WHAT HE LIKES WITH IT.

GEMARA. On R. Meir's ruling, how do people live in it? [The rent they pay] would be interest!⁶ — R. Johanan replied: R. Meir gave this ruling on the basis of the view of R. Judah, who said that interest which is only contingent⁷ is permitted, as it has been taught:⁸ 'If a man lent another a maneh and the latter made a [conditional] sale to him of his field,⁹ if the vendor takes¹⁰ the produce, this is permitted, but if the purchaser takes the produce, it is forbidden.¹¹ R. Judah said that even if the purchaser takes the produce it is permitted. Said R. Judah further: It happened once that Boethus b. Zunin made a sale of his field with the permission of R. Eleazar b. Azariah, and the purchaser took the produce. They said to him: Do you cite that as a proof? It was in fact the vendor who took the produce and not the purchaser'. On what point of principle did they differ? — On the question of contingent interest; one authority [R. Judah] held that contingent interest is permitted, and the other held that it is forbidden. Raba said: All authorities agree that contingent interest is forbidden, and the point at issue is the taking of interest on condition of returning it. One authority [R. Judah] held that to take interest on condition of returning it [when the principal is returned] is permitted,¹² while the other held that it is forbidden.

THE SAGES SAY HE MAY SELL IT IN PERPETUITY etc. Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: It is permitted to a man to make water within four cubits of where prayers have been said. Said R. Joseph: What has he told us? We have already learnt it: R. JUDAH SAYS: IT MAY BE SOLD FOR USE AS A COURTYARD, AND THE PURCHASER MAY DO WHAT HE LIKES IN IT; And even the Rabbis did not forbid save in the synagogue itself, since its sanctity is permanent, but for the four adjoining cubits, the sanctity of which is not permanent,¹³ they did not make such a rule.

A tanna recited in the presence of R. Nahman: One who has just said prayers may go a distance of four cubits and make water, and one who has made water may go a distance of four cubits and pray. He said to him: I grant you that one who has made water may go four cubits and pray; this we have learnt:¹⁴ 'How far should he remove from it and from excrement? Four cubits'. But why should one who has prayed remove four cubits before making water? If that is the rule, you have sanctified all the streets of Nehardea!¹⁵ Say, 'should wait' [the time it takes to go four cubits]. [Is that so?] I grant you that one who has made water should wait till he can go four cubits, on account of drippings [on his clothes]. But why should one who has just prayed wait long enough to go four cubits? — R. Ashi replied: Because for the time it takes to go four cubits his mouth is still full of his prayer¹⁶ and his lips are still muttering it. (Mnemonic Z'L'P'N').¹⁷ R. Zaccai was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I made water within four cubits of a place where prayers have been said, nor have I given an opprobrious epithet to my fellow, nor have I omitted [to perform] the sanctification of the [Sabbath] day.¹⁸ I had a grandmother who once sold her headdress so as to bring me [wine for] the sanctification of the day. It was taught: When she died she left him three hundred barrels of wine, and when he died he left his sons three thousand barrels.

R. Huna once came before Rab girded with a string. He said to him, What is the meaning of this? He replied: I had no [wine for] sanctification, and I pledged my girdle so as to get some. He said: May it be the will of heaven that you be [one day] smothered in robes of silk. On the day when Rabbah his son was married, R. Huna, who was a short man, was lying on a bed and his daughters and daughters-in-law stripped [clothes] from themselves and threw them on him until he was smothered in silks. When Rab heard he was chagrined and said, Why when I blessed you did you not say, The same to you, Sir?¹⁹

R. Eleazar b. Shammua' was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I made a short²⁰ cut through a synagogue, nor have I stepped upon the heads of the holy people,²¹ nor have I lifted my hands [to say the priestly blessing] without reciting a blessing.²²

R. Peridah was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I allowed anyone to be before me at the house of study

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 28a

, nor have I said grace before a kohen,¹ nor have I eaten of a beast from which the priestly dues² have not been given,³ as R. Isaac said in the name of R. Johanan: It is forbidden to eat from an animal from which the priestly dues have not been given; and R. Isaac further said: To eat from an animal from which the priestly dues have not been given is like eating tebel.⁴ The law, however, is not as stated by him. 'Nor did I say grace before a kohen'. This implies that this is a meritorious action. But has not R. Johanan said: 'If a talmid hakam allows even a high priest who is all ignoramus to say grace before him, that talmid hakam commits a mortal offence,⁵ as it says, All that hate me [mesanne'ai] love death;⁶ read not mesanne'ai [that hate me], but masni'ai [that make me hated]'?⁷ — When R. Johanan made this remark, he was thinking of equals.⁸

R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I sought respect through the degradation of my fellow, nor has the curse of my fellow gone up with me upon my bed, and I have been generous with my money.⁹ 'I have not sought respect through the degradation of my fellow', as illustrated by R. Huna who once was carrying a spade on his shoulder when R. Hana b. Hanilai wanted to take it from him, but he said to him, If you are accustomed to carry in your own town, take it, but if not, I do not want to be paid respect through your degradation. 'Nor did the curse of my fellow go up on my bed with me'. This is illustrated by Mar Zutra, who, when he climbed into his bed said, I forgive all who have vexed me. 'I have been generous with my money', as a Master has said, 'Job was generous with his money; he used to leave with the shopkeeper a perutah¹⁰ of his change'. R. Akiba asked R. Nehunia the great: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? His attendants came and beat him,¹¹ so he went and sat on the top of a date tree, and said to him: Rabbi, seeing that it says ‘a lamb’, why does it also say ‘one’?¹² Thereupon he [R. Nehunia] said, He is a rabbinical student, leave him alone. He then answered his question, saying, ‘One’ means ‘unique in its flock’. Then he said to him: Never in my life have I accepted presents, nor have I insisted on retribution [when wronged],¹³ and I have been generous with my money. ‘I have not accepted presents’, as illustrated by R. Eleazar, who, when presents were sent to him from the Prince would not accept them and when he was invited there would not go. He said to them: Do you not want me to live, since it says, He that hateth gifts shall live?¹⁴ R. Zera, when presents were sent to him from the Prince, would not accept them, but when he was invited there he used to go, saying, They derive honour from my presence. ‘Nor did I insist on retribution’, as Raba said: ‘He who waives his right to retribution¹⁵ is forgiven all his sins, as it says, that pardoneth iniquity and passeth by transgression.¹⁶ Whose iniquity is forgiven? The iniquity of him who passes by transgression.

Rabbi asked R. Joshua b. Korha: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He said to him: Do you begrudge me my life?¹⁷ Said Rabbi to him: This is [a point of] Torah, and it is important for me to learn. He replied: Never in my life have I gazed at the countenance¹⁸ of a wicked man; for so R. Johanan said: It is forbidden to a man to gaze at the form of the countenance¹⁹ of a wicked man, as it says, Were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, I would not look toward thee nor see thee.²⁰ R. Eleazar said: His eyes become dim, as it says, And it came to pass that when Isaac was old that his eyes were dim, so that he could not see;²¹ because he used to gaze at the wicked Esau. But was that the cause? Has not R. Isaac said: Let not the curse of an ordinary person ever seem of small account to thee, for Abimelech cursed Sarah, and it was fulfilled in her seed, as it says, Behold he is for thee a covering [kesuth] of the eyes.²² Read not ‘kesuth’ but ‘kesiyath’ [blinding]? — Both caused the affliction. Raba said. We learn it from here, It is not good to respect the person of the wicked.²³ When he was about to depart life, Rabbi said to him, Bless me. He said to him: May it be heaven's will that you attain to half my days. Not to their whole length [he exclaimed]? Shall those who succeed you,²⁴ [he replied] pasture cattle?²⁵

Abbuha b. Ihi and Minyamin b. Ihi [both left sayings on this subject]. One said: May I be rewarded²⁶ because I have never gazed at a Cuthean, and the other said, May I be rewarded because I have never gone into partnership with a Cuthean.

R. Zera was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I been harsh with my household, nor have I stepped in front of one greater than myself, nor have I meditated on the Torah in filthy alleys,²⁷ nor have I gone four cubits without Torah²⁸ and tefillin,²⁹ nor have I slept in the beth ha-midrash,²⁹ either a long or a short sleep,³⁰ nor have I rejoiced in the downfall of my fellow, nor have I called my fellow by his nickname, (or, as some report, ‘family nickname’).³¹

MISHNAH. R. JUDAH SAID FURTHER:³² IF A SYNAGOGUE HAS FALLEN INTO RUINS, IT IS NOT RIGHT TO DELIVER FUNERAL ORATIONS THEREIN NOR TO WIND ROPES³³ NOR TO SPREAD NETS NOR TO LAY OUT PRODUCE ON THE ROOF [TO DRY] NOR TO USE IT AS A SHORT CUT,³⁴ AS IT SAYS, AND I WILL BRING YOUR SANCTUARIES UNTO DESOLATION,³⁵ [WHICH IMPLIES THAT] THEIR HOLINESS REMAINS EVEN WHEN THEY ARE DESOLATE. IF GRASS COMES UP IN THEM, IT SHOULD NOT BE PLUCKED, SO AS TO EXCITE COMPASSION.³⁶

, nor to dress up in them, nor to stroll about in them, nor to go into them in summer to escape the heat and in the rainy season to escape the rain, nor to deliver a private funeral address¹ in them. But it is right to read [the Scriptures] in them and to repeat the Mishnah and to deliver public funeral addresses.² R. Judah said: When is this? When they are still in use; but when they are abandoned, grass is allowed to grow in them, and it should not be plucked, so as to excite compassion'. Who was speaking about grass? — There is an omission, and the statement should read thus: 'They should be swept and watered so that grass should not grow in them. R. Judah said: When is this? When they are in use; but when they are abandoned, grass is allowed to grow in them; if grass does grow, it is not plucked, so that it may excite compassion

R. Assi said: The synagogues of Babylon have been built with a stipulation,³ and even so they must not be treated disrespectfully. What [for instance] is this? — Doing calculations [for business purposes] in them. R. Assi said: A synagogue in which people make calculations is used for keeping a dead body in over night. You actually think it is used for keeping a dead body in? — Is there no way otherwise? But [say] in the end a meth mizwah⁴ will be kept there over night.

‘Nor to dress up in it’. Raba said: The Sages and their disciples are permitted — since R. Joshua b. Levi has said: What is the meaning of ‘Be Rabbanan’?⁵ The Rabbis’ house.

‘Nor to go into them in summer to escape the heat and in the rainy season to escape the rain’. For instance, Rabina and R. Ada b. Mattenah were once standing and asking questions of Raba when a shower of rain came on. They went into the synagogue, saying, Why we have gone into the synagogue is not because of the rain, but because the discussion of a legal point requires clarity, like a clear day.⁶

R. Aha the son of Raba asked R. Ashi: If a man has occasion to call another out of synagogue, what is he to do? He replied: If he is a rabbinical student, let him say some halachah; if he is a tanna,⁷ let him repeat a Mishnah; if he is a Kara,⁸ let him say a verse of Scripture; if none of these, let him say to a child, ‘Repeat me the last verse you have learnt’; or else let him stay a little while and then get up.

‘To deliver public funeral addresses⁹ in them’. What is meant by a public funeral address? — R. Hisda gave as an example, For instance, a funeral address at which R. Shesheth is present.¹⁰ R. Shesheth mentioned as an example: For instance, a funeral address at which R. Hisda is present.¹¹ Rafram had a funeral address delivered for his daughter-in-law in the synagogue, saying, To pay honour to me and to the dead¹² all the people will come.¹³

R. Zera delivered a funeral address for a certain rabbinical student in the synagogue, saying, Whether to pay honour to me or to pay honour to the dead, all the public will come.

Resh Lakish delivered a funeral address for a certain rabbinical student who frequented the Land of Israel and who used to repeat halachoth¹⁴ before twenty-four rows [of disciples]. He said: Alas! The Land of Israel has lost a great man. [On the other hand] there was a certain man who used to repeat halachoth, Sifra and Sifre and Tosefta,¹⁵ and when he died they came and said to R. Nahman, Sir, will you deliver a funeral oration for him, and he said, How are we to deliver over him an address: Alas! A bag full of books has been lost!¹⁶ Observe now the difference between the rigorous scholars of the Land of Israel and the saints of Babylon.¹⁷

We have learnt in another place:¹⁸ ‘Whoever makes use of a crown, passeth away [from the world]’ and Resh Lakish commented: This applies to one who accepts service from one who can repeat halachoth, and ‘Ulla said: A man may accept service from one who can repeat the four [orders of the Mishnah]¹⁹ but not from one who can [also] teach²⁰ them. This is illustrated by the following story of Resh Lakish, he was once traveling along a road when he came to a pool of water, and a man came up and put him on his shoulders and began taking him across. He said to the man: Can you read²⁰ the Scriptures? He answered, I can. Can you repeat the Mishnah? [He replied], I can repeat four orders of the Mishnah. Resh Lakish thereupon said: You have hewn four rocks, and you carry Resh Lakish on your shoulder? Throw the son of Lakisha into the water! He replied: I would sooner that your honour tell me something.²¹ If so, he replied, learn from me this dictum which was enunciated by R. Zera: ‘The daughters of Israel imposed spontaneously upon themselves the restriction that if they saw [on their garments] a spot of blood no bigger than a mustard seed, they waited for seven days without issue [before taking a ritual bath].²²

It was taught in the Tanna debe Eliyyahu:²³ ‘Whoever repeats halachoth may rest assured that he is destined for the future world, as it says, His goings [halikoth] are to eternity.’²⁴ Read not halikoth but halachoth’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 29a

The study of the Torah may be suspended for escorting a dead body to the burying place and a bride to the canopy. It was recorded of R. Judah b. Ila'i that he used to suspend the study of the Torah for escorting a dead body to the burying place and a bride to the canopy. When does this rule [regarding the dead] apply? When there are not present sufficient numbers [to pay him due honour]; but if sufficient numbers are available, [the study of the Torah] is not suspended. What numbers are sufficient?—R. Samuel b. Inia said in the name of Rab: Twelve thousand and [in addition] six thousand trumpets, or, as according to another version, twelve thousand men of whom six thousand have trumpets. Ulla said: Enough to make a procession extending from the burying ground to the town gate. R. Shesheth said: The withdrawal of the Torah¹ should correspond to its delivery:² as its delivery was in the presence of sixty myriads, so its withdrawal should be accompanied by sixty myriads. This applies to one who knew by heart Scripture and Mishnah; but for one who [also] taught the Mishnah there is no limit.³

It has been taught: R. Simon b. Yohai said: Come and see how beloved are Israel in the sight of God, in that to every place to which they were exiled the Shechinah went with them. They were exiled to Egypt and the Shechinah was with them, as it says, Did I reveal myself unto the house of thy father when they were in Egypt.⁴ They were exiled to Babylon, and the Shechinah was with them, as it says, for your sake I was sent to Babylon.⁵ And when they will be redeemed in the future, the Shechinah will be with them, as it says, Then the Lord thy God will return [with] thy captivity.⁶ It does not say here we-heshib [and he shall bring back] but we-shab [and he shall return]. This teaches us that the Holy One, blessed be He, will return with them from the places of exile.

Where [is the Shechinah] in Babylon?-Abaye said: In the synagogue of Huza⁷ and in the synagogue of Shaf-weyathib⁸ in Nehardea. Do not, however, imagine that it is in both places,⁹ but it is sometimes in one and sometimes in the other. Said Abaye: May I be rewarded¹⁰ because whenever I am within a parasang¹¹ I go in and pray there.

The father of Samuel and Levi were sitting in the synagogue which 'moved and settled' in Nehardea. The Shechinah came and they heard a sound of tumult and rose and went out. R. Shesheth was once sitting in the synagogue which 'moved and settled' in Nehardea, when the Shechinah came. He did not go out, and the ministering angels came and threatened him. He turned to him and said: Sovereign of the Universe, if one is afflicted¹² and one is not afflicted, who gives way to whom? God thereupon said to them: Leave him.

Yet have I been to them as a little sanctuary.¹³ R. Isaac said: This refers to the synagogue and houses of learning in Babylon. R. Eleazar says: This refers to the house of our teacher¹⁴ in Babylon.

Raba gave the following exposition: What is the meaning of the verse, Lord, thou hast been our dwelling [ma'on] place?¹⁵ This refers to synagogues and houses of learning. Abaye said: Formerly I used to study at home and pray in the synagogue, but when I noticed¹⁶ the words of David, O Lord, I love the habitation [me'on] of thy house,¹⁷ I began to study also in the synagogue.

It has been taught: R. Eleazar ha-Kappar says: The synagogues and houses of learning in Babylon will in time to come be planted in Eretz Israel, as it says, For as Tabor among the mountains and as Carmel by the sea came.¹⁸ Now can we not draw an inference here a fortiori: Seeing that Carmel and Tabor which came only on a single occasion to learn the Torah are implanted in Eretz Israel, how much more must this be the case with the synagogues and houses of learning where the Torah is read and expounded!¹⁹

Bar Kappara gave the following exposition: What is the meaning of the verse, Why look ye askance [terazedun], ye mountains of peaks.²⁰ A bath kol²¹ went forth and said to them: Why do ye desire litigation [tirzu din] with Sinai? Ye are all full of blemishes as compared with Sinai. It is written here gabnunim [with peaks], and it is written elsewhere or crookedbacked [gibben] or a dwarf.²² R. Ashi observed: You can learn from this that if a man is arrogant, this is a blemish in him.

IT SHOULD NOT BE USED AS A SHORT CUT [KAPANDRIA]. What is kapandria?²³ Raba said: Kapandria is as its name implies. What does its name imply? As if one were to say, Instead of going round the block ['makifna adare], I will go through here. R. Abbahu said: If a road passed through there originally,²⁴ it is permitted. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: If one goes in without any intention of using it as a short cut, he may afterwards use it as a short cut. And R. Helbo said in the name of R. Huna: If one enters a synagogue to pray, he may²⁵ afterwards use it as a short cut, as it says, But when, the people of the land shall come before the Lord at the appointed seasons, he that entereth by way of the north gate to worship shall go forth by way of the south gate.²⁶

IF GRASS HAS GROWN IN IT, IT SHOULD NOT BE PLUCKED, SO AS TO EXCITE COMPASSION. But it has been taught: 'It should not be plucked and given as food [to cattle], but it may be plucked and left there'? — The statement in our Mishnah also refers to plucking and giving for food.

Our Rabbis taught: 'Burying grounds must not be treated disrespectfully. Cattle should not be fed in them, nor should a watercourse be turned through them, nor should grass be plucked in them, and if it is plucked, it should be burnt on the spot, out of respect for the dead'. To what do these last words apply? Shall I say, to the last clause? If it is burnt on the spot, what respect does this show for the dead? It must be then to the preceding clauses.

MISHNAH. IF THE NEW MOON OF ADAR FALLS ON SABBATH, THE PORTION OF SHEKALIM²⁷ IS READ [ON THAT DAY]. IF IT FALLS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WEEK, IT IS READ ON THE SABBATH BEFORE, AND ON THE NEXT SABBATH THERE IS A BREAK.²⁸ ON THE SECOND [OF THE SPECIAL SABBATHS] ZAKOR²⁹ IS READ, ON THE THIRD THE PORTION OF THE RED HEIFER,³⁰ ON THE FOURTH THIS MONTH SHALL BE TO YOU.³¹ ON THE FIFTH THE REGULAR ORDER³² IS RESUMED. [THE REGULAR READING]³³ IS INTERRUPTED FOR ANY SPECIAL OCCASION: FOR NEW MOONS, FOR HANUKKAH, FOR PURIM, FOR FASTS, FOR MA'AMADOTH,³⁴ AND FOR THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.³⁵

and with regard to diverse seeds.¹ I can understand it being made for diverse seeds, because it is the time for sowing.² But what is the ground for making it for the shekels? — R. Tabi said in the name of R. Josiah: Because Scripture says, This is the burnt-offering of each new moon in its renewal.³ The Torah herein says to us: As you renew the month, bring an offering from the new contributions. And since it is in Nisan that we have to bring from the new contributions,⁴ we read beforehand on the first of Adar so that shekels should be brought [in time] to the Sanctuary. With whose view does this accord? Not with that of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. For if you take the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, he requires [only] two weeks' [notice], as it has been taught: 'Moot points in the law of Passover are considered⁵ from thirty days before Passover; R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, however, says, from two weeks before'. You may even say it accords with the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. For since a Master has said that 'on the fifteenth of this month [Adar] tables⁶ are set up in the provinces and on the twenty-fifth in the Sanctuary',⁷ On account of the tables we read beforehand [on the first of Adar].⁸

What is the portion of Shekalim? — Rab said, Commanded the children of Israel and say unto them My food which is presented unto me,⁹ Samuel said, When thou takest.¹⁰ We call well see how, according to the one who says the portion is 'When thou takest', it is called the portion of Shekalim, because shekalim are mentioned in it. But according to the one who says it is 'My food which is presented to me', — are shekels mentioned there? — Yes; the reason is based on the dictum of R. Tabi.¹¹ I can well understand [the reason of] the one who says that 'Command the children of Israel' [should be read], because sacrifices are mentioned in it. But according to the one who says that 'When thou takest' should be read, are sacrifices mentioned there? It is the shekels for the sockets that are mentioned there!¹² — [The reason is] as R. Joseph learnt: 'There were three contributions;¹³ of the altar for the altar,¹⁴ of the sockets for the sockets, and of the repair of the House for the repair of the House'.¹⁵ There is a justification for the one who says that 'When thou takest' should be read, because he thus makes a difference between this New Moon and other New Moons. But the one who says that 'Command the children of Israel' should be read — what difference does he make?¹⁶ — He does make a difference, because on other New Moons¹⁷ six read in the portion of the day¹⁸ and one that of New Moon, whereas on this occasion all read in that of New Moon. This is a good answer for one who says that [when the Mishnah says that the 'REGULAR ORDER' IS RESUMED it means] 'the regular order of portions'; but according to the one who says that [what it means is that] the order of haftarahs¹⁹ is resumed [and the order of Pentateuch portions has not been interrupted], what difference is there [between this New Moon and others]? — There is a difference, because on other New Moons six read in the portion of the day¹⁸ and one the special portion for New Moon, whereas on this occasion three read in the portion of the day and four in that of New Moon.

On objection was raised.²⁰ 'When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, the portion of Shekalim is read, and the chapter of Jehoiada the Priest²¹ is said as haftarah'. Now according to the one who says that 'When thou takest' should be said, there is a good reason for reading Jehoiada the Priest as haftarah because it is similar in subject,²² as it is written [there], the money of the persons for whom each man is rated.²³ But according to the one who says that 'My food which is presented to me' is read, is there any similarity? — There is, on the basis of R. Tabi's dictum.²⁴

The following was then cited in objection: 'If it [the New Moon of Adar] falls on the portion next to it [the portion of Shekalim], whether before or after, they read it and repeat it'. Now this creates no difficulty for one who holds that 'When thou takest' is read because [the regular portion containing this passage] falls about that time.²⁵ But according to the one who says that 'My food which is presented to me' is read — does [the portion containing that passage] fall about that time?²⁶ — Yes, for the people of Palestine, who complete the reading of the Pentateuch in three years.²⁷

It has been taught in agreement with Samuel: 'When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, the portion 'When thou takest' is read, and the haftarah is about 'Jehoiada the Priest'.

R. Isaac Nappaha said: When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, three scrolls of the Law are taken out [of the Ark], and read out of — from one the portion of the day, from one the portion of New Moon,²⁸ and from one 'When thou takest'. R. Isaac b. Nappaha also said: When the New Moon of Tebeth falls on Sabbath, three scrolls of the Law are brought and read out of; from one the regular portion, from a second the portion of New Moon, and from the third that of Hanukkah.²⁹ Both statements are required. For if only the latter had been given, [I might think that] in this case R. Isaac required [three scrolls], but in the other case he followed the view of Rab who said that the portion of Shekalim is 'My food which is presented to me', and therefore two would be enough. Therefore we are told that this is not so. But why not state the former [only] and the other would not need to be stated? — One was inferred from the other.³⁰

It was stated: If the New Moon of Tebeth falls on a weekday, R. Isaac [Nappaha] says that three read the portion of New Moon and one the portion of Hanukkah. R. Dimi from Haifa, however, says that three read the portion of Hanukkah and one that of New Moon. Said R. Mani: The opinion of R. Isaac Nappaha is the more probable, because when it is a question between the regular and the intermittent, the regular takes precedence.³¹ R. Abin, however, said: The opinion of R. Dimi is the more probable. For what is it that causes a fourth man to read?³² The New Moon. Therefore the fourth ought to read the portion of the New Moon. What do we decide? — R. Joseph said: We take no notice of New Moon,³³ while Rabbah said, We take no notice of Hanukkah. The law, however, is that we take no notice of Hanukkah,' and New Moon is the main consideration.

It was stated: 'If it [the Sabbath of Shekalim] falls when the portion 'And thou shalt command'³⁴ is read, then six persons read from 'And thou shalt command' to 'When thou takest', and one from 'When thou takest' to 'Thou shalt also make'.³⁵ Abaye remarked:

If that is done, people will say that that is where they stop.¹ No, said Abaye; six read from 'And thou shalt command' to 'Thou shalt also make', and one repeats and reads from 'When thou takest' to 'Thou shalt also make'.

The following was cited in objection to this: 'If it [the Sabbath of Shekalim] falls on the Sabbath of the portion adjoining it, whether just before or just after,² it is read and repeated'. Now if we accept the view of Abaye, this is quite in harmony with it; but on the view of R. Isaac Nappaha, it does conflict with it,³ [does it not]? — R. Isaac Nappaha can answer you: And on the view of Abaye does it create no difficulty? We may allow the Sabbath before it, but if it falls on the Sabbath after, where do you find a repetition? What you have to say in fact is that [according to Abaye] this portion [of Shekalim] is read on two successive Sabbaths;⁴ so I too can answer that it is read on two successive Sabbaths.

If it falls on the portion of 'When thou takest' itself, R. Isaac Nappaha says that six read from ‘Thou shalt also make’ to ‘And Moses assembled’,⁵ and one from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’. Abaye strongly demurred to this, saying, Now people will say that we are reading backwards!⁶ No, said Abaye; Six read to ‘And Moses assembled’, and one repeats from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’. It has been taught in agreement with Abaye: ‘If it falls on [the Sabbath of] ‘When thou takest itself, it is read on the Sabbath before’.

It was stated: ‘If the new moon of Adar falls on Friday, Rab says that [the portion of Shekalim] is read on the Sabbath before, while Samuel says that it is read on the Sabbath after’. Rab says it is read before, because otherwise there will be a shortage in the days of the tables.⁷ Samuel says it is read after, because after all the fifteenth day [from the new moon] falls on a Friday, and the tables will not be taken out till the Sunday; therefore we delay the reading [of the portion of Shekalim].

We have learnt: IF IT FALLS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WEEK, IT IS READ ON THE SABBATH BEFORE, AND ON THE NEXT SABBATH THERE IS A BREAK. Does not this rule apply even where it falls on Friday? — No; only if it falls actually in the middle part of the week.

Come and hear: ‘Which is the first Sabbath [of the series]? That in the week succeeding which the new moon of Adar falls, even if it is on the Friday’. Now do not the words ‘even on Friday’ here [put Friday] on the same footing as the middle of the week, so that just as when it falls in the middle of the week we read before, so when it falls on Friday we read before? — Said Samuel: [The words ‘in the middle’ here mean], ‘on it’.⁸ So too a Tanna of the school of Samuel taught: ‘On it’. The same difference of opinion is found between Tannaim: ‘An interruption can be made [in the series] of Sabbaths. This is the ruling of R. Judah the Prince.⁹ R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: No interruption is made. Said R. Simeon b. Eleazar: When do I rule that no interruption may be made? When it [new moon] falls on Friday;¹⁰ but if it falls in the middle of the week, it [the portion of Shekalim] is read on the Sabbath before, even though that is still in Shebat’.¹¹

ON THE SECOND ZAKOR etc. It was stated: If Purim falls on Friday, Rab says that the portion of Zakor is read on the Sabbath before, while Samuel says it is read on the Sabbath after. Rab says it is read on the Sabbath before, so that the celebration [of Purim] should not precede the commemoration [of the miracle]. Samuel says on the Sabbath after; he can argue that since there are the walled cities which celebrate on the fifteenth, celebration and commemoration come together.

We learnt: ON THE SECOND ZAKOR. Now when the new moon [of Adar] is on Sabbath, Purim falls on Friday, and he states ON THE SECOND ZAKOR?¹² — R. Papa replied: What is meant by ‘second’ here? The second to the break.¹³

Come and hear: ‘Which is the second Sabbath? That in the week following which Purim falls, even if on Friday’. Now is not the Friday here mentioned meant to be on the same footing as the middle of the week, so that just as when it falls in the middle of the week we read before, so when it falls on Friday we read before? Said Samuel: [The proper reading is] ‘on it’;¹⁴ and so a Tanna of the school of Samuel taught, ‘On it’.

If it falls on Sabbath itself. R. Huna said, All authorities concur that the portion of Zakor is not read on the Sabbath before, whereas R. Nahman said, There is a difference of opinion on this point also. It was also stated: ‘R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Abba, who had it from Rab: If Purim falls on Sabbath, Zakor is read on the Sabbath before’.

ON THE THIRD THE PORTION OF THE RED HEIFER etc. Our Rabbis taught: Which is the third Sabbath? The one which follows Purim. It was stated: R. Hama b. Hanina said: The Sabbath next to the new moon of Nisan. There is no conflict [between these two statements]; the one refers to where the new moon of Nisan falls on Sabbath,¹⁵ and the other to where it falls in the middle of the week.¹⁶

ON THE FOURTH, THIS MONTH SHALL BE TO YOU. Our Rabbis taught: If the new moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, we read Ki Thissa¹⁷ and [the account of] Jehoiada as haftarah. Which is the first Sabbath? The one in the week following which the new moon of Adar falls, even if on Friday. On the second Sabbath Zakor is read, and for haftarah, I have visited.¹⁸ Which is the second Sabbath? The one in the week following which Purim falls, even if on Friday. On the third Sabbath the portion of the Red Heifer is read, and for haftarah, And I shall sprinkle on you.¹⁹ Which is the third Sabbath? The one which follows Purim. On the fourth 'This month'²⁰ is read, and for haftarah, Thus saith the Lord God, in the first month on the first of the month.²¹

(1) I.e., that the portion of Tezaweh extends to XXX, 16.

(5) The beginning of the portion next to Ki Thissa — the portion Wa-yakhel. I. e., the whole portion Ki Thissa, commencing from Ex. XXX, 17 up to XXXIV, 35.

(7) I.e., two full weeks will not elapse between the proclamation of the Shekalim and the setting of the tables on Adar 15.

(9) I.e., his version of the statement in the Mishnah was, 'Which is the first Sabbath? That on which etc.

(15) In which case the 'portion of the red heifer' is read on the Sabbath preceding it.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 30b

Which is the fourth Sabbath? — The one immediately preceding the week in which the new moon of Nisan falls, even if on Friday.

ON THE FIFTH THE REGULAR ORDER IS RESUMED. What order? — R. Ammi said: The order of weekly portions: R. Jeremiah said, The order of haftarahs is resumed. Said Abaye: The opinion of R. Ammi is the more probable, Since we learnt: THE REGULAR READING IS INTERRUPTED FOR ANY SPECIAL OCCASION FOR NEW MOONS, FOR HANUKKAH, FOR PURIM, FOR FASTS, FOR MA'AMADOTH AND FOR THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. This accords well with the opinion of the one who says that the order of weekly portions is resumed,¹ seeing that a portion [of the Law] is read on weekdays.² But on the view of him who says that the order of haftarahs is resumed — is there any haftarah on [ordinary] weekdays?³ [What says] the other to this? — The one rule holds where it applies, and the other where it applies.⁴ But on fast days [according to R. Jeremiah], why should there be an interruption [of the regular portion]? Let us read in the morning from the portion of the week and at Minhah on the subject of the fast? — [R.

Jeremiah's ruling] supports R. Huna; for R. Huna said: 'In the morning of fast days there is a public assembly'.⁵ How do we act? Abaye said: From the morning to midday we examine the affairs of the town;⁶ from midday to evening, for a quarter of the day we read the portion of the Law and the haftarah, and for a quarter we offer up supplications as it says, And they read in the book of the law of their Lord a fourth part of the day, and another part they confessed and prostrated themselves before the Lord their God.⁷ But cannot I interpret this in the reverse way?⁸ — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, Then were assembled unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel because of the faithlessness of them of the captivity and I sat appalled unto the evening offering;⁹ and it goes on, And at the evening offering I arose up from my fasting.¹⁰

THE SECTION OF BLESSINGS AND CURSES.¹ THE SECTION OF CURSES MUST NOT BE BROKEN UP, BUT MUST ALL BE READ BY ONE PERSON. ON MONDAY AND THURSDAY AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THE REGULAR PORTION OF THE WEEK IS READ, AND THIS IS NOT RECKONED AS PART OF THE READING [FOR THE SUCCEEDING SABBATH],² AS IT SAYS,³ AND MOSES DECLARED UNTO THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL. THE APPOINTED SEASONS OF THE LORD;⁴ WHICH IMPLIES THAT IT IS PART OF THEIR ORDINANCE THAT EACH SHOULD BE READ IN ITS SEASON.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: ‘On Passover we read from the section of the festivals⁵ and for haftarah the account of the Passover of Gilgal’.⁶ Now⁷ that we keep two days Passover, the haftarah of the first day is the account of the Passover in Gilgal and of the second day that of the Passover of Josiah.⁸ ‘On the other days of the Passover the various passages in the Torah relating to Passover are read’⁹ What are these? — R. Papa said: The mnemonic is M'A'P'U'.¹⁰ ‘On the last day of Passover we read, And it came to pass when God sent,¹¹ and as haftarah, And David spoke’.¹² On the next day we read, All the firstborn,¹³ and for haftarah, This very day.¹⁴ Abaye said: Nowadays the communities are accustomed to read ‘Draw the ox’, ‘Sanctify with money’, ‘Hew in the wilderness’, and ‘Send the firstborn’.¹⁵ ‘On Pentecost, we read Seven weeks,¹⁶ and for haftarah a chapter from Habakuk.¹⁷ According to others, we read In the third month,¹⁸ and for haftarah the account of the Divine Chariot’.¹⁹ Nowadays that we keep two days, we follow both courses, but in the reverse order.²⁰ On New Year we read On the seventh month,²¹ and for haftarah, Is Ephraim a darling son unto me.’²² According to others, we read And the Lord remembered Sarah²³ and for haftarah the story of Hannah.²⁴ Nowadays that we keep two days, on the first day we follow the ruling of the other authority, and on the next day we say, And God tried Abraham,²⁵ with ‘Is Ephraim a darling son to me’ for haftarah. On the Day of Atonement we read After the death²⁶ and for haftarah, For thus saith the high and lofty one.²⁷ At minhah we read the section of forbidden marriages²⁸ and for haftarah the book of Jonah.²⁹

R. Johanan said:³⁰ Wherever you find [mentioned in the Scriptures] the power of the Holy One, blessed be He, you also find his gentleness mentioned. This fact is stated in the Torah, repeated In the Prophets, and stated a third time in the [Sacred] Writings. It is written in the Torah, For the Lord your God, he is the God of gods and Lord of lords,³¹ and it says immediately afterwards, He doth execute justice for the fatherless and widow. It is repeated in the Prophets: For thus saith the High and Lofty One, that inhabiteth eternity whose name is holy,³² and it says immediately afterwards, [I dwell] with him that is of a contrite and humble spirit. It is stated a third time in the [Sacred] Writings, as it is written: Extol him that rideth upon the skies, whose name is the Lord,³³ and immediately afterwards it is written, A father of the fatherless and a judge of the widows.

‘On³⁴ the first day of Tabernacles we read the section of the festivals in Leviticus, and for haftarah, Behold a day cometh for the Lord’.³⁵ Nowadays that we keep two days, on the next day we read the same Section from the Torah, but what do we read for haftarah.? — And all the men of Israel assembled unto King Solomon.³⁶ On the other days of the festival we read the section of the offerings of the festival.³⁷ On the last festival day we read, ‘All the firstlings’, with the commandments and statutes [which precede it],³⁸ and for haftarah, ‘And it was so that when Solomon had made an end’.³⁹ On the next day we read, ‘And this is the blessing’,⁴⁰ and for haftarah, ‘And Solomon stood’.⁴¹

R. Huna said in the name of R. Shesheth: On the Sabbath which falls in the intermediate days of the festival, whether Passover or Tabernacles, the passage we read from the Torah is ‘See, Thou [sayest unto me]’⁴² and for haftarah on Passover the passage of the ‘dry bones’,⁴³ and on Tabernacles, ‘In that day when Gog shall come’.⁴⁴ On Hanukkah we read the section of the Princes⁴⁵ and for haftarah [on Sabbath] that of the lights in Zechariah.⁴⁶ Should there fall two Sabbaths in Hanukkah, on the first we read [for haftarah] the passage of the lights in Zechariah and on the second that of the lights of Solomon.⁴⁷ On Purim we read ‘And Amalek came’.⁴⁸ On New Moon, ‘On your new moons’.⁴⁹ If New Moon falls on a Sabbath, the haftarah is [the passage concluding] ‘And it shall come to pass that from one new moon to another’.⁵⁰ If it falls on a Sunday, on the day before the haftarah is, ‘And Jonathan said to him, tomorrow is the new moon’.⁵¹ R. Talmud - Mas. Megilah 31b

If the new moon of Ab falls on a Sabbath the haftarah is [the passage with the verse] 'Your new moons and your appointed seasons my soul hateth, they are a burden unto me'.¹ What is the meaning of 'they are a burden unto me'? God said: 'It is not enough for Israel that they sin before Me, but they impose on Me the burden of considering what punishment² I shall bring upon them'. On the Ninth of Ab itself what is the haftarah? — Rab said: '[The passage containing], How is she become a harlot'.³ What is the section from the Torah? — It has been taught: Others say, 'But if ye will not hearken unto me';⁴ R. Nathan b. Joseph says, 'How long will this people despise me';⁵ and some say, 'How long shall I bear with this evil congregation'.⁶ Abaye said: Nowadays the custom has been adopted of reading [from the Torah] 'When thou shalt beget children',⁷ and for haftarah, 'I will utterly consume them'.⁸

ON MA'AMADOTH THE ACCOUNT OF THE CREATION. Whence is this rule derived? — Said R.. Ammi: But for the ma'amadoth, the heaven and earth would not be firmly established, as it says, But for My covenant [which continues] day and night, I had not set the statutes of heaven and earth,⁹ and it is written, And he said, O Lord God, Whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it.¹⁰ Said Abraham before the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, perhaps God forbid, Israel will sin before Thee and Thou wilt do to them as Thou didst to the generation of the Flood and the generation of the Division?¹¹ He answered, Not so. He then said before Him: Sovereign of the Universe, by what shall I know this? He said: Take me a heifer of three years old¹² etc. He then said before Him: Sovereign of the Universe, This is very well for the time when the Temple will be standing, but in the time when there will be no Temple what will befall them? He replied to him: I have already fixed for them the order of the sacrifices. Whenever they will read the section dealing with them, I will reckon it as if they were bringing me an offering, and forgive all their iniquities.

ON FAST DAYS [THE PORTION OF] BLESSINGS AND CURSES IS READ, AND THERE MUST BE NO BREAK IN [THE READING OF] THE CURSES. Whence is this rule derived? — R. Hiyya b. Gamda replied in the name of R. Assi: Because Scripture says, My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord.¹³ Resh Lakish said: It is because a blessing¹⁴ should not be said for chastisement. How then is the reader to do? A Tanna taught: He commences his reading with a verse¹⁵ before them and concludes it with a verse after them. Said Abaye: This rule was laid down only for the curses in Leviticus, but in the curses in Deuteronomy a break may be made. What is the reason? — In the former Israel are addressed in the plural number and Moses uttered them on behalf of the Almighty;¹⁶ in the latter Israel are addressed in the singular, and Moses uttered them in his own name.¹⁷ Levi b. Buti was once reading the curses [in Deuteronomy] in the presence of R. Huna hesitatingly. Said R. Huna to him: Do just as you please, the rule [against making a break] applies only to the curses in Leviticus, but in those in Deuteronomy a break may be made.

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Ezra made a regulation for Israel that they should read the curses in Leviticus before Pentecost and those in Deuteronomy before New Year. What is the reason? — Abaye — or you may also say Resh Lakish said: So that the year may end along with its curses. I grant you that in regard to the curses in Deuteronomy you can say, 'so that the year should end along with its curses'. But as regards those in Leviticus — is Pentecost a New Year? — Yes; Pentecost is also a New Year, as we have learnt: 'On Pentecost is the new year for [fruit of] the tree'.¹⁸

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: If old men say to you, 'throw down', and young men say to you 'build up' throw down and do not build up, because destruction by old men is construction, and construction by boys is destruction; and the example is Rehoboam son of Solomon.¹⁹

Our Rabbis taught: The place [in the Torah] where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin at Minhah; the place where they leave off at Minhah [on Sabbath] is the place where they begin on Monday; the place where they leave off on Monday is the place where they begin on Thursday; the place where they leave off on Thursday is the place where they begin on the next Sabbath. This is the ruling of R. Meir. R. Judah, however, says that the place where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin on [Sabbath] Minhah, on Monday, on Thursday, and on the next Sabbath. R. Zera said: The halachah is that the place where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin at Minhah, on Monday, on Thursday and on the next Sabbath. Why does he not say, 'the halachah follows Rabbi Judah'? —

Because [the names] might be reversed.¹

Our Rabbis taught: [The one who reads] opens the scroll and sees [the place], then rolls it together and says the blessing, then opens it again and reads. So R. Meir. R. Judah says: He opens and looks and says the blessing, and reads. What is R. Meir's reason? — It is similar to that of 'Ulla [in a parallel case]; for 'Ulla said: Why did they lay down that he who reads from the Torah should not prompt the translator? So that people should not say that the translation is written in the Torah. So here [R. Meir's reason is], so that they should not say that the blessings are written in the Torah. And [what says] R. Judah [to this]? — With regard to translation a mistake might be made, but no mistake will be made with regard to the blessings.² R. Zera said in the name of R. Mattenah: The halachah is that he opens and looks, then says the blessing and reads. Why not say, 'The halachah follows R. Judah'? Because the names might be reversed.³

R. Zera said in the name of R. Mattenah. No sanctity attaches to the boards and to the platforms.⁴

R. Shefatiah said in the name of R. Johanan: When one rolls up a scroll of the Torah, he should make it close at a seam.⁵

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: One who rolls together a sefer torah should roll it from without and should not roll it from within,⁶ and when he fastens it he should fasten it from within and should not fasten it from without.⁷

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: If ten have had a reading of the Torah, the senior among them rolls up the sefer torah. He who rolls it up receives the reward of all of them, since R. Joshua b. Levi said: If ten have had a reading of the Torah, the one who rolls it up receives the reward of all of them. The reward of all of them, think you? No; say rather, he receives a reward equal to that of all of them.

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: Whence do we know that we may avail ourselves of a chance utterance⁸ [as an omen]?⁹ Because it says, And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee saying.¹⁰ This applies, however, only if one hears the voice of a man in town and of a woman in the country,¹¹ and Only if it says, yes, yes, or no, no.¹²

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: If one reads the Scripture without a melody¹³ or repeats the Mishnah without a tune,¹⁴ of him the Scripture Says, Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good etc.¹⁵ Abaye strongly demurred to this, saying, Because he cannot sing agreeably, are you to apply to him the verse, 'ordinances whereby they shall not live'? No; this verse is to be applied as by R. Mesharshia, who said: If two scholars live in the same town and do not treat one another's halachic pronouncements respectfully, of them the verse says, I gave them also statutes that were not good and ordinances whereby they should not live.

R. Parnak said in the name of R. Johanan: Whoever takes hold of a scroll of the Torah without a covering¹⁶ is buried without a covering. Without a covering, think you? — Say rather, without the covering protection of religious performances. Without religious performances, think you? — No, said Abaye; he is buried without the covering protection of that religious performance.¹⁷

R. Jannai the son of the old R. Jannai said in the name of the great R. Jannai: It is better that the covering [of the scroll] should be rolled up [with the scroll] and not that the scroll of the Torah should be rolled up [inside the covering].¹⁸

And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the appointed seasons of the Lord.¹⁹ It is part of their observance that [the section relating to] each one of them should be read in its season.

Our Rabbis taught: Moses laid down a rule for the Israelites that they should enquire and give expositions concerning the subject of the day — the laws of Passover on Passover, the laws of Pentecost on Pentecost, and the laws of Tabernacles on Tabernacles.

We should naturally suppose 'boards' to mean a kind of noticeboard in the synagogue and 'platforms' the stand from which the Torah is read. But there is good authority for supposing that both words are technical terms for parts of the scroll of the Torah, 'boards' being the side margins and platforms' the upper margins, and the meaning will be that no sanctity attaches to these if they have been cut away from the scroll (v. Tosaf.) [J. Meg. III, 1 reads בימה ולוחין; this leads Krauss (Synagogale Altertumer, p. 388) to render, 'the reading desk (made of boards, on which the Torah was read) and the platform (on which it stood)'. It may however mean: It is better that the covering should be rolled round the scroll than that the scroll should be wrapped up by being rolled along the scroll].

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. IF THE MOST HOLY SACRIFICES¹ WERE SLAUGHTERED ON THE SOUTH SIDE [OF THE ALTAR].² THE LAW OF SACRILEGE³ [STILL] APPLIES TO THEM. IF THEY WERE SLAUGHTERED ON THE SOUTH SIDE AND THEIR BLOOD RECEIVED ON THE NORTH OR [SLAUGHTERED] ON THE NORTH SIDE AND THEIR BLOOD RECEIVED ON THE SOUTH, OR IF THEY WERE SLAUGHTERED BY DAY AND [THEIR BLOOD] SPRINKLED DURING THE NIGHT⁴ OR [SLAUGHTERED] DURING THE NIGHT AND [THEIR BLOOD] SPRINKLED BY DAY,⁵ OR IF THEY WERE SLAUGHTERED [WITH THE INTENTION OF EATING THE FLESH] BEYOND ITS PROPER TIME OR OUTSIDE ITS PROPER PLACE,⁶ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE STILL APPLIES TO THEM. R. JOSHUA LAID DOWN THE GENERAL RULE: WHATEVER HAS AT SOME TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF SACRILEGE,⁷ AND WHATEVER HAS AT NO TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS DOES COME UNDER THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. WHICH IS THAT WHICH HAS AT SOME TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS? [SACRIFICES] WHICH REMAINED OVERNIGHT⁸ OR BECAME DEFILED OR WERE TAKEN OUT [OF THE TEMPLE COURT].⁹ WHICH IS THAT WHICH HAS AT NO TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS? [SACRIFICES] THAT WERE SLAUGHTERED [WHILE PURPOSING AN ACT] BEYOND ITS PROPER TIME OR OUTSIDE ITS PROPER PLACE, OR THE BLOOD OF WHICH WAS RECEIVED BY THE UNFIT¹⁰ AND THEY SPRINKLED IT.¹¹ GEMARA. It is stated: IF THE MOST HOLY SACRIFICES WERE SLAUGHTERED ON THE SOUTH SIDE, THE LAW OF SACRILEGE [STILL] APPLIES TO THEM. Is this not obvious? Should the Law of Sacrilege cease to apply to them merely because they were slaughtered on the south side?¹² — It need be stated, for it might otherwise have entered your mind to say: Since 'Ulla said in the name of R. Johanan¹³ that 'sacrifices which died were, as far as the law of the Torah rules,¹⁴ excluded from the Law of Sacrilege', so were also Most Holy sacrifices when slaughtered on the south side considered as if they were strangled. It is therefore made known to us [that the instance of the Mishnah is different, for] sacrifices which died are in no case of any avail,¹⁵ while the south side, though it is not the proper place for Most Holy sacrifices, is, however, the proper place for sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness.¹⁶ Why was it necessary to enumerate [in the Mishnah all those cases]? — It was necessary, for if only SLAUGHTERED ON THE SOUTH SIDE AND THEIR BLOOD RECEIVED ON THE NORTH were stated, [I would argue:] The law of Sacrilege still applies to [the sacrifices in] this case, because the receiving [of the blood]¹⁷ was after all on the north side, but in the case where they were SLAUGHTERED ON THE NORTH SIDE AND THEIR BLOOD RECEIVED ON THE SOUTH, since [the blood] was received on the south side, [I Would say that] the Law of Sacrilege no longer applies to them. And if only these [first two instances] were stated, I would argue: [The law of Sacrilege still applies to them, because in these cases the sacrifices were at least offered during the day and] the day is the proper time for offering; in the case, however, where they were SLAUGHTERED BY NIGHT AND [THEIR BLOOD] SPRINKLED DURING THE DAY, since night is not the proper time for offering and the sacrifices were slaughtered by night, I might have thought that the Law of Sacrilege would no longer apply to them. And if SLAUGHTERED BY NIGHT [AND THEIR BLOOD SPRINKLED DURING THE DAY] were stated¹⁸ I would argue: The Law of Sacrilege still applies to them, because the blood was received during the day. In the case, however, where they were SLAUGHTERED DURING THE DAY AND THEIR BLOOD SPRINKLED BY NIGHT,¹⁹ since it is not the proper time for offering,²⁰ the sacrifices are to be considered as if strangled, and the Law of Sacrilege would accordingly not apply to them; therefore [also this instance] has been made known to us. IF SLAUGHTERED [WITH THE INTENTION OF EATING THE FLESH] BEYOND ITS PROPER TIME OR OUTSIDE ITS PROPER PLACE. Of what avail are such sacrifices?²¹ — [The Law of Sacrilege still applies to them] because [the performance of] the other acts of offering²²

[is yet necessary]²³ for rendering the sacrifices piggul.²⁴

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 2b

The following was queried: If they¹ were already laid² [upon the altar], must they be brought down? Rabbah said, even if laid [upon the altar] they must be brought down. R. Joseph said, If laid [upon the altar] they need not be brought down. According to the view of R. Judah³ there can be no question that all agree that even if laid [upon the altar], they must be brought down. The dispute arises according to the view of R. Simeon.⁴ R. Joseph conforms [also here] to the view of R. Simeon; while Rabbah argues: R. Simeon maintained his view only in regard to offerings [the blood of which] should be applied below [the red line] and was applied above, or should be applied above [the red line] and was applied below; [since] they were at any rate slaughtered and their blood was received on the north side. In our case, however, since they were slaughtered⁵ on the south side they are to be considered as if they were strangled. We have learnt: IF THE MOST HOLY SACRIFICES WERE SLAUGHTERED ON THE SOUTH SIDE, THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THEM. This is in order on the view of R. Joseph; but on the view of Rabbah it presents, however, difficulties.⁶ — [Rabbah would reply]: THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES . . . is [to be understood as enacted] by the Rabbis only. What is the actual difference between [its application] by law of the Torah and that by [enactment of] the Rabbis? — When by law of the Torah a fifth [of the value misappropriated] must be paid,⁷ when by enactment of the Rabbis it is not paid.⁸ But is there a Law of Sacrilege as a Rabbinical enactment? — Yes, there is. For 'Ulla said in the name of R. Johanan⁹ that 'sacrifices which died were, as far as the law of the Torah rules, excluded from the Law of Sacrilege', from which we may infer that by rule of the Torah only they are excluded from the Law of Sacrilege, by [enactment of] the Rabbis, however, the Law of Sacrilege still applies to them. In the same way [in our Mishnah it is to be interpreted as applying] by enactment of the Rabbis. May we then infer¹⁰ that the statement of 'Ulla in the name of R. Johanan has already been learnt [in our Mishnah]?¹¹ — Although it has been learnt, 'Ulla's statement is still necessary, for it might otherwise have entered your mind to say: [In the instance of our Mishnah the Rabbis have enacted the application of the Law of Sacrilege, because] people do not keep away from those sacrifices;¹² but in the case of sacrifices which died, since people do keep away from them,¹³ I might have thought that even as a Rabbinical enactment Sacrilege does not apply to them. Therefore ['Ulla has made his view] known to us. But has not also [the case of sacrifices which] died been learnt already? [For we have learnt]: If one enjoyed of a sin-offering,¹⁴ if it was still alive he is not guilty of Sacrilege until he has diminished its substance, but if it was dead he is guilty of Sacrilege. as soon as he had benefitted from it.¹⁵ — ['Ulla's statement is still necessary. for] it might otherwise have entered your mind

(1) Viz., the disqualified sacrifices as instanced in the Mishnah.

(2) Lit., 'gone up'.

(3) Zeb. 84a.

(4) With reference to sacrifices the blood of which was sprinkled irregularly either above or below the red line surrounding the altar. In such a case R. Judah holds that if they had gone up they must come down again, whereas R. simeon holds they need not, v. ibid.

(5) Similarly in regard to other acts of offering.

(6) Since he holds that they must come down again these sacrifices have lost their sacred character, and the Law of Sacrilege should not apply to them.

(7) Lev. V, 16.

(8) Just as the trespass guilt-offering is not brought.

(9) Supra.

(10) According to Rabbah's interpretation of the Mishnah.

(11) Since on the view of Rabbah sacrifices slaughtered on the south are treated as if they were strangled, their case is on a par with that of sacrifices which died, the ruling of R. Johanan can be derived from the Mishnah and hence is superfluous.

(12) And are, therefore, likely to make unlawful use of them.

(13) As they are repulsive.

(14) E.g., by plucking of its wool.

(15) This is interpreted to the extent of the value of a Perutah, v. infra 18a. Thus the case of animals which died has already been taught, wherefore then 'Ulla's ruling in the name of R. Johanan?

to say that in the case of the sin-offering, since it comes for atonement people do not keep away from it; but other sacrifices, however, since they come for atonement, people will keep away from them and there was, therefore, no [necessity for the Rabbis to enact in regard to them the] Law of Sacrilege. Therefore ['Ulla has made his view] known to us.¹ But is it indeed so that the Law of Sacrilege applies to a sin-offering which died? Has it not been taught: Sin-offerings that are to be left to die² and money that is to be thrown into the Dead Sea³ must not be enjoyed, yet the Law of Sacrilege does not apply to them? — You might reply: In the case of sin-offerings that are to be left to die people keep away from them even while they are still alive;⁴ which is not so [with ordinary sin-offerings] from which people do not keep away while they are alive.⁵ R. Joseph raised an objection to Rabbah [by way of inference] from one [Mishnah] to another and again from this to a third. [We have learnt]: And all of them⁶ do not defile the garments worn by him that swallows them, and the Law of Sacrilege still applies to them all except the sin-offering of a bird, which was offered below [the red line], after the manner of a sin-offering of a bird and under the name of a sin-offering. And then in connection therewith we have learnt [the general rule]:⁷ Whenever it⁸ became disqualified in the Sanctuary⁹ it does not defile the garments worn by him that swallows it, and whenever it became disqualified while not in the Sanctuary it defiles the garments worn by him that swallows it.¹⁰ And we have furthermore learnt: Whatever became disqualified in the Sanctuary need not be removed, if already laid upon the altar, need not be brought down.¹¹ Is this not a refutation of Rabbah's view?¹² — It is indeed a refutation. Now the point which had been disputed by Rabbah and R. Joseph was a matter of course to R. Eleazar. For R. Eleazar said:¹³ If a burnt-offering which was dedicated to a private High Place¹⁴ was brought [to be offered] inside [the Sanctuary]

(1) [The meaning is obscure and the text seems to be in disorder. Bah reads: It might have entered your mind since a sin-offering comes for atonement people keep away from it and therefore no Law of Sacrilege applies to it, therefore (the Mishnah) has made known to us (that even here the Law of Sacrilege applies); consequently no question can be raised against 'Ulla from this Mishnah which by specifying a sin-offering was taken on the view of the questioner to exclude other sacrifices, v. Sh. Mek.,.]

(2) V. Tem. 21.

(3) Ibid. 22b.

(4) And are not likely to touch them after they have died.

(5) And therefore the Law of Sacrilege applies to them by Rabbinic enactment.

(6) I.e., those enumerated in the Mishnah Zeb. 66a.

(7) Zeb. 66b Mishnah.

(8) Refers to the sin-offering of a bird the 'wringing' of which (melikah. v. Glos.) was performed in the wrong place.

(9) Through some irregularity in the prescribed method of slaughtering, melikah.

(10) B. cause the wringing off of the head, which is prescribed for a valid sin-offering of a bird, renders it in this case nebelah (v. Glos.); v. Zeb. 68b.

(11) Zeb. 84a.

(12) From the first Mishnah we learn that the sin-offerings of a bird whose melikah was performed in the wrong place a case which corresponds to the instances of our Mishnah — do not defile the garments worn by him that swallows them; thus we infer that when the second Mishnah speaks of disqualification that occurred in the Sanctuary, the reference is likewise to a melikah performed in the wrong place, and similarly the third Mishnah which states that whatever becomes disqualified in the Sanctuary need not be brought down when already laid upon the altar includes such a disqualification as melikah performed in the wrong place, and similarly a slaughtering in the wrong place which refutes Rabbah.

(13) Zeb. 1 19b.

(14) At a time when these were permitted. In such places the offerings need not necessarily be slaughtered on the north side of the altar. Cf. Zeb. 112b.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 3b

the [sacred] precincts exercise on it their retaining power in every respect.¹ R. Eleazar then submitted the following query:² 'If a burnt-offering, which was dedicated to a private High Place and brought inside the Sanctuary. became disqualified,³ if laid [upon the altar] must it be brought down?' May we not infer from the fact that R. Eleazar queried only this [special] case. that the other case⁴ was a matter of course to him, either confirming to the view of Rabbah or to the view of R. Joseph? — [No, R. Eleazar was doubtful even in regard to instances of our Mishnah and] he queries the one case as a further step⁵ of the other. [For I could argue on the one hand]: Rabbah maintained that even when laid upon the altar they must be brought down only [when the sacrifices were brought inside] the precincts of the Temple in conformity with their original provision,⁶ [in which case the departure from the prescribed method of offering rightly]⁷ disqualified them; but where [the sacrifices were brought inside] the precincts of the Temple against their original provision⁸ [a departure from the right method of offering]⁹ [he might hold] does not disqualify them!¹⁰ Or I could, perhaps, [argue on the other hand]: R. Joseph maintained that when laid upon the altar they need not be brought down only when the retaining power of the sacred precincts was exercised in conformity with the Original provision [of the sacrifices]; but [if the sacrifices were brought inside] the sacred precincts against their original provision the retaining power of the Temple [he might hold] is not [fully] effective!¹¹ Let this query¹² remain undecided. Said R. Giddal in the name of Rab: The sprinkling of [the blood of an offering which was rendered] *piggul*¹³ [at the slaughtering]¹⁴ neither effects exemption from the Law of Sacrilege in the case of Most Holy sacrifices,¹⁵ nor inclusion within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege in the case of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness.¹⁶ Abaye was sitting and quoting this ruling, when R. Papa raised an objection to him: If the thank-offering¹⁷ was slaughtered inside [the Temple Court] while the bread thereof remained outside the wall, the bread has not become sacred. If it was slaughtered before the loaves in the oven had formed a crust — even if all the loaves but one had formed a crust — the bread has not become sacred. [But] if it was slaughtered¹⁸ [while purposing an act] beyond the proper time or outside the proper place, the bread has become sacred?¹⁹ Does this not prove that [the performance of the acts of offering of a sacrifice rendered] piggul brings [sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness] within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege? — Thereupon he [Abaye] was silent. When he came before R. Abba the latter replied: It is through the sprinkling²⁰ [that the bread has become sacred].²¹ Said R. Ashi to Raba: But has not ‘Ulla ruled²² that if the handful of [a meal-offering, which was rendered] piggul,²³ was laid upon the altar the disqualification ceased?²⁴ Now, the separation of a handful [of a meal-offering] corresponds to the slaughtering [of an animal-offering].²⁵ He thereupon replied: [‘Ulla’s statement is to be understood in the following manner: The taking of the handful with disqualifying intention] is a prohibited act that leads to the offering becoming piggul.²⁶

- (1) Sacrifices must then be offered in accordance with all the prescriptions relating to those originally dedicated to the Sanctuary
- (2) Zeb. 119b has a different version of the text.
- (3) By an error which causes no disqualification on a private High Place, e.g., he slaughtered it on the south side, cf. n. 2.
- (4) Relating to the instances of our Mishnah.

- (6) I.e., when originally dedicated to the Temple.
- (7) Because originally attached to them.
- (8) Which was to offer them on a private High Place.
- (9) Prescribed primarily for offerings dedicated to the Temple.
- (10) And they need not be removed when laid upon the altar.
- (11) And the sacrifices must be brought down from the altar.
- (12) Of R. Eleazar.
- (13) V. Glos.
- (14) According to pseudo-Rashi the sprinkling, too, was performed with disqualifying intention, while Tosaf. hold that its performance was unqualified. The explanation that follows is according to the first view.
- (15) Cf. infra 7b.
- (16) [The principle is that the application of the Law of Sacrilege ceases from the moment the blood is sprinkled on the altar in the case of Most Holy sacrifices and in regard to sacrifices of a lesser degree of holiness it becomes operative only between the moment of the sprinkling of the blood and the burning of the portions — and that only as far as the sacrificial portions are concerned.]
- (17) Which is a sacrifice of a minor degree of holiness.
- (18) R. Papa assumed that the other acts of offering, too, were performed with this disqualifying intention,
- (19) And the Law of Sacrilege applies to it, v. Men. 78b.
- (20) Which, we should assume, was performed unqualified.
- (21) While R. Giddal’s ruling refers to a case where all the acts were performed with disqualifying intention.
- (22) Zeb. 43a.
- (23) Through the handful having been taken with disqualifying intention.
- (24) Even to the extent that it must be placed upon the altar if it happened to spring off, and consequently the Law of Sacrilege applies to it.
- (25) Both are respectively the first acts of offering. ‘Ulla’s statement proves then that the first act alone can render an offering piggul, contrary to R. Abba's reply. And still it states that the bread is made sacred which shows that sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness are brought within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege by acts of offering performed subsequently to a slaughtering that rendered them piggul contra R. Giddal.

(26) Viz., when the other acts, too, will be performed with disqualifying intention, but the taking of the handful itself does not render completely piggul. nor the act of slaughtering in itself unless followed by other acts, such as sprinkling with the same disqualifying intention, which is the case to which R. Giddal refers.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 4a

But does it not say:¹ since it [[the handful] renders others piggul, how much more so should it itself [become piggul]]?² — Here, too, [you must understand it as meaning] a prohibited act that leads to the offering becoming piggul. Said Rabina to R. Ashi: But did not Ilfa say:³ The dispute⁴ is only in regard to two acts of offering,⁵ namely when he [that officiated] said: I am cutting the first organ⁶ [while purposing an act] beyond the proper time, and the second [while purposing an act] outside the proper place;⁷ but in regard to one act,⁸ they all agree that there is here an admixture of unlawful intentions?⁹ — Here, too, [you must understand that] when the sprinkling takes place it will [retrospectively] prove whether [there was unlawful intention] in one act or in two acts of offering. If this be so,¹⁰ why not say with the thankoffering, too, [that its disqualification becomes effective] with the sprinkling?¹¹ — '[The bread has become] sacred' means indeed only in so far as it has to be burnt by reason of its disqualification.¹² May not the following be cited in support [of R. Giddal]:¹³ 'The Law of Sacrilege applies to piggul always'. [Does this not imply] even though the blood has been sprinkled. and will then offer a support [of R. Giddal]? — [No, [that is] where the blood has not been sprinkled.¹⁴ But if the blood has not been sprinkled need it be stated? — It deals, in fact, with a case where the blood has been sprinkled, but when this has been taught, it was in reference to a burnt-offering.¹⁵ If it refers to a burnt-offering, is it not obvious, since this offering is wholly dedicated to the Lord?

(1) In 'Ulla's argument. MS.M.: 'Did not 'Ulla state'.

(2) V. Zeb. 43G where this is explained thus: If the disqualification rendered by the taking of the handful with the unlawful intention is not irrevocable in that if it is subsequently laid upon the altar it need not be brought down, now should it render the rest of the handful liable to the Law of Sacrilege. This proves that on the view of 'Ulla unlawful intention at the taking of the handful only renders the piggul complete and irrevocable.

(3) Zeb. 29b.

(4) Of R. Judah and the Sages, v. ibid.

(5) More exactly, two separable parts of an act.

(6) The windpipe and the gullet are the two organs the cutting of which effects the ritual slaughtering.

(7) The former intention renders the sacrifice piggul, the eating of which involves the penalty of kareth, the second renders it only invalid.

(8) Viz., one organ. e.g., if the first half of the organ is cut with the thought of executing an act beyond the proper time and the second with the thought of executing an act outside the proper place.

(9) And he that eats of the flesh is not liable to the penalty of kareih. This statement at any rate indicates that the disqualification is assumed to be effective and complete with the mere act of unlawful slaughtering, and yet in the case of the thank-offering we learnt that the bread has become sacred, which refutes R. Giddal.

(10) I.e., that the disqualification of the offering becomes effective with the sprinkling.

(11) Why then should, according to R. Giddal's view, the bread become sacred and thus come under the Law of Sacrilege.

(12) But not in regard to the Law of Sacrilege.

(13) Viz., of the first part of his statement with reference to the Most Holy sacrifices.

(14) With disqualifying thought.

(15) In which-unlike sin- and guiltofferings-the priests have no share, there then being no flesh rendered permissible by the sprinkling of the blood.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 4b

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 4b

And moreover it says in the concluding clause: 'If the blood remained overnight, although it was still sprinkled, the Law of Sacrilege still applies [to the offering].'¹ This would be right if it related [for instance] to a sin-offering, but if it referred to a burnt-offering, need it at all be stated?² — The concluding clause obviously supports [R. Giddal's view], but what about the opening clause? As the concluding clause offers a support so will also the opening one?³ But even the concluding clause need not necessarily support [R. Giddal's view].⁴ — And what would be the difference? — [The disqualification of] leaving the blood overnight is caused by action⁵ and [the transgressor is therefore penalized in that] the sprinkling has not the effect of exempting the offering from the Law of Sacrilege, but the thought [of piggul] is not an action and the sprinkling has the effect of exempting the offering from the Law of Sacrilege. But may we not say that the following supports [R. Giddal]? [It was taught]: 'The Law of Sacrilege applies to Most Holy sacrifices that were rendered piggul'. Now, does this not imply even though the blood was sprinkled,⁶ and will then offer a support [of R. Giddal]? — No, [it speaks of a case] where the blood was not sprinkled. But what would be the case if [the blood was] sprinkled? Would the Law of Sacrilege indeed not apply to it? Why then state in the concluding clause: 'The Law of Sacrilege does not apply to sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness [which were rendered piggul]'? Could the distinction not be made in the opening clause itself [in the following manner]: The Law of Sacrilege applies [to the offering] before the blood has been sprinkled, but is not applicable after it has been sprinkled? — [The concluding clause] undoubtedly supports [R. Giddal's view].⁷ Shall we say: Since the concluding clause supports [R. Giddal], so will also the opening one?⁸ — [No, the latter refers indeed to a case where the blood has not been sprinkled, and the reason why the distinction is not made within the opening clause itself is]: The statement [in the concluding clause] on sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness is absolute, the [distinction] in the opening clause would be, in form, conditional.⁹ R. JOSHUA LAID DOWN THE GENERAL RULE: WHATEVER HAS AT SOME TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS DOES NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, AND WHATEVER HAS AT NO TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS DOES COME UNDER THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. WHICH IS THAT WHICH HAS AT SOME TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS? THAT WHICH REMAINED OVERNIGHT OR BECAME DEFILED OR WAS TAKEN OUT [OF THE TEMPLE COURT]. WHICH IS THAT WHICH HAS AT NO TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS? THAT WHICH WAS SLAUGHTERED [WHILE PURPOSING AN ACT] BEYOND ITS PROPER TIME OR OUTSIDE ITS PROPER PLACE, OR THE BLOOD OF WHICH WAS RECEIVED BY THE UNFIT AND THEY SPRINKLED IT. Said Bar Kappara to Bar Pada:¹⁰ O, thou son of my sister, keep in mind what to ask me to-morrow at the School House:¹¹ Does PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS mean 'permitted through slaughtering'¹²

(1) And it is assumed that the same applies in the case of piggul.

(2) It is now assumed that this ruling applies to other disqualifications as well.

(3) I.e., does the opening clause necessarily refer to sin-offerings because the concluding one does?

(4) As it might apply only to the case where the blood was left overnight but not to other piggul. MS.M.: 'And does the concluding clause indeed offer a support? — He said: What is the difference? — He replied: The disqualification of leaving the bread . . . '.

(5) Or rather by omission of action,

(6) With disqualifying thought.

(7) The concluding clause undoubtedly applies also to the case where the blood has been sprinkled, as a disqualified offering can never assume a sacred character. It therefore supports directly the second part of R. Giddal's statement with reference to sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness.

(8) In that we assume that the blood has been sprinkled.

(9) Lit., 'not cut'.

(10) Cur. edd. Pedath, but cf. Tosaf. Tem. 10d s.v. אֵיתָמַר.

(11) To provoke a discussion on this matter. Thus Tosaf. According to pseudorashi the query which follows was put forward by Bar-Pada.

(12) I.e., once it was properly slaughtered it is regarded as having become permissible to the priests and hence the Law of Sacrilege no longer applies to the flesh.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 5a

or 'permitted for sprinkling',¹ or 'permitted for consumption'?² Hezekiah said: It means 'permitted at the time of slaughtering'. R. Johanan said: It means 'permitted for consumption'. Said R. Zera: Our Mishnah cannot be made to correspond either with the view of Hezekiah or that of R. Johanan. For we have learnt: THAT WHICH REMAINED OVERNIGHT OR BECAME DEFILED OR WAS TAKEN OUT [OF THE TEMPLE COURT]. Now, does this not mean that the blood remained overnight,³ and yet it states that the Law of Sacrilege does not apply, [a statement which] proves that 'permitted for sprinkling' is meant? — No, it means that the flesh remained overnight, but the blood had been sprinkled, and for this reason it states that the Law of Sacrilege does not apply. We have learnt: WHICH IS THAT WHICH HAS AT NO TIME BEEN PERMITTED TO THE PRIESTS? THAT WHICH WAS SLAUGHTERED WHILE PURPOSING AN ACT BEYOND ITS PROPER TIME OR OUTSIDE ITS PROPER PLACE, OR THE BLOOD OF WHICH WAS RECEIVED BY THE UNFIT AND THEY SPRINKLED IT. How is [the last instance] to be understood? Shall I say that the blood was received by unfit [priests] and sprinkled by unfit [priests]? Why is it necessary to have this twofold [disqualification]?⁴ You must then understand it that the blood was received by the unfit and sprinkled by the fit,⁵ and it states that [in this case] the Law of Sacrilege applies.⁶ This would prove that 'permitted for sprinkling' is meant. To this R. Joseph demurred: Should you say that a distinction of this character can be made. how [would you explain] that which we have learnt elsewhere:⁷ 'The blood of a disqualified sin-offering need not be washed off⁸ [if splashed upon a cloth], no matter whether the offering had at one time been fit for use and then became disqualified. or had at no time [been fit for use]. Which is that which had at one time been fit for use, but became disqualified? That⁹ which remained overnight or became defiled or was brought outside the Temple Court. Which is that which had at no time been fit for use? That which was slaughtered [while purposing an act] beyond the proper time or outside the proper place, or the blood of which was received by the unfit and they sprinkled it'. Now, how is this to be understood? Shall I say that [the blood] was received by the unfit, and was sprinkled by the unfit [and thus infer that only in this case] need the blood not be washed off; if, however, it was received and sprinkled by the fit, the blood has to be washed off? [But this could not be!] Apply here the verse: And when there is sprinkled of the blood thereof . . . ,¹⁰ but not of that which has already been sprinkled. You must then say [that the text of the Mishnah there] is not meant to be taken precisely [so as to exclude other instances]

(1) I.e., the receiving of the blood must have been in order.

(2) I.e., also the sprinkling must have been in order.

(3) After the receiving was properly performed.

(4) The mere fact that the blood had been received by the unfit prevented the flesh from becoming permissible to the priests.

(5) The receiving was undoubtedly by unfit according to the text.

(6) But not if the receiving was by fit and the sprinkling by unfit, in which case the flesh would have been rendered at a time permissible to the priests.

(7) Zeb. 92.

(8) V. Lev. VI, 20.

(9) I.e., the blood.

(10) Lev. VI, 20. The verb is used in the future tense indicating that the blood has yet to be sprinkled.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 5b

, and likewise here, [that the text is] not to be taken precisely [so as to exclude other instances].¹ Said

R. Assi: If so, why has this [loose phrasing] been used twice?² You must therefore indeed say that used in connection with the Law of Sacrilege is to be taken precisely [as excluding other instances],³ [yet your objection that to state this twofold disqualification was unnecessary does not hold good as] it is to let us know that an unfit person [through his sprinkling] renders [the blood]⁴ a residue,⁵ so that although after the unfit received and sprinkled [the blood] a fit priest received and sprinkled it again, the action of the latter is of no avail. Why? Because the blood⁶ is considered a residue. But did not Resh Lakish put this forward as a query to R. Johanan:⁷ 'Does [the act of] an unfit person render the blood a residue'? Whereupon the latter replied: 'Nothing makes [the blood] a residue save [the sprinkling while purposing an act] beyond its proper time or outside its proper place, because such a sprinkling [is in so far of effect as to] render [the sacrifice] 'acceptable' in respect of piggul.⁸ Now, does this not exclude [the sprinkling by] an unfit person? — No, also the [sprinkling] by the unfit [is included]. But does it not say: 'Nothing . . . save'? — This is to be understood in the following manner: There is no [disqualification] such as to render [an offering] nonacceptable in the case of a congregation [sacrifice]⁹ and yet to make the blood a residue save that caused by [the thought of executing an act] beyond the proper time or outside the proper place; but a defiled [priest],¹⁰ since he is considered fit in the case of the congregation,¹¹ makes the blood a residue, whilst other unfit [priests]¹² who are not considered fit in the case of the congregation, do not make the blood a residue. Come and hear: 'The Law of Sacrilege applies to piggul¹³ always',¹⁴ Does this not refer to a case where the blood has not been sprinkled, and would then prove¹⁵ that 'permitted for sprinkling' is meant? — No, it [refers to a case where the blood] has been sprinkled. And what is the meaning of 'always'? — It is to confirm the statement of R. Giddal.¹⁶ For R. Giddal said in the name of Rab: 'The sprinkling of [the blood of a sacrifice rendered] piggul [with slaughtering] effects neither exemption from nor inclusion in the Law of Sacrilege'.¹⁷

(1) E.g., where it was received by the fit and sprinkled by the unfit, for even in such a case the Law of Sacrilege applies since the slaughtering has been properly performed. The inference that 'permitted for sprinkling' is meant would then be invalid.

(2) Both here and in Zeb. 92a.

(3) Viz., that it refers to a case where both receiving and sprinkling were performed by the unfit, though the phrasing in Zeb. is not to be taken precisely, as proved by the verse Lev. VI. 20; v. n. 1.

(4) Also that life-blood which remained in the body of the beast.

(5) Which must not be used again and poured out into the duct, v. Zeb. 34b. Had the sprinkling not been performed by the unfit, receiving as well as sprinkling could have been executed again by a fit person from the life-blood that remained in the body of the beast. Cf. Zeb. 32a.

(6) Left over after the receiving and sprinkling performed by the unfit.

(7) Zeb. 34b.

(8) So that he who eats thereof is liable to the penalty of kareth. Cf. Zeb. 28b.

(9) E.g., piggul, nothar and 'taking out of the Temple Court'.

(10) The unfit to whom R. Assi in his explanation of our Mishnah is meant to refer.

(11) If the majority of the congregation are unclean, v. Pes. 66b. 77a.

(12) E.g., those with a blemish.

(13) Viz., of Most Holy sacrifices.

(14) No matter whether the disqualification was accomplished with the slaughtering or the receiving.

(15) By the conclusion that if, however, both slaughtering and receiving were in order the Law of Sacrilege would no longer apply.

(16) V. supra 3b.

(17) 'Always' means thus 'for ever'.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 6a

Come and hear: R. Simeon said:¹ 'There is a kind of nothar² that is subject to the Law of Sacrilege and there is a kind of nothar that is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. How is this? If [the blood was] left overnight before sprinkling it is subject to the Law of Sacrilege, if after the sprinkling it is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege'. Now it states, at all events: 'Is subject to the Law of Sacrilege'. Does this not refer to a case where there was still time [during the day] to sprinkle³ it, so that if he wished, he could have performed the sprinkling?⁴ This would then prove that 'permitted for consumption' is meant? — No, it refers to a case where the blood was received near sunset, so that there was no time for sprinkling. But what would be the case if there was time [during the day to sprinkle it]? Would the Law of Sacrilege indeed not apply? Why then was it necessary to instance 'before the sprinkling'?⁵ Let [the distinction] be made between 'before sunset' and 'after sunset'!⁶ — This indeed is the way in which [the distinction] is to be understood, viz., 'Before it was ready⁷ for sprinkling' and 'after it was ready for sprinkling'. Come and hear: R. Simeon said, 'There is piggul that is subject to the Law of Sacrilege. and there is piggul that is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. How is this? If [enjoyed] before the sprinkling it is subject to the Law of Sacrilege, if after it is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege'. It states, at all events: 'If before the sprinkling it is subject to the Law of Sacrilege'. Now does this not refer to a case where there was still time [during the day] to sprinkle it, so that if he wished he could have performed the sprinkling, yet it states that it comes under the Law of Sacrilege, which would prove that 'permitted for consumption' is meant? — No, there was no time during the day to sprinkle it. But what would be the case if there was time during the day to sprinkle it? Would it indeed cease to be subject to the Law of Sacrilege? Why then was it necessary to instance 'after sprinkling'? Let [the distinction] be made between 'before sunset' and 'after sunset'?⁸ — This indeed is the way in which [the distinction] is to be understood, viz., 'Before it was ready⁹ for sprinkling' and 'after it was ready for sprinkling'. Come and hear: 'The Law of Sacrilege applies to Most Holy sacrifices that were rendered piggul'. Now, does this not refer to a case where the blood has been sprinkled. and would then prove that 'permitted for consumption' is meant?¹⁰ — No, it was not sprinkled. But what would be the case if sprinkled? Would the Law of Sacrilege indeed not apply to it? Why then was it necessary to state:¹¹ 'But if the sacrifices were of a minor degree of holiness they are exempted from the Law of Sacrilege'? Let [the distinction] be made between 'before sprinkling' and 'after sprinkling'? — [The distinction made is to be preferred] to let know the rule: Whatsoever has to be brought within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege¹² can achieve this status only if the sprinkling was according to proper procedure, but whatsoever has to cease to be subject to the Law of Sacrilege¹³ can achieve this also by a sprinkling that was not in accordance with the proper procedure.

(3) I.e., it was received in the vessel on the same day but not sprinkled till the following.

(4) It was thus 'fit for sprinkling' and is yet subject to the Law of Sacrilege.

(5) I.e., to distinguish between 'before sprinkling' and 'after sprinkling'.

(6) I.e., 'there being time before sunset' and 'there being no time before sunset'.

(7) During the day.

(8) I.e., 'there being time before sunset' and 'there being no time before sunset'.

(9) During the day.

(10) By the inference that if, however, it was not piggul the law of Sacrilege would not apply to it.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 6b

MISHNAH. IF THE FLESH OF THE MOST HOLY SACRIFICES WAS TAKEN OUT [OF THE TEMPLE COURT] BEFORE THE BLOOD WAS SPRINKLED,¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT IS STILL SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE² AND ONE DOES NOT BECOME GUILTY IN REGARD TO IT OF [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR,³ PIGGUL⁴ AND

DEFILEMENT.⁵ R. AKIBA SAYS: IT IS EXEMPTED FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AND ONE CAN BECOME GUILTY OF [TRANSGRESSING IN REGARD TO IT THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR, PIGGUL AND DEFILEMENT. SAID R. AKIBA: IF ONE SET ASIDE HIS SIN-OFFERING AND IT WAS LOST AND HE SET ASIDE ANOTHER IN ITS STEAD AND AFTERWARDS THE FIRST WAS FOUND SO THAT BOTH WERE DESIGNATED [FOR SLAUGHTERING].⁶ [DO YOU NOT AGREE] THAT LIKE AS [THE SPRINKLING OF] THE BLOOD [OF THE ONE BEAST] EXEMPTS ITS OWN FLESH [FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE] SO IT EXEMPTS THE FLESH OF THE OTHER BEAST? NOW, IF THE SPRINKLING OF ITS BLOOD CAN EXEMPT THE FLESH OF OTHER BEASTS⁷ FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, HOW MUCH MORE MUST IT EXEMPT ITS OWN FLESH. IF THE EMURIM⁸ OF SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS WERE TAKEN OUT [OF THE TEMPLE COURT] BEFORE THE BLOOD WAS SPRINKLED, R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY ARE EXEMPTED FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AND ONE DOES NOT BECOME GUILTY IN REGARD TO THEM OF [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR. PIGGUL AND DEFILEMENT. R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AND ONE DOES BECOME GUILTY [OF TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR, PIGGUL AND DEFILEMENT.⁹ GEMARA. Why was it necessary to state both these instances? — It was necessary. for if [the instance of] the Most Holy sacrifices alone was stated, I might have said: In this case ruled R. Eliezer that it is still subject to the Law of Sacrilege, because [he held that] sprinkling executed according to the proper procedure effects exemption from the Law of Sacrilege, but [a sprinkling] not according to the proper procedure does not effect exemption. But as to effecting the inclusion within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege,¹⁰ he might concede to R. Akiba that also [sprinkling that was] not performed in accordance with the proper procedure effects the inclusion within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege. And if the instance of a sacrifice of a minor degree of holiness alone was stated, I might have said: In regard to sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness only did R. Akiba rule that the Law of Sacrilege applies. because [he held that] even sprinkling that was not performed in accordance with the proper procedure [has the power of] including [the flesh] within the scope of the Law of Sacrilege; but in regard to Most Holy sacrifices in which case [the sprinkling] is to effect the exemption from the Law of Sacrilege. [I might say that] if not performed in accordance with the proper procedure it does not possess the power of exempting from the Law of Sacrilege. Therefore he informs us [regarding both instances]. It was stated, R. Johanan said: R. Akiba held his view that the sprinkling is of effect in the case of an offering that was taken out, only if it was partly taken out [of the Temple Court],¹¹ but if it was wholly taken out [R. Akiba did] not [hold this view]. Said R. Assi to R. Johanan:¹² My friends in the Diaspora [Babylon] have already taught me:

- (1) And brought in again, and then the blood was sprinkled.
 - (2) The sprinkling does not effect an exemption from the Law of Sacrilege since the offering is invalid.
 - (3) Lit., 'left over'. Lev. VII, 17.
 - (4) V. Glos. Lev. VII, 18; Zeb. II, 3 and 28a.
 - (5) Lev. VII, 21. For only a valid sprinkling can bring the sacrifices within the scope of these laws.
 - (6) And he slaughtered both and after receiving the blood of each in two separate vessels he sprinkled the blood of only one of them.
 - (7) Though it be invalid, as the remnant of a sin-offering.
 - (8) I.e., the portions that are to be offered upon the altar.
 - (9) The sprinkling does not effect the application of the Law of Sacrilege, since the offering is invalid.
 - (10) Which is in the direction of greater stringency.
 - (11) Because the sprinkling is then of effect for the portions that remained inside.
 - (12) Tosaf. do not read 'to R. Johanan'. The following discussion is then independent of R. Johanan's statement.

‘The disqualifying thought¹ in respect of lost or burnt [portions of an offering] is of effect’.² Now, the lost and the burnt no longer exist, yet it was taught that a disqualifying thought [relating to them] is effective.³ But does R. Assi indeed hold this view? Did not R. Assi ask R. Johanan: ‘What is the case if one purposed [to sprinkle on the] following day blood which has to be poured’?⁴ Whereupon R. Zera replied: ‘Did you not teach us⁵ [the Mishnah] about allal?’⁶ Now, this allal, because it has no substantial value, an unlawful thought relating to it is of no effect.⁷ The same applies to the blood that is to be poured; because it is destined for destruction an unlawful thought relating to it must be of no effect’. At all events, that which was stated concerning the lost and the burnt⁸ offers a difficulty!⁹ — Said Raba: Say, [‘The disqualifying thought in respect of portions] that were about to be lost or burnt . . .’.¹⁰ Said R. Papa: R. Akiba held that sprinkling is effective in respect of [offerings that] were taken out only if the flesh was taken out, but if the blood was taken out¹¹ the sprinkling is of no effect. It was also taught likewise: ‘If the slaughtering was performed undefined, and the blood was taken out, although it was afterwards sprinkled [the sprinkling] is of no effect: Most Holy sacrifices remain subject to the Law of Sacrilege, and sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness remain exempted from the Law of Sacrilege’. SAID R. AKIBA: TO WHAT CAN THIS BE COMPARED . . .¹² Said R. Eleazar: R. Akiba held his view¹³ only if [both sin-offerings were slaughtered] simultaneously.¹⁴ but if successively R. Akiba did not hold his view.¹⁵ It has been taught:¹⁶ Said R. Simeon, When I went to Kefar Pagi¹⁷ an old man¹⁸ met me and asked me: Does R. Akiba indeed hold that sprinkling is of effect in the case of an offering that was taken out? I said to him: Yes, he does. When I came and quoted these words before my colleagues in Galilee they said unto me: But is it not disqualified? How can [the sprinkling] be of effect¹⁹ with a disqualified offering? When I left and brought up these words before R. Akiba himself, he said unto me: My son, do you not hold the same view? Behold, if one set aside his sin-offering and it was lost and he set aside another in its stead and afterwards the first was found, so that both were designated [to be slaughtered], both are still subject to the Law of Sacrilege; if they were slaughtered and their [respective] blood was placed in two [separate] receptacles, the Law of Sacrilege still applies to both.

(1) During sprinkling. Lit., ‘one can think (with effect)’.

(2) To render the flesh piggul.

(3) In the same way should, in the case where the whole offering was taken out, the sprinkling be of effect in regard to the Law of Sacrilege.

(4) Over the base of the altar, cf. Zeb. 47a.

(5) Zeb. 35a.

(6) ‘Offal of meat’ which is uneatable. Cf. Hul. 121a as to what kind of offal is meant.

(7) Thus the version of Tosaf. and MS.M. Cur. edd.: ‘is not susceptible of defilement’. The quotation concerning allal would then be from Hul. 121a, thus also pseudo-Rashi.

(8) I.e., the statement reported by R. Assi in the name of his colleagues in the Diaspora.

(9) Viz., to R. Assi’s teaching concerning allal.

(10) I.e., they had still been in existence at the time of the sprinkling. But if already lost or burnt an unlawful thought would indeed be of no effect.

(11) Though brought in again and then sprinkled.

(12) Cur. edd. and MS.M. do not contain this phrase in the Mishnah.

(13) That the sprinkling of the blood of the one exempts the flesh of the other beast from the Law of Sacrilege.

(14) E.g., by different people. V. Tosaf.

(15) V. infra.

(18) MS.M.: ‘from among the disciples of R. Akiba’, v. Tosef.

(19) Lit., ‘make acceptable’, cf. Zeb. 28a.

If the blood of one of them was sprinkled, do you not agree that like as the [sprinkling of the] blood exempts its flesh from the Law of Sacrilege so it exempts also the flesh of the other beast from the Law of Sacrilege? Now, if it can save the flesh of another offering from the Law of Sacrilege, though it is disqualified, how much more must it save its own flesh. Said Resh Lakish in the name of R. Oshaia: Inexact¹ was the reply that R. Akiba gave to that disciple, [as it² suggests that his instance holds good] only if they were slaughtered simultaneously but not if successively. Now, since [the other offering³ is, at all events] disqualified,⁴ what is the difference between ‘simultaneously’ and ‘successively’? Said R. Johanan to Resh Lakish: And you, do you not make this distinction? Suppose one set apart two guilt-offerings for surety⁵ [one against the other], and he had them both slaughtered and had the emurim⁶ of one of them placed upon the altar before sprinkling.⁷ Would you not agree that although [those emurim were] already placed upon the altar they have to be brought down? Now, if your assumption was right that they are considered in such a case as one offering, why have they to be brought down? Did not ‘Ulla rule: ‘If the emurim of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness⁸ were laid upon the altar before the sprinkling they must not be brought down, as they have become the food of the altar!?’ Thereupon he gave no reply. Said R. Johanan: I have cut off the legs of that child.⁹ MISHNAH. THE ACT OF [SPRINKLING THE] BLOOD OF MOST HOLY SACRIFICES MAY HAVE EITHER A LENIENT OR A STRINGENT EFFECT, BUT WITH SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS IT HAS ONLY A STRINGENT EFFECT. HOW SO? WITH MOST HOLY SACRIFICES, BEFORE THE SPRINKLING THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES BOTH TO THE EMURIM AND TO THE FLESH; AFTER THE SPRINKLING IT APPLIES TO THE EMURIM BUT NOT TO THE FLESH;¹⁰ IN RESPECT OF BOTH ONE IS GUILTY¹¹ OF [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR. PIGGUL AND DEFILEMENT.¹² IT IS THUS FOUND THAT WITH MOST HOLY SACRIFICES THE ACT OF SPRINKLING HAS A LENIENT AS WELL AS A STRINGENT EFFECT. WITH SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS IT HAS ONLY A STRINGENT EFFECT’, HOW SO? WITH SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS, BEFORE THE SPRINKLING THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES NEITHER TO THE EMURIM NOR TO THE FLESH; AFTER THE SPRINKLING IT APPLIES TO THE EMURIM BUT NOT TO THE FLESH; IN RESPECT OF BOTH ONE IS GUILTY OF TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF NOTHAR, PIGGUL AND DEFILEMENT. IT IS THUS FOUND THAT WITH SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS IT HAS ONLY A STRINGENT EFFECT. GEMARA. It teaches:¹³ ‘THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES . . . NOT TO THE FLESH’ which implies that the penalty of Sacrilege is not inflicted, but the prohibition still remains.¹⁴ But why? Is it not the possession of the priest?¹⁵ — This is no difficulty, since in the opening clause he had to use [the phrase] ‘THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES’ he uses also in the concluding clause¹⁶ [the phrase] ‘THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES NOT’.¹⁷ But read then the second section of the Mishnah: ‘WITH SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS IT HAS ONLY A STRINGENT EFFECT’, HOW SO? WITH FLESH OF SACRIFICES OF A MINOR DEGREE OF HOLINESS, BEFORE THE SPRINKLING THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES NEITHER TO THE EMURIM NOR TO THE FLESH; AFTER THE SPRINKLING IT APPLIES TO THE EMURIM BUT NOT TO THE FLESH. This implies: The penalty of sacrilege is not inflicted but the prohibition still remains.¹⁸ Why? Is it not the possession of the owner?¹⁹ — Said R. Hanina: [It refers] to an offering that was taken out [of the Temple Court] and the Mishnah stands in accordance with R. Akiba's view.²⁰ For R. Akiba held that ‘sprinkling is of effect in the case of an offering that was taken out [of the Temple Court]’ only in regard to its burning,²¹ but

(1) Lit., ‘a stolen reply’.

(2) Viz., the phrase. ‘they were slaughtered’, and the repetition of ‘both’ in the text. Pseudo-Rashi ‘reads: ‘they were both slaughtered’.

(3) The one whose blood has not been sprinkled..

(4) As a remnant of a sin-offering. Yet R. Akiba ruled that it is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. He must apparently hold that the two sin-offerings are considered as one offering.

- (6) V. Glos.
- (7) Then the blood of the other offering was sprinkled
- (8) The same applies, of course, also to Most Holy sacrifices,
- (9) I.e., I have proved his argument to be wrong. Resh Lakish was younger than R. Johanan, hence the designation 'of that child'.
- (10) This is the lenient outcome.
- (11) After sprinkling.
- (12) V. supra p. 17. nn. 9-11. This is the stringent outcome.

- (19) The answer given in the first instance is not applicable here, as there is no clause in this section which demanded the use of the phrase for the sake of symmetry.

MISHNAH. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE SIN-OFFERING OF A BIRD FROM THE MOMENT OF ITS DEDICATION. WITH THE PINCHING OF ITS NECK¹ IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM² OR ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT³, OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE ITS BLOOD HAS BEEN SPRINKLED IT IS SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR⁴ AND DEFILEMENT, BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE NO LONGER APPLIES TO IT.⁵ GEMARA. It is stated: IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. [That is, it becomes] 'susceptible for unfitness' but not for defilement.⁶ With whom then will our Mishnah agree? — With the Sages, for it has been taught:⁷ 'Abba Saul says. A tebul yom [

(1) This is the prescribed form of slaughter, v. Lev. I, 25.

(2) The immersion of an unclean person does not effect _immediate purification. In order to be able to partake of a sacred meal he has to wait until sunset. A tebul yom, lit., 'a person immersed by day'. is one who took his immersion in day-time and is waiting for sunset.

(3) In four instances of uncleanness an offering is required in addition to immersion, v. Ker. 8b. As long as this 'ceremony of atonement is not performed one is not permitted to partake of a sacred meal.

(4) V. supra p. 17, n. 9.

(5) For it has become the possession of the priests.

(6) The term 'unfit' פסול through contact with an unclean person or thing denotes that the uncleanness contracted is not of such a degree as to be transmitted to another object. 'Defiled' or 'unclean' טמא, on the other hand, denotes the capacity of transmitting further the uncleanness contracted.

(7) Tosef. Toh. I, 3. There is a scale of degrees of uncleanness: the 'source of sources'; the 'source' of uncleanness; the first, second, third and fourth degree of uncleanness. The degree of uncleanness of the defiled object is (in general) one degree lower than that of the object from which it derived its defilement. The susceptibility to uncleanness is not uniform. The holier a thing the more susceptible it is to uncleanness. Holy things קדשים, e.g. are susceptible to 'uncleanness' in the third degree and to 'unfitness' in the fourth, and terumah to 'uncleanness' in the second degree and to 'unfitness' in the third.

is unclean of the first degree in regard to holy things.¹ R. Meir says: He renders holy things "unclean" and terumah² "unfit".³ The Sages say, Just as he renders "unfit" liquids and edibles of terumah, so he renders "unfit"⁴ sacred liquids and edibles! — Said Raba, on the view of Abba Saul, A higher standard has been set with holy things in that the Rabbis declared the tebul yom to be [in regard to them unclean in] the first degree. And on the view of R. Meir, [he possesses by Rabbinic enactment the same measure of uncleanness] as food which is unclean in the second degree;⁵ while on the view of the Sages, since he has immersed, his uncleanness has weakened, and he renders things 'unfit' but not 'unclean'.⁶ ONCE ITS BLOOD HAS BEEN SPRINKLED . . . THE LAW OF SACRILEGE NO LONGER APPLIES TO IT. This implies that the Law of Sacrilege no longer applies though the prohibition still remains.⁷ But why? Is it not now the possession of the priests? — Said R. Hanina, [The Mishnah refers to an offering] which was taken out [of the Temple Court] so that [the flesh] is indeed not fit for consumption⁸ and is in accordance With the view of R. Akiba⁹ Who holds that the sprinkling of the blood is of avail¹⁰ with an offering that was taken out [of the Temple precincts]. Said R. Huna in the name of Rab: The draining out of the blood¹¹ of the sin-offering of a bird is not indispensable,¹² for Rab learnt [in our Mishnah]: 'When its blood has been sprinkled'.¹³ R. Adda son of Ahabah in the name of Rab said: The draining out of the blood of the sin-offering of a bird is indispensable, and Rab, in fact, learnt [in our Mishnah]: 'When its blood has been drained out'. Come and hear: It is said, and the rest of the blood shall be drained at the base of the altar; it is a sin-offering.¹⁴ Now on the view of R. Adda son of Ahabah it is right when it is written, 'and the rest of the blood shall be drained . . . it is a sin-offering',¹⁵ but according to R. Huna, what is the meaning of 'the 'est etc.'? — As it has been taught in the School of R. Ishmael: 'If there remained . . .'.¹⁶ But then what of the phrase, 'it is a sin-offering'?¹⁷ — It refers to the preceding text.¹⁸ Said R. Aha son of Raba to R. Ashi: If so, with the meal-offering where it is written 'and the remainder',¹⁹ does it also mean 'if there remained'? And should you say: Indeed, so it is, surely it has been taught:

(1) This means, the sacred thing touched by a tebul yom is 'unclean' of the second degree. It can thus transmit the uncleanness two stages further. It 'defiles' other holy things and 'renders unfit' terumah.

(2) I.e., the priests' share of the produce of the land, v. Num. XVIII, 11f, v. Glos.

(3) As the tebul yom is considered unclean of the second degree.

(4) But not 'unclean' so as to defile other things, as in our Mishnah.

(5) Which renders a holy thing unclean in the third degree.

(6) According to Raba's explanation our Mishnah may well agree with the views of Abba Saul and R. Meir, for their rulings result from the enactment of the Rabbis, whilst the 'Mishnah refers to the original law of the Torah.

(7) Its use is still forbidden although the attached penalty does not apply. It is thus considered the property of the Temple. This inference is made from the fact that the term 'permitted' would otherwise have been used in our Mishnah.

(8) But has to be burnt.

(9) V. supra 7b.

(10) To exempt it from the Law of Sacrilege.

(11) A ceremony performed after the sprinkling of the blood, v. Lev. V, 9.

(12) If omitted or if there is not sufficient blood in the organs of the animal for this act, the sprinkling remains valid in regard to the laws of Sacrilege, piggul, etc. as ruled in our Mishnah.

(13) No mention has been made of the draining out an indication that it is not indispensable.

(14) Ibid.

(15) Suggesting there has to be a rest and that the rest which is to be drained is a sin-offering, hence indispensable.

- (16) Then it has to be drained out. But if there is no rest the service is still valid without it.
 (17) Which might suggest that it is the draining out which makes it a valid sin-offering.
 (18) Viz., the sprinkling of the blood, without which the offering is indeed invalid.
 (19) Lev. II, 3.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 9a

[The verse], and he shall take thereout his handful of the fine flour thereof, and of the oil thereof with all the frankincense thereof,¹ is to exclude the case where there was not the full quantity of fine flour, oil and frankincense?² — I will tell you. There it is written [again] 'and the remainder' which is superfluous.³ The father of Samuel raised an objection to R. Huna: Both in the case of the sin-offering of a bird and in that of the burnt offering of a bird if the neck was pinched or the blood drained out while purposing an act outside the proper place, the offering is invalid but one is not liable to the penalty of extinction; if while purposing an act beyond its proper time, it is piggul, and one is liable to extinction.⁴ It states at all events, 'the blood drained out'.⁵ — He raised this objection and he himself answered it: It is to be understood in a disjunctive sense.⁶ [To revert to] the [above] text: The School of R. Ishmael taught: 'If there remained of the blood'.⁷ But has not the School of R. Ishmael taught elsewhere:⁸ 'The remnant is indispensable'. and R. Papa explained that they⁹ differed as to whether the draining out of the blood of a sin-offering of a bird was indispensable? — There are two [contradictory traditions of] Tannaim as to what was the view of R. Ishmael. MISHNAH. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE BURNT-OFFERING OF A BIRD FROM THE MOMENT OF ITS DEDICATION. WITH THE PINCHING OF ITS NECK IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM, OR ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE ITS BLOOD HAS BEEN DRAINED OUT,¹⁰ IT IS SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, AND THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO IT UNTIL [THE ASHES HAVE BEEN] REMOVED [FROM THE ALTAR] TO THE PLACE OF THE ASHES.¹¹ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE BULLOCKS WHICH ARE TO BE BURNT AND THE HEGOATS WHICH ARE TO BE BURNT¹² FROM THE MOMENT OF THEIR DEDICATION. ONCE SLAUGHTERED THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE THEIR BLOOD HAS BEEN SPRINKLED THEY ARE SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, AND THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THEM EVEN WHILE THEY ARE AT THE PLACE OF THE ASHES SO LONG AS THE FLESH HAS NOT BEEN CHARRED TO CINDERS. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO A BURNT-OFFERING FROM THE MOMENT OF ITS DEDICATION. ONCE SLAUGHTERED IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE ITS BLOOD HAS BEEN SPRINKLED IT IS SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO THE SKIN,¹³ BUT IT APPLIES TO THE FLESH UNTIL [THE ASHES] HAVE BEEN REMOVED TO THE PLACE OF THE ASHES. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO BURNT- AND SIN-OFFERINGS AND TO PEACE-OFFERINGS OF THE CONGREGATION FROM THE MOMENT OF THEIR DEDICATION. ONCE SLAUGHTERED THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT, OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE THEIR BLOOD HAS BEEN SPRINKLED THEY ARE SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE THEN NO LONGER APPLIES TO THE FLESH,¹³ BUT APPLIES TO THE EMURIM UNTIL THE ASHES ARE REMOVED TO THE PLACE OF THE ASHES. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE TWO LOAVES OF BREAD¹⁴ FROM THE MOMENT OF THEIR DEDICATION. ONCE

THEY HAVE FORMED A CRUST IN THE OVEN THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', AND THE [FESTIVAL] OFFERINGS¹⁵ CAN THEN BE OFFERED. ONCE THE BLOOD OF THE LAMBS HAS BEEN SPRINKLED THEY [THE LOAVES] ARE SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, AND THE LAW OF SACRILEGE NO LONGER APPLIES TO THEM. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE SHEWBREAD¹⁶ FROM THE MOMENT OF ITS DEDICATION. ONCE IT HAS FORMED A CRUST IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', AND MAY BE ARRANGED UPON THE TABLE [OF THE SANCTUARY]. ONCE THE CENSERS OF INCENSE¹⁷ WERE OFFERED IT IS SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, AND THE LAW OF SACRILEGE NO LONGER APPLIES TO IT.¹⁸ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO MEAL-OFFERINGS FROM THE MOMENT OF THEIR DEDICATION. ONCE THEY HAVE BECOME SACRED BY BEING PUT IN THE VESSEL [OF MINISTRY] THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT. ONCE THE HANDFUL¹⁹ HAS BEEN OFFERED THEY ARE SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAW OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, AND THE LAW OF SACRILEGE NO LONGER APPLIES TO THE REMNANT,²⁰ BUT IT APPLIES TO THE HANDFUL UNTIL ITS ASHES HAVE BEEN REMOVED TO THE PLACE OF THE ASHES. GEMARA. It was stated: If one has made use of the ashes of the tappuah²¹ which was on the altar, Rab says he has not transgressed the Law of Sacrilege, and R. Johanan says he has transgressed. Both agree that before the separation of the ashes²² the Law of Sacrilege still applies to them, they differ as to what is the case after the separation of the ashes. Rab says the Law of Sacrilege no longer applies to them, since the prescribed ceremony²³ has already been performed with them; but R. Johanan holds, since it is written: And the priest shall put on his linen garments . . .²⁴ as priestly garments are necessary, it proves that they [the ashes] still maintained their sacredness. We have learnt: THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES²⁵ UNTIL THE ASHES HAVE BEEN REMOVED TO THE PLACE OF THE ASHES. This presents a difficulty on the view of Rab. — Rab would tell you: [The meaning is]: Until it is fit for removal to the place of the Ashes.²⁶

(1) Ibid. II, 2.

(2) I.e., even after the handful, which is only a portion of the prescribed quantity, has been taken, the ingredients of the offering must be whole. In other words, the remainder is indispensable.

(3) The phrase occurs twice II, 3 and 10. The indispensable nature of the offering of the 'remainder' in the case of the meal-offering is thus an exception and based on a special text.

(4) Zeb. 64b.

(5) Were it dispensable, it would not render the offering piggul.

(6) Viz., the pinching of the neck refers both to the sin- and to the burnt-offering, while the draining out refers to the burnt-offering only, in which case the blood is not sprinkled upon the altar and the draining takes the place of the sprinkling and is therefore rightly indispensable.

(7) This interpretation implies that the draining out of the blood is not indispensable.

(8) Ibid. 52a, where R. Akiba and R. Ishmael differ in general terms on the question whether the remnant of an offering is indispensable or not

(9) Viz., R. Akiba and R. Ishmael.

(10) The draining out of the blood takes here the place of the sprinkling of the blood prescribed of other offerings.

(11) V. Lev. VI. 4.

(12) These have to be burnt outside Jerusalem, at the Place of the Ashes. To this category belong the sacrifices brought by the High Priest for communal transgression and for idolatry, and those offered on the Day of Atonement.

(13) Which becomes the possession of the priests.

(14) To be offered on the Feast of Weeks. V. Lev. XXIII, 17.

(15) I.e., the two lambs appertaining to the bread, v. ibid. v. 19.

(16) Cf. Lev. XXIV, 5f.

(17) The censers of incense were offered before the bread was distributed among the priests. This act stands therefore in place of the sprinkling of the blood prescribed for animal sacrifices. Cf. Men. XI.

(18) It can then be eaten by the priests.

(19) A handful was separated from the meal-offering and burnt upon the altar.

(20) Which becomes the possession of the priests.

(21) Lit., 'apple', 'pile'. I.e., the place upon the altar where the ashes were piled up.

(22) Cf. Lev. VI, 3 and Yoma 22a.

(23) Viz., the separation of the ashes. These were then deposited outside Jerusalem.

(24) Ibid. The proof is actually from the following verse: And he shall put off his garments and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes without the camp unto a clean place. This is taken to prove that the depositing of the ashes is: part of the ceremony. The ashes are still sacred before this is done.

(25) Apparently even after the separation of the ashes was performed they are subject to the Law of Sacrilege.

(26) I.e., until the separation of the ashes has been performed.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 9b

The following objection was raised: [We have learnt]: 'And if any of them¹ burst off from the altar, they need not be replaced; similarly, if a coal burst off from the altar it need not be replaced'.² [It appears that if] however [the coal] burst off [from the fire but still remained] on the altar, it has to be replaced [upon the fire].³ This is right according to the view of R. Johanan, but presents a difficulty on the view of Rab. — Rab would reply: It is different with coal, as it is still substance.⁴ Some there are who say the objection was raised in the other direction: [It appears that coal only has to be replaced]⁵ because it is of substance, but ashes that are not of substance, though still upon the altar, are not subject to the law of Sacrilege. This would be right according to Rab, but presents a difficulty on the view of R. Johanan! — R. Johanan would reply: This ruling⁶ applies to ashes as well, and the reason why coal has been instanced is to let us know even in the case of coal, that is of substance, if it burst off from the altar it must not be replaced. It was stated: If one enjoyed of the flesh of Most Holy sacrifices⁷ before the sprinkling of the blood, or of the emurim of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness after the sprinkling of the blood, Rab says: The [value⁸ of that] which he enjoyed must be restored to the nedabah⁹ fund. Levi says: He shall buy something which is wholly for the altar.¹⁰ It was taught in confirmation of Levi's view: To which fund goes this repayment for this sacrilege? Those that were permitted to argue before the Sages¹¹ say: He shall buy something which is wholly for the altar. Which is it? Incense'. It was taught in confirmation of Rab's view: 'If one has enjoyed of the money destined for his sin- or guilt-offering, if¹² his sin-offering has not been offered yet, he shall add [a fifth] and offer [for the whole sum] his sin-offering; similarly if his guilt offering has not been offered, the money is to be taken to the Dead Sea;¹³ similarly if his guilt-offering has already been offered, it shall be restored to the nedabah fund. If one had enjoyed of Most Holy sacrifices before the sprinkling of the blood, or of the emurim of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness after the sprinkling of the blood, [the value of] that which he has enjoyed goes to the nedabah fund.¹⁴ [If one has enjoyed of] any kind of offerings dedicated to the altar, [the money is refunded] for the altar, if of objects dedicated to the Temple Repair Fund [it is employed] for the Temple Repair Fund, if of sacrifices of the congregation, it is employed for freewill-offerings of the congregation'. Now, does this not contain a contradiction in itself? [For it states]: 'If his sin-offering has not been offered yet, he shall add [a fifth] and offer for the whole sum his sin-offering; and if his sin-offering has been offered already, the money is to be taken to the Dead Sea'. And then it states: 'If one has enjoyed any kind of offerings dedicated to the altar, it is employed for the altar', and there is apparently no distinction made as to whether the owner has been atoned or not! — The former clause is in accordance with the view of R. Simeon who holds,¹⁵ 'Every sin-offering whose owner has already been atoned¹⁶ is left to die',

- (1) Viz., those disqualified offerings that need not be removed when already laid upon the altar, Zeb. IX, 2.
- (2) Zeb. 86a.
- (3) As 'coal' here is unqualified it is assumed to include also coals which have already been removed from the fire place of the altar to the tappuah, i.e., coals with which the 'separation' has already been performed; and yet it says that only if it has burst off from the altar it need not be replaced, but if it was shifted to some other place upon the altar it has to be replaced upon the fire, which implies that even after the 'separation' it is still considered sacred; the Law of Sacrilege should then still apply.
- (4) While ashes are considered of no substance.
- (5) If still upon the altar. This version of the objection is also based upon the implication that if the coal was shifted from its place but remained upon the altar, it has to be replaced. It is thus still considered sacred.
- (6) Viz., that the sacredness of things burnt upon the altar continues even after their separation.
- (7) The flesh of Most Holy sacrifices is subject to sacrilege only prior to the sprinkling, while the 'sacrificial portions' of sacrifices of a lesser degree of holiness come under the Law of Sacrilege with the sprinkling of the blood, v. Mishnah 7b.
- (8) Or rather, the value plus a fifth, v. Lev. V, 16.
- (9) Lit., 'freewill'; i.e., freewill burnt-offerings to be offered at a time when the altar was employed (Tosaf.).
- (10) I.e., incense as distinct from the freewill burnt-offerings, the skin of which belongs to the priests.
- (11) V. Sanh. 17b, that this paraphrases 'Levi before R. Judah the Prince', but Tosaf. rejects here this assumption. V. Men. 80b.
- (12) At the moment of repayment. Tosaf.
- (13) I.e., destroyed.
- (14) This supports the view of Rab.
- (15) Tem. 15a.
- (16) I.e., he has brought in the meantime another offering for the sin which this sin-offering was to expiate.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 10a

while the latter clause¹ is in accordance with the Sages.² Said R. Gebiha of Be Kathil³ to R. Ashi: [Indeed] thus said Abaye: 'The former clause reflects R. Simeon's view and the latter that of the Sages'.⁴ Said Raba: All⁵ agree that if he enjoyed of the flesh of Most Holy sacrifices which was defiled,⁶ or of the emurim of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness after they had been placed upon the altar,⁷ he is free [from the payment of indemnity]. Is this not obvious? For what loss did he cause?⁸ — I might have thought that since the flesh of most holy sacrifices became defiled there is still attached to it the duty of being burnt by the priests,⁹ and with the emurim of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness [placed on the altar fire] the duty of turning it over by the poker.¹⁰ We are therefore informed [that he is free]. Said Raba: The statement, 'If the sin-offering has already been offered the money is to be taken to the Dead Sea', holds good only in the case where he became aware of his transgression [of the Law of Sacrilege] before this atonement, but if after his atonement, it goes to the nedabah fund.¹¹ Why? Because one may not at the outset set aside [holy things] for destruction. MISHNAH. THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE HANDFUL [OF A MEAL-OFFERING], THE FRANKINCENSE, THE INCENSE, THE MEAL-OFFERING OF A PRIEST,¹² THE MEAL-OFFERING OF THE ANOINTED HIGH PRIEST¹³ AND THE MEALOFFERING THAT IS ACCOMPANIED BY A LIBATION¹⁴ FROM THE MOMENT OF THEIR DEDICATION. ONCE THEY HAVE BECOME SACRED BY BEING PUT IN THE VESSEL [OF MINISTRY], THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE FOR UNFITNESS THROUGH CONTACT WITH A TEBUL YOM OR 'ONE WHO STILL REQUIRES ATONEMENT', OR BY REMAINING OVERNIGHT, AND THEY ARE SUBJECT TO [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT, BUT [THE LAW OF] PIGGUL DOES NOT APPLY TO THEM. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHATSOEVER HAS THAT WHICH RENDERS IT PERMISSIBLE [FOR THE ALTAR OR FOR THE USE OF THE PRIESTS]¹⁵ IS NOT SUBJECT TO [THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT UNTIL THAT ACT HAS BEEN PERFORMED. AND WHATSOEVER HAS NOT THAT WHICH RENDERS IT PERMISSIBLE¹⁶ BECOMES SUBJECT [TO THE LAWS OF] NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT AS SOON AS IT HAS BECOME SACRED BY BEING PUT IN THE VESSEL [OF MINISTRY], BUT [THE LAW OF] PIGGUL DOES NOT APPLY TO IT.

- (11) If he became aware of his sacrilegious use of a part of the money designated for his sin-offering prior to the offering of this sacrifice, we may consider the indemnity he has to pay as forming part of the sum to be used for the sin-offering. Consequently if before the indemnity was paid a sacrifice was bought for the remainder of the amount originally set aside for the offering, the indemnity is to be regarded as money designated for a sin-offering which can no longer be used for this purpose, as its owner has already been atoned for. It has then to be destroyed in accordance with our general rule. But if at the time of the offering he had no knowledge of his trespass against the Law of Sacrilege, his indemnity cannot be considered as set aside for his sin-offering, and when paid it need not be destroyed.

GEMARA. Whence do we know this?¹ — For our Rabbis taught:² I might have thought that only for things that have that which renders them permissible is one culpable for [transgressing] the Law of Defilement; for this would be the logical deduction: Since piggul, which requires only one awareness of transgression,³ whose sacrifice of atonement is fixed⁴ and allows of no exception for the congregation,⁵ yet it applies to things only that have that which renders them permissible, the much more so must uncleanness, which requires a twofold awareness of transgression,⁶ whose sacrifice of atonement can be of a higher or lesser value⁷ and allows of an exception for the congregation,⁸ apply only to things that have that which renders them permissible. The text therefore states: Say unto them: Whosoever he be of all your seed throughout your generations, that approaches [unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the Lord, having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from before Me].⁹ Scripture deals with all kinds of holy things.¹⁰ But I might have thought that [in the case of things that have other things that render them permissible, the Law of Defilement] would apply at once;¹¹ therefore It states: 'Who approaches' [which is to be expounded after the way of] R. Eliezer [who] said: Is it possible that one is liable [to the Law of Defilement] merely by touching [the flesh]? You must then understand it in the following manner: Whatsoever has that which renders it permissible is not subject [to the laws of piggul, nothar and defilement] until that which renders it permissible has been performed; and whatsoever has not that which renders it permissible is liable [to those laws] only when they have become sacred by being put in the vessel [of ministry].¹²

MISHNAH. THE YOUNG OF A SIN-OFFERING,³ THE SUBSTITUTE¹⁴ OF A SIN-OFFERING AND A SIN-OFFERING WHOSE OWNER HAS DIED¹⁵ ARE LEFT TO DIE. THAT WHICH PASSED [THE AGE-LIMIT OF] ONE YEAR¹⁶ OR WAS LOST¹⁷ AND THEN FOUND WITH A BLEMISH, IF AFTER THE OWNER HAS BEEN ATONED,¹⁸ IT IS LEFT TO DIE; IT CANNOT EFFECT A SUBSTITUTE¹⁹ AND THOUGH ONE MAY NOT DERIVE ANY BENEFIT FROM IT, IT IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE;²⁰

(1) I.e., that also things that do not require some other object to render them permissible are subject to the laws of nothar and defilement.

(2) Zeb. 45b.

(3) I.e., it is not necessary for the transgressor to have known that the food he enjoyed was piggul.

(4) I.e., does not vary according to the pecuniary situation of the transgressor, as in the case of uncleanness. V. Lev. V, 2ff.

(5) I.e., even if the whole congregation ate piggul, everyone would be guilty.

(6) An unclean person that has entered the Temple precincts or has eaten holy things is guilty only if at one time he knew of his uncleanness, v. Shebu. 2a. He thus is aware twice of his uncleanness; before and after his transgression.

(7) Shebu. 2a.

(8) E.g., in the case of the Passover lamb, v. Pes. 66b, which can be offered and consumed in the case of the whole congregation being unclean.

(9) Lev. XXII, 3.

(10) Including things that do not require the act of another object to render them permissible.

(11) Even before that act had been performed.

(12) The word קָרִיב, (rendered 'who approaches') is expounded as קָרֵב, 'fit to be offered', thus indicating that the law applies only if the flesh was ready to be offered, i.e., that the act that renders it permissible was performed already.

(13) The young, born after its mother's dedication, is considered holy, yet it cannot be offered upon the altar, since it was not explicitly dedicated for this purpose.

(14) It is forbidden to change an animal dedicated as an offering against a profane animal; if such an exchange takes place, both the animal originally dedicated and the animal exchanged for it are equally holy, except in the case where the latter animal, although it too becomes holy, must not be offered 'upon the altar', v. Lev. XXVII, 10 and Tem. 22b.

(15) 'There is no atonement for the dead; death has atoned for them' is a general ruling of the Sages. The offering can therefore no longer be employed for the purpose for which it was originally designated.

(16) Num. XV, 27.

(17) In Tem. 22b this is expounded as follows: 'That which passed one year and was lost, or that which was lost and found with a blemish'.

(18) With another animal.

(19) As it is destined to be killed.

(20) By law of the Torah, but by enactment of the Sages it is sacrilegious to use it. The Fifth is then not to be paid.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 11a

IF BEFORE THE OWNER HAD BEEN ATONED, IT SHALL GO TO PASTURE UNTIL IT BECOMES UNFIT [FOR SACRIFICE].¹ THEN IT SHALL BE SOLD AND FOR THE EQUIVALENT ANOTHER [SACRIFICE] SHALL BE BOUGHT; IT CAN EFFECT A SUBSTITUTE AND IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. GEMARA. Why this difference in that no distinction is made² in the first clause while in the concluding a distinction is made? — In the first clause the ruling is absolute,³ in the concluding it is not. But has not this [Mishnah] been taught already in connection with exchanges?⁴ — There it has been taught for the sake of its reference to the law of exchanges, here by reason of its reference to the Law of Sacrilege.

MISHNAH. IF ONE HAS SET ASIDE MONEY FOR HIS NAZIRITE OFFERINGS,⁵ IT MAY NOT BE USED, BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO IT, AS IT MAY ALL⁶ BE USED FOR THE PEACE-OFFERING.⁷ IF HE DIED AND LEFT MONEY [FOR HIS NAZIRITE OFFERINGS]. IF UNSPECIFIED IT SHALL GO TO THE NEDABAH⁸ FUND; IF SPECIFIED, THE MONEY DESIGNATED FOR THE SIN-OFFERINGS SHALL BE TAKEN TO THE SALT [DEAD] SEA;⁹ IT MAY NOT BE USED, THOUGH THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO IT. WITH THE MONEY DESIGNATED FOR A BURNT-OFFERING THEY SHALL BRING A BURNT-OFFERING;¹⁰ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO IT. WITH THE MONEY DESIGNATED FOR THE PEACE-OFFERING THEY SHALL BRING A PEACE-OFFERING, AND IT HAS TO BE CONSUMED WITHIN A DAY,¹¹ BUT REQUIRES NO BREAD OFFERING.¹² GEMARA. Resh Lakish demurred: Why does not [the Mishnah] teach also the following case: If one has set aside monies for bird-offerings,¹³ they may not be used but the Law of Sacrilege does not apply to them because he might buy with them turtledoves which have not reached the prescribed age or pigeons which have passed the prescribed age?¹⁴ — Said Raba: [In our case] the Torah rules that for the unspecified money [also] a peace offering shall be purchased; but does the Torah ever rule that turtle-doves which have not reached the right age shall be offered? Are they not indeed unfit for the altar? MISHNAH. R. SIMEON¹⁵ SAYS: [THE LAW RELATING TO] BLOOD IS LENIENT AT THE BEGINNING [OF THE OFFERING CEREMONY] AND STRINGENT AT THE END; [THAT RELATING TO] LIBATIONS IS STRINGENT AT THE BEGINNING AND LENIENT AT THE END; BLOOD IS EXEMPTED FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AT THE BEGINNING, BUT IS SUBJECT TO IT AFTER IT HAS FLOWED AWAY TO THE BROOK KIDRON;¹⁶ LIBATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AT THE BEGINNING, BUT ARE EXEMPTED FROM IT AFTER THEY FLOWED DOWN INTO THE SHITTLIN.¹⁷ GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught:¹⁸ ‘The Law of Sacrilege applies to blood. These are the words of R. Meir and R. Simeon; but the Sages say. It does not apply’. What is the reason of them Who hold that it does not apply?¹⁹ — Said ‘Ulla: Scripture says. And I have given it to you,²⁰ [suggesting] it shall be yours.²¹ The School of R. Ishmael taught: [It reads there] to make atonement²² [meaning], I have given it for atonement, but not [to make it subject] to the Law of Sacrilege. R. Johanan says: Scripture Says. For it is the blood that maketh atonement by reason of the life.²² [The blood] before [the act of]²³ atonement is to be compared to its status after the act of atonement.²⁴ Just as after the act of atonement it is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege, so before the act of atonement it is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. But why not infer [in the other direction]: Just as before the act of atonement the Law of Sacrilege applies to it, so also after the act of atonement the Law of Sacrilege applies to it? — Is there at all a thing to which the Law of Sacrilege applies after the Prescribed ceremony had been performed therewith! — But why not?

(1) I.e., until it contracts a blemish. This phrase refers, of course, only to the one which has passed the age-limit. for in the other instance the animal is found with a blemish.

(2) Whether the owner has been atoned for or not.

(3) There is no object in making this distinction, for in all the three instances of the first clause the position is final; the young and the exchange are themselves not considered offerings, and in the case of the owners' death the sin for which the offering was brought is already expiated.

(4) Tem. IV, 1; why repeat it?

(5) Without specifying what portion of the sum is designated for each of the required offerings, viz., a sin-offering, a burnt-offering and a peace-offering. V. Num. VI, 14f.

(6) Of each coin one may say, perhaps this is designated for the peace-offering (Rashi). Tosaf.: The whole sum may be used for the peace-offering, and the other offerings bought with other money.

(7) Which as a sacrifice of a minor degree of holiness does not come under the Law of Sacrilege; v. supra 7b.

(8) V. Glos.

(9) I.e., it shall be destroyed.

(10) A burnt offering is not brought for atonement. It can therefore be offered even after its owner's death. The same applies to the peace-offering.

- (11) As in the case of the peace-offering of a Nazirite and not as in the instance of an ordinary peace-offering whose flesh may be consumed during two days and the night in between.
- (12) As it cannot be placed upon the hands of the Nazirite as required in Num. VI. 19.
- (13) To be offered e.g., by him who recovered from gonorrhoea; v. Lev. XV. 1ff.
- (14) Turtle-doves are fit for offerings only after they have reached a certain age, pigeons only under that age. cf. Hul. 22b. The argument is: As he might buy with the money something which is not subject to sacrilege. the money. too, should not be subject to the Law of Sacrilege, as in the instance of the Mishnah.
- (15) Some edd. read: R. Ishmael.
- (16) Cf. Yoma 58b.
- (17) I.e., pits at the side of the altar into which the remainder of libations was poured. V. Tosef. Suk. III, 3.
- (18) Yoma 592.
- (19) Yoma 59b has the version: The dispute refers only to the application of the law by enactment of the Rabbis. All agree, however, that by law of the Torah Sacrilege does not apply; wherefrom do we know this? Tosaf. corrects here accordingly.
- (20) Lev. XVII, 11.
- (21) I.e., it is not the 'possession of God', but that of man.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 11b

What of the ashes removed [from the altar] which are subject to the Law of Sacrilege although the prescribed ceremony had been performed therewith!¹ — The [law concerning the] removed ashes and that concerning the limbs of the scapegoat² constitute two texts of Scripture which teach the same thing, and wherever two texts teach the same thing no general rule can be derived from them.³ This would be right according to the view that one may make no use of the limbs of the scapegoat, but what would be your argument according to him who holds that one may use them? — The [law concerning the] removed ashes and that concerning the garments of the High priest⁴ constitute two texts of Scripture which teach the same thing, and wherever two texts teach the same thing no general rule can be derived from them. This would be right according to the Rabbis Who hold [that the text]. And he shall place them there⁵ teaches that they have to be hidden,⁶ but what would be your argument according to R. Dosa who holds that a common priest may wear them? — The [law concerning the] removed ashes and that concerning the heifer whose neck has been broken⁷ constitute two texts of Scripture which teach the same thing [and from such texts no general rule can be derived]. But this [reply] would be right [only] according to him who [indeed] holds that one cannot derive a general rule [from such laws]; but what would be your argument according to the view that one can derive a general rule [from such laws]? — [In this case] there are written two limitations [excluding other instances]: Here it is written. The heifer whose neck has been broken,⁸ and there it is written, And he shall place it by the side of the altar,⁹ implying that only in these [instances does the Law of Sacrilege apply even after the prescribed ceremony has been performed], but not in others. LIBATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AT THE BEGINNING etc. May we assume that our Mishnah is not in agreement with the view of R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok? For 'it has been taught:¹⁰ 'R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok said: There was a small passage between the ascent [of the altar] and the altar, on the west side of the altar. Once every seventy years young priests descended through it and brought up the [accumulated] congealed wine, which resembled a cake of figs. and burnt it in a sacred place, for Scripture says: In holiness shalt thou surely offer the libation to the Lord:¹¹ just as the libation thereof must be in a sacred place, so the burning thereof must be in a sacred place'. How is this implied? — Thereupon said Rabina: It is derived from [nothar¹² by textual analogy based on the word] 'holy' occurring in both texts. It says here 'in holiness'¹³ and it says there, and thou shalt burn the remnant in fire, it may not be eaten for it is holy.¹⁴ Just as nothar is burnt in a sacred state,¹⁵ so also these [libations] are burnt in a sacred state.¹⁶ — [The Mishnah] may well agree with R. Eleazar, son of R. Zadok, as [it refers only to the case where the wine] was caught [before it reached the bottom of the Shittin].¹⁷ Some reported [the discussion in the following version]: Shall we say that our Mishnah is in accordance with the view of R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok?¹⁸ — [Not necessarily] as [it deals with a case where] the wine was caught [before it reached the ground]. I might say:¹⁹ It is not necessary [to limit the Mishnah to this case] for [it is considered holy only] by Rabbinical enactment. But does he not adduce the text? — [The Biblical text is a] mere exegetical support [of a Rabbinical enactment]. MISHNAH. THE ASHES OF THE INNER ALTAR²⁰ AND [OF THE WICKS OF] THE CANDLESTICK MAY NOT BE USED. AND ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. IF ONE DEDICATES ASHES²¹ THEY ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. TURTLE-DOVES WHICH HAVE NOT REACHED THE RIGHT AGE AND PIGEONS WHICH HAVE EXCEEDED THE RIGHT AGE²² MAY NOT BE ENJOYED; THEY ARE, HOWEVER NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. GEMARA. This²³ is right

(1) Why not take this as an example for similar instances?

(2) Which, too, according to one view in Yoma 67a are subject to the Law of Sacrilege, although the prescribed ceremony has been performed therewith.

(3) For were it the intention of the Torah that these laws should serve as a model to similar cases one text would suffice.

(4) V. Hul. 117a.

(5) Lev. XVI, 23.

(6) So as not to be used again, i.e., they are subject to the Law of Sacrilege.

(7) V. Deut. XXI, 1ff, and Sot. IX. 1f.

(8) Deut. XXI, 6. The definite article is to exclude other cases.

(9) That the removed ashes are still holy and therefore subject to the Law of Sacrilege is learnt from the fact that we are commanded to place it 'by the side of the altar'. In the text commanding this, Lev. VI, 3, the word 'it' is regarded as unnecessary and is taken to indicate that only the ashes are sacred even after the prescribed ceremony had been performed therewith, and not other things.

(10) Suk. 492'

(11) Num, XXVIII, 7. The verb is repeated in Hebrew as emphasis.

(12) V. Glos.

(13) Num. XXVIII, 7.

(14) Ex. XXIX, 34.

(15) Cf. Pes. 82b.

(16) They are still considered sacred at the time of burning. The Law of Sacrilege should accordingly apply to the wine libation even after it had been let down to the Shittin, which is contradictory to our Mishnah.

(17) In which case R. Eleazar too agrees that the Law of Sacrilege does not apply. though once it reaches the bottom of the Shittin the holy ground renders the wine again sacred.

(18) For according to the Sages. Suk. 49a, the pits were not pits where the wine accumulated, but rather canals through which it flowed. The instance of our Mishnah of the use of such wine should then be an impossibility.

(19) The text of the last paragraph is rather obscure; cf. Tosaf. Suk. 49b who states that this version is corrupt and that of Suk. correct, where this paragraph is wholly omitted. It can make sense as a continuation of the discussion according to the former tradition. There the Mishnah is restricted, according to R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok, to wine caught in the air, for if taken after it has reached the bottom of the Shittin, it is considered holy and should therefore be subject to the Law of Sacrilege. Now it is argued, perhaps this reservation is not necessary, for the sacred character attributed to the wine by R. Eleazar is only a Rabbinical enactment and the Law of Sacrilege need not therefore apply to it.

(20) Unlike the ashes of the outer altar these do not retain their sacred character after the removal from the inner altar, since there is no special text implying that they remain holy. as in the case of the outer altar (v. oupra p. 40, n. 5).

(21) I.e., if one collects these ashes after their removal from the inner altar to the heap of ashes, and dedicates them afresh to the Temple, they are sacred and therefore subject to the Law of Sacrilege (Tosaf.). Aliter: If someone had vowed to give their value to the Temple before they had been removed.

(22) These are not fit for offerings. v. Hul. I, 5.

(23) Viz., the fact that the ashes of the altar have to be put at the place of the ashes.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 12a

as far as the outer altar is concerned, for it is written: And he shall place it by the altar,¹ but wherefrom do we know this of the ashes of the inner altar? Said R. Eleazar, Scripture says: And he shall take away its crop with the feathers thereof [and cast it beside the altar on the east part, in the place of the ashes]:² as this has no bearing on the outer altar,³ make it bear on the inner altar. But why not say that both passages bear upon the outer altar [and it has been repeated] in order to fix the precise side [for the ashes]?⁴ — If so, Scripture should [only] say, 'by the altar'; why [add, 'the place of] the ashes'? [To suggest] that [it was the place of the ashes] also for the inner altar.⁵ Wherefrom do we know [the place for the ashes of] the candlestick? — [The expression] 'the ashes' [is an amplification, for it sufficed to mention] 'ashes'. MISHNAH.⁶ R. SIMEON SAID: TURTLE-DOVES WHICH HAVE NOT YET REACHED THE RIGHT AGE ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE,⁷ WHILE PIGEONS WHICH HAVE EXCEEDED THE RIGHT AGE ARE NOT ALLOWED FOR USE, BUT ARE EXEMPTED FROM THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. GEMARA. It is right according to R. Simeon whose reason has been stated [in a Mishnah]:⁸ 'For R. Simeon used to say: [He who uses] that which will be fit [for offering] after a period and has been dedicated before that period has expired has transgressed a prohibitory law,⁹ though he is not liable to the penalty of kareth'.¹⁰ But according to the ruling of the Rabbis,¹¹ whereby is [our case] distinguished from that of [animal-sacrifices] which have not reached the required age [of eight days]?¹² — I might reply: [The sacrifice of a beast] that has not reached the required age is to be compared to one with a blemish which can be redeemed,¹³ but these bird-offerings, which a blemish¹⁴ does not disqualify them, cannot be redeemed. 'Ulla said in the name of R. Johanan: Dedicated [animals] which have died are according to the Torah exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. When 'Ulla sat and recited this ruling. R. Hisda said to him: Who has ever heard this, your view and the view of R. Johanan. your teacher? Whither has the sanctity thereof gone? — He thereupon replied: Why not ask the same question with relation to our Mishnah, where it says: TURTLE-DOVES WHICH HAVE NOT YET REACHED THE RIGHT AGE, AND PIGEONS WHICH HAVE EXCEEDED THE RIGHT AGE MAY NOT BE ENJOYED; THEY ARE, HOWEVER, NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. Here, too. [ask] whither has the sanctity thereof gone?¹⁵ — Nevertheless¹⁶ [continued 'Ulla], I admit that by Rabbinical enactment the Law of Sacrilege is applicable [in these instances],¹⁷ but I wish to raise the difficulty: Is there anything which has been exempted from the Law of Sacrilege¹⁸ from the beginning and is subject to it afterwards?¹⁹ — Why not? Is there not the instance of blood which was originally exempted from the Law of Sacrilege, but is subject to it at the end [of the offering ceremony]? For we have learnt: 'Blood is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege at the beginning, but is subject to it after it has flowed away to the Brook Kidron'.²⁰ — I might reply: In that instance the Law of Sacrilege was applicable at the beginning

(1) Lev. VI, 3.

(2) Ibid. I, 16.

(3) Since this is mentioned in Lev. VI, 3.

(4) Viz., the east side.

(5) Ibid. The definite article is regarded as superfluous.

(6) In many editions this Mishnah is joined to the previous, of which it is a continuation, thus in Tosaf.

(7) For they may be offered when they grow older.

(8) Hul. 81a.

(9) Similarly, these turtle-doves since they will become fit after a certain period, are considered holy when dedicated even before the period is reached.

(10) V. Glos.

(11) I.e., the anonymous view of the previous Mishnah.

(12) Of which it says in Bek. 56a that they at once become sacred.

- (13) In the instance of a sacrifice of cattle there is redemption in the case of disqualification by blemish; i.e., we find a precedent that even a disqualified only is holy, because a substitute can take its place. There is no such precedent in the case of a bird offering as this offering cannot be redeemed.
- (14) Even in the case of such blemishes which disqualify even bird-offerings there is no redemption.
- (15) The question is from pigeons which have passed the prescribed age after having been dedicated.
- (16) So MS.M. cur. edd.: 'He said to him'. I.e., although Mishnah proves that it is possible for the Law of Sacrilege to cease to operate.
- (17) I.e., in my case and in that of the Mishnah. One is liable to compensation, though not to the payment of the additional Fifth.
- (18) As in the instance of the turtle-doves according to the first view of the Mishnah.
- (19) I.e., after they reach the prescribed age. although they had been dedicated when they were not yet of age.
- (20) Supra 11a.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 12b

for Rab said:¹ 'The blood let from a [living] consecrated animal may not be used and is subject to the Law of Sacrilege'. [The above] text states: R. Huna² said in the name of Rab: 'The blood let from a [living] consecrated animal may not be used and is subject to the Law of Sacrilege'. R. Hamnuna raised an objection:³ 'The milk of consecrated cattle and the eggs of turtledoves may not be used, but the Law of Sacrilege does not apply to them'.⁴ — He replied: The ruling applies only to blood, for one cannot live without blood,⁵ but not to milk, as one can well live without it. R. Mesharsheya raised an objection: The manure and excrements⁶ that lie in the courtyard of the Temple may not be used, but are not subject to the Law of Sacrilege. The money thereof [paid in compensation] goes to the Temple Treasury. Now why is this so, since here too there is none who exists without some quantity of digested food [in its body]?⁷ — I might reply: How can you compare these two things with one another? Excrements come from outside [the body] and when the one [quantity of food] has been excluded [from the body] another will be consumed. Different it is with blood which is part of the body. It states: ' . . . may not be used, but are subject to the Law of Sacrilege and the money [thereof paid in compensation] goes to the Temple Treasury'. This offers a support of the rule of R. Eleazar. For R. Eleazar said: Wherever the Sages ruled [that a thing is] sacred yet not sacred [in every respect],⁸ the money thereof [paid in compensation] goes to the Temple Treasury. MISHNAH. THE MILK OF CONSECRATED ANIMALS AND THE EGGS OF [CONSECRATED] TURTLE-DOVES MAY NOT BE USED, BUT ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. THIS HOLDS GOOD ONLY FOR THINGS DEDICATED FOR THE ALTAR, BUT AS TO THINGS DEDICATED FOR TEMPLE REPAIR, IF ONE CONSECRATED [E.G.,] A CHICKEN BOTH IT AND ITS EGGS ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, OR [IF ONE DEDICATED] A SHE-ASS, BOTH IT AND ITS MILK ARE SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. GEMARA. Does [the restriction to things dedicated for Temple repair] imply that if dedicated [to the altar] for its value [the milk or eggs] will be exempted from the Law of Sacrilege? — Said R. Papa, a clause has been omitted [in the Mishnah] which should read as follows: 'This holds good only for things dedicated themselves for the altar; but if their value is dedicated for the altar, it is considered as if they have been dedicated for Temple repair. If one consecrated [e.g.,] a chicken both it and its eggs are subject to the Law of Sacrilege, or [if one dedicated] a she-ass, both it and its milk are subject to the Law of Sacrilege'.⁹ MISHNAH. WHATSOEVER IS FIT FOR THE ALTAR

(1) Ber. 312.

(2) In the above quotation R. Huna's name is omitted.

(3) Infra.

(4) The same should apply to blood.

(5) It is therefore an integral part of the body.

(6) Of consecrated animals.

(7) I.e., it is essential for the life of the beast.

(8) I.e. it may not be used, yet is not subject to the Law of Sacrilege, in which case the mere actual value has to be repaid.

(9) Because the produce of the offering cannot be offered upon the altar, for which the animal itself is designated. It is therefore not included in the dedication. In the case of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness the produce is of the same degree of holiness as the animal itself.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 13a

AND NOT FOR TEMPLE REPAIR. FOR TEMPLE REPAIR AND NOT FOR THE ALTAR, NEITHER FOR THE ALTAR NOR FOR TEMPLE REPAIR. IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, HOW IS THIS? IF ONE CONSECRATED A CISTERN FULL OF WATER,¹ A MIDDEN FULL OF MANURE,² A DOVE-COTE FULL OF PIGEONS,³ A TREE LADEN WITH FRUIT,⁴ A FIELD COVERED WITH HERBS,⁵ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THEM AND TO THEIR CONTENTS. BUT IF ONE CONSECRATED A CISTERN AND IT WAS LATER FILLED WITH WATER, A MIDDEN AND IT WAS LATER FILLED WITH MANURE, A DOVE-COTE AND IT WAS LATER FILLED WITH PIGEONS, A TREE AND IT AFTERWARDS BORE FRUIT OR A FIELD AND IT AFTERWARDS PRODUCED HERBS, THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE CONSECRATED OBJECTS THEMSELVES BUT NOT TO THEIR CONTENTS, R. JOSE SAID: IF ONE CONSECRATED A FIELD OR A TREE, THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THEM AND TO THEIR PRODUCE.⁶ FOR IT IS THE GROWTH OF CONSECRATED PROPERTY. THE YOUNG⁷ OF [CATTLE SET ASIDE AS] TITHE MAY NOT SUCK FROM SUCH CATTLE.⁸ SOME PEOPLE USED TO DEDICATE ON SUCH A CONDITION.⁹ THE YOUNG¹⁰ OF CONSECRATED CATTLE MAY NOT SUCK FROM SUCH CATTLE. SOME PEOPLE USED TO DEDICATE ON SUCH A CONDITION. LABOURERS¹¹ MAY NOT ENJOY OF DRY FIGS DEDICATED TO THE TEMPLE,¹² NOR MAY A COW EAT OF THE VETCH BELONGING TO THE TEMPLE.¹³ GEMARA. It says: 'THE YOUNG OF CATTLE SET ASIDE AS TITHE MAY NOT SUCK FROM SUCH CATTLE'. Wherefrom do we know this? Said R. Ahadboi, son of Ammi, It is derived from the first-born by textual analogy based on the word 'passing',¹⁴ occurring in both texts]: As the first-born¹⁵ is subject to the Law of Sacrilege, so also the milk of cattle set aside as tithe is subject to the law of Sacrilege. As to milk of consecrated cattle, it is derived from the first-born [by textual analogy based on the words] 'his mother'¹⁶ [occurring in both texts]. LABOURERS MAY NOT ENJOY etc. What is the reason?¹⁷ — Said R. Ahadboi, son of Ammi, Scripture says: Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn;¹⁸ what he treadeth of your own,¹⁹ but not of Temple property. If one threshes [his] kela'ilin²⁰ in a field belonging to the Temple he is guilty of sacrilege.²¹ But has it not to be detached from the ground?²² — Said Rabina: This proves that the dust²³ is beneficial to it [kela'ilin]. [

(1) Fit for Temple repair only.

(2) Fit neither for the altar nor for Temple repair.

(3) Fit for the altar.

(4) Fit for the altar if it was a vine tree, whose wine may be used for libation offerings, otherwise unfit for both.

(5) Which bears a sacred character.

(6) R. Jose contends that in these two instances the produce has not come from without, but has grown naturally from the things dedicated. The produce is potentially present at the time of dedication.

(7) Which is itself not sacred, as it was born before the tithing.

(8) For the milk is sacred and may not be used by profane cattle.

(9) I.e., when cattle were taken to be tithed a condition was made to the effect that should the tithe be a female, its milk should not be consecrated, but permissible for its young.

(10) Itself not sacred, if born before consecration.

(11) Working in fields belonging to the Temple.

- (12) For the law that labourers may eat of fruits on which they work, Deut. XXIII, 25, applies to private property only, for the text speaks of 'the neighbour's vineyard'. v. B.M. 87a.
- (13) A cow which belongs to private property may be muzzled while thrashing the vetch of the Temple, for the law of Deut. XXV, 4 does not apply to Temple property.
- (14) I.e., occurring in Ex. XIII, 12 and Lev. XXVII, 32.
- (15) The first-born is a male animal. Its sacredness appertains to the whole body, as also in the case of tithe the sanctity attaches to the whole body, including the milk.
- (16) I.e., occurring in Ex. XXII, 29 and Lev. XXII, 27.
- (17) That a cow may not eat the vetch belonging to the Temple.
- (18) Deut. XXV, 4.
- (19) The pronoun of בְּדִישׁוֹ is taken to refer to the owner and not to the ox.

MISHNAH. IF THE ROOTS OF A PRIVATELY OWNED TREE SPREAD INTO DEDICATED GROUND,¹ OR THOSE OF A TREE IN DEDICATED GROUND SPREAD TO PRIVATE GROUND,² THEY MAY NOT BE USED, BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO THEM.³ THE WATER OF A WELL⁴ WHICH COMES FORTH IN A DEDICATED FIELD MAY NOT BE ENJOYED THOUGH IT IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE; WHEN IT HAS LEFT THE FIELD IT MAY BE ENJOYED.⁵ THE WATER⁶ IN THE GOLDEN JAR⁷ MAY NOT BE USED, BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO IT. WHEN IT HAS BEEN POURED INTO THE FLASK, IT BECOMES SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. THE WILLOW BRANCH⁸ MAY NOT BE USED, BUT IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. R. ELEAZAR, SON OF R. ZADOK SAYS: THE ELDERS WERE ACCUSTOMED TO USE IT WITH THEIR PALM TREE BRANCHES. GEMARA. Said Resh Lakish: 'The law of Sacrilege does not apply' to the whole of the contents [of the jar], but the Law of Sacrilege applies to the three logs.⁹ But does it not say in the second clause: WHEN IT HAS BEEN POURED INTO THE FLASK, IT BECOMES SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, from which it follows that in the first clause the Law of Sacrilege does not apply. even with reference to the three logs? — Rather, if [Resh Lakish's statement] has been made, it has been made with reference to the second clause: IT BECOMES SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. Said Resh Lakish: This holds good only [if the flask contained] exactly three logs,¹⁰ but R. Johanan said: It applies to the whole contents. Are we then to assume that Resh Lakish holds that a definite quantity has been prescribed for the water libation? But have we not learnt: R. Eleazar said, If one offered the water libation of Tabernacles during the Festival outside the Temple Court he is culpable;¹¹ and R. Johanan in the name of Menahem of Jotapata remarked thereupon: R. Eleazar follows R. Akiba's principle who expounds 'their libations'¹² denoting that the libation of water is analogous to the libation of wine;¹³ and Resh Lakish retorted: Would you then also say: As three logs are prescribed for wine, so also for water? Now does it not follow from this that Resh Lakish holds that no definite quantity has been prescribed for water? — No, his argument is on the view of Menahem of Jotapata!¹⁴ MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT DERIVE ANY BENEFIT FROM A NEST WHICH IS BUILT ON THE TOP OF A DEDICATED TREE. BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO IT. THAT WHICH IS ON THE TOP OF AN ASHERAH¹⁵ ONE FLICKS [IT] OFF WITH A REED.¹⁶ IF ONE DEDICATED A FOREST TO THE TEMPLE, THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO THE WHOLE OF IT.

GEMARA. It was stated:¹ If an idol broke to pieces by itself, R. Johanan says it is still prohibited [for use]; Resh Lakish says it is allowed. 'R. Johanan holds it is prohibited', because the idol worshipper has not annulled it.² 'Resh Lakish holds it is allowed', for [the idolator] surely thinks: If the idol did not save itself, how could it save me.³ Resh Lakish raised an objection to R. Johanan: ONE MAY NOT DERIVE ANY BENEFIT FROM A NEST WHICH IS BUILT ON THE TOP OF A DEDICATED TREE, BUT THE LAW OF SACRILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO IT. THAT WHICH IS ON THE TOP OF AN ASHERAH ONE FLICKS [IT] OFF WITH A REED. Now, does this not deal with a case where the twigs [with which the nest was built] were broken off [by the birds] from that tree itself, and yet it rules that he can flick them off with a reed?⁴ — No, the twigs were brought [by the birds] from elsewhere. If so,⁵ if [the tree was] dedicated one may not make use [of the nest] and the Law of Sacrilege does not apply to it.⁶ Hence it must deal with twigs that have however grown after [the dedication of the tree],⁷ and [our Mishnah] holds that the Law of Sacrilege does not apply to the growth of dedicated [trees]. This interpretation⁸ seems also logical, for should we say that the twigs were brought from elsewhere, why [has the nest] to be shaken off with a reed, let it be simply taken [by hand]!⁹ — Said R. Abbahu in the name of R. Johanan: It deals indeed with twigs brought from elsewhere and the expression ONE FLICKS OFF refers to the young birds.¹⁰ Said R. Jacob to R. Jeremiah: The young birds are permitted for use¹¹ in both instances,¹² and the eggs are prohibited¹³ for use in both instances. Said R. Ashi: If the birds are [so young that they] require [the care of] their mother, they are considered like eggs. MISHNAH. IF THE TREASURERS [OF THE TEMPLE] BOUGHT TREES,¹⁴ THE TIMBER IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE BUT NOT THE CHIPS AND THE FOLIAGE.¹⁵ GEMARA. Said Samuel: Temple buildings are built first with secular [money]. and then they are dedicated,¹⁶ (why? Because he who donates money [to the Temple Fund] declares it [forthwith] sacred)¹⁷ in that he [the Treasurer] says the sacredness of the money shall be transmitted to the building, so that the money may be paid out to the labourers as their wages.

(1) A.Z. 4b.

(2) It was not the heathen who broke the idol, it broke by itself.

(3) It is assumed that in their hearts the worshippers have abandoned this idol. It is no longer an object of worship.

(4) And, of course, used. This instance is parallel to the case in question. for the twigs were not broken by the heathen himself and thus annulled by him.

(5) Rashi has here a version similar to that of the same discussion in A.Z. 42a.

- (6) Since the twigs are not from the tree belonging to Temple property, they should even be permitted for use (Tosaf).
- (7) You are thus obliged to interpret the Mishnah as referring to twigs taken from the tree itself; but should you then object, in that case the difficulty would be why they were not subject to the Law of Sacrilege: It is because it deals with twigs grown after the dedication of the tree (exclusive of the ground upon which the tree grows) and such twigs are not subject to the Law of Sacrilege. The objection to R. Johanan again remains. The following passage is to be understood in parenthesis.
- (8) Viz., that the twigs were from the tree itself.
- (9) If the twigs are, in accordance with our interpretation. of the same tree the direct approach to the nest and its twigs may have been prohibited as a precautionary measure, lest people assume that the twigs still growing are also permitted;
- (10) The twigs, however, are indeed prohibited in accordance with the view of R. Johanan.
- (11) Because they can fly and are not considered as belonging to the tree.
- (12) I.e., in the case of dedicated trees and an asherah.
- (13) For they are considered attached to the tree.
- (14) To have them prepared for building purpose for the Temple.
- (15) For these are useless for building and the Treasurer, it is assumed, has not intended to impart to them the character of sacred property.
- (16) The building material is bought with money belonging to private individuals or taken on credit. Also the wages for the workmen are paid from secular money or owed to them. When the building is finished it is exchanged. as a whole, against the money donated to the Temple Fund for this building. The money becomes again secular and can be used to satisfy the creditors and the labourers.
- (17) If material was bought with this money, the seller of the material would be guilty of sacrilege in using the money. The same applies to the labourers.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 14b

An objection was raised: What was done with the surplus of the frankincense?¹ Money equivalent to the craftsmen's but if the twigs are from elsewhere there is no ground for such an assumption. wages² was set aside [from the Temple Treasury],³ [the surplus was] then exchanged against this money of the craftsmen, handed over to the craftsmen⁴ and then purchased from them with money of the new levy.⁵ Now why was [this procedure necessary]? Why not exchange the surplus against a building?⁶ — [We deal with a case where] there was no building.⁷ But does it not speak of 'the craftsmen's wages'?⁸ — There was no building equivalent to the value of the surplus. But does not Samuel hold:⁹ 'If consecrated property of the value of a maneh¹⁰ has even exchanged against a perutah,¹⁰ the exchange is valid'. — [He sanctions such a transaction] after it has been done, but not at the outset. R. Papa says, This is the reason why the building has to be built with secular [money]: The Torah has not been given to ministering angels;¹¹ he [the craftsman] might wish to lie down and would lie down on them,¹² and if it was built by consecrated [money] he would as a result be guilty of sacrilege. We have learnt: IF THE TREASURERS [OF THE TEMPLE] BOUGHT TREES, THE TIMBER IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE BUT NOT THE CHIPS AND THE FOLIAGE. But why should one trespass the law of Sacrilege? Let this too be prepared in a secular state¹³ lest one might wish to lie down on them, and would as a result be guilty of sacrilege! — Said R. Papa: If the wood is to be used at a later date it would be indeed so;¹⁴ our Mishnah refers to wood which is to be used on the same day.¹⁵ [

(1) Each year there was a surplus of frankincense. In the month of Nissn a new year began for the offering of incense. The surplus of the past year was not allowed to be used in the new year. The device mentioned here provides a method of using this surplus by repurchasing it with the money of the new levy.

(2) I.e., any wages that the Temple may owe to labourers for their work.

(3) From this money of the shekel chamber (the Lishkah) wages were permitted to be paid, but not from a donation declared holy for a special purpose.

(4) It is not essential actually to hand it over to the labourers. Somebody else may acquire it on their behalf. The incense then becomes secular property and may be re-purchased for the Temple to be used during the coming year.

- (5) I.e., the newly paid shekels from which all public offerings for the coming year beginning with the first of Nisan are bought, v. Shek. IV, 5.
- (6) Since, according to Samuel, the building is at first secular, why not exchange the frankincense against it and re.purchase it with the money of the new levy?
- (7) No new building was erected then.
- (8) Implying that some work has been done.
- (9) B.M. 57b.
- (10) V. Glos.
- (11) I.e., we are only human beings.
- (12) The bricks e.g.
- (13) Let the preparation of the timber be done as non consecrated property and then purchased by the Temple Fund.
- (14) As you suggest.
- (15) In which case there is little likelihood that one will use it unwittingly.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. THINGS DEDICATED FOR THE ALTAR CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER¹ WITH REGARD TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AND TO RENDER ONE CULPABLE FOR [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL,² NOTHAR² AND DEFILEMENT.³ THINGS DEDICATED FOR TEMPLE REPAIR⁴ CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER.⁵ THINGS DEDICATED FOR THE ALTAR CAN COMBINE WITH THINGS DEDICATED FOR TEMPLE REPAIR WITH REGARD TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE.

GEMARA. Since things dedicated for the altar can combine with things dedicated for Temple repair, although the one is consecrated as such and the other only for its value, was it then necessary to mention at all that things dedicated for the altar can combine with others of the same nature? — Since he had to state the addition in this connection: 'AND TO RENDER ONE CULPABLE FOR [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS OF] PIGGUL, NOTHAR AND DEFILEMENT', which is inapplicable to things dedicated for Temple repair, therefore he stated this separately. Said R. Jannai: It is clear that the Law of Sacrilege applies only to things dedicated for Temple repair and to burnt-offerings.⁶ What is the reason? — Scripture says: If anyone commits a trespass [and sin in error] in the holy things of the Lord.⁷ Holy things designated wholly for God⁸ are subject to the Law of Sacrilege; but as to [other] things⁹ dedicated for the altar, of them the priests have a share and the owners have a share. We have learnt: THINGS DEDICATED FOR THE ALTAR CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER WITH REGARD TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE?¹⁰ — [This applies only] by Rabbinical enactment. We have learnt: 'The Law of Sacrilege applies to the Most Holy sacrifices which were slaughtered on the south side'.¹¹ — [It is] by Rabbinical enactment. We have learnt: 'If one derived a benefit from a sin-offering, while it was alive he has not trespassed the Law of Sacrilege unless he has diminished its substance; if while it was dead he is liable even though his benefit was of the smallest value'.¹² — By Rabbinical enactment. And by Biblical law are they indeed exempted? Has it not been taught: Rabbi says. The expression all fat is the Lord's¹³ is to include the emurim¹⁴ of sacrifices of a minor degree of holiness with regard to the Law of Sacrilege!¹⁵ — By Rabbinical enactment. But does he adduce a Biblical text [as proof]? — It is a mere exegetical support [of a Rabbinical enactment]. But does not 'Ulla say in the name of R. Johanan: 'Consecrated animals which died are according to Biblical law exempted from the Law of Sacrilege'.¹⁶ Now, to what does this refer? Shall I say to things dedicated for Temple repair; then the Law of Sacrilege should apply to them even after they have died; for suppose a man would dedicate a midden for Temple repair, would the Law of Sacrilege not apply to it? It must then refer to things dedicated for the altar.¹⁷ But then they should not¹⁸ be subject to sacrilege by Biblical law! — Rather what the School of R. Jannai taught was that from that text¹⁹ you can only derive things dedicated for Temple repair; but things dedicated for the altar you cannot derive from it.²⁰ [

MISHNAH. FIVE THINGS IN A BURNT-OFFERING CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER: THE FLESH, THE FAT,¹ THE FINE FLOUR, THE WINE AND THE OIL;² AND SIX IN A THANKOFFERING: THE FLESH, THE FAT, THE FINE FLOUR, THE WINE, THE OIL AND THE BREAD. GEMARA. R. Huna recited to Raba: 'Five things in the world³ can combine with one another'. Said the latter: Did you say 'in the world'? Does not the Mishnah teach of a thank-offering: AND SIX IN A THANK-OFFERING: THE FLESH, THE FAT, THE FINE FLOUR, THE WINE, THE OIL AND THE BREAD? — The other replied: Read 'in a burnt-offering'.⁴ We have thus learnt here what our Rabbis have taught: '[The flesh of] a burnt-offering and the sacrificial portions thereof⁵ can combine to make up [the requisite size of] an olive [to render one liable] for offering them outside [the Temple Court] and to render one culpable for [transgressing the laws of] piggul, nothar and defilement'. It speaks of a burnt-offering and does apparently not apply to a peace-offering. This is right as far as offering outside the Temple Court is concerned, for with a burnt-offering which is wholly offered the emurim⁶ can be combined;⁷ but with [the flesh of] a peace-offering⁸ it can rightly not be combined. But with regard to [the transgression of the laws of] piggul nothar and defilement, why should one not be guilty in the case of a peace-offering?⁹ Have we not learnt: 'All kinds of piggul can combine with one another and all kinds of nothar can combine with one another'?¹⁰ — Read, therefore: The flesh of a burnt-offering and the emurim thereof can combine with one another to make up an olive-size so that the blood can be sprinkled on account of them;¹¹ and it represents the opinion of R. Joshua. For we have learnt:¹² R. Joshua said, With all other sacrifices of the Torah the blood can be sprinkled only if an olive-size of flesh or an olive-size of fat was left; if half an olive-size of flesh and half an olive-size of fat were left the blood cannot be sprinkled. With a burnt-offering, however, the blood can be sprinkled even if half an olive-size of flesh and half an olive size of fat were left, because it is all offered upon the altar. And with a meal-offering, even if it has wholly been preserved. the blood cannot be sprinkled. How does the meal-offering come in?¹³ — Said R. Papa: [It refers to] a meal-offering which accompanies a beast sacrifice.¹⁴ MISHNAH. TERUMAH,¹⁵ TERUMAH OF THE TITHE,¹⁶ TERUMAH OF THE TITHE SEPARATED FROM DEM'AI,¹⁷ HALLAH¹⁸ AND FIRST-FRUITS CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER TO MAKE UP THE SIZE REQUIRED TO RENDER OTHER THINGS¹⁹ FORBIDDEN AND TO BE LIABLE TO THE PAYMENT OF A Fifth.²⁰ ALL KINDS OF PIGGUL CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER AND ALL KINDS OF NOTHAR CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER. GEMARA. What is the reason that hallah and first-fruits can combine? — All these are called by the term 'terumah'. Of hallah it reads, of the first of your dough you shall set apart terumah.²¹ The first-fruits are also called terumah, for we have learnt: The expression, and the terumah of thy hand²² refers to first fruits.²³ While the other instances²⁴ of the Mishnah need no proof. MISHNAH. ALL KINDS OF NEBELAH²⁵ CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER,²⁶ AND ALL KINDS OF REPTILES CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER.²⁶ GEMARA. Said Rab:

- (1) The fat parts which were offered on the altar.
 - (2) The latter three are from the accompanying meal-offering
 - (3) Meaning there are in connection with all offerings only five things.
 - (4) בעולם instead of בעולם 'in the world'.
 - (5) Thus the version of Zeb. 109a and of Rashi. Cur. edd. read: burnt-offerings and emurim, v. Glos.
 - (6) Which are always offered upon the altar.
 - (7) With the other parts of the flesh.
 - (8) The flesh is eaten by the owner and the priests. In this case they can, of course, not combine the emurim when offered outside the Temple.
 - (9) When the legal size was accomplished through a combination of the different parts thereof.
 - (10) V. infra.
 - (11) Thus the version of Tosaf. and Rashi. Cur. edd. add.: And since they can combine with regard to sprinkling, one is guilty . . . and whose view is this? If the flesh of a burnt-offering is lost, the blood can be sprinkled only if an olive-size of the offering is left. Now, this olive-size may be composed of flesh and emurim.
 - (12) Tosef. Zeb. IV, 3.
 - (13) I.e., how does the sprinkling come in connection with a meal-offering.
 - (14) Lit., 'a meal-offering of libation', because this is the only kind of meal-offering which requires wine for libation. V. Num. XV, 5f. I might have thought that the blood of the offering can be sprinkled if nothing but the accompanying meal-offering is preserved, hence we are told that it is not so.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 16a

This¹ has been taught only with reference to defilement,² but with regard to eating, clean animals³ form one group for themselves and unclean animals⁴ another. And Levi said: Also in regard to eating do they all combine with one another.⁵ And R. Assi said: Clean animals for themselves and unclean for themselves. Some say he differs from Rab,⁶ while others say he does not differ from him.⁷ An objection was raised: [The flesh of] a dead cow⁸ and a living camel⁹ cannot combine with one another, from which it follows that if both, however, were dead their flesh would combine. Does this not contradict R. Assi?¹⁰ — No, refer thus: But if both were alive they could combine; and this would be in agreement with R. Judah's view who holds¹¹ that the prohibition to eat a limb [cut off] from a living creature¹² applies also to unclean animals. But what would be the case if both were dead? Could they not combine? If so, why just instance¹³ 'the flesh of a dead cow and a living camel',¹⁴ surely even if both were dead they could not combine? And furthermore, have we not learnt: 'Half an olive size [of the flesh] of a living cow and half an olive-size of that of a dead camel cannot combine with one another, but half an olive size of the flesh of a cow and half an olive-size of that of a camel can combine with one another if both are alive or both dead'. There would be a contradiction between the opening clause¹⁵ and the concluding. You must therefore come to the conclusion that in the case of both animals being dead they can combine with one another!¹⁶ — R. Assi would reply: This Tanna holds that a prohibition can apply to something that has been prohibited already by reason of another prohibition.¹⁷

(1) Viz., the first clause.

(2) V. Lev. XI, 39. An olive's bulk conveys uncleanness.

(3) Which, if they died of themselves, or if slaughtered not according to ritual, are prohibited as nebelah, v. Deut. XIV, 21.

(4) Which even if not slaughtered according to ritual are prohibited only by reason of their uncleanness, v. Lev. XI, 8, but do not come under the category of nebelah, according to the principle that a prohibition cannot take hold of something which has already been forbidden.

(5) He holds that unclean animals not slaughtered according to ritual do come under the category of nebelah.

(6) I.e., he is assumed to relate also to defilement.

(7) But refers to eating only.

(8) I.e., the nebelah of a clean animal.

(9) Cut off while the camel was alive. A camel is an unclean animal.

(10) According to the first explanation of R. Assi's statement, Rashi: Rab is not contradicted as this statement might refer to defilement.

(16) Contradicting R. Assi.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 16b

Said R. Judah in the name of Rab: As to the eating of unclean reptiles, one is liable to the penalty of lashes only when one has consumed an olive-size.¹ Why? Because the expression 'eating'² is used in that connection. But did not R. Jose son of R. Hanina recite before R. Johanan: [It is written]: Ye shall therefore separate between the clean beast and the unclean and between the unclean fowl and the clean and ye shall not make your souls³ detestable by beast or by fowl or by anything wherewith the ground teemeth, which I have set apart for you to hold unclean.⁴ Scripture speaks at the beginning of eating and ends with defilement, in order to indicate that as with reference to defilement the lentil is the standard size so also with regard to eating. Whereupon R. Johanan praised him. Now, does this not contradict Rab's ruling? — No, there is no difficulty, for the one⁵ deals with reptiles while they are dead⁶ the other while they are alive. But, said Abaye to him, does not Rab refer his statement to the Mishnah⁷ and our Mishnah speaks of ALL REPTILES, [apparently] even though they are dead? — Replied R. Joseph: This⁸ is your assumption. The fact is that Rab made an independent statement. [It said]: 'R. Johanan praised him'.⁹ To this an objection was raised. [We have learnt]: 'There is no standard size for entire limbs [of unclean animals]. Even less than an olive-size of nebelah and less than a lentil-size of a reptile effect defilement',¹⁰ And R. Johanan remarked: The penalty of lashes, however, is inflicted only for an olive-size!¹¹ — Said Raba: Scripture speaks only of those that are separated.¹² Said R. Adda son of Ahabah, to Raba: If so, why not draw a distinction also with reference to beasts between those that are separated¹³ and those that are not separated?¹⁴

(1) Unlike defilement where the lentil-size suffices.

(2) Viz., Ye shall not eat them, for they are a detestable thing, Lev. XI, 42. The rule is that wherever 'eating' is used the standard size is an olive.

(3) 'Make your souls detestable' is understood, through eating.

(4) Lev. XX, 25.

(5) Viz., R. lose.

(6) And effect defilement in which case a comparison may be drawn between eating and defilement, making a lentil's bulk the standard quantity.

(7) Cur. edd. insert here in parenthesis the following text which pseudo-Rashi declares to be incomprehensible: 'and not a little from here and a little from there'.

(8) That Rab was referring to our Mishnah.

(9) Thus agreeing that a lentil is the standard size for the eating of reptiles, and that one is then liable to lashes.

(10) Oh. I, 7.

(11) R. Johanan thus contradicts himself, as this dictum is taken to refer to dead reptiles in analogy to nebelah, and yet an olive-size is required.

(12) The former dictum of R. Johanan according to which the standard size for the eating of reptiles is a lentil refers to the eight reptiles which have been singled out in Lev. XI, 29f for their uncleanness, and whose standard size with regard to defilement is a lentil; while the latter saying of R. Johanan relates to other reptiles which do not effect uncleanness; so that no analogy can be drawn between eating and defilement with regard to the legal size. This dictum of R. Johanan is not to be taken as comment on the Mishnah quoted from Oh. which explicitly mentions uncleanness in connection with reptiles and must therefore relate to the eight reptiles, but as a statement made independently by him.

(13) I.e., clean animals.

(14) I.e., the unclean. The fact that Lev. XX, 25 mentions beasts and reptiles side by side intimates an analogy between these two kinds. Also in the case of beasts, therefore, should some distinction be made as to the standard size between those that are separated and the standard quantity of those that are not separated, an olive-size being prescribed only with regard to the former; but as to the latter, a greater quantity should be required, e.g., that of an egg.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 17a

— He replied to him: The Divine Law compares them with reference to the prohibition of 'you shall not make your souls detestable',¹ but not with regard to standard sizes.² MISHNAH. THE BLOOD OF A REPTILE AND THE FLESH [THEREOF] CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER.³ R. JOSHUA LAID DOWN THE GENERAL RULE: ALL THINGS THAT ARE ALIKE BOTH IN RESPECT OF [DURATION OF] UNCLEANNESS⁴ AND IN RESPECT OF THEIR STANDARD SIZE⁵ CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER. THINGS, HOWEVER, THAT ARE ALIKE IN RESPECT [OF DURATION] OF UNCLEANNESS BUT NOT IN RESPECT OF SIZE, IN RESPECT OF SIZE BUT NOT IN RESPECT [OF DURATION] OF UNCLEANNESS, OR [IF THEY ARE ALIKE] NEITHER IN RESPECT [OF DURATION] OF UNCLEANNESS NOR IN RESPECT OF SIZE, CANNOT COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER. GEMARA. Said R. Hanin in the name of R. Zeira, and thus said also Rab Judah:⁶ Only the blood and the flesh of the same reptile [can combine with one another]. R. Jose son of R. Hanina demurred to this: The expression, they that are unclean,⁷ is to teach us that reptiles can combine one with the other: one reptile with another, reptile or [flesh of] reptile with blood, whether they are of one denomination or two denominations!⁸ — Said R. Joseph, There is no contradiction. The one ruling⁹ refers to a whole creature¹⁰ the other to a part thereof. Wherefrom do you know [to make such distinction]? — From what has been taught:¹¹ 'If [the blood]¹² was poured out on a pavement, which was a sloping place, and he overshadowed¹³ a portion he remains clean, if he overshadowed the whole thereof he is unclean'. Now, what does 'a portion' mean? Shall I say, a portion [of the standard quality of blood]?¹⁴ But did not R. Hanina¹⁵ say in the name of Rabbi: 'If one stirred¹⁶ the exact quantity of a fourth of a log of blood he remained clean'.¹⁷ You must therefore conclude [that a distinction has to be made in the following manner]: In the one instance the blood came from a whole body, in the other from a portion thereof.¹⁸ This indeed proves it. R. Mathia b. Heresh once asked R. Simeon b. Yohai, in Rome: Wherefrom do we know that the blood of reptiles is unclean? — He replied: Because it is written: And these are they that are unclean.¹⁹ His disciples then said to him: The son of Yohai has grown wise. Said he to them: This is a teaching prepared in the mouth of R. Eleazar son of R. Jose.²⁰ For the Government²¹ had once issued a decree that [Jews] might not keep the Sabbath, circumcise their children, and that they should have intercourse with menstruant women. Thereupon R. Reuben son of Istroboli cut his hair in the Roman fashion,²² and went and sat among them.²³ He said to them: If a man has an enemy, what does he wish him, to be poor or rich? They said: That he be poor. He said to them: If so, let them²⁴ do no work on the Sabbath so that they grow poor. They said: 'He speaketh rightly',²⁵ let this decree be annulled. It was indeed annulled. Then he continued: If one has an enemy, what does he wish him, to be weak or healthy? They answered: Weak. He said to them: Then let their children be circumcised at the age of eight days and they will be weak. They said: 'He speaketh rightly',²⁵ and it was annulled. Finally he said to them: If one has an enemy, what does he wish him, to multiply or to decrease? They said to him: That he decreases. If so, let them have no intercourse with menstruant women. They said: 'He speaketh rightly', and it was annulled. Later they came to know that he was a Jew, and [the decrees] were re-instituted. [The Jews] then conferred as to who should go [to Rome] to work for the annulment of the decrees.

(5) The standard size of nebelah or a corpse is an olive, that of reptiles a lentil.

- (12) Viz., the fourth of a log of the blood of a corpse.
- (13) A corpse renders unclean everything that is under the same roof as the corpse itself. This method of defilement is called 'ohel' (tent). Also a quarter of a log of blood from a corpse effects uncleanness by 'ohel'. If a person overshadows, tentlike, a corpse or a quarter of a log of blood he himself forms the 'ohel', roofing, and is unclean.
- (14) I.e., if he overshadowed less than the required fourth of a log, he is clean; and accordingly if he overshadowed the whole quantity, although it was scattered and disconnected, he is unclean.
- (15) Tosaf. read R. Johanan.
- (16) And thereby overshadowed it.
- (17) Because a part of the blood must have been sucked into the ladle with which it was stirred, and the blood is thus disconnected. We thus learn that the fourth of a log must be connected.
- (18) When the blood comes from a whole body it need not be connected; when from a part thereof it must be connected.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 17b

Let R. Simeon b. Yohai go for he is experienced in miracles.¹ And who should accompany him? — R. Eleazar son of R. Jose. Said R. Jose to them: And were my father Halafta still alive, would you have said to him to give his son for slaughter?² Answered R. Simeon: Were Yohai my father still alive, would you have said to him to give his son for slaughter? Said R. Jose to them: I shall accompany him, for I fear R. Simeon may punish him.³ He [R. Simeon] undertook thereupon not to inflict any punishment on him. Notwithstanding this, he did punish him, for when they were proceeding on the way the following question was raised in their presence: Wherefrom do we know that the blood of a reptile is unclean? R. Eleazar son of R. Jose curved his mouth⁴ and said: It is written: And these are they that are unclean.⁵ Said R. Simeon to him: From the undertone of thy utterance⁶ one can see that thou art a scholar, yet the son⁷ shall not return to the father.⁸ Then Ben Temalion⁹ came to meet them. [He said]: Is it your wish that I accompany you? Thereupon R. Simeon wept and said: The handmaid of my ancestor's house was found worthy of meeting an angel¹⁰ thrice, and I not even to meet him once. However, let the miracle be performed, no matter how. Thereupon he¹¹ advanced and entered into the Emperor's daughter. When [R. Simeon] arrived there,¹² he called out: 'Ben Temalion leave her, Ben Temalion leave her', and as he proclaimed this he left her. He¹³ said to them: Request whatever you desire. They were led into the treasure house to take whatever they chose. They found that bill,¹⁴ took it and tore it to pieces. It was with reference to this visit that R. Eleazar son of R. Jose related:¹⁵ 'I saw it¹⁶ in the city of Rome and there were on it several drops of blood'. MISHNAH. PIGGUL AND NOTHAR¹⁷ CANNOT COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER BECAUSE THEY ARE OF TWO DIFFERENT DENOMINATIONS. REPTILE AND NEBELAH¹⁸ AS WELL AS NEBELAH AND THE FLESH OF A CORPSE CANNOT COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER TO EFFECT UNCLEANNESS, NOT EVEN IN RESPECT OF THE MORE LENIENT OF THE TWO [GRADES] OF DEFILEMENT.¹⁹ GEMARA. Said R. Judah in the name of Samuel: This²⁰ has been taught only with reference to the uncleanness of the hands,²¹ which is only a Rabbinical enactment, but with regard to [the liability attached to] eating they can combine with one another. For we have learnt:²² R. Eliezer said: It says, it shall not be eaten for it is holy;²³ with this the Writ comes to impose a negative command upon whatever among holy things has become disqualified.²⁴ MISHNAH. FOOD CONTAMINATED THROUGH CONTACT WITH A PRIMARY DEFILEMENT²⁵ CAN COMBINE WITH THAT CONTAMINATED BY A SECONDARY DEFILEMENT TO EFFECT UNCLEANNESS ACCORDING TO THE LOWER DEGREE OF DEFILEMENT OF THE TWO.²⁶ ALL KINDS OF [UNCLEAN] FOOD CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER TO MAKE UP THE QUANTITY OF HALF A PERAS²⁷ IN ORDER TO RENDER THE BODY UNFIT²⁸ [OR TO MAKE UP THE FOOD] FOR TWO MEALS TO FORM AN 'ERUB²⁹ OR TO' MAKE UP AN EGG'S BULK TO CONTAMINATE FOOD, OR TO MAKE UP A DRY FIG'S BULK IN RESPECT OF THE PROHIBITION TO CARRY FORTH ON THE SABBATH³⁰ AND A DATE'S BULK WITH REGARD TO THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.³¹ ALL KINDS OF DRINKS CAN COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER TO MAKE UP THE FOURTH [OF A LOG] IN ORDER TO RENDER THE BODY UNFIT OR TO MAKE UP A MOUTHFUL WITH REGARD TO THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. GEMARA. It has been taught: R. Simeon said, What is the reason?³² Because things unclean in the second degree can become unclean in the first degree.³³ But can indeed a thing unclean in the second degree become unclean in the first degree? Surely this is an impossibility?³⁴ — Said Raba: This is what is meant: What caused the object to be rendered unclean in the second degree? Surely it was something unclean in the first degree!³⁵ R. Ashi said: Things unclean in the first degree and those unclean in the second degree in relation to uncleanness of the third degree are considered as belonging to one category.³⁶ [

CHAPTER V

MISHNAH. IF ONE DERIVED FROM CONSECRATED THINGS A BENEFIT OF A PERUTAH'S WORTH,¹⁴ HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE EVEN THOUGH HE DID NOT LESSEN ITS VALUE. THIS IS THE VIEW OF R. AKIBA, WHILE THE SAGES HOLD: WHATSOEVER DETERIORATES [THROUGH USE] THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO IT ONLY AFTER IT HAS SUFFERED DETERIORATION,¹⁵ BUT WHATSOEVER DOES NOT DETERIORATE [THROUGH USE], THE LAW OF SACRILEGE APPLIES TO IT AS SOON AS HE MADE USE OF IT. FOR INSTANCE: IF [A WOMAN] PUT A NECKLACE ROUND HER NECK OR A RING ON HER FINGER, OR IF SHE DRUNK FROM A GOLDEN CUP, SHE IS LIABLE TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE AS SOON AS SHE MADE USE OF IT [TO THE VALUE OF A PERUTAH]. their fathers. and went astray after the gods of the peoples of the land.¹ One might assume that [the Law of Sacrilege applied also to a case] where one has damaged [consecrated things] but has derived therefrom no benefit or has derived a benefit but has left the things unimpaired, or [that it applies] to things attached to the ground and in the case of a messenger who has carried out his appointed errand.² The text³ therefore states, ‘and sin’.⁴ [The term] ‘sin’ is used in connection with terumah⁵

and 'sin'⁶ is also mentioned in connection with sacrilege: just as 'sin' mentioned in connection with terumah⁷ [refers to a case where there is] deterioration as well as benefit; [and to a case] where he who has caused the damage is at the same time the person that has derived the benefit; [and to a case] where the deterioration and the benefit are in respect of one and the same object and where the deterioration and the benefit take place simultaneously;⁸ and to things detached from the ground and applies in the case where an agent has executed his appointed errand,⁹ so also the word 'sin' used in connection with sacrilege [refers to a case where there is] deterioration as well as benefit; where he who has caused the damage is at the same time the person that has derived the benefit; where the deterioration and the benefit are in respect of one and the same object and where the deterioration and the benefit have taken place simultaneously; and to things detached from the ground and applies in the case where an agent has executed his appointed errand.¹⁰ From this¹¹ we only derive that [the law of Sacrilege applies to] edibles which are enjoyed. whence do we know [its application to] things that do not deteriorate [through use] and that [different portions] can combine with one another,¹² even after the elapse of a considerable time;¹³ in the case where he has himself eaten thereof¹⁴ and has given to his fellow to eat thereof,¹⁵ or where he has himself made use of it¹⁴ and has given to his fellow to make use of it,¹⁵ or where he has himself made use of it¹⁴ and has given to his fellow to eat thereof,¹⁵ or where he has himself eaten thereof¹⁴ and has given to his friend to make use thereof?¹⁵ The text therefore reads: Commit a trespass:¹⁶ whatever the form may be. But [why not deduct in the following manner]: Just as with the word 'sin' mentioned in connection with terumah the rule is that two separate edibles cannot combine with one another,¹⁷ so also with the word 'sin' mentioned in connection with sacrilege two separate meals cannot combine with one another.¹⁸ From whence [further] do we know [that edibles can combine] if one eats one portion on one day and the other on the following, or if even a longer period has elapsed between the two meals? The text therefore reads: 'Commit a trespass', whatever the form may be. But [why not draw the following comparison]: Just as with the word 'sin' mentioned in connection with terumah the deterioration and the enjoyment is simultaneous,¹⁹ [so also with the word sin used in connection with sacrilege]; whence do we know then [that the Law of Sacrilege applies] when one has eaten [of consecrated food] himself and has given to his fellow to eat, even though after an interval of three years? The text therefore reads: 'Commit a trespass', whatever the form may be. But [why not deduct as follows]: Just as with the word 'sin' mentioned in connection with terumah there is no liability except when [the food] has been transferred from sacred possession¹ into secular ownership,² [so also with the word 'sin' used in connection with sacrilege]; whence do we know [that the Law of Sacrilege applies] when consecrated money has been misappropriated and used for other sacred purposes; e.g., if he purchased with it the bird-offerings of a zab or a zabah,³ or of a woman after confinement,⁴ or has paid therewith his shekel,⁵ or if one has offered his sin- or guilt-offering from sacred money, in which case one is liable to sacrilege at the moment of misappropriation according to R. Simeon and at the time of the sprinkling according to R. Judah. Whence do we know all this? The text reads: 'Commit a trespass': whatever the form may be. The Master said: It is written, 'If any one [commit a trespass]', to imply the ordinary man as well as the Prince or the Anointed [Priest]. What else might one have assumed? Is this not obvious, 'If any one' is written [distinctly]? — I might have thought, The Divine Law says: And whosoever putteth any of it upon a stranger [he shall be cut off from among his people],⁶ and this one⁷ is not a stranger, since he had been anointed therewith.⁸ Therefore the amplification mentioned was necessary. The Divine Law has drawn an analogy between [the Law of Sacrilege on the one hand] and [the laws concerning] the suspected woman,⁹ idolatry and terumah [on the other]. [It is compared] to the law concerning the suspected woman: [Just as the law applies] even though there was no deterioration,¹⁰ so also with consecrated property;¹¹ if [a woman] has [e.g.,] put a ring on her finger she is guilty of sacrilege. And the Divine Law compared it to the law of idolatry: Just as the latter [applies] only when a change has taken place,¹² so also in the case of consecrated property.¹³ One is not guilty when one has chopped wood with an axe [belonging to the Temple] unless it has been impaired. The Divine Law was compared to the law of terumah: Just as in the case of terumah [the words] 'if one has eaten'¹⁴ exclude the one who damages [terumah],¹⁵ so also with consecrated things: If one has damaged anything eatable,¹⁶ he is exempted from the Law of Sacrilege. FOR INSTANCE, IF [A WOMAN] HAS PUT A NECKLACE . . . Said R. Kahana to R. Zebid: Does gold indeed not deteriorate?¹⁷ Whither, then, has the gold of Nun's daughter-in-law gone?¹⁸ — He retorted: Perhaps the gold was thrown about¹⁹ as your daughter in-law used to do. And besides, admitted this is not a case where there is enjoyment and immediate deterioration [of the used article], but [can you say] it will never deteriorate.²⁰ IF ONE HAS DERIVED A BENEFIT FROM A SIN-OFFERING etc. Now, consider:, if this refers to an animal that has no blemish,²¹ [do you not agree that] it would be analogous to the case of the golden cup? — Said R. Papa: It refers indeed to one with a blemish.²²

(1) I.e., in this connection the possession of the priest.

(2) By eating the terumah one necessarily becomes the owner thereof.

(6) Ex. XXX, 33. The text deals with the anointing oil. From which it follows that he upon whom the oil is put by law is not to be considered a 'stranger' in respect of Temple property.

(7) Viz., the anointed.

(8) And consequently would not be liable to the Law of Sacrilege.

(9) Num. V, 12-31.

(10) I.e., no physical change has taken place with the woman.

(11) Viz., regarding things which do not deteriorate through use.

(12) The worshipper transfers his allegiance from God to the idol (Rashi).

(13) Referring this time to things which do deteriorate through use.

(14) Lev. XXII, 14 dealing with terumah.

(15) I.e., if he damaged terumah he is not liable to the payment of the additional Fifth. Pes. 32b.

(16) Terumah, from which this restrictive law is derived, consists always of edibles. The derived rule applies, therefore, also in the case of sacred property to edibles only.

(17) The general rule of the Mishnah is exemplified by a golden cup. It must, therefore, be assumed that gold is considered a material which does not deteriorate through use.

(18) This alludes according to Rashi and Tosaf. to a man called Nun who presented his daughters-in-law with golden vessels which after a time were found to have lost in weight.

(19) I.e., treated with little care.

(20) Thus lit.: When the rule of the Mishnah speaks of deterioration it can only mean immediate deterioration, for nothing remains unimpaired after a sufficiently long time.

(21) As it is to be offered upon the altar, whether it be fat or grows lean, any deterioration of the animal is irrelevant with regard to its purpose. Consequently it is to be compared to the case of the golden cup.

(22) The offering is then to be redeemed, and any deterioration will express itself in the price offered for it.

ONE DOES NOT COMMIT SACRILEGE WITH CONSECRATED THINGS WITH WHICH SACRILEGE HAD ALREADY BEEN MADE BY ANOTHER PERSON,² EXCEPT WITH ANIMALS³ AND VESSELS OF MINISTRY.⁴ FOR INSTANCE, IF ONE RODE ON A BEAST AND THEN CAME ANOTHER AND RODE ON IT AND YET ANOTHER CAME AND RODE ON IT, ALL OF THEM ARE GUILTY OF SACRILEGE; OR IF ONE DRANK FROM A GOLDEN CUP, THEN CAME ANOTHER AND DRANK AND YET ANOTHER CAME AND DRANK, ALL OF THEM ARE GUILTY OF SACRILEGE; OR IF ONE PLUCKED [OF THE WOOL] OF A SIN-OFFERING, THEN CAME ANOTHER AND PLUCKED AND YET ANOTHER CAME AND PLUCKED, ALL OF THEM ARE GUILTY OF SACRILEGE. RABBI SAID: WHATSOEVER IS UNREDEEMABLE IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF SACRILEGE EVEN AFTER SACRILEGE HAS BEEN ALREADY COMMITTED WITH IT. GEMARA. According to whom is our Mishnah? — According to R. Nehemiah, for it has been taught: One does not commit sacrilege with things of which sacrilege had been committed already, except with animals; R. Nehemiah says. Except with animals and vessels of ministry.⁵ What is the reason of the first Tanna? — He bases his opinion upon the fact that animals are mentioned in connection therewith,⁶ for it is written: With the ram of the guilt-offering,⁷ while R. Nehemiah argues a minori: If it⁸ renders things contained therein holy,⁹ surely it must be holy itself.¹⁰ RABBI SAID WHATSOEVER IS UNREDEEMABLE IS SUBJECT etc. But this is the view of the first Tanna? — They differ with regard to wood. For our Rabbis taught:¹¹ If a man said, I take upon myself to present wood to the Temple, he may not offer less than two logs. Rabbi said: Wood has the status of a sacrifice, it requires salt¹² and swinging.¹³ Whereupon Raba remarked that according to Rabbi an offering of wood requires other wood in addition,¹⁴ and R. Papa remarked that according to Rabbi wood requires the taking of a handful.¹⁵ R. Papa said, They differ with regard to unblemished offerings consecrated to the altar which received blemishes and were illegitimately slaughtered.¹⁶ This indeed is confirmed by what has been taught: If unblemished offerings dedicated to the altar received blemishes and were illegitimately slaughtered. Rabbi says they have to be buried, while the Sages hold they shall be redeemed. MISHNAH. IF A MAN¹⁷ TOOK AWAY A STONE OR A BEAM BELONGING TO TEMPLE PROPERTY, HE IS NOT GUILTY OF SACRILEGE

(1) Viz., an article which according to the rule of the previous Mishnah comes under the Law of Sacrilege only after it has been impaired.

(2) The first transgressor has become its owner. Sacrilege can no longer apply to it, since it is in secular possession.

(3) Consecrated to the altar and unblemished. They cannot be redeemed or alienated.

- (4) These things remain sacred even after sacrilege has been committed therewith. They cannot be redeemed or alienated.
- (5) Tosef. II, 2.
- (6) Viz., with sacrilege.
- (7) Lev. V, 16. These words are considered superfluous, since it is clear from the context that the atonement is to be made with the ram of the guilt-offering. They are therefore taken to indicate that only to offerings does sacrilege apply under all circumstances, i.e., even though another person has already committed sacrilege with them, but not to vessels of ministry.
- (8) Viz., a vessel of ministry.
- (9) V. Zeb. IX, 7.
- (10) I.e., it possesses a high degree of holiness so that it ought to retain its sacred character even after it has unlawfully been used by another person.
- (11) The first part of this quotation is from the Mishnah Men. 106b, while the second part is from a Baraita cited in the Gemara belonging thereto.
- (12) V. Lev. II, 13.
- (13) V. Lev. XIV, 12. V. Men. loc. cit.
- (14) Upon which to burn the wood-offering.
- (15) To be burnt upon the altar. According to Rabbi wood would be included in one category with animal sacrifices, also with regard to the question of repeated sacrilege, according to the Sages it would not.
- (16) Rashi: Rabbi holds namely that also sacrifices when being redeemed have to be placed before the priest and appraised. This cannot be done with a slaughtered animal, v. Hul. 30a. The sacrifice is thus unredeemable and is according to Rabbi's rule subject to repeated sacrilege. The Sages, however, hold that the placing before the priest is unnecessary with sacrifices. The slaughtered sacrifice can thus be redeemed and does not come into the same category as unblemished offerings and vessels of ministry.
- (17) Referring to the Temple treasurer, v. Gemara.

. BUT IF HE GAVE IT TO HIS FELLOW HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE, BUT HIS FELLOW IS NOT GUILTY. IF HE BUILT IT INTO HIS HOUSE HE IS NOT GUILTY OF SACRILEGE UNTIL HE LIVES BENEATH IT AND BENEFITS THE EQUIVALENTS OF A PERUTAH. IF HE TOOK A PERUTAH FROM TEMPLE PROPERTY HE HAS NOT TRANSGRESSED THE LAW OF SACRILEGE, BUT AS SOON AS HE GAVE IT TO HIS FELLOW HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE, WHILE HIS FELLOW IS NOT GUILTY; IF HE GAVE IT TO THE BATHING KEEPER, HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE EVEN THOUGH HE HAS NOT BATHED, FOR [THE MASTER] CAN SAY TO HIM, BEHOLD THE BATH IS READY FOR YOU, GO IN AND BATHE. THE PORTION WHICH A PERSON HAS EATEN HIMSELF AND THAT WHICH HE HAS GIVEN HIS NEIGHBOUR TO EAT, OR THE PORTION WHICH HE HAS MADE USE OF HIMSELF AND THAT WHICH HE HAS GIVEN TO HIS NEIGHBOUR TO MAKE USE OF, OR THE PORTION WHICH HE HAS EATEN HIMSELF AND THAT WHICH HE HAS GIVEN HIS NEIGHBOUR TO MAKE USE OF, OR THE PORTION WHICH HE HAS MADE USE OF HIMSELF AND THAT WHICH HE HAS GIVEN HIS NEIGHBOUR TO EAT CAN RESPECTIVELY COMBINE WITH ONE ANOTHER¹ EVEN AFTER THE LAPSE OF A CONSIDERABLE TIME. GEMARA. What is the difference² between himself and the other person?³ — Said Samuel: It refers to the Temple treasurer in whose trust these articles were.⁴ IF HE BUILT IT INTO HIS HOUSE HE IS NOT GUILTY etc. Why only when he has lived beneath it? [Should he not be guilty of sacrilege at all events] since the beam has been transformed?⁵ — Said Rab: We suppose he placed it over the roof opening.⁶ When, however, he built it in, it is agreed that he is guilty of Sacrilege;⁷ does this not confirm Rab's view? For Rab said: If a man worships a house, he renders it prohibited for use?⁸ Said R. Aha son of R. Ika: As to sacrilege, the Torah has prohibited any benefit which is visible.⁹ Shall we say the following supports him [Rab]?¹⁰ For it was taught: If one has dwelt in a house belonging to Temple property, he is guilty of sacrilege as soon as he has derived therefrom the benefit [of a perutah's worth]?¹¹ — Said Resh Lakish: This deals with a case where [the building material]¹² was consecrated and then [the house] built.¹³ But what would be the case if the house was first built and then consecrated? Would the Law of Sacrilege indeed not apply? Why then was it necessary to contrast:¹⁴ If, however, one has dwelt in a cave [belonging to Temple property] he is not liable to the Law of Sacrilege?¹⁵ Why not state [instead]: If one has dwelt in a house of stones which he had first built and then consecrated, he is not liable to the Law of Sacrilege? — They replied: That instance¹⁶ is absolute,¹⁷ this one would not be absolute.

CHAPTER VI

MISHNAH. IF AN AGENT HAS DISCHARGED HIS APPOINTED ERRAND, THE EMPLOYER¹⁸ IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE, BUT IF HE HAS NOT CARRIED OUT HIS APPOINTED ERRAND, HE HIMSELF IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.¹⁹ FOR INSTANCE: IF THE EMPLOYER SAID TO HIM: GIVE FLESH²⁰ TO THE GUESTS AND HE OFFERED THEM LIVER, LIVER AND HE OFFERED THEM FLESH, HE HIMSELF IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE. IF THE EMPLOYER SAID TO HIM: ‘GIVE THEM ONE PIECE EACH’, AND HE SAID TO THEM: ‘TAKE TWO PIECES EACH’, WHILE THE GUESTS THEMSELVES TOOK THREE PIECES EACH, ALL OF THEM ARE GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.²¹

(1) To make up the requisite value of a perutah.

(2) I.e., why should not the mere appropriation of consecrated goods be a culpable act.

(3) I.e., the one to whom the goods were handed over.

(5) Viz., cut and planed and adapted to the measures of the building. The change of form of a misappropriated object effects its definite transfer into the possession of the illegitimate holder in so far as he is no longer obliged to return the object itself, but may pay its value. Cf. B.K. 65b.

(6) I.e., he made no alteration, as the beam was ready for use.

(7) Though the beam is now something attached to the ground. The Law of Sacrilege does not apply to things attached to the ground. v. supra 18b.

(8) A.Z. 47a. He holds that movable things, such as stones and mortar, which are fixed to the ground, retain their status of movables and are forbidden for any use if worshipped. Originally immovable things are not prohibited for use if worshipped. V. ibid. 45a.

(9) I.e., the ruling of our Mishnah does not result from the fact that the beam is still considered a movable object, but that any visible benefit, whether derived from consecrated property, whether movable or immovable, is regarded as sacrilege.

(10) In his explanation of our Mishnah.

(11) Which proves that the material of a house is considered movable though it is built into the house.

(12) Which is movable.

(13) In which case the Law of Sacrilege has already taken full effect upon the object, before it was fixed to the ground. Different it might be with immovable property, such as houses, which were consecrated when already attached to the ground. The latter case seems to be implied in Rab's interpretation of our Mishnah.

(14) Lit., ‘why does he run and teach’.

(15) Since it is not movable.

(16) Viz., that of the cave.

(17) I.e., no distinction is necessary as to the time of consecration.

(18) Lit., ‘householder’.

(19) I.e., if a man has charged another person to make use on his behalf of consecrated things, both of them being ignorant of the transgression that they were committing thereby, and the agent carried out his commission exactly as he was told, his employer is guilty, because the Law of Sacrilege prescribing a guilt-offering as atonement for sacrilege applies only to an act committed in error as indicated in Lev. V, 15, and it was the employer who first trespassed in error. In this respect the Law of Sacrilege is an exception, for the general rule is that one cannot appoint a deputy for an unlawful act, v. supra 18b. If, however, the agent departed substantially from the task with which he was charged, his act is considered independent of his commission, and he is himself subject to the Law of Sacrilege.

(20) Belonging to Temple property.

(21) The employer, because in respect of the first piece his order has been carried out, the agent because he exceeded his power in respect of the second piece and the guests because they misappropriated the third piece on their own accord.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 20b

GEMARA. Who is the Tanna who holds that any deviation¹ for which the agent would consult [the principal] is considered something different [from the original order]?² — Said R. Hisda: It is certainly not R. Akiba, for we have learnt: If one vows to abstain from vegetables, he is permitted to eat gourds; R. Akiba holds, he is forbidden.³ Abaye said: The Mishnah may well agree with R. Akiba, for do you not admit that he should have nevertheless consulted his employer?⁴ When the scholars passed on these words to Raba he said: Nahmani⁵ said well. Who is the Tanna who opposes R. Akiba? — It is Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, for it has been taught: If one vows to abstain from meat, he is prohibited to eat any kind of flesh as well as the head, the legs, the windpipe, the liver and the heart and even the flesh of fowls, but he is permitted to eat the flesh of fish and locust. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel permits the head, the legs, the windpipe, the liver and the flesh of fowl, fish and locust. Similarly Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said that entrails are no flesh and he who eats them is no man.⁶ Why is, according to the first Tanna, the flesh of fowl different [from that of fish and locust]? — [Presumably] because people often say. I could not find flesh of the cattle and bought flesh of the fowl instead.⁷ But can you not argue similarly: people often say. I could not find flesh of the cattle and bought fish instead? — Said R. Papa: We deal with the case where [the vow was made] on the day of blood letting, when people do not as a rule eat any fish.⁸ But then he may not eat fowl either? For Samuel⁹ said: If a man who has let blood eats the flesh of fowl, his heart will fly off like a fowl. And it has further been taught: One should not let blood after a meal of fish, fowl and salted meat! — Rather said R. Papa: We deal with a case where [the vow was made] at a time when his eyes were sore, when one does not eat fish. IF THE EMPLOYER SAID TO HIM, 'GIVE THEM ONE PIECE EACH' etc. May we not infer from this that if an agent adds to his order he still remains an agent [in respect of the original commission]?¹⁰ — Said R. Shesheth: [Our Mishnah deals with a case] where [the agent] said to the guests. 'Take one piece each at my master's permission and another with my permission'.

(1) Viz., of the commission with which he has been entrusted.

(2) For this situation is assumed to exist in the case of the Mishnah in which the agent offered liver instead of meat. Ordinarily if one is e.g., charged to buy meat one would enquire first whether liver may be bought instead.

(3) Ned. 54a. Cf. ibid. as to R. Akiba's reason. In this instance, which is parallel to that of our Mishnah, R. Akiba holds that gourds are not regarded as essentially different from herbs, although consultation would be required for such deviation from the original order. The following discussion is recorded there with little variation.

(4) Although R. Akiba holds that also where consultation is required the changed order is not necessarily to be considered as essentially different from the original one, he admits that such change may not be undertaken without the employer's authorization, and this the agent has failed to obtain in the instance of our Mishnah, wherefore he is himself guilty of sacrilege.

(5) Abaye's original name, but v. also Tosaf. Ned. 54b.

(6) He thus takes the word flesh in its greatest possible restriction. The same should apply to the instance of the Mishnah.

(7) I.e., the latter is considered similar in nature to the first.

(8) It is therefore assumed that fish was not included in the vow.

(9) Who was a physician, v. Shab. 208b.

(10) And we do not consider the whole commission as canceled. This question is dealt with in Keth. 98b.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 21a

You might have thought that the agent had thereby canceled his employer's order and that [the employer] should therefore be exempted from sacrilege, therefore [the Mishnah] lets us know [that this is not the case]. MISHNAH. IF A MAN SAID TO ANOTHER PERSON, ‘GET ME [SUCH A THING] FROM THE WINDOW OR FROM THE CHEST’,¹ AND THE LATTER BROUGHT IT TO HIM [FROM ONE OF THESE PLACES]. EVEN THOUGH THE EMPLOYER SAYS, ‘I MEANT ONLY FROM THIS PLACE’. AND HE BROUGHT IT FROM ANOTHER PLACE, THE EMPLOYER IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.² BUT IF HE SAID TO HIM, ‘GET IT FOR ME FROM THE WINDOW, AND HE BROUGHT IT FROM THE CHEST, OR ‘FROM THE CHEST AND HE BROUGHT IT TO HIM FROM THE WINDOW, THE AGENT IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE. IF ONE HAS COMMISSIONED A DEAF-MUTE, AN IMBECILE OR A MINOR,³ AND THEY CARRIED OUT THEIR APPOINTED ERRAND THE EMPLOYER IS GUILTY, IF THEY DID NOT CARRY OUT THEIR APPOINTED ERRAND, THE SHOPKEEPER IS GUILTY.⁴ IF ONE HAS COMMISSIONED ONE OF SOUND SENSES AND REMEMBERS⁵ [THAT THE MONEY BELONGS TO TEMPLE PROPERTY] BEFORE IT HAS COME INTO THE POSSESSION OF THE SHOPKEEPER, THE SHOPKEEPER WILL BE GUILTY⁶ WHEN HE SPENDS IT. WHAT SHALL HE⁷ DO?⁸ HE SHALL TAKE A PERUTAH OF ANY OBJECT AND DECLARE THAT THE MONEY⁹ BELONGING TO TEMPLE PROPERTY, WHERESOEVER IT MAY BE AT THAT TIME, SHALL BE REDEEMED WITH THIS; FOR CONSECRATED THINGS CAN BE REDEEMED BOTH WITH MONEY AND WITH MONEY'S WORTH. GEMARA. What does he teach us thereby?¹⁰ — That unexpressed words are of no avail. IF ONE HAS COMMISSIONED A DEAF-MUTE, AN IMBECILE OR A MINOR, AND THEY HAVE CARRIED OUT etc. But surely these people are legally not fit to become agents! — Said R. Eleazar: They have the same status as the vat of olives of which we have learnt:¹¹ From what tree do olives become susceptible to defilement?¹² When they begin to exude,¹³ the moisture being one that comes out of them when they are in the vat and not moisture that comes out of them when they are still in the store basket.¹⁴ R. Johanan said: This is to be compared to that which we have learnt: If one placed it¹⁵ upon an ape or upon an elephant, which carried it to the right quarter (and another person was charged to receive it), the ‘erub is valid.¹⁶ Does this not prove that the fact of the execution of the appointed errand alone matters?¹⁷ So in our case: The appointed errand has at any rate been carried out. IF HE HAS COMMISSIONED A SANE PERSON etc. [Does this apply] even though the agent has not remembered? Against this the following contradiction is raised: If the employer remembered and not the agent, the agent is guilty of sacrilege, [but if both remembered the shopkeeper is guilty].¹⁸ — Said R. Shesheth: Also our Mishnah has to be understood that both remembered.¹⁹ MISHNAH. IF HE GAVE HIM A PERUTAH²⁰ AND SAID TO HIM: GET ME FOR HALF A PERUTAH LAMPS AND FOR THE OTHER HALF WICKS’, AND HE WENT AND BROUGHT FOR THE WHOLE WICKS OR FOR THE WHOLE LAMPS, OR IF HE SAID TO HIM, ‘GET ME FOR THE WHOLE LAMPS OR FOR THE WHOLE WICKS’, AND HE WENT AND BROUGHT FOR HALF [A PERUTAH] LAMPS AND FOR THE OTHER HALF WICKS. THEY ARE BOTH EXEMPTED FROM THE GUILT OF SACRILEGE.²¹ BUT IF HE SAID TO HIM, ‘GET FOR HALF A PERUTAH LAMPS FROM ONE PLACE AND FOR HALF A PERUTAH WICKS FROM ANOTHER’ AND HE WENT AND BROUGHT THE LAMPS FROM THE PLACE WHERE THE WICKS [WERE TO BE BROUGHT] AND THE WICKS FROM THE PLACE WHERE THE LAMPS [WERE TO BE BROUGHT]. THE AGENT IS GUILTY.²² IF HE GAVE HIM TWO PERUTAH'S AND SAID, ‘GET ME FOR THEM A CITRON’, AND HE BROUGHT FOR ONE PERUTAH A CITRON AND FOR THE OTHER A POMEGRANATE, BOTH HAVE TRANSGRESSED THE LAW OF SACRILEGE.²³ R. JUDAH HOLDS THAT THE EMPLOYER IS NOT GUILTY, FOR HE CAN ARGUE, I WISHED FOR A LARGE CITRON AND YOU BROUGHT ME A SMALL AND UGLY ONE.²⁴ IF HE GAVE HIM A GOLDEN DENAR²⁵ AND SAID TO HIM, ‘GET ME A SHIRT

(1) Both containing the same kind of consecrated property.

(2) According to the rule that the uttered word and not the unexpressed thought of a man are of avail.

(3) To buy goods with money which belongs to the Temple.

(4) As soon as he spends the money, for the shop keeper at this point transfers it from Temple property to private possession. As long as it is with the shopkeeper, the money is regarded as deposited with him.

(5) So does the messenger, v. Gemara.

(6) The employer and the messenger are exempted because the Law of Sacrilege applies only in the case of inadvertency.

(7) Viz., the employer, according to Rashi and Tosaf., and according to Maim. the shopkeeper who has learned in the meantime that a coin of sacred property is among his money.

(8) So as to prevent the shopkeeper from committing sacrilege. according to Rashi; according to Maim. so as not to commit sacrilege himself.

(9) Lit., 'perutah'.

(10) Referring to the first clause of the Mishnah.

(11) Toh. IX, 1.

(12) Food is susceptible to defilement only after it has been moistened with liquid. It is, however, essential that the circumstances are such as to enable one to assume that the owner regards the moistening as desirable.

(13) To prepare the olives for the press they used to be packed in vessels until they formed a viscid mass. Previous to that they were kept in baskets. The exudation produced in the vat was preserved. It was advantageous for the owner that such exudation should take place. We, therefore, assume that the owner was satisfied with the dripping of the olives, which accordingly become fit for defilement. The juice produced in the basket, however, trickles down and its formation is against the owner's interest and wish. Thus Maim.

(14) We learn from this that the vat may be considered an instrument for the realization of the owner's wish. In the same way are the deaf-mute, the imbecile and the minor to be considered a mere instrument by which the employer's wish is fulfilled. In other words: With sacrilege it is not the act of appropriation that is decisive, but the effect of possessing or deriving a benefit from consecrated things. It does not matter, therefore, whether it be achieved by legally qualified persons or not.

(15) Viz., the 'erub, v. Glos.

(16) V. 'Er. 31b.

(17) Irrespective of the instrument by which it was achieved.

(18) Kid. 50a.

(19) And only the shopkeeper is subject to the Law of Sacrilege.

(20) Belonging to the Temple.

(21) The employer, because his order has not been carried out and the messenger. because he spent only half a perutah contrary to the commission he received.

(22) Because he spent a whole perutah in contradiction to his commission.

(23) The employer by reason of that part of the order which was carried out according to his desire, and the messenger because of the other part.

(24) I.e., your purchase cannot be recognized as a part fulfillment of my order.

(25) Twenty-four silver denars, v. Keth. 99a, Tosaf. s.v. נתן.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 21b

AND HE BROUGHT HIM FOR THREE [SILVER SELA'S]¹ A SHIRT AND FOR THE OTHER THREE A CLOTH, BOTH HAVE TRANSGRESSED THE LAW OF SACRILEGE. R. JUDAH HOLDS THE EMPLOYER IS NOT GUILTY, FOR HE CAN ARGUE, I WISHED FOR A BIG SHIRT AND YOU BROUGHT ME A SMALL AND BAD ONE. GEMARA. May we infer from this² that if a man said to his agent. Go, buy for me a kor³ of land and he bought only a lethek⁴ the acquisition on behalf of the buyer is valid?⁵ — I might retort: [Our Mishnah] refers to a case where [the messenger] bought something worth six [silver sela's] for three.⁶ But read then the concluding clause: R. JUDAH HOLDS THE EMPLOYER IS NOT GUILTY. FOR HE CAN ARGUE, I WISHED FOR A BIG SHIRT AND YOU BROUGHT A SMALL AND BAD ONE? — [This is to be understood in the following manner]: Because he can say to him, Had you spent the whole [golden] denar you could have bought something worth two [golden] denars.⁷ This interpretation stands to reason, for it says [in the concluding section]:⁸ R. Judah agrees with reference to pulse, for it makes no difference whether you buy pulse for a perutah or for a denar!⁹ But how is this? If it deals with a place where it is customary to sell cereals by estimate, Surely then also in the case of

pulse when one buys for a whole sela' he buys much cheaper? — Said R. Papa: It refers to a place where it is customary to sell it in kannas,¹⁰ each kanna for a perutah, in which case the price is absolutely fixed.¹¹ MISHNAH. IF ONE DEPOSITED MONEY¹² WITH A MONEYCHANGER,¹³ AND IT WAS TIED UP. HE MAY NOT USE IT; AND THEREFORE IF HE DID SPEND IT HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE; IF IT WAS LOOSE HE MAY USE IT AND THEREFORE IF HE SPENT IT HE IS NOT GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.¹⁴ IF [THE MONEY WAS DEPOSITED] WITH A PRIVATE PERSON,¹⁵ HE MAY NOT USE IT IN NEITHER CASE, AND THEREFORE IF HE DID SPEND IT HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE. A SHOPKEEPER HAS THE STATUS OF A PRIVATE PERSON. SAYS R. MEIR. R. JUDAH HOLDS, HE IS LIKE A MONEY-CHANGER. IF A PERUTAH BELONGING TO THE TEMPLE FELL INTO HIS BAG OR IF HE SAYS, ONE PERUTAH IN THIS BAG SHALL BE DEDICATED, HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE AS SOON AS HE SPENDS THE FIRST PERUTAH. THUS THE VIEW OF R. AKIBA. WHILE THE SAGES HOLD: NOT BEFORE HE HAS SPENT ALL THE MONEY THAT WAS IN THE BAG. R. AKIBA AGREES, HOWEVER, WITH THE SAGES THAT IF HE SAID, A PERUTAH OUT OF THIS BAG¹⁶ SHALL BE DEDICATED, HE IS PERMITTED TO KEEP ON SPENDING [AND IS LIABLE ONLY] WHEN HE HAS SPENT ALL THAT WAS IN THE BAG. GEMARA. When R. Dimi arrived,¹⁷ he said, Resh Lakish had questioned R. Johanan: What is the difference between the first clause¹⁸ and the last?¹⁹ To this he [R. Johanan] replied: In the last clause the man's declaration was, This bag should not be spared from a donation to the Temple.²⁰ When Rabin arrived¹⁷ he said: He²¹ raised before him²² a contradiction between the case of the pocket and that of the oxen. For we have learnt: If one said, I dedicate one of my oxen to the Temple, and he had two oxen, the larger one becomes sacred.²³ To this the other²⁴ replied: In the last clause the man's declaration was, 'this bag shall not be spared from a donation to the Temple'.

(1) Twelve silver denars.

(2) Viz., the last instance of the Mishnah where we read that according to the first Tanna the messenger is regarded as having acted on behalf of the employer with regard to a part of the commission.

(3) A piece of land which requires a kor (measure) of seed. It is usually valued Beth-Kor.

(4) I.e., half a kor.

(5) V. Keth. 98a.

(6) It is because the employer has obtained an article of the required quality that the commission is considered partly fulfilled.

(7) Thus cur. edd., a version which renders the discussion which follows incomprehensible. The Gemara in Keth reads 'at least two denars' and Tosaf. there understands this as follows: Had the messenger bought for the whole denar he would have got something worth more than two denars, because things are cheaper when bought in big quantities. The profit of the employer would then have been also relatively higher. This loss cannot be remedied, for even if the messenger bought now goods for another half denar at the same price, the extra profit over and above two denars would not materialize. Tosaf. quotes also a version which reads explicitly 'more than two denars'.

(8) To be found in the Tosef. II. The bracketed words are rightly deleted by Sh. Mek.

(9) There is no reduction when buying a large quantity. The employer had therefore no loss when the messenger spent only half a denar. The owner's order is therefore to be considered as partly fulfilled, and he is liable to the law of sacrilege.

(10) A certain measure.

(11) With no reduction for larger quantities.

(12) Belonging to the Temple.

(13) Or a banker, without telling him that the money was from sacred property.

(14) According to Rashi the depositor is guilty, while Maim. holds that both are exempted.

(15) Lit. , 'householder'.

(16) V. Gemara infra as to the difference between this form of promise and the previous.

(17) From Palestine.

(18) Viz., that which forms the subject of the dispute between R. Akiba and the Sages.

(19) Why does R. Akiba differ from the Sages in the first clause and agree with them in the last?

(20) It is assumed that the last perutah was meant.

(21) Resh Lakish's.

(22) R. Johanan.

(23) Men. 108b; from which it is inferred that if, however, both oxen were equal the one that is met first is considered sacred, while in the last clause of the Mishnah we learn that one can fulfil such a promise with the last perutah. Thus Rashi. Tosaf. explains the contradiction as follows: Why not say also in the last instance of our Mishnah that the biggest coin in the pocket should become sacred. Apparently Tosaf. read 'coin' instead of PERUTAH' in the last clause of the Mishnah, or PERUTAH should be understood in its general significance as money.

(24) Viz., R. Johanan.

Talmud - Mas. Me'ilah 22a

R. Papa said, 'He raised before him a contradiction between the case of the bag and that of loss; for we have learnt:¹ If one has bought wine² from Cutheans,³ he shall declare: Two logs which I shall separate are herewith designated as terumah, ten as first tithe and nine as second tithe, the latter portion is redeemed⁴ and then he may begin to drink at once.⁵ This is the view of R. Meir, while R. Judah. R. Jose and R. Simeon hold it is prohibited.⁶ To this he⁷ replied: In the last clause the man's declaration was, 'this bag shall not be spared from a donation to the Temple'.

(1) Dem. VII, 4.

(2) Late on Sabbath Eve or while on the way, thus not being in a position to separate tithe and terumah, The law is exemplified with a quantity of a hundred logs.

(3) V. Glos.

(4) Second tithe has to be consumed in Jerusalem, or redeemed and its equivalent spent in Jerusalem.

(5) R. Meir accepts the principle of bererah (v. Glos.); i.e., the subsequent actual separation of these taxes will be retrospectively valid in that it will establish that the portion used by the owner was not 'mingled' with tithe or terumah which are prohibited for use.

(6) For they do not accept the principle of bererah, and as long as no actual separation of the tithe and the terumah has taken place, the wine is considered untithed and is therefore forbidden for use, for of each cup of wine I might say. perhaps this is the one designated as tithe (v. Hul. 14a). Similarly I should say in the instance of the Mishnah of each coin, perhaps this is the one dedicated to the Temple, in contradiction to R. Akiba's view that the last may be assumed to be the one designated for the Temple.

(7) Viz., R. Johanan.

Mishna - Mas. Middoth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. IN THREE PLACES PRIESTS KEEP WATCH¹ IN THE TEMPLE² — IN THE CHAMBER OF ABTINAS, IN THE FLASH CHAMBER AND IN THE FIRE CHAMBER.³ THE LEVITES KEEP WATCH IN TWENTY-ONE PLACES — FIVE AT THE FIVE GATES⁴ OF THE TEMPLE MOUNT,⁵ FOUR AT ITS FOUR CORNERS ON THE INSIDE, FIVE AT THE⁶ FIVE GATES OF THE AZARAH.⁷ FOUR AT ITS FOUR CORNERS ON THE OUTSIDE,⁸ ONE AT THE OFFERING CHAMBER,⁹ ONE AT THE CHAMBER OF THE VEIL,¹⁰ AND ONE BEHIND THE PLACE OF THE MERCY SEAT.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. THE OFFICER OF THE TEMPLE MOUNT USED TO GO ROUND TO EVERY WATCH, WITH LIGHTED TORCHES BEFORE HIM, AND IF ANY WATCHER DID NOT RISE [AT HIS APPROACH] AND SAY TO HIM, PEACE BE TO THEE, SUPERVISOR OF THE TEMPLE MOUNT, IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT HE WAS ASLEEP,¹² AND HE USED TO BELABOUR HIM WITH HIS STICK, AND HE WAS ALSO AT LIBERTY TO BURN HIS CLOTHES, AND THE OTHERS USED TO SAY, WHAT IS THE NOISE IN THE AZARAH? IT IS THE CRY OF A LEVITE WHO IS BEING BEATEN AND WHOSE CLOTHES ARE BEING BURNT, BECAUSE HE WAS ASLEEP AT HIS POST. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID: ONCE THEY FOUND MY MOTHER'S BROTHER ASLEEP, AND THEY BURNT HIS CLOTHES.

MISHNAH 3. THERE WERE FIVE GATES TO THE TEMPLE MOUNT-THE TWO GATES OF HULDAH¹³ ON THE SOUTH WHICH WERE USED BOTH FOR ENTRANCE AND EXIT, THE GATE OF KIPONUS¹⁴ ON THE WEST WHICH WAS USED BOTH FOR ENTRANCE AND EXIT, THE GATE OF TADDI¹⁵ ON THE NORTH WHICH WAS NOT USED [BY THE PUBLIC] AT ALL,¹⁶ AND THE EASTERN GATE OVER WHICH WAS A REPRESENTATION OF THE PALACE OF SUSA¹⁷ AND THROUGH WHICH THE HIGH PRIEST¹⁸ WHO BURNT THE RED HEIFER AND ALL WHO ASSISTED WITH IT¹⁹ USED TO GO FORTH TO THE MOUNT OF OLIVES.²⁰

MISHNAH 4. THERE WERE THREE GATES IN THE AZARAH,²¹ THREE IN THE NORTH AND THREE IN THE SOUTH AND ONE IN THE EAST. IN THE SOUTH THERE WAS FIRST THE GATE OF KINDLING,²² THEN THE GATE OF OFFERING,²³ THEN THE WATER GATE.²⁴ IN THE EAST THERE WAS THE GATE OF NICANOR²⁵ WHICH HAD TWO ROOMS ATTACHED, ONE ON ITS RIGHT AND ONE ON ITS LEFT, ONE THE ROOM OF PHINEAS THE DRESSER²⁶ AND ONE THE ROOM OF THE GRIDDLE CAKE MAKERS.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. ON THE NORTH WAS THE GATE OF THE FLASH²⁸ WHICH WAS SHAPED LIKE A VERANDAH.²⁹ IT HAD AN UPPER CHAMBER BUILT ON IT, AND THE PRIESTS USED TO KEEP WATCH ABOVE AND THE LEVITES BELOW, AND IT HAD A DOOR OPENING INTO THE HEL.³⁰ NEXT³¹ TO IT WAS THE GATE OF OFFERING AND NEXT TO THAT THE FIRE CHAMBER.

MISHNAH 6. THERE WERE FOUR SIDE CHAMBERS TO THE FIRE ROOM LIKE ALCOVES OPENING INTO A HALL, TWO IN SACRED GROUND AND TWO IN NON-SACRED,³² AND THERE WAS A ROW OF STONES³³ SEPARATING THE HOLY FROM THE PROFANE. FOR WHAT WERE THEY USED? THE ONE ON THE SOUTH-WEST WAS THE CHAMBER OF OFFERING,³⁴ THE ONE ON THE SOUTH-EAST WAS THE CHAMBER OF THE SHEWBREAD. IN THE ONE TO THE NORTH-EAST THE HASMONEANS DEPOSITED THE STONES OF THE ALTAR WHICH THE KINGS OF GREECE HAD DEFILED.³⁵ THROUGH THE ONE ON THE NORTHWEST THEY³⁶ USED TO GO DOWN TO THE BATHING PLACE.

MISHNAH 7. THE FIRE ROOM HAD TWO GATES, ONE OPENING ON TO THE HEL AND ONE ON TO THE AZARAH. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE ONE THAT OPENED ON TO THE AZARAH HAD A SMALL LATTICE GATE THROUGH WHICH THEY WENT IN TO SEARCH THE AZARAH.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. THE FIRE ROOM WAS VAULTED. IT WAS A LARGE ROOM SURROUNDED³⁸ WITH STONE SLABS.³⁹ ON THESE THE ELDERS OF THE FATHERS' HOUSE⁴⁰ [ON DUTY] USED TO SLEEP HAVING WITH THEM THE KEYS OF THE AZARAH, WHILE THE PRIESTLY NOVITIATES⁴¹ SLEPT EACH ON HIS GARMENT⁴² ON THE GROUND.

MISHNAH 9. THERE WAS A PLACE THERE ONE CUBIT SQUARE ON WHICH WAS A SLAB OF MARBLE. IN THIS WAS FIXED A RING AND A CHAIN [UNDERNEATH] ON WHICH THE KEYS WERE HUNG. WHEN CLOSING TIME CAME, THE PRIEST WOULD RAISE THE SLAB BY THE RING AND TAKE THE KEYS FROM THE CHAIN. THEN THE PRIEST WOULD LOCK UP⁴³ WITHIN WHILE THE LEVITE WAS SLEEPING WITHOUT.⁴⁴ WHEN HE HAD FINISHED LOCKING UP, HE WOULD REPLACE THE KEYS ON THE CHAIN AND THE SLAB IN ITS PLACE AND LAY HIS GARMENT ON IT AND SLEEP THERE. IF A SEMINAL EMISSION HAPPENED TO ONE OF THEM, HE WOULD GO OUT BY THE WINDING STAIR⁴⁵ WHICH WENT UNDER THE BIRAH,⁴⁶ AND WHICH WAS LIGHTED WITH LAMPS ON BOTH SIDES, UNTIL HE REACHED THE BATHING PLACE. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: HE DESCENDED BY THE WINDING STAIR WHICH WENT UNDER THE HEL AND HE WENT OUT BY THE TADDI GATE.

(1) At night time. For the rule that there should be twenty-four watches, v. Tamid, 27a.

(2) Heb. Beth ha-Mikdash. 'House of the Sanctuary', a term covering the whole space round the Temple buildings which a person in a higher degree of ritual uncleanness was forbidden to enter, and the measurements of which are given in this Tractate.

(3) For the explanation of these names, v. Tamid, ad. init. (Sonc. ed.) and notes. These three rooms adjoined the priestly Azarah or court in which was the altar of sacrifice.

(4) Enumerated below in Mishnah 3.

(5) The name given to the outer wall of the Sanctuary. though it is also used to designate the space enclosed by the wall.

(6) In Mishnah 4 it says that there were seven gates to the Azarah, and in Tamid 27a we find a difference of opinion on the question, so it is doubtful whether we should translate here 'the five' or simply 'five'.

(7) Temple court, v. infra p. 2. n. 10.

(8) Because it was not permitted to sit down in the Azarah, and they were not required to stand the whole time.

(9) This may be the same as the Lamb Chamber mentioned in Tamid 27a as being one of four rooms opening out from the Flash Chamber.

(10) Where the new veils for the Holy of Holies were woven. V. Tamid, l.c. These two rooms were apparently under the places where the priests watched. V. infra 5 and Tamid 26b.

(11) The Holy of Holies retained this name in the second Temple, although it contained no Ark. The western part of the Azarah wall ran a short distance behind it.

(12) Var. lec.: If any watcher did not rise . . . the officer would say to him, Peace be to thee, and if it was obvious that he was asleep, he would belabour him etc., v. Tamid 27b.

(13) It is not known whether these had any connection with Huldah the prophetess mentioned in II Kings, XXII, 14.

(14) A certain Koponius succeeded Archelaus as procurator of Judea and Samaria, A.D. 6-7 (Josephus, Ant. XVIII, 2 and 29). Possibly this gate was called after him.

(15) Or perhaps Todi = GR. . The origin of this name is not known.

(16) But it was used for other purposes, as explained at the end of the section.

(17) According to Jewish tradition, this was in commemoration of the permission to rebuild the Temple given by the kings of Persia. Cf. Men. 98a.

(18) This follows the opinion of R. Meir. According to the Rabbis, any priest was competent to perform the ceremony.

Parah IV, 1.

(19) Maim. renders 'all its appurtenances'.

(20) On the east of Jerusalem, where the heifer was burnt.

(21) The term here includes the whole of the area extending inward² from the Court of the Israelites, in which the Temple services were carried out. It was evidently surrounded by a wall.

(22) So called because the wood for the fire was brought in by it.

(23) Perhaps the sacrificial animals were brought in by this gate. V. infra 5. Another reading is 'gate of the firstborn'.

(24) V. infra, II, 6.

(25) For a tradition concerning this Nicanor, v. Yoma, 38a.

(26) I.e. it was called after a certain Phineas who used to robe the High Priest. V. Shek. V, I.

(27) Where the wafers were made for the High Priest's daily offering.

(28) Apparently the same as the 'flash chamber' mentioned above in Mishnah I.

(29) I.e., it was open on one side, giving, perhaps a glimpse of the altar fire, whence its name.

(30) I.e., the back of it led out into the Hel, or outer circuit, v. infra II, 3.

(31) I.e., a little further south. The gate of the spark was near the north-west corner.

(32) The two former were to the south adjoining the Azarah and the other two to the north, adjoining the Hel.

(33) Lit., 'heads of pebbles', perhaps level with the floor but of a different colour.

(34) V. supra, Mishnah I. Var. lec.: the lambs for the offering.

(35) This incident is referred to in I Macc., I, 46, 59. IV, 36. 46.

(36) Priests who had become defiled.

(37) To see that nothing had been left there. V. Tamid, 28a.

(38) On the outside.

(39) Let into the wall.

(40) The priests were divided into family groups of 'fathers' houses', which ministered in rotation.

(41) Lit., 'flowers of the priesthood', young priests who had just commenced to minister.

(42) Var. lec. pillow.

(43) The gates of the Temple were always closed at nightfall.

(44) The point of this remark is not at all clear. Perhaps it means that the Levite was sleeping until it was time for him to rise and go on night duty.

(45) Heb. mesibbah. Lit., 'circuit'. Hollis thinks perhaps it was only a gangway, not a stair.

(46) Lit., 'palace' or 'fortress', some building adjoining the Sanctuary on the north-west. V. Yoma 2a. For further notes on the passage v. Tamid (Sonc. ed.) p. 2.

Mishna - Mas. Middoth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THE TEMPLE MOUNT WAS FIVE HUNDRED CUBITS BY FIVE HUNDRED.¹ THE GREATER PART OF IT² WAS ON THE SOUTH; NEXT TO THAT ON THE EAST; NEXT TO THAT ON THE NORTH; AND THE SMALLEST PART ON THE WEST. THE PART WHICH WAS MOST EXTENSIVE WAS THE PART MOST USED.³

MISHNAH 2. ALL WHO ENTERED THE TEMPLE MOUNT ENTERED BY THE RIGHT⁴ AND WENT ROUND [TO THE RIGHT] AND WENT OUT BY THE LEFT, SAVE FOR ONE TO WHOM SOMETHING UNTOWARD HAD HAPPENED, WHO ENTERED AND WENT ROUND TO THE LEFT. [IF HE WAS ASKED], WHY DO YOU GO ROUND TO THE LEFT, [AND HE ANSWERED] BECAUSE I AM A MOURNER, [THEY SAID TO HIM], MAY HE WHO DWELLS IN THIS HOUSE COMFORT THEE. [IF HE SAID] BECAUSE I AM EXCOMMUNICATED. [THEY SAID] MAY HE WHO DWELLS IN THIS HOUSE INSPIRE THEM TO BEFRIEND THEE⁵ AGAIN. SO R. MEIR. SAID R. JOSE TO HIM: YOU MAKE IT SEEM THAT THEY TREATED HIM UNJUSTLY.⁶ WHAT THEN SHOULD THEY SAY? MAY HE WHO DWELLS IN THIS HOUSE INSPIRE THEE TO LISTEN TO THE WORDS OF THY COLLEAGUES⁷ SO THAT THEY MAY BEFRIEND THEE AGAIN.

MISHNAH 3. WITHIN IT⁸ WAS THE SOREG⁹ TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH. THERE WERE THIRTEEN BREACHES IN IT; THESE HAD BEEN ORIGINALLY MADE BY THE KINGS OF GREECE,¹⁰ AND WHEN THEY REPAIRED THEM THEY ENACTED THAT THIRTEEN PROSTRATIONS SHOULD BE MADE FACING THEM.¹¹ WITHIN THIS WAS THE HEL,¹² WHICH WAS TEN CUBITS [BROAD]. THERE WERE TWELVE STEPS THERE.¹³ THE HEIGHT OF EACH STEP WAS HALF A CUBIT AND ITS TREAD WAS HALF A CUBIT. ALL THE STEPS IN THE TEMPLE WERE HALF A CUBIT HIGH WITH A TREAD OF HALF A CUBIT, EXCEPT THOSE OF THE PORCH.¹⁴ ALL THE DOORWAYS IN THE TEMPLE WERE TWENTY CUBITS HIGH AND TEN CUBITS BROAD EXCEPT THOSE OF THE PORCH.¹⁵ ALL THE DOORWAYS THERE HAD DOORS IN THEM EXCEPT THOSE OF THE PORCH. ALL THE GATES THERE HAD LINTELS EXCEPT THAT OF TADDI WHICH HAD TWO STONES INCLINED TO ONE ANOTHER.¹⁶ ALL THE ORIGINAL GATES WERE CHANGED FOR GATES OF GOLD EXCEPT THE GATES OF NICANOR, BECAUSE A MIRACLE WAS WROUGHT TO THEM;¹⁷ SOME SAY, HOWEVER, IT WAS BECAUSE THE COPPER OF THEM GLEAMED [LIKE GOLD].

MISHNAH 4. ALL THE WALLS OF THE TEMPLE WERE HIGH EXCEPT THE EASTERN WALL, SO THAT THE PRIEST WHO BURNT THE RED HEIFER MIGHT WHILE STANDING ON THE TOP OF THE MOUNT OF OLIVES BY DIRECTING HIS GAZE CAREFULLY SEE THE DOOR OF THE HEKAL AT THE TIME OF THE SPRINKLING OF THE BLOOD.¹⁸

MISHNAH 5. THE WOMEN'S AZARAH¹⁹ WAS A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE CUBITS LONG BY A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE BROAD. IT HAD FOUR CHAMBERS IN ITS FOUR CORNERS,²⁰ EACH OF FORTY CUBITS.²¹ THEY WERE NOT ROOFED, AND SO THEY WILL BE IN THE TIME TO COME, AS IT SAYS, THEN HE BROUGHT ME FORTH INTO THE OUTER COURT, AND CAUSED ME TO PASS BY THE FOUR CORNERS OF THE COURT, AND BEHOLD IN EVERY CORNER OF THE COURT THERE WAS A COURT. IN THE FOUR CORNERS OF THE COURT THERE WERE SMOKED²² COURTS;²³ AND SMOKED²⁴ MEANS ONLY THAT THEY WERE NOT ROOFED. FOR WHAT WERE THEY USED? THE SOUTHEASTERN ONE WAS THE CHAMBER OF THE NAZIRITES WHERE THE NAZIRITES USED TO BOIL THEIR PEACE-OFFERINGS AND POLL THEIR HAIR AND THROW IT UNDER THE POT.²⁵ THE NORTH-EASTERN ONE WAS THE WOOD CHAMBER WHERE PRIESTS WITH A PHYSICAL DEFECT USED TO PICK OUT THE WOOD WHICH HAD WORMS, EVERY PIECE WITH A WORM IN IT BEING UNFIT FOR USE ON THE ALTAR. THE NORTH-WESTERN ONE WAS THE CHAMBER OF THE LEPERS.²⁶ AS FOR THE SOUTHWESTERN ONE, A. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID: I FORGET WHAT IT WAS USED FOR. ABBA SAUL SAYS: THEY USED TO STORE THERE WINE AND OIL, AND IT WAS CALLED THE OIL STORAGE ROOM.²⁷ IT [THE WOMEN'S AZARAH] HAD ORIGINALLY BEEN QUITE BARE BUT SUBSEQUENTLY THEY SURROUNDED IT WITH A BALCONY SO THAT THE WOMEN COULD LOOK ON FROM ABOVE WHILE THE MEN WERE BELOW, AND THEY SHOULD NOT MIX TOGETHER.²⁸ FIFTEEN STEPS LED UP FROM IT TO THE AZARAH OF ISRAEL, CORRESPONDING TO THE FIFTEEN [SONGS OF] ASCENTS MENTIONED IN THE BOOK OF PSALMS.²⁹ THE LEVITES USED TO CHANT PSALMS ON THESE.²⁸ THEY WERE NOT RECTANGULAR BUT CIRCULAR LIKE THE HALF OF A THRESHING FLOOR.

MISHNAH 6. THERE WERE CHAMBERS UNDERNEATH THE COURT OF ISRAEL WHICH OPENED INTO THE COURT OF WOMEN, WHERE THE LEVITES USED TO KEEP LYRES AND LUTES AND CYMBALS AND ALL KINDS OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. THE COURT OF ISRAEL WAS A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE CUBITS IN LENGTH BY ELEVEN IN BREADTH. SIMILARLY THE COURT OF THE PRIESTS WAS A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE CUBITS IN LENGTH³⁰ BY ELEVEN IN BREADTH, AND A ROW OF STONES³¹ SEPARATED THE COURT OF ISRAEL FROM THE COURT OF THE PRIESTS. A. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: THERE WAS A STEP A CUBIT HIGH ON WHICH WAS PLACED A PLATFORM,³² AND THIS HAD THREE STEPS EACH OF HALF A CUBIT. IN THIS WAY THE COURT OF THE PRIESTS WAS MADE TWO AND A HALF CUBITS HIGHER THAN THAT OF ISRAEL. THE WHOLE OF THE AZARAH³³ WAS A HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-SEVEN CUBITS IN LENGTH BY A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE IN BREADTH, AND THIRTEEN PROSTRATIONS WERE MADE THERE.³⁴ ABBA JOSE B. HANAN SAYS: THEY WERE MADE FACING THIRTEEN GATES.³⁵ ON THE SOUTH ADJOINING THE WEST THERE WERE THE UPPER GATE, THE GATE OF BURNING, THE GATE OF THE FIRSTBORN,³⁶ AND THE WATER GATE.³⁷ (WHY WAS IT CALLED THE WATER GATE? BECAUSE THEY BROUGHT IN THROUGH IT THE PITCHER OF WATER FOR LIBATION ON THE FESTIVAL. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: IN IT THE WATER WELLED UP, AND IN THE TIME TO COME THEY WILL ISSUE FROM UNDER THE THRESHOLD OF THE TEMPLE).³⁸ CORRESPONDING TO THEM IN THE NORTH ADJOINING THE WEST WERE THE GATE OF JECONIAH, THE GATE OF THE OFFERING,³⁹ THE WOMEN'S GATE,⁴⁰ THE GATE OF SONG.⁴¹ WHY WAS IT CALLED THE GATE OF JECONIAH? BECAUSE JECONIAH WENT FORTH INTO CAPTIVITY⁴² THROUGH IT.⁴³ ON THE EAST WAS THE GATE OF NICANOR; IT HAD TWO WICKETS,⁴⁴ ONE ON ITS RIGHT AND ONE ON ITS LEFT. THERE WERE FURTHER TWO GATES IN THE WEST WHICH HAD NO SPECIAL NAME.

(1) By 'Temple Mount' is apparently meant all that part of the temple area which lay outside of the Azarah, between the wall of the Azarah and the outer wall. This area was not actually consecrated but it had to be treated with a certain respect; thus one was not supposed to enter it with stick and wallet, to use it for a short cut etc. (Ber. 54a). According to Hollis, the corresponding areas in the present Haram-esh-Sherif are found by measurement to be 255,000 sq. feet on the southern side, 150,000 on the east, 92,900 on the north and 90,600 on the west, a total of 488,500 sq. ft., which reckoning a cubit at 12/2 feet, is nearly 500 cubits square.

(2) V. previous note.

(3) I.e. the majority of people entered from the south.

(4) I.e., on entering they turned to the right, even if their immediate objective was to the left, so that they had to make a circuit to reach it.

(5) Lit., 'bring thee back'.

(6) So that it was necessary for them to alter their mind.

(7) Excommunication was usually inflicted on an elder who would not conform to the ruling of the majority.

(8) Viz., the wall of the Temple Mount.

(9) According to the Jewish commentators, this was a kind of lattice work, the root sarag meaning 'to entwine'. Josephus, however, says It was of stone. Its exact purpose is not known as there was no higher degree of holiness till the Hel was reached.

(10) Cf. I Macc. IX, 54, 55.

(11) By worshippers in the Azarah. V. infra 6.

(12) A level promenade running right round the Azarah.

(13) Leading up from the Hel to the Court of Women. Apparently these steps ran the whole length of the Hel on its southern side.

(14) Which had a tread of a cubit.

(15) Which were forty cubits high and twenty broad.

(17) V. Yoma 38a.

(18) In accordance with the biblical injunction, And he shall sprinkle facing (E. V. toward) the front of the tent of meeting, Num. XIX. 4. There were three walls between the Mount of Olives and the door of the Hekal — the outer wall of the Temple Mount, the wall of the Women's Azarah, and the wall between the Court of Women and the Court of Israel. As the ground level of the outer wall was much lower than that of the Hekal — over 22 cubits — this wall would have had to be very high to obstruct the view from the Mount of Olives, and Hollis therefore (p. 273) thinks that it is the inner wall, separating the Court of Women from the Court of Israel, which is referred to.

(19) V. Yoma 16a.

(20) It is not certain whether these rooms were in the court or adjoining it on the outside.

(21) It is not clear whether this means forty cubits square.

(22) E. V. inclosed.

(23) Ezek. XLVI, 21, 22.

(24) The Hebrew word is keturoth, which is connected by the Mishnah with the root katar, to send up smoke, and is taken to mean that the smoke was allowed to ascend without impediment.

(25) V. Num. VI, 18.

(26) Where they bathed on purification before the blood of the offering was placed on their thumb; v. Neg. XIV, 8-9.

(27) Lit., 'room of the house of oils'.

(28) At the festival of the drawing of water. V. Suk. 51b.

(29) Ps. CXX-CXXXIV.

(30) Running alongside of the Women's Court. The longer side of any area is called by the Talmud its length.

(31) V. supra, p. 3. n. 12.

(32) From which the priests blessed the people. Perhaps it was really a movable pulpit.

(33) The whole of the sanctified area of the Temple from the Court of Israel to the Holy of Holies.

(34) By worshippers in the Azarah. According to the Rabbis, they were made towards the thirteen breaches in the soreg (v. supra), but Abba Jose b. Hanan differs.

(35) These were not all necessarily in the outer wall.

(36) Through which firstlings of flock and cattle were led to be offered, v. supra, p. 3, n. 2.

(37) These last three are mentioned in I, 4.

(38) V. Ezek. XLVII, 1, and Yoma 77b.

(39) Mentioned in I, 5. It is hard to say what was the relation of the other gates mentioned here to the 'Room of the Flash', and the Fire Chamber mentioned there.

(40) Which serves, perhaps, as exit for women.

(41) Through which, perhaps, the Levites brought in their instruments.

(42) V. II Kings XXIV, 8-16.

(43) After paying his last visit to the Temple.

(44) Not in it but adjoining it, and therefore reckoned as two separate gates.

Mishna - Mas. Middoth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. THE ALTAR¹ WAS THIRTY-TWO CUBITS BY THIRTY-TWO.² IT ROSE A CUBIT AND WENT IN A CUBIT, AND THIS FORMED THE FOUNDATION,³ LEAVING THIRTY CUBITS BY THIRTY. IT THEN ROSE FIVE CUBITS AND WENT IN ONE CUBIT, AND THIS FORMED THE SURROUND, LEAVING TWENTY-EIGHT CUBITS BY TWENTY-EIGHT.⁴ THE HORNS EXTENDED A CUBIT IN EACH DIRECTION,⁵ THUS LEAVING TWENTY-SIX BY TWENTY-SIX.⁶ A CUBIT ON EVERY SIDE WAS ALLOWED FOR THE PRIESTS TO GO ROUND, THUS LEAVING TWENTY-FOUR BY TWENTY-FOUR AS THE PLACE OF THE WOOD PILE [FOR THE ALTAR FIRE].

R. JOSE SAID: ORIGINALLY THE COMPLETE AREA [OCCUPIED BY THE ALTAR] WAS ONLY TWENTY-EIGHT CUBITS BY TWENTY-EIGHT, AND IT ROSE WITH THE DIMENSIONS MENTIONED⁷ UNTIL THE SPACE LEFT FOR THE ALTAR PILE WAS ONLY TWENTY BY TWENTY. WHEN, HOWEVER, THEY RETURNED FROM THE CAPTIVITY,⁸ THEY ADDED FOUR CUBITS ON THE NORTH,⁹ AND FOUR ON THE WEST LIKE A GAMMA,¹⁰ SINCE IT IS SAID: AND THE HEARTH¹¹ SHALL BE TWELVE CUBITS LONG BY TWELVE BROAD, SQUARE.¹² AM I TO SUPPOSE THAT IT WAS ONLY TWELVE CUBITS BY TWELVE? WHEN IT SAYS, IN THE FOUR SIDES THEREOF,¹³ THIS SHOWS THAT HE WAS MEASURING FROM THE MIDDLE, TWELVE CUBITS IN EVERY DIRECTION.

A LINE OF RED PAINT RAN ROUND IT IN THE MIDDLE¹⁴ TO DIVIDE BETWEEN THE UPPER AND THE LOWER BLOOD.¹⁵ THE FOUNDATION RAN THE WHOLE LENGTH OF THE NORTH AND OF THE WEST SIDES, BUT IT LEFT OPEN¹⁶ ONE CUBIT ON THE SOUTH AND ONE ON THE EAST.¹⁷

MISHNAH 2. AT THE SOUTH-WESTERN CORNER [OF THE FOUNDATION] THERE WERE TWO OPENINGS LIKE TWO FINE NOSTRILS THROUGH WHICH THE BLOOD WHICH WAS POURED ON THE WESTERN SIDE OF THE FOUNDATION AND ON THE SOUTHERN SIDE¹⁸ FLOWED DOWN TILL THE TWO STREAMS BECAME MINGLED IN THE CHANNEL,¹⁹ THROUGH WHICH THEY MADE THEIR WAY OUT TO THE BROOK OF KIDRON.

MISHNAH 3. ON THE PAVEMENT BENEATH AT THAT CORNER THERE WAS A PLACE A CUBIT SQUARE ON WHICH WAS A MARBLE SLAB WITH A RING FIXED IN IT,²⁰ AND THROUGH THIS THEY²¹ USED TO GO DOWN TO THE PIT²² TO CLEAN IT OUT.²³ THERE WAS AN ASCENT ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE ALTAR, THIRTY-TWO CUBITS [LONG] BY SIXTEEN BROAD. IT HAD A CAVITY IN ITS WESTERN SIDE WHERE REJECTED SIN-OFFERINGS OF BIRDS WERE PLACED.²⁴

MISHNAH 4. THE STONES BOTH OF THE ASCENT AND OF THE ALTAR WERE TAKEN FROM THE VALLEY OF BETH KEREM.²⁵ THEY DUG²⁶ INTO VIRGIN SOIL²⁷ AND BROUGHT FROM THERE WHOLE STONES ON WHICH NO IRON HAD BEEN LIFTED, SINCE IRON DISQUALIFIES BY MERE TOUCH, THOUGH A SCRATCH MADE BY ANYTHING COULD DISQUALIFY. IF ONE OF THEM RECEIVED A SCRATCH, IT WAS DISQUALIFIED, BUT THE REST WERE NOT. THEY WERE WHITEWASHED TWICE A YEAR, ONCE AT PASSOVER AND ONCE AT TABERNACLES, AND THE HEKAL WAS WHITEWASHED ONCE A YEAR, AT PASSOVER. RABBI SAYS: THEY WERE WHITEWASHED EVERY FRIDAY WITH A CLOTH ON ACCOUNT OF THE BLOOD STAINS. THE PLASTER WAS NOT LAID ON WITH A TROWEL OF IRON, FOR FEAR THAT IT MIGHT TOUCH AND DISQUALIFY, SINCE IRON WAS CREATED TO SHORTEN MAN'S DAYS AND THE ALTAR WAS CREATED TO PROLONG MAN'S DAYS, AND IT IS NOT RIGHT THEREFORE THAT THAT WHICH SHORTENS SHOULD BE LIFTED AGAINST THAT WHICH PROLONGS.

MISHNAH 5. THERE WERE RINGS²⁸ TO THE NORTH OF THE ALTAR, SIX ROWS OF FOUR EACH, OR, ACCORDING TO SOME, FOUR ROWS OF SIX EACH, AT WHICH THEY USED TO SLAUGHTER THE SACRIFICIAL ANIMALS. THE SLAUGHTERERS SHED WAS AT THE NORTH OF THE ALTAR. THERE WERE EIGHT DWARF PILLARS THERE, ON WHICH WERE BLOCKS OF CEDAR-WOOD. IN THESE WERE FIXED HOOKS OF IRON, THREE ROWS IN EACH, ON WHICH THEY HUNG THE CARCASSES, AND FLAYED THEM OVER TABLES OF MARBLE BETWEEN THE PILLARS.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. THE LAVER³⁰ WAS BETWEEN THE PORCH AND THE ALTAR, A LITTLE TO THE SOUTH. THE SPACE BETWEEN THE PORCH AND THE ALTAR WAS TWENTY-TWO CUBITS. THERE WERE TWELVE STEPS THERE, EACH STEP BEING HALF A CUBIT HIGH AND A CUBIT BROAD. THERE WAS A CUBIT, A CUBIT AND A LEVEL SPACE OF THREE CUBITS,³¹ THEN A CUBIT, A CUBIT AND A LEVEL SPACE OF THREE CUBITS, THEN AT THE TOP A CUBIT, A CUBIT AND A LEVEL SPACE OF FOUR CUBITS. R. JUDAH SAYS THAT AT THE TOP THERE WAS A CUBIT, A CUBIT AND A LEVEL

MISHNAH 7. THE DOORWAY OF THE PORCH WAS FORTY CUBITS HIGH AND ITS BREADTH WAS TWENTY CUBITS. OVER IT WERE FIVE MAIN BEAMS OF CEDAR. THE LOWEST PROJECTED A CUBIT ON EACH SIDE BEYOND THE DOORWAY. THE ONE ABOVE PROJECTED BEYOND THIS ONE A CUBIT ON EACH SIDE. THUS THE TOPMOST ONE WAS THIRTY CUBITS LONG. THERE WAS A LAYER OF STONES BETWEEN EACH ONE AND THE NEXT.

MISHNAH 8. THERE WERE CROSS BARS OF STONE³³ STRETCHING FROM THE WALL OF THE HEKAL TO THE WALL OF THE PORCH TO PREVENT IT FROM BULGING.³⁴ THERE WERE CHAINS OF GOLD FIXED IN THE ROOF BEAMS OF THE PORCH BY WHICH THE PRIESTLY NOVITIATES³⁵ USED TO ASCEND AND SEE THE CROWNS,³⁶ AS IT SAYS, AND THE CROWNS SHALL BE TO HELEM AND TO TOBIJAH AND TO JEDAIAH AND TO HEN THE SON OF ZEPHANIAH AS A MEMORIAL IN THE TEMPLE OF THE LORD.³⁷ A GOLDEN VINE STOOD AT THE DOOR OF THE HEKAL TRAINED ON POLES, AND ANYONE WHO OFFERED A LEAF OR A GRAPE OR A BUNCH USED TO BRING IT AND HANG IT THEREON. R. ELIEZER SON OF R. ZADOK SAID: ON ONE OCCASION THREE HUNDRED PRIESTS WERE COMMISSIONED [TO CLEAR IT].

- (1) For a description of the altar, cf. Zeb. 54a.
(2) At its base.
(3) Which was thus a kind of step one cubit high and one wide going right round the altar.
(4) The Mishnah here does not mention that from the surround the altar rose three cubits, as this is known from the statement of Scripture, and the height thereof shall be three cubits (Ex. XXVII, 1).
(5) They were also one cubit high, so that the whole height of the altar was ten cubits.
(6) Quite clear of the horns.
(7) I.e., one for the foundation and five for the surround.
(8) Lit., 'when the children of the exile came up'.
(9) So the text. The proper reading, however, is 'south' as appears from Zeb. 61b.
(10) I.e., two sides of a square.
(11) I.e., the place of the altar fire.
(12) Ezek. XLIII, 16.
(13) Ezek. XLIII, 16.
(14) Maim. calculates that this 'middle' was 26 handbreadths from the ground.
(15) The blood of animals brought as sin-offerings and of birds brought as burnt-offerings was sprinkled above the line, of other sacrifices below the line.
(16) Lit. 'consumed'.
(17) I.e., the south-east corner. So Maim. Asheri, however, explains that it ran only one cubit on the south and on the east side. The reason is given in Zeb. 53b.
(18) The blood of the offerings which was left after the sprinkling.
(19) A channel which flowed through the Azarah into the brook of Kidron.
(20) In order to lift it.
(21) Young priests detailed for the task.
(22) Into which the wine of the libations flowed.
(23) According to Suk. 49a, this was done only once in seventy years.
(24) Until they became unrecognisable, when they were taken out and burnt. Birds were killed at the altar, and therefore if a disqualification was subsequently found in the bodies they could not be taken away.
(25) Mentioned in Jer. VI, 1. It was not far from Jerusalem.
(26) With wooden spades.
(27) So that it was certain that no plough had touched them.
(28) Hoops fixed round the necks of the animals to keep them in place. V. Tamid IV, 1.

(29) V. Tam. III, 5, (Sonc. ed.) notes.

(30) V. Ex. XXX, 18.

(31) This is taken by Asheri to mean that there were four steps each half a cubit high and each a cubit broad, which with level pavement of three cubits would make seven cubits. Then came four more steps and a level of three cubits, making another seven cubits, and then four more steps and a level space of four cubits, making eight cubits. Thus altogether between the altar and the porch there were twelve steps and twenty-two cubits. It is not clear on this explanation why it should say, 'a cubit, a cubit' and not 'two cubits' or 'four steps'. Maim. takes the whole statement to refer to the wall of the porch and to mean that after every two cubits there was a projection issuing from the wall. Certainly the word robed which Asheri takes to mean 'level pavement is used for 'projection' in Tamid I, 1, but it is much more natural to take the passage here as referring to the steps. The reading is uncertain.

(32) R. Judah (according to Asheri) must suppose that one of the previous level spaces was only two cubits.

(33) Var. lec.: 'cedar'.

(34) On account of its great height.

(35) Lit., 'flowers of the Priesthood'. v. supra. I, 8.

(36) Which were placed as ornaments in the windows of the upper chambers of the Porch. According to Asheri, the young priests climbed up to see if they were in good order, not merely for pleasure, which was forbidden.

(37) Zech. VI, 14.

Mishna - Mas. Middoth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. THE DOORWAY OF THE HEKAL¹ WAS TWENTY CUBITS HIGH AND TEN BROAD.² IT HAD FOUR DOORS, TWO ON THE INNER SIDE,³ AND TWO ON THE OUTER, AS IT SAYS, AND THE TEMPLE AND THE SANCTUARY HAD TWO DOORS.⁴ THE OUTER ONES OPENED INTO THE INTERIOR OF THE DOORWAY SO AS TO COVER THE THICKNESS OF THE WALL, WHILE THE INNER ONES OPENED INTO THE TEMPLE SO AS TO COVER THE SPACE BEHIND THE DOORS,⁵ BECAUSE THE WHOLE OF THE TEMPLE WAS OVERLAID WITH GOLD EXCEPT THE SPACE BEHIND THE DOORS. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE DOORS⁶ WERE PLACED WITHIN THE DOORWAY,⁷ AND THEY RESEMBLED FOLDING DOORS,⁸ ONE HALF COVERING TWO CUBITS AND A HALF [OF THE WALL] AND THE OTHER HALF COVERING TWO CUBITS AND A HALF, LEAVING HALF A CUBIT AND A DOORPOST AT THE ONE END AND HALF A CUBIT AND A DOORPOST AT THE OTHER END, AS IT SAYS: AND THE DOORS HAD TWO LEAVES APIECE, TWO TURNING LEAVES, TWO LEAVES FOR THE ONE DOOR AND TWO LEAVES FOR THE OTHER.⁹

MISHNAH 2. THE GREAT GATE¹⁰ HAD TWO WICKETS, ONE TO THE NORTH AND ONE TO THE SOUTH. BY THE ONE TO THE SOUTH NO MAN EVER WENT IN, AND CONCERNING THIS THE RULE WAS DISTINCTLY LAID DOWN BY THE MOUTH OF EZEKIEL, AS IT SAYS, AND THE LORD SAID UNTO ME: THIS GATE SHALL BE SHUT, IT SHALL NOT BE OPENED, NEITHER SHALL ANY MAN ENTER IN BY IT, FOR THE LORD GOD OF ISRAEL HATH ENTERED IN BY IT; THEREFORE IT SHALL BE SHUT.¹¹ HE [THE PRIEST] TOOK THE KEY AND OPENED THE [NORTHERN] WICKET AND WENT IN TO THE CELL,¹² AND FROM THE CELL HE WENT IN TO THE HEKAL. R. JUDAH SAYS: HE USED TO WALK ALONG IN THE THICKNESS OF THE WALL¹³ UNTIL HE CAME TO THE SPACE BETWEEN THE TWO GATES.¹⁴ HE USED TO OPEN THE OUTER DOORS FROM WITHIN AND THE INNER DOORS FROM WITHOUT.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. THERE WERE THIRTY-EIGHT CELLS THERE,¹⁶ FIFTEEN ON THE NORTH, FIFTEEN ON THE SOUTH, AND EIGHT ON THE WEST. ON THE NORTH AND ON THE SOUTH THERE WERE FIVE OVER FIVE AND FIVE AGAIN OVER THESE;¹⁷ ON THE WEST THERE WERE THREE OVER THREE AND TWO OVER THESE. EACH HAD THREE OPENINGS,¹⁸ ONE TO THE CELL ON THE RIGHT AND ONE TO THE CELL ON THE LEFT

AND ONE TO THE CELL ABOVE. IN THE [ONE AT THE] NORTHEASTERN CORNER THERE WERE FIVE OPENINGS, ONE TO THE CELL ON THE Right,¹⁹ ONE TO THE CELL ABOVE, ONE TO THE MESIBBAH,²⁰ ONE TO THE WICKET,²¹ AND ONE TO THE HEKAL.²²

MISHNAH 4. THE LOWEST STOREY CHAMBER WAS FIVE CUBITS WIDE WITH A CEILING OF SIX CUBITS;²³ THE MIDDLE STOREY CHAMBER WAS SIX CUBITS WIDE WITH A CEILING OF SEVEN; THE TOP STOREY CHAMBER WAS SEVEN CUBITS WIDE, AS IT SAYS, THE NETHERMOST STOREY OF THE SIDE-STRUCTURE WAS FIVE CUBITS BROAD, AND THE MIDDLE WAS SIX CUBITS BROAD, AND THE THIRD WAS SEVEN CUBITS BROAD.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. A WINDING PASSAGE²⁵ WENT UP FROM THE NORTH-EAST CORNER TO THE NORTH-WEST CORNER BY WHICH THEY USED TO MOUNT TO THE ROOFS OF THE CELLS. ONE ASCENDED THE PASSAGE FACING THE WEST, AND TRAVERSED THE WHOLE OF THE NORTHERN SIDE TILL HE REACHED THE WEST. WHEN HE REACHED THE WEST HE TURNED TO FACE SOUTH. HE THEN TRAVERSED THE WEST SIDE²⁶ TILL HE REACHED THE SOUTH. WHEN HE REACHED THE SOUTH HE TURNED TO FACE EASTWARDS. HE THEN TRAVERSED THE SOUTH SIDE TILL HE REACHED THE DOOR OF THE UPPER CHAMBER,²⁷ SINCE THE DOOR OF THE UPPER CHAMBER OPENED TO THE SOUTH. IN THE DOORWAY OF THE UPPER CHAMBER WERE TWO COLUMNS OF CEDAR BY WHICH THEY USED TO CLIMB²⁸ UP TO THE ROOF OF THE UPPER CHAMBER, AND AT THE TOP OF THEM WAS A ROW OF STONES²⁹ SHOWING THE DIVISION IN THE UPPER CHAMBER BETWEEN THE HOLY PART AND THE HOLY OF HOLIES.³⁰ THERE WERE TRAP DOORS IN THE UPPER CHAMBER OPENING INTO THE HOLY OF HOLIES BY WHICH THE WORKMEN WERE LET DOWN IN BASKETS SO THAT THEY SHOULD NOT FEED THEIR GAZE ON THE HOLY OF HOLIES.³¹

MISHNAH 6. THE HEKAL³² WAS A HUNDRED CUBITS BY A HUNDRED³³ WITH A HEIGHT OF A HUNDRED. THE SUBSTRUCTURE³⁴ WAS SIX CUBITS, THEN IT ROSE FORTY, THEN A CUBIT FOR THE ORNAMENTATION, TWO CUBITS FOR THE GUTTERING,³⁵ A CUBIT FOR THE ROOF AND A CUBIT FOR THE PLASTERING. THE HEIGHT OF THE UPPER CHAMBER WAS FORTY CUBITS, THERE WAS A CUBIT FOR ITS ORNAMENTATION,³⁶ TWO CUBITS FOR THE GUTTERING, A CUBIT FOR THE CEILING, A CUBIT FOR THE PLASTERING, THREE CUBITS FOR THE PARAPET AND A CUBIT FOR THE SPIKES.³⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS THE SPIKES WERE NOT INCLUDED IN THE MEASUREMENT, THE PARAPET BEING FOUR CUBITS.

MISHNAH 7. FROM EAST TO WEST WAS A HUNDRED CUBITS — THE WALL OF THE PORCH FIVE CUBITS, THE PORCH ITSELF ELEVEN, THE WALL OF THE HEKAL SIX CUBITS AND ITS INTERIOR FORTY, A CUBIT FOR THE PARTITION³⁸ AND TWENTY CUBITS FOR THE HOLY OF HOLIES, THE WALL OF THE HEKAL SIX CUBITS,³⁹ THE CELL⁴⁰ SIX CUBITS AND THE WALL OF THE CELL FIVE. FROM NORTH TO SOUTH WAS SEVENTY CUBITS — THE WALL OF THE MESIBBAH FIVE CUBITS, THE MESIBBAH ITSELF THREE, THE WALL OF THE CELL FIVE AND THE CELL ITSELF SIX, THE WALL OF THE HEKAL SIX CUBITS AND ITS INTERIOR TWENTY, THEN THE WALL OF THE HEKAL AGAIN SIX AND THE CELL SIX AND ITS WALL FIVE, THEN THE PLACE OF THE WATER DESCENT⁴¹ THREE CUBITS AND ITS WALL FIVE CUBITS. THE PORCH EXTENDED BEYOND THIS FIFTEEN CUBITS ON THE NORTH AND FIFTEEN CUBITS ON THE SOUTH, AND THIS SPACE WAS CALLED THE KNIFE-HOUSE WHERE THEY USED TO STORE THE [SLAUGHTERERS'] KNIVES.⁴² THUS THE HEKAL WAS NARROW BEHIND AND BROAD IN FRONT, RESEMBLING A LION, AS IT SAYS, AH, ARIEL, ARIEL, THE CITY WHERE DAVID ENCAMPED.⁴³ JUST AS A LION IS NARROW BEHIND AND BROAD IN FRONT, SO THE HEKAL WAS NARROW BEHIND AND BROAD IN FRONT.

Mishna - Mas. Middoth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. THE WHOLE OF THE AZARAH¹ WAS A HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-SEVEN CUBITS LONG BY A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE BROAD. FROM EAST TO WEST IT WAS A HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-SEVEN. THE SPACE TO WHICH THE ISRAELITES² HAD ACCESS WAS ELEVEN CUBITS. THE SPACE TO WHICH THE PRIESTS HAD ACCESS WAS ELEVEN CUBITS. THE ALTAR TOOK UP THIRTY-TWO. BETWEEN THE PORCH AND THE ALTAR WAS TWENTY-TWO CUBITS. THE HEKAL TOOK UP A HUNDRED CUBITS, AND THERE WERE ELEVEN CUBITS BEHIND THE MERCY SEAT.³

MISHNAH 2. FROM NORTH TO SOUTH WAS A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE CUBITS. THE ASCENT AND THE ALTAR TOOK UP SIXTY-TWO;⁴ FROM THE ALTAR TO THE RINGS WAS EIGHT CUBITS. THE RINGS TOOK UP TWENTY-FOUR CUBITS. FROM THE RINGS TO THE TABLES WAS FOUR CUBITS, FROM THE TABLES TO THE DWARF PILLARS FOUR, AND FROM THE DWARF PILLARS TO THE WALL OF THE AZARAH EIGHT CUBITS, AND THE REMAINDER⁵ WAS BETWEEN THE ASCENT AND THE WALL⁶ AND THE SPACE OCCUPIED BY THE PILLARS.⁷

MISHNAH 3. THERE WERE SIX CHAMBERS IN THE AZARAH, THREE ON THE NORTH AND THREE ON THE SOUTH. ON THE NORTH WERE THE SALT CHAMBER, THE PARWAH⁸ CHAMBER AND THE WASHERS CHAMBER. IN THE SALT CHAMBER THEY USED TO KEEP THE SALT FOR THE OFFERINGS. IN THE PARWAH CHAMBER THEY USED TO SALT THE SKINS OF THE ANIMAL-OFFERINGS. ON ITS ROOF WAS THE BATH USED BY THE HIGH PRIEST ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.⁹ IN THE WASHERS' CHAMBER THEY USED TO WASH THE ENTRAILS OF THE SACRIFICIAL ANIMALS, AND FROM IT A WINDING ASCENT WENT UP TO THE ROOF OF THE PARWAH CHAMBER.

MISHNAH 4. ON THE SOUTH WERE THE WOOD CHAMBER, THE CHAMBER OF THE CAPTIVITY AND THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONES. WITH REGARD TO THE WOOD CHAMBER, R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: I FORGET WHAT IT WAS USED FOR. ABBA SAUL SAYS:¹⁰ THE CHAMBER OF THE HIGH PRIEST¹¹ WAS BEHIND TWO OF THEM, AND ONE ROOF COVERED ALL THREE. IN THE CHAMBER OF THE CAPTIVITY THERE WAS A FIXED CISTERN¹² WITH A WHEEL OVER IT, AND FROM THERE WATER WAS PROVIDED FOR ALL THE AZARAH. IN THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONE¹³ THE GREAT SANHEDRIN OF ISRAEL USED TO SIT AND JUDGE [AMONG OTHER THINGS THE APPLICANTS, FOR PRIESTHOOD. A PRIEST IN WHOM WAS FOUND A DISQUALIFICATION¹⁴ USED TO PUT ON BLACK UNDER GARMENTS AND WRAP HIMSELF IN BLACK AND CLEAR AWAY. ONE IN WHOM NO DISQUALIFICATION WAS FOUND USED TO PUT ON WHITE UNDER GARMENTS AND WRAP HIMSELF IN WHITE AND GO IN AND MINISTER ALONG WITH HIS BROTHER PRIESTS. THEY USED TO MAKE A FEAST BECAUSE NO BLEMISH HAD BEEN FOUND IN THE SEED OF AARON THE PRIEST, AND THEY USED TO SAY THUS: BLESSED IS THE OMNIPRESENT,¹⁵ BLESSED IS HE, BECAUSE NO BLEMISH HAS BEEN FOUND IN THE SEED OF AARON. BLESSED IS HE WHO CHOSE AARON AND HIS SONS TO STAND TO MINISTER BEFORE THE LORD IN THE HOLY OF HOLIES.

(1) The Temple Court. The space which was called 'the camp of the divine presence'.

(2) Lit. 'place of the treading of the feet of the Israelites'.

(3) More precisely behind the western wall of the Hekal. V. supra p. 1, n. 11.

(4) Cf. supra III, 3. Apparently the base of the ascent was thirty cubits.

(5) Of the hundred and thirty-five cubits.

(6) I.e., the southern wall.

- (7) We must also suppose the space occupied by the tables to be included, although strangely enough this is not mentioned.
- (8) Supposed to have been so called after a man named Parwah. V. Yoma, 35a. Or it may be connected with parim, bulls.
- (9) V. Yoma 30a.
- (10) Abba Saul's remark has nothing to do with R. Eliezer's.
- (11) This apparently is the 'Chamber of Parhedrin' mentioned at the beginning of Tractate Yoma.
- (12) Supposed to have been dug by the returned exiles.
- (13) V. Tam. (Sonc. ed.) p. 14, n. 9.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THERE ARE SIX DEGREES OF GATHERINGS OF WATER,¹ EACH SUPERIOR TO THE OTHER.² THE WATER OF PITS³ — IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND THEN A CLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT, HE BECOMES UNCLEAN;⁴ IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND WATER WAS THEN DRAWN FROM IT IN A CLEAN VESSEL, [THE VESSEL] BECOMES UNCLEAN;⁴ IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND THEN A LOAF OF TERUMAH⁵ FELL IN AND WAS WASHED IN IT, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN; BUT IF IT WAS NOT WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE DREW WATER FROM IT IN AN UNCLEAN VESSEL AND THEN A CLEAN PERSON DRANK [OUT OF THE PIT]. HE BECOMES UNCLEAN;⁷ IF ONE DREW WATER [FROM IT] IN AN UNCLEAN VESSEL AND THEN DREW WATER FROM IT IN A CLEAN VESSEL, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF ONE DREW WATER [FROM IT] IN AN UNCLEAN VESSEL AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL IN AND WAS WASHED IN IT, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN; BUT IF IT WAS NOT WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. IF UNCLEAN WATER⁸ FELL INTO IT AND A CLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT, HE BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF UNCLEAN WATER FELL INTO IT AND THEN WATER WAS DRAWN FROM IT IN A CLEAN VESSEL, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF UNCLEAN WATER FELL INTO IT AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL IN AND WAS WASHED IN IT, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN; BUT IF IT WAS NOT WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN. R. SIMEON SAYS: IT BECOMES UNCLEAN⁹ WHETHER IT WAS WASHED IN IT OR WHETHER IT WAS NOT WASHED IN IT.

MISHNAH 4. IF A CORPSE FELL INTO IT OR AN UNCLEAN PERSON¹⁰ WALKED IN IT, AND A CLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT, HE CONTINUES CLEAN. THE SAME RULE APPLIES TO THE WATER OF PITS, THE WATER OF CISTERNS,¹¹ THE WATER OF DITCHES,¹² THE WATER OF CAVERNS,¹³ THE WATER OF RAIN DRIPPINGS¹⁴ WHICH HAVE STOPPED,¹⁵ AND MIKWEHS¹⁶ OF LESS THAN FORTY SE'AHs: THEY ARE ALL CLEAN DURING THE TIME OF RAIN;¹⁷ WHEN THE RAIN HAS STOPPED THOSE NEAR TO A CITY OR TO A ROAD ARE UNCLEAN,¹⁸ AND THOSE DISTANT REMAIN CLEAN UNTIL THE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE PASS [THAT WAY].¹⁹

MISHNAH 5. WHEN ARE THEY ACCOUNTED CLEAN AGAIN? BETH SHAMMAI SAY: WHEN THEIR CONTENTS HAVE BEEN INCREASED²⁰ [BY MORE THAN THE ORIGINAL QUANTITY] AND THEY OVERFLOW.²¹ BETH HILLEL SAY: WHEN THEIR CONTENTS HAVE BEEN INCREASED²² [BY MORE THAN THEIR ORIGINAL QUANTITY] ALTHOUGH THEY DO NOT OVERFLOW. R. SIMEON SAYS: WHEN THEY OVERFLOW ALTHOUGH THEIR CONTENTS HAVE NOT BEEN SO²³ INCREASED. [ALL SUCH PIT- WATER]²⁴ IS VALID [FOR PREPARING DOUGH] FOR HALLAH²⁵ AND FOR THE WASHING OF THE HANDS.²⁶

MISHNAH 6. SUPERIOR TO SUCH [WATER] IS THE WATER OF RAIN DRIPPINGS WHICH HAVE NOT STOPPED.²⁷ IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND THEN A CLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT, HE CONTINUES CLEAN;²⁸ IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND WATER WAS THEN DRAWN FROM IT IN A CLEAN VESSEL, IT CONTINUES CLEAN; IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL IN, EVEN IF IT WAS WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN; IF ONE DREW WATER FROM IT IN AN UNCLEAN VESSEL AND THEN A CLEAN PERSON DRANK [OUT OF THE POOL]. HE CONTINUES CLEAN; IF ONE DREW WATER FROM IT IN AN UNCLEAN VESSEL AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL [INTO THE POOL]. EVEN IF

IT WAS WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN; IF UNCLEAN WATER FELL INTO IT AND A CLEAN PERSON DRANK OF IT, HE CONTINUES CLEAN; IF UNCLEAN WATER FELL INTO IT AND ONE DREW WATER FROM IT IN A CLEAN VESSEL, IT CONTINUES CLEAN; IF UNCLEAN WATER FELL INTO IT AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL IN, EVEN IF IT WAS WASHED IN IT, IT CONTINUES CLEAN. [ALL SUCH WATER] IS VALID FOR TERUMAH²⁹ AND FOR THE WASHING OF THE HANDS.³⁰

MISHNAH 7. SUPERIOR TO SUCH [WATER] IS [THE WATER OF] THE MIKWEH CONTAINING FORTY SE'AHs,³¹ FOR IN IT PERSONS MAY IMMERSE THEMSELVES³² AND IMMERSE OTHERS.³³ SUPERIOR AGAIN IS [THE WATER OF] A FOUNTAIN WHOSE OWN WATER IS LITTLE BUT HAS BEEN INCREASED BY A GREATER QUANTITY OF DRAWN WATER; IT IS EQUIVALENT TO THE MIKWEH IN AS MUCH AS IT MAY RENDER CLEAN BY STANDING WATER,³⁴ AND TO AN [ORDINARY] FOUNTAIN IN AS MUCH AS ONE MAY IMMERSE IN IT WHATEVER THE QUANTITY OF ITS CONTENTS.³⁵

MISHNAH 8. SUPERIOR AGAIN ARE 'SMITTEN WATERS'³⁶ WHICH CAN RENDER CLEAN EVEN WHEN FLOWING. SUPERIOR AGAIN ARE 'LIVING WATERS'³⁷ WHICH SERVE FOR THE IMMERSION OF PERSONS WHO HAVE A RUNNING ISSUE³⁸ AND FOR THE SPRINKLING OF LEPERS,³⁹ AND ARE VALID FOR THE PREPARATION OF THE WATER OF PURIFICATION.⁴⁰

(1) במקואות, here used in the ordinary and more original sense of an assemblage of water, as in biblical Hebrew (e.g., Gen. I, 10). and not in the later technical sense of a ritual bathing-pool; cf. Introduction. The six degrees are: I, water of pits (mishna 1); II, water of rain drippings (mishna 6); III, the mikweh; IV, the fountain (mishna 7); V, smitten water; VI, living water (mishna 8).

(2) In their power of imparting and removing uncleanness.

(3) נביאים, cf. Isa. XXX, 14. The contents are less than 40 se'ahs. If the pit contains 40 se'ahs or more, it becomes a mikweh.

(4) The water taken up by the drinker in his mouth having become unclean, it may be feared that a drop of it fell from his mouth back' into the water of the pit, and was afterwards drunk by the clean person, or was taken up in the clean vessel.

(5) Heave-offering which, by reason of its sanctity, is susceptible to uncleanness more than ordinary food; cf. Zabim V, 12; Shab. 14a.

(6) The water in the pit is considered as joined to the ground, and as such is incapable of becoming unclean or of conveying uncleanness (cf Lev. XI, 36), until it is deliberately removed from the pit. Therefore, if the person did not wash the loaf, the unclean drop of water, which may have been absorbed by the loaf, was neutralized and its uncleanness rendered ineffective by the rest of the water in the pit. But when the person washed the loaf, he deliberately removed from the pit water absorbed by the loaf, which may have included the unclean drop. This drop, therefore, was not neutralized, but imparted its uncleanness to the loaf.

(7) The same rule obtains in the case of an unclean vessel as in the case of an unclean drinker. The vessel imparts uncleanness to the water it takes up from the pit. A drop of this unclean water may have fallen back from the vessel into the pit, and may have been taken up again by the drinker in his mouth.

(8) The rule applying to a drop falling back into the pit from an unclean drinker or from an unclean vessel applies also to unclean water which falls into the pit.

(9) In all the three cases discussed above. He holds that even when the loaf was not washed, we may suspect that it was the clean water alone which escaped from the loaf when lifted from the pit, and that the unclean water adhered to the loaf, and rendered it unclean.

(10) The corpse or the unclean person did not make the water unclean, because, as stated above p. 423, n. 6, water in a pit is considered joined to the ground, and is not susceptible to uncleanness unless it is deliberately separated from the pit.

(11) They are shaped round like wells.

(12) Shaped long and narrow.

(13) These are more or less square-shaped and roofed.

- (14) Pools formed by rain water running down from the hills.
- (15) To trickle down from the hills. If they have not stopped, they would neutralize an unclean drop falling into them.
- (16) Artificial pools designed for ritual immersion (cf. Introd.), somewhat rectangular in shape, but not roofed.
- (17) When wayfarers are few and drinking water is abundant. There is then no need to suspect that an unclean person had drunk from them, or that water had been drawn from them in an unclean vessel. And if by chance this did happen, the flowing rain water would have neutralized the unclean drop.
- (18) It may be suspected that an unclean wayfarer had drunk from them, or that water was drawn from them in an unclean vessel.
- (19) Among whom there may have been an unclean person who drank of the water, or a person who drew water in an unclean vessel.
- (20) By rain water.
- (21) So that it may be assumed that the unclean quantity had escaped.
- (22) The larger quantity of rain water is sufficient to neutralize the unclean quantity; cf. Maksh. II, 3.
- (23) Even if the new rain water was less than the original contents, but was sufficient to overfill the receptacle.
- (24) As defined Supra I, n. 3.
- (25) I.e. dough from which hallah, or dough-offering, has to be taken; cf. Num. XV, 20; Hal. I. 1.
- (26) Before eating of common food; cf. Hag. II, 5.
- (27) Cf. p. 425 nn. 3, 4.
- (28) A possible unclean drop falling back into the pool is neutralized by the fresh flow of water coming down from the hills.
- (29) For preparing in it food of heave-offering.
- (30) Even for eating terumah; cf. Hag. I.c.
- (31) Not filled by the hand of man; cf. Introd.
- (32) All persons who require purification by immersion, with the exception of persons with a running issue; cf. next Mishnah.
- (33) Unclean vessels and the hands before eating of the meat of sacrifices; cf. Hag. I.c.
- (34) Whereas a fountain with its water coming from under the ground can purify also when the water is flowing.
- (35) It does not require to have 40 se'ahs, but just sufficient for the complete immersion of persons or of utensils; cf. Introd.
- (36) Salty water or hot water from a spring.
- (37) Pure and sweet spring water.
- (38) Cf. Lev. XV, 13.
- (39) Ibid. XIV, 5-7.
- (40) Num. XIX, 17.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF AN UNCLEAN MAN WENT DOWN TO IMMERSE HIMSELF AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER HE DID IMMERSE HIMSELF OR NOT,¹ OR EVEN IF HE DID IMMERSE HIMSELF,² IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER THE MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs OR NOT, OR IF THERE WERE TWO MIKWEHS, ONE CONTAINING FORTY SE'AHs BUT NOT THE OTHER, AND HE IMMERSED HIMSELF IN ONE OF THEM BUT HE DOES NOT KNOW IN WHICH OF THEM HE IMMERSED HIMSELF, IN SUCH A DOUBT HE IS ACCOUNTED UNCLEAN.³

MISHNAH 2. IF A MIKWEH WAS MEASURED AND WAS FOUND LACKING [IN ITS PRESCRIBED QUANTITY],⁴ ALL THINGS WHICH HAD BEEN PURIFIED IN IT HITHERTO,⁵ WHETHER IN PRIVATE PREMISES OR IN PUBLIC PREMISES,⁶ ARE ACCOUNTED UNCLEAN. TO WHAT DOES THIS RULE APPLY?⁷ TO A SERIOUS UNCLEANNESS.⁸ BUT IN THE CASE OF A LESSER UNCLEANNESS,⁹ NAMELY IF ONE ATE UNCLEAN FOODS¹⁰ OR DRANK UNCLEAN LIQUIDS, OR IF HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY ENTERED INTO DRAWN WATER,¹¹ OR IF THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER FELL

ON HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY,¹² AND HE THEN WENT DOWN TO IMMERSE HIMSELF AND HE IS IN DOUBT WHETHER HE IMMERSED HIMSELF OR NOT, OR EVEN IF HE DID IMMERSE HIMSELF THERE IS [STILL] A DOUBT WHETHER THE MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs OR NOT, OR IF THERE WERE TWO MIKWEHS, ONE CONTAINING FORTY SE'AHs AND NOT THE OTHER, AND HE IMMERSED HIMSELF IN ONE OF THEM BUT DOES NOT KNOW IN WHICH OF THEM HE IMMERSED HIMSELF, IN SUCH A DOUBT HE IS ACCOUNTED CLEAN. R. JOSE CONSIDERS HIM UNCLEAR, FOR R JOSE SAYS: ANYTHING WHICH IS PRESUMPTIVELY UNCLEAR ALWAYS REMAINS IN A CONDITION OF UNFITNESS UNTIL IT IS KNOWN THAT IT HAS BECOME CLEAR;¹³ BUT IF THERE IS A DOUBT WHETHER A PERSON BECAME UNCLEAR¹⁴ OR CAUSED UNCLEARNESS,¹⁵ IT IS TO BE ACCOUNTED CLEAR.

MISHNAH 3. IN THE CASE OF A DOUBT ABOUT DRAWN WATER WHICH THE SAGES HAVE DECLARED CLEAR,¹⁶ WHEN THERE IS A DOUBT WHETHER [THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER] FELL INTO THE MIKWEH OR NOT, OR IF, THOUGH THEY DID FALL IN, THERE IS A DOUBT WHETHER [THE MIKWEH] CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs OR NOT, OR IF THERE WERE TWO MIKWEHS OF WHICH ONE CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs AND THE OTHER DID NOT, AND DRAWN WATER FELL INTO ONE OF THEM AND IT IS NOT KNOWN INTO WHICH OF THEM IT FELL, IN SUCH A DOUBT IT IS ACCOUNTED CLEAR,¹⁷ BECAUSE THERE EXISTS [A POSSIBILITY]¹⁸ ON WHICH WE MAY DEPEND [IN DECLARING IT CLEAR]. IF THEY BOTH CONTAINED LESS THAN FORTY SE'AHs, AND [DRAWN WATER] FELL INTO ONE OF THEM AND IT IS NOT KNOWN INTO WHICH OF THEM IT FELL, IN SUCH A DOUBT IT IS ACCOUNTED UNCLEAR, BECAUSE THERE EXISTS NO [POSSIBILITY]¹⁹ ON WHICH WE MAY DEPEND [IN DECLARING IT CLEAR].

MISHNAH 4. R. ELIEZER SAYS: A QUARTER-LOG OF DRAWN WATER IN THE BEGINNING²⁰ MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID, AND THREE LOGS ON THE SURFACE OF THE WATER.²¹ BUT THE SAGES SAY: BOTH IN THE BEGINNING AND AT THE END, THE MEASURE [WHICH MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID] IS THREE LOGS.

MISHNAH 5. IF THERE WERE THREE CAVITIES²² IN A MIKWEH²³ EACH HOLDING A LOG OF DRAWN WATER, IF IT IS KNOWN THAT THERE FELL THEREIN FORTY SE'AHs OF VALID WATER BEFORE REACHING THE THIRD CAVITY, [SUCH A MIKWEH IS]²⁴ VALID; OTHERWISE IT IS INVALID. BUT R. SIMEON DECLARES IT VALID, SINCE IT RESEMBLES A MIKWEH ADJOINING ANOTHER MIKWEH.²⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF THE MUD²⁶ HAD BEEN MOVED TO THE SIDES AND THEN THREE LOGS [OF WATER] WERE DRAWN OUT FROM IT, [THE MIKWEH IS STILL] VALID. BUT IF THE MUD HAD BEEN REMOVED AWAY²⁷ AND THREE LOGS WERE DRAWN FROM IT [INTO THE MIKWEH]. IT BECOMES INVALID.²⁸ BUT R. SIMEON PRONOUNCES IT VALID, SINCE THERE WAS NO INTENTION TO DRAW [THE WATER].²⁹

MISHNAH 7. IF ONE HAD LEFT WINE-JARS ON THE ROOF TO DRY³⁰ AND THEY BECAME FILLED WITH WATER,³¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF IT WAS THE SEASON OF RAIN³² AND³³ THERE WAS [IN THE CISTERN] A LITTLE WATER, ONE MAY BREAK THE JARS,³⁴ OTHERWISE ONE MAY NOT BREAK THEM.³⁵ R. JOSHUA SAYS: IN EITHER CASE ONE MAY BREAK THEM OR TILT THEM OVER,³⁶ BUT ONE MAY NOT EMPTY³⁷ [THEM INTO THE CISTERN].

MISHNAH 8. IF A PLASTERER FORGOT HIS LIME-TUB IN A CISTERN AND IT BECAME FILLED WITH WATER, IF WATER FLOWED ABOVE IT HOWEVER LITTLE,³⁸ IT MAY BE BROKEN;³⁹ OTHERWISE IT MAY NOT BE BROKEN.⁴⁰ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R.

ELIEZER. BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: IN EITHER CASE IT MAY BE BROKEN.⁴¹

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE HAD ARRANGED WINE-JARS IN A CISTERN⁴² AND THEY BECAME FILLED WITH WATER, EVEN THOUGH THE WATER OF THE CISTERN WAS ALL SOAKED UP,⁴³ THEY MAY BE BROKEN.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 10. IF A MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs OF WATER AND MUD⁴⁵ [COMBINED]. R. ELIEZER SAYS: ONE MAY IMMERSE OBJECTS IN THE WATER BUT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE THEM IN THE MUD. BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: IN THE WATER AND ALSO IN THE MUD. IN WHAT KIND OF MUD MAY OBJECTS BE IMMERSED? MUD OVER WHICH WATER FLOATS.⁴⁶ IF THE WATER WAS ON THE ONE SIDE ONLY. R. JOSHUA ADMITS THAT OBJECTS MAY BE IMMERSED IN THE WATER BUT MAY NOT BE IMMERSED IN THE MUD.⁴⁷ OF WHAT KIND OF MUD HAVE THEY SPOKEN?⁴⁸ MUD INTO WHICH A REED WILL SINK OF ITSELF.⁴⁹ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: [MUD] IN WHICH⁵⁰ A MEASURING-ROD WILL NOT STAND UPRIGHT.⁵¹ ABBA ELEAZAR B. DULA'I SAYS: [MUD] INTO WHICH A PLUMMET WILL SINK. R. ELIEZER SAYS: SUCH AS WILL GO DOWN INTO THE MOUTH OF A JAR.⁵² R. SIMEON SAYS: SUCH AS WILL ENTER INTO THE TUBE OF A WATER- SKIN.⁵³ R. ELEAZAR B. ZADOK SAYS: SUCH AS CAN BE MEASURED IN A LOG MEASURE.⁵⁴

- (10) Of a secondary defilement of the first or second degree; cf. 'Ed. l.c.
- (11) Immediately after immersion in a mikweh.
- (12) All these acts cause secondary defilement in accordance with rabbinic law only, disqualifying the person from eating terumah; cf. Toh. IV, 11; Zabim V, 12; Shab. 13b.
- (13) R. Jose makes no distinction between a defilement according to Mosaic law and a defilement according to rabbinic law. In either case when the defilement is certain and the purification doubtful, the defilement continues. Only when the doubt is about a defilement according to rabbinic law may it be deemed clean.
- (14) By any of the named secondary defilements.
- (15) After the person had become unclean by a secondary defilement, there arose a doubt whether he had conveyed uncleanness to terumah things.
- (16) Cf. Toh. IV, 7.
- (17) In both cases the mikwehs are valid when their contents are brought up to 40 se'ahs.
- (18) Viz., that the three logs did not fall in at all, or that the mikweh did contain 40 se'ahs, or, finally, that the three logs fell into the mikweh containing 40 se'ahs.
- (19) Since one of the two mikwehs was certainly rendered invalid, and as we do not know which of the two, both must be considered invalid.
- (20) Before the mikweh became filled with rain water, a quarter-log of drawn water was put into it.
- (21) Poured in after the mikweh had been filled with rain water, but with less than 40 se'ahs.
- (22) One above the other in the wall of the mikweh.
- (23) Which was empty.
- (24) Because when the contents of the mikweh reached 40 se'ahs, the quantity of drawn water in it was still less than three logs.

(25) The cavities are to be considered as distinct and separate from the main mikweh, and as if they were themselves mikwehs. But the validity of a mikweh is not affected by its contiguity with an invalid mikweh.

(26) In a mikweh holding less than 40 se'ahs.

(27) Out of the mikweh.

(28) The water from the mud is considered drawn water.

(29) The intention was only to remove the mud but not the water contained therein; therefore the water is deemed as still belonging to the mikweh.

(30) But if the intention was that they should be filled with water, the water would become equivalent to drawn water.

(31) Rain water.

(32) When the mikweh under the roof might be expected to be filled with nearly 40 se'ahs of rain water.

(33) Var. lec. 'or'.

(34) So that their water may flow into the mikweh below and make up 40 se'ahs.

(35) If it is not the rainy season and the mikweh cannot be expected to be filled with rain water, it may not, according to R. Eliezer, be filled with water from a receptacle, even though the water flows freely without human touch from the receptacle into the mikweh. Again, if the cistern had no water at all, it may be feared that a quarter-log of water would run over from the jars into the empty mikweh before the jars are broken, and this would invalidate the mikweh in accordance with R. Eliezer's opinion in Mishnah 4.

(36) So as to let the water flow freely from the jars into the mikweh below.

(37) By hand, for this would render the water in the jars drawn water.

(38) Its contents are then part of the contents of the cistern.

(39) And its contents allowed to mingle with the contents of the cistern which serves as a mikweh. But the tub must not be lifted from the cistern and emptied into the cistern, for its contents would then become drawn water.

(40) The contents of the tub are equivalent to drawn water.

(41) And let its contents flow into the cistern, because the water in the tub is not deemed drawn water.

(42) Which held water, in order that the porous sides of the wine-jars might become saturated with water and not be able afterwards to soak in any wine.

(43) In the soil, and there is no water left save that which is in the jars.

(44) And their contents may be used for making a mikweh in the cistern, because they are not deemed drawn water since it was not his intention for the water to fill the jars.

(45) Thin mud; cf. infra VII, 1.

(46) For the cavity formed by the immersed object becomes filled with water.

(47) Although the mud serves to make up the 40 se'ahs.

(48) That it may combine with water to form the 40 se'ahs, and that objects may be immersed in it.

(49) Without being pressed down by the hand. Of the opinions that follow, each assumes a thicker mud than the preceding opinion.

(50) Lit., 'a place'.

(51) But must be held by the hand.

(52) And so cannot serve as a stopper to the jar.

(53) Even if it can stop the mouth of a jar.

(54) Like a liquid.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. R. JOSE SAYS: IF THERE ARE TWO MIKWEHS NEITHER OF WHICH CONTAINS FORTY SE'AHS, AND A LOG AND A HALF [OF DRAWN WATER] FELL INTO EACH, AND THEY ARE MINGLED TOGETHER, THEY REMAIN VALID, SINCE THEY HAD NEVER¹ BEEN EXPLICITLY ACCOUNTED AS INVALID; BUT IF THERE IS A MIKWEH HOLDING LESS THAN FORTY SE'AHS, AND THREE LOGS [OF DRAWN WATER] FELL INTO IT, AND IT WAS THEN DIVIDED INTO TWO,² IT IS INVALID, SINCE IT HAD ALREADY BEEN EXPLICITLY ACCOUNTED AS INVALID.³ R. JOSHUA DECLARES IT VALID; FOR R. JOSHUA USED TO SAY: ANY MIKWEH CONTAINING LESS THAN FORTY

MISHNAH 2. IN WHAT MANNER? IF THERE WAS A CISTERN⁷ IN A COURTYARD AND THREE LOGS [OF DRAWN WATER] FELL INTO IT, IT WILL ALWAYS REMAIN INVALID UNTIL THE WHOLE OF IT IS REMOVED AND A LITTLE MORE, OR UNTIL [ANOTHER MIKWEH CONTAINING] FORTY SE'AHs IS PLACED IN THE COURTYARD,⁸ SO THAT THE HIGHER⁹ MIKWEH IS RENDERED VALID BY THE LOWER.¹⁰ R. ELIEZER B. AZARIAH DECLARES IT INVALID UNLESS THE [NEW MIKWEH] IS STOPPED UP.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. IF THERE WAS A CISTERN FULL OF DRAWN WATER AND A CHANNEL¹² LED INTO IT AND OUT OF IT, IT CONTINUES INVALID UNTIL IT CAN BE RECKONED THAT THERE DOES NOT REMAIN IN IT THREE LOGS OF THE FORMER [WATER].¹³ IF TWO MEN POURED¹⁴ EACH A LOG AND A HALF [OF DRAWN WATER] INTO A MIKWEH, OR IF ONE WRUNG OUT HIS CLOTHES AND SO POURED IN [WATER] FROM SEVERAL PLACES,¹⁵ OR IF ONE EMPTIED OUT A WATER-COOLER¹⁶ AND SO POURED IN [WATER] FROM SEVERAL PLACES, R. AKIBA DECLARES IT VALID,¹⁷ BUT THE SAGES DECLARE IT INVALID. R. AKIBA SAID: THEY¹⁸ DID NOT SAY 'IF THEY POURED IN', BUT 'IF ONE¹⁹ POURED IN'. BUT THEY SAID: THEY SAID NEITHER THUS NOR THUS, BUT ONLY IF THERE FELL THEREIN THREE LOGS²⁰ [OF DRAWN WATER]'.²¹

MISHNAH 4. [IF THE THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER FELL IN] FROM ONE VESSEL OR FROM TWO OR FROM THREE, THEY COMBINE TOGETHER;²¹ BUT IF FROM FOUR, THEY DO NOT COMBINE TOGETHER.²² IF A MAN WHO HAD A SEMINAL ISSUE WAS SICK AND NINE KABS OF WATER²³ FELL ON HIM, OR IF THERE FELL ON THE HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF THE BODY OF A CLEAN PERSON THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER²⁴ FROM ONE VESSEL OR FROM TWO OR FROM THREE, THEY COMBINE TOGETHER; BUT IF FROM FOUR, THEY DO NOT COMBINE TOGETHER. IN WHAT CASE DOES THIS APPLY?²⁵ WHEN THE SECOND BEGAN BEFORE THE FIRST FINISHED. AND IN WHAT OTHER CASE DOES [THE OTHER STATEMENT]²⁶ APPLY? WHEN THERE WAS NO INTENTION TO INCREASE²⁷ IT. BUT IF THERE WAS AN INTENTION TO INCREASE IT, IF ONLY A KORTOB IN A WHOLE YEAR, THEY COMBINE TOGETHER TO ADD UP TO THE THREE LOGS.

(1) Before they became mingled, when the amount of drawn water which fell into each was less than three logs.

(2) And each had its contents increased to 40 se'ahs.

(3) Before it was divided into two.

(4) The smallest liquid measure, viz., one sixty-fourth of a two.

(5) The kortob which was withdrawn must have included also some portion of the drawn water.

(6) To make the mikweh valid a quantity of water must be withdrawn from it, which is equal to the quantity which the mikweh contained when the drawn water fell into it, and a little more to reduce the drawn water in the mikweh to less than three logs.

(7) Containing less than 40 se'ahs.

(8) One above the other and connected.

(9) Var. lec.: 'the lower'.

(10) Var. lec.: 'the higher'.

(11) פקד, so that one has to come first to the old mikweh. Var. lec.: פקד, until all its water is used up.

(12) Of rain water less than 40 se'ahs in quantity.

(13) That through the channel leading out of the cistern there flowed away the former contents of drawn water in the cistern, leaving of them less than three logs plus the quantity of fresh rain water which entered the cistern on the one side and flowed out on the other side. This together will be considerably more than the former contents of the cistern, required in the last Mishnah, because there the former contents of the cistern consisted of valid water which only became invalid by the addition of three logs of drawn water, whereas here all the former contents were invalid water.

(14) Simultaneously; cf. next Mishnah.

(15) To the quantity of three logs.

(16) Containing a sieve-like filter within its neck; cf. Kelim II, 8.

(17) He holds that the three logs of water which invalidate the mikveh must all come from one receptacle.

(18) The Sages who formulated the rule regarding drawn water in a mikveh.

(19) Which wording implies that all the three logs must come from one vessel.

(20) Which may imply also pouring in from more than one vessel. Cf. 'Ed. I, 3. The dispute between R. Akiba and the Sages turns on the exact wording of the traditional formula of the rule.

(21) In accordance with the opinion of the Sages, provided each vessel contains one log.

(22) Because one of them must contain less than one log.

(23) Which is sufficient purification for a person with such a defilement who, owing to sickness, is unable to undergo full immersion in a mikveh, provided the defilement was unintentional. If, however, the defilement was intentional, he needs complete immersion before he can occupy himself with the study of the Torah; cf. Ber. 22b, and infra VIII, 1, n. 3.

(24) Which confers a defilement of the second degree, disqualifying a person from eating terumah; cf. Zabim V. 6; Shab. 13b.

(25) That three logs of drawn water derived from two or three vessels combine to invalidate the mikveh.

(26) That the contents of more than three vessels are not reckoned together to invalidate the mikveh.

(27) To increase the quantity of water in the mikveh by the addition of the drawn water.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE PUT VESSELS UNDER A WATER-SPOUT,¹ WHETHER THEY BE LARGE VESSELS² OR SMALL VESSELS³ OR EVEN VESSELS OF DUNG, VESSELS OF STONE OR EARTHEN VESSELS,⁴ THEY MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID.⁵ IT IS ALL ALIKE WHETHER THEY WERE PUT THERE [PURPOSELY] OR WERE [MERELY] FORGOTTEN. THIS IS ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BUT BETH HILLEL DECLARE IT CLEAN IN THE CASE OF ONE WHO FORGETS.⁶ R. MEIR SAID: THEY VOTED AND BETH SHAMMAI HAD A MAJORITY OVER BETH HILLEL;⁷ YET THEY AGREE⁸ IN THE CASE OF ONE WHO FORGETS [AND LEAVES VESSELS] IN A COURTYARD⁹ THAT THE MIKWEH REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁰ R. JOSE SAID: THE CONTROVERSY STILL REMAINS AS IT WAS.

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE PUT A BOARD UNDER A WATER-SPOUT AND IT HAD A RIM¹¹ TO IT, IT MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID; OTHERWISE IT DOES NOT MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID. IF HE MADE IT STAND UPRIGHT TO BE RINSED, IN NEITHER CASE DOES IT MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE MAKES¹² A HOLLOW IN A WATER-SPOUT TO COLLECT THE GRAVEL,¹³ IT MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID¹⁴ IN THE CASE OF A WOODEN [SPOUT] IF IT HOLDS HOWEVER LITTLE, BUT IN THE CASE OF AN EARTHENWARE [SPOUT] IF IT WILL HOLD A QUARTER-LOG.¹⁵ R. JOSE SAYS: ALSO IN THE CASE OF AN EARTHENWARE [SPOUT] IF IT HOLDS HOWEVER LITTLE: THEY HAVE SPOKEN OF 'A QUARTER-LOG'¹⁶ ONLY IN THE CASE OF BROKEN SHERDS OF AN EARTHENWARE UTENSIL. IF THE PIECES OF GRAVEL MOVED ABOUT INSIDE [THE HOLLOW]. IT MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID.¹⁷ IF EARTH CAME DOWN INTO IT AND WAS PRESSED DOWN,¹⁸ [THE MIKWEH CONTINUES] VALID. IF THE SPOUT WAS NARROW AT EACH END AND WIDE IN THE MIDDLE, IT DOES NOT MAKE [THE MIKWEH] INVALID, BECAUSE IT¹⁹ HAD NOT BEEN FASHIONED FOR GATHERING [ANYTHING IN IT].²⁰

MISHNAH 4. IF DRAWN WATER AND RAIN WATER WERE MINGLED TOGETHER IN A COURTYARD OR IN A CAVITY OR ON THE STEPS OF A CAVE,²¹ IF THE GREATER PART WAS VALID,²² THE WHOLE IS VALID; AND IF THE GREATER PART WAS INVALID,²³ THE WHOLE IS INVALID. IF THEY WERE EQUAL IN QUANTITY. THE WHOLE IS INVALID. WHEN [DOES THIS APPLY]?²⁴ WHEN THEY WERE MINGLED TOGETHER BEFORE THEY ARRIVED AT THE MIKWEH. BUT IF THEY FLOWED [EACH ONE DIRECT] INTO THE WATER [OF THE Mikweh].²⁵ IF IT WAS KNOWN THAT THERE FELL IN FORTY SE'AHs OF VALID WATER BEFORE THERE CAME DOWN THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER, [THE MIKWEH IS] VALID; OTHERWISE IT IS INVALID.

MISHNAH 5. IN THE CASE OF A TROUGH²⁶ IN THE ROCK,²⁷ WATER MAY NOT BE GATHERED IN IT,²⁸ NOR MAY THE WATER OF PURIFICATION BE CONSECRATED²⁹ THEREIN, NOR MAY ONE SPRINKLE³⁰ THEREFROM; AND IT DOES NOT REQUIRE A TIGHTLY STOPPED-UP COVERING,³¹ AND IT DOES NOT MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID.³² IF IT WAS A [MOVABLE] VESSEL³³ AND HAD BEEN JOINED TO THE GROUND WITH LIME, WATER MAY BE GATHERED IN IT, AND THE WATER OF PURIFICATION MAY BE CONSECRATED THEREIN, AND ONE MAY SPRINKLE THEREFROM, AND IT REQUIRES A TIGHTLY STOPPED-UP COVERING, AND IT MAKES THE MIKWEH INVALID. IF A HOLE WAS MADE IN IT BELOW OR AT THE SIDE SO THAT IT COULD NOT CONTAIN WATER IN HOWEVER SMALL A QUANTITY,³⁴ IT IS VALID.³⁵ AND HOW GREAT SHOULD BE THE HOLE? LIKE THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN. R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAID: IT HAPPENED IN THE CASE OF THE TROUGH OF JEHU³⁶ IN JERUSALEM THAT THERE WAS A HOLE IN IT LIKE THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN, AND IT WAS USED FOR ALL THINGS IN JERUSALEM WHICH NEEDED A STATE OF PURITY. BUT BETH SHAMMAI SENT AND BROKE IT DOWN, FOR BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [IT REMAINS A VESSEL] UNLESS THE GREATER PART OF IT IS BROKEN DOWN.

- (1) Conveying rain water from the roof.
 - (2) Containing more than 40 se'ahs.
 - (3) Too small to become unclean; cf. Kelim II, 2.
 - (4) These are not susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (5) If their contents of three logs are emptied into a mikweh containing less than 40 se'ahs (so also below where this phrase occurs). For, unlike the case discussed in II, 7, these serve for the special purpose of receiving the water from the spout.
 - (6) Because there was no intention to collect water in them.
 - (7) And the controversy was settled in accordance with the opinion of Beth Shammai; cf. Shab. I, 4.
 - (8) Beth Shammai.
 - (9) Not under a water-spout.
 - (10) Since evidently there was no intention to collect the water.
 - (11) It is considered a receptacle, and the rain water passing from the roof along the board becomes drawn water.
 - (12) Before fixing the spout to the roof.
 - (13) Coming down in the rain water.
 - (14) The cavity becomes a receptacle for the water that passes through it into the mikweh. The spout itself is not deemed a receptacle, because it is open at both ends.
 - (15) If it holds less than a quarter-log, it is not considered a vessel; cf. Kelim II, 2.
 - (16) As the minimum capacity of a vessel.
 - (17) Though the gravel fills the cavity.
 - (18) Filling the cavity.
 - (19) The wide part in the middle.
 - (20) But only for facilitating the flow of the water.
 - (21) Containing a mikweh.
 - (22) The rain water exceeds in quantity the drawn water.

- (23) Consisting of drawn water.
- (24) That the mikweh is valid when rain water makes up the greater part of the mixture.
- (25) I.e., the drawn water flowed directly from the vessel into the mikweh.
- (26) Cf. Parah V, 7.
- (27) If filled with water from a fountain. Being naturally joined to the ground, it cannot be considered a vessel; cf. supra I, 1, n. 6.
- (28) For the Water of Purification, for which a vessel is required; cf. Num. XIX, 17.
- (29) By mixing in it the ashes of the Red Heifer.
- (30) If properly prepared Water of Purification is put on to it; ibid. XIX, 18.
- (31) Ibid. XIX, 15. It protects its contents against defilement from a corpse even if it has only an ordinary covering; cf. Ohol. V, 6.
- (32) If three logs of rain water flow from it into a mikweh containing less than 40 se'ahs.
- (33) The trough had been hollowed out in a movable stone.
- (34) It loses the character of a vessel and becomes like a channel.
- (35) The water which flows from it does not render the mikweh invalid.
- (36) The site of this trough is not known. The name Jehu occurs in Judah, I Chron. II, 38. etc. S. Klein conjectures that the trough belonged to a family which traced its descent from Jehu, King of Israel; cf. the Well of Ahab, Parah VIII, 11; v. צִיָּן, IV (Jerusalem, 1938), p. 40f.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. [WATER FROM] A FOUNTAIN WHICH IS MADE TO PASS OVER INTO A TROUGH¹ BECOMES INVALID;² IF IT WAS MADE TO PASS OVER THE EDGE IN ANY QUANTITY, [WHAT IS] OUTSIDE [THE TROUGH] IS VALID,³ FOR [THE WATER OF] A FOUNTAIN PURIFIES HOWEVER LITTLE ITS QUANTITY.⁴ IF IT IS MADE TO PASS OVER INTO A POOL AND THEN IS STOPPED, THE POOL COUNTS AS A MIKWEH;⁵ IF IT IS MADE TO FLOW AGAIN,⁶ IT IS STILL INVALID FOR PERSONS WITH A RUNNING ISSUE AND FOR LEPERS AND FOR THE PREPARATION OF THE WATER OF PURIFICATION⁷ UNTIL IT IS KNOWN THAT THE FORMER [WATER] IS GONE.

MISHNAH 2. IF IT WAS MADE TO PASS OVER THE OUTSIDE OF VESSELS OR OVER A BENCH, R. JUDAH SAYS: LO, IT REMAINS AS IT WAS BEFORE.⁸ R. JOSE SAYS: LO, IT IS LIKE A MIKWEH,⁹ EXCEPT THAT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE ANYTHING ABOVE THE BENCH.¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. IF [WATER FROM] A FOUNTAIN THAT FLOWS INTO MANY CHANNELS¹¹ WAS INCREASED¹² IN QUANTITY SO THAT IT WAS MADE TO FLOW IN ABUNDANCE, IT REMAINS AS IT WAS BEFORE.¹³ IF IT WAS A STANDING FOUNTAIN¹⁴ AND ITS QUANTITY WAS INCREASED¹⁵ SO THAT IT WAS MADE TO FLOW, IT BECOMES EQUAL TO A MIKWEH IN THAT IT CAN PURIFY IN STANDING WATER,¹⁶ AND TO A FOUNTAIN IN THAT ONE MAY IMMERSE [OBJECTS] THEREIN HOWEVER SMALL ITS QUANTITY.

MISHNAH 4. ALL SEAS¹⁷ ARE DEEMED VALID AS A MIKWEH,¹⁸ FOR IT IS WRITTEN, 'AND THE MIKWEH¹⁹ OF THE WATERS CALLED HE SEAS',²⁰ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE GREAT SEA²¹ ALONE IS A VALID MIKWEH, FOR THE REASON THAT SCRIPTURE SAYS 'SEAS' IS BECAUSE IN IT ARE MANY KINDS OF SEAS.²² R. JOSE SAYS: ALL SEAS PURIFY AS FLOWING WATERS,²³ BUT THEY ARE INVALID FOR PERSONS WITH A RUNNING ISSUE AND FOR LEPERS AND FOR THE PREPARATION OF THE WATER OF PURIFICATION.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. FLOWING WATER²⁵ IS AS WATER OF A FOUNTAIN AND DRIPPING WATER²⁶ IS AS A MIKWEH. R. ZADOK²⁷ TESTIFIED THAT IF FLOWING WATER

EXCEEDED DRIPPING WATER [WITH WHICH IT WAS MIXED] IT WAS VALID [AS FLOWING WATER].²⁸ IF DRIPPING WATER BECAME FLOWING WATER, ITS FLOW MAY BE BLOCKED²⁹ BY A STICK OR BY A REED OR EVEN BY A MAN OR A WOMAN WHO HAS A RUNNING ISSUE, AND THEN ONE MAY GO DOWN AND IMMERSE ONESELF THEREIN. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. JUDAH. R. JOSE SAYS: ONE MAY NOT STOP THE FLOW OF WATER³⁰ WITH ANYTHING WHICH IS LIABLE TO UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 6. IF A WAVE WAS SEPARATED [FROM THE SEA] AND COMPRISED FORTY SE'AHs, AND IT FELL ON A MAN OR ON VESSELS,³¹ THEY BECOME CLEAN. ANY PLACE CONTAINING FORTY SE'AHs IS VALID FOR IMMERSING ONESELF AND FOR IMMERSING OTHERS.³² ONE MAY IMMERSE IN TRENCHES³³ OR IN DITCHES³⁴ OR EVEN IN A DONKEY-TRACK³⁵ THE WATER OF WHICH IS JOINED³⁶ [WITH A VALID MIKWEH] IN A VALLEY. BETH SHAMMAI³⁷ SAY: ONE MAY IMMERSE IN A RAIN TORRENT.³⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE.³⁹ THEY⁴⁰ ADMIT, HOWEVER, THAT ONE MAY BLOCK ITS FLOW WITH VESSELS⁴¹ AND IMMERSE ONESELF THEREIN, BUT THE VESSELS WITH WHICH THE FLOW IS BLOCKED ARE NOT THEREBY [VALIDLY] IMMERSED.⁴²

(1) Which had been hollowed out in a movable stone and then fixed to the ground; cf. supra IV, 5.

(2) For immersion either in the trough itself or in the water that passes out of the trough, for since the trough is like a vessel, this water becomes drawn water.

(3) For immersion.

(4) Cf. supra I, 7.

(5) And requires 40 se'ahs of standing water; cf. supra I, 7.

(6) The flow from the fountain into the pool was restored. It then becomes valid for immersion even if its quantity is less than 40 se'ahs, but not for those who require for their purification 'living water'.

(7) Cf. supra I, 8, and notes 5-7.

(8) With the efficacy of a fountain.

(9) And requires 40 se'ahs of standing water.

(10) Or above the backs of the vessels, lest one may be led to immerse things in vessels.

(11) Lit., 'is drawn out like a centipede'.

(12) By pouring into it drawn water.

(13) It retains the characteristics of a fountain.

(14) I.e., a well or a lake.

(15) By the addition of drawn water.

(16) But not in its flowing water, since this is derived from drawn water.

(17) Parah VIII, 8.

(18) And require 40 se'ahs of standing water, and are invalid for those who need 'living water'.

(19) 'The gathering together'; cf. Introd.

(20) Gen. I. 10.

(21) The Mediterranean, and likewise the oceans, to the exclusion of inland seas and lakes.

(22) It gathers water from numerous sources.

(23) Like fountains.

(24) Because these require 'living water' and sea water being salty is 'smitten water', cf. supra I, 8.

(25) Streams and rivers.

(26) Rain water.

(27) Cf. 'Ed. VII, 3. (Sonc. ed.) p. 42, and notes.

(28) And is treated as a fountain.

(29) So as to make it standing water, as required in a mikweh.

(30) So most commentators explain the reading in the editions מוֹחִילִין, which being in the causative stem (hiph'il) should rather be rendered 'one may not cause to flow'. However, the Cambridge text (cf. Introd. n. 1). and MS.M. read מוֹחִלִּים, which may be interpreted as a privative pi'el, to prevent or stay the flow.

- (31) Who were unclean, immersing them accidentally.
- (32) Vessels and the hands before eating sacrificial meat; cf. I, 7, n. 7.
- (33) Square-shaped like caverns, but not roofed over; cf. I, 4, n. 2.
- (34) Narrow at the top and wide at the bottom; cf. B.K. 50b.
- (35) Or holes made by the feet of other animals.
- (36) Through a hole of the size prescribed infra VI, 1.
- (37) 'Ed. V, 2.
- (38) In the running water, though the whole stream contains no more than 40 se'ahs.
- (39) Except when the stream forms a pool of 40 se'ahs of standing water.
- (40) Beth Hillel.
- (41) So as to form standing water.
- (42) Because only one of their sides is immersed in standing water.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. ANY [GATHERING OF WATER]. WHICH IS JOINED WITH [THE WATER OF] A MIKWEH IS AS VALID AS THE MIKWEH¹ [ITSELF]. ONE MAY IMMERSE IN HOLES OF A CAVERN² AND IN CREVICES OF A CAVERN² JUST AS THEY ARE;³ BUT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE IN THE PIT⁴ OF A CAVERN EXCEPT IT HAD A HOLE AS BIG AS THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN. R. JUDAH SAID: WHEN [IS THIS THE CASE]? WHEN IT STANDS BY ITSELF;⁵ BUT IF IT DOES NOT STAND BY ITSELF, ONE MAY IMMERSE THEREIN JUST AS IT IS.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF A BUCKET WAS FULL OF UTENSILS AND THEY WERE⁷ IMMERSED, LO, THEY BECOME CLEAN; BUT IF [THE BUCKET] WAS NOT IMMERSED [FOR ITS OWN SAKE]⁸. THE WATER IN THE BUCKET IS NOT RECKONED AS JOINED⁹ [WITH THE WATER OF THE MIKWEH] UNLESS IT BE JOINED [BY MEANS OF THE NECK OF THE BUCKET WHICH IS AS BIG] AS THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN.

MISHNAH 3. IF THERE WERE THREE MIKWEHS, TWO OF WHICH HELD TWENTY SE'AHS [OF VALID WATER] AND THE THIRD HELD TWENTY SE'AHS OF DRAWN WATER, AND THAT HOLDING DRAWN WATER WAS AT THE SIDE. IF THREE PERSONS WENT DOWN¹⁰ AND IMMERSED THEMSELVES THEREIN AND [THE WATER OF THE THREE MIKWEHS] JOINED,¹¹ THE MIKWEHS ARE CLEAN¹² AND THEY THAT IMMERSED THEMSELVES BECOME CLEAN. IF THE ONE HOLDING THE DRAWN WATER WAS IN THE MIDDLE¹³ AND THREE PERSONS WENT DOWN AND IMMERSED THEMSELVES THEREIN AND [THE WATER OF THE THREE MIKWEHS] JOINED, THE MIKWEHS CONTINUE AS THEY WERE BEFORE¹⁴ AND THEY THAT IMMERSED THEMSELVES ARE AS THEY WERE BEFORE.¹⁵

MISHNAH 5. ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE IN A COFFER OR IN A BOX¹⁹ WHICH IS IN THE SEA EXCEPT IT HAS A HOLE²⁰ AS LARGE AS THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN. R. JUDAH SAYS: IN THE CASE OF A LARGE VESSEL²¹ [THE HOLE SHOULD BE] FOUR HANDBREADTHS, AND IN A SMALL ONE [THE HOLE SHOULD BE AS LARGE AS] THE GREATER PART OF IT. IF THERE IS IN THE SEA A SACK OR A BASKET, ONE MAY IMMERSE THEREIN AS IT IS. SINCE THE WATER [IN THE SEA AND IN THE SACK OR BASKET] IS JOINED TOGETHER.²² IF THEY ARE PLACED UNDER A WATER-SPOUT, THEY DO NOT MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID,²³ AND THEY MAY BE IMMERSED AND

BROUGHT OUT IN THE ORDINARY WAY.²⁴

MISHNAH 6. IF THERE WAS A DEFECTIVE [EARTHENWARE] VESSEL IN THE MIKWEH AND UTENSILS WERE IMMersed THEREIN, THEY BECOME CLEAN FROM THEIR [FORMER] UNCLEANNESS²⁵ BUT ARE AGAIN RENDERED UNCLEAN BECAUSE OF THE EARTHENWARE VESSEL;²⁶ BUT IF WATER FLOWED ABOVE IT IN ANY QUANTITY. THEY WILL REMAIN CLEAN.²⁷ IF [WATER OF] A FOUNTAIN ISSUED FROM AN OVEN²⁸ AND A MAN WENT DOWN AND IMMersed HIMSELF, HE IS CLEAN²⁹ BUT HIS HANDS BECOME UNCLEAN;³⁰ BUT IF [THE WATER WAS AS] HIGH ABOVE THE OVEN AS THE HEIGHT OF HIS HANDS,³¹ HIS HANDS ALSO ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. MIKWEHS CAN BE JOINED TOGETHER [AS ONE IF THEIR CONNECTION IS AS BIG] AS THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN IN THICKNESS AND IN CAPACITY, IN WHICH TWO FINGERS³² CAN BE TURNED ROUND IN FULL. IF THERE IS A DOUBT [WHETHER IT IS AS BIG] AS THE TUBE OF A WATER SKIN OR NOT, IT IS INVALID, BECAUSE [THE RULE CONCERNING IMMERSION] IS A COMMAND OF THE TORAH.³³ THE SAME APPLIES ALSO TO THE OLIVE'S BULK OF A CORPSE AND THE OLIVE'S BULK OF CARRION AND THE LENTIL'S BULK OF A CREEPING THING.³⁴ ANYTHING WHICH REMAINS³⁵ IN [THE SPACE MEASURING] THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN LESSENS [ITS MEASURE].³⁶ RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: IF IT IS ANY WATER CREATURE³⁷ WHATSOEVER, [THE MIKWEHS] REMAIN CLEAN.

MISHNAH 8. MIKWEHS MAY BE MADE CLEAN [BY JOINING DRAWN WATER FROM] A HIGHER [MIKWEH TO VALID WATER] FROM A LOWER [MIKWEH OR DRAWN WATER FROM] A DISTANT [MIKWEH TO VALID WATER] IN A [MIKWEH] NEAR AT HAND. IN WHAT MANNER? ONE BRINGS A TUBE OF EARTHENWARE OR OF LEAD³⁸ AND PUTS HIS HAND BENEATH IT³⁹ TILL IT IS FILLED WITH WATER; THEN HE DRAWS IT ALONG TILL [THE TWO WATERS] TOUCH — EVEN IF IT BE BY A HAIR'S BREADTH IT IS SUFFICIENT. IF IN THE HIGHER [MIKWEH] THERE WERE FORTY SE'AHs AND NOTHING IN THE LOWER, ONE MAY DRAW WATER AND CARRY IT ON THE SHOULDER³⁷ AND PLACE IT IN THE HIGHER [MIKWEH] TILL FORTY SE'AHs HAVE FLOWED DOWN INTO THE LOWER [MIKWEH].⁴⁰

MISHNAH 9. IF A WALL BETWEEN TWO MIKWEHS⁴¹ HAD A PERPENDICULAR CRACK, [THEIR WATERS] MAY BE RECKONED TOGETHER [TO MAKE UP THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]; [IF IT WAS CRACKED] LENGTHWISE, THEY CANNOT BE RECKONED TOGETHER, UNLESS THERE IS AT ONE PLACE [A HOLE AS BIG] AS THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE RULE IS JUST THE REVERSE. IF THERE IS A BREACH⁴² [ON THE TOP OF THE WALL] FROM ONE [MIKWEH] TO THE OTHER, [THEY CAN BE RECKONED TOGETHER] IF THE HEIGHT IS AS [THE THICKNESS OF] THE SKIN OF GARLIC AND THE BREADTH LIKE THE TUBE OF A WATER-SKIN.

MISHNAH 10. THE OUTLET⁴³ OF A BATH, IF IT IS IN THE CENTRE, RENDERS [THE BATH] INVALID⁴⁴ [AS A MIKWEH]; BUT IF IT IS AT THE SIDE, IT DOES NOT RENDER IT INVALID, BECAUSE THEN IT IS LIKE ONE MIKWEH ADJOINING ANOTHER MIKWEH. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IF THE BATH- BASIN CAN CONTAIN A QUARTER-LOG BEFORE [THE WATER] REACHES THE OUTLET,⁴⁵ IT IS VALID; BUT IF NOT, IT IS NOT VALID.⁴⁶ R. ELEAZAR B. ZADOK SAYS: IF THE OUTLET CAN CONTAIN [WATER]. IT IS INVALID IN ANY POSITION WHATEVER.

MISHNAH 11. IF IN THE BATH'S 'PURIFIER'⁴⁷ THE BOTTOM [PIPE] WAS FULL OF DRAWN [WATER] AND THE TOP [PIPE] FULL OF VALID⁴⁸ [WATER]. IF [THE SPACE] IN

FRONT OF THE HOLE CAN CONTAIN THREE LOGS IT IS INVALID⁴⁹ [AS A MIKWEH]. HOW LARGE NEED THE HOLE BE TO CONTAIN THREE LOGS? A THREE-HUNDRED-AND-TWENTIETH PART⁵⁰ OF THE POOL. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. JOSE. BUT R. ELEAZAR SAYS: EVEN THOUGH THE BOTTOM [PIPE] WERE FULL OF VALID [WATER] AND THE TOP [PIPE] FULL OF DRAWN [WATER] AND BY THE HOLE'S SIDE WERE THREE LOGS, [THE BATH IS] VALID, FOR THEY HAVE ONLY SAID: 'IF THREE LOGS FELL IN'.⁵¹

- (1) It becomes part of the mikweh. One may immerse in it though it contains less than 40 se'ahs, and it may serve to make up 40 se'ahs in the mikweh itself.
 - (2) Forming a mikweh.
 - (3) Their water need not be joined by a hole to the water in the cavern.
 - (4) As explained by R. Judah in the following.
 - (5) It forms an independent pool separated by a wall from the pool in the cavern.
 - (6) It is part of the pool in the cavern, and need not have 40 se'ahs, nor be connected with the pool by a hole.
 - (7) Var. lec.: 'it was'. The bucket as well as the utensils needed immersion.
 - (8) Lit., 'if one did not immerse', i.e., the bucket itself was clean, and needed no immersion; cf. Hag. 22a.
 - (9) For the purpose of purifying the utensils. The text is very doubtful. Hag. l.c. and some commentators omit 'not'.
 - (10) Simultaneously.
 - (11) By overflowing through the immersion of the three persons.
 - (12) All the three mikwehs become valid. They are now considered as one mikweh containing 40 se'ahs of valid water to which were added 20 se'ahs of drawn water.
 - (13) Thus preventing the junction of the two with the valid water.
 - (14) They remain three separate mikwehs, two with valid water but of insufficient quantity, and one with invalid water.
 - (15) Unclean.
 - (16) Containing less than 40 se'ahs.
 - (17) Cf. supra III, 3, n. 13.
 - (18) Whereas here some portion of the three logs remained in the pores of the sponge or in the folds of the bucket.
 - (19) Even though they contain 40 se'ahs.
 - (20) Which joins their water to the water in the sea.
 - (21) Some nine handbreadths in height.
 - (22) Through their holes.
 - (23) The rain water from the spout flowing through them into the mikweh is not deemed drawn water as in supra IV, I, n. 5.
 - (24) And not bottom upwards as prescribed for a bolster or a cushion of leather, v. infra VII, 6.
 - (25) Because the water in the defective or broken earthenware vessel is considered as joined to the water in the mikweh through the breakage in the vessel.
 - (26) If it is unclean. For an earthenware vessel is not rendered clean by immersion in a mikweh (Lev. XI, 33), and though the water in it, as part of the mikweh, is clean, yet uncleanness remains in the air-space of the vessel above the water. Hence when utensils are immersed in such an earthenware vessel, the water which adheres to them renders them unclean as they are raised into the airspace of the earthenware vessel.
 - (27) Because the air-space of the unclean earthenware vessel is all covered by the clean water.
 - (28) Of earthenware, fixed to the ground and open at the top, and large enough to hold a man. The oven is unclean.
 - (29) Because a man's body is not rendered unclean by the air-space of an unclean vessel.
 - (30) Hands do become unclean by the air-space; cf. Yad, III, 1.
 - (31) The surface of the water covered his hands.
 - (32) Those near the thumb.
 - (33) And in the case of a doubt respecting the fulfillment of a Mosaic law we must abide by the more stringent alternative.
 - (34) These are the minimum quantities which cause defilement, and if there is a doubt whether they were of the required quantity or not, we must assume that they were, and that they did cause defilement.
 - (35) And not carried off by the water flowing through the opening which joins the two mikwehs.

- (36) And the two mikwehs remain separate.
- (37) It is considered part of the water.
- (38) Or of any other metal.
- (39) To shut the lower end of the tube.
- (40) I.e., fill the lower mikweh with drawn water through the higher one. For since the two mikwehs are reckoned as one, and the upper one has 40 se'ahs of valid water, no amount of drawn water can render either of them invalid.
- (41) One of which had less than 40 se'ahs.
- (42) Which forms a connecting channel between the two mikwehs.
- (43) In the shape of a receptacle, having a hole for the discharge of foul water with a stopper.
- (44) Because the outlet is then regarded as a receptacle and water which is made to flow over vessels is thus invalid.
- (45) The outlet is higher than the bottom of the bath-basin, so that water gathers in the bath-basin before any water reaches the outlet.
- (46) Even if the outlet is at the side.
- (47) An arrangement for a cold-water douche after a hot bath, consisting of two pipes one above the other with a hole in the upper pipe communicating with the lower one.
- (48) Less than 40 se'ahs.
- (49) The three logs of drawn water at the hole in the lower pipe render the water in the upper pipe invalid. It goes without saying that such would be the case also if the upper pipe contained drawn water and the lower pipe contained valid water.
- (50) This is the proportion of three logs to 40 se'ahs, since a se'ah consists of 24 logs; cf. Introd., n. 2.
- (51) But here the drawn water does not fall into the valid water, but both, the valid water of one pipe and the drawn water of the other pipe, are mixed together in the mikweh; and since the valid water is more in quantity than the drawn water, the mikweh is valid as in the case discussed above, IV, 4.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. SOME MATERIALS MAKE UP THE MIKWEH [TO THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]¹ AND DO NOT MAKE IT INVALID;² SOME MAKE IT INVALID AND DO NOT MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY] AND SOME NEITHER MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY] NOR MAKE IT INVALID. THESE MAKE UP THE REQUIRED QUANTITY AND DO NOT MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID: SNOW, HAIL, HOARFROST, ICE, SALT, AND THIN³ MUD. R. AKIBA SAID: R. ISHMAEL ONCE ARGUED AGAINST ME SAYING; SNOW DOES NOT MAKE UP THE MIKWEH [TO ITS REQUIRED QUANTITY]. BUT THE MEN OF MADEBA⁴ TESTIFIED IN HIS NAME THAT HE HAD ONCE TOLD THEM: GO AND BRING SNOW AND WITH IT FROM THE FIRST⁵ PREPARE A MIKWEH. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: HAILSTONES ARE LIKE DRAWN WATER. IN WHAT MANNER DO THEY MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY] AND DO NOT RENDER IT INVALID? IF THE MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHS LESS ONE, AND A SE'AH⁶ OF THEM⁷ FELL IN AND MADE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY], THEY THUS MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY] BUT DO NOT RENDER IT INVALID.

MISHNAH 2. THESE RENDER THE MIKWEH INVALID AND DO NOT MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]: DRAWN WATER, WHETHER CLEAN OR UNCLEAR, WATER THAT HAS BEEN USED FOR PICKLING OR FOR SEETHING, AND GRAPE-SKIN⁸ WINE STILL UNFERMENTED.⁹ IN WHAT MANNER DO THEY MAKE THE MIKWEH INVALID AND DO NOT MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]? IF A MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHS LESS A KORTOB,¹⁰ AND A KORTOB OF THESE FELL INTO IT, IT DOES NOT MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]; AND IF THERE WERE THREE LOGS OF ANY OF THESE, THEY WOULD RENDER THE MIKWEH INVALID. BUT THE OTHER LIQUIDS,¹¹ AND THE JUICE OF FRUITS, BRINE, AND LIQUID IN WHICH FISH HAS BEEN PICKLED, AND GRAPE-SKIN WINE THAT HAS FERMENTED AT TIMES MAKE UP [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY] AND AT TIMES DO NOT MAKE IT UP.¹² HOW IS THIS? IF A

MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs LESS ONE, AND A SE'AH OF ANY OF THESE FELL IN IT, THIS DOES NOT MAKE UP¹³ [THE REQUIRED QUANTITY]. BUT IF THE MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs AND A SE'AH OF ANY OF THESE WAS PUT IN AND ONE SE'AH WAS REMOVED, LO, THE MIKWEH IS STILL VALID.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. IF BASKETS OF OLIVES OR BASKETS OF GRAPES WERE WASHED IN THE MIKWEH AND THEY CHANGED ITS COLOUR, IT CONTINUES VALID. R. JOSE SAYS: DYE-WATER RENDERS IT INVALID BY A QUANTITY OF THREE LOGS,¹⁵ BUT NOT THROUGH CHANGING ITS COLOUR.¹⁶ IF WINE OR THE SAP OF OLIVES FELL INTO IT AND CHANGED ITS COLOUR, IT BECOMES INVALID.¹⁷ WHAT SHOULD ONE DO [TO MAKE IT VALID AGAIN]?¹⁸ ONE SHOULD WAIT WITH IT TILL THE RAIN FALLS AND THE COLOUR REVERTS TO THE COLOUR OF WATER. IF IT CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs,¹⁹ WATER MAY BE DRAWN AND CARRIED ON THE SHOULDER AND PUT THEREIN UNTIL THE COLOUR REVERTS TO THAT OF WATER.

MISHNAH 4. IF WINE OR THE SAP OF OLIVES FELL INTO THE MIKWEH²⁰ AND CHANGED THE COLOUR OF A PORTION OF THE WATER,²¹ ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE ONESELF THEREIN IF IT HAS NOT FORTY SE'AHs WITH THE COLOUR OF WATER.

MISHNAH 5. IF A KORTOB OF WINE FELL INTO THREE LOGS OF WATER AND ITS COLOUR BECAME LIKE THAT OF WINE, AND THE WATER THEN FELL INTO A MIKWEH,²² IT DOES NOT RENDER IT INVALID.²³ IF THERE WERE THREE LOGS OF WATER LESS A KORTOB INTO WHICH A KORTOB OF MILK FELL, AND THEIR COLOUR REMAINED LIKE THE COLOUR OF WATER, AND THEN THEY FELL INTO A MIKWEH, THEY DO NOT RENDER IT INVALID.²⁴ R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: ALL GOES BY THE COLOUR.²⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF A MIKWEH CONTAINED FORTY SE'AHs EXACTLY AND TWO PERSONS WENT DOWN AND IMMERSED THEMSELVES ONE AFTER THE OTHER, THE FIRST BECOMES CLEAN BUT THE SECOND REMAINS UNCLEAR.²⁶ R. JUDAH SAYS: IF THE FEET OF THE FIRST WERE STILL TOUCHING THE WATER,²⁷ THE SECOND ALSO BECOMES CLEAN. IF ONE IMMERSED A THICK CLOAK²⁸ AND WHEN HE DREW IT OUT A PART WAS STILL IN CONTACT WITH THE WATER [AND THEN ANOTHER PERSON IMMERSED HIMSELF IN THE MIKWEH], HE BECOMES CLEAN.²⁹ IF A BOLSTER OR A CUSHION OF LEATHER WAS IMMERSED, AS SOON AS IT IS TAKEN OUT OF THE WATER BY ITS OPEN ENDS THE WATER WHICH STILL REMAINS IN IT IS DRAWN WATER.³⁰ HOW SHOULD ONE DO IT? ONE SHOULD IMMERSE THEM AND DRAW THEM UP BY THEIR LOWER EDGES.³¹

MISHNAH 7. IF A BED WAS IMMERSED THEREIN,³² ALTHOUGH ITS FEET SINK INTO THE THICK MUD, IT STILL BECOMES CLEAN BECAUSE THE WATER TOUCHED THEM BEFORE [THE MUD].³³ IF THE WATER OF A MIKWEH³⁴ IS TOO SHALLOW,³⁵ ONE MAY PRESS DOWN EVEN BUNDLES OF STICKS, EVEN BUNDLES OF REEDS, SO THAT THE LEVEL OF THE WATER MAY RISE,³⁶ AND THEN GO DOWN AND IMMERSE ONESELF. IF AN [UNCLEAN] NEEDLE IS PLACED ON THE STEP³⁷ [LEADING DOWN TO A MIKWEH] IN A CAVERN, AND THE WATER IS PUT IN MOTION, ONCE A WAVE HAS PASSED OVER IT, [THE NEEDLE] BECOMES CLEAN.

(1) If they enter a mikweh containing less than 40 se'ahs.

(2) If three logs of them fall into a mikweh of less than 40 se'ahs.

(3) Lit., 'like spittle'.

(4) East of the Jordan, cf. Num. XXI, 30.

- (5) To make a new mikweh.
- (6) A quantity which when melted was equal to a se'ah.
- (7) Of the materials in the above list.
- (8) 'Tamed', an inferior wine made by steeping in water husks and stones of pressed grapes; cf. Ma'as. Sh. I, 3.
- (9) It is still considered water.
- (10) V. supra III, 1, n. 4.
- (11) The seven liquids enumerated in Maksh. VI, 4, including wine, oil, milk, etc.
- (12) Neither do these liquids render the mikweh invalid if they fall into it and do not change the colour of the water. These liquids thus form the third class of materials which neither make up the required quantity of the mikweh, nor render it invalid.
- (13) But neither does it render the water in the mikweh invalid.
- (14) Although the greater portion of the se'ah removed must have consisted of the valid water, so that now the mikweh must contain less than 40 se'ahs of its original water.
- (15) Like ordinary drawn water.
- (16) Because the dye is an artificial addition to the water.
- (17) Because the colour of wine or olives is natural to them and inseparable from them. A mikweh so coloured would appear to be not a mikweh of water, as prescribed by the Torah, but a mikweh filled with wine or with the sap of olives.
- (18) In the case of a mikweh containing less than 40 se'ahs which may not be increased by drawn water.
- (19) Which does not become invalid by the addition of any quantity of drawn water.
- (20) Holding less than 40 se'ahs.
- (21) At one side of the mikweh. That portion can no longer be reckoned as part of the mikweh.
- (22) Holding less than 40 se'ahs, and the colour of which was not changed.
- (23) Because the three logs are no longer considered as water.
- (24) Because milk cannot make up the required quantity of the three log of water.
- (25) And if the milk did not change the colour of the water, it combines with the water to make up three logs, and so renders the mikweh invalid.
- (26) Because some water must have adhered to the body of the first person, thus reducing the quantity of the mikweh to less than 40 se'ahs.
- (27) When the second person immersed himself, the whole of the body of the first person may thus be considered as if still in the water.
- (28) In a mikweh containing 40 se'ahs exactly.
- (29) The water absorbed by the cloak is considered as if still in the mikweh.
- (30) They form a receptacle, and if immersed in a mikweh of 40 se'ahs exactly, the water running down from them into the mikweh, if three logs in quantity, will render the mikweh invalid.
- (31) So that no water will be held inside them.
- (32) In a mikweh containing 40 se'ahs exactly.
- (33) Or, according to some commentators, because the water fills the holes in the mud before the feet of the bed sink in them.
- (34) Containing more than 40 se'ahs.
- (35) For the body to be completely covered by it.
- (36) Lit., 'swell up'.
- (37) The owner will not immerse the needle in the cavern for fear of its being lost.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. THE LAND OF ISRAEL IS CLEAN¹ AND ITS MIKWEHS ARE CLEAN.² THE MIKWEHS OF THE NATIONS OUTSIDE THE LAND ARE VALID FOR THOSE WHO HAD A SEMINAL ISSUE³ EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE FILLED WITH A SWIPE-BEAM;⁴ THOSE IN THE LAND OF ISRAEL WHEN OUTSIDE THE ENTRANCE [TO THE CITY]⁵ ARE VALID ALSO FOR MENSTRUANTS,⁶ AND THOSE WITHIN THE ENTRANCE [TO THE CITY] ARE VALID FOR THOSE WHO HAD A SEMINAL ISSUE BUT INVALID FOR ALL [OTHERS] WHO ARE UNCLEAN.⁷ R. ELIEZER SAYS: THOSE WHICH ARE NEAR TO A CITY OR TO A ROAD ARE UNCLEAR BECAUSE OF THE WASHING [OF CLOTHES⁸ THEREIN]; BUT THOSE AT A DISTANCE ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. THESE ARE THE PERSONS THAT HAD A SEMINAL ISSUE WHO REQUIRE IMMERSION: IF HE NOTICED THAT HIS URINE ISSUED IN DROPS OR WAS MUDDY, AT THE BEGINNING⁹ HE IS CLEAN;¹⁰ IN THE MIDDLE AND AT THE END, HE IS UNCLEAR;¹¹ FROM THE BEGINNING TO THE END, HE IS CLEAN.¹⁰ IF IT WAS WHITE AND VISCOUS, HE IS UNCLEAR.¹² R. JOSE SAYS: WHAT IS WHITE COUNTS LIKE WHAT IS MUDDY.¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF HE EMITTED THICK DROPS FROM THE MEMBER, HE IS UNCLEAR.¹² THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. ELEAZAR HISMA. IF ONE HAD IMPURE DREAMS IN THE NIGHT AND AROSE AND FOUND HIS FLESH¹⁴ HEATED, HE IS UNCLEAR.¹⁵ IF A WOMAN¹⁶ DISCHARGED SEMEN ON THE THIRD DAY,¹⁷ SHE IS CLEAN.¹⁸ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH. R. ISHMAEL SAYS: SOMETIMES THERE ARE FOUR 'ONAHs,¹⁹ AND SOMETIMES FIVE, AND SOMETIMES SIX. R. AKIBA SAYS: THERE ARE ALWAYS FIVE.

MISHNAH 4. IF A GENTILE WOMAN DISCHARGED SEMEN FROM AN ISRAELITE, IT IS UNCLEAR. IF AN ISRAELITE WOMAN DISCHARGED SEMEN FROM A GENTILE, IT IS CLEAN. IF A WOMAN HAD INTERCOURSE AND THEN WENT DOWN AND IMMERSSED HERSELF BUT DID NOT²⁰ SWEEP OUT THE HOUSE,²¹ IT IS AS THOUGH SHE HAD NOT IMMERSSED HERSELF.²² IF A MAN WHO HAD A SEMINAL ISSUE IMMERSSED HIMSELF BUT DID NOT FIRST PASS URINE, HE AGAIN BECOMES UNCLEAR WHEN HE PASSES URINE.²³ R. JOSE SAYS: IF HE WAS SICK OR OLD HE IS UNCLEAR, BUT IF HE WAS YOUNG AND HEALTHY HE REMAINS CLEAN.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF A MENSTRUANT PLACED COINS IN HER MOUTH AND WENT DOWN AND IMMERSSED HERSELF, SHE BECOMES CLEAN FROM HER [FORMER] UNCLEANNESS,²⁵ BUT SHE BECOMES UNCLEAR ON ACCOUNT OF HER SPITTLE.²⁶ IF SHE PUT HER HAIR IN HER MOUTH²⁷ OR CLOSED HER HAND²⁷ OR PRESSED HER LIPS TIGHTLY,²⁷ IT IS AS THOUGH SHE HAD NOT IMMERSSED HERSELF.²⁸ IF A PERSON HELD ON TO ANOTHER MAN OR TO VESSELS AND IMMERSSED THEM, THEY REMAIN UNCLEAR;²⁹ BUT IF HE HAD WASHED HIS HAND BEFORE IN THE WATER, THEY BECOME CLEAN.³⁰ R. SIMEON SAYS: HE SHOULD HOLD THEM LOOSELY THAT WATER MAY ENTER INTO THEM. THE SECRET³¹ AND WRINKLED PARTS OF THE BODY DO NOT NEED THAT WATER SHOULD ENTER INTO THEM.³²

(1) Even localities occupied by non-Jews.

(2) They are not suspected of having become invalid by drawn water.

(3) To purify them for the study of the Torah; cf. supra III, 4, n. 3. Such a defilement can be removed by immersion even in a mikweh with drawn water.

(4) Carrying drawn water.

(5) Where few people come, and one need not suspect the presence of drawn water in a mikweh.

(6) Even for such a severe defilement as that of menstruation; cf. Lev. XX, 18.

(7) Because such mikwehs are used for ordinary bathing and for washing clothes, and may be suspected of having been filled with drawn water.

(8) Even though they are filled with rain water, they may yet be suspected of having received three logs of water wrung out of the clothes washed in them and thus rendered drawn before they had 40 se'ahs of rain water.

(9) Of his urination.

(10) It is not semen.

(11) It is semen.

(12) V. p. 452, n. 11.

- (13) And it differs according as it is discharged at the beginning or in the middle and at the end.
- (14) A euphemism for the male member; cf. Lev. XV, 2, etc.
- (15) Even though he did not perceive a discharge.
- (16) Cf. Shab. IX, 3.
- (17) After intercourse. The number of days is derived from Ex. XIX, 15.
- (18) After such a time the semen loses its efficacy.
- (19) During which the discharge remains unclean. An 'onah (lit.. 'period') is a day or a night, half an astronomical day. R. Ishmael holds that two full astronomical days (viz., a complete night and the day following it) must elapse to render the discharge clean. Thus if intercourse took place at the end of the first day and the discharge at the beginning of the fourth day, two complete days or four 'onahs intervening, it is clean. But if intercourse took place in the morning of the first day, the discharge will still not be clean till the beginning of the fourth day, a lapse of five 'onahs. Likewise, if intercourse took place in the evening (preceding) the first day, the discharge is not clean till the beginning of the fourth day, a lapse of six 'onahs.
- (20) Previous to immersion.
- (21) A euphemism; did not clean her private parts from any trace of semen.
- (22) Because she may have a discharge after her immersion.
- (23) The urine may carry a discharge of semen.
- (24) The original discharge must have been complete, leaving nothing behind for an additional discharge in the urine.
- (25) For fresh intercourse.
- (26) Before the immersion some spittle may have come on the coin in her mouth. This spittle does not become clean by the immersion like the rest of the spittle in her mouth, and conveys uncleanness to the woman.
- (27) Preventing their contact with the water.
- (28) Because the immersion was not complete.
- (29) The water in the mikveh did not cover the place held by the hand.
- (30) The water adhering still to his hand combines with the water of the mikveh to serve as immersion for the place held by the hand.
- (31) The inside of the mouth, ears, and nose.
- (32) But they must be left free for contact with the water.

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING INTERPOSE¹ IN THE CASE OF A PERSON: THREADS OF WOOL AND THREADS OF FLAX AND THE RIBBONS ON THE HEADS OF GIRLS.² R. JUDAH SAYS: THOSE OF WOOL OR OF HAIR DO NOT INTERPOSE, BECAUSE WATER ENTERS THROUGH THEM.

MISHNAH 2. THE MATTED HAIR ON THE HEART AND ON THE BEARD AND ON A WOMAN'S³ SECRET PARTS; PUS OUTSIDE THE EYE, HARDENED PUS OUTSIDE A WOUND AND THE PLASTER OVER IT, DRIED-UP JUICE, CLOTS OF EXCREMENT ON THE BODY, DOUGH UNDER THE FINGER NAIL, SWEAT-CRUMBS, MIRY CLAY, POTTER'S CLAY, AND ROAD-CLAY. WHAT IS MEANT BY 'MIRY CLAY'? THIS MEANS THE CLAY IN PITS, FOR IT IS WRITTEN: 'HE BROUGHT ME UP OUT OF A HORRIBLE PIT, OUT OF THE MIRY CLAY'.⁴ 'POTTER'S CLAY' IS ACCORDING TO ITS LITERAL SENSE. R. JOSE DECLARES POTTER'S CLAY CLEAN,⁵ BUT CLAY FOR PUTTY UNCLEAN. 'ROAD-CLAY'⁶ IS CLAY WHICH BECOMES LIKE ROAD-SIDE PEGS.⁷ IN THESE [KINDS OF CLAY]⁸ ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE ONESELF NOR IMMERSE WITH THEM;⁹ BUT IN ALL OTHER CLAY ONE MAY IMMERSE WHEN IT IS WET. ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE ONESELF WITH DUST [STILL] ON ONE'S FEET.¹⁰ ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE A KETTLE WITH SOOT [ON IT] EXCEPT IT HAS BEEN SCRAPED.

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING DO NOT INTERPOSE: THE MATTED HAIR OF THE HEAD AND OF THE ARMPITS AND OF A MAN'S SECRET PARTS. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT IS

THE SAME WITH A MAN OR A WOMAN: IF IT IS SOMETHING WHICH ONE FINDS ANNOYING, IT INTERPOSES; BUT IF IT IS SOMETHING WHICH ONE DOES NOT FIND ANNOYING, IT DOES NOT INTERPOSE.

MISHNAH 4. PUS WITHIN THE EYE, HARDENED PUS WITHIN A WOUND, JUICE THAT IS MOIST, MOIST EXCREMENT ON THE BODY, EXCREMENT INSIDE THE FINGER NAIL, AND A DANGLING FINGER NAIL.¹¹ THE DOWNY HAIR OF A CHILD IS NOT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS¹² AND DOES NOT CAUSE UNCLEANNESS. THE SKIN WHICH FORMS OVER A WOUND IS LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND CAUSES UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. IN THE CASE OF ARTICLES THE FOLLOWING INTERPOSE: PITCH AND MYRRH¹³ IN THE CASE OF GLASS VESSELS, WHETHER INSIDE OR OUTSIDE; THEY INTERPOSE [WHEN FOUND] ON A TABLE OR ON A BOARD OR ON A COUCH THAT ARE [USUALLY] KEPT CLEAN,¹⁴ BUT THEY DO NOT INTERPOSE [WHEN FOUND] ON THESE ARTICLES IF ALLOWED TO REMAIN DIRTY. THEY INTERPOSE IN THE CASE OF BEDS BELONGING TO HOUSEHOLDERS,¹⁵ BUT THEY DO NOT INTERPOSE ON BEDS BELONGING TO A POOR PERSON. THEY INTERPOSE ON THE SADDLE OF A HOUSE-HOLDER, BUT THEY DO NOT INTERPOSE ON THE SADDLE OF A DEALER IN WATER-SKINS. THEY INTERPOSE IN THE CASE OF A PACK-SADDLE.¹⁶ RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: [ONLY IF THE STAIN IS AS BIG] AS AN ITALIAN ISSAR.¹⁷

MISHNAH 6. THEY DO NOT INTERPOSE [IF FOUND] ON CLOTHING ON ONE SIDE [ONLY]. BUT [IF FOUND] ON TWO SIDES¹⁸ THEY INTERPOSE. R. JUDAH SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. ISHMAEL: ON ONE SIDE ALSO. R. JOSE SAYS: IN THE CASE OF BANNA'IM¹⁹ THEY INTERPOSE ALSO IF ON ONE SIDE, BUT IN THE CASE OF THE UNCULTURED ONLY IF ON BOTH SIDES.

MISHNAH 7. THEY DO NOT INTERPOSE IN THE CASE OF APRONS BELONGING TO WORKERS IN PITCH, POTTERS, OR TRIMMERS OF TREES. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE SAME APPLIES ALSO TO SUMMER FRUIT-DRIERS. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: IF IT IS SOMETHING WHICH CAUSES ANNOYANCE, IT INTERPOSES; BUT IF IT IS SOMETHING WHICH DOES NOT CAUSE ANNOYANCE, IT DOES NOT INTERPOSE.

(1) Between the body and the water of the mikweh to render the immersion void if they are worn on the body while immersing; cf. supra VIII, 5. nn. 5-7, and Introd.

(2) If tied tightly or interlaced.

(3) A married woman only, who finds such hair annoying in intercourse with her husband.

(4) Psalms XL, 3. This shows that miry clay (טיט היין) is found in pits.

(5) Water can penetrate through this clay, but not through putty.

(6) גת יוני, of uncertain meaning and pointing (יוני); cf. Kohut, 'Aruch, II, p. 341.

(7) When it becomes dry and hard; cf. B.K. 81a.

(8) If any such clay is in the mikweh.

(9) If any such clay is sticking to the body.

(10) The dust may turn in the water into clay.

(11) This concludes the list of things which do not interpose.

(12) If it comes in contact with a defilement.

(13) וזהמור. Var. lec.: וזהמר, 'and bitumen'.

(14) And the stain causes annoyance.

(15) A rich person who is fastidious about the cleanness of his furniture.

(16) Some texts omit this sentence.

(17) The Roman As, a coin which was equal to 1/24 of a denar.

(18) When a stain causes annoyance.

(19) בְּנָאִים, 'builders' explained in Shab. 114a as scholars learned in the law who build up the world (cf. Ber. 64a). Another explanation given there is 'bath-attendants' (בְּלִנָּאִים or בְּלָנִים), but this does not correspond to the following 'uncultured' (בְּנִי).

Mishna - Mas. Mikva'oth Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. ANY HANDLES OF VESSELS WHICH HAVE BEEN FIXED NOT IN THEIR CUSTOMARY MANNER, OR, IF FIXED IN THEIR CUSTOMARY MANNER, HAVE NOT BEEN FIXED FIRMLY, OR, IF FIXED FIRMLY, HAVE BEEN BROKEN,¹ LO, THEY INTERPOSE.² IF A VESSEL IS IMMERSED WITH ITS MOUTH DOWNWARDS, IT IS AS THOUGH IT HAD NOT BEEN IMMERSED.³ IF IMMERSED IN THE REGULAR MANNER BUT WITHOUT THE ATTACHMENT,⁴ [IT BECOMES CLEAN] ONLY IF TURNED ON ITS SIDE.⁵ IF A VESSEL IS NARROW AT EACH END AND BROAD IN THE CENTRE, IT BECOMES CLEAN ONLY IF TURNED ON ITS SIDE.⁵ A FLASK WHICH HAS ITS MOUTH TURNED INWARDS⁶ BECOMES CLEAN ONLY IF A HOLE IS MADE AT THE SIDE.⁵ AN INKPOT OF LAYMEN⁷ BECOMES CLEAN ONLY IF A HOLE IS MADE AT THE SIDE. THE INKPOT OF JOSEPH THE PRIEST HAD A HOLE AT ITS SIDE.⁸

MISHNAH 2. IN THE CASE OF A BOLSTER AND A CUSHION OF LEATHER IT IS NECESSARY THAT THE WATER ENTER INSIDE THEM;⁹ BUT IN THE CASE OF A ROUND CUSHION OR A BALL OR A BOOTMAKER'S LAST OR AN AMULET OR A PHYLACTERY,¹⁰ IT IS NOT NECESSARY THAT THE WATER ENTER INSIDE THEM. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ANY ARTICLE THE FILLING OF WHICH IS NOT HABITUALLY TAKEN OUT AND PUT IN MAY BE IMMERSED UNOPENED.

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING DO NOT REQUIRE THAT THE WATER SHALL ENTER INSIDE THEM: KNOTS [IN THE CLOTHES] OF A POOR MAN,¹¹ OR IN TASSELS, OR IN THE THONG OF A SANDAL, OR IN A HEAD-PHYLACTERY¹² IF IT IS FASTENED TIGHTLY, OR IN AN ARM-PHYLACTERY¹² IF IT DOES NOT MOVE UP OR DOWN, OR IN THE HANDLES OF A WATER-SKIN, OR IN THE HANDLES OF A WALLET.¹³

MISHNAH 4. THE FOLLOWING REQUIRE THAT WATER SHALL ENTER INSIDE THEM: THE KNOT IN AN UNDERGARMENT¹⁴ WHICH IS TIED TO THE SHOULDER, (LIKEWISE THE HEM OF A SHEET¹⁵ MUST BE STRETCHED OUT), AND THE KNOT OF A HEAD-PHYLACTERY IF IT IS NOT FASTENED TIGHTLY, OR OF THE ARM-PHYLACTERY IF IT MOVES UP AND DOWN, AND THE LACES OF A SANDAL. CLOTHES WHICH ARE IMMERSED WHEN THEY HAVE JUST BEEN WASHED¹⁶ MUST BE KEPT IMMERSED UNTIL THEY THROW UP BUBBLES,¹⁷ BUT IF THEY ARE IMMERSED WHEN ALREADY DRY, THEY MUST BE KEPT IMMERSED UNTIL THEY THROW UP BUBBLES AND THEN CEASE TO THROW UP BUBBLES.¹⁸

MISHNAH 5. ANY HANDLES OF VESSELS WHICH ARE TOO LONG AND WHICH WILL BE CUT SHORT, NEED ONLY BE IMMERSED UP TO THE POINT OF THEIR PROPER MEASURE.¹⁹ R. JUDAH SAYS: [THEY ARE UNCLEAN] UNTIL THE WHOLE OF THEM IS IMMERSED. AS FOR THE CHAIN OF A LARGE BUCKET, TO THE LENGTH OF FOUR HANDBREADTHS, AND A SMALL BUCKET, TO THE LENGTH OF TEN HANDBREADTHS; AND THEY NEED ONLY BE IMMERSED UP TO THE POINT OF THEIR PROPER MEASURE.²⁰ R. TARFON SAYS: IT IS NOT CLEAN UNLESS THE WHOLE OF THE RING²¹ IS IMMERSED. THE ROPE BOUND TO A BASKET IS NOT COUNTED AS A CONNECTION UNLESS IT HAS BEEN SEWN ON.²²

MISHNAH 6. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HOT WATER²³ MAY NOT BE IMMERSED IN COLD,

OR COLD IN HOT, FOUL IN FRESH OR FRESH IN FOUL.²⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MAY BE IMMERSED. IF ONE IMMERSED A VESSEL FULL OF LIQUIDS.²⁵ IT IS AS THOUGH IT HAD NOT BEEN IMMERSED;²⁶ IF IT WAS FULL OF URINE, THIS IS RECKONED AS WATER; IF IT CONTAINED WATER OF PURIFICATION,²⁷ [IT IS UNCLEAR] UNLESS THE WATER [OF THE MIKWEH WHICH ENTERS THE VESSEL] EXCEEDS THE WATER OF PURIFICATION. R. JOSE SAYS: EVEN IF A VESSEL WITH THE CAPACITY OF A KOR²⁸ CONTAINS BUT A QUARTER-LOG.²⁹ IT IS AS THOUGH IT HAD NOT BEEN IMMERSED.

MISHNAH 7. ALL FOODS³⁰ COMBINE TOGETHER³¹ TO MAKE UP THE HALF OF A HALF-LOAF³² WHICH MAKES THE BODY UNFIT. ALL LIQUIDS COMBINE TOGETHER³³ TO MAKE UP THE QUARTER-LOG WHICH MAKES THE BODY UNFIT. THIS FORMS A RULE OF GREATER STRINGENCY IN THE CASE OF ONE WHO DRINKS UNCLEAR LIQUIDS THAN IN THE CASE OF THE MIKWEH, FOR IN HIS CASE THEY HAVE MADE ALL OTHER LIQUIDS LIKE WATER.³⁴

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE ATE UNCLEAR FOODS OR DRANK UNCLEAR LIQUIDS. AND HE IMMERSED HIMSELF AND THEN VOMITED THEM UP,³⁵ THEY ARE STILL UNCLEAR BECAUSE THEY DID NOT BECOME CLEAN IN THE BODY.³⁶ IF ONE DRANK UNCLEAR WATER AND IMMERSED HIMSELF AND THEN VOMITED IT UP, IT IS CLEAN BECAUSE IT BECAME CLEAN IN THE BODY.³⁷ IF ONE SWALLOWED A CLEAN RING AND THEN WENT INTO THE TENT OF A CORPSE,³⁸ IF HE SPRINKLED HIMSELF ONCE AND TWICE³⁹ AND IMMERSED HIMSELF AND THEN VOMITED IT UP, LO, IT REMAINS AS IT WAS BEFORE.⁴⁰ IF ONE SWALLOWED AN UNCLEAR RING, HE MAY IMMERSE HIMSELF AND EAT TERUMAH,⁴¹ IF HE VOMITED IT UP, IT IS UNCLEAR⁴² AND IT RENDERS HIM UNCLEAR.⁴³ IF AN ARROW WAS STUCK INTO A MAN, IT INTERPOSES SO LONG AS IT IS VISIBLE;⁴⁴ BUT IF IT IS NOT VISIBLE, HE MAY IMMERSE HIMSELF AND EAT TERUMAH.⁴⁵

- (1) In all these cases the handle cannot be considered a permanent or an essential part of the vessel.
 - (2) They prevent the water from covering that part of the vessel where the handle is attached.
 - (3) Because air remains in the vessel and prevents the water from filling it.
 - (4) The reading and meaning of this word are very doubtful. It is variously explained as an additional opening, or handle, or long neck, or saucer-like bottom.
 - (5) To enable the water to fill it completely.
 - (6) In order to prevent the escape of the liquid when the flask is turned upside down.
 - (7) Or 'private persons' who are not professional scribes. The inkpot was made in the same fashion with the rim of its mouth turned inwards. The Cambridge text (cf. Introd. n. 1.) omits 'of laymen'.
 - (8) In accordance with this rule.
 - (9) Because they are sometimes opened for a change of their filling.

 - (16) And are full of folds and wrinkles.
 - (17) The bubbles show that the water still adhering to the clothes has mingled with the water of the mikweh, and has thus become part of the water of the mikweh. It is not necessary then for the water of the mikweh to penetrate into all the folds of the clothes.
 - (18) When we may be sure that the water of the mikweh has penetrated into all the folds and wrinkles of the clothes.
 - (19) As given in Kelim XXIX. The rest is not considered as belonging to the vessel.

- (20) Even if this ends in the middle of a ring. Cf. Kelim XIV, 3.
- (21) If the appointed measure ends in the middle of the ring.
- (22) Therefore when not sewn on, it must be undone before the basket is immersed.
- (23) Water can be rendered clean by filling it in a vessel in which it is immersed to the rim, when the water in the vessel establishes contact with the water of the mikweh.
- (24) The water to be immersed must be of the same kind as the water of the mikweh.
- (25) Other than water; cf. supra VII, 2, p. 449 n. 3.
- (26) These liquids do not mingle with the water of the mikweh, and therefore they interpose between the inside of the vessel and the water of the mikweh.
- (27) This water, on account of its importance, cannot be considered as mingled with the water of the mikweh, unless the latter exceeds it in quantity.

- (33) If a person drank small quantities of unclean liquids of different kinds.
- (34) To combine with water in order to make up the required quantity, whereas in the case of the mikweh other liquids do not combine with water.
- (35) Before they had remained in the stomach sufficiently long for digestion.

- (39) With Water of Purification, in accordance with the law in Num. XIX, 19.
- (40) The ring remains clean, because a swallowed article is not affected by the defilement of the person after swallowing it.
- (41) The ring had a principal defilement (אב הטומאה), and by coming in contact with it before swallowing it, the person received a secondary defilement of the first degree, and requires immersion for eating terumah.
- (42) It did not become clean by the person's immersion.
- (43) By coming in contact with the ring in the act of vomiting it out.
- (44) It sticks out of the body.
- (45) Even if the arrow is unclean, because an object enclosed in the body cannot convey uncleanness.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. AN IRRIGATED FIELD¹ MAY BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL² [WEEK] OR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR³ BOTH FROM A NEWLY-EMERGING SPRING AND FROM A SPRING THAT IS NOT JUST EMERGED, BUT NOT WITH WATER FROM STORED RAIN, NOR FROM A SWIPE-WELL;⁴ NOR MAY SMALL BASINS⁵ BE FORMED ABOUT THE VINES. R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH SAYS THAT A [WATER] CHANNEL MAY NOT BE NEWLY MADE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], NOR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR; BUT THE SAGES SAY THAT A CHANNEL MAY BE NEWLY MADE IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR AND ONE THAT HAS GOT OUT OF ORDER MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. AND IMPAIRED WATER WORKS⁶ IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN MAY BE REPAIRED OR CLEANED OUT; AND ROADS, BROADWAYS AND [RITUAL] POOLS⁷ MAY BE PUT IN ORDER. AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED,⁸ AND GRAVESIDES MAY BE MARKED,⁹ AND [PUBLIC COMMISSIONERS] MAY SET OUT ALSO¹⁰ TO INSPECT DIVERSE¹¹ SEED-CROPS.

GEMARA. Now, one might argue that after [having permitted] watering FROM A NEWLY EMERGING spring — which is apt to come along tearing up [the soil]¹² — need further mention be made of [drawing from] A SPRING THAT IS NOT NEWLY EMERGING—which is unlikely to come tearing up [the soil]?¹³ — I may answer that it is necessary [to mention the latter]; for if [the Tanna] had mentioned only the newly emerging spring I might have said that only here [where it is] for an irrigation plot it is permitted — but not for a Baal-plot,¹⁴ because it is apt to come tearing up [the soil]; but [on the other hand], from a spring that is not newly emerging, which is unlikely to come tearing up [the soil], I might say that even a Baal-plot [may be watered]; therefore he informs us¹⁵ that there is no difference; be it a spring newly emerging, or a spring not newly emerging, an irrigation plot may be watered therefrom, but a Baal-plot may not be.¹⁶

And whence [know we] that the term BETH HA-SHELAHIN¹⁷ denotes a ‘thirsty’¹⁸ field? — It is written: When thou wast faint and weary,¹⁹ and we render the word ‘faint’ [in Aramaic] by meshalhi.²⁰ And whence [know we] that Beth ha-Baal²¹ denotes ‘settled’ soil? — It is written: For as a man be the husband [yib'al] of a maiden, so shall thy sons be as husbands unto thee²² and we render [in Aramaic], ‘Behold as a young man settles down with a maiden, thy sons shall become settled²³ in the midst of thee’.

Who may be the [unnamed] Tanna²⁴ who maintains that [work²⁵ to prevent] loss is allowed,²⁶ but [to augment] profit²⁷ is not allowed; and that even in [averting] loss we should not do any laborious work?²⁸ Said R. Huna: It is [the view of] R. Eliezer b. Jacob, as we learned:²⁹ R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: Water may be trained along from tree to tree, provided that one does not water thus the entire field.³⁰

I grant³¹ you may understand R. Eliezer [b. Jacob]³² to disallow exertion to enhance profit,³³ but could you also understand him [from here] to disallow exertion [even] where loss is [involved]? Rather, said R. Papa, (whose view is it)?³⁴ It is R. Judah's, as it is taught: ‘A spring newly emerging may be [used for] watering even (a field that is)³⁵ a Baal-plot. So R. Meir; R. Judah³⁶ says, None but (a field that is)³⁵ a ‘languid plot’ that has dried up may be watered [therefrom]. R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah says, Neither one nor the other.³⁷ R. Judah³⁸ went even further and said, ‘A person may not clean out a water channel³⁹ and [with the dredging] water his garden of debris — [heap]⁴⁰ during the festival week’. [Now] what is [meant by a ‘languid plot’] that dried up?⁴¹ If you say, literally dried up’ what is the good of watering it? — Said Abaye, It means that this [old] spring has run dry⁴² and another has [just] emerged [instead].⁴³ ‘R. Eleazar b. Azariah says, Neither one nor the other’. [By this he means to say that] it makes no difference whether the [old] spring has run dry or has not run dry, a newly emerging spring is not to be used.

But how [do you arrive at this conclusion]? Perhaps when R. Judah said that a languid plot may be watered from a newly emerging spring and a Baal-plot may not be,

- (1) בית השלחין means lit. 'a house of channels', i.e., a plot of land which owing to situation or climate or nature of the soil requires to be watered artificially. It is often a laborious process and at times of vital importance to the crop.
- (2) I.e., during the middle period of the two longer Feasts, namely, the 'Feast of Unleavened Bread' (Passover) and that of Tabernacles, v. Introduction.
- (3) Lit., 'the seventh year'. Every seventh year in the Jubilee cycle was ordained to be a year of remissness, or sabbath for the land, when the regular processes of agriculture for its improvement were to be suspended. V. Ex. XXIII, 10-11; Lev. XXV, 2ff and infra 3a.
- (4) קילון the Greek , a mechanical contrivance for raising water by water-wheel or bucket from a deep well, like the shadoof in Egypt and the denkli or paecottah in India. The reason for the objections is stated in the Gemara.
- (5) Circular depressions made about the stem of the vine, or a small trench drawn about a group of vines to retain the water. V. infra 4b.
- (6) Broken wells, cisterns or aqueducts; pools that have become muddy puddles, or blocked drains. קילקולין _ Latin cloaculae, Baneth).
- (7) For priests and pilgrims to purify themselves ritually or their vessels that have met with defilement. Cf. Lev. XI, 24-40; XXII, 1-7.
- (8) E.g., removing rubbish and thorns, levelling the road and footways, mending bridges, etc. Cf. infra 5a.
- (9) With whitewash of lime to warn passers-by against defilement. Cf. infra 5a.
- (10) [MS.M. omits 'ALSO' which is difficult to explain. V. Tosaf. Yom Tob].
- (11) Lev. XIX, 19: Thou shall not sow thy field with two (or more kinds of) seeds (promiscuously). They are neither to be sown nor preserved by active process. Infra 2b, 6a and cf. Kil. I, 1, 9; Shek. I, 1, a.
- (12) I.e., by erosion, necessitating immediate repair of the damage during the restricted period.
- (13) Running on its habitual course.
- (14) בית בעל, lit., 'Baal's area', or field — an old pagan denomination of a fertile soil, i.e., a soil favoured by 'Baal Lord of the heavens', Baal-Shamen, with fertilizing rain and sunshine. V. Cooke's N.S.I. p. 45, n. 1 etc. and Robertson Smith's Religion of the Semites (ed. 1894) pp. 96-97. Cf. Isa. LV, 10 and Ta'an. 6b: 'Rain is earth's husband'; also Krauss, TA II, p. 546, n. 115.
- (15) From here to the end of the sentence is not in DS., being seemingly a gloss from 2b.
- (16) From a new or old spring.
- (17) Rendered 'AN IRRIGATED FIELD'.
- (18) Or 'a languid track.' The term שלחין (channels) is here explained by popular etymology as derived from שלהי (the gutturals ל and ה interchanging), 'weary', 'exhausted'. V. n. 2.
- (19) Deut. XXV, 18. Han. and Aruch s.v. שלה (VIII, 80b) quote more appropriately Gen. XXV, 29 referring to Esau's exhaustion and thirst. Cf. Isa. XXIX, 8 and Ps. LXIII, 2.
- (20) A participle Shafel from להי meaning 'exhausted'. This derivation is grammatically unsound. In B.B., Sonc. ed. p. 271 it is more correctly connected with the root in the sense of sending water across the fields in channels. Cf. Ezek. XXXI, 4; Ps CIV, 10; Job V, 10. It is surmised that the name of the Pool of Siloam (לשח) is derived from the same root. V. Krauss, TA. II, p. 547, n. 117.
- (21) V. supra p. 2, n. 7.
- (22) Isa. LXII, 5.
- (23) Cf. our expressions husbandry and husbandman.
- (24) In the first clause of the Mishnah.
- (25) During the Festival week.
- (26) I.e., watering a languid soil.
- (27) E.g., watering a fertile field to make it still more productive.
- (28) Lit., 'excessive trouble', e.g., to use rainwater or raise water by swipe.
- (29) V. infra 6b, Mishnah.

- (30) To water the whole field in that manner is all exertion to be avoided during the Festival week.
- (31) Lit., 'say'.
- (32) So correctly, R. Han., DS.
- (33) As he forbids watering the entire field, presumably thinking it unnecessary to give it an extra watering to increase its fertility.
- (34) Omitted in DS.
- (35) A doublet occurring also in the texts given in the next note.
- (36) J.M.K. I, 1 (81a) and Tosef., I, I read here, 'and the Sages say' instead, showing that it is R. Judah's view that has been adopted in the Mishnah. Obviously, the Babylonian teachers engaged in this critical discussion did not have that reading.
- (37) I.e., that a newly emerging spring may not be used either for a generally nourished field (again at R. Meir's view), nor in a 'languid field' even where it has replaced a dried-up old spring (against R. Judah's view).
- (38) He went further in his restrictions, even in the case of a 'languid field'. (Tosaf. v. Ritba).
- (39) A running brook or ditch which has become muddy and shallow, which he may clean out under certain conditions discussed infra 4b.
- (40) Used as a vegetable garden or bed for nurslings. V. Tosaf. Lit., 'his garden and his ruin'.
- (41) I.e., that is waste.
- (42) Lit., 'it is dried up from this spring'.
- (43) [All of which shows that R. Judah does not permit any laborious work even in order to avert loss, as in the case of the old spring having dried up, whereas R. Judah permits watering from the new spring that has emerged but not from rain-water or a swipe-well, which is in agreement with our Mishnah].

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 2b

he was referring only to a newly emerging spring since it may come along tearing up [the soil]; but a spring that is not just newly emerging and which is unlikely to come along tearing up [the soil] he might allow even for a Baal-plot?¹ If [you take it] thus, then whom does our Mishnah represent?² The fact is that according to R. Judah it makes no difference, whether it be a newly emerging spring, or a spring not just newly emerging; in either case a languid plot may be watered [therefrom], but a Baal-plot may not be. And the reason why it states the 'newly emerging' spring³ is [merely] to show how far R. Meir is prepared to go, [namely], that even a newly emerging spring may be used for watering and even for a Baal-field!

It was stated: 'If one is [seen] weeding or watering his seedlings on the Sabbath,⁴ under what category [of the offence] should he be cautioned?⁵ — Rabbah said, [It comes] under the category of ploughing. R. Joseph said, under the category of sowing. Said Rabbah, My view seems the more reasonable, for what is the object of the plougher? To loosen the soil; here too, he loosens the soil. Said R. Joseph, My view seems the more reasonable, for what is the object of the sower? To promote the growth of the produce; here too, he promotes the growth of the produce.

Said Abaye to Rabbah, Your view presents difficulty and R. Joseph's view presents difficulty. Your view presents difficulty, for does the act come [only] under the category of ploughing [and] not under that of sowing [only]? R. Joseph's view presents difficulty, for does it come [only] under the category of sowing [and] not under that of ploughing also? And should you rejoin that where there are two [possible categories], the offender is liable only on one count, [this cannot be] for did not R. Kahana say that if one [incidentally] pruned [his tree] in cutting it for wood⁶ he is liable on two counts, one under the category of planting⁷ and one again under that of reaping?⁸ — This is a difficulty.⁹

R. Joseph, thereupon, put an objection to Rabbah from [the following]: One who weeds or covers [with earth] diverse-seeds¹⁰ receives [judicial] flogging. R. Akiba says, Also one who preserves [them].¹¹ Now this is in perfect accord with my view, as I say that [he who weeds is to be cautioned] under the category of sowing, which [explains the penalty] because sowing is [explicitly] forbidden in connection with diverse-seeds; but according to your view who say that [he is to be cautioned] under the category of ploughing, is ploughing forbidden in connection with diverse-seeds? — Said he [Rabbah] to him, [He¹² is flogged] under the category of preserving [them]. But surely, since the last clause states ‘R. Akiba says, Also one who preserves [them]’, may we not infer that according to the first Tanna the penalty is not on account of preserving [them]? — The entire statement is [to be taken as] recording R. Akiba's view, and the latter clause is explanatory: ‘On what ground does one who weeds or covers [with earth] diverse-seeds receive a flogging? Because he comes under the category of preserving, for R. Akiba says, Also he who preserves [them]’. What is R. Akiba's reason? — It is taught: — Thou shalt not sow thy field with two kinds of seed’.¹³ This tells me about ‘sowing’, whence [the prohibition against] preserving [what is already sown]? — From the instructive wording kil'ayim [diverse-seeds] in thy field not.¹⁴ We learned: AN IRRIGATED FIELD MAY BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] OR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR. This [permission] is perfectly correct in regard to the festival [week] where [the prohibition is] merely to avoid exertion, but where loss is [threatened]¹⁵ the Rabbis have allowed it. But in regard to the sabbatical year, whether on the view that [watering] comes under the category of sowing¹⁶ or on the view that it comes under that of ploughing,¹⁷ is either sowing or ploughing permitted in the sabbatical year?¹⁸ — Said Abaye, Our Mishnah is speaking of the sabbatical year in the present time and it [expresses] the view held by Rabbi;¹⁹ for it is taught: Rabbi says, [It is written] And this is the manner of the release; release [by every creditor of that which he hath lent to his neighbour];²⁰ the text speaks here of two forms of release, one the release of the soil [from tillage]²¹ and the other the release of money²² [the juxtaposition of] which tells us that so long as you must release the soil [from tillage], you must release the money [debt], but when you do not release the soil, you need not release the money!²³ Said Raba [not necessarily], you may even say [it voices] the view of the Rabbis²⁴ and that they²⁵ are the principal [types of work] that the Divine Law has forbidden [explicitly],

(1) Whereas our Mishnah forbids watering a Baal-plot from a newly emerging spring. Consequently it will not represent the view of R. Judah.

(2) Lit., ‘to whom will you throw (trace the view of) our Mishnah’.

(3) In the cited Baraita: the spring might as well have been left undefined, as either is allowed for a languid plot by R. Judah.

(4) Ritba reads on a festival, which is preferred by R. Moses Sofer. Cf. Mak., Sonc. ed., p. 149.

(5) An offender doing an act which is explicitly forbidden in Holy Writ had to be duly and accurately cautioned by two witnesses against that particular act, and informed of the exact penalty it involved, before he could be judicially punished by a duly constituted tribunal. Ploughing, sowing and mowing are of the thirty-nine main categories of work forbidden (Scripturally) on Sabbath or Festivals. For the list v. Shab. VII, 2 and Shab. 73aff.

(6) Lit., ‘he prunes and requires the wood’. Shab. 73b. Work on the Sabbath is to be purposive, whether intended or not. If one did what he desired to do, without knowing that such a thing was not to be done on the Sabbath, or forgetting for the moment that it was the Sabbath day, he would not be punishable, but would have to bring a sin-offering in Temple times.

(7) Pruning promotes growth and is therefore another form of sowing or planting.

(8) Having a definite purpose for the cuttings.

(9) Var. lec. omit this final admission. [The statement of R. Kahana, being of an Amora, is not deemed sufficiently authoritative to refute the views of Rabbah and R. Joseph. V. Tosaf. s.v. חייב.]

(10) Weeding and covering with earth diverse-seeds are here made punishable as sowing, v. Lev. XIX, 19 (cf. Deut. XXII, 9).

(11) Fencing in the plot to prevent cattle from trampling them out or feeding on the young blades. Cf. A.Z. 64a (Rashi and Tosaf.).

(12) He who weeds diverse-seeds.

(13) Lev. XIX, 19.

(14) Some explain a section of the Hebrew text of Lev. XIX, 19, namely, כלאים שדך לא תזרע כלאים, as it were two interlocked sentences, (i) כִּלְאִים שָׂדֶךְ לֹא i.e., ‘Kil'ayim in thy field not’, (which forbids the presence and the preservation of diverse-seed crops in the field); and (ii) שָׂדֶךְ לֹא תִזְרַע כִּלְאִים i.e., ‘Thy field thou shalt not sow kil'ayim’ (which forbids sowing). This explanation, however, is very strained, as the variations in the parallel passages show, having puzzled the commentators. The readings תִּזְרַע לֹא כִּלְאִים and תִּזְרַע לֹא are both correct and to the same effect. It is the import of the wording rather than the form of the text that R. Akiba stressed. It is the diverse mixing or crossing — ‘kil'ayim’ — that is emphatically forbidden, be it of animal, or field, or raiment (Lev. XIX, 19) and fiercest of all in the (oliveyard or) vineyard (Deut. XXII, 9). Have no share by your action in producing kil'aym!

(17) Rabbah, above.

(18) Sowing, pruning, gleaning and reaping are directly forbidden in Lev. XXV, 4-5. Ploughing, however, is forbidden only indirectly, by implication from a positive law in Ex. XXIII, 11; XXXIV, 21. Note this point.

(19) R. Judah ha-Nasi, compiler of the Mishnah.

(20) Deut. XV, 2.

(21) I.e., let the soil lie fallow and the crops free and unguarded against the poor, Ex. XXIII, 11.

(22) Let slip the money debts owing to you.

(23) The interpretation is based on the ground that since the Nation, Israel as a whole, is no longer in possession of the Holy Land as his inheritance, the land laws relative to the sabbatical year and Jubilee re-distributions, which are made contingent on Israel's entry and possession (Lev. XXV, 2, 10ff; cf. ibid. XXVI, 34-35, and Deut. XXXI, 10-13) are of necessity in abeyance, for the time being. [This according to Rabbi, since the prohibition of tilling the soil on the sabbatical years nowadays is merely Rabbinical, it is not enforced where a loss is involved; hence the ruling of our Mishnah.]

(24) That the operation of the sabbatical year nowadays is Biblical.

(25) Those that are specified in the text of Holy Writ.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 3a

but derivative¹ operations it has not forbidden, for it is written: But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land..., thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard. That which groweth of itself of thy harvest thou shalt not reap and the grapes of thy undressed vine thou shalt not gather.² Now, since pruning comes within the general process of sowing³ and grape-gathering within the general process of reaping,⁴ what law then did the All-Merciful desire to inculcate by inserting these [secondary processes] into the text? To indicate that only for these secondary processes [specified in the text] is one [to be] held liable⁵ and for [any] other [secondary processes] one is not [to be] held liable.⁶ Indeed not? Surely it has been taught: Thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard,⁷ that only forbids me sowing or pruning; whence is forbidden weeding or hoeing or the trimming of wilted parts? From the instructive [form of the] text: Thy field thou shalt not... thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field; no manner of work in thy vineyard. [Likewise] whence [is derived the rule] not to cut back shoots, or thin twigs or put up props for supporting [fruit trees]? From the [same] instructive text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. [Similarly] whence [is derived the rule] not to manure,⁸ or remove stones, or dust [with flower of sulphur]⁹ or fumigate the tree? From the instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not, that is, no manner of work in the field, no manner of work in the vineyard. Shall I say that one should not [even] stir the soil under the olive trees, nor use the hoe under the vines, nor fill the gaps [under the olive trees]¹⁰ with water nor make drills¹¹ for the vines? There is the Instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not sow [nor thy vineyard shalt thou prune]. Now, as ‘sowing’ was already embraced in the general terms of the ordinance,¹² why then was it singled out [for mention]? To provide ground for an analogy, namely that just as sowing has the special quality of being a work common to field and orchard,¹³ so is every [other] work that is common to field and orchard [forbidden]!¹⁴ — [That is only] Rabbinically; and the text is adduced merely as a support.¹⁵ But, is it permitted to stir the soil [under the olive tree] in the sabbatical year? Surely [is it not taught]: It is written, But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie fallow;¹⁶ ‘let it rest’ — not to hoe; and ‘[let it] lie fallow — not to remove stones? — Said R. ‘Ukba b. Haba, there are two sorts of hoeing, one for strengthening the [olive] tree, and another to close up fissures; that for strengthening the tree is forbidden, whereas that for closing up fissures is allowed.¹⁷

It has been stated:¹⁸ — If one ploughed in the sabbatical year,¹⁹ R. Johanan and R. Eleazar²⁰ [took opposite views]. One said that he is flogged²¹ and the other said that he is not flogged.²² Might I suggest that the issue turns on the dictum of R. Ela as reported by R. Abin? For R. Abin reported R. Ela to have stated that wherever a general [proposition] is stated in the form of a positive command and a particular [specification] in the form of a negative injunction,²³ the hermeneutical rule of General-Particular-General²⁴ does not apply to it.²⁵ [Accordingly], the one who says the offender is flogged, did not agree with that dictum of R. Abin in the name of R. Ela,²⁶ while the other who says that the offender is not flogged did agree with the dictum of R. Abin [in the name of R. Ela]?²⁷ — Not [necessarily]. It can be maintained that nobody agrees with the dictum of R. Ela, as reported by R. Abin. As to the one who says that the offender is flogged²⁸ it of course is in order, while the other who says the offender is not flogged may tell you thus:²⁹ Consider: pruning comes within [the general process of] sowing and grape-gathering within [the general process of] reaping, what rule did the All-Merciful intend to inculcate by inserting these [secondary processes] into the text? To indicate that only for these secondary processes [specified in the text] is one [to be] held liable, but for any other secondary process³⁰ he is not [to be] held liable. But is he not? Surely it is taught: Thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard, this only forbids me sowing or pruning; whence is forbidden weeding, hoeing, or the trimming of wilted parts? From the instructive [form of] the text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field; no manner of work in thy vineyard. Whence [is derived the rule] not to cut back shoots, or thin twigs or put up props for [fruit] trees? From the [same] instructive text: thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. Whence [is derived the rule] not to manure, or remove stones, [or dust] or fumigate the trees? From the instructive text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [that is], no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. Am I then to say that one may not stir the soil under the olive trees, nor use the hoe under the vines, nor fill the [open] gaps [under the olives] with water, nor make drills for the vines? There is the instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not sow and thy vineyard thou shalt not prune. Now, sowing was already embraced in the general terms of the ordinance, why then was it singled out [for mention]? For the purpose of providing [ground for] an analogy, that just as sowing has the special quality of being a work common to field and vineyard, so is any other work that is common to field and orchard [forbidden]? — [That is only] rabbinically; and the text is [adduced] as a mere support.³¹

(1) Or secondary processes which are not unspecified.

(2) Lev. XXV, 4-5.

(3) Or planting, as explained above by R. Kahana.

(4) V. Shab. 73a.

(5) To a judicial flogging.

(6) I.e., scripturally (even according to the Rabbis) though reprehensible rabbinically.

(7) The order of the Hebrew words in the text is: ‘Thy field thou shalt not sow nor thy vineyard shalt thou etc.’

(8) Yalkut reads: ‘remove excrescences’ or ‘warts’.

(9) Thus J. Sheb. II, 2; Aruch explains ‘remove dust from the foliage’ and Rashi here takes it as covering with dust the exposed roots. The context seems to favour the first explanation here adopted.

(10) After thinning olive trees, by lifting some to give more room for the other young trees, the gap left in the soil would ordinarily be filled with manure and olive trees need much water. Cf. Sheb. IV, 5, and Sifra Behar Rabad's Commentary.

(11) Or small ridges with furrows on top between the vines. V. loc. cit.

(12) Lev. XXV, 4: But the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a sabbath unto the Lord, in direct contrast to verse 3; there was therefore no further need to continue with specific instances of the prohibition, such as sowing the field and pruning the vineyard.

(13) I.e., common to both, agriculture and horticulture.

(14) [Excluding the last mentioned processes which are not common to both field and vineyard. At all events this teaching shows that a number of processes though of the secondary type are forbidden in the sabbatical year].

(15) I.e., mnemotechnical and Biblically only sowing, pruning, reaping and gleaning are forbidden explicitly. The inclusion of ploughing, digging, hoeing or watering in the prohibition is purely Rabbinic. Thus the ruling of the Mishnah that an irrigated field may be watered . . . in the sabbatical year has now been explained: by Abaye on the basis of Rabbi's view, namely, that the restrictions of the sabbatical year are not operative nowadays; and, on the other hand by Raba, on the view of the other Rabbis (who do not concede Rabbi's interpretation of Deut. XV, 2), by pointing out that 'watering' is, strictly speaking, not textually forbidden, it being a 'derivative' (secondary) process, and hence allowed by the Rabbis in the sabbatical year where damage (loss of crop) is likely.

(16) Ex. XXIII, 11.

(17) The former is for enhancing profit and the latter is prevention of loss, namely, to save the tree from bleeding or rotting.

(18) The same question is again discussed from a different angle in Palestinian schools.

(19) After having been duly cautioned.

(20) B. Pedath.

(21) As having offended against a Biblical prohibition.

(22) Because 'ploughing' is not distinctly forbidden, but is only an implied offence, for which no judicial flogging can be given.

(23) E.g., in Lev. XXV, 2-5. We have first a general ordinance in positive terms: The land shall keep a sabbath unto the Lord. Six years thou shalt sow . . . prune . . . gather in the produce thereof, but the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest unto the Lord (cf. Ex. XXIII, 11); then follow the particulars in negative terms. Thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard. That which groweth of itself thou shalt not reap and the grapes of thy undressed vines thou shalt not gather (Lev. XXV, 4-5). Then follows a general rule again in positive form: It shall be a year of solemn rest for the land.

(24) According to this rule, the particulars are in such a case considered typical as illustrations serving to include in the general rule all such items as are similar to the particulars. E.g. in Ex. XXII, 8 the text first states that an oath can be judicially imposed 'for every matter of trespass' (General term). This is followed by: 'for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment' (particulars), which again is followed finally by: 'for any manner of lost thing' (General). We infer from this that an oath can be imposed for things like those specified as typical instances, but not in the case of a dispute about land, being immovable property, or in the case of sanctuary-property, as it being not one's neighbour's property, or in the case of dispute about a slave, as being a (human) chattel, or about documents, as not being 'property', but merely instruments of evidence. Similarly in the case of the sabbatical year, if the particulars are typical of the general rule, one who does any of these would break the law.

(25) But it is treated merely as a general proposition which is followed only by a particularization, in which case the general proposition does not go beyond what has actually been specified by the particularization that follows it.

(26) I.e., he interprets the Sabbatical Ordinance as a pure instance of a General-Particular-General form and takes sowing, pruning, reaping and gleaning as typical illustrative instances and, accordingly, considers 'ploughing' as included in the general terms of the Ordinance and hence as a punishable offence.

(27) I.e., that the Sabbatical Ordinance cannot be treated as a pure form of General-Particular-General, it being negative in the particulars, which amounts to saying, 'Not a, not b, not c; these, I mean, precisely, and no others'. 'Ploughing' therefore is not included among the forbidden processes and hence is not a punishable offence.

(28) For ploughing in the sabbatical year.

(29) In interpreting the import of the wording of the text, to show that there is no penalty for ploughing, although the application of the General-Particular-General rule would indicate to the contrary.

(30) I.e., ploughing.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 3b

When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said [the discussion went on]: Possibly, you might say that the offender be flogged [even] for the 'extension'? But the teaching was concluded¹ to prove that he was exempt. But [said he], I know not which was the teaching, nor what was [actually] meant by 'extension'.

R. Eleazar [b. Pedath] said that the 'extension' had reference to [the inclusion of] 'ploughing' [as a punishable offence], and the argument proceeded thus: Possibly [you might say] that he should be flogged for 'ploughing' [in the sabbatical year], the rule being inferred by [treating the sabbatical ordinance as a case of] General-Particular-General; then the teaching was concluded to prove exemption. For, if it [the flogging] were correct, what is the [legal] import of all those particulars [set out in the text]?

R. Johanan said [that the 'extension' had reference to] the extra days [of restriction] which the sages had added prior to New Year; and the argument proceeded thus: Possibly [you might say] that he should be flogged for [ploughing during] the extended extra period prior to New Year which is based on the text: 'In ploughing time and in reaping time thou shalt rest.'² Then the teaching was concluded to prove exemption [from a flogging], as we shall seek to explain presently.

What is meant by 'the days [of restriction] prior to New Year'? — According to what we learned: 'Up to what date may ploughing be done in a tree field [orchard] in the pre-sabbatical year? Beth Shammai say, As long as it is for the benefit of the fruit; Beth Hillel say, Up to the Feast of Weeks; and the [practical effect of] one ruling is much the same as that of the other.'³ And up to what date may they plough a "white field"⁴ in the pre-sabbatical year? Up to when the moisture gives out and as long as people till for planting their cucumber and gourd beds. Said R. Simeon, If that is so, you have handed over the Torah for every individual to determine for himself the right time! No: [I say], a "white field" [they may till] up to Passover and a tree field up to the Feast of Weeks'.⁵ (And Beth Hillel say up to Passover.)⁶

And⁷ R. Simeon b. Pazzi reported in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi who had it from Bar Kappara that Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din took a vote on these two [terminal] periods⁸ and abrogated them. Said R. Zera to R. Abbahu, some say, Resh Lakish said to R. Johanan: How could Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din abrogate a measure instituted by Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel? Surely we learned: 'No Beth din has power to nullify the words [ruling] of another Beth din unless it be superior to it in learning and number'!⁹ 'He was astonished for a while';¹⁰ then he replied: I say, they thus have stipulated among themselves that whoever might thereafter wish to abrogate that [measure] could come and abrogate it.¹¹ But was it their measure? Was it not an [ancient] halachah of Moses from Sinai?¹² As [in fact] R. Assi reported R. Johanan to have said in the name of R. Nehuniah¹³ a man hailing from the valley of Beth Hauran,¹⁴ that the [laws of] 'Ten Saplings',¹⁵ the 'Willow',¹⁶ and the 'Water Libation',¹⁷ were 'halachah' of Moses from Sinai! — Said R. Isaac, When we received on tradition that law [of extra restriction] as [an ancient] halachah, It was only in reference to 'thirty days prior to the New Year'; thereafter came those [of Beth Shammai and Hillel] and instituted [the cessation] from Passover¹⁸ and the Feast of Weeks,¹⁹ and [at the same time] they stipulated with reference to their [measure] that whoever might [thereafter] wish to abrogate [them] might come and abrogate them.²⁰

But were these [termini] merely halachah [-usages]? Were they not [based on Biblical] texts? For is it not taught: [Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest]: in ploughing time and in reaping time thou shalt rest.²¹ Says R. Akiba,²² There is no need to be told [in the second clause] to desist from ploughing or reaping in the seventh year, since it is already stated [elsewhere at length]: thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard: [that which groweth of itself thou shalt not reap].²³ [It can be taken] only [to debar] ploughing in the pre-sabbatical year

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 4a

[which may have beneficial effects] extending into the seventh year and [likewise] to the reaping of the seventh year's crops which mature in the post-sabbatical year.¹ Says R. Ishmael, [It is purely a Sabbath law]; as the ploughing [here forbidden on Sabbath] is optional ploughing,² so is the reaping [here mentioned] optional reaping; outside this [law] is the reaping [of the new barley] for the 'omer³ which is a religious duty [by ordinance]!⁴ — In fact said R. Nahman b. Isaac, when we received on tradition [that the pre-sabbatic restrictions had their origin in] halachah [-usage], this had reference to the permission [of tilling for the benefit] of saplings;⁵ whereas the texts are for the prohibition of old trees.⁶ But since 'halachah [-usage] allowed [tillage down to New Year] for saplings, it is not obvious that old trees were forbidden? — What we must say therefore is, the halachah [-usage] as basis for the prohibition is [necessary] according to R. Ishmael,⁷ whereas the texts [serve as basis] according to R. Akiba.

But R. Johanan said that Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din abrogated those [restrictions] on Biblical authority. What was the reason? He deduced it by equating the term ‘Sabbath’ common to both⁸ the Sabbath-year and the Sabbath of Creation⁹ [thus]: Just as in the case of the Sabbath Day [work is forbidden] on the day itself, but on the day before and on the day after it is allowed, so [likewise] in the Sabbath Year [tillage is forbidden] during the year itself, but in the year before and in the year after it is allowed.

To this R. Ashi demurred: On the view that it [the restriction] is a halachah [-usage] can a gezerah shawah [deduction]⁸ come and eradicate a halachah [-usage]; and [likewise] on the view that it is [based on] a Biblical text, can a gezerah shawah⁸ come and eradicate a text! — But no, said R. Ashi, Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din concurred with R. Ishmael who held that [the presabbatical restrictions] were based on a halachah-usage. And when did the tradition of such halachah-usage [apply]? During the time when the Temple was still standing, like that of the water libation;¹⁰ but in times when the Temple is no longer standing the tradition of this halachah-usage does not apply.¹¹

BUT IT MAY NOT BE WATERED FROM [STORED] RAIN NOR BY THAT OF A SWIPE-WELL. It is quite correct [to prohibit water] from a swipe-well, because that is a rather extra trouble; but rain water-what trouble is there [in using it]? — Said R. Ela, reporting R. Johanan: Rain water is prohibited as a precaution on account of the swipe-well.¹² R. Ashi said: Rain water itself may [sometimes] come to be [just as difficult to draw¹³ as] the water of a swipe-well. And they differ on [the statement of] R. Zera; for R. Zera said that Rabbah b. Jeremiah, citing Samuel, said that rivers drawing from [adjoining] water pools may be used for watering during the festival week.¹⁴ One Master¹⁵ is in agreement with [the statement of] R. Zera, while the other¹⁶ is not in agreement with [the statement of] R. Zera. The text [above stated]: ‘R. Zera said that Rabbah b. Jeremiah, citing Samuel, said that rivers drawing from [adjoining] water pools may be used for watering during the festival week’. R. Jeremiah put all objection to him [R. Zera]: BUT... NOT WATERED FROM [STORED] RAIN NOR BY THAT OF A SWIPE-WELL!¹⁷ — Said R. Zera to him: Jeremiah, my son, these Babylonian pools are like water [pools] that do not fail.¹⁸

Our Rabbis taught: Ditches and pools¹⁹ [even though] filled with water on the day before the festival are debarred from being used for watering during the festival week,²⁰ but if a canal passes between them they may be used. Said R. Papa: This is only provided that the greater part of that field obtains its supply from that canal.²¹ R. Ashi said that [they may be used] even if the greater part of that field does not obtain its supply [from that canal], because since its flow is continuous [the owner] says. if it [the field] does not get enough drink on [this] one day, it will [soon] get its drink in two or three days.²² Our Rabbis taught: ‘If a pool gets tricklings from²³ an irrigated field [higher up], it may be used for watering another field’.²⁴ But is it not going [ultimately] to give out? — Said R. Jeremiah: For the present at any rate it is still trickling! Said Abaye: This is [permitted] only so long as the first source has not given out.²⁵

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Menassia says: Where two cultivated beds lie one above the other, one should not²⁶ draw from the [supply of the] lower to water the upper. R. Eleazar b. Simeon went even further, saying: Even in one bed, if half of it is low and the other half higher one should not draw from the low-lying part to water the upper part.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘One may raise [medallin]²⁷ for the vegetables if they are to be eaten; but if it is to improve their appearance it is forbidden’. Rabina and Rabbah of Thospia²⁸ were [once] walking on the road when they saw a certain man drawing buckets of water during the festival week.²⁹ Said Rabbah of Thospia to Rabina: Come, Sir, put a ban³⁰ on him. Said Rabina to him, But is it not taught: ‘One may raise³¹ for vegetables to be eaten’? — Replied Rabbah, Do you think that this medallin means one may raise water [in buckets]?³² [No], what medallin means is

(1) Accordingly 'ploughing' is Biblically forbidden in the pre-sabbatical extension and the offender would be liable to a flogging were it not for the inferences derived from the other text of Lev. XXV, 4-5, as expounded above, 3a. Cf. Tosaf. 3b s.v. שהרי and Han.

(2) I.e., not ordained to be done on any particular day.

(3) 'The sheaf of the first fruit of your (barley) harvest'. V. Lev. XXIII, 10ff. R. Ishmael holds that this may be reaped even on Sabbath. R. Ishmael's statement is for the moment irrelevant, though it comes in later. R. Akiba's dictum shows that the extension, i.e., the pre-sabbatical bar on tillage, is not merely a pristine halachah-usage, but has textual basis.

(4) Cf. M. Sheb. I, 4 and Mak., Sonc. ed. p. 48.

(5) Down to New Year's eve.

(6) Thirty days before New Year, which prohibition was extended by Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel to Passover and Feast of Weeks, according to the field.

(7) Who, unlike R. Akiba, uses that text for another point, namely, as permitting reaping the barley for the 'omer even on a Sabbath, if that is the date.

(8) Gezerah shawah (V. Glos.) which some admit and others do not.

(9) I.e., Ex. XXXIV, 21 taken with Lev. XXV, 2 ('a Sabbath-rest year-unto the Lord').

(10) Mentioned together with the tradition regarding the ten saplings, supra 3b.

(11) With the fall of the Temple and the Jewish State many of the laws appertaining to the Temple and the Land fell into abeyance owing to the force of circumstances. Recently, I. S. Zuri has attempted to establish that Rabban Gamaliel's abrogation was enacted soon after May 215 C.E. when Caracalla entered Antioch and thence marched his armies through Palestine on his way to Egypt, when the people had to pay 'annonae' to feed the armies. V. his שלטון הנשיאות והועד I, Vol. III, 58-59.

(12) If stored rain water is permitted, one will also work a shadoof.

(13) When much of it has been drawn off he will have to go deep down with his bucket, with almost as much exertion as from a shadoof.

(14) [And we do not apprehend the possibility of the pool drying up when he might go and fetch water from another river, with all the extra trouble it involves.]

(15) R. Ashi.

(16) R. Johanan, who prohibits rain water on account of a swipe-well.

(17) [Presumably because we apprehend lest he may go deep down with his bucket should the water be drawn off and the same should apply to the case of R. Zera.]

(18) And there is no likelihood of leading to exertion during the Festival Week.

(19) The former rough-cut and the latter well-made (Commentators on Alfasi). J.M.K. I, 1 reads הפיסקין והבריכה, which points to the Latin piscina, reservoir, swimming bath or fish-tank.

(20) Because their supply comes from a distance and may entail exertion should the supply fail.

(21) I.e., if the supply is plentiful.

(22) Because he will get what he may and if not enough will readily wait for a day or two for another chance, without going to exertion during the festival week.

(29) To water his vegetables.

(30) שמתא cf. infra 17a.

(31) מדלין or מדלין from דלה to raise, draw water with bucket (דלי).

(32) In the course of the festival week.

to pull out [vegetables],¹ as we learned:² 'If one is [engaged in] thinning³ vines, just as he may thin his own, so also he may thin those due to the poor;⁴ so R. Judah. R. Meir says: He is permitted [to attend] to his own but not to those of the poor'.⁵ Said Rabina: But it is taught [explicitly]: 'One may raise water for vegetables if they are to be eaten'! — Said Rabbah [of Thospia] to Rabina: If it is thus taught, that settles the matter.⁶

NOR MAY SMALL BASINS ['UGIOTH] BE FORMED ABOUT THE VINES. What is meant by 'ugioth?⁷ — Said Rab Judah, [What we call] banki.⁸ It is also taught thus: These are 'ugioth; light hoeing done about the roots of olives and at the roots of vines.⁹ [But] this is not so, for did not Rab Judah allow the family of Bar-Zittai¹⁰ to make banki in their vineyards? — This is not difficult: The one statement [in the Mishnah] refers to fresh [trenchings], the other [Rab Judah's] refers to re-trenching.¹¹

R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH SAYS A [WATER] CHANNEL MAY NOT BE NEWLY MADE [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK, NOR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR; BUT THE SAGES SAY].¹² It is perfectly in order in regard to the festival week, because he performs laborious work, but what reason can there be [against making a channel] in the sabbatical year? — R. Zera and R. Abba b. Memel differ in the matter: One says [it is forbidden] because [the digger] seems to be doing spading [in his field]; the other says, because he is [thereby] preparing the banks for sowing. What is the [practical] difference between the two [explanations]? — There is a difference where water comes along forthwith; according to the one who says that [it is] because he is preparing the banks for sowing, there is [still an objection], but according to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be doing spading, there is none.¹³ But, the one who objects on the ground that he seems to be doing spading, should he not likewise object on the ground that he seems to be preparing the bank for sowing? — Rather, the [practical] difference between them is where he takes [the mould] from the trench and throws it outside. According to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be preparing the banks for sowing, there is no objection, whereas according to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be spading, there is [still an objection]. But, he who takes the view that he seems to be preparing the banks for sowing, should he not likewise admit the objection that he seems to be doing spading? — [No,] because one who does spading, as soon as he takes up a spadeful he puts it down again in its place.

Amemar taught this [clause of the] Mishnah with the explanation [that R. Eleazar b. 'Azariah forbids making a channel] 'because he seems to be doing spading [in his field]'¹⁴ but felt some difficulty about it in view of another statement of R. Eleazar b. 'Azariah. Could R. Eleazar b. 'Azariah [said he] have held the view that wherever one seems to be spading [his field],¹⁴ it is forbidden? And he contrasted that with the [statement in the] following [Mishnah]:¹⁵ One may lay up a store of manure [in his field].¹⁴ R. Meir says he may not until he places it either three handbreadths below or three handbreadths above [the surface]. If he had some small quantity [already there] he may go on adding thereto. R. Eleazar b. 'Azariah says [even then] he may not until he puts it down either three handbreadths below, or raises it three handbreadths above [the surface],¹⁶ or places it on a rock! — R. Zera and R. Abba b. Memel [explained this seeming discrepancy], one said: [The latter Mishnah means where], for instance, he has had the place excavated; the other said: [The reason there is because] the manure heap itself attests his intention.¹⁷

AND [A CHANNEL] THAT HAS GOT OUT OF ORDER MAYBE RE-PAIRED. What is meant by OUT OF ORDER? — Said R. Abba:¹⁸ 'It means that if it is [now, for instance] but one handbreadth in depth, he may restore it to [a depth of] six handbreadths'. It is obvious that [to restore it] from half a handbreadth to [the original] three, seeing that there was [originally] scarcely any flow of water, it is nothing at all;¹⁹ [to deepen it] front two handbreadths to [the original] twelve²⁰ which involves extra exertion,²¹ is not [allowed]. What about [deepening it] front two [handbreadths] to [the original] seven? [Do we argue that] as in the first instance [it was explained above] he deepens it by five handbreadths, [from one to six], so here he deepens it by five handbreadths [from two to seven];²² or, maybe that as in this instance he [actually] deepens the channel by an extra handbreadth there is extra exertion, and hence it is forbidden? — It stands undecided.

Abaye allowed the people of Harmek to clear away²³ [the growths obstructing]²⁴ the canal.²⁵ R. Jeremiah allowed the people of Sacutha to dredge the canal that had become blocked.²⁶ R. Ashi allowed the people of Matha-Mehasia to clear obstructions from the river Barnis, saying that as the public obtained their drinking water from it it was virtually a [pressing] public need, and we learn: AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 5a

AND IMPAIRED WATER-WORKS¹ IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN MAY BE REPAIRED AND CLEANED OUT. [That is to say only] to repair, but not to be dug [afresh]. Said R. Jacob as reporting R. Johanan: This was taught only where there is no public need; but where there is public need² for it even [fresh] digging is allowed.

ditches or caverns of the public may not be dug and still less those of a private person'.⁴ Does not that mean that [digging is not allowed] even where the public has need of it? — No, [only] where the public has no need of it. Then similarly the reference to a private person is where the private person has no need of it, but in that case is 'cleaning out' allowed? Surely it is taught: 'Wells, ditches or caverns of a private person may have water run into them, but they may not be cleaned out, nor have their cracks plastered; but those of the public may be cleaned out and their cracks may be plastered'? — But what else [are we to say] but that the private person has need of it; in which case [the references to the public is similarly where the public has need of it? But where the public has need of it, is digging forbidden? Surely it is taught: 'Wells, ditches or caverns of a private person may have water run into them or be cleaned out; but their cracks may not be plastered, nor may the scourings be put into them,⁵ nor may they be plastered with cement. But those of the public may be dug and plastered with cement'.⁶ But [if so], the first [Baraita] is difficult. Explain it thus: 'Wells, [ditches or caverns] of a private person [may be cleaned out]' — providing he has need of them, 'and needless to say those of the public' — when the public has need of them, as then, even digging is allowed.⁷ 'But wells, ditches or caverns of the public are not to be dug' — when the public has no need of them, 'still less, those of a private person', as when a private person has no need of them, even cleaning out is not allowed. R. Ashi remarked: Our own Mishnah is also precisely worded [to the same effect] as it states AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED. What is the force of ALL? Is it not meant to include digging? — No; it is to include [other instances] such as are taught [in the following]: 'They [Public Commissioners] go forth to clear the roads of thorns, to mend the broadways and [main] highways and to measure the [ritual] pools; and if any [ritual] pools be found short of forty [cubic] se'ahs of water⁸ they train a continuous flow into it [to ensure] forty se'ahs'. And whence do we know that if they did not go forth and attend to all these [public needs], then if any blood be shed there [through] this neglect [Scripture] lays [blame] on them, as if they themselves had shed it? From the instructive text, And so blood be upon thee.⁹ But surely [the Mishnah does] state these instances expressly: AND ROADS, BROADWAYS AND [RITUAL] WATER POOLS AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED! What else [then] may be included under this word ALL? Is it not digging [afresh if required by the public]? This proves it.

AND GRAVESIDES MAY BE MARKED. R. Simeon b. Pazzi said: Where is an indication in the Torah that gravesides should be marked? In the instructive text: [And when they pass through . . . the land] and one seeth a man's bone then shall he set up a sign by it.¹⁰ Said Rabina to R. Ashi, But who told us that¹¹ before Ezekiel came? — [Said the other]: Accepting your view, with regard to the statement made by R. Hisda¹² [namely]: This point we do not learn from the law of our Master Moses; we learn it from the words of [prophet] Ezekiel the son of Buzi: No alien, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into My Sanctuary.¹³ [We might equally ask], who had told us that before Ezekiel came and stated it? Only, that was first learnt by oral tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave us a textual basis for it; here too, it was first learnt as an oral tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave us a textual basis for it. R. Abbahu suggested that it may be derived from this [text]: And he shall cry, 'Unclean! Unclean!'¹⁴ [That is], impurity cries out [to the passer-by] and tells him, 'Keep off!' And R. 'Uzziel, the grandson of the elder R. 'Uzziel said the same, [that] impurity cries out and tells him, 'Keep off!' But was this [text] intended for this lesson? It is required for what has been taught: And he shall cry 'Unclean! Unclean!'; [this teaches that] one must needs make his distress known to many, that many pray for mercy on his behalf? — If that be so, let the text read 'Unclean' [but once]; why has it 'Unclean', 'Unclean' [twice over]? Infer [from it] the two points. Abaye said [that the rule¹⁵ may be derived] from here: And put not a stumbling-block before the blind.¹⁶ R. Papa said: And he will say, Cast ye up, cast ye up, clear the way.¹⁷ R. Hinena suggested, Take up the stumbling-block out of the way of My people.¹⁷ R. Joshua the son of R. Idi said: And thou shalt show them the way wherein they must walk.¹⁸ Mar Zutra said: And ye shall separate the Children of Israel from their uncleanness.¹⁹ R. Ashi said: And they shall have charge of My charge,²⁰ [which implies], make safeguards to My charge. Rabina said: And to him who ordereth²¹ [we-sam] his way will I show the salvation of God.²²

Said R. Joshua b. Levi, Whoever appraises [ha-sham] his ways [in this life]²³ becomes privileged to behold the salvation of the Holy One, blessed be He, for it is said: '[And to him] who ordereth his way'.²² Read not [we-sam]²⁴ who sets [his way], but [we-sham]²⁵ who appraises the worth [of his way], him will I show the divine salvation. Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 5b

. He [R. Jannai] applied to him the text: And to him who ordereth his way will I show the salvation of God.¹

Our Rabbis taught: 'No markings are made to indicate [the presence of] a piece of flesh² [from a corpse] no larger than an olive, nor of [human] bone no larger than a barley-corn,³ nor of any [human] remains which do not diffuse defilement under 'tent'.⁴ But markings are made to indicate [the presence of] a [human] spine, a skull or the major members of a skeleton or the major number of lesser bones thereof.⁵ And the markings are not made in cases of certainty⁶ but [only] in cases of uncertainty. These are [instances of] uncertainty: Leafy bowers,⁷ jutting ledges⁸ and a Peras-area.⁹ And the markings are not placed on the site of the impurity [itself], in order to avoid wasting what is [preserved as] pure;¹⁰ nor is the marking placed far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting any space¹¹ of the Land of Israel'.¹² But does not flesh of an olive's size from a human body diffuse defilement under a tent? For we learned: 'The following diffuse defilement by tent [overspreading]: Flesh of an olive's size from a human dead body . . .!' — Said R. Papa, We speak here of an olive's size precisely which after all shrinks [to less]: far better is it that terumah and other meats that are pure¹³ should be burnt [unnecessarily] on one occasion¹⁴ than that they should be burnt continuously.¹⁵

And these are [instances] of uncertainty: Leafy bowers and jutting ledges.¹⁶ 'Leafy bowers' [means] a tree which overspreads the ground¹⁷ and 'jutting ledges' are [stones]¹⁸ projecting from wall enclosure.¹⁷ 'And a Peras-area': as we learned: 'One who runs a plough over a grave makes the site a Peras-area'; and how much thereof has he thus affected? The full length of a furrow, one hundred cubits [each way].¹⁹ But does a Peras-area convey defilement by tent? Surely, Rab Judah, citing Samuel, said that one [a pilgrim] may walk across a Peras-area cautiously fanning his way [in front of him].²⁰ Moreover, R. Judah b. Ammi, in the name of 'Ulla, said that a Peras-area which has been [much] trampled is [considered as] clean?²¹ — Said R. Papa: 'This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]. The former statement refers to a field where a grave has become lost;²² whereas the latter refers to a field where a grave had been run over by the plough'.²³ But is a field where a grave has been lost²⁴ [correctly] called a Peras-area? — Yes [indeed], for we learned: 'There are three kinds of Peras-areas — [a] a field where a grave has been lost²⁵ [b] a field where a grave has been run over by the plough²⁶ and [c] the weepers' field'.²⁷ What is the weepers' field? — R. Joshua²⁸ b. Abba explained in the name of 'Ulla that it is a field where they bid final farewell²⁹ to the dead. And wherefore [is it held as a defiling area]? — Said [R. Hisda, as reporting]³⁰ Abimi, [It is] because there is here a possibility³¹ of abandoned ownership.³² But does not a field where a grave has been run over by the plough require to be marked? Surely it is taught: 'If one came upon a marked field without knowing its character,³³ then if there are trees on it, it is thereby indicated that a grave in it had been run over by the plough;³⁴ if there are no trees, it is thereby indicated that a grave has been lost in it.³⁵ R. Judah says: [The presence of trees is no criterion] until there is some elder or disciple [to attest it], for not all are well versed on the subject [of proper markings]'! — Said R. Papa: What is taught in this [latter Baraita] refers to a field in which a grave had been lost, and which had [consequently] been marked. If there are trees on it, it is thereby indicated that a grave had been run over by the plough [subsequently]; if there are no trees on it, it is indicated that a grave had been lost in it.³⁶ But is there not a danger that the trees are situate within the field and the grave was outside?³⁷ — as 'Ulla said [elsewhere that we speak of a case where]³⁸ the trees are situate on the boundaries [of the field] here likewise they were situate on the boundary line.³⁹

(2) As flesh soon shrinks to less than its (traditional) minimum size of an olive and is then impotent to cause defilement without direct contact, Num. XIX, 13-16; Ohal. II, 3.

(3) Which is (traditionally) the minimum size for human bone to cause defilement by direct contact. V. references in previous note and Tosaf. s.v. עצם.

(4) Anything extending to one handbreadth over dead human remains represents the 'tent' of Num. XIX, 14, to diffuse defilement without contact, unless it is less than the minimum size.

(5) Any of these enumerated defile under cover without coming into direct contact with the object or grave. Any covering to the extent of one handbreadth, say his coat tail or sleeve spread, or hanging down over the spot, is enough to defile him, even if neither he nor his garment touch the unclean thing or spot.

(6) As people take care of their own accord not to run the risk of personal defilement or the loss of sacred meats.

(7) Lit., 'coverings', arbours, groves, avenues or single trees whose thick branches are full of foliage, constitute a 'tent', to spread the defilement to the walker; cf. Tosaf. s.v. אילן.

- (21) And need not be marked or avoided. (Han.).
- (22) And, as it cannot be located, the whole field is considered a place of defilement.
- (23) The plough, we assume, crushes the bones rendering them impotent to communicate tent-defilement.

- (39) And since dead are not buried on the road, the grave must be among the trees and has been run over by the plough, when the field has been tilled for the good of the trees.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 6a

But perhaps the defilement lies within the field while the trees stand on the outer sides [of it]?¹ — They were planted irregularly.² Or, if you like, I may explain by what was said above: Nor is the marking placed far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting any space of the Land of Israel.³

'R. Judah says [the presence of trees is no criterion] until there be some elder or disciple [to attest that it has been ploughed], for not all are well versed in the subject [of markings]'. Said Abaye: You may infer from here, that when a scholar is resident in a place, all local matters devolve upon him.

Said Rab Judah: If one comes across a [single] stone which is marked [with lime], the space under it is defiled; if two stones [with markings] then if there is lime on the space between them, the space between is defiled, and if there is no lime between them, the intervening space is clean, even though there is no [sign of] tilling [there]. But surely it is taught: 'If one comes upon one stone which is marked, the space under it is defiled, if on two stones, if there is tilling between them, the intervening space is clean, if not, it is defiled'? — Said R. Papa. Here [it is a case where] the lime had been poured on top of the stones and got spread here and there. [Now] if there is any tilling [in the space] between them, [the space] between is clean, because it may be presumed that the [splashed] lime had got peeled off by the tilling; whereas if there is not [any trace of tilling] the lime is intended to mark the space between and it is 'defiled'.

Said R. Assi:⁴ If one boundary is marked, that side [alone] is 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is 'clean'. If two [are marked] those [alone] are 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is 'clean'; if three [are marked], those are 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is clean; if the four [boundaries are marked] they are clean and the entire field [within] is 'defiled', for the Master⁵ said: 'Nor is the marking place far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting space of the Land of Israel'.⁶

AND [PUBLIC COMMISSIONERS] SET OUT [ALSO] TO INSPECT DIVERSE SEED-CROPS. But do we set out for inspecting seed-crops during the festival week? This is contradicted by the [following]: On the first of Adar announcements are made about the [contribution of] shekels and about the diverse crops. On the fifteenth thereof the scroll [of Esther] is read in the [ancient] walled cities and [commissioners] go forth to clear the roads of thorns, mend the broadways, measure the [ritual] water-pools and to perform all public needs, and they mark the gravesides and go forth to inspect the diverse seed-crops?⁷ — R. Eleazar and R. Jose b. Hanina [gave differing explanations], One said, The latter statement speaks of earlier crops,⁸ the other of later⁹ crops; the other said, In one case⁸ [they go out to attend] to grain crops, in the others to vegetable crops.

R. Assi, reporting R. Johanan said: The rule laid down [in the Mishnah] applies only when the sproutings [of the season are late and] had not become recognizable¹⁰ [before then]; but where the sproutings had become recognizable [before], they went forth about them [even earlier].

Why do we particularly set out during the festival week? R. Jacob reporting R. Johanan explained that it was because the wages given for labour are then low with us.¹¹

R. Zebid, or some say, R. Mesharsheya said: From the afore — mentioned [explanation] you may infer that when pay was given,¹² it was given them out of the Terumah of the [Shekel] Chamber;¹³ for if you should suppose that they [the owners of the fields] themselves paid, what difference does it make to us? Let them pay whatever they ask.¹⁴

And how much [constitutes an admixture]?¹⁵ Said R. Samuel b. Isaac, The same as we learned:¹⁶ Every se'ah of seeds that contains one quarter [of a kab]¹⁷

(1) And the grave has not been disturbed at all. What is the indication of the trees in such a case?

(2) Not in even rows, but promiscuously and thus the whole site had to be disturbed by the ploughing.

(3) [And since the marking is in proximity to the trees, it is evident that the defilement lay between the trees].

(4) Explaining the precise principle and system of marking, by confining the markings close to the spot of defilement.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 6b

of another kind must be reduced.¹ But it is taught: They [the authorities] introduced a rule that they should declare ownerless the [crop of the] entire field? — That is not difficult [to explain]. The former [Mishnah] states the practice before the [new] rule, while the latter [of the Baraitha] gives the practice after the [introduction] of the rule, as it is [distinctly] taught: Formerly they [the public commissioners] used to uproot [the diverse-crop], throwing it to the cattle, at which the owners were doubly pleased, for one thing that they weeded their fields for them, and again that they threw [the forbidden crop] to the cattle; thereupon they made a [new] regulation that they should pull up [the forbidden crop] and cast it on the road. And still the owners were greatly pleased, because they weeded their fields. Thereupon they instituted that they should declare ownerless the crop of the entire field.²

MISHNAH. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: WATER MAY BE DRAWN FROM [ONE] TREE TO [ANOTHER] TREE,³ PROVIDED THE WHOLE FIELD IS NOT WATERED IN THIS WAY.⁴ SEEDS⁵ THAT HAVE NOT HAD [ANY] DRINK BEFORE THE FESTIVAL WEEK MAY NOT BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK.⁶ THE SAGES HOWEVER ALLOW IT IN BOTH THE ONE CASE AND THE OTHER.⁷

GEMARA. [NOT...THE ENTIRE FIELD]. Said Rab Judah,⁸ If the field has a clayey⁹ soil he may [water it].¹⁰ It is likewise taught:¹¹ When they said¹² that it is forbidden to water them during the festival [week], they referred only to seeds that had not drunk before the festival; but seeds that had drunk before the festival may [again] be watered during the festival [week]; and if the field was a clayey soil, it is allowed [to water it]. And a bare¹³ field is not watered during the festival [week]; but the Sages allow it¹⁴ in the one case and in the other. Said Rabina: You may infer from here that a garden plot may be sprinkled¹⁵ in the festival week. For in the case of a bare field, why is it [permitted]?¹⁶ Because it just quickens a tardy soil; here too, it just quickens a tardy soil.

Our Rabbis taught: 'A white field may be sprinkled¹⁷ in the sabbatical year, but not during the festival [week]'. But it has been taught: It may be sprinkled either in the sabbatical year or during the festival [week]?¹⁸ — Said R. Huna, This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]; the former [quotation] states the view of R. Eliezer b. Jacob¹⁹ and the latter that of the Rabbis.²⁰

Another [Baraitha] taught: A white field may be²¹ sprinkled in the pre-sabbatical year so that the greens may sprout in the sabbatical year. Nay, more, a white field may be²¹ sprinkled in the sabbatical year, so that the greens may sprout [better] in the post-sabbatical year.

MISHNAH. MOLES AND MICE MAY BE TRAPPED IN A TREE-FIELD OR WHITE FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY²² DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR: BUT THE SAGES²³ SAY, IN THE TREE-FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY AND IN THE WHITE FIELD NOT IN THE USUAL WAY: AND A BREACH MAY BE BLOCKED UP DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR ONE MAY BUILD IN THE USUAL WAY.

GEMARA. What is ESHUTH?²⁴ — Said Rab Judah: [It is] a creature which has no eyes. Raba b. Ishmael, some say, R. Yemar b. Shelemia, said, What [may be the] text [for this]? — ‘Let them [the wicked] be as a snail which melteth and passeth away; like the young mole [esheth]²⁵ which hath not seen the sun.’²⁶

Our Rabbis taught: Moles and mice may be trapped in a white field and in a tree-field in the usual way and ants’ holes may also be destroyed. How are they destroyed? Rabbah Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Earth is fetched from one hole and put into another and they²⁷ strangle each other. R. Yemar b. Shelemia said in the name of Abaye, That is [effective] only if [the nests are] situate on two sides of the river; and that [again], if there is no bridge; and that [again], if there is not [even] a [crossing] plank; and that [again], if there is not even a rope [to cross by].

(1) Or when already sown and sprouting the admixture is to be pulled up.

(2) As a deterrent, s.v. Shek. 1, 3.

(3) If the fruit-trees need it.

(4) I.e., under this pretext.

(5) Grain crops, white and leguminous, in contrast to fruit-trees.

(6) Either because they then require fuller attention, entailing greater exertion, or to discourage leaving the task for this week of leisure.

(7) The Sages disagree in both clauses of the Mishnah, i.e., that they do allow watering the entire orchard by training from tree to tree, and allow watering seeds even if they had not been watered before the festival.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 7a

How much [apart]? — Up to a parasang.¹

R. JUDAH² SAYS: IN THE TREE-FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY AND IN THE WHITE FIELD NOT IN THE USUAL WAY. Our Rabbis taught: How is the usual way? He digs a hole and suspends a trap in it. How is the unusual way? He drives a stake [into the spot] or strikes it with a pick and flattens out the soil underneath.³ It is taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar⁴ says, When they⁵ said, [‘And in the white field not in the usual way’], they said it only in reference to a white field situate near the city; but in a white field that is situate near a tree-field [they may trap them] even in the usual way, lest these [pests] come away from the white field and destroy the tree-field.

AND A BREACH IS BLOCKED UP DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. How is it ‘blocked up’? — Said R. Joseph: With [a hurdle made of] twigs and daphne stakes. In a Baraita it is taught: ‘Loose rubble is piled up without being plastered with clay.’⁶ Said R. Hisda, This⁷ is taught only with regard to a garden wall,⁸ but the wall of a court⁹ is built in the usual way. Might one suggest that the following supports him: A wall that is bulging out into the public domain may be pulled down and built in the usual way, because it constitutes a danger [to the passers-by]!¹⁰ — [Not necessarily]. There the reason is as stated: ‘Because it constitutes a danger’. Some [put the argument] as follows: Come and hear: A wall that is bulging out into the public domain may be pulled down and built in the ordinary way, because it constitutes a danger. That is, where it constitutes a danger he may, but if it is not a danger he may not build. May we see in this a confutation of R. Hisda? — [Not necessarily], as R. Hisda might reply: There¹¹ he may ‘pull down and build’, whereas here¹² he may build¹³ but not pull down. Then let one in that case¹¹ likewise [merely] pull down¹⁴ and not build!¹⁵ — If so, he might refrain even from pulling down.¹⁶ R. Ashi said: Our Mishnah, here, gives an indication to the same effect,¹⁷ for it states: BUT IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR, ONE BUILDS IN THE ORDINARY WAY. Now of what is it [that he may block up the breach]? If it means [the wall of] his courtyard, does this need to be stated?¹⁸ It can only be, therefore [a breach in] his garden [wall] although he might seem to be doing it in order to safeguard his fruits.¹⁹ You can infer it [from this].

MISHNAH.²⁰ R. MEIR SAYS: AN [INITIAL]²¹ INSPECTION OF LEPROUS SYMPTOMS MAY BE MADE [DURING THE FESTIVAL ‘WEEK’]²² FOR [THE PRIEST TO MAKE] A LENIENT PRONOUNCEMENT²³ [ON THE FINDINGS], BUT NOT TO MAKE A SEVERE²⁴ PRONOUNCEMENT; BUT THE SAGES SAY: [IT IS TO BE MADE] NEITHER FOR A LENIENT NOR FOR A SEVERE PRONOUNCEMENT.²⁵

GEMARA. It is taught: R. Meir says that an inspection is made [during the festival week] to make a lenient pronouncement but not for a severe one. R. Jose says: Neither for making a lenient nor a severe pronouncement;²⁶ as, if you arrive at the necessity of having to make a lenient pronouncement [on the findings] you are [likewise] bound to make a severe pronouncement. Said Rabbi: R. Meir's statement seems appropriately applied to the case of an [observational] detention²⁷ and R. Jose's to that of a decided leper.²⁸

Said Raba, In the case of one who is [as yet nominally] ‘clean’,²⁹ all are agreed that he is not examined.³⁰ In regard to one under preliminary [observational] detention, all agree that he is examined;³¹ where a difference of opinion arises is

Neg. III, 1. (b) On the findings of the first inspection the priest pronounced the patient either (i) as 'clean' and discharged, or as 'unclean', to be isolated; and (ii) in some cases of doubt, to be remanded for seven days' observational detention. Cf. Lev. XIII, 2-4ff; Neg. III, 3-4. (c) After a second inspection in doubtful cases, the priest pronounced the patient either 'clean' or 'unclean' as before, or if still in doubt a further remand for seven days' observational detention. Cf. Lev. ibid. 5-8; 13-17; Neg. ibid. 5-6. (d) On the third and final inspection he declared him 'clean' and discharged or 'unclean' to be isolated, until he recovered from his affection. During these periods the patient was allowed to consort with his wife. (e) On his recovery the patient went through two ritual purifications, (i) a preliminary, outside the town and returned home for seven days, during which, however, he was not to consort with his wife; cf. Lev. XIV, 2-8; Neg. XIV, 1-2. He then went through a second ritual purification which admitted him to the sanctuary for the sacrificial rites. Lev. XIV, 9ff; Neg. ibid. 3 and 7ff.

in the case of one under a second [observational] detention: one Master [R. Meir] considers that it is left to [the discretion of] the priest, so that if the patient is [found] 'clean' he declares him 'clean', and if he is [found] 'unclean' he holds his peace; while the other Master [R. Jose] considers that, [since] it is written: [This is the law of the plague and leprosy. . .], to pronounce it clean or unclean,¹ [the priest has no choice].²

The Master said: Said Rabbi, R. Jose's statement seems appropriately applied to the case of a decided leper³ and R. Meir's to one under [observational] detention.⁴ But the reverse⁵ is taught [elsewhere]? — Both versions are [variant] tannaitic interpretations of Rabbi's observation. One [authority]⁶ is of the opinion that the patient prefers the company of the world at large⁷ [during the Festival], while the other [authority]⁸ holds that he prefers to retain his wife's company.⁹

Is that to say that [according to Rabbi]¹⁰ a confirmed leper may have the use of the [conjugal] bed? — [Yes], it is taught: But he shall dwell outside his tent seven days,¹¹ [that is] he shall be¹² precluded from the use of the [conjugal] bed; for 'tent' means nothing but [living with] his wife, as it is said: Go, say unto them, return ye unto your tents.¹³ R. Judah says:¹⁴ [It is written,] [And after he is cleansed] they shall reckon for him seven days,¹⁵ [which implies that he is precluded only] while counting his seven days ['after he is cleansed] but not while he is a confirmed leper'. R. Jose b. Judah says: '[I take it to mean he is precluded] while counting seven days [and] all the more so while he is a confirmed leper'. 'And' 'said R. Hiyya: 'I argued on this point before Rabbi'. Our Master! [said I], You taught that [King] Jotham could not have been born unto Uzziah¹⁶ save during the time that he was a confirmed leper,¹⁷ [to which] Rabbi replied, 'and I said so too'.¹⁸

Wherein do they differ? — R. Jose b. Judah argues that as the All Merciful has plainly indicated¹⁹ that a convalescent leper ['shall dwell outside his tent']²⁰ while counting his seven days [of preliminary ritual purification] it is all the more [to be expected that he be apart from his wife] while being in the state of a confirmed leper; and the [other] Master [Rabbi] argues that what has been plainly indicated is [to be kept as] indicated and what has not been indicated is not [to be assumed as] indicated.²¹

[Reverting to Raba's explanation above], do you mean to say that [the postponement of an unfavourable pronouncement or of the time of inspection]²² is [solely] dependent on the discretion of the priest?²³ — Yea, indeed, as it is taught [in the following]: And on a day when [raw flesh] shall be seen in him [he shall be unclean; and the priest shall lood on the raw flesh and pronounce him unclean],²⁴ which means that there is a day when you do see it in him as well as a day when you do not see it in him. Hence said they [the Sages] that if a groom developed symptoms of leprosy they grant him [delay of inspection to the end of] the seven days of the [marriage] feast,²⁵ whether it be his person, or his house²⁶ or his garment²⁷ [that is affected]; and likewise [if the symptoms developed] during a festival they grant him [the patient] all²⁸ the seven days of the festival: thus R. Judah. Rabbi says: There is no need [to resort to this text] as it says: And the priest shall command that they empty the house²⁹ [before the priest goes in to see the plague that all that is in the house be not made unclean].³⁰ Now if [the inspection is] here delayed for his convenience, which is just an optional [matter],³¹ may it not all the more be deferred for his [due observance of a] religious obligation?³² What is the [actual] issue between them? — Said Abaye: Merely the different expository results obtained by each from his text. And Rab said, it is the delay of inspection in an optional [matter]³³ that is the issue between them, R. Judah [holding] that from the [other] text [cited above by Rabbi]³⁴ we cannot learn [this],³⁵ as it is an anomaly,³⁶

(3) To make no inspection so as to avoid the adverse decision being given in the festival week.

(5) Viz., that R. Jose's ruling is appropriate to a case under second observation and R. Meir's to that of a confirmed leper.

- (6) The second Baraitha which regards the view of R. Meir as appropriate to a confirmed leper and that of R. Jose to a case under second detention.
- (7) Thus: R. Meir, having in mind a confirmed leper, says: 'Inspect him now to mitigate his plight. If he is still a leper, he loses nothing. If he is found cured, he can at once get back to the town by beginning his first ritual cleansing; and although he has thereupon to part from his wife for seven days, he does not mind it as he prefers to get back to his friends in town'. And R. Jose, thinking of the case of a second detention, says: 'No inspection! For if you find him a leper you must confirm him as such and send him into complete isolation, right away from everybody (save from his wife)'.
- (8) The first Baraitha quoted.
- (9) Thus: R. Jose, thinking of a confirmed leper says: 'No inspection! For if you examine and find him clean" (cured), he must at once begin counting seven days of his ceremonial cleansing (referred to infra) and live apart from his wife. Leave him alone, therefore, just now; he prefers his wife's company to getting back to the town'. And R. Meir, thinking of a case of second observation, says: 'Examine him to ease his plight. If you find him "clean" (cured) he is happy with the favourable decision; if "unclean", (make no pronouncement just yet, or) even if you declare him a confirmed leper and he had to be strictly isolated, he will not be much worse off, as he still retains his wife's company'.
- (10) As implied in the discussion.

inasmuch as wood and stones elsewhere are not subject to [ceremonial] uncleanness whereas here [in a house affected by leprosy] they are [made] subject to uncleanness. And [on the other hand] Rabbi says [that this text] is also needed.¹ For had the All Merciful prescribed [only], 'And on a day when [raw flesh] shall be seen in him . . .' I might have said that postponement [of inspection or pronouncement on the findings] is granted only for the [due observance of a] religious obligation, but not for the sake of an optional [matter]; therefore did the All Merciful prescribe also, 'And the priest shall command'. Again, had the All Merciful prescribed only 'And the priest shall command that they empty the house . . .', I might have said that [postponement is granted] in the case of these effects [of the house] because the uncleanness is not that of a person, but where the uncleanness is that of a person I might say that the priest should inspect him, [without delay]: therefore it is necessary [to have both texts].

The Master said: 'There is a day when you do see it in him and there is a day when you do not see it in him. How is this implied? — Said Abaye, If it is just so,² the Divine Law should have written: 'On a day [when]'; what then is the [import of] 'And on a day [when]'? From this you infer that there is 'a day' when you see in him . . . and there is 'a day' when you do not see . . . in him. Raba said: The whole text³ is redundant altogether for if it be just so,⁴ Divine Law might have had 'And when [raw flesh] is seen [in him]'. What then is the import of the [amplification] 'And on a day'?⁵ From this infer that there is a day when you do see it in him and there is a day when you do not see it in him.⁶ And Abaye?⁷ He needs that [to teach that the inspection is held] by 'day', and not at night.⁸ And whence derives Raba this [point] 'by day and not at night'? — It is derived by him from, 'According to all the sight of the eyes of the priest'.⁹ And Abaye? — He needs that [text] to exclude a person blind in one eye [inspecting a leper]. But does not Raba also require this text for that same point? — Yea, [he does] so also. But then, whence [does he derive the point] 'by day but not at night'? — He derives it from, 'Like as a plague was seen by me in the house',¹⁰ [that is, seen] by me, not by [the aid of] my [candle] light. And Abaye?¹¹ — If he did learn from there, I might have said that these [restrictions] obtain [only] where the uncleanness is not personal [of one's body]; but where uncleanness is that of the body, [it may be inspected] also by one's [candle] light. [Therefore] the [original] text¹² conveys it to us [best].

MISHNAH. FURTHERMORE R. MEIR SAID, A MAN MAY GATHER¹³ HIS FATHER'S AND MOTHER'S BONES,¹⁴ SINCE THIS IS [AN OCCASION] 'OF JOY' FOR HIM;¹⁵ R. JOSE SAYS, IT IS AN [OCCASION] 'OF MOURNING'¹⁶ FOR HIM. A PERSON SHOULD NOT STIR UP WAILING¹⁷ FOR HIS DEAD, NOR HOLD A LAMENTATION¹⁸ FOR HIM THIRTY DAYS BEFORE A FEAST.

GEMARA. AS IT IS A JOY FOR HIM. [The following] was cited in contrast to this: 'One who gathers his father's or mother's bones holds himself in mourning for them all the day,¹⁹ but in the evening he does not hold himself in mourning for them [any longer].' And R. Hisda commented thereon, even if he had them by him tied up in a sheet.²⁰ Said Abaye, I should suggest [it means], 'because the joyousness of the feast prevails with him'.²¹

A PERSON SHOULD NOT STIR UP A WAILING FOR HIS DEAD: What is the meaning of 'stirring up a wailing for one's dead'? Rab said: In Palestine [it is customary that] whenever a professional lamenter comes round people say, 'Let all those who are sore at heart weep with him.

THIRTY DAYS BEFORE A FEAST. Why [just] thirty days? R. Kahana said that Rab Judah as reporting Rab told him that once it happened that a man saved money to 'go up for the feast'²² [to Jerusalem] when a [professional] lamenter came and stopped at his door and the wife took her husband's savings and gave them to him, and so he was prevented from going. Then it was that they [the Rabbis] said, One should not stir up a wailing for his dead, nor hold a [funerary] lament for him thirty days before a Feast; but Samuel gave another reason, namely,

- (1) I.e., although Rabbi holds that delay is afforded in the case of body leprosy even for the sake of an optional matter on the analogy of leprosy of houses etc., yet he requires the verse quoted by R. Judah.
- (2) To be read just ordinarily.
- (3) The word 'on a day'.
- (4) To be read just ordinarily.
- (5) Which suggests, 'yet another day'.
- (6) Cf. Yeb. 72b.
- (7) Why does he not explain thus the redundant phrase 'on a day'?
- (8) Cf. Shab. 132a.
- (9) Lev. XIII. 12, so lit. This implies that it must be held by day when it can be seen well.
- (10) Ibid. XIV, 35.
- (11) Why does he not derive it from this latter text.
- (12) 'And on a day etc.' that there is a time when you see etc.
- (13) During the festival (week).
- (14) It was an ancient custom to give first a temporary burial, and after the flesh had decayed to transfer the bones to a reserved tomb or mausoleum, where they were kept in cedar or marble coffins. Cf. Sem. XII.
- (15) To perform a filial duty while he is free to go and 'bring them home' to their assigned resting place. There is another possible meaning, see the discussion later.
- (16) And should not be undertaken during the festival week.
- (17) The meaning apparently is (as explained by Rab later) to join others in lamenting their dead and resuscitate ones own old grief on the occasion. A funeral in the town or village provided a good occasion for such a renewed lament, when professional funerary orators, 'lamenters' and female dirge-singers, were available.
- (18) I.e., The ceremonial lament for an individual at the time of his death and funeral.
- (19) Contrary to R. Meir who allows it during the festival week and furthermore says, 'it is a joy for him'.
- (20) Even if he had not gathered them himself that day, their presence is mournful enough and it is surprising that R. Meir allowed transference and even said 'it was a joy for him'.
- (21) Not that it is an occasion of joy, but that the joy of the festive season prevails in dispensing with formal mourning. Or, that the performance of his filial duty will afford him a sense of satisfaction throughout the remaining festival days (J.M.K.).
- (22) On one of the three pilgrim feasts. V. Deut. XVI, 16. Cf. Ex. XXIII, 14ff. ibid. XXXIV, 23. The festival atmosphere is introduced by the study and discussion of its laws thirty days before. Pes. 6b.

because the dead cannot be put out of mind and heart for [at least] thirty days. What practical difference is there between the two [explanations]? — There is [a difference] between them, where [say], the [professional] lamenter does it without a charge.¹

MISHNAH. KUKIN² AND BURIAL PLACES³ MAY NOT BE DUG IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: BUT KUKIN MAY BE ADAPTED⁴ DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND A NIBREKETH⁵ MAY BE MADE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND A BOX, WITH THE DEAD [BODY] CLOSE BY IN THE COURT [YARD]: R. JUDAH FORBIDS, UNLESS THERE ARE SAWN BOARDS AT HAND.

GEMARA. What are KUKIN and what are BURIAL PLACES? — Said Rab Judah, kukin are [recesses made] by excavation and 'burial-places' [are structures made by] building. It is [actually] taught thus: 'These are kukin and these are burial places: Kukin, are [niches made] by excavation and 'burial places' are [structures made] by building'.

BUT KUKIN MAY BE ADAPTED. How are they adapted? — Rab Judah said: If [for instance] one is [too] long it may be shortened. A. Tanna taught: ‘He lengthens or shortens [the recess] within⁶ [the cave]’.

AND THEY [MAY] MAKE A NIBREKETH⁷ . . . What is NIBREKETH?⁸ — Rab Judah said: It is [the same as] bekia’.⁹ But then, is it not taught: ‘The nibreketh and the bekia’ [etc.]?¹⁰ — Abaye, or as some say R. Kahana, replied [They have the same relation as] a trough and a troughlet.¹¹

AND A RON WITH THE DEAD [BODY] CLOSE BY IN THE COURT [YARD]. We learn here what our Rabbis taught [elsewhere]: ‘They [may] do all that the dead requires, they cut his hair and wash a garment for him and make him a box of boards that had been sawn on the day before the Festival. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, they [may] even bring trees and he saws them [into] boards in his house, behind closed doors’.

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT TAKE A WIFE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], WHETHER A VIRGIN OR A WIDOW, NOR EFFECT A LEVIRATE MARRIAGE,¹² AS IT IS A REJOICING FOR THE GROOM; BUT ONE MAY REMARRY HIS DIVORCED WIFE. AND A WOMAN MAY MAKE HER ADORNMENTS IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. R. JUDAH SAYS, SHE MAY NOT USE LIME,¹³ AS THAT IS A [TEMPORARY] DISFIGUREMENT TO HER. AN ORDINARY PERSON SEWS IN THE USUAL WAY; BUT A CRAFTSMAN SEWS A TUCK-STITCH.¹⁴ AND THE CORDS¹⁵ IN BED-FRAMES MAY BE INTERLACED. R. JOSE SAYS, THEY MAY [ONLY] BE TIGHTENED. GEMARA. [A REJOICING FOR THE GROOM]. And if it is a rejoicing for him, what is amiss? — Said Rab Judah, as reporting Samuel, and so said R. Eleazar, as reporting R. Oshaia — and some say, R. Eleazar, as reporting R. Hanina: — It is [barred], because one ‘rejoicing’ may not be merged in another ‘rejoicing’.¹⁶ Rabbah son of R. Huna said: It is [barred] because he abandons the ‘rejoicing’ of the festival and busies himself with that of his wife. Said Abaye to R. Joseph: That explanation of Rabbah son of R. Huna is the same as that given by Rab. For R. Daniel b. Kattina reporting Rab, said, Whence [is the ruling] that ONE MAY NOT TAKE A WIFE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]? For it is said, And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast,¹⁷ [that is,] in ‘thy feast’, but not with thy [new] wife [instead]. ‘Ulla said, [It is] because of the exertion [it occasions]. R. Isaac b. Nappaha said, Because it may cause a decline in marriage and parenthood.¹⁸

An objection was raised: ‘All those who have been declared to be forbidden to take wives during the festival [week]

(1) According to the former view (of Rab), even if performed gratis it may not be held, as the bitterness and grief are thereby being roused too near the festive time. Cf. Tosaf. s.v. דקא.

(2) כוכין (plural of כוך) are loculi, or recesses, excavated in the sides of a sepulchral cave. V. B.B. 100bff, (Sonc. ed. p. 421ff.)

(3) A sepulchral tomb, mausoleum, built above the ground.

(4) I.e., one of the loculi already excavated may be adapted to receive a particular corpse during the festival week.

(5) נברכת seems to denote a kind of (stone) tank, or trough used by fullers in which they soaked and cleansed soiled woollens. Cf. B.B. 19a. (Sonc. ed. p. 96). From the context however, it is quite obvious as Ritba points out — that here it is not the fuller's trough or tank, but the dead man's sarcophagus, a stone, clay or wooden coffin (box) that is allowed, such as the labella-troughs used as coffins.

(6) Tosef. M.K. I, 9.

(7) V. p. 42, n. 5.

(8) This word (connected with ברכה — the fuller's trench or pool in Isa. VII, 3) is most probably of Assyrian origin as the form with initial N instead of M suggests, cf. מרכבת with narkabtu. V. J.H.

(9) A small hollow creek.

(10) Which shows that they are not identical.

(11) Lit. , 'son of a trough'.

(12) The marriage of a deceased's brother's widow, if the deceased had died absolutely childless. This was an obligation on the brother to keep his deceased brother's memory alive. Deut. XXV, 5ff.

(13) As a depilatory.

(14) Or with irregular stitches, like a dog's teeth. It means here that a craftsman should not do skilled work, only what is barely needed for the festival week.

(15) Or girths that support the bedding.

(16) I.e., the festival will lose its own significance in the marriage festivities.

(17) Deut. XVI, 14.

(18) Lit., '(the precept of) being fruitful and multiplying. If marriages were to be deferred till the festival season when people are free, there would be a likelihood that some might never take place at other times, apart from the congestion that such a practice might cause; and others might come to nothing because of the delay through innumerable other causes. Marriage and parenthood are a primary duty of man and should receive every consideration. Cf. Gen. I, 27-28; II, 18, 24; IX, 1; Isa. XLV, 18.

are free to marry on the day previous to the festival', which presents a difficulty to all those authorities. — There is no difficulty: As to one who states [that it is forbidden] because of the 'rejoicing', [it may be said that] the main rejoicing [of a marriage celebration] lasts mainly one day.¹ As to the one who states [that it is] because of the exertion [it occasions here too] the main exertion falls on one day.¹ As to the one who says [that it is] because it may lead to a decline in marriage and parenthood, [it may be said] that for the sake of one day² a person would not put himself off [indefinitely].³ Whence do we derive the principle that 'rejoicing should not be merged in rejoicing'? From the text: So Solomon made the feast at that time and all Israel with him, a great congregation from the entrance of Hamath unto the Brook of Egypt, before the Lord our God seven days and seven days, even fourteen days.⁴ Now, if it is the fact that one rejoicing may be merged in another rejoicing, he should have kept back the consecration ceremony [of the Temple] for the time of the feast and then have held it for seven days [concurrently], for both one and the other.⁵ Maybe that the rule is [only] that we should not [deliberately keep a marriage] for the time of a festival,⁶ but where it so turns out to be [opportune], we might as well hold it then? — [If so], Solomon should have left some small part [unfinished].⁷ But perhaps this could not be done because we brook no delay in the building of the Temple!⁸ — Then he could have left [say], an ell of the Ravens' Scare Palisade.⁹ [But, it may be asked,] The ell of the Ravens' Scare Palisade was an essential part of the Temple building!¹⁰ Rather [it is derived] from [the fact that] the text is redundant. Consider, it is written 'fourteen days', wherefore the need of 'seven days and seven days'? Infer from this that these [first] seven days and those [second] seven days were distinct from each other.

R. Parnak, reporting R. Johanan, said that that year Israel did not observe the Day of Atonement, whereat they were perturbed, saying, that perhaps the enemies of Israel¹¹ had thereby incurred their doom;¹² whereat a Bath Kol¹³ came forth and announced to them: 'All of you are destined for the life of the world to come.'¹⁴ What was the basis of their exposition? — They argued a fortiori [thus]: If within the Tabernacle, the sanctity of which was not to be in perpetuity,¹⁵ yet an individual's sacrificial gifts¹⁶ were allowed [at the consecration] to be offered on the Sabbath day,¹⁷ which [ordinarily] is an offence punishable by stoning¹⁸ to death; all the more is it the case [that it is permitted] with the Temple, the sanctification of which is to be for ever, and with public¹⁹ offerings, and that on the Day of Atonement, whose desecration is an offence punished only by kareth! But then, why were they perturbed? — Because there [in the former case] the offerings were brought as dues to the Supreme Being,²⁰ whereas here, they were brought for their [own] common needs.²¹ Then here too, should they not have made their offerings without partaking [on that day] of any meat or drink?²² — There is no joyous celebration without eating and drinking.²³

Whence do we know that at [the consecration of] the Tabernacle the Sabbath restrictions were suspended? Shall I say because it is written, 'On the first day [So-and-so offered] . . . on the seventh²⁴ day [So-and-so offered], then [say I], maybe it means the seventh day [in the order] of the offerings?²⁵ Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: The text says, 'On the day of the eleventh, day'²⁶ just as a day is continuous, so were the eleven days continuous.²⁷ But perhaps, it means [continuous] on days appropriate?' — Then there is yet another such text, On the day of the twelfth day,²⁸ — just as a day was continuous, so had the whole twelve days been entirely continuous. But that too, maybe means only continuous on days appropriate? — If that be so, why do I require two [peculiarly worded] texts?

Again, whence do we know that during the consecration of the Temple the restrictions of the Day of Atonement were suspended? — Shall I say because it is written, 'even fourteen days', maybe it means days appropriate?²⁹ — That is learnt from the analogy between the repeated word 'day' here and in the other place.³⁰

'Whereat a Bath kol came forth and announced to them: "All of you are destined for the life of the world to come".' And whence know we that pardon was granted them? — For R. Tahlifa taught: [It is written], On the eighth day he sent the people away and they blessed the king and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the Lord had shown unto David His Servant and to Israel His people.³¹ 'To their tents', that is, they went [home] and found their wives in [a state] of purity³² [to receive their husbands]; joyful', that is, that they had enjoyed the radiance of the Shechinah;³³ 'and glad of heart', that is, each man's wife conceived and bore him a male child. 'For all the goodness' that is, a Bath kol had come forth and announced to them: 'All of you are destined for the life of the world to come ; That the Lord had shown unto David His servant and to Israel His people': It is perfectly clear [as to what is referred to] by 'all the goodness shown to Israel His people', as indicating that God had granted them pardon for their sin against [the non-observance of] the Day of Atonement; but what is the point of 'the goodness shown unto David His servant'? — Said Rab Judah, as reporting Rab; At the moment when Solomon wanted to bring the Ark into the Temple, the gates held fast together. Solomon recited [a prayer of] four and twenty [expressions of] intercession³⁴ but had no response. He began [anew] and said: lift up your heads, O ye gates³⁵ and again he had no response. As soon as [however] he said: [Now therefore arise, O Lord God . . . Thou and the Ark of Thy strength . . .] O Lord, turn not away the face of Thine anointed, remember the good deeds of David Thy servant,³⁶ he was answered forthwith.³⁷ At that moment the faces of David's foes turned [livid] like the [blackened] sides of a pot and all became aware that the Holy One, blessed be He, had pardoned David that misdeed.³⁸

R. Jonathan b.'Asma³⁹ and R. Judah son of proselyte parents were studying the section of 'Vows'⁴⁰ at the school of R. Simeon b. Yohai. They had taken leave from him in the evening, but in the morning they came and again took leave from him. Said he to them: But did you not take leave of me yesternight? Said they to him: Our Master, You taught us, a disciple who had taken leave from his Master and remained overnight in the city must needs take leave from him once again, for it is said: 'On the eighth day⁴¹ he [King Solomon] sent the people away and they blessed the King,⁴² and [then] it is written: 'And on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent the people away'.⁴³ Hence we learn from here that a disciple who had taken leave from his Master and remained overnight in the city must needs take leave from him once again. Said he to his son, 'These are men of countenance,⁴⁴ go along with them, that they may bless you'. He went and found them comparing text with text: It is written: Balance the path of thy feet and let all thy ways be established;⁴⁵ and it is written: Lest thou shouldst balance the path of life?⁴⁶ It is not difficult [to explain]: the former text applies where an obligation can be discharged through another person:⁴⁷

the latter where the obligation cannot be discharged through another person.¹ Again they were sitting and enquiring [into the following]: It is written: She [Wisdom]² is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her',³ [which implies] that heaven's demands [of you] are comparable to Her,⁴ Again it is written: And all things desirable are not to be compared unto Her,⁵ [which means] that even things that are of Heaven's desire are not comparable to Her?⁶ The former text applies where the duty can be discharged through others, the latter — where the Duty cannot be discharged through others. Then [turning to him] they said: 'What is your business here?'⁷ He replied: 'Father told me, "Go along with them that they may bless you".⁸ Said they to him: 'May it be [Heaven's] pleasure that you sow and mow not; that what you bring in go not out; that what goes out you bring not in; that your house be desolate and your inn be inhabited; that your board be disturbed and you behold not a new year'. 'When he came home to his father, he said to him: 'So far were they from blessing me that they [even] distressed me sorely'. His father asked him: 'What did they say to you?' — They said thus and thus. Said the father to him: 'Those are all blessings. That "you sow and mow not [means], that you beget children and they do not die. That "what you bring in go not out" [means], that you bring home daughters-in-law and your sons do not die, so that their wives need not leave again. "What goes out you bring not in" [means], that you give your daughters [in marriage] and their husbands do not die so that your daughters need not come back. "That your house be desolate and your inn be inhabited" [means], that this world is your inn and the other world⁷ is a home, as it is written, Their grave is their house for ever;⁸ reading not "their inward thought" [Kirbam] but "their grave (Kibram) is their house for ever, and their dwelling places be for generations."⁸ "That your board be disturbed" [that is]; by sons and daughters and "that you behold not a new year [means] that your wife do not die and you have not to take you a new wife'.⁹

R. Simeon b. Halafta took his leave from Rabbi.¹⁰ Said Rabbi to his son: 'Go along with him that he may bless you' — Said [the parting Rabbi] to him: 'May it be [Heaven's] pleasure that you be not put to shame nor feel ashamed yourself'.¹¹ When he came to his father, he asked him: 'What did he say to you?' — He replied: 'He made some commonplace remark¹² to me — Said [Rabbi] to his son: 'He blessed you with the blessing with which the Holy One [blessed be He] blessed Israel twice over; for it is written: And ye shall eat in plenty and be satisfied and shall praise the name of the Lord your God . . . And My people shall never be ashamed. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and there is none else; and My people shall never be ashamed.¹³

AND A WOMAN MAY MAKE HER TOILET DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. Our Rabbis taught: These are [permitted in] woman's adornment. She [plaits her hair]¹⁴ treats her [eyes] with kohl; fixes a parting,¹⁵ [trims her hair and nails¹⁴ and] puts rouge on her face; some say she may use a razor for her privy parts. R. Hisda's wife made her toilet in front of her daughter-in-law.¹⁶ R. Hina

b. Hinena sat before R. Hisda;¹⁷ as he sat he said that the instances [mentioned in the Mishnah] applied only to a young woman, but not to an elderly woman. Said R. Hisda to him: God! even to your mother, even to your mother's mother, yea even if she be standing at the [brink of the]¹⁸ grave, as the saying goes: 'At sixty as at six; the sound of a timbrel makes her nimble'.¹⁹

R. JUDAH SAYS SHE SHOULD NOT USE LIME. It is taught: R. Judah says, a woman should not use lime, as it is a disfigurement to her. R. Judah concedes, however, that [if it is] a lime [preparation] that can be peeled off during the festival week she may apply it during the festival week, because, although it is irksome to her at the moment, It is a pleasure to her afterwards. But does R. Judah hold this view? Surely we learned [elsewhere]: 'R. Judah said, Debts may be recovered [from pagan creditors during their festivals] as it is irksome to them'. They said to him, Although it is irksome [for them] at the moment, they feel pleased afterwards?²⁰ — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, Do not cite the rules for the festival week, as they all derive from the principle 'that though [the task] is irksome for the moment, it gives satisfaction afterwards'.²¹ Rabina remarked that [the recovery of debts is allowed because] to a pagan the payment of a debt is always irksome.

Rab Judah [reporting Rab]²² said: The daughters of Israel, who attain puberty before the [normal] age,²³ if they are poor, put on a cosmetic preparation made of lime; richer girls put on fine-flower,²⁴ and the wealthy²⁵ girls put on oil of myrrh, as it is said: 'Six mouths with the oil of myrrh'.²⁶ What is this 'oil of myrrh'? — Said R. Huna b. Hiyya, [It is what is called] stacte.²⁷ R. Jeremiah b. Ammi²⁸ said, It is oil obtained from olives that have reached but a third of their [normal] growth. It is taught: 'R. Judah says omphacinon²⁹ is an oil made of [unripe] olives that have reached but a third of their [normal] growth' — And why do they put it on? Because it is a depilatory and softens the flesh [skin].³⁰ R. Bebai had a dark-skinned³¹ daughter; he applied to her that unguent one limb at a time and this brought her a husband with four hundred zuzim.³² There was a pagan neighbour of his who had a daughter, and he applied it all over her at once [and] she died; [whereupon] he said, Bebai killed my daughter. Said R. Nahman: 'R. Bebai drinks beer, therefore his daughters needed unguents; [but as] we do not drink beer, our daughters need no unguents'.³³

(1) If there be no trusty person at hand or there be but one call, do not delay action to wait for some more important task; be it great or small, do it promptly, as delay may rob you of your chance of doing it, or you may be too late to do anything at all.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 10a

AN ORDINARY PERSON SEWS IN THE USUAL WAY. How do we define 'an ordinary person'? — At the school of R. Jannai they said, [It means] anyone who cannot draw a needful during their festivals, as the means afforded them by the Jew may go to enhance the heathen celebrations. The settlement of a debt leaves the debtor with an easy mind. of stitches in one sweep. R. Jose b. Hainna said, [It means] anyone who cannot sew an even seam on the hem of his tunic.

BUT A CRAFTSMAN MAY SEW A TUCK-STITCH. What is meant by sewing a 'tuck-stitch'? — R. Johanan said, [It means] 'overstepping'.¹ Rabbah b. Samuel said, [It means that the stitches resemble] dogs' teeth.²

AND THE CORDS MAY BE INTERLACED IN BED-FRAMES. [R. JOSE SAYS THEY MAY ONLY BE TIGHTENED]. What is meant by 'interlacing' and what by 'tightening'? When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said that R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Assi had different views on this, both reporting in the name of Hezekiah and R. Johanan. One said that 'interlacing' meant [interlacing] both the warp and the woof, and that 'tightening' meant putting in the warp without the woof;³ while the other said that 'interlacing' meant putting in the warp without the woof, and tightening' meant that he may tighten a girth cord if it has become slack.

But this cannot be [correct], for R. Tahlifa⁴ b. Saul taught: 'And all agreed that no cords may be let in afresh'. Now this is perfectly in accord with the one who says that the 'interlacing' [permitted in the Mishnah] means interlacing both the warp and the woof, and that the 'tightening' [that R. Jose permitted] means putting in the warp without the woof; hence R. Tahlifa could say: 'And all agreed that no cords may be let in afresh' — But, according to one who says that 'interlacing' means putting in the warp without the woof and that 'tightening' means that he may tighten a cord if it has become slack, [how do you explain R. Tahlifa b. Saul's statement? For,] if you say that interlacing the warp and the woof is forbidden, need one [at all state] that cords are not to be let in afresh? — This is a difficulty. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac to R. Hiyya b. Abin: Is there anybody who applies the term 'Interlacing' to inserting a warp without the woof? For surely we learned:⁵ R. Meir says: A bed [frame] is not [subject to ritual defilement] until three warp spaces in it have been crossed? The fact is that when Rabin came [from Palestine] he said that all agree that 'interlacing' means interlacing the warp and woof; but where the difference arose was on the interpretation of 'tightening'; one Master held that the 'tightening' [that was permitted] was inserting the warp without the woof, and the other Master held [that what was allowed was] the tightening of a cord which has become slack. An objection was raised: Bed-frames may be interlaced [during the festival week] and needless to say that they may be tightened: these are the words of R. Meir. R. Jose says: They may be tightened, but not interlaced and 'Some say'⁶ that tightening may not be done at all — Now here [the several views are] perfectly [understandable] according to the one who says that by 'tightening' is meant 'inserting the warp without the woof', as then, 'Some' come and express their dissent [on that kind of mending]. But according to the one who says that by the 'tightening' [which is allowed] is meant that when a cord has become slack one may make it taut, then according to the view of 'Some' not even this [simple adjustment] is allowed! — Yes, indeed; because, since it is possible [temporarily] to fill [the sag] with bedclothes, we should not go to [further] exertion [during the festival week].

MISHNAH. AN OVEN STOVE⁷ OR MILL MAY BE SET UP [IN POSITION] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; R. JUDAH SAYS, A PAIR OF MILLSTONES IS NOT TO BE COMPRESSED FOR THE FIRST TIME [IN THE FESTIVAL WEEK].

GEMARA. What is meant by 'compressing'? — Rab Judah said that [it means] chiselling⁸ the millstones; R. Jehiel said, It means [fixing] an eye-hole.⁹ An objection was raised: An oven or stove [or mill] may be set up in the festival [week], provided that the work is not entirely completed; these are the words of R. Eliezer; but the Sages say, It may even be finished off. R. Judah, speaking in his¹⁰ name says: A new one may be set up and an old [mill] compressed, and 'Some'¹¹ say compressing may not be done at all. Now this accords well with the one who says that 'compressing' means scoring the mill [stones], hence this process is applicable in the case of an old mill; but according to the one who says that it means [fixing] an eye-hole, what fixing of an eye-hole does an old mill need?¹² — I may say, for instance, that it needs widening a little more. R. Huna [once] hearing someone scraping his millstones during the festival week said: 'Who is that? May he himself suffer desecration that desecrates the festival week!' He [evidently] held the view of 'Some say' [cited above]. R. Hama expounded:¹³ 'One [may] scrape millstones during the festival [week]'. In the name of our Master¹⁴ they said: One [may] trim the hoofs of the horse he rides or the ass he rides during the festival week; but not those of the ass turning the mill.¹ Rab Judah² declared it permissible to trim the hoofs of the ass turning the mill or to set up the mill or build a mill, or to construct a base for the mill or build a horse stable. Rab³ declared it permissible to curry horses and to construct a bed⁴ or make a mattress-box.⁵ Raba allowed bleeding of cattle during the festival week. Said Abaye to him: There is a Tanna who supports you: Cattle [may] be bled and no curative means are [to be] withheld from an animal during the festival week'. Raba allowed fulled clothes⁶ to be rubbed.⁷ On what ground? It is an ordinary unskilled process. Said R. Isaac b. Ammi, as citing R. Hisda: To pleat sleeve-ends⁸ is forbidden; on what ground? Because that is a craftsman's process.

Raba said: [With regard to] a man who levels up his ground, if it is to even [the slope of] the threshing floor⁹ it is allowed; if merely to level the soil, it is forbidden. How can one tell? If he takes up heaped [soft] soil to heap on [soft] soil, or stiff soil to lay on stiff soil, it shows that [it is done] for [improving] the threshing floor; but if he takes up heaped [soft] soil and casts it on the stiff soil, this shows that it is for [improving] the ground.¹⁰

Raba said: With regard to one who clears his field [of chips of wood], if it is for gathering [fire] wood, it is allowed; if for clearing the ground, it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he picks up the larger pieces and leaves the smaller, this shows that it is to gather [fire] wood; but if he picks up both large and small, this shows that it is to clear the field. Raba said also: With regard to one who opens [sluices] to let water run off into his field, if it be to get the fish,¹¹ it is permitted; if it is to water the soil, it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he opens two flood-gates one above¹² and another below,¹³ this shows that it is for getting the fish; but if only one gate, it is [obviously] for watering the soil. Raba further said: With regard to one who trims his palm,¹⁴ if it is for the [benefit of his] beasts it is allowed; but if for the [benefit of the] palm it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he trims one side only, this shows that it is for the beasts; if both one side and the other, it is for the [benefit of the] palm, and it is forbidden. And furthermore said Raba: Those [unripe] tauhla¹⁵ dates one may pick, but to press them is not permitted. R. Papa remarked that as [if these are left] the worms get at them, they are on the same footing as a business deal¹⁶ [the postponement of which] would entail loss,¹⁷ and therefore may be [pressed during the festival week]. Raba also said: Any business transaction whatsoever is forbidden. R. Jose b. Abin said: And if there be a risk of loss, it is permitted. Rabina had some deal on hand which would have fetched six thousand zuzim;¹⁸ he deferred the sale till after the festival and sold at twelve thousand. Rabina had advanced some money to the people living at Akra di-Shanutha.¹⁹ He came to consult R. Ashi and said: 'What about going over to them just now [during the festival week]?' — Said R. Ashi to him: 'As they had ready cash just then which they might not have later, it is [practically] like a deal [the postponement of which] would entail loss, and [accordingly] is allowed'. It is also similarly taught with reference to heathens: One may go to a heathen fair and buy cattle, male and female slaves, houses, fields and vineyards, and draw up contracts and have them registered at their Registry Offices,¹ because it is [practically] like rescuing something of which they [the heathens] had got possession. Rab permitted R. Hiyya b. Ashi to mend basket-traps² during the festival week. What is the reason? — It is ordinary [unskilled] work; but [to mend] mesh-nets is forbidden. What is the reason? It is work of craftsmanship. Rab Judah allowed Ammi the ovenmaker to put up ovens and Rabbah b. Ashbi he allowed to plait sieves. But this cannot be [correct], as Rabbah b. Samuel learned: And all [authorities] are agreed that an oven may not be set up for the first time [during the festival week]! — There is no difficulty [here]: The former ruling obtains during the 'warm season'³ while the latter ruling obtains in the 'rainy season'.⁴

MISHNAH. A PARAPET MAY BE PUT ROUND A ROOF OR [A RAILING ROUND] A GALLERY ROUGHLY BUT NOT IN FINISHED STYLE.⁵ PLASTER MAY BE SMEARED ON THE CREVICES⁶ AND FLATTENED DOWN WITH A ROLLER,⁷ WITH HAND OR FOOT, BUT NOT WITH RAMMING TOOLS.⁸ PIVOTS AND SOCKETS,⁹ LINTELS, LATCHES,¹⁰ BOLT-LOCKS AND DOOR-HANDLES¹⁰ THAT HAVE GIVEN WAY MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], ONLY THEY MUST NOT BE LEFT PURPOSELY FOR THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; AND ALL PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE.

GEMARA. What, for instance, is meant by putting up a parapet or railing 'roughly'? — R. Joseph explained: [Something like a fence of] palm-leaves and daphne-stakes.¹¹ A Tanna taught: One may pile up rubble without daubing with clay. PLASTER MAY BE SMEARED ON THE CREVICES AND FLATTENED DOWN WITH A ROLLER, WITH HAND OR FOOT, BUT NOT WITH RAMMING TOOLS. Now, if you say it is allowed to flatten down with a roller, need one [be told] 'with hand or foot'? — What it means is: One may smear [plaster on] the crevices and flatten down as with a roller, by hand or foot, but not with ramming-tools.

PIVOTS AND SOCKETS, LINTELS, LATCHES, BOLT-LOCKS AND DOOR-HANDLES THAT HAVE GIVEN WAY MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. Some contrasted this with [the following]: 'Up to his days,¹² the hammer was beating in Jerusalem during the festival [week] . . .', [that is], 'up to his days', but not thereafter!¹³ — [Said R. Huna]¹⁴ that is not difficult [to explain]; the reference there is to the smith's [hammer],¹⁵ while here [the tool allowed] is the joiner's [mallet].¹⁶ R. Hisda demurred to this [explanation] as according to this some will say that a loud din is forbidden, [but] a faint sound is allowed. No, said R. Hisda, it is not difficult [to explain]: One [the tool allowed here] is the bill-hook¹⁷ and the other [which is not allowed] is an adze.¹⁸ R. Papa said that in one statement we have the [older view held] before the restriction [had been introduced] and in the other the [later] view held after the restriction [was introduced]. R. Ashi said that one [Mishnah] expresses R. Judah's view¹⁹ and the other R. Jose's; for R. Isaac b. Abdimi said: 'Who may be the [anonymous] Tanna that [holds] that work must be done in a different way from the ordinary²⁰ [in working] during the festival [week] even where its [postponement would entail] loss? Not R. Jose'.²¹ Rabina said, Whose ruling do we follow nowadays when we raise the pivot-cups²² of the doors during the festival week? — R. Jose's. AND ALL PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE. On Baditha Luba,²³ everybody engaged in fishing and they brought in fish,²⁴ and Raba allowed to put them in salt. Said Abaye to him: But [why]? We learned: PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE? — Said he [Raba] to him, Since they brought them home with the intention of eating them and if they leave them [uneaten] they will be spoilt, it is similar to [a case of] business that might be lost and is therefore permitted.²⁵ And some say that Raba [actually] allowed them to him, But surely we learned: PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE go fishing,²⁶ fetch the fish home and put them in salt. Said Abaye to IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE! — Said he [Raba] to him, These may be eaten [also] by means of ‘pressing’, as was the case with Samuel when they applied pressure [to the fish in salt] sixty times²⁷ and he ate [thereof]. When Raba [himself] once happened to be at the house of the Exilarch,²⁸ they prepared for him [a dish of fish] pressed sixty times and he ate it. Rab was [on a festival week] once at Bar-Shappir²⁹ [Perissabora?] where they put before him some kind of fish [which was] a third boiled, a third salted and a third broiled. Rab said, Adda the fisherman told me that a fish is at its best when it is about to turn putrid. Rab also said this, Adda the fisherman told me: Broil the fish with his brother [salt], plunge it into its father [water], eat it with its son [sauce] and drink after it its father [water]. This too Rab said: Adda the fisherman told me: [After eating] fish, cress and milk occupy your body, don't occupy your couch.³⁰ And furthermore said Rab, Adda the fisherman told the: [After] fish, cress and milk drink [rather] water, not mead;³¹ mead and not wine. CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. IF ONE HAD [ALREADY] TURNED HIS OLIVES¹ WHEN MOURNING² OR SOME HINDRANCE BEFELL HIM, OR WORKMEN DISAPPOINTED HIM, HE MAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK] PUT ON THE BEAM FOR THE FIRST TIME AND LEAVE IT [THUS] UNTIL AFTER THE FESTIVAL; THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH. R. JOSE SAYS, HE MAY DRAW OFF [THE OIL] AND COMPLETE THE PROCESS³ AND BUNG⁴ [THE JARS] IN HIS USUAL WAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK].

GEMARA. The Mishnah begins with mourning and finally [only] deals with the festival [week]!⁵ — Said R. Shisha⁶ son of Idi: This implies that things one is permitted [to do] during the festival [week] are forbidden him during [the week of] his mourning.⁷ R. Ashi says, [Not so], this wording is cast in the form of, 'No need to say' . . . ,⁸ no need to say [that he may put on the beam for the first time] during [the week of] his mourning when [the restriction on work] is but rabbinical, but even during the festival [week], when [work] is restricted on Scriptural grounds, the Rabbis still permit it where loss is involved.

It was taught⁹ in the sense of R. Shisha son of Idi: These are the things they may do for the mourner during his [week of] mourning: If his olives had been turned they may put on for him [the beam for the first time], or if his wine [cask] is to be bunged, or his flax is to be lifted from the retting, or his wool is to be lifted from the dye-bath; and they may besprinkle his field¹⁰ for him when his turn for water-rights arrives. R. Judah says they may even sow for him the ploughed field or the field awaiting a flax-crop. Said they [the Rabbis] to him: [Not so], if the field is not sowed in the early season it could be sowed in the latter season and if It cannot be sowed with flax let it be sowed with some other kind [of crop].¹¹ Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, If his olives had been turned and there is no skilled worker save himself, or his cask is [ready] for bunging and there is no skilled worker save himself, or his flax is [ready] for lifting from the retting or his wool for lifting from the dye-bath and there is no skilled worker save himself, such a one may perform [his task] behind closed doors. Furthermore, said Rabban Gamaliel, if he is a skilled worker engaged in the service of the public, or a hairdresser or a bath-attendant in the service of the public, and the Festival is close at hand and there is no skilled worker save him, such a one may do the work. Farmkeepers,¹² tenant-farmers¹³ and contractors of labour may have others doing work for them.¹⁴ Ass-drivers, camel-drivers and bargemen may not work;¹⁵ but if they were [already] engaged on the job or were [just then] in the hire of others, they [themselves] may do their work.¹⁴ A daily worker¹⁶ may not work, even in another town.¹⁷ One who has others' work in hand,¹⁸ even if it is a contract job,¹⁹ he may not do it. [You say,] 'Even if it is a contract job', [which implies] and all the less so if it is not a contract job. On the contrary, a contract job is like his own [work]!²⁰ Rather, whether it is a contract job or not a contract job he may not do it. If his work²¹ was placed in the hand of others, they may not do it in his own house, but in another house they may do it.

Marion the son of Rabin and Mar the son of R. Aha the son of Raba had a yoke of oxen²² between them, when a misfortune²³ befell Mar the son of R. Aha the son of Raba; he broke up the team [and did not send his animal to work]. Said R. Ashi, A great man like Mar the son of R. Aha acting in such a manner! Granted that he minds not his own loss [of earning], is he not concerned about the loss [caused] to others? Surely it is taught: 'But if they were [already] engaged [on the job] or were [just then] in the hire of others, these may do their work'?²⁴ — He [Mar] however held the view that [the case of] a prominent man is different.²⁵

Samuel said: '[If non-Jews] take work on contract they may not [work for a Jew]¹ within the [limits of the Sabbath] boundary;² but outside the boundary they may'. Said R. Papa, Even outside the boundary we do not say [they may] save where there is no town in the Vicinity; but where there is a town near by, it is forbidden. Said R. Mesharshaya: And even if there be not a town close by we [still] do not say [they may carry on the work] save on Sabbaths and festivals when there are not frequent [Jewish] passers-by, but during the festival week when people are often passing to and from the place it is forbidden. Mar Zutra son of R. Nahman had a mansion erected for himself by [non Jewish] contractor [builders] outside the boundary.³ R. Safra and R. Huna b. Hinena happened to come thither and did not enter his house; and some report that he [R. Nahman] himself did not enter the building. But did not Samuel say that contractors may not carry on their work within the boundary, but outside the boundary they may? — [The case of] a prominent man is different. Some say [his servant]⁴ had assisted then with straw. R. Hama allowed the Exilarch's table-stewards to do their work⁵ during the festival week; he said that as they received no remuneration they only intend to benefit him⁶ which concerns us nought.

Our Rabbis taught: Contracts may be made during the festival [week for work] to be executed after the festival [week]; but [to do it] during the festival [week] is forbidden. The general principle on this point is that whatever one may do himself he may tell a non-Jew to do; and what he himself may not do, he may not tell a non-Jew to do. Another [Baraita] taught: Contracts may be made during the festival [week] to be executed after the festival [week], only that one should not measure, weigh or count [quantities] after the manner in which this is done on an ordinary day.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not bring a sire to mate during the festival week. Similarly, a 'first-born, sire should not⁷ be [used to] mate,⁸ nor a votive beast that has become disqualified.⁹ Another [Baraita] taught: They may not bring a sire to mate during the festival week. R. Judah says, Where an ass is hankering [for the male] they may bring her the jackass to mate lest she become chilled. All other beasts are [merely] brought into the stalls.¹⁰

Our Rabbis taught: Sheep may not be turned out to graze in a hurdled enclosure¹¹ on Sabbaths, festivals, or in the festival week, but if they come [and do it] of their own accord,¹² it is allowed; and they may not be assisted [to it]. Nor may a watchman be assigned [to the shepherds] to move the sheep about.¹³ If [the herdsman was] engaged by the week, month, year or septennate, assistance may be given to these¹⁴ and a watch may be assigned to them to move the sheep about. Rabbi¹⁵ says, [This may be done] on the Sabbath by way of favour, on the festival for meals and during the festival [week] for payment. R. Joseph stated that the law is according to Rabbi.

MISHNAH. LIKEWISE IF ONE HAD HIS WINE [ALREADY] RUN INTO THE CISTERN THEN MOURNING BEFELL HIM, OR [SOME OTHER] HINDRANCE, OR WORKMEN DISAPPOINTED HIM, HE MAY DRAW OFF [THE WINE], COMPLETE THE PROCESS AND BUNG [THE CASKS] IN HIS USUAL WAY: THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JOSE; R. JUDAH SAYS, HE [MERELY] COVERS [THE CISTERN] WITH SHINGLES TO PREVENT IT TURNING SOUR.

GEMARA. [LIKEWISE IF ONE HAD etc.] And this [wine clause] is necessary. Because, if [the Tanna] had told us the first [clause alone], we might have argued that only in that case did R. Jose say [he may complete the process] as the loss on oil is considerable, whereas in the case of wine, where the loss is not much, one might presume that he concurred with the [stricter] view of R. Judah. And if [the Tanna] had told us the latter [clause alone], we might have argued that only in this case [of wine] did R. Judah say [he may not do more], whereas in that [former case of oil], one might presume that he concurred with the more [lenient] view of R. Jose: [therefore] it was necessary [to enunciate both clauses]. Said R. Isaac b. Abba,¹⁶ Who is the Tanna who requires that work [if done] should be done with a difference during the festival [week] where loss is threatened? It is not R. Jose.¹⁷ R. Joseph said, The halachah is according to R. Jose.

Some [scholars] asked of R. Nahman b. Isaac: Is it permitted to coat a mead-cask [with resin]¹⁸ in the festival week? — Said he to them: Sinai¹⁹ stated that the halachah is according to R. Jose. Supposing that R. Jose said [one may] in the case of wine, [does it follow] that he said [that one may] also in the case of mead? — [Indeed,] for what is the reason [that he allows] in the case of wine? [It is] because the loss on it is considerable; it is also considerable in the case of mead, as Abaye said, Mater²⁰ told me: 'Better a coated cask of Six se'ahs than an uncoated cask of eight se'ahs'.²¹

R. Hama b. Guria citing Rab said: The halachoth²² appertaining to the festival [week] are like the halachoth regulating the dealings with Kuthites.²³ What is the legal import [of this dictum]? — Said R. Daniel son of R. Ketina, It is to say that they are 'sterile'²⁴ [regulations] and communicate nought²⁵ to each other, as [for instance] Samuel said that they [may] coat a jug with pitch but may not coat a cask; while R. Dimi of Nehardea said that they [may] coat a cask with pitch but they may not coat a jug; one master being solicitous to avert loss,²⁶ the other master being solicitous to avoid exertion²⁷ [during the festival week]. Said Abaye, We have it as tradition²⁸ that the halachoth appertaining to the festival [week] are like the halachoth appertaining to the Sabbath:

some acts involve no penalty, though forbidden,¹ while other acts are allowed ab initio.

R. Huna had his harvest reaped during the festival [week], whereupon Rabbah put an objection to R. Huna [from the following]: They may mill flour during the festival [week] for the requirements of the festival; what is not required for the festival is forbidden. A thing that is perishable in the festival [week] is permitted to be done; a thing that is not perishable in the festival [week] is forbidden. When does this [rule] obtain?² In the case of something that is [already] severed from the soil, but where [the crop is still] attached to the soil, even if all of it perish it is forbidden; but if he have not food to eat, he may reap, gather into sheaves, thresh, winnow, clean and mill,³ only that he shall not thresh with cows?⁴ — He replied: That [Baraitha] is but an individual⁵ opinion, and is not generally accepted by us, as it has been taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel stated a general rule in the name of R. Jose, Whatever is [already] severed from the soil, even though only part of it might perish, yet may it be worked; while that which is [still] attached to the soil, even though it might all perish, is forbidden. But if [as you say] that [anonymous] Baraitha be R. Jose's opinion, then he should also be allowed to thresh with cows!⁶ For Surely R. Isaac b. Abba said: 'Who is the Tanna that demands some variation In the working during the festival [week] where loss is involved? It is not R. Jose!⁷ — [Said R. Huna],⁸ He [R. Jose] might reply:⁹ 'Yea indeed, so; yet as one does not usually¹⁰ thresh with cows, threshing without them [during the festival week] would be no variation now.¹¹

Our Rabbis taught: Flour may be ground during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival; but if not for the requirements of the festival [week], it is forbidden. If, however, one ground¹² and had some flour over, he is allowed to use it.¹³ Trees may be cut down during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival, but if it is not for the needs of the festival it is forbidden; if one, however, had cut down¹² and had some over, it is permitted.¹³ [The ingredients] for brewing mead¹⁴ may be put in during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival; but if it is not needed for the festival it is forbidden; and if one put in [the ingredients]¹² and had some [brew] left over, it is permitted,¹³ provided only that there is no guile.¹⁵ A contradiction was raised [from the following]: 'They may put in [ingredients for brewing] mead during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival, but what is not for the needs of the festival is forbidden, be it a brew of dates or a brew of barley, and even though one have some old [brew] he may act with guile and drink of the new'?¹⁶ — There is a difference among Tannaim as was taught: There should be no resort to guile in such matters; R. Jose son of R. Judah says, One may act with guile [sometimes].¹⁷

Rab [once] had his harvest gathered for him in the festival week. Samuel heard [of it] and was annoyed. Might one suggest that Samuel concurred with the view of the individual authority?¹⁸ — No, it was a crop of wheat which [if left a while] would not have deteriorated. What is the reason that Rab acted thus? — He had not then [enough] to eat; and as for Samuel, he had not been fully informed [of the circumstances]. Or, [maybe he thought that the case of] a prominent person is different.

R. Judah the Prince¹⁹ [once] went out [on the Sabbath] wearing an amethyst²⁰ signet and [once] drank water which an Aramean [non-Jewish] cook²¹ had heated. R. Ammi hearing of it was annoyed. Said R. Joseph: What is the reason he was annoyed? Was it on account of the amethyst signet? Why, it is taught: Chains, earrings and rings are like all articles of dress that may be worn in the courtyard!²² [Again], if because he drank water which an Aramean had made hot? Why, Samuel b. Isaac, citing Rab, stated that whatever can be eaten raw is not [debarred] as in the category of heathen-cooked food! — [The case of] a prominent person is different.²³

R. Hananel, citing Rab, said that one may lop off branches from a palm tree during the festival [week] even though he needs only the chips.²⁴ Abaye denounced²⁵ this [dictum] vehemently. R. Ashi had a wood in Shelania. He went to cut it down during the festival week. Said R. Shela of Shelania to R. Ashi, What is your ground [for acting thus]? Is it because of what R. Hananel, citing Rab, said, that one may lop branches from a palm during the festival [week] even though he needs only three chips?²⁴ But surely Abaye denounced it vehemently! — Said he [R. Ashi] to him: 'I heard it not', as much as to Say, 'I do not concur [with Abaye's view]'. The hatchet then slipped threatening to cut off his leg. He then abandoned his task and came again.²⁶

Rab Judah permitted pulling up flax, picking hops and pulling up sesame crops. Said Abaye to R. Joseph: It is quite correct to do this in the case of flax, as if may be used for covering [fruits]; in the case of hops, as they may be used for [brewing] beer; but sesame — to what [immediate] use can it be put? — [It may be picked] on account of the seeds²⁷ it contains. R. Jannai had an orchard²⁸ that had become ripe for picking during the festival week [and] he picked it. The year [after] all the people kept their orchards waiting for the festival week. R. Jannai [thereupon] renounced his [proprietary rights in the] orchard that year.²⁹

MISHNAH. A MAN MAY BRING HIS FRUITS INDOORS FOR FEAR OF THIEVES AND PULL HIS FLAX OUT OF RETTING TO PREVENT IT SPOILING, PROVIDED HE DOES NOT PURPOSELY HOLD THE WORK OVER TILL THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; AND ALL THOSE WHO HAVE DELIBERATELY HAD THEIR WORK HELD OVER FOR THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] SHALL HAVE IT DESTROYED.³⁰

GEMARA. BRING INDOORS. A Tanna taught: Provided only that he bring them into his house privily. R. Joseph had some beams of timber which he brought in during daylight. Said Abaye, But it is taught: ‘Provided only that he bring them into his house privily’! — He replied, The [requisite] privacy for these is [attained best] during daylight, since at night more men would be needed and torchbearers too would be required, making much ado.³¹

AND PULLS HIS FLAX OUT OF RETTING. R. Jeremiah asked of R. Zera: If a man keeps work over for the festival [week] and dies, should his children be penalized after him? Should you cite³² [the case of],

(1) Cf. rules of Ulpian: ‘An in imperfect law is one which forbids something to be done, and yet if it be done, neither rescinds it nor imposes a penalty on him who has acted contrary to the Law’. I, 1.

(2) That which is perishable may be attended to in the festival week.

(3) I.e., one may do anything and everything that is necessary.

(4) I.e., he must introduce some variation. This Baraitha forbidding to reap except in the case where he has no food to eat, refutes R. Huna who, it is assumed, was not short of ready food.

(5) R. Jose's view which is given in the citation that follows and which is, however, not generally accepted.

(6) Which, however, is distinctly debarred in the anonymous Baraitha, above.

(7) As may be seen from his attitude in the first and second Mishnah (11b and 12a) in contrast to that of R. Judah in regard to both oil and wine. Whereas, In the anonymous Baraitha ascribed to him he distinctly stipulates not to thresh with cows, insisting on a variation.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 13a

'One who had [craftily] clipped the ear of his first-born beast', and whose son is penalized after him,¹ [I can reply that] that is because that is [an offence against] a Scriptural prohibition. Or should you cite [the case of], 'One who sold his [non-Jewish] slave to a non-Jew', and whose son was penalized after him, [I can say that] that is because he debarred him daily from the [performance of] religious duties.² Here, what do we say? That the Rabbis' intention was to penalize the man personally and he is no more, or, maybe that it was only to impose a pecuniary penalty [on his estate] and that is to be had? — R. Zera replied, You learned it [in the Mishnah]: 'A field that has been cleared of thorns³ during the seventh year may be sowed in the post-sabbatical year; if it had been well improved⁴ or manured⁵ by hurdling cattle⁶ on it, it may not be sowed in the post-sabbatical year',⁷ and [on this Point] R. Jose b. Hanina said: 'We have it on tradition that if one had well improved his field and died, his son may Sow it'. This shows that our Rabbis did [intend to] penalize him,⁸ but his son the Rabbis did not [intend to] penalize; here too, then, it is the man himself that they would penalize, but his son the Rabbis would not have penalized. Said Abaye, We have it on tradition that if a man has defiled his fellow's clean [produce]⁹ and dies they do not penalize his son after him [to pay for the damage caused]. What is the reason? 'Imperceptible damage'¹⁰ is not in the category of [legal] damage';¹¹ the man himself the Rabbis would have penalized, but his son the Rabbis would not have penalized.

MISHNAH. HOUSES, [STONES],¹² SLAVES AND CATTLE MAY NOT BE BROUGHT SAVE FOR THE NEEDS OF THE FESTIVAL, OR THE NEED OF A VENDOR WHO HAS NOT [ENOUGH] TO EAT. GEMARA. Raba asked of R. Nahman: What about [affording] 'earning-jobs'¹³ in aid of one who has not [enough] to eat? — He replied: We learned: OR THE NEED OF A VENDOR WHO HAS NOT [ENOUGH] TO EAT. What is this [relative] clause, 'Who has not enough to eat' intended to cover?¹⁴ Is it not to include such [casual] 'earning-jobs'? — Not [necessarily]; it is an explanatory clause.¹⁵ Thereupon Abaye pointed out to him an objection: 'One should not write credit-bills during the festival [week]; but if [the creditor] does not trust [the person] or he [the clerk] has not [enough] to eat, one may [then] write'.¹⁶ What is the clause, 'Or he has not [enough] to eat' intended to cover here? Is it not to include [casual] 'earning-jobs'?¹³ — [Yes], you may infer that.

R. Shesheth raised an objection: 'And the Sages say, Three craftsmen [may] do work until midday on the day preceding the [Feast of] Passover,¹⁷ [namely], tailors, hairdressers and fullers; tailors, for the same reason that a private person may do [some] sewing in his usual way during the festival [week]; hairdressers and fullers, for the same reason that persons returning home from abroad,¹⁸ or coming out of prison may crop their hair and wash their clothes during the festival [week]'.¹⁹ Now, if you presume that 'earning-jobs' are allowed²⁰ where one has not [enough] to eat, then also all [other] work should have been allowed here,²¹ because 'earning-jobs' are permitted²⁰ where one has not [enough] to eat! R. Papa demurred to this [argument]: Then accordingly, building [work should] be allowed,²² just as 'a wall which is bulging outward into the public domain, may be pulled down and rebuilt in the usual way,²³ because it is a [public] danger'!²⁴ Rabina also demurred to this [argument]: Accordingly then, a scrivener²⁵ should be allowed [to work]²² just as one may 'write marriage deeds,²⁶ bills of divorcement²⁷ and receipts'!²⁸ Said R. Ashi:²⁹ [How] can you argue thus from regulations governing the festival [week] to those governing the fourteenth of Nisan? Those governing the festival [week] are based on [the avoidance of] exertion and where loss is threatened the Rabbis have allowed [exertion]; whereas the regulations governing the fourteenth of Nisan are based on the exigencies of the Festival; anything which is required for the Festival our Rabbis have permitted and anything that is not required for the Festival our Rabbis have not permitted.

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT REMOVE [EFFECTS] FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE,³⁰ BUT ONE MAY REMOVE THEM TO HIS COURT. WARES³¹ MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN. IF ONE IS ANXIOUS ABOUT THE THINGS,³² HE MAY REMOVE THEM TO ANOTHER COURT.³³

GEMARA. [BUT ONE MAY REMOVE THEM TO HIS COURT]. But you said at first that one's effects may not be removed at all? — Said Abaye, The latter part comes to [tell] us that [to another] house in that [same] court he may [remove his effects].³⁴

AND WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN. Said R. Papa: Raba [once] gave us a test: We learned, 'WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN' and this he contrasted [with the following]: 'Wares may be conveyed [to]³⁵ and brought home from the house of the craftsman, even though they be not needed for the festival'!³⁶ And we replied to him: The latter [Baraita] refers to the fourteenth of Nisan, while here it refers to the festival week. Or, if you like, I might suggest that both [passages] refer to the festival week, [but that the ruling] here [obtains] where he trusts him³⁷ [and] the latter [ruling obtains] where he does not trust him.³⁸

(1) The firstborn male of 'clean' animals is from birth 'dedicated' or destined for the altar and its flesh is the priests' due (Num. XVIII, 15-18). It may not be used for work or be shorn, unless it be born blemished or becomes accidentally permanently maimed, when it is no longer fit for sacrifice (Deut. XV, 19-22; cf. Lev. XXII, 18ff). If the owner cunningly contrives to get it injured either to avoid the trouble and expense of keeping it or to have the flesh, he is penalized to have it buried and is mulcted to half its value for the loss he caused to a priest. V. Shul. 'Ar. Yor. De'ah. 309-310.

(2) Non-Jewish male slaves who (with their consent) had been circumcised (cf. Gen. XVII. 12-13) and (male and female) ritually received into the household, enjoyed the privileges of resting on the Sabbaths (Ex. XX, 10) and Feasts (Deut. XII, 12, 18) and to partake of holy meats (ibid. XVI, 11) even in the priest's household (Lev. XXII, 11) and to perform such Jewish religious observances as they chose. (Cf. Ber. 20a and Suk. 20b). By selling him to a non-Jew he debarred the slave from the religious observances he learned to love and enjoy, and for this heartless act the offending master was penalized by the loss of his monetary gain.

(3) Merely picked up, cleared, lifted from the soil by the first superficial ploughing which did not constitute working the soil, forbidden Scripturally.

(4) By regular harrowing or deeper or cross ploughing. V. Tosaf. s.v. נטיבה and commentary of R. Samson of Sens on M. Sheb. IV, 2.

(5) By bringing cartloads of manure and methodically spreading it over the field.

(6) Methodically, instead of just letting cattle roam about on it.

(7) M. Sheb. IV, 2.

(8) For clearing thorns by harrowing, manuring and hurdling cattle on the field, are not of the processes explicitly forbidden in Scripture (Lev. XXV, 1-5); and though some included even such 'secondary processes' under the Scriptural prohibition (cf. supra 3a), the Rabbis did not press the penalty against the dead man's son.

- (9) Which had been carefully guarded by the owner from contamination, if the malefactor spitefully threw (for instance) a dead reptile on the heap of washed corn or among the gathered olives or grapes (cf. Lev. XI, 29-34). Priests' due of these could not be eaten, but might only be burnt as fuel. Pious lay-people would not buy such produce.
- (10) As there is no visible change in the produce that has been thus deteriorated, he call say that all is still as it was.

- (14) It is assumed that the words THE NEED OF A VENDOR imply that he has not enough to eat.
- (15) Explaining the phrase THE NEED OF A VENDOR. But there is no indication according to this interpretation of the Mishnah — to have any unnecessary job done in the festival week.
- (16) During the festival week, plainly allowing it as a means of helping the borrower or the (professional) scribe.
- (17) The fourteenth of Nisan, when from early afternoon the people began the preparation of the Paschal Lambs. Cf. pes. V, 1, 5ff.
- (18) Lit., 'from the maritime province', generally denoting the Diaspora.
- (19) V. Pes. 55b and cf. with the Mishnah 55a on the variations in the text.
- (20) During the festival week.
- (21) On the fourteenth of Nisan, instead of limiting the permission to three crafts only, because there may be other craftsmen who may be in need of money for food. But, as there is no mention of such a contingency there, it shows that even in such a case, unnecessary odd 'earning-jobs' may not be given in the festival week.

- (35) So SBH. p. 62. In our text as it stands, both here and pes. 55b מוֹלִיכִין might possibly refer to the conveyance of larger, unportable objects, while מְבִיאִין refers to smaller, portable things. The concluding words of this discussion, however, do not take note of this possibility.
- (36) V. pes. 55b.
- (37) The craftsman, and may leave his things with him safely to avoid all unnecessary 'exertion'.
- (38) Fearing they might be stolen.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 13b

And [in fact] it is taught [thus]: 'Wares may be brought [home] from the house of the craftsman, for instance, jugs from the jug maker's and tumblers from the glass maker's, but not wool from the dyer's nor articles from the house of the craftsman; but if he has not [enough] to eat one gives him his pay [in advance] and leaves the object with him, if however he does not trust him he leaves It In a house near him¹ and if he is anxious about the things lest they be stolen he² brings them home privily'.³ You have thus explained⁴ [the discrepancy] about 'bringing home', [but] the discrepancy about 'conveying' still remains a difficulty; for when it states WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME, [it follows] much less may one convey [wares to the house of the craftsman]! Hence [obviously] the explanation given at first⁵ is the correct one. MISHNAH. FIGS [WHILE DRYING]

MAY BE COVERED WITH STRAW;⁶ R. JUDAH SAYS, THEY MAY EVEN BE PILED UP [IN HEAPS].⁷ VENDORS OF FRUITS, CLOTHING AND [OTHER] WARES MAY SELL Privily FOR THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. FISHERMEN, GROATS-POUNDERS AND GRIST GRINDERS⁸ PLY THEIR TRADE PRIVILY FOR THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. R. JOSE SAYS, THEY HAVE IMPOSED A RESTRICTION ON THEMSELVES.⁹

GEMARA. R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Assi differ [in their interpretation] both in the name of Hezekiah and R. Johanan.¹⁰ One says that the [former expression], they MAY BE COVERED, MEHAPPIN, means [covering but] lightly, and [the latter] MAY EVEN BE PILED UP, ME'ABBIN, means [spreading the straw] closely; the other says that MAY BE COVERED, means [spreading the straw] lightly or densely, while [the latter expression], MAY EVEN BE PILED UP, means making a sort of pile.¹¹ It is also taught thus: 'May be piled up [me'abbin] — making a sort of pile: these are the words of R. Judah'.

VENDORS OF FRUITS, CLOTHING AND [OTHER] WARES MAY SELL PRIVILY. The question was asked: Does THEY HAVE IMPOSED A RESTRICTION ON THEMSELVES, mean that they do not work at all, or perhaps that they do it privily? Come and hear: 'Vendors of fruits, clothing and [other] wares sell privily for the requirements of the festival [week]; R. Jose says, The Tiberian traders have imposed a restriction on themselves not to sell at all. Deerstalkers, fowlers and fishermen catch privily for the requirements of the festival [week]; it. Jose says, The catchers of Acra have imposed a restriction on themselves not to catch at all. Groats-pounders make hilka¹² [coarse meal], tragus¹³ [pulse-porridge] and tisana¹⁴ [pearl-barley] privily for the requirements of the festival [week]; R. Jose says, The gristpounders of Sepphoris have imposed a restriction on themselves not to pound at all'. Abaye explained:¹⁵ Hilka means [groats of] one [grain broken] in two;¹⁶ tragus, one into three;¹⁷ tisana, one into four.¹⁸ When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said: [All these are] kuntha [spelt].

An objection was raised: Hilka, tragus and tisana are [considered as] 'tainted'¹⁹ everywhere.²⁰ Now this harmonizes well with the explanation that it is one [grain broken] in two, three or four; they are [considered] 'tainted' everywhere, because they have been rendered 'fit' [liable to take the taint of impurity]; but according to the explanation that they are all 'spelt', why then are they taken as 'tainted' everywhere, for these have not [necessarily] been rendered 'fit' [by damping]? [Sometimes they are], for instance, where the groats are [made of] peeled [spelt]; because, unless the grain had been soaked in water it would not peel. And why is it called hilka? Because it has had its 'tunic'²¹ [husk] taken off. An objection was raised: 'One who vowed [to abstain] from dagan²² is debarred even from [partaking of] the Egyptian bean²³ when dry, but is allowed to eat it when fresh [green];²⁴ and he is permitted rice,²⁵ hilka, tragus and tisana.²⁶ Now, this harmonizes well with the explanation that these [varieties] are so called because one [grain] is broken into two, three or four; it is Proper [to allow him to eat] because these [being now meal] no longer belong to the [category] of dagan [grain]; but according to him who says that hilka is [what we call] 'spelt', it is [still] properly [designated as] dagan! — This is a difficulty.

R. Huna²⁷ permitted vendors of Pot-herbs²⁸ to go and sell in the festival week in the market Place in the ordinary way. R. Kahana thereupon put an objection to him [from the following]: 'A shop which opens into a colonnade may be opened and closed in the ordinary way; if it opens into the public domain, [the shopkeeper] may open one door and close one; and on the day preceding the last day of the Feast [of Tabernacles]²⁹ he may bring out fruit and decorate the markets all round the town in honour of the last day of the Feast'. [That is to say], 'In honour of the last day of the Feast, [he may open]; but if not in honour of the last day of the Feast, he may not [open]! That is not difficult [to explain]: This latter prohibition refers to the sale of fruits, whereas in the former case it is the sale of seasoning [pot-herbs that is allowed].

(30) Lit., 'shave'.

(31) Lit., 'From a maritime province'.

(32) Lit., 'repelled' for some flagrant breach of discipline, a religious or moral offence. The matter is discussed fully infra 16aff. The 'repelled' person was expected to go about in sorry apparel, with disordered hair during the time of disgrace, as if in mourning.

(33) A hakam, an ordained Rabbi, to absolve him of a vow to go unkempt for a period, which is found to have been made rashly and is now extremely inconvenient or impossible of fulfillment. Cf. e.g., Ned. IX, 6; 66a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 14a

, OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE [JUST] GRANTED ABSOLUTION. AND LIKEWISE ONE WHO APPLIED TO A SAGE AND WAS ABSOLVED [BY HIM]. HAND-TOWELS, BARBERS' TOWELS AND BATH-TOWELS [MAY BE WASHED]. MEN OR WOMEN [AFFECTED] WITH 'THE FLUX'¹ OR MENSTRUANTS,² OR WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH³ AND ALL THOSE EMERGING FROM [A STATE OF RITUAL.] IMPURITY⁴ TO [BEGIN] THEIR PURIFICATION ARE ALLOWED [TO WASH THEIR GARMENTS]; BUT ALL OTHER MEN ARE FORBIDDEN.

GEMARA. What is the reason that all other men are forbidden? — As we learned: 'Members of the ward on duty⁵ and [communal] Deputies at their Posts⁶ are forbidden [during their turn] to crop [their hair] or wash [their garments]. But on Thursday they are allowed, in honour of the Sabbath'. Now Rabbah b. Bar-Hana reporting R. Eleazar [as commenting on this] said: 'What is the reason [they may on Thursday]? So that they should not enter [on the duty of] their Ward in a state of untidiness'. Here also the reason is that they do not enter upon the festival in a state of untidiness.

R. Zera inquired: Suppose one had lost something on the day before the festival? [Do we say], since he was prevented [from attending to himself before] he may,⁷ or perhaps, as the reason is not obvious, he may not? — Said Abaye: [Obviously not], as people would then say: '[So] all Syrian [fancy] loaves are forbidden, but the Syrian [fancy] loaves of Boethus are allowed'?⁸ But admitting your argument [against], yet what about it. Assi's statement? who citing R. Johanan said: 'Anybody who has but one tunic⁹ is allowed to wash it during the festival week'. Would not people say in that case, too: '[So] all Syrian [fancy] loaves are forbidden, but the Syrian [fancy] loaves of Boethus are allowed'? — Surely it has been stated in this connection: 'Said Mar son of R. Ashi, His girdle¹⁰ proves his plight'.¹¹ R. Ashi's comments on our Mishnah were [in this form]: R. Zera enquired, What if a craftsman¹² had lost something on the day before the festival? Do we say that since he is a craftsman, the reason [why he is allowed] is obvious, or since the reason is not so obvious as in those other cases [mentioned in the Mishnah], he may not [attend to himself in the festival week]? Let this question stand [adjourned].¹³

[ONE ARRIVING HOME] FROM ABROAD [MAY CROP]. [The anonymous view of] our Mishnah is not that of R. Judah. For it is taught: R. Judah says, One arriving [home] from abroad may not crop himself [during the festival week] because he had set out [on his voyage] without the approval [of the Rabbis].¹⁴ Said Raba: 'If he merely went on a tour all [authorities] are agreed that he is forbidden;¹⁵ if to seek his bread, all are agreed that he is allowed.¹⁵ Difference of opinion arises only in the case of a voyage for business profits, one master looking upon it as equivalent to [mere] travelling, and the other master looking upon it as equivalent to seeking his bread'.

An objection was raised: 'Said Rabbi: R. Judah's opinion seems apposite where he had set out without approval and the Sages' opinion seems apposite where he had set out with approval'. Now, what is 'without approval'? If I say for going on a tour, did you not say that all are agreed that he is forbidden?¹⁵ Again [should it mean] for seeking [his] bread; surely did you not say that [if with this object] all are agreed that he is allowed?¹⁶ It is obvious therefore that it means for profit-seeking.¹⁷ Now consider the latter clause: 'And the Sages' opinion seems apposite where he had set out with approval'; what is meant by 'with approval'? If I say [approval to set out] for earning his bread, have you not said that all are agreed that he is allowed?¹⁶ Again, should it [rather] mean for profit [seeking]; but surely then, did you not say that' R. Judah's [adverse] opinion seems apposite in this case [that he is forbidden]?¹⁸ — This is what he [Rabbi] meant to say: The Rabbis accept R. Judah's opinion where he had started out 'without approval', and what means it? For going on a tour; because, even the Sages disagree with him only on [the question of a voyage] for gaining profit, whereas in regard to going on a tour they concur with him.¹⁹ And again, R. Judah accepts the Rabbis' opinion [that he may attend to himself]¹⁶ where he had set out 'with approval', and what means it? For seeking his bread; because even R. Judah disagrees with them only on [the question of a voyage] for gaining profit, whereas in regard to going out for seeking his bread he concurs with them.²⁰

Samuel said: 'If an infant is born during the festival [week] it is allowed to cut his hair²¹ during the festival [week] because there is no imprisonment²² more real than this'. [That is, only 'if . . . born] during the festival [week]' it may be done, but [if born] before then, it is [presumably] not allowed.²³

R. Phineas raised all objection: 'Every one of those mentioned [by the Sages] as being permitted to crop his hair during the festival [week] may [likewise] crop his hair during the [thirty]²⁴ days of his mourning';²⁵ [which means conversely] that every one of those who is forbidden to crop his hair during the festival [week] is [likewise] forbidden to crop his hair during the [thirty]²⁶ days of his mourning.

(8) A proverbial expression, protesting against discrimination. The origin of the proverb is found in Pes. 37a where it is objected to fancy-shaped loaves for Passover use, as the shaping of the piece of dough may delay the baking to the point of leavening. R. Boethus b. Zonin suggested that the use of moulds might easily obviate this fear, which evoked the (proverbial) retort.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 14b

Now if you say that there is a difference here in the case of the infant,¹ you are this implying that [the observance of] mourning obtains in the case of a minor, whereas it is taught: 'A minor's garment is rent out of grief of soul'?² R. Ashi said [that the negative inference is faulty, for] does it [actually] state 'but those who are forbidden'?³ Perhaps [it means to state] that some there are who are forbidden⁴ and some others who are permitted.⁵

Amemar, or some say. R. Shisha son of R. Idi, taught thus: 'Samuel said: "An infant may be cropped in the festival [week]: it makes no difference whether he was born during the festival [week] or was born before".' Said R. Phineas: We learned this also [indirectly] from [the following]: 'Every one of those mentioned [by the Sages] as being permitted to crop during the festival [week] may likewise crop his hair during the [thirty] days of his mourning'; which means conversely, but every one of those who is forbidden to crop during the festival [week] is likewise forbidden to crop during the [thirty] days of his mourning. Now if you say that a [newly-born] infant is forbidden [to be cropped] you find yourself [implying] that [the observance of] mourning obtains in the case of a minor; whereas it is taught [distinctly]: 'The garment of a minor is rent [merely] out of grief of soul'? — Said R. Ashi: [That negative inference is faulty for] does it [actually] state, 'But he who is forbidden [in the festival week] is also forbidden during his [thirty] days of mourning? Probably it means that some there are who are forbidden and some others who are permitted.

A mourner does not deport himself as one in mourning during a festival, as it is said: And thou shalt rejoice in the feast.⁶ [For], if his mourning began before [the festival], a positive precept incumbent on the community⁷ overrides one incumbent on him as an individual;⁸ and if his mourning began just then [during the festival], an individual's function cannot come and put off that of the public.

Now what about one separated [under a ban]? Should he deport himself as one in 'separation' during a festival? — Said R. Joseph: Come and hear: 'They [the Courts] deal with capital offenses, with [offenses involving judicial] floggings⁹ and monetary suits,¹⁰ [during the festival week]'. [This implies that] if one heeds not the [court's] decision, we put him under a ban.¹¹ Now if you presume that he should not deport himself during the festival like one under 'separation', [then] seeing that where one is already fallen under a ban, the festival comes and suspends [the ban],¹² shall we pronounce him banned in the first instance [during the festival]? Abaye replied: Perhaps [the object of the adjudication is] to examine the charge against him.¹³ For, should you not say thus, then 'capital offenses' therein mentioned would likewise mean indeed that they would have him slain; but surely thereby they [the judges] themselves would be debarred from 'rejoicing in the feast' [as is Scripturally ordained], as it is taught:¹⁴ Says R. Akiba: Whence may it be shown that a Sanhedrin [Court] that put a [sinning] soul to death do not taste [food] all that day? From the instructive text 'Ye shall not eat on the blood'.¹⁵ Therefore [I say] it must be only to examine the charge against him, and likewise here it is only to examine the charge against him. Said R. Joseph to him: If [you explain it] so, the result is that you delay the execution of his sentence [which is forbidden]?¹⁶ But [I take it], they come early in the morning and examine the charges against him; then they go home and eat and drink all that day¹⁷ and, coming back with the setting sun, they do give a final decision and [also] have him put to death.¹⁸

Said Abaye: Come and hear.¹⁹ OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE GRANTED ABSOLUTION.²⁰ Said Raba: Does it state: 'Whom the Sages granted absolution'? It says: OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE [JUST] GRANTED ABSOLUTION, [that is] where he [the offender] went and appeased the plaintiff and then came before our Rabbis²¹ and they then set him free [from restraints].²²

What about a leprous person; does he deport himself as a leper during the festival?²³ — Said Abaye: 'Come and hear: AND [ALSO] A NAZIR OR LEPER EMERGING FROM HIS [STATE OF] IMPURITY TO [BEGIN] HIS PURIFICATION [may crop his hair and wash his garments],²⁴ which implies that during the days of his impurity he does deport himself [as a leper]'! — [No]; the Tanna considered that this goes without saying [and is to be understood thus]: It goes without saying that he does not deport himself [as a leper] during the festival.²⁵ But when [he is emerging] into his state of cleanness we might [be inclined to] restrict him, in case he might defer²⁶ making his [preliminary] offerings [of purification].²⁷ Therefore he informs us [that he may, nevertheless].²⁸ Said Raba: Come and hear.²⁹ '[It is taught]: And the leper. [in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent and the hair of his head shall be loose . . .],³⁰ that is meant to include a High Priest [in this rule]'. Now [we learned] a High Priest all through the year is on a par with any other person on a festival, as we learned: The High Priest may make sacrifice [on the altar] even when he be onen,³¹ without however eating thereof! From this [latter restriction of even a High Priest] you can infer [about the former] that he should deport himself as a leper during the festival. — Infer that.

A mourner is forbidden to cut his hair, because since the Divine Law ordained the sons of Aaron:³² Let not the hair of your heads go loose,³³ we infer that for everybody else [cutting the hair] is forbidden

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 15a

. What about those 'separated' [under a ban], and [segregated] lepers in regard to cutting [their hair] during the festival week? — Come and hear. "Those "separated" [under a ban] and [segregated] lepers are forbidden to cut [their hair] and wash [their garments]. If one "separated" [under a ban] died,¹ the Beth din stone his coffin; R. Judah says, not that they set up a heap of stones over him like the heap of Achan,² but the Beth din send [commissioners]³ and have a large stone⁴ placed on his coffin, which teaches you that if anyone is placed under a ban and dies in his "separation", the Beth din stone his coffin'.⁵

A mourner is obliged to muffle his head. Since the All Merciful enjoined Ezekiel: And cover not thine upper lip,⁶ we infer that everybody else is obliged [to do so].⁷ What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to muffling the head? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: 'And they⁸ muffle themselves and sit as men "separated" [under a ban] and like mourners until Heaven grants them mercy'. Said Abaye: Perhaps it is different with one who is 'separated' [under a ban] by displeasure of Heaven⁹ [as it were]; for that is [more] serious [than being in disfavour with man]!

What about a leper, in regard to muffling the head? — Come and hear: And he shall cover his upper lip;¹⁰ we infer from this that he is obliged to muffle his head. — Infer that.

A mourner is forbidden to put on tefillin.¹¹ Since the All Merciful ordained Ezekiel: Bind thy headtire upon thee,¹² this implies that everybody else is forbidden [to do so in deep mourning]. What about one 'separated' [under a ban], in regard to tefillin? — It stands [adjourned].

What about a leper, in regard to [putting on] tefillin? — Come and hear: [Holy Writ prescribes], 'And the leper';¹³ this [amplification] is to include [even] a High Priest [in this law];¹⁴ 'his clothes shall be perumim',¹⁵ that is, they shall be torn. 'And [the hair of] his head shall be parua'.'¹⁶ 'Parua' means only letting the hair grow long;¹⁷ these are the words of R. Eliezer. R. Akiba explains [otherwise]: 'Shall be' is stated in connection with the leper's head;¹⁸ and 'shall be' is stated in connection with the leper's garment.¹⁹ [Therefore] just as 'shall be' stated in connection with the garment refers to something external to the body [clothes],²⁰ so also 'shall be' stated in connection with the head refers to something external to the body.²¹ What then [is to be discarded]? Is it not the reference to tefillin? — Said R. Papa, [Not necessarily these], it may refer to [not putting on] a cap or sudarium.²²

A mourner is forbidden to give the usual greeting [of wellbeing],²³ because the All Merciful said to Ezekiel: Sigh in silence.²⁴ What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to [abstaining from] the usual greeting?²⁵ — R. Joseph said, Come and hear: And in regard to greeting one another 'with peace', as man to man, they [that are fasting]²⁶ behave like persons who are 'separated' [under a ban] by the Omnipresent.²⁷ Said Abaye to him, Perhaps [the case of] the 'separated' [as under a ban] by displeasure of Heaven is different because it is [more] serious.

What about a leper in regard to [abstaining from] greeting one 'with peace'? — Come and hear: [It is written]: And he shall cover his upper lip,²⁸ that is, his lips shall be compressed together, that he should behave like one 'separated' [under a ban] and like a mourner, and he is forbidden to greet one 'with peace' Infer that. Then why not solve now²⁹ [the above question] about one 'separated' [under a ban]?³⁰ — Said R. Aha b. Phineas in the name of R. Joseph: Does it [actually] state that he [the leper] is forbidden [to greet one 'with peace' like one 'separated']? It only states that he behaves like one 'separated' or like a mourner with reference to other things and at the same time that he is also forbidden to greet one 'with peace'.

A mourner is forbidden [to engage] in the words of the Torah, because the All Merciful said to Ezekiel: 'Sigh in silence'.³¹ What about one 'separated' [under a ban engaging in] the words of the Torah? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: One 'separated' [under a ban] may teach [others] and others may teach him; he may be hired [for work] and others may be hired by him. One under anathema³² neither teaches others, nor do others recite it to him; he is not hired [for work] nor are others [to be] hired by him; but he recites to himself in order that he does not interrupt his study;³³ and he makes a small stall for himself [as a means] for 'his livelihood'.³⁴ Whereat Rab³⁵ remarked, [As for instance] selling water at the pass of Araboth.³⁶ Infer from that.³⁷ What about a leper [engaging] in the words of the Torah? — Come and hear: [It is written], And make them known³⁸ unto thy children and thy children's children; the day that thou stoodest before the Lord thy God in Horeb. [that they may learn to fear Me all the days . . . and that they may teach their children],³⁹ that is, just as [they heard God's word] then [at Sinai] with awe, fear, trepidation and perspiration;⁴⁰ [so be it now studied with awe, fear, trepidation and perspiration]. Hence sad they [the Sages], that men who are [affected] with flux,⁴¹ lepers, or such as [in error] consorted with their wife while in separation⁴² are allowed to read [Scripture] out of the Torah [Pentateuch], the Prophets or the Hagiographa⁴³ or to recite [orally] Mishnah,⁴⁴ Midrash,⁴⁵ Gemara,⁴⁶ Halachah or Aggadah;⁴⁷ while those who have night pollutions are forbidden.⁴⁸ You may infer it from that.

A mourner is forbidden to wash his clothes, for it is written, And Joab sent to Tekoa and fetched thence a wise woman and said unto her: 'I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner and put mourner apparel, I Pray thee and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman that had a long time mourned for the dead'.⁴⁸ What about the 'separated' [under a ban] and the lepers washing their clothes? — Come and hear: Persons 'separated' [under a ban] and lepers are forbidden to cut [their hair] or wash [their clothes]. You may infer it from here.

A mourner is in duty bound to rend [his garments], because the All Merciful enjoined the sons of Aaron, 'Neither rend [your clothes]'.⁴⁹ From here you infer that everyone else is bound to do it. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] rending his garments? It stands [adjourned].

What about the leper rending his garments? — Come and hear: 'His clothes shall be perumim'⁵⁰ which means they shall be rent. [Yes], infer it.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 15b

'[God says], "I have set the likeness of mine image on them and through their sins have I upset it; let your couches be overturned¹ on account thereof".' What about one 'separated' [under a ban] and a leper overturning couches? Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden to engage in work, for it is written: And I shall turn your feasts into mourning;² [hence we say] that just as it is forbidden to engage in work during a Feast [festival], so is it forbidden to engage in work during mourning. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to doing work? — Said R. Joseph: 'Come and hear: "When the Sages said that it is forbidden them³ to engage in work, [about themselves, bathe, don shoes. . .], they laid this down only for the daytime, but at night it is all permitted and [the same restrictions] you find also in the case of one 'separated' and a mourner."⁴ Does not this refer to all those [restrictions]?' — No, it is only to the other things, [but not to work].

Come and hear: 'One "separated" [under a ban] teaches [others] and others teach him; he is hired [for work] and others are hired by him'.⁵ You may infer from that. What about a leper engaging in work? — Let this stand [adjourned]. A mourner is forbidden to wash himself, as it is written, And anoint not thyself with oil,⁶ and bathing is implied in anointing.⁷ What about one 'separated' [under a ban] bathing? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: 'When the Sages said that it is forbidden then, to wash [on the fast day] they meant only in regard to washing the whole body, but one is permitted to wash one's face, hands or feet, and [the same restrictions] you find also in the case of one "separated" [under a ban] and a mourner'⁸. Now, does not this refer to all the restrictions? — No, [only] to the others [but not to bathing]. What about the leper washing himself? — Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden to put on sandals [shoes], as the All Merciful ordained Ezekiel, And put thy shoes upon thy feet,⁹ which implies that for everyone else it is forbidden [to do so]. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] putting on sandals? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: 'When the Sages said that it is forbidden then, [on the fast day] to put on sandals, they meant only in town, but on the road it is permitted. When, for instance? When one sets out on the road he puts on [shoes], on entering town, he takes them off: and [the same] you find also in the case of one "separated" [under a ban]'.⁸ Now, does not this refer to all those [restrictions]?¹⁰ — No, [only] to the other.¹¹ What about the leper putting on sandals? — Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed, as it is written: And David comforted Bath-Sheba his wife and went in unto her,¹² which implies that before then¹³ it was forbidden [him]. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to the use of the [conjugal] bed? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: All those years that Israel spent in the wilderness they were 'separated' [under a ban]¹⁴ yet they used their [conjugal] beds.¹⁵ Said Abaye: But, maybe, the case of those who are 'separated' by [displeasure] of Heaven is different because it is less serious? [You say], 'less serious'! But you argued [before]¹⁶ that it was more serious? — He is uncertain on the point; [if you] go [and argue] this way, he rebuts it, and if you go [and argue] the other way, he [again] rebuts it. What about a leper, in regard to the use of the [conjugal] bed? — Come and hear, for it is taught: '[It is written], But [he] shall dwell outside his tent seven days',¹⁷ that is, he shall be like one 'separated' [under a ban] and like a mourner; and he is forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed, as '[outside] his tent' means only [apart from] his wife, as it is said: Go say to them: Return ye to your tents.¹⁸ You may infer it from that. Then could not one now by this [conclusion] solve the above question [on this point] about one 'separated' [under a ban]? — Said R. Huna¹⁹ son of Phineas in R. Joseph's name: Does it state [categorically] that he [the leper] is forbidden [like one 'separated']? It only states that he is like one 'separated' [under a ban] and like a mourner in respect of other things and that he be [also] forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed.²⁰

A mourner does not send his sacrifices [to the Temple], for it is taught: Says R. Simeon, [It is written, And thou shalt sacrifice] peace-offerings²¹ and eat there,²² and thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God,²³ that is, one offers 'peace-offerings' [only] at times when one is untroubled,²⁴ but not at a time when one is onen,²⁵ What about one 'separated' [under a ban], should he [then] send his offerings? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: All those years that Israel spent in the wilderness they were 'separated' [under a ban]²⁶ and [yet] they sent their offerings [to the Tabernacle]. Said Abaye to him: But perhaps one 'separated' by [the displeasure of] Heaven is different, because it is not so serious? [You say], 'Not so serious'! But you argued [before] that it was more serious! — [Abaye] being uncertain on the point rebutted it [either way]. What about a leper, may he send his [sacrificial] offerings? — Come and hear: And after he [a defied priest] is cleansed²⁷ — [that is, cleansed]²⁸ after coming away from his dead near of kin — they shall reckon unto him seven days²⁹ — those are the seven days which he has to count³⁰ — and in the day that he goeth into the Sanctuary,³¹ into the inner court,³² to minister in the Sanctuary, he shall offer his sin-offering³³

- (29) The (above) ritual sprinkling from defilement by contact with the dead was done on the third and seventh days after having separated from the corpse; but the use of the phrase 'they shall reckon seven days' instead of 'they shall sprinkle upon him' is taken to be reminiscent of the seven days for a leper on his recovery and his preliminary ritual cleansing, before leaving his place of Isolation (Lev. XI V, 1-8), which were followed by another seven days of ritual purification before he may proceed on the eighth day with his final purification and atonement. (Ibid. 8-11). Accordingly, the case of a leprous priest is read into the text of Ezekiel. For obviously it would be useless to cleanse a leprous priest (or layman) from his defilement by the dead while still being unclean as a leper, and as such unfit to enter the camp or sanctuary.

— which is his [own meal-oblation¹ consisting of] one tenth part of an ephah [of fine flour]: These are the words of R. Judah. R. Simeon says, [the wording:] And in the day that he goeth into the sanctuary [into the inner court to minister in the sanctuary], he shall offer his sinoffering² [implies that only] when he is fit to go into the sanctuary he is fit to offer up [his own oblation]: and when he is not fit to go into the sanctuary, he is not fit to offer up [his own oblation].³ Raba said: Whence do we know⁴ the regulation that we send a messenger of the Court?⁵ — From what is written: And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab.⁶ And whence do we know that we summon⁷ him to attend [in person]? — From what is written, And Moses said to Korah, Be thou and all thy congregation before the Lord, thou and Aaron [tomorrow].⁸ [Whence, to appear] 'before a great personage'? — From what is written, Before the lord.⁸ [To name both parties], 'thou and So-and-so'? — From what is written, Thou and they [that are with thee] and Aaron.⁸ That we fix a time? — As it is written, To-morrow.⁸ Time and again?⁹ — As it is written: They called there,¹⁰ Pharaoh the king of Egypt [the author of] 'commotion'; he hath let the appointed time pass by. [As I live, saith the King, the Lord of Hosts, surely like Tabor among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea, so shall he come].¹¹ And whence do we know that if one behaves insolently towards the Court's messenger and the latter comes and reports it, this is not deemed slander [on his part]? — As it is written: [And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab]; And they said: [We will not come up]⁶ . . . Wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? [We will not come up].¹² Whence do we derive that we [may] pronounce a shammetha¹³ [imprecation]? — From the text: Curse ye Meroz.¹⁴ Whence do we derive that it must be according to the considered opinion of some prominent person? — From the text: [Curse ye Meroz] said the angel of the Lord¹⁴ [to Barak]. And whence do we derive that we pronounce the herem?¹⁵ — Front the [same] text: Curse ye a cursing.¹⁶ Whence do we derive that [it falls on one who] eats and drinks with the offender or stands within four cubits of him? — From the same text: [Curse ye a cursing] the inhabitants thereof.¹⁷ Whence do we derive that we publish the details of his offence? — From the [same] text: Because they [the denizens of Meroz] came not to the help of the Lord. And, said 'Ulla, Barak pronounced the shammetha¹⁸ against Meroz with [the blast of] four hundred horns. Some say that Meroz was [the name of] a great personage;¹⁹ others say that it was [the name of] a star,²⁰ as it is written [there]: They fought from Heaven, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera.²¹ Whence do we derive that his property may be forfeited?²² — From the text: And whosoever come not within three days, according to the counsel of the princes and the elders, all his substance should be forfeited and himself separated from the congregation of the captivity.²³ Whence do we derive that we may quarrel [with an offender], curse him, smite him, pluck his hair and put on him an oath?²⁴ — From the text: And I contended with them, and cursed them, and smote certain of them and plucked off their hair and made them swear by God.²⁵ Whence do we derive that we may fetter, arrest and prosecute them? — From the text: [Let judgment be executed upon him with all diligence], whether it be unto death, or to uprooting, or to confiscation of goods or to imprisonment.²⁶ What is meant by 'uprooting? Said [R.] Adda Mari, reporting Nehemiah b. Baruch, who said in the name of R. Hiyya b. Abin, who had it from Rab Judah, it mean the hardafah.²⁷ What is denoted by hardafah? — Said Rab Judah son of R. Samuel b. Shelath in the name of Rab: It means, They declare him 'separated'²⁸ forthwith; then [if he still persists] they repeat [the same declaration] after thirty days,²⁹ and finally they pronounce the herem on him after sixty days. Said R. Huna b. Hinena, This is what R. Hisda said: They [first] warn him on Monday, [then] on the Thursday³⁰ [following] and [again on the] Monday. This rule applies if he disregards a monetary judgment; but in a case of sheer contumacy the ban is imposed forthwith. When a certain butcher had been insolent to R. Tobai b. Mattena, Abaye and Raba were appointed³¹ to investigate and they pronounced the shammetha on him. In the end, the fellow went and appeased his litigant.³² Said Abaye, What is one to do? Should we absolve him now? The shammetha had not lasted [its] thirty days.³³ Shall we not absolve him? The Rabbis want to go in to him!³⁴ Said lie to R. Idi b. Abin: 'Have you [perchance] heard aught bearing on this?' He replied: 'Thus said R. Tahlifa b. Abimi as reporting Samuel: "A toot³⁵ binds and a toot releases!"' [Said Abaye] to him, Yea, but this obtains only in the case of disregarding a monetary decision, but in a case of contumacy [it holds] until it has rested on him for thirty days! Anyhow, that shows that Abaye was of opinion that if three people had pronounced the shammetha on a man three others cannot come and release him!³⁶ For the question was raised: If three people had pronounced the shammetha on a man, can three others come and remit it for him? — Come and hear: 'One who has been "separated" [under a ban] by the master is [deemed as] "separated" from the disciple;³⁷ but one who has been "separated" by the disciple is not [considered as] "separated" from the master. One who is "separated" by his own town is also "separated" from another town; but one who is "separated" by another town is not [considered] "separated" from his own town. One who is "separated" by the Nasi [Prince] is "separated" in all Israel; but one who is "separated" by all Israel is not [thereby] "separated" from the "Prince". Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says that if one of the disciples had "separated" someone and died, his part is not nullified'. From this you derive three points: — [a] That if a disciple 'separated' someone in [defence of] his personal dignity,³⁸ the 'separation' lies, and you infer [b] that each person revokes his own part, and you infer [c] that if a body of three have pronounced a shammetha on a person, three others may not come and release him.³⁹

Amemar said: 'The rule in practice is, that if a body of three have laid a shammetha on a person, a body of three others [can] come and release him'. Said R. Ashi to Amemar, But it is taught: 'Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says that if one of the disciples "separated" someone and died, his part is not nullified'! Does not this mean, that it cannot be nullified at all? — No, [it means] not until a body of three others come and release him.

Our Rabbis taught: No 'separation' ban holds less than thirty days and no 'reproof'⁴⁰ holds less than seven days; and although there is no direct proof on that point, there is an [indirect] 'indication' of it: If her father had but spit in her face, should she⁴¹ not hide in shame seven days? [Let her be shut up without the camp seven days and after that he shall be brought in again].⁴²

R. Hisda remarked, 'Our "separation" [in Babylon] corresponds to their "reproof" [in Palestine]'. But is their 'reproof' of only seven days' duration, not more? Is it not a fact that R. Simeon, Rabbi's son, and Bar Kappara were once sitting rehearsing the lesson together when a difficulty arose about a certain passage⁴³ and R. Simeon said to Bar Kappara, 'This [matter] needs Rabbi [to explain it]', and Bar Kappara replied: 'And what forsooth can Rabbi [have to] say on this?' He went and repeated it to his father, [at which] the latter was vexed, and [when] Bar Kappara next presented himself before Rabbi, he said: 'Bar Kappara, I have never known you!'⁴⁴ He realized that he [Rabbi] had taken the matter to heart and submitted himself to the [disability of a] 'reproof' for thirty days. Again, on one occasion, Rabbi issued an order that they should not teach disciples in the open public market place. (What was his exposition?⁴⁵ — How beautiful are thy steps in sandals, O prince's daughter!⁴⁶ The roundings of thy thighs are like the links of a chain [the work of the hands of a skilled workman].⁴⁷ As the thigh is covered

(2) Ezek. XLIV, 27.

(3) That is, R. Simeon does not allow a leper and common priest or a layman to send his offerings to the Temple until after his purification and atonement by sacrifices. For a leper had to attend in person to be purified by the stated ceremony (Lev. XIV, 11, 14-18, 20).

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 16b

so the [discussions on the] words of the Torah are also [to be] under cover.)¹ — R. Hiyya went out and taught the sons of his two brothers in the [open] marketplace, Rab and Rabbah son of Kar Hana. Rabbi heard [of this and] was vexed. [When] R. Hiyya [next] presented himself before him, Rabbi said to him, 'Iyya!² Who is calling you outside?' He realized that he [Rabbi] had taken the matter to heart, and submitted himself to [the disability of] a 'reproof' for thirty days. On the thirtieth day Rabbi sent him a message saying 'Come!' Later he sent him a message not to come! (What³ was his idea in sending the first [message] and what in sending the second? At first he thought 'part of the day may be deemed equivalent to the whole day' and in the end he thought, we do not say part of the day may be deemed equivalent to the whole day'.)⁴ In the end he came. Said Rabbi to him, Why have you come? R. Hiyya replied: 'Because you, Sir, sent for me to come'. But then I sent to you not to come! He replied: 'The one [messenger] I saw and the other I have not seen'. Thereupon he [Rabbi] cited [as appropriate] the text: When a man's ways please the Lord, He maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.⁵ Wherefore, Sir, [asked Rabbi] did you act thus [contrary to order]? — Because, replied R. Hiyya, it is written: Wisdom crieth aloud it, the street: [She uttereth her voice in the broad places; she calleth at the head of the street; at the entrance of the gates, in the city she uttereth her words].⁶ Said Rabbi to him: 'If you read Holy Writ [once], you have not read it a second time; if you have read it a second time, you have not read it a third time; and if you have read it a third time, they [who taught you] have not explained it to you'.⁷ [The text] 'Wisdom crieth aloud in the streets' is [to be taken] in the sense in which Raba [explained it];⁸ for Raba said: 'If one studies the Torah indoors, the Torah proclaims his merit abroad'. But then is it not written [otherwise]: 'From the beginning I have not spoken in secret'?⁹ — That has [special] reference to the 'Kallah' days.¹⁰ And what [use] does R. Hiyya make of the text — 'The roundings of thy thighs'? — He explained it in reference to the dispensing of charity and acts of lovingkindness.¹¹ Thus¹² [you see] the disability of their 'reproof' [in Palestine] lasts thirty days! — The 'reproof' of a Nasi is different. And our 'reproof', how long [is its disability]? — One day [only], as in the case of Samuel and Mar 'Ukba.¹³ When they were sitting together [at the College] engaging in the revision of some theme, Mar 'Ukba sat before him¹⁴ at a distance of four cubits; and when they sat together at a judicial session, Samuel sat before him¹⁴ at a distance of four cubits and a place was dug out¹⁵ for Mar 'Ukba where he sat on a matting so that what he¹⁶ said should be heard. Every day Mar 'Ukba accompanied Samuel to his house. One day he¹⁶ was [rather] engrossed in a suit, and Samuel walked behind him. When he¹⁶ had reached his house, Samuel said to him: 'Haven't you been rather a long time at it?'¹⁷ Take up now my case!'¹⁸ He¹⁶ then realized that he [Samuel] felt aggrieved and submitted himself to the [disability of a] 'reproof' for one day.

There was a certain woman who sat sprawling on the footway fanning the husks out of her barley groats, and when a Collegiate was walking past her she did not make way for him. He said, 'How impudent is this woman!' She came before R. Nahman. Said he to her, Did you hear him utter the shammetha?¹⁹ She replied [she had] not. Said he to her, Go and submit yourself to the [disability of a] 'reproof' for one day.¹⁹ Zutra b. Tobiah was [once] expounding a Scriptural lesson in the presence of Rab Judah. Coming to the verse: And these are the last words of David,²⁰ he said to R. Judah. 'Last words': this implies that there were former words; which are those former [words]? He [Rab Judah] kept silent, without saying anything. Again said the former: 'Last words! This implies there were former words; which are those former [words]'? — He [then] replied: What, think you that one who does not know an explanation of that text is not an eminent man? He [Zutra] realized that he [Rab Judah] had taken the matter to heart [and] submitted himself to the [disability of a] 'reproof' for one day. Now, however, that we have come upon this question: "'Last words", this implies that there were former words', what were they? — [These:] And David spoke unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies and out of the hand of Saul.²¹ The Holy One, blessed 'be He, said to David, David do you compose a song on the downfall of Saul? Had you been Saul and he David, I would have annihilated many a David out of regard for him. Hence it is written, 'Shiggaion²² of David, which he said unto the Lord, concerning Cush a Benjamite.²³ Was Cush that Benjamite's name? And was not his name Saul? — But, just as a Cushite [Ethiopian]²⁴ is distinguishable by his skin, so was Saul distinguished by his deeds. In like manner you explain: '[And Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses] because of the Cushite woman that he had taken, to wife.²⁵ Was she a Cushite [woman]? Was not her name Zipporah? But as a Cushite woman is distinguishable by her skin so was also Zipporah distinguished by her deeds. In like manner you explain: Now Ebed-Melek the Cushite . . . heard.²⁶ Now was his name Cushite? Was not his name Zedekiah?²⁷ But as the Cushite is distinguishable by his skin so was Zedekiah distinguished by his deeds. In like manner you explain: Are ye not as the children of the Cushites unto me, O children of Israel, saith the Lord?²⁸ Now is their name [children of] Cushites? Was not their name [children of] Israel? The truth is that as the Cushite is distinguishable by his skin, so are Israel distinguished by their ways²⁹ from all other nations.³⁰

R. Samuel b. Nahmani citing R. Jonathan. explained: [And these tire the last words of David], The saying of David the son of Jesse and the saying of the man raised on high,³¹ [means, it is] the saying of David the son of Jesse who established firmly the yoke [discipline] of repentance.³² [The spirit of the Lord spoke by the and His word was upon my tongue]. The God of Israel said, The Rock of Israel spoke to me: Ruler over man shall be the righteous, even he that ruleth through the [reverent] fear of God.³³ What does this mean? — Said R. Abbahu, It means this: ‘The God of Israel said, to the [David] spake the Rock of Israel; I rule man; who rules Me? [It is] the righteous: for I make a decree and he [may] annul it’.³⁴

And these are the names of the mighty of David: Josheb-basshebeth a Tahchemonite [etc.].³⁵ What does this mean? — Said R. Abbahu, It means: And these are the mighty deeds of David: ‘Josheb-basshebeth’ — [which means], sitting at the session;³⁶ [that is], When David sat at the College Session he was not seated on cushions and coverlets but on the [bare] ground.³⁷ For all the time that his Master, Ira the Jairite,³⁸ was alive he taught the Rabbis whilst being himself seated on cushions and coverlets; when his soul found rest David used to teach the Rabbis being himself seated on the ground.³⁹ Said they [the Rabbis] to him: ‘Sit, sit on the cushions and coverlets’; but he would not accede to their request.

‘Tahchemoni’.⁴⁰ Rab explained: The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him [to David], ‘Since you have humbled yourself you shall be like Me [that is], that I make a decree and you [may] annul it’. ‘Chief of the Captains’,⁴¹ [that is] you be chief next to the three Fathers. He is Adino⁴² the Eznite,⁴³ [that is] when he was sitting engaged in the [study of] Torah he rendered himself pliant as a worm, but when he went marching out to [wage] war he hardened himself like a lance. ‘On eight hundred slain at one time’, [that is] when he threw a javelin he felled eight hundred slain at one time and moaned for the [shortage of] two hundred, for it is written: How one should chase a thousand.⁴⁴ But an echo came forth and said: ‘Save only for the matter of Uriah the Hittite’!⁴⁵

if a disciple 'separates' someone in [defence of] his personal dignity his 'separation' is an [effective] . For it is taught: 'One who has been "separated" [as under a ban] by the Master is [deemed] "separated" from the disciple; but one who has been "separated" by the disciple is not [deemed] "separated" from the Master'.¹ [That means], not 'separated' from the Master; but in regard to everybody else he is ['separated']. [Now let us see; 'separated'] for what [offence]? If [it was imposed] for some offence towards Heaven, then there is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord!² Therefore [presumably] it is only so³ [where a disciple had pronounced it] in [defence of] his personal dignity. R. Joseph said that a Collegiate⁴ may enforce his own rights in a matter where he is perfectly certain [as to the law]. There was once a certain Collegiate whose reputation was objectionable. Said Rab Judah, How is one to act? To put the shammetha on him [we cannot], as the Rabbis have need of him [as an able teacher]. Not to put the shammetha on him [we cannot afford] as the name of Heaven is being profaned. Said he to Rabbah b. Bar Hana, Have you heard alight on that point? He replied: 'Thus said R. Johanan: What means the text, For the priest's lips should keep knowledge and they should seek the law at his mouth; for he is the messenger of the Lord of Hosts?⁵ [It means, that] if the Master is like unto a messenger of the Lord of Hosts, they should seek the law at his mouth; but if [he be] not , they should not seek the law at his mouth'. [Thereupon] Rab Judah pronounced the shammetha on him. In the end Rab Judah became indisposed. The Rabbis came to enquire about him and that man came along with them. When Rab Judah beheld him he laughed. Said the man to him: Not enough for him that he put upon that man [me] the shammetha, but he even laughs at me! Replied he [Rab Judah]: I was not laughing at you: but as I am departing to that World [beyond] I am glad to think that even towards such a personage as you I showed no indulgence. Rab Judah's soul came to rest.⁶ The man [then] came to the College [and] said, 'Absolve me'. Said the Rabbis to him, There is no man here of the standing of Rab Judah who could absolve you; but go to R. Judah Nesi'ah⁷ that he may absolve you. He went and presented himself to him. Said he to R. Ammi: 'Go forth and look into his case; if it be necessary to absolve him, absolve him'. R. Ammi looked into his case and had a mind to absolve him. Then R. Samuel b. Nahmani got up on his feet and said: 'Why, even a 'separation" imposed by one of the domestics in Rabbi's house was not lightly treated by the Rabbis for three years; how much more so one imposed by our colleague, Rab Judah!' Said R. Zera, From the fact that this venerable scholar⁸ should just now have turned up at this College after not having come here for many years, you must take it that it is not desirable to absolve that man. He [R. Judah Nesi'ah]⁹ did not absolve him. He went away weeping. A wasp then came and stung him in the privy member and he died. They brought him into 'The Grotto of the Pious', but they admitted him not.¹⁰ They brought him into 'The Grotto of the Judges' and they received him.¹¹ Why was he admitted there? — Because he had acted according to the dictum of R. Il'ai. For R. Il'ai says, If one sees that his [evil] yezer¹² is gaining sway over him, let him go away where he is not known; let him put on sordid¹³ clothes, don a sordid wrap and do the sordid deed that his heart desires rather than profane the name of Heaven openly.¹⁴

What [was the incident] of the domestic in Rabbi's house? It was one of the maidservants in Rabbi's house that had noticed a man beating his grown-up son and said, Let that fellow be under a shammetha! because he sinned against the words [of Holy Writ]: Put not a stumbling-block before the blind.¹⁵ For it is taught: 'And put not a stumbling-block before the blind', that text applies¹⁶ to one who beats his grown-up son.¹⁷

Resh Lakish was once guarding an orchard [when] a fellow came and ate [some] figs; he shouted at him, but the fellow heeded him not, [whereupon] he said: 'Let that fellow be under a shammetha!' He replied: 'Rather be that other fellow [Resh Lakish] under a shammetha! Though I have incurred a pecuniary liability towards you, did I incur a "separation"?' [Resh Lakish] went to the College [and reported it]; they said to him: 'His "separation" is a [justified]¹⁸ "separation", yours was not a [justified] "separation".' And what is the remedy for it? — 'Go to him that he [himself] may absolve you'. [But] I know him not! Said they to him [to Resh Lakish]: 'Go to the Nasi that he absolve you;' for it is taught: '[If] they "separate" him and he knows not who he was that "separated" him, let him go to the Nasi and let him absolve him from his "separation".'

Said R. Huna, At [one of the Synods at] Usha¹⁹ they made a regulation that if the Ab Beth din²⁰ committed an offence he was not to be [formally] 'separated', but someone was to tell him, Save your dignity and remain at home.²¹ Should he again offend they 'separate' him, because [otherwise there would be] a profanation of the Name [of God]. And this is at variance with Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said: If a scholar-disciple has committed an offensive deed they do not 'separate' him publicly, because it is said: Therefore shalt thou stumble' in the day and the prophet also shall stumble with thee in the night, [that is to say], Keep it dark,²² like night.

Mar Zutra, the Pious,²³ if ever a Collegiate incurred the shammetha, pronounced the shammetha first on himself²⁴ and then pronounced it on the culprit; as he entered his house he first absolved himself and then absolved the other.²⁵ Said R. Giddal, as citing Rab: 'A scholar-disciple may Pronounce "separation" on himself and absolve himself'. Said R. Papa, 'May [good] befall me, for I have never put the shammetha on any Collegiate.'²⁶ But then, when a Collegiate did incur the shammetha, how did he act? — As they do [in the West]; for in the West [Palestine] they appoint a tribunal for chastising a Collegiate but do not appoint a tribunal for pronouncing a shammetha.

What is [the etymology of the word] shammetha? — Said Rab, [It is], sham-mitha, 'death is there'. Samuel said, [It is], shemamah yihye,²⁷ 'he shall be a desolation'; and its effects adhere to one like grease to the oven. And this is in disagreement with [what] Resh Lakish said. For Resh Lakish said that just as when it [the herem] enters, it penetrates the two hundred and forty eight joints [on one's body],²⁸ so on its withdrawal it departs from the two hundred and forty eight joints. When it enters, as it is written; And the city shall be Herem, [a curse²⁹ [i.e.,] Herem being in its letter value two hundred and forty eight,³⁰ So at its withdrawal, as it is written: In wrath remember Rahem [to have compassion]³¹ the letter value being the same.

R. Joseph said, 'Cast a shammetha on the dog's tail and it will do its work'. For there was a dog that used to eat the Rabbis' shoes and they did not know what it was [that did it], so they pronounced a shammetha on the culprit, and the dog's tail caught fire and got burnt. There was a domineering fellow who bullied a certain Collegiate. The latter came before R. Joseph [for advice]. Said he to him: 'Go and put the shammetha on him'. 'I am afraid of him', he replied. Said he to him, 'Then go and take [out] a Writ³² against him.' — 'I am all the more afraid to do that!' Said R. Joseph to him: 'Take that Writ, put it into a jar, take it to a graveyard and hoot into it a thousand shipur [horn-blasts] on forty days'. He went and did so. The jar burst and the domineering bully died.

What is the [significance of using a] shipur'? — That he'll pay, the penalty.¹ What signifies the tabra² [tooting]? — Said R. Isaac son of R. Judah: [It suggests] 'the tumbling of high houses': for it is taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said that wherever the Sages set their eye against one, [the result was] either death or poverty.³

AND THE NAZIRITE OR LEPER, EMERGING FROM HIS [STATE OF] IMPURITY TO [A STATE OF] PURITY. . . R. Jeremiah enquired of R. Zera whether this [concession]⁴ was allowed [only] when they had not an [earlier] opportunity.⁴ or, maybe, even if they had an [earlier] opportunity? — He replied, We learned it [in a Baraita]:⁵ All those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah]⁶ as being allowed to crop their hair during the festival [week, are allowed] where they had no [earlier] opportunity, but if they had an [earlier] opportunity [and did not use it] are forbidden.⁷ The Nazirite and the leper [however] are allowed,⁷ even if they had an opportunity [and did not use it]; the reason being that they should not delay bringing their [prescribed] offerings⁸ [on their release from their respective restrictions].

A Tanna taught: A priest and a mourner also⁹ are allowed to crop themselves.⁷ Now, as to this mourner, under what conditions [may he do so]? Shall I assume that the eighth day of his [mourning] fell on the day before the festival? Then he ought to have trimmed himself then, on the day before¹⁰ the festival! Again, if the eighth day of his [mourning] came on a Sabbath which was the day before the festival; [if so] then he should have trimmed his hair on the Friday. as R. Hisda stated, citing Rabina b. Shila, that 'the rule in practice' followed Abba Saul's view and that the Sages concurred with Abba Saul,¹¹ [namely] that where the eighth day of his [mourning] came on a Sabbath which was the day before a festival, [in such a case] he was allowed to trim himself on the Friday!¹² — No, this [statement in the Baraita] is required for the case where the seventh day of his [mourning] came on a Sabbath which was also the day before the festival. [In that case] the external Tanna takes the view of Abba Saul who says that part of a day may be deemed as an entire day; and [accordingly] the seventh day of his [mourning] is counted both with the preceding and with the following period¹³ and as that happens to be a Sabbath day,¹⁴ the mourner was prevented [from trimming himself on the festival eve].¹⁵ [Whereas], our Tanna¹⁶ takes the view of the Sages who say that part of a day is not deemed as an entire day, and [accordingly] the mourner has not yet completed the seven days of his mourning [before the festival].¹⁷

Now as to the priest,¹⁸ under what conditions [may he]? Shall I assume that [the turn of] his Ward¹⁹ terminated on the day before the festival?²⁰ He should have trimmed himself then on the day before the festival! No, it is necessary to assume that [the turn of] his Ward terminated on the festival [day].²¹ [In that case], our Tanna¹⁶ then holds in view of what we learned: At three periods of the year, all the Wards have an equal right to [assist in placing] the ‘ordained’ parts²² of the festival offerings [on the altar] and sharing the ‘shewbread’²³ — that we consider him as one whose Ward had virtually not yet completed [its turn].²⁴ Whereas the external Tanna holds that although [in a way] he belongs to the other Wards [also], his own Ward had nevertheless [actually] completed [its turn, and therefore he may trim himself].²⁵ Our Rabbis taught: All those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah] as being allowed to crop their hair during the festival [week] are likewise allowed to crop their hair during the days of their mourning. But surely it is taught that they are forbidden? — Said R. Hisda as citing R. Shela: When it is taught here that they ‘are allowed [to crop their hair during the days of their mourning]’, it refers only to persons who suffered one bereavement immediately after another. If it refers only [as you say] to persons who suffered one bereavement immediately after another, what is the point in wording it ‘all those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah]’ whereas [under such unfortunate circumstances] it is even applicable to anybody, as it is taught: ‘If a person suffered one bereavement immediately after another and his hair has become oppressively [long], he may ease it with a razor and wash his raiment with water’? — But that has already been explained: R. Hisda said [it means], ease it with a razor but not with scissors: wash his raiment with water but not natron or lye.²⁶ [Furthermore] said R. Hisda: This [Baraitha] indicates that [otherwise] a mourner is barred from washing [his clothes].

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Just as it was said that cropping the hair during the festival [week] is not allowed, so is paring the nails during the festival [week] not allowed. This is R. Judah's opinion; but R. Jose allows it. And just as it was said that a mourner is not allowed to crop his hair within [the period of] his mourning, so is paring the nails not allowed to him within [the period of] his mourning. This is R. Judah's opinion; but R. Jose allows it that the Halachah follows the opinion of R. Jose [both] in regard to the festival [week] and to mourning. For Samuel said that in [questions appertaining to] mourning, the halachah follows the authority of the more lenient view.

Phineas, Mar Samuel's brother, suffered a bereavement¹ and Samuel called on him to ask him the cause of it.² Noticing that his nails were long, he asked him why he had not cut them. He replied: Had this happened to you, would you have been so regardless of it [as to cut them]? This was [inauspicious], 'like an error which proceedeth from a ruler';³ and Samuel [later] suffered a bereavement himself. When his brother [Phineas] called on him to ask the cause of it, Samuel took his cut nails and cast them down in front of his brother, saying, 'Do you not hold that a covenant has been made with the lips?'⁴ For R. Johanan said: Whence is derived the notion that the lips are subject to a covenant? From what is said: And Abraham said unto his young men: 'Abide ye here with the ass, and I and the lad will go yonder; and we will worship and [we will] come back to you';⁵ and the words came true⁶ so that they both came back.

Some argued from the above [incident] that [only] the fingernails may [be cut],⁷ but not the toe-nails. But R. 'Anan b. Tahlifa said, 'I myself had it explained to me by Samuel, that there was no distinction made between the finger-nails and the toe-nails'. R. Hiyya b. Ashi citing Rab said: But with a nail-cutter it is forbidden. Said R. Shaman b. Abba: 'I was once standing before R. Johanan⁸ at the College during the festival week when R. Johanan bit off his nails and threw them away. Learn from this [incident] three points: Learn that it is allowed to take off nails during the festival week; that [doing it with the teeth] was not considered objectionable, and that [nails] may be thrown away'. But this [deduction] is not [correct]? as surely it is taught. 'Three things were said in reference to nails: One who buries them is righteous;⁹ one who burns them is pious¹⁰ and one who throws them away is a villain'! What is the reason? Lest a pregnant woman should step over them and miscarry; [but then], women do not 'often come to the College. And should you say that sometimes the nails are gathered and thrown away outside, once they have been shifted their spell has been lifted.'¹¹

Rab Judah. as citing Rab, said: 'A pair [of scholars] came from Hammathan¹² before Rabbi . . .', and Mar Zutra taught [the same as a Baraitha]. 'A pair [of scholars] came from Hammathan before Rabbi, and asked him about [paring] the nails [during mourning]; and he permitted it to them. And if they had asked him about [trimming] the upper lip. he would¹³ have permitted it to them likewise'. And Samuel stated that they did ask him also about the upper lip and that he permitted them.

Abitol the hair-dresser¹⁴ said in the name of Rab that [trimming the] upper lip means from corner¹⁵ to corner; [and of the drooping ends¹⁶ too, all that causes inconvenience]. Said R. Ammi, And as regards the upper lip [it also means only] whatever part causes inconvenience. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, And to me [all of it]¹⁷ is like the [end of the] upper lip causing inconvenience.

And Abitol the hair-dresser, citing Rab, said [also this]: Pharaoh¹⁸ the contemporary of Moses, was [a puny fellow] a cubit [in height] with a beard a cubit long and his shock of hair¹⁹ a cubit and a span, justifying what is said: And He setteth up over it [the kingdom of men] the lowest of men.²⁰ And [furthermore] said Abitol the hair-dresser, as citing Rab, Pharaoh, the contemporary of Moses, was a Magus,²¹ because it is said: [Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning,] lo he goeth out unto the water.²²

AND THESE [MAY] WASH [THEIR CLOTHES] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], ONE ARRIVING FROM ABROAD.²³ R. Assi, as citing R. Johanan said that one who has but one tunic is allowed to wash it during the festival week. Thereupon R. Jeremiah put an objection to him: 'AND THESE [MAY] WASH [THEIR CLOTHES] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. ONE ARRIVING FROM ABROAD etc.' [which enumeration implies that only] those here mentioned may [wash] but one who has but one tunic²⁴ [may] not? — Said R. Jacob to R. Jeremiah [b. Tahlifa],²⁵ I will explain that to you: Our Mishnah [permits to wash] even if he has two garments if they be soiled.²⁶ R. Isaac son of R. Jacob b. Giyora sent [a message] in the name of R. Johanan that garments made of flax²⁷ one may wash during the festival week. Raba raised an objection: HAND-TOWELS, BARBERS'-WRAPS AND BATHTOWELS [MAY BE WASHED].

(18) Under Pharaoh, Rab alluded veiledly to the new Persian rulers as may be gathered from the following description of the Parthians (or Persians). Two Palestinian Rabbis had visited Nehardea and had there an awkward experience. R. Jose b. Kippar, on his return, explained his timidity, thus: 'Those people are a cubit (in height) with a cap a cubit high, speaking as ventriloquists, bearing formidable names (such as) Arda(shir) and Arta (xerxes) and having a shock of hair on their head. If they say, "Fetter" they put on fetters; if they say "Kill" they kill . . . and they were related to royalty', Git. 14b. 'Surena (a Parthian grandee) had his face painted and his hair parted after the fashion of the Medes, whereas the Parthians (whom he led against Crassus 53 B.C.E.) made a more terrible appearance with their shaggy hair gathered in a mass upon their forehead after the Scythian manner'. Plutarch's Lives, Crassus (Everyman's Library, Vol. II, pp. 292-293). 'But to describe their persons and customs (says Ammianus Marcellus) they are nearly all slight in figure, swarthy... fierce-looking with goat-like eyes, eyebrows arched in semi-circle and joined, handsome beards and long hair'. Amm. Marcell. Chapter XXIII, VI, 75 (Bohn's ed. pp. 343ff expedition of Julian in 363 C.E.).

(22) Ex. VII, 15. It is the reference to the light of morning which is the emphatic part of this quotation. Rab undoubtedly referred to the then national revival of Zoroastrianism on the defeat of Artaban IV and the overthrow of the Parthian, Arsacid dynasty by Ardashir I — (Artaxerxes) and the establishment of the Sassanid dynasty in 226 C.E. Artaban (who is said to have been friendly disposed towards Rab) was captured, held a prisoner and finally put to death in 233. i.e., at the time when Alexander Severus repelled the Persian attacks on the Roman outposts in Northern Mesopotamia. Ardashir 'was an ardent devotee of the Zoroastrian doctrine and closely connected with the Priesthood and in his royal style assumed the designation Mazdayasman' (i.e., devotee of Ahura-Mazda) and depicted himself on rock-reliefs as King and Ormuzd both on horseback, i.e., King and god as Pharaoh did of old. Shapur I, his son and successor, was more liberal and friendly to Samuel. Hence the discussion between Rab and Samuel (Shab. 75a) as to what is a magus, a sorcerer (a muttering quack-priest) or a blasphemer, reviler of God? On the historical facts cf. Enc. Brit. II (1911) Art. Peria, VIII, p. 219a-b.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 18b

This [detailed enumeration] implies that these only [one may wash], but not [all sorts of] garments made of flax? — Said Abaye to him, [Not necessarily]; Our Mishnah included even those other kinds [of material].¹ Said Bar Hedyā: I have myself seen at the lake of Tiberias [people] bringing along basins full of flax garments [and washing them] during the festival week. Abaye [however] strongly contested this [testimony]. Who can vouch to us that they did it with the approval of the Sages? Possibly they did so without the approval of the Sages!

MISHNAH AND THE FOLLOWING DOCUMENTS MAY BE INDITED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL,² BILLS OF DIVORCE³ AND RECEIPTS;⁴ TESTA MENTS, BEQUESTS⁵ AND PROSBOLS;⁶ VALUATION CERTIFICATES⁷ AND ORDERS FOR ALIMONY;⁸ RECORDS OF HALIZAH⁹ AND OF REPUDIATION [OF MARRIAGE]¹⁰ AND ARBITRATION RECORDS;¹¹ JUDGMENT ORDERS AND DIPLOMATIC¹² CORRESPONDENCE.

GEMARA. [INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL]. Said Samuel, 'One is allowed to betroth a woman during the festival week, [the reason being] lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him'. Might one suggest that [the wording here] lends support to Samuel's view: AND THE FOLLOWING MAY BE INDITED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL. What is [meant by this]? Is it not actually inditing the formula of Kiddushin?¹³ — No, [it means, drawing up] the [preliminary] terms, and as R. Giddal, citing Rab, stated: 'How much do you give to your son?' 'So much and so much.' 'How much do you give to your daughter?' 'So much and so much'. [If] they then stood up and pronounced the 'dedication' [espousal formula] they have acquired their legal rights [to the offers]; these are [among] the matters that are [legally] acquired by word of mouth.¹⁴ Might one suggest [then] the following as lending support to him [to Samuel]? 'One may take a wife during the festival [week]. whether a virgin or a widow, but not effect a levirate marriage;¹⁵ as it is a rejoicing for him [the groom],¹⁶ [which implies] that betrothing is allowed. — Not [quite so]. He stated [the rule in the form] ‘Not merely [this is not allowed but even that]: Not merely [it is forbidden] to betroth,¹⁷ by which no scriptural obligation is carried out; but even to take [a wife in wedlock] whereby a scriptural obligation is fulfilled,¹⁸ he is forbidden. Come and hear [a support for this]: For it was learnt in the School of Samuel:¹⁹ [Grooms] may betroth, but not bring [a bride] home: and they may not make a feast of betrothal nor effect a levirate marriage, as this is a rejoicing for him [the groom]’. Infer this.²⁰

But [yet], could Samuel have said ‘Lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him’? Surely Rab Judah, as citing Samuel, said: [‘Forty days before the embryo is formed²¹ an echo issues²² forth [on high] announcing, "The daughter of So-and-so is [to be a wife] to Soand-so".’ [Similarly]. ‘Such and such a field²³ is [to belong] to Soand-so’. — No; what it means is, ‘Lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him’ by means of prayer, as is illustrated by what occurred to Raba, who overheard a certain fellow praying for grace saying: ‘May that girl be destined to be mine!’ Said Raba to the man: ‘Pray not for grace thus; if she be meet for you, you will not lose her, and if not, you have challenged Providence’.²⁴ Later he overheard him praying that either he should die before her or she before him. Said Raba to him: ‘[Praying Jack],²⁵ did I not tell you not to pray for grace in this matter?’ Thus said Rab in the name of R. Reuben b. Estroble, from the Torah,²⁶ from the Prophets and from the Hagiographa it may be shown that a woman is [destined to] a man by God. From the Torah: Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the Lord.²⁷ From the Prophets: But his [Samson's] father and mother knew not that it was of the Lord.²⁸ And from the Hagiographa: House and riches are the inheritance of fathers, but a prudent wife is from the Lord.²⁹

And Rab said [also this] in the name of R. Reuben b. Estroble: ‘A person does not incur suspicion unless he has done the thing [suspected]; and if he has not done it wholly he has done it partly; and if he has not done it partly, he has a mind to do it; and if he has not had a mind to do it, he has seen others doing it and enjoyed [the sight of it]’. [As against this], R. Jacob [of Nehar Pekod]³⁰ raised an objection [from the following text]: ‘And the children of Israel did impute things that were not right unto the Lord their God.³¹ There they did it [purposely] to provoke [God].

Come [then] and hear [this statement]: And [Moses heard and fell on his face].³² What tidings had he heard? — Said R. Samuel b. Nahmani, as reporting R. Jonathan: [He heard that] they suspected him of [adultery with] a married woman, as it is said: And they were jealous³³ of Moses in the camp and of Aaron the holy one of the Lord.³⁴ And, said R. Samuel b. Isaac, this indicates that everyone was jealous of his wife because of Moses. — There [again] it was done out of hatred.³⁵

[Then] come and hear [this statement]: Said R. Jose, May my share be with him whom they suspect of something of which he is innocent. Nay further, R. Papa said, They suspected me myself of something of which I was innocent! — It is not difficult [to explain]. One [speaks of a] rumor that dies away, the other of a rumor that persists. And how long would a persistent rumor be? — Said Abaye. ‘Nanna’ told me, Local gossip lasts a day and a half; and that holds good only if it did not cease in the meantime, but if it had ceased in the meantime, we take no notice of it. If, however, it does cease in the meantime, the rule is [to disregard it] only where it was not [stopped] out of fear, but if it was stopped out of fear, it is not [to be disregarded]; again, the rule is [to disregard it] only where it does not break out again, but where it breaks out again [we do] not [disregard it]; also, the rule is [to disregard it] when he [the maligned] person has no enemies, but if he has enemies, [we say] it is his enemies who have spread the [adverse] rumor.

AND MAY SPIN ON HIS THIGH THE BLUE-WOOL FOR HIS FRINGE.¹

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: A person [may] write [the scriptural sections for] phylacteries or mezuzoth for his own use [and spin on his thigh the blue threads for his own fringe],² and for others [he may do so] as a favour:³ this is R. Meir's view; R. Judah says, He may artfully dispose of his own and [then] write fresh ones for his own use. R. Jose says, He may write and sell [them] in his usual way enough for his [personal] requirements',⁴ Rab gave a decision to R. Hananel and some say, Rabbah b. Bar-Hanah to R. Hananel⁵ — that the halachah is that one [may] write and then in his way to the extent of his requirements.

AND [MAY] SPIN ON His THIGH BLUE-WOOL FOR HIS FRINGE. Our Rabbis taught: A person [may] spin on his thigh the blue [thread] for his fringe, but [may] not do so with a stone [as a spindle-whorl]: that is R. Eliezer's view; but the Sages say [he may] even with a stone. R. Judah says in his [R. Eliezer's] name: [He may] with a stone, but not with a spindle; but the Sages say, [He may] either with stone or with spindle. Said R. Judah as citing Samuel, and similarly R. Hiyya b. Abba said as citing R. Johanan: The halachah is that [one may spin the blue-wool for his fringe] whether with a stone [as whorl] or with a spindle;⁶ and it is also the halachah that one [may] write in his usual way and sell sufficient for his requirements.⁷

MISHNAH. IF ONE BURIES HIS DEAD THREE DAYS⁸ BEFORE A FESTIVAL, THE RESTRICTIONS⁹ APPERTAINING TO HIS SEVEN DAYS' MOURNING FALL AWAY; [IF HE BURIES HIS DEAD] EIGHT DAYS BEFORE A FESTIVAL, THE RESTRICTIONS OF THE THIRTY [DAYS] FALL AWAY,¹⁰ BECAUSE THEY [THE SAGES] SAID THAT THE SABBATH ENTERS INTO COUNT BUT DOES NOT INTERRUPT,¹¹ WHILE FESTIVALS INTERRUPT¹² AND DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT.¹³ R. ELIEZER SAYS, SINCE THE SANCTUARY [AT JERUSALEM] WAS LAID IN RUINS, [THE FEAST OF] 'AZERETH'¹⁴ IS [RECKONED] AS AN [ORDINARY] SABBATH [DAY];¹⁵ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS, NEW YEAR AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT ARE [RECKONED] AS FESTIVALS; WHILE THE SAGES SAY, [THE RULE IS] NEITHER ACCORDING TO THE STATEMENT OF THE ONE NOR ACCORDING TO THE STATEMENT OF THE OTHER, BUT AZERETH IS [RECKONED] LIKE [THE OTHER] FESTIVALS AND NEW YEAR AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT ARE [RECKONED] AS A SABBATH [DAY].

GEMARA. [THE RESTRICTIONS... FALL AWAY]. Said Rab, [this means only] 'the restrictions'¹⁶ fall away, but the days [of mourning] do not fall away¹⁷ and so said also R. Huna:¹⁸ The 'restrictions fall away but the 'days' do not fall away; and R. Shesheth¹⁹ said that even the days also fall away.²⁰ What is the meaning of, 'But the days [of mourning] do not fall away'? [It means] that if he had not cropped his hair on the day before the festival he is forbidden to crop himself after the festival

(9) גִּזְרָה means generally a restrictive measure. (Cf. Be. 4b, 8b, 36b). Here it refers to the abstention, during the seven days of mourning, from work and bodily comforts — bathing, anointing, footwear and fresh clean clothes, i.e., the maintenance of a neglected disconsolate appearance in honour of the deceased. The public, religious, festive rejoicing suspends, or according to some, cancels the formal observance of sorrow.

(10) I.e., the remaining period of formal mourning down to thirty days lapses on his having duly observed the first seven days plus one day of the remaining period before the festival.

(11) I.e., it neither counts as a blank day, nor does it cancel the rest. The remaining days of mourning continue after the Sabbath.

(15) It enters into count and does not interrupt.

(16) I.e., only the outer, formal observances of mourning but not the obligation.

(17) I.e., the period of mourning of seven or (down to) thirty days (as the case may be, according to the wording of the Mishnah) is not canceled but only deferred pending the festive time.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 19b

and that is [exactly] what is taught [in a Baraitha]: If one buries his dead three days before a festival his restrictions of the seven fall away;¹ if eight days before a festival his restrictions of the thirty fall away;¹ and he crops [his hair] on the day before the festival.² If he had not cropped himself on the day before the festival, he is forbidden to crop himself after the festival.³ Abba Saul says, He is permitted to crop himself after the festival; for just as the '[observed] obligation⁴ of three' [days] quashes the restriction of the seven⁵ so does the '[observed] obligation of seven' quash the 'restrictions of thirty'.⁶ [You Say, 'The observed obligation of] seven'? But we learned [in our Mishnah] 'eight' [days before the festival]! — Abba Saul maintains the view that part of a day is [reckoned] as an entire day and [here] the seventh day [of mourning] enters into the count both this way and that.⁷ R. Hisda, as citing Rabina son of Shela, said the halachah follows the opinion of Abba Saul;⁸ and the Sages concur with Abba Saul that when his eighth day comes on a Sabbath which is the day before a festival he is permitted to crop himself [even] in the Friday.⁹

Whose opinion is followed in the statement in which R. Amram, citing Rab, said: '[As to] the mourner, as soon as the comforters have risen to depart from his house, he is permitted to bathe'? Whose view [is it]? — It is Abba Saul's [view]. Said Abaye, The halachah follows Abba Saul's view in regard to the seventh day [of mourning] and the Sages concur with Abba Saul in regard to the thirtieth day [of mourning] that we say, part of the day is regarded as the whole day. Raba said, The halachah follows Abba Saul's view in regard to the thirtieth day, but in regard to the seventh day the halachah does not follow the view of Abba Saul. And the Nehardeans¹⁰ say the halachah follows Abba Saul's view in both instances, because Samuel stated that in matters appertaining to mourning the halachah is to follow the view of the more lenient authority.

Whence [in Scripture] do we derive the term of thirty days [of mourning]? — It is obtained by an analogy¹¹ between two texts which have in common the term pera' used [in connection] with mourning¹² and again used [in connection] with the Nazirite,¹³ [namely]: Here [in the law about mourning] it is written, Let not the hair of your heads grow long [tifra'u];¹² and there [in the law of the Nazirite] it is written: He shall let the locks of the hair of his head [pera'] grow long.¹³ Just as the period there [for the Nazirite] is thirty days, so also here [for the mourner] it is thirty days. And whence do we derive it there? — Said R. Mattena: An unspecified Nazirite-vow is [binding] for thirty days. What is the reason? The text there reads: He shall be [Yihyeh] holy;¹⁴ the [consonant] letter value of Yihyeh being [ten + five + ten + five] thirty.

Said R. Huna the son of R. Joshua,¹⁵ [Authorities] all accept the view that when the third day [of mourning] occurs on the day before the festival the mourner is forbidden to wash [his whole body]¹⁶ till the evening.¹⁷ Said R. Nehemiah the son of R. Joshua: I once found R. Pape and R. Papa sitting together and stating that the halachah is in accordance with the statement of R. Huna the son of Joshua. Some report it thus: R. Nehemiah the son of R. Joseph said, I once found R. Pape, R. Papa and R. Huna the son of R. Joshua sitting together and stating that all are agreed that when the third day occurs on the day before a festival, the mourner is forbidden to bathe till the evening.

Abaye enquired of Rabbah: What if one buried his dead during the festival? Does the festival enter into his counting of the thirty days, or does the festival not enter into his counting of the thirty days?¹⁸ I am not asking about [counting the festival as part of] the seven days, because the 'due observance of seven [days of mourning] does not obtain during the festival;¹⁹ but what I do ask is about the period of thirty days, because the 'due observance of thirty days does [partly] obtain during the festival;²⁰ what [is your view]? — He [Rabbah] replied, The [days of the] festival do not enter into the counting.

[Thereupon] he put to him an objection from [the following]: If one buried his dead two days before the festival, he counts five [supplementary] days after the festival,²¹ and his work is done [for him] by others; his men-servants and maid-servants do [their domestic] work quietly indoors, privily; and the public do not [need to] condole formally²² with him

(1) As then his obligation to the dead is already sufficiently fulfilled.

(2) In honour of the festival, although he is still within the thirty days.

(3) I.e., the remaining period of mourning up to thirty is resumed: it having been only suspended but not canceled.

(4) מצוה means a positive order and denotes rather the positive aspect, the active fulfillment of the obligation to the departed, in contrast to the גזירה, the restrictive aspect of mourning.

(5) Not to be resumed again.

(6) I.e., again, if he had not cropped himself before the festival he is permitted to do so immediately after the festival.

(7) I.e., that after part has served for the seventh day, the remainder can count as part of the eighth day with its easier regimen.

(8) [With reference to his latter ruling, cf. D.S. note 7 and Han].

(9) Though it is still the seventh.

(10) Represented by R. Han., Sanh. 17b. Also by R. Nahman b. Isaac (according to another source). V. A. Hyman, Toledoth II, p. 919.

(11) This question interrupts the discussion. The method of equalling two texts is gezerah shawah, v. Glos.

(12) V. Lev. X, 6; Aaron and his sons were thus commanded at the death of Nadab and Abihu, not to allow their hair to go loose, i.e., not to grow freely or long.

(13) Num. VI, 5. Cf. supra 15a.

(14) Num. VI, 5: י 10, ה 5 (twice).

(15) The discussion on the former theme is resumed here.

(16) I.e., to bathe in warm water which affords pleasure.

(17) Even Abba Saul will in this case not regard a part of the day as the whole.

(18) Formal mourning after burial falls into three periods: (i) three days of weeping and (ii) up to the seventh day

(part-inclusive) for lamenting with abstention from work and attention to the person; then (iii) down to the thirtieth day (part-inclusive) in slightly mitigated formal mourning.

(19) Therefore it is certain that the mourner begins his observance of the seven after the festival; and as these had not begun, there was as yet no part to be taken, into account.

(20) For on it too, like during the thirty days, washing clothes and cropping hair are forbidden.

(21) To make up the requisite seven days of mourning.

(22) Lit., 'busy themselves'.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 20a

as they have already done that Service towards him during the festival. As a general principle on this matter [it may be stated]: 'Whatever appertains to the mourner [himself],¹ that the festival interrupts,² but whatever appertains to the [obligations of] the public,³ that the festival does not interrupt'. If he buried his dead three days towards the conclusion of the festival,⁴ he counts seven days [of mourning] after the festival. During the first four days [after the festival] the public engage [in condoling] with him, but in the last three days the public do not [need to] condole with him as they have already done [this service] towards him during the [three days within the] festival; and the festival enters into the counting. Now, does not [this last sentence] refer to the latter part [of the statement]?⁵ — No, [said Rabbah] it refers to the former part [of the statement].⁶ Thereupon he put an objection to him [from the continuation of the Baraitha]: The festival enters into the counting of thirty days: how, for instance? If one buried his dead at the beginning of the festival he counts seven days [of mourning] after the festival and his work is done by others; his men-servants and maid-servants do work quietly indoors, and the public do not [need to] engage [in condoling] with him, as they have already done that service towards him during the festival; and the festival enters in the counting!⁷ — That is a confutation [of Rabbah].

When Rabin came [from Palestine] he reported R. Johanan to have said, Even if one buried his dead during the festival;⁸ and similarly R. Eleazar gave as his decision to his son R. Pedath, Even if one buried his dead during the festival.

Our Rabbis taught: 'If one carried out the rule of overturning the couch⁹ for three days before the festival, he need not overturn it [any more] after the festival; these are the words of R. Eliezer; but the Sages say: [He need not] even if he had [done so] only for one day or even for one hour. Said R. Simeon b. Eleazar, Those were the very words of Beth Shammai and the very words of Beth Hillel: for Beth Shammai say: 'For three days [before the festival]', and the Hillelites Say: Even [if] for one day'. R. Huna said: R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan. stated¹⁰ — surely say that R. Johanan told R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Huna: [He need not], even if he had [overturned the couch] for one day; even for one hour. Raba stated¹¹ that the halachah is according to our Tanna [of the Mishnah] who said three days.¹²

Rabina once came to Sura-cum-Euphrates.¹³ Said R. Habiba to Rabina: What is the law [on this point]? — He replied: 'Even [if he had the couch overturned] one day and even for one hour'. R. Hiyya b. Abba, R. Ammi and R. Isaac were [once] seated in the marquee of R. Isaac b. Eleazar¹⁴ when a discussion was begun between them: Whence is it authentically derived that the observance of mourning is for seven days? From the text, And I shall turn your feasts¹⁵ into mourning . . . [and I will make it as the mourning for an only son];¹⁶ just as the 'Feast' lasts seven days.¹⁵ so [the period of] mourning is also for seven days. But why not [draw an analogy with] the feast of 'Azereth,¹⁷ which lasts but one day? — [No], that [analogy] is needed [for another lesson] as explained by Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said in the name of R. Judah Nesi'ah:¹⁸ Whence is it derived that on [the receipt of] belated tidings¹⁹ [formal] mourning obtains for one day only? From the text, And I shall turn your feasts into mourning;²⁰ and we find 'Azereth as an instance where one day's celebration is designated [a 'Feast'].

Our Rabbis taught: On receiving near tidings [formal] mourning obtains for seven [days] as well as [up to] thirty [days]; on distant tidings, it obtains for one day only. Which are 'near' tidings and which 'distant' tidings? 'Near' tidings are [recent tidings] within, thirty [days] and 'distant' tidings are [belated tidings] after thirty [days]: these are the words of R. Akiba; the Sages, however, say, One and the same [practice obtains in both], on [the receipt of] 'near' tidings or of 'distant' tidings, [formal mourning] obtains for seven as well as [up to] thirty [days]. Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanah, as citing R. Johanan: Wherever you find a single authority expressing a lenient view and a number expressing a strict view, the halachah is in accordance with the strict view, save in this case: that although R. Akiba is lenient and the Sages are strict, the halachah is in accordance with R. Akiba, as Samuel stated, that in matters obtaining to mourning the halachah follows the lenient authority.

R. Hanina²¹ received tidings from Be[th]-Hozai about [the death of] his father; he consulted²² R. Hisda, [who] told him, 'On [receipt of] distant tidings [formal mourning] obtains for one day only'. R. Nathan b. Ammi received tidings from Be[th]-Hozai about his mother; he consulted²² Raba, who told him: The authorities have already stated [that] on [receipt of] distant tidings [formal mourning] obtains for one day only. Thereupon he put to him an objection [from the following]: When does this ruling apply? In the case of the [other] five nearest-of-kin [for whom mourning is] obligatory;²³ but for one's father or mother [mourning is for] seven [days] and [up to] thirty [days] — [Raba] replied: That is the ruling of an individual²⁴ with which we do not concur, as [will be made clear from what] is taught [in the following]: 'There was the case of the father of R. Zadok who had died at Ginzak,²⁵ and he was not informed till after three years. He [thereupon] came and asked of Elisha b. Abuyah and the elders that were with him and they told him to observe seven [days] and [up to] thirty, and when R. Ahiyya's son died in the Diaspora,²⁶ he [too] sat on his account seven and [observed mourning up to] thirty'. But this is not so? For when Rab, R. Hiyya's brother's son — who was also R. Hiyya's sister's son²⁷ — came up there [to Palestine], he [R. Hiyya] said to his nephew [Rab]: 'Is father alive'?²⁸

(1) I.e., the observance of formal mourning by the mourner.

(2) Is deferred till after the festival.

(3) Lit., 'the business of the public', i.e., to pay visits of condolence and offer words of comfort.

(4) בסוף הרגל probably a misreading of בתוך הרגל 'within', 'during the festival', as in MS.M.

(5) 'If one buried his dead during the festival, three days before towards conclusion . . .' As the seven days have been dealt with already, the last sentence must refer to the thirty days, namely, that the festival days enter into the counting; i.e., not as Rabbah replied, negatively.

(6) 'If one buried his dead two days before the festival', when two days of the seven were also two days of the thirty, as Abaye himself admitted when he put the question to Rabbah.

(7) Of the thirty days, obviously.

(8) That part of the festival enters in the counting of thirty days.

(9) Cf. supra p. 92.

(10) As the Palestinian practice.

(11) As the Babylonian practice.

(12) As the minimum observance of formal mourning before the festival secures remission of the remainder.

(26) Golah, the ancient place of the 'Captivity' when the first Temple fell, Babylon, Nehardea and later, Pumbeditha, were considered the most ancient centres of the Golah.

(27) R. Aha of Kafri married a widow and his eldest son Aybu married her daughter. From these unions Aha had a son R. Hiyya, and Aybu had a son Rab ('R. Abba the Long', later the famous principal of Sura). Rab's mother was R. Hiyya's half-sister (from one mother, i.e., R. Ala's second wife); and Rab's father Aybu was R. Hiyya's eldest half-brother (from the same father, namely, R. Aha of Kafri). R. Hiyya was therefore doubly related to his nephew Rab, being his paternal uncle as well as his maternal uncle, cf. Pes. 4a (Rashi).

(28) I.e., is my father Aha alive?

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 20b

He replied, 'Mother'¹ is alive'. [Again] he asked 'Is mother² alive'? He replied: 'Father is alive'.³ R. Hiyya thereupon said to his attendant: 'Take off my shoes and bring along my things after me to the [public] baths'. Now from this instance we learn three lessons: We learn that a mourner is forbidden to don shoes;⁴ that distant tidings [entail formal mourning] but for one day; and that part of the day is [deemed] as all entire day's [mourning]!⁵ [In fact], R. Hiyya is one person and R. Ahiyya [whose son died in the Diaspora] is another person.⁶

Said R. Jose b. Abin: [If] one received near tidings on a festival and by the [time of its] termination it became distant tidings, [the festival-time] enters into the counting and [accordingly] he observes but one day [of formal mourning]. R. Adda⁷ of Caesarea recited in the presence of R. Johanan: If one hears near tidings on a Sabbath day and by the termination of the Sabbath it has become distant tidings, he observes but one day [of formal mourning]. Does one [in such a case] rend his garment, or does he not rend his garment? — R. Mani said: He does not [need to] rend his garment; R. Hanina said, He does rend [his garment]. Said R. Mani to R. Hanina: My view that he does not rend [his garment] is consistent with the fact that there is no [observance of] 'seven'. But according to your view that he [should] rend his garment, tell me, is there a rending of [one's garment] without [the observance of] the seven [days of mourning]? But is there not? Surely, Isi, father of R. Zera — or as sonic say, R. Zera's brother, recited in the presence of R. Johanan: If one had no tunic⁸ to rend [at the time] and he obtained one during the seven [days], he should rend it then; [if it became available] after the seven days, he does not rend it! [Thereupon] R. Zera chimed in after him: 'When does this ruling apply? In the case of the [other] five nearest-of-kin [for whom mourning is] obligatory,⁹ but in the case of father or mother one always rends one's garment!' — What you cited [in fact] refers to the deference to be shown to one's father or mother.¹⁰

Our Rabbis taught: For all [nearest-of-kin] mentioned in the Priest's Section¹¹ for whom a priest is to defile himself, a mourner is to observe [formal] mourning, namely, these: [For] his wife, father or mother, brother or [single] sister, son or daughter. To these they added: His brother or single sister from the same mother,¹² as well as his married sister, be it from the same mother or the same father.¹³ And just as he observes [formal] mourning for these, he likewise observes [formal] mourning for their relatives in the second degree:¹⁴ this is R. Akiba's ruling. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: [Extended, formal] mourning is not observed except for one's son's child and a father's father,¹⁵ and the Sages say [by way of definition]: Whomever he mourns for he should also mourn with.¹⁶ Is not the Sages' view [practically] the same as that of the former Tanna?¹⁷ — Not [quite]; there is a [practical] difference between them, whether [we require him to be, that is to say when he is] with him in the [same] house,¹⁸ as Rab¹⁹ said to his son Hiyya, and as R. Huna likewise said to his son Rabbah:²⁰ 'In her presence observe mourning; away from her presence do not observe mourning'.

[When] Mar Ukba's father-in-law's son died, he thought of sitting for him²¹ seven [days of mourning] and [continuing to] thirty. R. Huna going to his house found him [in formal mourning]. 'Do you desire', said he, 'to eat of mourners' fare?'²² They [the Sages] did not say that [one should observe formal mourning] out of deference to his wife only in the case of [the death of] his father-in-law or his mother-in-law,²³ as it is taught: 'If his father-in-law or mother-in-law died the husband may not compel his [mourning] wife to put on kohl or do her hair²⁴ [as usual], but he should overturn his [own] couch and observe [formal] mourning with her; and likewise she, when her father-in-law or mother-in-law dies, may not put on kohl or do her hair [as usual]; but she should overturn her couch and observe [formal] mourning with him'. And another Baraitha taught: 'Although it was stated [that] he may not compel his wife to put on kohl or do her hair [as usual] it is — said they — indisputably correct²⁵ that she [may] mix his wine for him, make his bed and wash his face, hands and feet'.²⁶ [Now the regulations in] the two citations contradict each other.²⁷ Hence infer from this that the one Baraitha refers to [the death of] a father-in-law or mother-in-law,²⁸ while the other to [the death of] other near of kin.²⁹ — This proves it.³⁰ It is also taught thus [explicitly]: 'They did not lay down [that one should observe formal mourning] out of deference to his wife, save [at the death of] his father-in-law or his mother-in-law alone'.

Amemar lost his son's son, and he rent [his garment]. Thereupon his son came and he [again] rent [his garment] in his [son's] presence. He then recollected that he had done it while sitting; he rose and relit [his garment again] standing. Said R. Ashi to Amemar: Whence do we derive that the rending [of a garment] is [to be done] standing? From the text: Then Job rose³¹ and rent his mantle.³²

(1) To evade a direct doleful reply, Rab said that his own mother was alive, but said nothing about his grandfather, R. Aha of Kafri.

(2) I.e., is my mother alive? I.e., R. Hiyya's mother, Rab's grandmother, R. Aha's wife.

(3) Again to evade the direct and sad answer Rab replied that his own father (i.e., Aybu, R. Hiyya's half-brother) was alive, but nothing about it. Hiyya's mother, Aha's wife. This is according to R. Hananel. Rashi and Tosaf. s.v. וַיִּבְרָא offer different interpretations. V. Pes. 4a (Sonc. ed. p. 11.)

(4) Cf. supra p. 93.

(5) Even in the case of a parent one short while and one simple demonstration of respectful, sorrowful mourning, such as doffing the shoes, are enough; as soon after R. Hiyya went to the baths, which is forbidden to a mourner for a recent bereavement. Cf supra p. 101.

(6) That is, do not confuse Ahiyya of the Baraitha with Hiyya, Rab's uncle as being the same person who had acted differently on two occasions, at receiving belated distant news of the loss of a son and again of the loss of parents. They are two different persons.

(7) Var. lec. Abba.

(27) In the former it is insisted that the husband must observe formal mourning out of deference to the wife, while in the latter, it implies that the husband need not.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 21a

But if that is so,¹ [the text]: And if he stand and say, I like not to take her,² [will be interpreted] similarly? But surely it is taught: [And if she loose the shoe from off the foot of a grownup levir], whether he be standing or sitting or stooping, [the ceremony is valid]?³ — He replied: [It is because] there it is not written, 'And he stood and said';⁴ whereas here [in our instance] it is written, 'And Job rose and rent his mantle'. Rami b. Hama said: Whence [is it derived] that the rending [of a garment] is to be done standing? From what is said: And Job rose and rent his mantle. But perhaps what he did was something extra? For should we not say so, [what of the next thing Job did], And he shaved his head, [should we] likewise [have to conform with it]? — Rather it is [to be derived] from here: Then the king arose and rent his garments.⁵ But here too, perhaps, what he did was something extra? For should you not say so [what of the next thing he did], And he lay on the earth,⁶ [should we] likewise [have to conform with it]? Whereas it is taught: 'If a mourner sat on a bed,⁶ on a chair⁷ or on a stall for urns [and cans],⁸ or even goes to the extreme⁹ of sleeping on the bare ground, he has not discharged his duty [to the dead]'. And, explained R. Johanan, [It is] because he has not carried out the [custom of] overturning the bed? — He replied: [It means that David lay] as it were on the ground.

Our Rabbis taught: The following things are forbidden to a mourner: He is forbidden to do work, to bathe or anoint himself, to have [marital] intercourse, or don sandals; he is forbidden to read the Pentateuch, Prophets or Hagiographia, or to recite the Mishnah, or Midrash and halachoth or the Talmud or aggadoth.¹⁰ If, however, the public have need of him, he need not abstain. There was all actual case, when a son of R. Jose of Sepphoris¹¹ died, he went into the Beth Hamidrash¹² and expounded there all day long; [also¹³ when a daughter of Rabbi died at Beth-Shearim, he went into the Beth Hamidrash and expounded there all day long]. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah had a bereavement [and] he thought he ought not to go out to [give] his lecture. Said Rab to him, We learned:¹⁴ 'And if the public have need of him he does not refrain'. He then thought of calling upon his 'expositor' [assistant].¹⁵ When Rab said to him, 'We learned:¹⁴ 'Provided only that he does not place [at his side] an expositor [assistant]'. But then how is he to do? — After the manner taught [in the following]: 'It happened, that when a son of R. Judah b. Il'ai died, he went into the Beth Hamidrash and R. Hananiah b. Akavia also went in and sat him down at his side: he then whispered to R. Hananiah b. Akavia and R. Hananiah b. Akavia [whispered] to the Turgeman and the Turgeman spoke aloud to the public'.

Our Rabbis taught: '[During] the first three days a mourner is forbidden to put on phylacteries.¹⁶ From the third day onward, the third day included, he is allowed to put on phylacteries and he does not¹⁷ [have to] take them off at the entry of fresh personages [visitors]:¹⁸ this is R. Eliezer's opinion.

R. Joshua says, A mourner is forbidden to put on phylacteries [during] the first two days. From the second day onward, the second day included, he is allowed to put on phylacteries; but at the entry of fresh personages [visitors] he takes¹⁷ them off.¹⁹ Said R. Mattena: What is the reason for R. Eliezer's view? — Because it is written: And the days of weeping in the mourning of Moses were ended.²⁰ Said R. Ena: What is the reason for R. Joshua's view? — Because it is written: [And I will turn your feasts into mourning . . . And I will make it as the mourning for an only son] and the end thereof as a bitter day.²¹ But as to R. Joshua, surely it is written: [And the days of weeping in the mourning for Moses] were ended? — He may reply. The case of Moses was different; the mourning for him was [more] intense. And what of R. Eliezer too, surely it is written, 'And the day thereof [I will make] as a bitter day'? — The poignancy of the bitterness is but on one day. Said 'Ulla: The halachah follows R. Eliezer in regard to taking off [the phylacteries]²² and R. Joshua in regard to putting on [the phylacteries].²³ They enquired: What of the second day [of mourning], according to 'Ulla? Does he [at the entrance of fresh personages] have to take them off, or does he not [have to] take them off? — Come and hear: 'Ulla said: He takes them off and puts them on [the second day] even a hundred times'.²⁴ Likewise it is taught: Judah b. Tema Says, He takes them off and puts them on even a hundred times. Raba said, Having put them on he does not take them off. But was it not Raba who said [above],²⁵ The halachah follows our Tanna [of the Mishnah],²⁶ who says [that the minimum observance of formal mourning is] three [days]?

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 21b

— It is different in the case of a religious precept. [like phylacteries].¹

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner is forbidden, during the first three days [to do] work, even a poor man who receives maintenance from charity; thereafter he does [his work] privately, in his house: and a woman [in mourning] plies the spindle in her house.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner should not go during the first three days to a place of mourning;² thereafter he may go but not take a place among the comforters, but among those who are [to be] comforted.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner is forbidden during the first three days to give greeting [of peace];³ after three and to seven [days], he responds but does not give greeting [of peace]; thereafter he gives greeting [of peace] and responds in his usual manner.

[It is stated above] 'Forbidden during the first three days to give greeting of peace'. But surely it was taught: It happened, when [two]⁴ sons of R. Akiba, [bridegrooms],⁵ died, all Israel entered⁶ and made a great lament for them, and as the people were about to depart, R. Akiba stood on a large bench⁷ and addressed them: Our brethren, the House of Israel, hear ye! Even though these two sons were 'bridegrooms',⁸ I am⁹ consoled on account of the honour you have done [them].¹⁰ And even though you have come on account of Akiba, there is many an Akiba!¹¹ But this it is what you said [to yourselves]: The law of God is in his heart, [his footsteps will not falter].¹² All the more then, two-fold be your reward: Go home unto peace!¹³ — Deference towards the public is a different matter.

[It was stated above 'After three to seven [days]; he responds but does not give greeting [of peace]; thereafter, he gives greeting [of peace] and responds, in his usual manner'. Some contrasted this statement with the following: 'One who meets his fellow mourner within thirty days, tenders him [words of] consolation but enquires not about his peace; after the thirty days he enquires about his peace, but tenders him not [words of] consolation.'¹⁴ If his [friend's] wife had died and he married another [formally],¹⁵ he is not allowed to call at his house to tender him [there,¹⁶ words of] consolation; if he meets him in the street he expresses [his condolence] to him in a low voice and with downcast looks!¹⁷ — Said R. Idi b. Abin: The mourner enquires about the peace of others [within his period of mourning]¹⁸ because others' are abiding in peace; others enquire not about the peace of the mourner, because he is not abiding in peace [but in sorrow].¹⁹ But then, since it states [in the former Baraitha]: [After three to seven days] 'he responds. . .', does this not imply that others may enquire [about the mourner's peace]?²⁰ — Where they are unaware [of his bereavement]. If so, does not the same apply also to the other earlier period?²¹ — [No,] then²¹ he is obliged to acquaint them [of his sorrow] and makes no [further] response, whereas here²² he need not acquaint them [of it].

Thereupon some contrasted [this latter Baraitha] with the following: One who meets another mourner within a twelvemonth tenders him [words of] consolation, but does not enquire about his 'peace';²³ after a twelvemonth, he enquires about his 'peace and does not tender him [words of] consolation, but may refer to his sorrow indirectly.²⁴ Said R. Meir: If one meets another mourner after a twelvemonth and tenders him [then words of] consolation, to what can he be likened? To [the case of] a man who had his leg broken and healed when a physican met him and said to him, Come to me and let me break it and set it [again], to convince you that my medicaments are good? — This offers no difficulty: This last citation refers to [the death of] father or mother, while the former refers to [the death of] other near of kin. But in that case²⁵ too, why not tender him [words of] consolation indirectly? — Yes indeed [he may], and what means: ['After thirty days he may] not tender him [words of] consolation' is, [not] in one's usual manner — but he refers to his sorrow indirectly.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner who arrives home during the first three days from a place in the near vicinity, counts [his days of mourning] with them.²⁶ If he came home from a distance, he counts on his own. Thereafter even if he came home from a place in the vicinity he counts on his own. R. Simeon says: Even if he came home on the seventh day from a place in the vicinity, he counts with them.²⁶

The Master said: 'During the first three days from a place in the vicinity, he counts with them'. R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan said that this is done only where the chief person of the household was at home. The following question was then raised:

(1) Deut. VI, 8; XI. 18.

(2) Lit., 'House of mourning', i.e., either to a private house or to the cemetery to attend a funeral. Cf. Sem. VI.

(3) Lit., 'enquire about his "peace"' (welfare). E.g., Gen. XXIX, 6 and cf. supra p. 89, n. 10.

(4) Cf. D. note 7: probably during a plague.

(5) So Sem. III, 6. The expression denotes that they died in the prime of life, under thirty years of age.

(6) The cemetery.

(7) An improvised rostrum.

(8) V. p. 135 n. 8.

(9) The text reads, 'He is consoled' by way of euphemism, to avoid an omen for one who reads or recounts this.

(10) By your presence.

(11) I.e., I am not so great a man as to be entitled to it all.

(12) Ps. XXXVII, 31.

(13) Thus R. Akiba tendered 'peace' to his audience on the very first day of mourning. Cf. Sem. VIII, where this incident among others is told at length.

(14) Here ends the part that causes difficulty. The attempted reply follows later after the conclusion of the whole quotation.

(15) That is by betrothal within the thirty days of mourning: this is permitted for the sake of little children, left motherless; often it is the deceased wife's sister. He may thus marry her formally but is not to live with her as man and wife till after the period of mourning is over. Generally a widower should wait till after the three Festivals — Passover, Weeks and Tabernacles have passed, before he marries again. Cf. infra, 23a.

(16) Not to embarrass the second wife.

(17) Lit., 'with faint lip and heavy head', so as to avoid giving the impression of being cynical. 1 This Baraitha thus teaches that within the thirty days one may not greet a mourner, which is in opposition to the ruling of the former Baraitha that the mourner himself is permitted to exchange greetings once the seven days are over].

(18) Within the thirty days.

(19) [I.e., the two Baraithas are not contradictory: whereas the former teaches that the mourner may greet others within the thirty days, the latter forbids others to greet him within, that period.]

(20) And thus the two Baraithas are still contradictory.

(21) I.e., during the first three days.

(22) After three days.

(23) Whereas above it was ruled that after thirty days one may tender greetings.

(24) Rashi: He merely utters a word of comfort without mentioning the name of the deceased.

(25) I.e., in the case of other near-of-kin to which the former Baraitha refers.

(26) With the other members of the family.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 22a

What if the chief person¹ of the household had gone to the place of interment?² — Come and hear: For R. Hiyya b. Abba as citing R. Johanan. said that even if the chief person of the household went to the place of interment, he [still] counts with them. [You say] 'He counts with them?' Why, it is taught [definitely]: ‘He counts by himself’! — That is not difficult [to explain]: The former [ruling] obtains where he returned within three [days]; the latter [ruling] obtains where he had not returned within three [days]. Similar it is to what Rab told the sons of Hazzalponi:³ Those that come [home] within three [days] should count with you; those that do not come [home] within three [days] should count by themselves. Raba told the people of Mahoza: You who do not follow the bier,⁴ should begin counting [the days of mourning] as soon as you turn your faces from the city gates.

‘R. Simeon says, Even if he came home on the seventh day from a place in the vicinity he counts with them’. Said R. Hiyya b. Gamada that R. Jose b. Saul as reporting Rabbi said: That is [done] only where [on his arrival] he found comforters still present.⁵ R. ‘Anan then enquired: What if they [the comforters] had just made ready⁶ themselves to get up [and leave] but had not yet left? — This stands over [for a solution]. The fellow-collegiate of R. Abba b. Hiyya had it as a tradition from R. Abba — Who was that [fellow-collegiate]? — R. Zera; and some say that it was the fellow-collegiate of R. Zera who had heard it from R. Zera. — And who was that [fellow-collegiate]? — R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba — who reported R. Johanan [to have stated]: ‘The halachah is to follow R. Simeon b. Gamaliel’s view on the point of terefoth⁷ and the halachah is to follow R. Simeon on the point of mourning’. The view of R. Simeon on the point of mourning is this one which we have just cited; and the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel on terefoth is that which is taught:⁸ ‘If intestines had become perforated and mucilage blocks the perforation, it [the animal’s flesh] is kasher’.⁹ What is ‘mucilage’? — Said R. Kahana: it is the viscous matter inside the intestines which comes away under pressure. Said someone; May I be granted to go up to [Palestine] and learn the legal dictum from the mouth of the Master himself! When he went up he came upon R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba. Said he to him: ‘Did you, sir, say that the halachah is to follow R. Simeon b. Gamaliel on the point of terefoth’? — He replied: ‘I said that the halachah is not so’! And what about the point of mourning’, [is the halachah in that case] to follow R. Simeon? — He replied: Opinions are divided on that, as it has been stated: ‘R. Hisda said, [R. Simeon’s view is] the halachah, and R. Johanan said likewise; [but] R. Nahman said, [R. Simeon’s view is] not the halachah. The [present] halachah however does not follow R. Simeon b. Gamaliel’s view in terefoth; but as to the point of mourning, the halachah is like R. Simeon’s, because of Samuel’s dictum that in matters of mourning, the halachah is to follow the [view of the] lenient authority’.

[Our Rabbis taught]:¹⁰ ‘[If] for all [other] dead one expedites [the departure of] the bier,¹¹ he is praiseworthy; but in the case of one’s father or mother, he is blameworthy. If it was the day before the Sabbath or a festival,¹² [or if pouring rain was falling on it], he is praiseworthy, as he expedites [the interment] out of deference to his father or mother. For all [other] dead, if he desires, he minimizes his business¹³ or if he does not desire,

(1) Not necessarily the senior person of the family, but the person in charge of the affairs of the household.

(2) And was away for three days. Does he count on his return with the folks at home whose period of mourning commenced as soon as the cortege departed. or does he count from the time of interment?

(3) Cf. I Chron. IV, 3. Or were these Jewish converts of the Beni-Solibi clan of bedouin Arabs, hailing from the neighbourhood of Zulfa in N.E. Arabia? V. Enc. Brit. s.v. Bedouins, III, (11th ed.) p. 623h. [Obermeyer, p. 298, identifies it with Zalfiun near Sura, the seat of Rab.]

(4) [The cemetery was far removed from the town so as not to offend the susceptibilities of the Persians who disapproved of the burial of the dead; v. Obermeyer, p. 174].

(5) Lit., ‘at his side’.

(6) Lit., ‘bestirred themselves’.

(7) Plur. of trefa, a defect indicating a disease in animals or birds slaughtered for food. Cf. Hul. III, 1ff.

(8) תניא is more correct than תנן Cf. Hul. 50a.

(9) Fit for Jewish consumption, not rejected on account of some organic defect.

(10) So D.S. and many other texts. Cf. Sem. IX.

(11) I.e., hastens the interment.

(12) When delay involves keeping the body till the day after their termination.

(13) I.e., his business affairs (Rashi) before the funeral. Or, according to Han. quoting Palestinian Talmud, he minimizes the expenses of the funeral and lament. Cf. J.M.k. III, 8.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 22b

he does not minimize it'; but for his father or mother he should minimize [his business].¹ For all [other] dead, if he desires, he bares [his shoulder] and if he does not desire he does not bare it; for his father or mother he must bare [his shoulder].² It happened once with a certain 'great man of the generation' whose father had died, that he desired to bare [his shoulder],³ and [another] 'great man of the generation' that was with him desired to bare his too, and on that account he [the mourner] refrained and did not bare [his shoulder].⁴

Said Abaye, The 'great man of the generation' referred to was Rabbi, and the [other] 'great man of the generation' that was with him was R. Jacob b. Aha [the elder]. Some say that 'the great man of the generation' was R. Jacob b. Alia and the [other] great man of the generation' that was with him was Rabbi. Now it seems correct if Rabbi was the 'great man of the generation' that was with him [with the mourner], we understand why [R. Jacob b. Aha]⁵ refrained and did not bare [his shoulder and heart];⁶ but according to the [other] report that Rabbi [was the mourner] and that R. Jacob b. Aha was the 'great man of the generation' that was with him, why did not he [Rabbi] bare [his shoulder and both hands] as Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel [Rabbi's father] was the Nasi, and everybody should by rights have bared [their shoulders]?⁷ — This is difficult [to explain].

'For⁸ all dead one has his hair trimmed after thirty days; for one's father or mother [one lets his hair grow long]⁹ until his companions rebuke him. For all dead one enters a house of rejoicing after thirty days; for his father and mother [not] till after twelve months'. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah¹⁰ said:¹¹ 'And [one may go] to a joyous entertainment of comrades'.¹² An objection was raised: 'And [one may not go to a joyous [feast] as well as to [an entertainment of] rejoicing and to comrades [for] thirty days'!¹³ — This [divergence] presents difficulty.

Amemar taught [his comments] on that [same] Baraita thus: Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanali, 'But [to go] to a joyous entertainment of comrades is allowed forthwith'.¹⁴ But then [in another version] it is taught: '[One may go] to a joyous [feast] after thirty [days] and to an entertainment of comrades [after] thirty days'? — This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]; the latter [version] refers to a first¹⁵ [invitation to an] entertainment [of comrades], while the former [version] refers to a return entertainment¹⁶ [of comrades].

'For all¹⁷ [other] dead one makes a rent [in his tunic] of a handbreadth [in depth]; for one's father or mother [he rends his clothes] till he bares his heart [chest]'. Said R. Abbahu, What text is there [which teaches this]? Then David took hold on his clothes and rent them,¹⁸ and there is no taking hold [of anything] by less than a hand's breadth.¹⁹

'For all [other] dead one rends only the uppermost [garment] even though he be wearing [then] ten; but for one's father or mother one rends them all'. And [the rending of] one's undershirt is not indispensable, be it in man or woman; R. Simeon b. Eleazar says. 'A woman rends her undermost garment and turns it [front to] back and then again rends her uppermost garment,²⁰ For all [other] dead, if one desire he divides the [upper] selvage-border of his [garment],²¹ and if he does not desire he does not divide it; for his father or mother he must divide, R. Judah says, Any rending [of a garment] that divides not the selvage-border thereof is mere make-believe. Said R. Abbahu: What is the reason for R. Judah's [statement]? — The text: [And Elisha saw it, and he cried, My father, my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof! And he saw him no more] and he took hold of his own clothes and rent them in two pieces.²² Once it says 'and he rent them' do I not know that he rent them in two? But [the addition of 'in two'²³ implies] that [at the rent] the garments appeared as if torn into two [separate] pieces.²⁴

'For all [other] dead, one tacks²⁵ the rent together after seven [days] and [completely] reunites [the edges] after thirty [days]; for one's father or mother one tacks it together after thirty [days], but never reunites [the edges]; a woman tacks it together forthwith, out of the respect due to her. When R. Abin came [from Palestine] he said as citing R. Johanan: 'For all [other] dead, if one desires, he rends [his garment] with the hand, or if he desires he rends by an instrument; for one's father or mother one rends with the hand'. And R. Hiyya b. Abba said, as citing R. Johanan: 'For all [other] dead [one rends] inside;²⁶ for one's father or mother one rends outside'.²⁷

R. Hisda observed: And the same rule obtains²⁸ on the [death of a] Nasi. An objection was raised: '[Those other dignitaries]²⁹ were not deemed equal to one's father or mother save in regard to re-uniting [the edges of the rent] alone'. Does not this [inequality] hold also for the Nasi?³⁰ — No, the Nasi alone [is an exception].³⁰ The Nesi'ah³¹ died. Said R. Hisda to R. Hanan b. Raba:³² Turn the mortar³³, upside down, stand on it and show the rending [of garments] to all the people!

For a Hakam [sage]³⁴ one bares [the hand and shoulder] on the right; for the Ab Beth din, on the left, and for a Nasi on both sides'.

Our Rabbis taught: When a Hakam dies, his Beth Hamidrash is in vacation; when the Ab Beth din dies all the Colleges in his city are in vacation and [the people of the synagogue]³⁵ enter the synagogue[s] and change their [usual] places: those that [usually] sit in the north sit in the south and those that [usually] sit in the south sit in the north. When a Nasi dies, all the Colleges are in vacation³⁶ and the people of the synagogue enter the synagogue³⁷

(1) I.e., even after the burial, during the thirty days of mourning. Han. and Hay Gaon, quoted Otz. Hag. no. 199.

(2) And also bares his heart (chest). Sem. IX.

(3) For a Hakam (doyen), the (shoulder and) right hand are bared; for the president of the Beth din, the (shoulder and) left hand are bared; for the Nasi both (shoulders and) hands are bared. It happened, when R. Eliezer died, that R. Akiba bared 'both his hands' (arms) and beat his breast till it was bleeding and he said: my father, my father, the chariots of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. (II Kings, II, 12). Sem. IX. Cf. infra 22b.

(4) Here the series of citations from Sem. IX is interrupted by an observation of historical interest.

(5) D.S. and many other texts.

(6) Out of deference to Rabbi who was the Nasi, and therefore for him it was infra dignitatem. This was no disrespect to R. Jacob's father, as this is provided for in the rules: 'And if they (one's father or mother) seem not important (enough) for (the baring), he (the son) does not bare himself even for his father or mother'. Sem. IX. It should be noted that R. Jacob's father was not a qualified Rabbi, and that if 'Rabbi' Judah, the Nasi did out of deference to R. Jacob b. Aha bare himself, it would cause adverse comment among those present at the funeral. On R. Jacob b. Aha's status, v. Shab. 31a and A. Hyman, Toledoth s.v. II, 774a.

(12) שמחת מריעות . For the expression, cf. Judg. XIV, 10ff, where it is connected with a betrothal or marriage celebration. It is thus taken by SBH p. 110. Generally, however, it is taken to denote an ordinary social repast shared with one's intimate friends. The import of Rabbah's observation is rather ambiguous and, accordingly, taken variously: — (a) A comrade's entertainment may not be attended until before the thirty days are over, as there is conviviality, eating and drinking; much less may one go to a joyous celebration, such as a betrothal, or marriage ceremony with music and singing. (b) That a comrade's entertainment which provides enjoyment for one's own boon companions should not be entered upon before thirty days; but at a religious ceremonious celebration, a marriage ceremony, a circumcision etc. one may attend sooner, especially if one does not join in the feasting. V. Tosaf., Asheri par. 41, Nahmanides (Torath ha-Adam) and Ritba.

(13) [This proves that the two phrases are not identical].

(14) At the termination of the seven days.

(15) There are various readings: D.S. reads — ארשיותא ; SBH: ארשותא — from רשא , 'to begin with'. Cf Ber. 46a and Ritba:  — a 'voluntary' entertainment, which can be fixed for a later date.

(16) I.e., when it is his turn to entertain or to attend and he cannot defer it or absent himself and therefore may hold his entertainment forthwith. So Han.

and seven persons read [the weekly portions of the Torah]¹ and thereafter they come away. R. Joshua b. Korhah says, Not that they go and walk about in the street but they sit [at home] in silence.² Neither a halachic theme³ nor an aggadah should be discussed in the house of mourning. It was related of R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel that he used to speak on halachic and aggadic themes in the house of mourning.

Our Rabbis taught: during the first week a mourner does not go out of the door of his house; the second week he goes out but does not sit in his [usual] place [in the synagogue];⁴ the third week he sits in his [usual] place but does not speak; the fourth week he is like any other person. Says R. Judah: There was no need to say 'In the first week he does not go out of the door of his house', as then everybody comes into his house to comfort him; [what it should] rather [say is that] the second [week] he does not go out of the door of his house; the third [week] he goes out but does not sit in his [usual] place [in the synagogue]; the fourth [week] he sits in his place but does not speak; in the fifth [week] he is like any other person. Our Rabbis taught: For [the whole] thirty days [the mourner is debarred from] taking a wife. If his wife died, he is forbidden to take another until three Festivals have gone by. R. Judah says. [Until] the first festival and the second he is forbidden [to marry]; before the third he is allowed. If he have no children he may take a wife forthwith,⁵ lest [otherwise]⁶ he may fail in [the duty of] procreation.⁷ If she left him little children, he is allowed to take a wife forthwith to take care of them. It happened that the wife of Joseph the Priest died and he said on the burial ground to her sister: Go and take care of your sister's children: nevertheless he did not go in to her [as husband] till a long time after. What is [meant by] a 'long time'? — R. Papa said, Alter thirty days.

Our Rabbis taught: [During the whole] thirty days [the mourner is debarred from donning] pressed⁸ clothes: it makes no difference whether they be old or new clothes coming out of the press.⁹ Rabbi says, They only forbade new clothes; R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon says, They only forbade new white linen clothes.

Abaye went out¹⁰ in a worn sarbal,¹¹ in accordance with Rabbi.¹² Raba went out¹³ in a new Roman re tunic,¹⁴ in accordance with R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon.¹⁵

BECAUSE THEY [THE SAGES] SAID¹⁶ THAT THE SABBATH ENTERS [INTO COUNT] BUT DOES NOT INTERRUPT; [WHILE FESTIVALS INTERRUPT, AND DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT]. The Judeans and the Galileans [differed in regard to this Mishnah], the one party saying

(1) But pray individually, not as a congregational service. So Rashi. This however is contradicted by a responsum of Natronai Otz. Hag. (Lewin) n. 91.

(2) Han. Alfasi, MS.M. etc. read: 'sit in anguish'. Sem. X (end) enlarges: They sit or stand saddened and are like people who have Parnes (leader). When the time of rising arrives they minimize their affairs and rise'.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 23b

that [some] mourning is to be observed¹ on the Sabbath and the others saying that there is no [observance of] mourning on the Sabbath. Those that said that [some] mourning is observed on the Sabbath based themselves on the wording in the Mishnah, [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]; the others who said that mourning is not observed on the Sabbath based their view on the wording [AND] DOES NOT INTERRUPT. For, [said they], should you assume that mourning is to be observed on the Sabbath, why need we have [the reservation] AND DOES NOT INTERRUPT? But surely it states [also], [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]! — Because he has to teach in the latter part that [FESTIVALS]. . . DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT, he teaches also [for the sake of symmetry] in the former part [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]. And as to the other side who said that [some] mourning is to be observed on the Sabbath, surely it states AND DOES NOT INTERRUPT? — Because he has to state in the latter part that [FESTIVALS] INTERRUPT [the mourning], he teaches also [for the sake of symmetry] in the former part [THE SABBATH. . .] DOES NOT INTERRUPT.

Might not one suggest that their disagreement goes back to the [divergent] views of [older] Tannaim [as set out in the following Baraita]? For it has been taught: ‘One who has his dead laid out before him eats [his meals] in another house [room]; if he have not another house [room], he eats in his friend's house; if he have not a friend's house [available], he makes him a partition [ten handbreadths high];² if he have not the wherewithal to make a partition, he turns away his face as he takes his meals. And he does not recline³ as he eats [nor does he eat his fill]⁴ — he eats not meat nor drinks wine, nor does he say the grace. nor does he invite others [partaking in the meal to join in grace with him]⁵ nor do others invite him;⁶ and he is exempt from a recital of Shema’,⁷ from Saying the Tefillah⁸ or donning phylacteries, and [exempt] from the performance of any religious duties that are commanded in the Torah. [When do these said restrictions obtain? On weekdays];⁹ but on Sabbath¹⁰ he takes meals reclining, eats meat and drinks wine, recites grace, invites others [to join him] and others invite him and it is incumbent on him to recite the Shema’ and to say the Tefillah¹¹ and to perform all the religious duties commanded in the Torah. Rabban Gamaliel¹² says,¹³ Since he re-enters into these several obligations [here mentioned] he enters into the obligation of all [religious duties].’ [And commenting on this] R. Johanan said that the actual difference between them is the question of ‘using the [marital] couch’.¹⁴ Now, is not this the issue between them: One Master¹⁵ takes the view that [some] mourning is to be observed on Sabbath and the other Master¹⁶ that there is to be no mourning on Sabbath? Why [do you think so]? Perhaps there¹⁷ the first Tanna might not have gone so far as to forbid,¹⁸ save only because his dead is still laid out in front of him; but here,¹⁹ he might not [forbid].²⁰ Again, Rabban Gamaliel there²¹ would not have gone so far as to allow,²⁰ save only because there²¹ the incidence of mourning has not yet occurred;²² whereas here,¹⁹ where the incidence of mourning has already occurred, he might also [forbid].²⁰

(1) privately, at home, e.g., covering the head, sleeping on an overturned couch, not occupying the marital couch, not greeting with ‘peace’. ‘In Judea they greeted mourners with "peace" on entering and leaving his house, to show that mourning did not obtain on Sabbath’. Sem. X (end.).

(2) This is a gloss — not found in the parallel texts — on the technical height of a partition. Cf. Shab. 6a — and Tosa, Suk. 5b s. v. עשרה .

(3) On a couch or seated round the table with others; that is, he does not have his meals in style.

(4) Sem. adds: ‘Nor does he eat all he requires’ — i.e., his fill.

(5) Three or more eating together should join as a group in saying grace. Cf. Ber. 45a.

(6) [Rashi Ber. 17b explains differently: He recites no benediction before meals, nor does he say grace after meals. Nor do others recite the benediction before meals on his behalf, nor does he join in the grace after meals.]

(7) ‘Hear, O Israel. . . , Dent. VI, 4ff Cf. P.B. pp. 30ff

(8) The ‘Amidah, or the ‘Eighteen Benedictions (19) Prayer’ for weekdays. V. P.B. p. 44ff.

(9) So Sem. X.

(10) Sem. ibid. adds, he eats according to his requirements.

(11) The ‘Amidah or Seven Benedictions for the Sabbath. MS. M. omits ‘phylacteries’, as these are never donned on Sabbath.

(12) So also Sem. and other texts. In Ber. 17b Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel.

(13) Sem. inserts: A mourner on Sabbath is as if he were no mourner.

(14) I.e., marital intercourse during the Sabbath, which is otherwise forbidden during the week of mourning. Rabban Gamaliel's statement implies that he is permitted to use the marital couch on the Sabbath of the week of mourning. Conjugal rights are among the Scriptural obligations of a husband to his wife. Ex. XXI, 10 and cf. Keth. 61a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 24a

Mar Yohani¹ enquired of Samuel, Was there [some] mourning [to be observed] on Sabbath or was there no mourning on the Sabbath? — He replied, There is no mourning [to be observed] on the Sabbath.

Some Rabbis sitting in the presence of R. Papa reported in the name of Samuel that a mourner who used the conjugal couch during the [seven] days of his mourning is guilty of a mortal offence. Said R. Papa to them, What was reported was that it is 'forbidden', not 'a mortal offence', and in the name of R. Johanan it was reported [and not in the name of Samuel]; and if you heard aught [condemned] in the name of Samuel [as a mortal offence] it was this: 'Said R. Tahlifa b. Abimi, as reporting Samuel, A mourner who did not let his hair grow long and did not rend his clothes is guilty of a mortal offence. For it was said [to Aaron and his surviving sons]:² Let not the hair of your heads go loose neither rend your clothes, that ye die not. . . ,³ which [clearly] implies that any [other] mourner if he has not let the hair [of his head] go loose and has not rent his clothes, is guilty of a mortal offence'.

Rafram⁴, b. Papa said, It is taught in the Ebel Rabbathi:⁵ 'A mourner is forbidden to use the [conjugal] couch during his [seven] days of mourning'; and it happened [once] with one who used his [conjugal] couch during the [seven] days of his mourning that swine hauled away his carcass.⁶

Samuel said, Pahaz,⁷ are obligatory; Natar,⁷ are optional [on the Sabbath] i.e., the unveiling of the head,⁸ turning the rent side [of his garment] from front to back and tilting up the couch [into its normal position] are obligatory [on the mourner, in honour of the Sabbath]; donning sandals, the use of the conjugal bed and washing his hands and feet with warm water at [the approach of the] Sabbath even are optional.⁹ But Rab says, The unveiling of his head is also optional. Now, what is the difference in the case of the donning of sandals [on the Sabbath] that Samuel treats it as optional? [presumably] because not everyone usually wears shoes;¹⁰ is it not so likewise with the unveiling of the head, as not everybody generally goes about with head unveiled? — Samuel is consistent in this, as Samuel said, 'Any rending [of clothes] not done in the flush [of grief]¹¹ is not a [proper] rending, and any muffling [of the face] not alter the manner of the Ishmaelites,¹² is not a proper muffling [for a mourner]'. R. Nahman demonstrated it [by covering himself up in his mantle] right up to the sides of the beard.¹³

Said R. Jacob, as reporting R. Johanan: This statement was made [above]¹⁴ only in reference to one who has no shoes on his feet, but if he has shoes on his feet [on the Sabbath] his shoes give evidence about him.¹⁵

'Any rending [of clothes] not done in the flush [of grief] is not a [proper] rending'. But yet [when] they said to Samuel, 'Rab's soul has gone to rest', he rent on account of him thirteen garments [and] said: 'Gone is the man before whom I trembled'!¹⁶ When they told R. Johanan. 'The soul of R. Hanina has gone to rest', he rent on account of him thirteen robes¹⁷ of Milesian wool and said: 'Gone is the man before whom I trembled'!¹⁸ — Rabbis are in a different category, since their discussions are always recalled it is [for us] like 'the first flush [of grief]'.¹⁹

Said Rabin b. Adda to Raba: Your disciple R. Amram said that it was taught, 'A mourner [hearing of a fresh bereavement] at any time during the seven [days] rends his [clothes] in the forefront thereof, and if he has [occasion] to change [the garment]. he changes and rends afresh; on the Sabbath he rends [on hearing the news] in the hinder part [of the garment]. and if he has [occasion] to change it, he changes but tears not [afresh]’?²⁰ — That was taught only where [it was] in honour of one's father or mother, [but not for other near of kin].

Are such rents [to be] sewed up²¹ or are they not [to be] sewed up? — On that, [Nahmani]²² father of R. Oshaia and Bar Kappara held different views, one saying that the rents are [to be] sewed up and the other saying that they are not [to be] sewed up. May it be inferred that it was the father of R. Oshaia that said that these were not [to be] sewed up, as R. Oshaia said that they were not [to be] sewed up; from whom had he heard this if not from his father? — Not [necessarily]: he [R. Oshaia] heard it from his master, [who was] Bar Kappara.

Raba said, A mourner may walk about in his [rent] wrap²³ indoors [on the Sabbath]. Abaye found R. Joseph going in and out of his house, his head covered with a sudarium²⁴ [on the Sabbath]. Said he to him:²⁵ Do you not, sir, hold the view that there is to be no [observance of] mourning on the Sabbath? — He replied: Thus said R. Johanan: ‘Intimate [forms of] mourning may be maintained [on the Sabbath]’.

R. ELIEZER SAYS, SINCE THE SANCTUARY [AT JERUSALEM] WAS LAID IN RUINS [THE FEAST OF] ‘AZERETH²⁶ [IS CONSIDERED] AS AN [ORDINARY] SABBATH, etc. Said R. Giddal b. Menashia as citing Samuel, The halachah follows the opinion of Rabban Gamaliel. And some attach this comment of R. Giddal b. Menashia to [the following Baraita]: ‘Any infant up to thirty days old is carried out in arms²⁷ and buried by one woman and two men, but not by one man and two women.’²⁸

Abba Saul says, Even by one man with two women. And they [the people] do not stand in line¹ on the [immature] infant's account, nor do they [need] to recite the [usual] mourners' benediction,² nor tender the [usual] condolence to the mourners. An infant thirty days old is taken forth [to burial] in a case.³ R. Judah says: Not a case that is borne on the shoulder, but one that is borne in the arms; and the people stand in line¹ on its account, and recite the [additional] mourners' benediction² and tender the [usual] condolence to the mourners. One twelve months old is taken forth [to burial] on a bier; R. Akiba says, If the infant is twelve months old and its limbs are like those of one two years old, or two years old and its limbs are like those of one twelve months old, it is carried out on a bier. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says, For any one that is taken out on a bier the public [should] show their distress;⁴ for any one that is not taken out on a bier the public do not [need] to show their distress. R. Eleazar says, If he is known to the public at large, the public should participate in the proceedings; if he be not known to many [of the public] they do not [need] to participate. And what is the rule in respect of making lamentation for them? R. Meir in the name of R. Ishmael says: In the case of the poor lamentation is made for a child of three and in the case of the rich for a child of five.⁵ R. Judah speaking in his [R. Ishmael's.] name says: With the poor [they make a lament] for children of five; with the rich for children of six. And [as for] the children of 'elders', they are [treated] in the same way as the children of the poor.⁶ Said R. Giddal b. Menashia, as citing Rab,⁷ The halachah is as stated by R. Judah in the name of R. Ishmael.

R. 'Anani b. Sason⁸ gave a discourse at the door of the Prince⁹ [and said]: 'One day [of mourning] before 'Azereth¹⁰ [the Feast of Weeks] with [one day of] 'Azereth count as fourteen days [out of the thirty].' R. Ammi heard of this and was indignant saying. Is that his own view? It is what R. Eleazar [b. Pedath] said as citing R. Oshaia! R. Isaac the smith gave a discourse at the marquee¹¹ of the Exilarch [and said]: 'One day [of mourning] before 'Azereth with the [one day of] 'Azereth, count as fourteen days [out of the thirty]'. R. Shesheth heard of this and was indignant, saying, Is that his own view? It is what R. Eleazar said, as citing R. Oshaia! For R. Eleazar, citing R. Oshaia, said: Whence is derived the ruling that 'Azereth [the Feast of Weeks] is allowed a supplementary extension to full seven days?¹² From what is said: Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the Lord thy God in the place He shall choose: on the Feast of Unleavened Bread and on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles; and they shall not appear before the Lord thy God empty.¹³ Just as the Feast of Unleavened Bread has a supplementary [period] to full seven days [for the celebration offerings],¹⁴ the Feast of Weeks¹⁵ has likewise a supplementary extension [for festive offerings] of full seven days.¹⁶ R. Papa invited¹⁷ the elder R. Awia [to act as expositor] and he expounded [the theme]: 'One day [of mourning] before New Year and New Year's Day [together] account for fourteen [out of the thirty days]'. Said Rabina, According to this, then, one day [of mourning] before 'the Feast' [of Tabernacles] together with the [seven days of the] festival and 'the Eighth Day' [of 'Solemn Assembly'] account [together] for twenty-one [out of the thirty days of mourning]. Rabina turned up at Sura-on the Euphrates¹⁸ when R. Habiba of Sura-on-the Euphrates put the question to him: Did you, sir, say that one day¹⁹ before New Year and New Year's Day [together] account for fourteen [out of the thirty days]? — He replied, I did say that, arguing on [the basis of] Rabban Gamaliel's view.²⁰

MISHNAH. NONE REND [THEIR CLOTHES] NOR BARE [THEIR SHOULDER], NOR PROVIDE A REPAST [FOR THE MOURNERS]²¹ SAVE THOSE [WHO ARE] NEAR OF KIN TO THE DEAD; NOR DO THEY PROVIDE A REPAST SAVE [SEATED] ON AN UPRIGHT COUCH.²²

(15) I.e., Azereth, though essentially a Feast of but one day.

(16) The same argument applies to the analogy with the Feast of Tabernacles which has a range of eight days; but this argument is logically questioned, as thereby the one-day Feast of Weeks would be entitled to a day more than the seven-day Feast of Mazzoth; besides, it is shown that the eighth day of Tabernacles is, by virtue of its special sacrificial tariff a distinct Feast by itself. Cf. Hag. 17a and note discussion that follows.

(17) אֲדַבְרִיהָ Lit., 'took him along, brought or led him forward'. R. And they enquire about the laws of Passover thirty days preceding the Festival'. And on the expression אֲדַבְרִיהָ v. Bez. 29a (Sonc. ed., p. III, n. 3).

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 25a

GEMARA. [NONE REND etc.] even though [the dead be] a recognized scholar.¹ But then, it is taught [otherwise]: If a scholar dies, all are his near of kin?² 'All are his near of kin', say you? — Rather All are like his near of kin. — All rend their clothes on his account and all bare [their shoulders] on his account and all provide a repast for those that mourn on his account in the broad space?³ — It⁴ is a necessary ruling where the deceased was not a scholar. But then if the deceased was a worthy person, one is [still] in duty bound to rend his clothes, as it is taught: ‘Wherefore do a person's sons and daughters die in infancy? That one should weep and mourn for a worthy person.’ — [You say]. ‘That one should weep and mourn [for a worthy person]’!⁵ What, levy a distress on one [in advance]?⁶ — Say rather, ‘Because one has not wept and mourned for a worthy person’. — ‘For⁷ whoever weeps and mourns for a worthy person, all his sins are forgiven him, on account of the honour he rendered to him [the deceased]’? — It is necessary⁸ where the deceased is not a [particularly] worthy person. But yet if one stands here, at the time of a person breathing his last, one is [also] in duty bound [to rend his clothes]. as it is taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says, One who stands near the dying, at the time when he breathes his last, he is in duty bound to rend [his clothes]: To what is this like? To a scroll of the Law that is burnt,⁹ when one is in duty bound to rend [his clothes]. — It is a necessary¹⁰ ruling where one was not standing there at the time when the dying breathed his last.

When the soul of R. Safra¹¹ went into repose, the Rabbis did not rend [their clothes] on account of him,¹² since, they said, We have not learnt from him [directly].¹³ Said Abaye, Is it taught: ‘When a Master died’? The teaching is: ‘When a scholar dies [all are his near-of-kin]’. Besides, we repeat daily the halachic interpretations reported [in his name] at the College! The [Rabbis of the College] then took the view that what was done was done.¹⁴ Said Abaye to them, We learned: ‘If a scholar dies, as long as they are engaged in a lament for him they are in duty bound to rend [their clothes]’. They thought then of rending forthwith [their clothes].¹⁵ Said Abaye to them, [No], it is taught: ‘A scholar is honoured at the lament held [on his account].’¹⁶

When the soul of R. Huna¹⁷ came to repose, they thought of Placing a scroll of the law on his bier.¹⁸ Said it. Hisda to them: Should one do for him now something that he did not countenance in his life-time? For R. Tahlifa¹⁹ said: I myself [once] saw R. Huna when he wanted to sit down on his couch, but there was a scroll of the law lying on it, so he put an inverted jar on the ground and put on it the scroll of the law. Obviously he thought that it was forbidden to sit on a couch when there was a scroll of the law lying thereon. Then the bier could not be got through the doorway²⁰ and they thought of letting it down from the roof. Said R. Hisda, I have learnt this from himself: ‘The honour of a scholar requires that his bier should pass through the door’. They then thought of transferring him from this bed to another, but said R. Hisda to them, I have learnt thus from himself: ‘The honour of a scholar requires that he should be taken out on the first bier’. For Rab Judah, as citing Rab, said, Whence is derived the lesson that the honour of a scholar requires that he should be borne on his first bier? From what is said: And they set the ark of God on a new cart²¹ and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was on the hill.²² They then readied the gateway and brought it out.

R. Abba then opened [his funerary address]: ‘Our Master [said he] was worthy that the Shechinah²³ should abide with him, but [the fact of his being in] Babylon prevented it’.²⁴

Thereupon R. Nahman, son of R. Hisda — some say it was R. Hanan, son of R. Hisda — referred to [the text]: The word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar.²⁵ His father tapped him with his sandal, saying to him: Have I not told you not to worry everybody [with this point]? What is meant by the [double expression] ‘Hayoh [hayah]’?²⁶ That it had been [had come] before [he came to Babylon].

When they brought him up thither [to Palestine, for burial] people told R. Ammi and R. Assi²⁷ that R. Huna had come. They said: ‘When we were there [in Babylon] we had not [a chance] of raising our heads because of him;²⁸ now that we have come here he is come after us’.²⁹ They then were told that it was his coffin that had arrived. R. Assi and R. Assi went out [to meet him]; R. Ela³⁰ and R. Hanina did not go out. Some say, R. Ela went out, R. Hanina did not go out. What was the reason of the one who went out? According to what is taught [in the following]: ‘If a coffin is passing [on its way] from place to place they stand in a row³¹ on account of the deceased, and say the mourners' benediction on account of him and also offer condolence to the mourners'. What was the reason of the one who did not go out? — According to what is taught [in the following]: 'If a coffin is passing [on its way] from place to place, they do not stand in a row on account of it, nor say on his account the mourners' benediction, nor [offer] condolence to the mourners'. These citations contradict one another! — This is not difficult [to explain]; the former [ruling obtains] where the body is intact; the latter where the body is not intact, and R. Huna's body was intact. Why did one not go out [to meet it]? Because he had not been fully informed of this. Then they said, Where shall we lay him to rest? [Said some, Let us lay him at the side of R. Hiyya];³² for R. Huna disseminated Torah in Israel³³ and R. Hiyya had likewise disseminated Torah³⁴ in Israel. Who will bring him into [the cave of] R. Hiyya? — Said R. Hagga 'I shall bring him in, because I sustained [revised] my studies [before him]³⁵ when I was but eighteen years of age, never having experienced the effects of an unchaste dream³⁶ and he made me his attendant³⁷ and therefore I know of his [pious] deeds. For one day the strap of his phylacteries was [accidentally] reversed,³⁸ whereupon he sat fasting forty days'. He then brought him in [to the cave].³⁹ Judah was laid there at the right of his father [R. Hiyya] and on his left was his [twin brother]⁴⁰ Hezekiah. Said Judah to Hezekiah: 'Rise from your place, for it is not good manners that R. Huna be left standing'. As he [Hezekiah] rose a column of fire rose with him⁴¹. R. Hagga, seeing that, was overcome with fear, set up the coffins and came away. And the reason that he came to no harm⁴² [from the pillar of fire] was because he set up the coffin of R. Huna.⁴³

When the soul of R. Hisda went to its rest they [the Collegiates] thought of placing a scroll of the law on his bier. Said R. Isaac to them: What he had disapproved of being done for his master, shall we now do to himself? They then thought that they should not stitch the rent in their garments, when R. Isaac b. Ammi said to them, It is taught:⁴⁴ In the case of a Scholar, [who died] as soon as they have turned away their faces, at the rear of the bier, they [may] stitch together [the rent]'.

When the soul of Rabbah⁴⁵ son of R. Huna went to its rest and [that of] R. Hamnuna, they took them [both] up thither.⁴⁶

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 25b

As they came to a bridge the camels¹ halted. Said a certain Arab² to those [who accompanied the cortege], What is that?³ — They replied that the [deceased] Rabbis were doing honour to one another: one saying [as it were], 'You, Sir, proceed first', and the other saying, 'You, Sir, proceed first'. Said he, [the Arab]: [In my judgment],⁴ it is right that [a notable the son of a notable],⁴ Rabbah son of R. Huna, should take precedence. The camel bearing Rabbah son of R. Huna then passed along first. The molars and teeth of that Arab fell out.⁵ Then a certain child opened [his funerary oration] thus:

'A scion of ancient stock from Babylon⁶ came

With records of prowess in combat⁷ and fame;
Twice numerous pelican and bittern⁸ from far
Came for the ravage and ruin⁹ in Shinear.¹⁰
When [God] views His world with displeasure,
He seizes [great] souls in exacting measure,
Awaiting their coming as new brides, with delight
And, riding on Araboth¹¹ in empyrean height,

He welcomes the souls of the pure and right'.¹² When the soul of Rabina went Into repose, a certain orator opened [his funerary oration] thus:

‘Ye Palms, sway your heads [and deplore]

A Saint, a noble Palm¹³ that is no more

Who days and nights in meditation spent;

For him, day and night, let us lament.’

Said R. Ashi to Bar-Kipok,¹⁴ What would you say on such a day [about me]? He responded thus:

‘If a flame among the Cedars fall

What avails the lichen¹⁵ on the wall?¹⁶

If Leviathan¹⁷ by hook be hauled to land,

What hope have fishes of a shallow strand?

If fish in rushing stream by hook¹⁸ be caught

What death may in marshy ponds be wrought!’

Said Bar Abin¹⁹ to him: ‘[God] forbend that I should talk of "hook" or "flame" in connection with the righteous’. Then what would you say? — I should say:

‘Weep ye for the mourners

Not for what is lost:

He found him rest;

‘Tis we are let distressed’.

R. Ashi was’ offended²⁰ with them,²¹ and their feet²² were turned.²³ On that day [of R. Ashi's demise] they did not come to make a lament for him, and that is what R. Ashi had said: 'Neither shall Bar-Kipok²⁴ bare [his shoulder] nor shall Bar-Abin²⁴ bare²⁵ [his shoulder, for me]'.

When Raba once came to Dagleth [Tekrit],²⁶ he said to Barabin,²⁷ Get up and say something. He rose and said [the following]:²⁸

When more than a 'third'²⁹ wadeth in water deep Remember the covenant³⁰ and mercy keep.³¹
We strayed from Thee as a wayward wife;³² Leave us not: as at Marah³³ save our life. R. Honin³⁴ was a son-in-law in the Nasi's family. He had no children but he prayed for mercy and had [his wish granted]. On the day when the child was [born] unto him he himself went to his repose, and the funeral orator on that occasion opened [his lament] thus:

Joy is turned to sorrow and Gladness linked with sadness.

When the time of joy³⁵ came nigh

The father heaved a dying sigh:

At [the birth of] his Gracious-little-son³⁶

The Gracious-sire's life was done.

They gave the child the name of Hanan after his father.

When the soul of R. Pedath³⁷ went into repose, R. Isaac b. Eleazar³⁸ opened [his address] thus: This day is as hard for Israel as the day when the sun set at noon-tide, as it is written: And it shall come to pass in that day . . . that I will cause the sun to go down at noon and I will darken the earth in the clear day. And I will turn your feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentation. . . as the mourning of an only so,³⁹ And, said R. Johanan, that was the day of King Josiah's death.⁴⁰

When the soul of R. Johanan went into repose R. Ami observed [on his account] the seven [days of mourning] and the thirty. Said R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba: What R. Ammi did, he did but on his own initiative;⁴¹ for thus said R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan: 'Even for his master who had taught him Wisdom⁴² one sits but one day'. When the soul of R. Zera⁴³ went into repose the orator of that occasion opened [his address] thus:

'The land of Shinear⁴⁴ was his home of birth

The land of Glory⁴⁵ reared her Darling⁴⁶ to fame;

"Woe is me!" saith Rakath⁴⁷ in lament,

For she hath lost her choicest ornament.'

When the soul of R. Abbahu went into repose the columns at Caesarea ran with tears.⁴⁸ At [the death of] R. Jose⁴⁹ the roof gutters at Sepphoris ran with blood. At that of R. Jacob [b. Aha],⁵⁰ Stars were visible in daytime. At that of R. Assi [all cedars]⁵¹ were uprooted; [at the death of R. Samuel b. Isaac]⁵¹ all trees were uprooted. At that of R. Hiyya [b. Abba]⁵⁰ fiery stones came down from the sky; at that of R. Menahem [b. Simai]⁵⁰ all images were effaced⁵² and came to be [used] as stone rollers;⁵³ at that of Tanhum son of R. Hiyya [of Kefar Acco]⁵¹ all human statues were torn out of their position; at that of [R. Isaac, son of R.]⁵¹ Eliashib seventy houses were broken into [by thieves] at Tiberias;⁵⁴ at that of R. Haninuna,⁵⁵ hail stones came down from the sky; at that of Rabbah and R. Joseph the rocks of the Euphrates kissed each other;⁵⁶ at that of Abaye and Raba the rocks of the Tigris kissed each other. When the soul of R. Mesharsheya went into repose the palms were laden with thorns.⁵⁷

Our Rabbis taught:

- (1) Which were carrying the coffins.
- (2) Tayi'a, the name of an Arab tribe which came to be used for Arabs in general.
- (3) What does this strange thing indicate?
- (4) The bracketed words which form the reading of MS.M. are here combined with the text of cur. edtl. to bring out the import of the Arab's remarks more fully.
- (5) A proverbial expression. He received the meed for his irreverence.
- (6) The Babylonian Exilarchs to which Rabbah b. R. Huna belonged traced their descent to Jehoiachim, King of Judah. V. JEV, 288ff.
- (7) Referring to his prowess and triumphs at the Collegiates' discussions.
- (8) An echo of Isa. XXXIV, 11; Zeph. II, 14.
- (9) Cf. Isa. LI, 19 and Jer. XLVIII, 3.
- (10) I.e., Babylon. Cf. Gen. XIV, 1.
- (11) Ps. LXVIII, 5 is taken as 'High-Heavens'; cf. v. 34 and Deut. XXXIII. Hoffin. Mid. Tann. ad loc. p. 221 and Hag. 12b.
- (12) With this thought, cf. Midr. Tehil. on Ps. CXVI, 15: Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints, a parable of a king who sent an eparchos (prefect) to a place which he directed well. Having completed his term, the king gave him another eparchia (province). In the place which he was leaving they praised him that he had directed them well, and in the place that he was entering they (also) praised him, that he was going to rule them well. Likewise, when the Holy One, blessed be He, sent a righteous man into the world to direct the age and he directed it well, on his departure from the world, people are distressed about him (leaving): for so long as the righteous man is among them he prevents tribulation from coming into the world while the Ministering Angels rejoice about his coming to abide among them. (Edition Buber, p. 478)
- (13) Cf. Ps. XCII, 13.
- (14) A noted orator.
- (15) The hyssop is frequently associated with the cedar, the high and low in contrast. Cf. Lev. XIV, 51, 52 and I Kings V, 13. Cf. 'And he (Solomon) spake of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall'.
- (16) V. Elijah Rabbah (ed. Fried.) XIV (XIII) p. 65.
- (17) The monster fish. 'Canst thou draw out Leviathan with a fish hook, or press down his tongue with a cord?' Job XL, 25. Cf. Isa. XXVII, 1; Ps. CIV, 25-26.
- (18) נפלה הרבה Var. lec. (v. D.S. p. 86) נפלה הרבה: 'If rushing stream run dry What water may marshy ponds supply?' — Cf. Jer. XIV, 3; Ezek. XLVII, 11.
- (19) A noted orator.
- (20) Lit., 'his mind weakened', felt discouraged, disappointed.
- (21) At their ill-chosen metaphors, such as a flame among the cedars (cf. Judg. IX, 15); hooking the Leviathan (cf. n. 5), or marshy shallows, or 'what is lost', implying as it were that all his life's best work, the encouragement of scholarship and the careful redaction of the Talmud, are of no lasting value.
- (22) Lit., 'knees'.
- (23) I.e., they turned about and fled in confusion, ashamed of their indiscreet and almost impudent poetic effusion. For the idiomatic use of this expression, cf. R. Johanan's similar utterance in a sharp disputation with Resh Lakish who was his junior: 'We cut off the legs of the youngster'. Me'ila 7b and also Bez. 25b. The traditional interpretation takes it literally, that they both became crippled. V. next notes.
- (24) Yeb. 103a has בר קיפוף and בר אובא
- (25) I.e., shall not attend my funeral nor bare their shoulder as is done at the lament of a Principal of an Academy. Cf.

supra p. 140, n. 7. The traditional explanation takes the above observation as referring to their 'lameness' in connection with a discussion between R. Ashi and Amemar on the possibility of effecting the rite of halizah, i.e., taking off the shoe, by the levir or brother of a deceased childless husband, if he is a cripple where the malformation of his foot is such as to render it impossible to walk or don or take off a shoe, as required by Scriptural law. Deut. XXV, 5-10. According to this interpretation the translation of the sentence is: 'Neither Bar-Kipok nor Bar-Abin are fit to submit to the rite of halizah. V. Yeb., Sonc. ed. ' p. 709.

(26) דגלת. Tagrit, Tekrit or Tikrit (cf. Obermeyer p. 142). It could not be here the Tigris, as Mahoza itself lay on the Tigris. Tagrit or Tekrit lies higher up on the Tigris between Mosul and Baghdad and is often mentioned in Syrian literature.

(27) It seems doubtful whether it is the same Bar-Abin as above.

(28) The following poem seems to be part of a סליחה which had been composed by Bar-Abin on the occasion of a bad flooding of the Tigris in spring time, April-May, cf. Ta'an. 14a (bottom).

(29) A third of the country is flooded. Perhaps שלישית here refers to Israel, the Jewish quarter in the town. Cf. Isa. XIX, 24 and Shab. 88a.

(30) That a flood come not again. Cf. Gen. IX, 15, 16.

(31) Cf. Hab. III, 2 and P.B. P. 65.

(32) A faithless wife was tried by water, Num. V, 22. The flooding has made the waters undrinkable and caused many deaths.

(33) Var. lec. בזכות מי מרה by virtue of the old favour at Marah's water', or, as our text: באות מי מרה. Deliver us now miraculously as when the bitter water was healed and sweetened for our forefathers at Marah, Ex. XV, 23-25.

(34) probably pronounced Honein. He may be identical with 'Anani b. Sason mentioned supra 24b. R. Honein is cited infra 28a.

(35) The joyous birth of the child.

(36) הנינתו (from הנינה Grace) a diminutive form (fu'ailah) i.e., 'Little Honein' — a play on his father's name, from הנין (graced, favoured).

(37) So MS.M. and other texts; but cur. edd. R. Johanan, which seems however incorrect.

(38) Lived and taught at Caesarea.

(39) Amos VIII, 9-10.

(40) At Megiddo. V. Ii Chron. XXXV, 23-25; Rashi on v. 25; Targum on Lam. IV, 20; infra p. 188 and Ta'an. 22b.

(41) I.e., as his personal tribute to R. Johanan; but it is not to be taken as a rule to be followed generally.

(42) I.e., Torah.

(43) A great Babylonian sage highly esteemed for his learning, piety and noble character. Cf. supra 17a; Meg. 28a (twice) and Sanah. 14a (Sonc. ed., p. 65).

(44) Babylon.

(45) Palestine. Cf. Dan. XI, 16, 41.

(46) Cf. Jer. XXXI, 19.

(47) An ancient name identified with Sepphoris or Tiberias, both the seat of the Nasi. V. Meg. 6a (top).

(48) דמעתא (instead of מיא water, sweat). So MS. M., J.A.Z. III, 1 and other texts.

(49) Jose b. Halafta. J.A.Z. ibid. names Laodicea as the place.

(50) So MS.M.

(51) MS.M. and other texts, v. J.A.Z. ibid.

(52) As he refused to look even at the image of coins. Cf. J.A.Z. ibid. 'At the death of R. Nahum b. Simai they covered all the images, saying that as he never looked at them in his lifetime he should not see them after he fell asleep'.

(53) Cf. supra 11a.

(54) So MS.M. CC. more correctly than Nehardea of cur. edd., as J.A.Z. ibid. states it happened in Galilee and Ta'an. 23b shows this R. Isaac b. El. to have been with R. Mani of Tiberias. Besides, Nehardea had been in ruins since 259 C.E.

(55) Mentioned supra p. 158.

(56) I.e., they were thrown together, probably referring to the tier rocks which carried the bridges of the river. Cf. B.M. 86a where it is related that at Rabbah's death there arose so violent a storm that an Arab with his camel were bodily carried across the Nehar Papa canal. Cf. Obermeyer pp. 166 and 238.

(57) [According to the Meiri (Jerusalem 1937), these were figures of speech introduced by orators as the funerary orations respectively on the deaths of the above-named scholars, describing the gravity of the loss.]

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 26a

And these are rents that are not [to be] sewed up: One who rends [his clothes] for his father or mother; or his master who taught him Wisdom,¹ for a Nasi, or Ab Beth din;² or on hearing evil tidings or [hearing] God's name blasphemed, or when a scroll of the law has been burnt; or at the [sight of the ruined] cities of Judea, the Holy Temple or Jerusalem. And one rends [first] for the Temple and then enlarges [the rent] for Jerusalem.

‘For his father or mother or for his master who taught him Wisdom’. Whence derive we [these rulings]? — From what is written: And Elisha saw it and he cried: My father. my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof.³ ‘My father, my father’, that is, [to rend on the loss of] one's father or mother. ‘The chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof’, that is [for] a Master who taught one Torah. How exactly does it convey this [meaning]? — As R. Joseph rendered it [in Aramaic]: ‘My master, my master, who was better [protection] to Israel with his prayer than chariots and horsemen’.

And whence that these rents are not [to be] reunited? — From what is written [in the same passage]: And he [Elisha] took hold of his own clothes and rent them in two pieces.³ Once it says ‘and he rent then;’, do I not know that he rent them in two [asunder]? It must be meant to teach that the severed parts ever remain rent [apart] in two.⁴ Said Resh Lakish to R. Johanan: Elijah [however] is alive!⁵ — He replied, Since it is written there ‘And he saw ‘him no more,’ he was as dead to him [to Elisha].

‘For a Nasi or Ab Beth din or on hearing evil tidings’. Whence do we derive [these rulings]? — From what is written: Then David took hold of his clothes and rent them,’ and likewise all the men that were with him. And they wailed and wept and fasted until even, for Saul and for Jonathan his son and for the people of the Lord and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword.⁶ Now ‘Saul’, that is the Nasi [Prince]; ‘Jonathan’, that is the Ab Beth din. ‘And for the people of the Lord and for the house of Israel’, that refers to ‘evil tidings’ [that reached them].

Said Rab b. Shabba to R. Kahana: Might not one explain that [they did] not [rend their clothes] until [after hearing] all those misfortunes [that had then happened]?⁷ He replied, The repetition of ‘for’ this ‘and for’ that ‘and for’ separate the items [from one another]. Yet do we [have to] rend [clothes] on hearing evil tidings? For when they informed Samuel that King Shapur had slain twelve thousand Jews at Caesarea-Mazaca,⁸ he did not [then] rend his clothes? — They [the Sages] did not say [it should be done] save where the misfortune involves the larger part of the Community resembling the typical instance.⁹ And is it a fact that King Shapur slew Jews? For [it is reported] that King Shapur said to Samuel,¹⁰ ‘May [ill] befall me if I have ever slain a Jew!’ — For there, it was they [the Jews] that had brought it on themselves, as R. Ammi said, that the noise of the harp-strings¹¹ about Caesarea-Mazaca burst the wall of Laodicea.¹²

‘[Rents] on [hearing] God's name blasphemed’.¹³ Whence do we derive this? — From what is written: Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah who was over the household and Shebna the scribe and Joah the son; of Asaph the recorder to Hezekiah with their clothes rent and told him the [blasphemous] words of Rabshakeh.¹⁴

Our Rabbis taught: ‘It makes no difference whether one hears it [himself] or hears it from another who had heard it, he is in duty bound to rend [his clothes], but the witnesses are not in duty bound to rend [again on reporting] as they have already rent at the time they heard [the blasphemy]’. [You say], ‘as they have already rent at the time they heard [the blasphemy]’, what matters it, since they do hear it now [again in reporting]? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And it came to pass, when the King heard it, that he rent his clothes:¹⁵ the King [we are told], rent [his clothes], but they [who reported it] did not rend [again]. And whence [do we know] that these rents are not [to be] mended? — That is learnt from a comparison¹⁶ between the ‘rending’ [here] by King Hezekiah and ‘rending’ [elsewhere].¹⁷

‘[Rents] when a scroll of the law has been burnt’. What is the source for this? — What is written: And it came to pass when Jehudi had read three or four columns that he cut it with a penknife and cast it into the fire that was in the brazier.¹⁸ What is the point of saying ‘[had read] three or four columns’? — They told [King] Jehoiakim that Jeremiah had written a book of Lamentations, [and] he said to them: What is written there? [They quoted] ‘How doth the city sit solitary’.¹⁹ — [The King] replied: I am the King.²⁰ They then cited to him [the second verse]: She weepeth sore in the night. He replied [again]: I am the King. [They then cited the third verse]: Judah is gone into exile because of affliction. [Again he replied]: I am the King. [They continued with verse four]: The ways of Zion do mourn. I am the King [he replied]. [They continued with the fifth verse]: Her adversaries are become the head. He asked: Who said that? — [They continued with that same verse]: For the Lord hath afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions. Forthwith he [began to] cut out all the names of God mentioned therein and burnt them in the fire; hence it is written [in the report there]: Yet they were not afraid, nor rent their garments, neither the King, nor any of his servants that heard all these words,²¹ which implies that the [bystanders] should have rent [their clothes]. Said Abaye to R. Papa: Might it not be suggested that the reason [why they should have rent was] for hearing evil tidings?²² — He replied: [Hardly, for] were there at that time any evil tidings as yet?

Said R. Helbo, as citing R. Huna: One who witnesses a scroll of the law being torn²³ is in duty bound to make two rents: one on account of the [injury to the] parchment²⁴ and one for [the injury to] the writing, as [may be gathered] from what is said: Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after that the King had burned the roll and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah.²⁵ ‘The roll,’ that is, the parchment and ‘and the words’, that is, the writing.²⁶

R. Abba and R. Huna b. Hiyya were once sitting together. R. Abba got up to [go and] relieve himself. He took off his head phylactery and put it down on a pillow, when a young ostrich came and wanted to swallow it.²⁷ Said he [R. Abba]: [If that had been swallowed] I should now have had to make two rents.²⁸ Said the other:²⁹ Whence do you derive this? A similar thing happened to me and I came to R. Mattenah [asking for guidance] and he had none to give me. I then came to Rab Judah and he told me: Thus said Samuel: ‘The [Rabbis] taught [that one should rend] only where [a sacred text is torn or burnt] by force majeure³⁰ and as in the example cited’.³¹ ‘Or at the [sight of the ruined] cities of Judea: the Holy Temple or Jerusalem’. Whence do we learn this? — From what is written: And it came to pass the second day after he³² had slain Gedaliah and no man knew it that there come certain men from Shechem, front Shiloh and from Samaria, even fourscore men, having their beards shaven and their clothes rent and having cut themselves, with meal-offerings and frankincense in their hand to bring them in the house of the Lord.³³ Said R. Helbo, as citing ‘Ulla of Beraï who reported R. Eleazar: One who sees the cities of Judah in their [state of] ruin, recites the verse: Thy holy cities are become a wilderness,³⁴ and rends his garment. [On seeing] Jerusalem in its [state of] ruin, one recites: Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised Thee, is burned with fire and all our pleasant things are laid waste,³⁵ and rends his garment.

‘He [first] makes a rent for the Holy Temple and then enlarges [the rent] for Jerusalem’. [In contrast to this] some cited [the following Baraitha]: ‘It is all the same whether one hears [that Jerusalem is fallen into ruin]³⁶ or sees [Jerusalem in ruin he is] in duty bound to rend [his garment].³⁶ As soon as he reaches the Scopus he rends; and he rends for the holy Temple separately and for Jerusalem separately’? — This [seeming discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]. The former ruling obtains where he first [of all] encounters the site of the [ruined] Sanctuary³⁷ and the latter, where he encounters Jerusalem [ruins] first [and afterwards the Sanctuary].

Our Rabbis taught: 'And all these [rents] they may tack together,³⁸ baste or pick up [the frayed edges]³⁹ or with a ladderstitch, but may not reunite the edges [by a sewn seam]'.⁴⁰ Said R. Hisda:

(8) Shapur I (241-272) is said to have destroyed Caesarea-Mazaca, the capital of Cappadocia, a vital military post on the main roads leading to the East, in 260 C.E. after he defeated the Emperor Valerian. It is said that there were then four hundred thousand inhabitants. Cf. Enc. Brit. (11th ed.) IV, 943a. The date 260 however makes this statement rather difficult, as Samuel died in 252 and Papa bar Nasr of Palmyra (Odenath) destroyed Nehardea 259. The occasion must therefore have been earlier, after the murder of Gordian III at Zaitha in 244 when Philip the Arab (of Hauran) made the best terms he could with Shapur [V. Graetz MGWJ 1852, p. 512 and Hoffmann D. Mar Samuel, p. 48.]

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 26b

Nor may the Alexandrian¹ mending [be used]. Our Rabbis taught: One who rends [his garment] in a part that had been tacked together, basted, or [the edges] picked up by cross or ladderstitch, has not discharged his duty; if in a part which had been rejoined [in a seam], he has discharged his duty. Said R. Hisda: Also [if he rent] in a part [which had been done up] with the Alexandrian mending.

Our Rabbis taught: One is allowed to turn [a garment] upside down² and [then] completely mend the rent. R. Simeon b. Eleazar forbids complete mending of the rent. And just as the vendor [of the garment] is forbidden to reunite the rent [completely] the buyer too is forbidden to reunite it [completely] and accordingly the vendor is bound to inform the buyer of [the nature of the rent].

Our Rabbis taught: The initial rending is [to the extent of] a handbreadth,³ and any extension thereof⁴ is to be to the depth of three fingers: these are the words of R. Meir. R. Judah says: The initial rending is [to the extent of] three fingers and the extension may be as small as he cares.⁵ Said 'Ulla, The halachah follows R. Meir in regard to the [initial] rending and in regard to the extension, the halachah follows R. Judah. It is likewise taught: R. Jose Says. The initial rending is [to the extent of] one handbreadth and the extension may be as little as one cares.⁵

Our Rabbis taught: If one was informed that his father died and he rent [his garment], [then] that his son died and he added thereto, the lower [inner portion] may be reunited; the upper parts is not to be reunited; that his son died and he rent his garment, [then] that his father died and he added thereto, the upper part may be reunited [and] the lower part⁶ is not to be reunited. [If one was informed] that his father died, that his mother died, that his brother died, that his sister died,⁷ he makes one rent for all. R. Judah b. Bathyra⁸ says: For all [near of kin he makes] one rent; for his father and/or mother⁹ [he makes] another rent: because a rent made for one's father or mother is not to be added to.¹⁰ What is the reason [for this differentiation]? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, it is because there is no extension [of a rent] in their case.¹¹ Samuel said: The halachah follows the view of R. Judah b. Bathyra. But did Samuel say that? Inasmuch Samuel stated that the halachah in matters of mourning is to follow the view of the [more] lenient authority!¹² — The [observance¹³ of] mourning comes under one category and the [act of] rending¹⁴ under another [category],

To what extent does one rend [his garment]? — To [exposing his breast down to] the [region of the] navel; some say, [only] down to the [region of the] heart — Although there is no [authentic] proof on this point, there is some [Scriptural] allusion to it, as it is said: And rend your hearts and not your garments.¹⁵ Having reached to the navel, [on hearing another evil report] he moves away a space of three fingers [from the former rent] and rends [afresh]. If the forepart of his garment is become full [of rents], he turns the garment front to back and then rends [again]; if it become full [of rents] in the upper parts. he turns the garment [upside] down; but one who rends the lower part or on the sides [of the garment] has not discharged his duty, save the High Priest, who rends [his garment] below.

[On the extension rending] R. Mattenah and Mar 'Ukba held different views and both advanced them in the names of [Abba] Samuel's father and R. Levi [b. Sisi]. One said: 'Anytime during the seven days. one rends [anew for another bereavement] and after the seven he [merely] adds [to the first rent]'. The other said: 'Anytime during the thirty. one rends [anew for another bereavement] and after the thirty he [merely] adds thereto'. To these statements R. Zera demurred. Now [said R. Zera], in regard to the one who says: 'Anytime during the seven days one rends [anew for another bereavement]',¹⁶ why [rend anew]? Because the rent may not be tacked together;¹⁷ then [in the case of a woman] in view of the Master's statement: 'A woman [mourner] tacks the rent together forthwith' [may she not] just as well [add even to the first rent]?¹⁷ — [No, because] there¹⁸ it is [a concession merely] out of the respect due to a woman.¹⁹ Again [said R. Zera], in regard to the one who says: 'Anytime during the thirty, one rends [anew for another],¹⁶ why is that? Because the rent is not to be reunited;²⁰ then [in the case of] a rent made for a father or mother that is never to be reunited, [may he not] just as well [add to the rent]?²¹ — [No, because] there [also the restriction is merely] out of the deference²² due to one's father and mother.

Our Rabbis taught: One who goes forth before the dead with a garment already rent, robs the dead and the living [relatives of their due]. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: If a man says to his friend, 'Lend me your cloak and I shall go and visit my father who is ill', and he went and found him already dead, he rends it and then mends the rent. After returning home he returns the cloak and compensates him for the damage done by the rent; but if he had not informed him [of his intention to visit his sick father], he must not touch it.

Our Rabbis taught: If one who is ill sustains bereavement, they should not inform him thereof, lest he thereby become distracted in mind; nor do they direct to have any garments rent in his presence and they direct the women to keep silent [from lamenting] in his presence. Children may be made to rend their clothes in order to stir up sadness and garments are also rent for a father-in-law or mother-in-law, out of deference to one's wife. R. Papa said: It is taught in the Ebel Rabbathi:²³ 'A mourner should not set an infant on his knee, because the child may amuse him and he may thereby incur censure from his fellow men'.

NOR DO THEY PROVIDE A REPAST SAVE²⁴ [SEATED] ON UPRIGHT COUCHES.²⁵ Our Rabbis taught: 'One who goes to the house of a mourner, if he be on familiar terms with him, may provide the repast for him [to be taken]²⁶ on overturned couches, but if not, he provides the repast for him [to be taken] on couches in erect position'.²⁷

Raba suffered a misfortune and Abba b. Martha, who is the same as Abba b. Manyomi, went to the house [to provide the mourner's repast for him]. Raba sat on all upright couch while Abba b. Martha sat on an overturned one. Said Raba: How lacking in [good] sense²⁸ is that Associate of the Rabbis!

Our Rabbis taught: One who goes from place to place [and mourning befell him while being on the road],²⁹

(1) Neatly sewed together on the surface with the joined ends on the wrong side of the material, or darned invisibly, or a piece neatly let in. V. Tosaf. s.v. אֵיחָוִי.

(2) I.e., adapting the bottom part for the neck.

(3) Four fingers, the width of the palm.

(4) on the intermediate occurrence of another bereavement.

(5) Lit., 'whatever it be'.

(6) Of the rent made for a parent.

(7) I.e., the news of their several deaths reached him simultaneously. J.M.K. III, 7 reads thus: 'Even if he heard of the death of his father and mother and of his Master who had taught him wisdom, he makes one rent for all'.

(8) J.M.K. III, 7 reads: 'R. Judah b. Tema says. 'He makes a rent for this one separately and for that one separately: only that he does not make that for his father and that for his mother as an extension". But is not this (latter part) to the same effect as the former part? Only, what he means is, that one shall make no extension on a rent made for a father or a mother'.

(9) Note the ambiguity indicated here by 'and/or', that is, either (a) a separate rent for father and mother jointly, quite apart from the rent made for the other near-of-kin on that occasion; or (b) a separate rent for each, even if the news of their deaths was communicated to him at the same moment. The former interpretation (with some reservations) is accepted by Ritba. V. infra n. 1.

- (10) Cf. n. 1 supra. Sem. IX reads as follows: One whose father and mother died (together) makes one rent for both; R. Judah b. Tema says: He makes a rent for this one separately and a rent for this one separately.
- (11) Tosaf. s.v. אמר fails to see the purport of this remark of R. Nahman b. Isaac and favours the view that the last clause ('because a rent made. . .') is probably a gloss (and is in fact not found in Sem. I.e.). Rabad, however, cited by Asheri, n. 71, explains the comment thus: Since a rent for a parent extends to the region of the heart (or even to the navel), any extension of it (for another sorrow) would fail to be any indication thereof, as his friends would take the enlarged rent as the sign of the mourners excessive grief for his parent.
- (12) Whereas R. Judah's view is in fact stricter than the first.
- (13) I.e. , the period of seven or thirty days. which begins after the interment.
- (14) Which is effected at the most poignant moment of grief, at witnessing the death of a beloved (even before the interment) or at the first intelligence of it. It is a tribute to the dead.
- (15) Joel II, 13.
- (16) It is the last part of the quotation on which the argument turns.
- (17) Within the seven days.
- (18) V. supra 22b, p. 142.
- (19) V. ibid. Not the law, whereas rending the garment is a duty according to the law for all, it is a tribute she owes to the dead, and like everybody else she should act in the regular way for all, i.e., rend anew.
- (20) During the thirty days. V. supra p. 143.
- (21) Even during the thirty days; as, even after the thirty days he would, according to the view expressed above, act like any other person according to the law and merely add to the rent a little, in tribute of the fresh loss; otherwise there is no concession in the case of a son mourning for a parent until the end of the year.
- (22) Not the law; hence after thirty days he merely adds to the rent.
- (23) Cf. supra p. 148, n. 10.
- (24) [MS.M. omits 'save', v. n. 6.]
- (25) For the reading. v. supra p. 154, n. I.
- (26) The one who provided the mourner's would also join him at the meal.
- (27) [Our Mishnah accordingly speaks of one who is not on familiar terms with the mourner. Raabad and others (v. Asheri) explain the Mishnah as referring to festival week, when in no case is the meal provided on overturned couches. As, however, no couches are overturned on festival week, the word 'SAVE' is redundant and on this interpretation is to be omitted, v. n. 3.]
- (28) As Raba and his visitor were not on intimate terms, it was presumptuous on the part of the visitor to sit low, while Raba out of deference to the visitor sat on the couch in its normal position.
- (29) So MS.M. Asheri and other texts.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 27a

if he can reduce his business affairs, he should do so, and if not, let him carry on with them [as best he may].

Our Rabbis taught: When do mourners overturn the beds? From the moment [the corpse] is taken from the house: these are the words of R. Eliezer; R. Joshua Says, From the moment that the rolling slab¹ closes the tomb. It happened [when] Rabban Gamaliel the Elder² died, as soon as he was taken out of the door of his house, R. Eliezer said to them,³ Overturn your beds. And after the 'rolling slab' had been placed [to close the tomb] R. Joshua said to them:³ 'Overturn your beds'. Said they to him, 'We have already overturned them by order of the Elder' [R. Eliezer].

Our Rabbis taught: When do they place the beds in erect position on the [approaching] eve of the Sabbath? From the time of the evening offering⁴ onwards'. Said Rabbah son of Huna,⁵ Nevertheless he [the mourner] does not sit down on it until it gets dark, and on the termination of the Sabbath, although he may have but one day [more] to sit [in mourning] he overturns it again.⁶

Our Rabbis taught: One who [has to] overturn his bed, over turns not his own bed alone, but all the beds he has in the house;⁷ even though he has ten beds in ten places, he overturns them all.⁸ And even if there be five brothers one of whom died, they all overturn [their beds].⁹ If, however, it be a bed specially set apart for vestments,¹⁰ that one need not be overturned. A dargesh¹¹ [couch] need not be overturned, but should be tilted up;¹² Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, [In the case of] a dargesh [it is enough if] he loosens the bolster-frame and lets it drop [down] of its own accord. What is a dargesh? — Said ‘Ulla, It is a Couch of Fortune.¹³ Said Rabbah to him: But then [how does that] meaning fit the ruling in reference to a king, for we learned:¹⁴ ‘[And when they provide for him the mourner's repast] all the people recline [at the repast] on the ground while the king sits on the dargesh’.¹⁵ Is there any reason why he should now be seated on [a special couch] which he had hitherto not been able to sit on?¹⁶ To this question R. Ashi demurred, [saying]: What is this difficulty? It may be just as exceptional as eating and drinking [with the king], because heretofore they [the people] did not provide for him food and drink, whereas now [in his mourning] they do provide for him food and drink! But, if difficulty there be [in the offered explanation] it arises from what is taught: ‘There is no need to overturn a dargesh, but he [merely] tilts it up’. Now if dargesh be a ‘Couch of Fortune’ why is there no need to overturn it, surely it is taught: ‘One who [has to] overturn his bed overturns not his own bed alone but all the beds he has in his house! And what is this difficulty? Why, a dargesh is similar to a bed specially set apart for vestments,¹⁷ as it is taught [there]: ‘If it be a bed specially set apart for vestments, that need not be overturned’. But if difficulty there be [in the explanation] it is this [from what is taught there]: ‘Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, [In the case of] a dargesh [it is enough if] he unfastens the inner bolster-frame and lets it drop [down]’. Now if you suppose that dargesh means a ‘Couch of Fortune’ , what bolster-frame is there [at all]?

When Rabin came [home from Palestine] he said, One of the Rabbis whose name is R. Tahlifa the Palestinian, who used to frequent the leather-mart, told me: What is a dargesh? It is [said he] a couch covered with a hide.¹⁸ It has also been stated: ‘R. Jeremiah said,¹⁹ In a dargesh the interlacing²⁰ [of the girths] is on the inside; in a bed [couch] the interlacing [of the girths] is on the outside’. Said R. Jacob b. Aha as reporting R. Joshua b. Levi: The halachah follows the opinion of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel.²¹ Also this, R. Jacob b. Ala is to have said as reporting R. Assi that where a couch has projecting lean-backs,²² it is enough if he merely tilts it up.²³

Our Rabbis taught: If he slept [during the seven days] on a chair, or on a large bench for water-jugs²⁴ or [even] on the ground. he has not discharged his duty.²⁵ Said R. Johanan: [He has not discharged his duty] because he has not conformed to [the practice of] overturning the bed.²⁶

Our Rabbis taught: We may sweep or strew²⁷ [the floors] in a house of mourning and wash dishes, cups, jugs and wine-goblets²⁸ in a house of mourning; but do not bring perfumes²⁹ or spices into a house of mourning. But this is not [correct]? For Bar Kappara taught: One should not say a benediction for [enjoying the scent of] perfumery or spices in a house of mourning, which implies that while we do not say a benediction, they may yet be taken into the house? — That presents no difficulty: the former ruling is for the house of mourning,³⁰ while the latter ruling is for the house of comforters.³¹

MISHNAH. [PROVISIONS]³² SHOULD NOT BE CONVEYED TO THE HOUSE OF MOURNING ON AN [ORNAMENTAL] TRAY,³³ SALVER,³⁴ OR FRUIT-BASKET,³⁵ BUT IN [PLAIN] BASKETS. AND THE MOURNERS BENEDICTION [IN GRACE AFTER MEALS] IS NOT SAID DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. BUT COMFORTERS MAY STAND IN A ROW AND COMFORT [THEM].³⁶ AND THE MOURNERS GIVE LEAVE OF DEPARTURE TO THE MANY [COMFORTERS]. THE BIER IS NOT SET DOWN IN THE BROADWAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK] SO AS NOT TO ENCOURAGE THE [FUNERARY] LAMENT; AND THE BIER OF WOMEN IS NEVER [SET DOWN IN THE BROAD WAY] FOR THE SAKE OF PROPRIETY.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Formerly they were wont to convey [victuals] to the house of mourning, the rich in silver and gold baskets and the poor in osier baskets of peeled willow twigs, and the poor felt shamed: they therefore instituted that all should convey [victuals] in osier baskets of peeled willow twigs out of deference to the poor.

Our Rabbis taught: Formerly, they were wont to serve drinks in a house of mourning, the rich in white glass vessels and the poor in coloured glass, and the poor felt shamed: they instituted therefore that all should serve drinks in coloured glass,³⁷ out of deference to the poor.³⁸ Formerly they were wont to uncover the face of the rich and cover the face of the poor, because their faces turned livid in years of drought and the poor felt shamed; they therefore instituted that everybody's face should be covered, out of deference for the poor.³⁸ Formerly, they were wont to bring out the rich [for burial] on a dargesh³⁹ aid the poor on a plain bier,¹ and the poor felt shamed: they instituted therefore that all should be brought out on a plain bier, out of deference for the poor. Formerly they were wont to set a perfuming-pan under [the bed of] those that died of intestinal disorders, and the living suffering from intestinal disorders felt shamed: they instituted therefore that it should be set under all [alike], out of deference to the living that suffer from intestinal disorders. Formerly they were wont to subject to [ritual] ablution all utensils that had been used by [dying] menstruants,² and the living menstruant women felt thereby shamed: they instituted therefore that they should subject utensils used by all [dying] women alike, out of deference to the living menstruants. Formerly they were wont to subject to [ritual] ablution all utensils used by those suffering from a flux.³ while dying, and the living suffering from a flux felt shamed: they therefore instituted that they should subject to ablution utensils used by all, out of deference to the living suffering from flux.⁴ Formerly the [expense of] taking the dead out [to his burial] fell harder on his near-of-kin than his death so that the dead man's near-of-kin abandoned him and fled, until at last Rabban Gamaliel came [forward] and, disregarding his own dignity, came out [to his burial] in flaxen⁵ vestments and thereafter the people followed his lead to come out [to burial] in flaxen vestments. Said R. Papa. And nowadays all the world follow the practice of [coming out] even in a paltry⁶ [shroud] that costs but a zuz.

THEY SET NOT DOWN THE BIER IN THE BROADWAY. Said R. Papa,⁷ in the case of a scholar [who died] no regard is paid to the festival [week].⁸ and much less so during Hanukkah⁹ or Purim,¹⁰ and this ruling obtains only in his presence, but away from his presence no [lament is allowed]. But that is not [correct]? For R. Kahana did make a lament for R. Zebid of Nehardea at Pum-Nahara? — Said R. Papi,¹¹ it was on the day of [receiving] the tidings [of his death] and that is deemed the same as in his presence.

Said 'Ulla: [The technical meaning of] a hesped¹² is [lamenting with striking] upon the breast, as it is written: [Tremble ye... strip you... and gird sackcloth upon your loins]. striking upon the breast.¹³ [The technical meaning of] tippuah¹⁴ is clapping one's hands [in grief], and that of killus¹⁵ is [tapping] with the foot [in mourning].

Our Rabbis taught: One who does the tapping with the foot. should not do so when wearing either sandal or boot, because of the danger.¹⁶

Said R. Johanan, As soon as the mourner nods his head,¹⁷ the comforters are no longer allowed to remain seated by him. R. Johanan said also, All are in duty bound to rise at the Presence of the Nasi,¹⁸ save a mourner, or one who feels ill. And furthermore, said R. Johanan, To all we may say¹⁹ 'be seated' save to a mourner or one who feels ill.²⁰

Said Rab Judah, as citing Rab: A mourner is forbidden to eat of his own bread on the first day [of mourning].²¹ as the All-Merciful said to Ezekiel: And eat thou not the bread of men.²² Rabbah and R. Joseph alternately provided the repast to each other.

This also said Rab Judah as reporting Rab: When a person dies in town, all the townspeople are forbidden from doing work. R. Hamnuna once came to Daru-matha;²³ he heard the sound of the funerary-bugle²⁴ [and] seeing some people carrying on their work, he said: Let the people be under the shammetha [ban]! Is there not a person dead in town? They told him that there was an Association²⁵ in the town. If so, said he to them, it is allowed you [to work]. And furthermore, Rab Judah said, as citing Rab, Whoever indulges in grief to excess over his dead will weep for another. There was a certain woman that lived in the neighbourhood of R. Huna; she had seven sons one of whom died [and] she wept for him rather excessively. R. Huna sent [word] to her: 'Act not thus'. She heeded him not [and] he sent to her: If you need my word it is well; but if not, are you anxious to make provision²⁶ for yet another? He [the next son] died and they all died. In the end he said to her, Are you fumbling with provision for yourself? And she died.

[Our Rabbis taught]:²⁷ 'Weep ye not for the dead, neither bemoan him²⁸ [that is], 'Weep not for the dead' [that is] in excess, 'neither bemoan him' — beyond measure. How is that [applied]? — Three days for weeping and seven for lamenting and thirty [to refrain] from cutting the hair and [donning] pressed clothes; hereafter, the Holy One, blessed be He, says, 'Ye are not more compassionate towards him [the departed] than I'.

Weep sore for him that goeth away.²⁸ Said Rab Judah [as reporting Rab],²⁹ that means, Weep for him who goes [to his long home] childless.³⁰ R. Joshua b. Levi would not go to [visit] a house of mourning save to that of one who had gone childless, for it is written [said he]: Weep sore for him that goeth away,³¹ for he shall return no more nor see his native country.²⁸ R. Huna said this [verse refers to] one who committed a sinful act and repeated it again. R. Huna is here adhering to his own view, as he said: 'As soon as a person has continued a sinful act and has repeated it, it has become unto him permissible'. [You say]. 'Become unto him permissible'? Can you conceive such a thing? — Say rather that it has become unto him as though it were something permissible.

Said R. Levi: A mourner [during] the first three days should look upon himself as if a sword is resting between his shoulders;³² from the third to the seventh, as if it stands in the corner facing him; thereafter as if it is moving alongside him in the [broad] market place.

with reference to a woman who died in childbirth,¹ but [that of] other women may be set down [in the roadway]. R. Eleazar says: [The rule applies] even to other women, as it is written: And there Miriam died and was buried there,² which shows that her death was close to her [place of] burial. R. Eleazar also said that Miriam also died by the Divine kiss [like Moses]: We interpret the expression 'there' [used at Miriam's death] in the same sense as that of the expression 'there' used of Moses.³ Wherefore then is it not said about her [that she died] by the mouth of the Lord?³ Because it would be unbecoming to say so.

Said R. Ammi, Wherefore is the account of Miriam's death⁴ placed next to the [laws of the] red heifer?⁵ To inform you that even as the red heifer afforded atonement [by the ritual use of its ashes], so does the death of the righteous afford atonement [for the living they have left behind].

R. Eleazar said, Wherefore is [the account of] Aaron's death closely followed by [the account of the disposal of] the priestly vestments?⁶ [To inform you] that just as the priest's vestments were [means] to effect atonement,⁷ so is the death of the righteous [conducive to procuring] atonement.

Our Rabbis taught: If one die suddenly, this is [reckoned] as being 'snatched away'; if one is ill one day and dies, that is reckoned as being hustled away; R. Hanania b. Gamaliel says, That is death by a stroke, for it is said: Son of Man, behold I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes with a pestilential stroke,⁸ and it is written [there. after], So I spoke unto the people in the morning and at even my wife died.⁹ After two days' [illness], it is a rather precipitous death.¹⁰ [After] three — it is one of reproof; [after] four — it is one of rebuff [snubbing]; [after] five is the ordinary death of all men.¹¹ (Said R. Honin: What is the text [for this]? Behold thy days are approached that thou must die.¹² 'Behold' [accounts for] one;¹³ 'thy days' accounts for two [more]; 'are approached' [gives us] two [more], which makes five. 'Behold' makes one because the word for 'one' in Greek is hen.)¹³

'If one dies [under]¹⁴ fifty years [old] — that is death by kareth;¹⁵ at fifty-two years — that is the death of Samuel of Ramah; at sixty — that is by the hand of Heaven'.¹¹ (Said Mar Zutra: What is the text [for this]? Thou shalt come to thy grave in ripe age,¹⁶ as the [numerical value of the] word for 'in ripe age' yields sixty.) 'At seventy, it is the death of the hoary head; at eighty it is the death of a vigorous [old man]. for it is written, The days of our years are three score and ten, or even by reason of strength four score years.¹⁷ Said Rabbah,¹⁸ From fifty to sixty years [of age]. that is death by kareth, and the reason why this has not been mentioned was out of deference to [the prophet] Samuel of Ramah. R. Joseph, on his attaining the age of sixty, made a festival day for the Rabbis [of the Academy] saying. 'I have just passed beyond [the limit of] kareth'. Said Abaye to him: 'Granted, Sir, that you have passed the [limit of] kareth as to years. but as to the [limit of sickening] days¹⁹ have you escaped that'? He replied: 'Nevertheless, hold on to the half'.²⁰ R. Huna's soul went into repose suddenly²¹ and the Rabbis [of the academy] were perturbed [thereat] when Zoga²² who hailed from Adiabene taught them:²³ 'What we learned applies only when one has not attained the "age of strength" [eighty] but if one has attained the "age of strength" [eighty] a sudden death is dying by the kiss'.

Raba said: [Length of] life, children and sustenance depend not on merit but [rather on] mazzal.²⁴ For [take] Rabbah and R. Hisda. Both were saintly Rabbis; one master prayed for rain and it came, the other master prayed for rain and it came. R. Hisda lived to the age of ninety-two,²⁵ Rabbah²⁶ [only] lived to the age of forty. In R. Hisda's house there were held sixty marriage feasts, at Rabbah's house there were sixty²⁷ bereavements. At R. Hisda's house there was the purest wheaten bread for dogs, and it went to waste;²⁸ at Rabbah's house there was barley bread for human beings and that not to be had. This too, Raba said: These three requests I made of Heaven; two were granted me and one was not. [I prayed for] the scholarship of R. Huna and the wealth of R. Hisda which were granted me; but the modest disposition of Rabbah son of R. Huna,²⁹ that was not granted me.

R. Se'orim, Raba's brother, while sitting at Raba's bedside³⁰ saw him [Raba] going into sleep [dying],³¹ when he [the invalid] said to his brother: 'Do tell him,³² Sir, not to torment me'. R. Se'orim replied: 'Are you, Sir, not his intimate friend?'³³ Said Raba: 'Since [my] mazzal³⁴ has been delivered [to him], he takes no heed of me'. R. Se'orim then said to the dying: 'Do, Sir, show yourself to me [in a dream]'. He did show himself and when asked: 'Did you, Sir, suffer [pain]?' He replied: 'As from the prick of the cupping instrument'.

Raba, while seated at the bedside³⁰ of R. Nahman, saw him sinking into slumber [death].³⁵ Said he to Raba: 'Tell him,³⁶ Sir, not to torment me'. Said Raba: 'Are you, Sir, not a man esteemed?'³⁷ Said [R. Nahman] to him, 'Who is esteemed, who is regarded, who is distinguished [before the Angel of Death]?' Said [Raba] to him: 'Do, Sir, show yourself to me [in a dream]'. He did show himself. [Raba] asked him: 'Did you suffer pain, Sir'? He replied: 'As [little as] the taking of a hair from the milk; and were the Holy One, blessed be He, to say to me, Go back to that world as you were, I wish it not, for the dread thereof [of death] is great'.

R. Eleazar was eating some terumah [priest's holy food] when he³⁶ showed himself to him. Said he, Am I not [in the pious act of] eating terumah and is not that designated 'holy [meat]'?³⁸ The [fatal] moment [thus] was past! R. Shesheth caught sight of him³⁶ in the market place. Quoth he: 'Do you [seize me] in the market place like a beast? Come to [the] house'! R. Ashi³⁹ caught sight of him³⁶ in the market place. Quoth he: 'Grant me thirty days' respite and I shall revise my studies, inasmuch as you say [in Heaven above]: "Happy he that cometh hither [to Heaven] bringing his learning ready with him".'⁴⁰ he came [again] on the thirtieth day; quoth he, 'What is the urgency?' He replied: R. Huna⁴¹ b. Nathan is close on your heels⁴² and, 'No sovereignty encroaches upon the sphere of another even to a hair's breadth'.

As for R. Hisda, he³⁶ could never overcome him as his mouth was never silent from [repeating] his learning by rote. So he went and settled on the cedar tree of the Schoolhouse. The tree cracked; R. Hisda stopped [and] he overcame him.

As for R. Hiyya, he³⁶ could not gain access to him. So one day he adopted the guise of a poor man and came and rapped at the gate, saying, 'Bring me out some bread'. They [others] brought out some bread to him. Said he then to R. Hiyya: 'Don't you, Sir, treat the poor kindly? Why not, Sir, [also] treat kindly this man [standing outside]?'⁴³ He [R. Hiyya] opened the door to him,⁴⁴ whereupon, showing him a fiery rod, he made him yield his soul.

(3) Deut. XXXIV, 5: So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab by the mouth of the Lord. In the passage 'there' could have been omitted, and in the above passage we have also a superfluous 'there', which suggests the Gezerah shawah, v. Glos.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 28b

MISHNAH. WOMEN MAY RAISE A WAIL DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], BUT NOT CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]; R. ISHMAEL SAYS, THOSE THAT ARE CLOSE TO THE BIER CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. ON THE DAYS OF NEW MOON, OF HANUKKAH AND OF PURIM¹ THEY MAY RAISE A WAIL AND CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. NEITHER ON THE FORMER² NOR ON THE LATTER OCCASIONS DO THEY CHANT A DIRGE. AFTER [THE DEAD] HAS BEEN INTERRED THEY NEITHER RAISE A WAIL NOR CAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. WHAT IS MEANT BY RAISING A WAIL' ['INNUIY]?³ WHEN ALL SING IN UNISON. WHAT IS MEANT BY A DIRGE [KINAH]?⁴ WHEN ONE SPEAKS⁵ AND ALL RESPOND AFTER HER, AS IT IS SAID: AND TEACH YOUR DAUGHTERS WAILING AND ONE ANOTHER [EACH] LAMENTATION [KINAH].⁶ BUT AS TO THE FUTURE [DAYS] TO COME, [THE PROPHET] SAYS: HE WILL DESTROY DEATH FOR EVER AND THE LORD GOD WILL WIPE AWAY TEARS FROM OFF ALL FACES.⁷

GEMARA. What say the women [in lament]? — Said Rab.⁸ 'Cry woe o'er him that is now departing! Cry woe o'er his wounds⁹ [and smarting]!' Raba¹⁰ said, The women of Shoken-Zeb¹¹ speak thus:

'Cry woe o'er him that is departing!

Cry woe o'er his wounds and smarting!'

Raba also said, The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

'Withdraw the bone from out the pot¹²

And the kettles¹² fill with water [hot]'.
 Raba said this also: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

'Be muffled,¹³ ye high mountains,

[Clouds] covering your head;

Of high lineage and grand ancestry

Came he that is dead’.

Also this said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Borrow [and buy] a Milesian¹⁴ robe

To dress a free-born son;

[Give it free of charge] for

Provision left he none’.¹⁵

And furthermore said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Comes hurrying and scurrying¹⁶ Tumbling aboard the ferry

And having to borrow his fare’.

Again this said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Our brothers are merchants who

At the custom houses¹⁷ are searched’.

And again said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘This death or that death [is the end of the quest];

Our bruises are the rate of interest’.

It is taught: R. Meir was wont to say: ‘[It is written], It is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting; for that is the end of all men and the living will lay it to heart.¹⁸ ["And the living will lay it to heart"], what is that? Things about death; if one makes lament, others will lament for him; if one assists at burial, others will bury him; if one bears the bier, others will bear him; if one raises [his voice]¹⁹ others will raise [their voice] for him’. Others read [the last]: ‘And he that raises not [himself with pride], others will raise him, as it is written: Glorify not thyself in the presence of the King and stand not in the place of great men; for better is it that it be said unto thee, Come up hither, than that thou shouldest be put lower in the presence of the prince.²⁰

Our Rabbis taught: When the sons of R. Ishmael died, four Elders went into his house to comfort him. R. Tarfon, R. Jose the Galilean, R. Eleazar b. ‘Azaria and R. Akiba. Said R. Tarfon to them: ‘Know ye, he is a great sage and erudite in homiletic exposition, let none of you break in while another is speaking’. Said R. Akiba: ‘And I be last!’ R. Ishmael opened²¹ [the conversation] and said: ‘His²² sins were many, his sorrowful bereavements came in close succession; he²² troubled his Masters once and a second time!’ R. Tarfon responded and said: ‘But your brethren, the whole house of Israel bewail the burning which the Lord hath kindled.²³ Is not this universal sorrow more due²⁴ now [even than there]? Why, if Nadab and Abihu who had performed but one office — as it is written: And the sons of Aaron presented the blood unto him²⁵ . . . were thus [universally mourned] — how much more clue to the sons of R. Ishmael!’ R. Jose the Galilean then responded and said: It is written: And all Israel shall make lamentation for him and bury him.²⁶ Is not more due now? Why, if Abijah Jeroboam's son who had done but one good thing — as it is written: Because in him there is found some good thing towards the Lord God of Israel,²⁶ — was mourned in such universal manner, how much more is due to the sons of Ishmael!

What was that 'good thing'? R. Zeira and R. Hanina b. Papa [gave different explanations]: one saying that he left his charge [post] and went on a festive pilgrimage [to Jerusalem]; the other saying that he removed the military guards²⁷ that his father had posted on the roads to prevent the Israelites from going on a pilgrimage [to Jerusalem].²⁸

R. Eleazar b. 'Azaria then responded and said: 'Thou shalt die in peace and with the burning of thy fathers, the former kings that were before thee, so shall they make a burning for thee.'²⁹ Is not more due now? Why, if Zedekiah King of Judah who had performed but one office in having had Jeremiah lifted from the mire,³⁰ was to be mourned thus, how much more is due to the sons of Ishmael'!

R. Akiba then responded and said: 'In that day there shall be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon'.³¹ [On this] R. Joseph said, Had we not the [Aramaic Targum] rendering of that text, I would not have known what it said there: 'In that time the mourning at Jerusalem will be as great as the lament over Ahab son of Omri whom Hadadrimmon son of Tabrimmon had slain³² and as the lament over Josiah son of Amon whom Pharaoh the Lame³³ [Necho] had slain in the valley of Megiddon.³⁴ Is not more due now? Why, if Ahab King of Israel who had done but one good thing — as it is written: And the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Arameans [and died at even]³⁵ — was lamented thus how much more is due to the sons of Ishmael'!

Said Raba to Rabbah b. Mari, It is written about Zedekiah: Thou shalt die in peace,³⁶ yet it is written [thereafter]: Moreover he [Nebuchadnezzar] put out Zedekiah's eyes?³⁷ — He replied that R. Johanan had explained it thus, [namely] that Nebuchadnezzar died in Zedekiah's lifetime.³⁸ Again said Raba to Rabbah b. Mari, it is written: Therefore, behold I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy grave in peace;³⁹ yet it is written [about him elsewhere]: And the archers shot at King Josiah,' [and the King said to his servants, Have me away for I am sore wounded;⁴⁰ And [on this last part] R. Judah citing Rab, commented: They riddled⁴¹ his body like a sieve! — This, too he replied, R. Johanan explained that the Temple had not been destroyed [as threatened] in his lifetime.

Said R. Johanan.⁴² Comforters are not permitted to say a word until the mourner opens [conversation], as it is said: So they sat down with him on the ground. . . and none spake a word unto him; for they saw that his grief was very great.⁴³ After this opened Job his mouth⁴⁴ . . . Then answered Eliphaz the Temanite.⁴⁵

Said R. Abbahu: Whence [derive we the practice] that the mourner reclines in the foremost place⁴⁶ [at the mourners' repast]? From what is said [by Job]: I chose out their way, and sat chief, and dwelt as a king it, the army, as one comforteth the mourners.⁴⁷ 'As one comforteth the mourners'? Does not that convey [rather] that he was [at the head in] comforting others? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: [Not necessarily as] it is written Yenahem, it may be rendered, 'as when one comforteth mourners'.⁴⁸

Mar Zutra said: The rule might be [derived] from here:⁴⁹ And prince⁵⁰ be he who is embittered — distraught⁵¹ among those stretched [on couches].⁵² Said R. Hama b. Hanina, Whence [is derived the practice] that a bridegroom reclines in the foremost place [at the marriage feast]? From what is said: I will rejoice in the Lord . . . for He hath clothed me with the garments of salvation . . . as a bridegroom that ministers in his diadem as a priest.⁵³ Which means that just as a priest [with whom he is compared] is at the head, so is the bridegroom [placed] at the head. And whence have we this ruling about the priest himself? — From what is taught in [a Baraitha of] the School of R. Ishmael: And thou shalt sanctify him [the priest] for he offereth the bread of thy God,⁵⁴ which means, [sanctify him] in every matter appertaining to hallowed things, to be first to begin,⁵⁵ first to say grace, first to take a fair portion.

- (12) Reading מכבא instead of מכבא as in our text (or D.S. מכבא) which means, 'Withdraw the bone from the molar tooth' which gives no sense, as the dying do not suck or gnaw a bone. It has hitherto defied all explanation. It is probably a misreading of ככבא from  or Latin cacabus a three-legged cooking pot synonymous with cucuma — קומקום — associated here with אנמיכי =  (V. Shab. 41a) meaning: He's dead, he needs no broth; fill now the pots and kettles with hot water to wash the dead instead.

- (47) Job XXIX, 25. Possibly R. Abbahu and Mar Zutra (mentioned next) read into the terms 'chief' and 'king' the popular, familiar usage of these terms in Latin and Greek, by which they designated the person presiding over the toasts at the end of a feast, the rex convivii, basileus, or symposiarch. The following citation from Sem. XIV, (end), will make it clear: 'Ten cups (toasts) they drink in the house of mourning; two before the meal, five during the meal and three after the meal (namely) one for the benediction of the mourners, one for comforting the mourners and one (in reference) to acts of loving-kindness (the merits of the deceased; the bearers of the biers and the orators at the funeral; cf. Sot. 14a). Then they added more cups — one (toast) for the "chief of the synagogue", one for the "administrator of the synagogue" and one to (the memory of) Rabban Gamaliel. But when the Beth din saw that some were coming away drunk they issued an inhibition (on the innovation) and made them go back to the old practice'. For considerable divergencies v. Keth. 8b. Cf. Ber. 46b. In J. Ber. III, 1 it is stated that the cup for Rabban Gamaliel had been introduced after his death. Seemingly it was introduced to commemorate his great social reform in directing the simplification of funerals. Cf. supra 27b, p. 177.
- (48) Which is the equivalent of the passive 'as when mourners are being comforted'. For other instances of this use of the third person singular in the passive sense v. Gen. XLVIII, 1-2 (someone told Joseph, one told Jacob). Cf. Gesenius, Hebrew Grammar, 144, 3a. Or, it may be pointed ינחם = as when 'it being comforted', i.e., when comfort is being tendered to mourners.
- (49) Amos VI, 7. The rendering is here adapted to the requirements of the exposition. The prophet there threatens: Therefore now shall they (the callous revellers) go captive at the head of captives and the revelry (מרוצה) of them that lay (סרוחים) stretching (on banqueting couches) shall pass away (סר). It is the three words, וסר מרוצה סרוחים, in the second half of the sentence that are being strained to yield the sense required by Mar Zutra.
- (50) וסר (and shall pass away) = ושר (and prince be).
- (51) מרוצה is divided into מר (bitter) and צה (moved, perturbed, distraught). Cf. Rashi on the parallel passage Keth. 69b. The term מרוצה denotes solemn feasting, particularly a funerary repast, as seems clear from Jer. XVI, 5-8. Cf. Ar. Compl., a.v. Also, Kimhi on Jer. l.c. and on Amos, l.c.

like the rigging¹ at the edge of the mast.² R. Johanan said, like the top-sail³ at the edge of the mast.

R. Levi b. Hitha said: One bidding farewell to the dead should not say unto him 'Go unto peace', but 'Go in peace'; one bidding farewell to the living [friend] should not say to him 'Go in peace'. but 'Go unto peace'. One bidding farewell to the dead should not say to him, 'Go unto peace', because it is said [unto Abraham]: But thou shalt go to thy fathers in Peace,' thou shalt be buried.⁴ One bidding farewell to the living [friend]⁵ should not say to him, 'Go in peace', but 'Go unto peace', because there was David [who] said to Absalom, 'Go in peace,⁶ and he went and was hanged.⁷ Whereas, Jethro said to Moses, 'Go unto peace,⁸ [and] he went and succeeded.

And, said R. Hiyya b. Ashi as citing Rab, said: The disciples of the Sages have no rest even in the world to come, as it is said: They go from strength to strength, every one of them appeareth before God in Zion.

(1) So Rashi here (which is not of Rashi's authorship) and on Ber. 8b. In this naval simile we need not be surprised to find the terms used to be of Greek origin, just as we have many naval terms in English of Dutch origin. צפורי in the sense of 'rigging' is seemingly the Greek  = cord, rope, especially a ship's cable. The term may mean the 'top-sail',  Latin, siparum and supparum, which is defined by Festus as, Velum Minus in navi ut acation (acatium) majus; (v. Lewis and Short, Lat. Dict. s.v.).

(2) וושט, connected by Rashi with תורן (a mast) is the Greek **.

(3) פטורי is the Greek  which means, anything suspended aloft or fluttering in mid-air, a top-mast or pennant.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THE COLOURS OF LEPROSY SIGNS¹ ARE TWO² WHICH, IN FACT, ARE³ FOUR.⁴ THE BRIGHT SPOT IS BRIGHT WHITE LIKE SNOW; SECONDARY TO IT IS THE LEPROSY SIGN AS WHITE AS THE LIME OF THE TEMPLE.⁵ THE RISING IS AS WHITE AS THE SKIN OF AN EGG; SECONDARY TO IT IS THE LEPROSY SIGN AS WHITE AS WOOL.⁶ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: THE RISING IS AS WHITE AS WHITE WOOL AND SECONDARY TO IT IS THE LEPROSY SIGN AS WHITE AS THE SKIN OF AN EGG.⁷

MISHNAH 2. THE VARIEGATION⁸ OF THE SNOW-LIKE WHITENESS⁹ IS LIKE WINE MINGLED WITH SNOW.¹⁰ THE VARIEGATION⁸ OF THE LIME-LIKE WHITENESS IS LIKE BLOOD¹¹ MINGLED WITH MILK.¹² SO R. ISHMAEL. R. AKIBA RULED: THE REDDISHNESS¹³ IN EITHER OF THEM IS LIKE WINE MINGLED WITH WATER, ONLY THAT IN THE SNOW-LIKE WHITENESS THE COLOUR IS BRIGHT WHILE IN THAT OF LIME-LIKE WHITENESS IT IS DULLER.

MISHNAH 3. THESE¹⁴ FOUR COLOURS¹⁵ ARE COMBINED WITH EACH OTHER¹⁶ IN RESPECT OF DECLARING A SIGN FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS, OF CERTIFYING¹⁷ IT AS UNCLEAR, OR OF CAUSING IT TO BE SHUT UP.¹⁸ 'OF CAUSING IT TO BE SHUT UP',¹⁹ WHEN IT²⁰ CONTINUED UNCHANGED²¹ BY THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK;²² 'OF DECLARING A SIGN FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS', WHEN IT²⁰ CONTINUED UNCHANGED²¹ BY THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK;²³ 'OF CERTIFYING IT AS UNCLEAR', WHEN IT²⁰ HAD PRODUCED QUICK FLESH OR WHITE HAIR IN THE BEGINNING,²⁴ BY THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK,²⁵ BY THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK²⁵ OR AFTER IT HAD BEEN DECLARED FREE [FROM UNCLEANNESS]. [OR AGAIN] 'OF CERTIFYING IT AS UNCLEAR', WHEN A SPREADING HAS ARISEN IN IT BY THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK,²⁵ BY THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK,²⁶ OR AFTER IT HAD BEEN DECLARED FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS; [ALSO] 'OF CERTIFYING IT AS UNCLEAR', WHEN ALL ONE'S SKIN TURNED WHITE AFTER THE SIGN²⁶ HAD BEEN DECLARED FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS; OF DECLARING A SIGN FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS' ALSO, WHEN ALL THE SKIN TURNED WHITE AFTER THE SIGN HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAR OR AFTER IT HAD BEEN SHUT UP. THESE²⁷ ARE THE COLOURS OF LEPROSY SIGNS WHEREON DEPEND ALL DECISIONS CONCERNING LEPROSY SIGNS.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. R. HANINA, THE SEGAN²⁹ OF THE PRIESTS, RULED: THE COLOURS OF LEPROSY SIGNS ARE SIXTEEN.³⁰ R. DOSA B. HARKINAS RULED: THE COLOURS OF LEPROSY SIGNS ARE THIRTY-SIX.³¹ AKABIAH B. MAHALALEEL RULED SEVENTY-TWO.³² R. HANINA, THE SEGAN OF THE PRIESTS, RULED: LEPROSY SIGNS MAY NOT BE INSPECTED FOR THE FIRST TIME ON A SUNDAY,³³ SINCE THE END OF THAT WEEK³⁴ WILL FALL ON THE SABBATH;³⁵ NOR ON A MONDAY, SINCE THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK³⁶ WILL FALL ON THE SABBATH; NOR ON A TUESDAY, IN THE CASE OF HOUSES, SINCE THE END OF THE THIRD WEEK WILL FALL ON THE SABBATH.³⁷ R. AKIBA RULED: THEY MAY BE INSPECTED AT ALL TIMES, AND IF THE TIME FOR THE SECOND INSPECTION³⁸ FALLS ON A SABBATH IT IS POSTPONED TO THE SUNDAY; AND THIS PROCEDURE LEADS SOMETIMES TO A RELAXATION OF THE LAW³⁹ AND SOMETIMES TO RESTRICTIONS.³⁹

MISHNAH 5. HOW DOES IT⁴⁰ LEAD TO A RELAXATION OF THE LAW? IF THE LEPROSY SIGN HAD⁴¹ WHITE HAIRS⁴² AND⁴³ THESE WHITE HAIRS DISAPPEARED;⁴⁴ IF THEY WERE WHITE⁴² AND THEN⁴³ TURNED BLACK; IF ONE HAIR WAS WHITE AND THE OTHER BLACK, AND⁴³ BOTH TURNED BLACK;⁴⁵ IF THEY WERE LONG⁴² AND

THEN⁴³ THEY BECAME SHORT;⁴⁴ IF⁴¹ ONE WAS LONG AND THE OTHER SHORT AND⁴³ BOTH BECAME SHORT;⁴⁵ IF⁴¹ A BOIL ADJOINED BOTH HAIRS⁴⁶ OR ONE OF THEM;⁴⁶ IF THE BOIL ENCOMPASSED⁴³ BOTH HAIRS OR ONE OF THEM,⁴⁷ OR IF THEY WERE⁴³ SEPARATED FROM EACH OTHER BY A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, OR THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER;⁴⁷ IF IT HAD⁴¹ QUICK FLESH⁴² AND THIS QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED;⁴³ IF IT WAS⁴³ FOUR SIDED⁴⁸ AND THEN⁴¹ BECAME ROUND⁴⁹ OR LONG;⁴⁹ IF IT⁵⁰ WAS⁴¹ ENCOMPASSED⁵¹ AND THEN⁴¹ SHIFTED TO THE SIDE; IF IT WAS⁴¹ UNITED⁵² AND THEN⁴³ IT WAS DISPERSED, OR A BOIL APPEARED⁴³ AND MADE ITS WAY INTO IT;⁵⁰ IF IT WAS⁴³ ENCOMPASSED, PARTED OR LESSENED BY A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER; IF IT HAD⁴¹ A SPREADING AND THEN⁴³ THE SPREADING DISAPPEARED; IF THE FIRST SIGN ITSELF DISAPPEARED OR WAS SO LESSENED THAT BOTH⁵³ ARE LESS THAN THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN; OR IF A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER, FORMED A DIVISION BETWEEN THE FIRST SIGN AND THE SPREADING-BEHOLD THESE LEAD TO A RELAXATION OF THE LAW.

MISHNAH 6. HOW DOES IT⁵⁴ LEAD TO RESTRICTIONS? IF THE LEPROSY SIGN HAD⁵⁵ NO WHITE HAIRS⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ WHITE HAIRS APPEARED;⁵⁸ IF THEY WERE⁵⁸ BLACK⁵⁴ AND THEN⁵⁷ TURNED WHITE;⁵⁸ IF⁵⁵ ONE HAIR WAS BLACK AND THE OTHER WHITE AND BOTH TURNED⁵⁷ WHITE;⁵⁸ IF THEY WERE⁵⁵ SHORT⁵⁴ AND THEY BECAME⁵⁷ LONG;⁵⁸ IF⁵⁵ ONE WAS SHORT AND THE OTHER LONG AND BOTH BECAME⁵⁷ LONG;⁵⁸ IF⁵⁵ A BOIL ADJOINED BOTH HAIRS OR ONE OF THEM,⁵⁶ IF⁵⁵ A BOIL ENCOMPASSED BOTH HAIRS OR ONE OF THEM⁵⁶ OR IF⁵⁵ THEY WERE PARTED FROM ONE ANOTHER BY A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, OR THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER, AND THEN⁵⁷ THEY DISAPPEARED;⁵⁸ IF⁵⁵ IT HAD NO QUICK FLESH⁵⁶ AND THEN QUICK FLESH APPEARED;⁵⁸ IF IT WAS⁵⁵ ROUND OR LONG⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ BECAME FOUR SIDED;⁵⁸ IF IT WAS⁵⁴ AT THE SIDE⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ IT BECAME ENCOMPASSED;⁵⁸ IF IT WAS⁵⁵ DISPERSED⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ IT BECAME UNITED⁵⁸ OR A BOIL APPEARED⁵⁷ AND MADE ITS WAY INTO IT;⁵⁸ IF IT WAS⁵⁵ ENCOMPASSED,⁵⁸ PARTED OR LESSENED BY A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING OR A TETTER,⁵⁸ AND THEN⁵⁷ THEY DISAPPEARED;⁵⁸ IF⁵⁵ IT HAD NO SPREADING⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ A SPREADING APPEARED;⁵⁸ IF A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER FORMED A DIVISION⁵⁵ BETWEEN THE FIRST SIGN AND THE SPREADING⁵⁶ AND THEN⁵⁷ THEY DISAPPEARED⁵⁸ — BEHOLD THESE LEAD TO RESTRICTIONS.

- (23) If, for instance, a bright spot of the size of two split beans was shut up and found at the end of the second week to have the colour of the bright spot extending over an area of the size of one split bean and that of rising over the other, the two colours are regarded as combined and the sign is deemed to be unchanged.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THE BRIGHT SPOT IN A GERMAN¹ APPEARS AS DULL WHITE,² AND THE DULL WHITE ONE IN AN ETHIOPIAN³ APPEARS AS BRIGHT WHITE.⁴ R. ISHMAEL⁵ STATED: THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL⁶ (MAY I BE AN ATONEMENT FOR THEM!)⁷ ARE LIKE BOXWOOD, NEITHER BLACK NOR WHITE BUT OF AN INTERMEDIATE SHADE'.⁸ R. AKIBA STATED: PAINTERS HAVE MATERIALS WHEREWITH THEY PORTRAY FIGURES IN BLACK, IN WHITE, AND IN AN INTERMEDIATE SHADE; LET, THEREFORE, A PAINT OF AN INTERMEDIATE SHADE BE BROUGHT AND APPLIED ROUND THE LEPROSY SIGN FROM WITHOUT, AND IT WILL THEN APPEAR AS ON A SKIN OF INTERMEDIATE SHADE. R. JUDAH RULED: IN DETERMINING THE COLOURS OF LEPROSY SIGNS THE LAW IS TO BE RELAXED BUT NEVER TO BE RESTRICTED; LET, THEREFORE, THE LEPROSY SIGN OF THE GERMAN BE INSPECTED ON THE COLOUR OF HIS OWN BODY⁹ SO THAT¹⁰ THE LAW IS THEREBY RELAXED, AND LET THAT OF THE ETHIOPIAN BE INSPECTED AS IF IT WERE ON THE INTERMEDIATE SHADE¹¹ SO THAT¹⁰ THE LAW IS THEREBY ALSO RELAXED. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, RULED: THE ONE AS WELL AS THE OTHER IS TO BE TREATED AS IF THE LEPROSY SIGN WERE ON THE INTERMEDIATE SHADE.¹²

MISHNAH 2. LEPROSY SIGNS MAY NOT BE INSPECTED IN THE EARLY MORNING OR IN THE EVENING, NOR WITHIN A HOUSE, NOR ON A CLOUDY DAY, BECAUSE THEN THE DULL WHITE APPEARS LIKE BRIGHT WHITE; NOR MAY IT BE INSPECTED AT NOON, BECAUSE THEN THE BRIGHT WHITE APPEARS LIKE DULL WHITE. WHEN ARE THEY TO BE INSPECTED? DURING THE THIRD, FOURTH, FIFTH,¹³ EIGHTH OR NINTH HOUR;¹⁴ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: DURING THE FOURTH, FIFTH, EIGHTH OR NINTH HOUR.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. A PRIEST WHO IS BLIND IN ONE EYE OR THE LIGHT OF WHOSE EYES IS DIM MAY NOT INSPECT LEPROSY SIGNS; FOR IT IS WRITTEN, AS FAR AS APPEARETH IN THE EYES OF THE PRIEST.¹⁵ IN A DARK HOUSE¹⁶ ONE MAY NOT OPEN UP WINDOWS IN ORDER TO INSPECT ITS LEPROSY SIGN.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. IN WHAT POSTURE IS A LEPROSY SIGN TO BE INSPECTED? A MAN IS INSPECTED IN THE POSTURE OF ONE THAT HOES¹⁸ AND ONE THAT GATHERS OLIVES;¹⁸ AND A WOMAN IN THAT OF ONE WHO ROLLS OUT DOUGH¹⁹ AND²⁰ ONE WHO SUCKLES HER CHILD, AND ONE THAT WEAVES AT AN UPRIGHT LOOM²¹ IF THE LEPROSY SIGN WAS WITHIN THE RIGHT ARMPIT. R. JUDAH RULED: ALSO IN THE POSTURE OF ONE THAT SPINS FLAX²² IF IT WAS WITHIN THE LEFT ARMPIT. THE SAME POSTURE THAT A MAN ADOPTS¹⁶ IN THE CASE OF HIS LEPROSY SIGN HE IS ALSO TO ADOPT IN THE CASE OF THE CUTTING OFF OF HIS HAIR.²³

MISHNAH 5. A MAN MAY EXAMINE ALL LEPROSY SIGNS²⁴ EXCEPT HIS OWN. R. MEIR RULED: NOT EVEN THE LEPROSY SIGNS OF HIS RELATIVES.²⁵ A MAN²⁶ MAY ANNUL ALL VOWS EXCEPT HIS OWN. R. JUDAH RULED: NOT EVEN THOSE VOWS OF HIS WIFE²⁷ THAT AFFECT RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN HER AND OTHERS.²⁸ A MAN MAY EXAMINE ALL FIRSTLINGS²⁹ EXCEPT HIS OWN FIRSTLINGS.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. ALL CAN CONTRACT LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS, EXCEPT A HEATHEN AND A RESIDENT ALIEN.¹ ALL² ARE QUALIFIED TO INSPECT LEPROSY SIGNS, BUT ONLY A PRIEST³ MAY DECLARE THEM UNCLEAN OR CLEAN. HE⁴ IS TOLD,⁵ 'SAY: UNCLEAN', AND HE REPEATS 'UNCLEAN', OR SAY: CLEAN, AND HE REPEATS 'CLEAN'. TWO LEPROSY SIGNS MAY NOT BE INSPECTED SIMULTANEOUSLY WHETHER IN ONE MAN OR IN TWO MEN; BUT THE ONE MUST BE INSPECTED FIRST AND SHUT UP, CERTIFIED UNCLEAN OR PRONOUNCED CLEAN, AND THEN THE SECOND IS INSPECTED. ONE WHO IS SHUT UP⁶ MAY NOT⁷ BE SHUT UP AGAIN⁸ NOR MAY ONE WHO IS CERTIFIED UNCLEAN⁶ BE CERTIFIED⁷ UNCLEAN AGAIN.⁸ ONE WHO IS CERTIFIED UNCLEAN⁶ MAY NOT⁷ BE SHUT UP⁸ NOR MAY ONE WHO IS SHUT UP⁶ BE CERTIFIED⁷ UNCLEAN.⁸ BUT IN THE BEGINNING,⁹ OR AT THE END OF A WEEK,¹⁰ HE¹¹ MAY SHUT UP ON ACCOUNT OF THE ONE LEPROSY SIGN AND SHUT UP ON ACCOUNT OF ANOTHER ONE ALSO; THE MAN¹¹ WHO CERTIFIES ONE SIGN UNCLEAN MAY ALSO CERTIFY THE OTHER UNCLEAN; HE MAY SHUT UP THE ONE SIGN AND DECLARE THE OTHER CLEAN, OR CERTIFY THE ONE UNCLEAN AND DECLARE THE OTHER CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. A BRIDEGROOM ON WHOM A LEPROSY SIGN HAS APPEARED IS GRANTED EXEMPTION FROM INSPECTION DURING THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE MARRIAGE FEAST IN RESPECT OF HIS OWN PERSON; AND ALSO IN RESPECT OF HIS HOUSE AND HIS GARMENT.¹² SIMILARLY DURING A FESTIVAL, ONE¹³ IS GRANTED EXEMPTION FROM INSPECTION DURING ALL THE DAYS OF THE FESTIVAL.

MISHNAH 3. THE SKIN OF THE FLESH¹⁴ BECOMES UNCLEAR FOR TWO WEEKS¹⁵ AND BY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING THREE TOKENS:¹⁶ BY WHITE HAIR OR BY QUICK FLESH OR BY A SPREADING. 'BY WHITE HAIR OR BY QUICK FLESH IN THE BEGINNING,¹⁷ AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK,¹⁸ AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK,¹⁸ OR AFTER IT¹⁹ HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN. MISHNAH 4. A BOIL OR A BURNING BECOMES UNCLEAR FOR ONE WEEK²¹ AND BY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING TWO TOKENS:¹⁶ BY WHITE HAIR OR BY A SPREADING. BY WHITE HAIR, IN THE BEGINNING,¹⁷ BY THE END OF THE WEEK,¹⁸ OR AFTER IT¹⁹ HAS BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN. 'OR BY A SPREADING. AT THE END OF THE WEEK,¹⁸ OR AFTER IT¹⁹ HAD BEEN DECLARED CLEAN. THEY BECOME UNCLEAR FOR A WEEK WHICH REPRESENTS SEVEN DAYS.

MISHNAH 5. SCALLS BECOME UNCLEAR FOR TWO WEEKS²² AND BY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING TWO TOKENS:²³ BY YELLOW THIN HAIR OR BY A SPREADING. Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE WHITE HAIR THAT DO NOT APPLY TO THE SPREADING, WHILE OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE SPREADING AND DO NOT APPLY TO THE WHITE HAIR. WHITE HAIR NAMELY CAUSES UNCLEANNESS AT THE BEGINNING,¹ IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS WHATEVER THE STATE OF ITS WHITENESS,² AND IT IS NEVER A TOKEN OF CLEANNES.³ 'OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE SPREADING', FOR THE SPREADING CAUSES UNCLEANNESS HOWEVER SMALL ITS EXTENT,⁴ IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS IN ALL FORMS OF LEPROSY SIGNS⁵ AND ALSO WHERE IT IS OUTSIDE THE SIGN,⁶ WHICH

RESTRICTIONS DO NOT APPLY TO THE WHITE HAIR.⁷

MISHNAH 2. CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE QUICK FLESH THAT DO NOT APPLY TO THE SPREADING, WHILE OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE SPREADING AND DO NOT APPLY TO THE QUICK FLESH. QUICK FLESH NAMELY CAUSES UNCLEANNESS AT THE BEGINNING,¹ IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS WHATEVER ITS COLOUR,⁸ AND IT IS NEVER A TOKEN OF CLEANNESS.³ 'OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO THE SPREADING', FOR THE SPREADING CAUSES UNCLEANNESS HOWEVER SMALL ITS EXTENT, IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS IN ALL FORMS OF LEPROSY SIGNS⁹ AND ALSO WHERE IT IS OUTSIDE THE LEPROSY SIGN,¹⁰ WHICH RESTRICTIONS DO NOT APPLY TO THE QUICK FLESH.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO WHITE HAIR THAT DO NOT APPLY TO THE QUICK FLESH, WHILE OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO QUICK FLESH AND NOT TO WHITE HAIR. WHITE HAIR NAMELY CAUSES UNCLEANNESS IN A BOIL AND IN A BURNING, WHETHER GROWING TOGETHER OR DISPERSED,¹² AND WHETHER ENCOMPASSED¹³ OR UNENCOMPASSED. 'OTHER RESTRICTIONS APPLY TO QUICK FLESH', FOR QUICK FLESH CAUSES UNCLEANNESS IN SCALP BALDNESS AND IN FOREHEAD BALDNESS, WHETHER IT WAS TURNED¹⁴ OR WAS NOT TURNED,¹⁵ IT¹⁶ HINDERS THE CLEANNESS OF ONE WHO IS ALL TURNED WHITE,¹⁷ AND CAUSES UNCLEANNESS WHATEVER ITS COLOUR, WHICH RESTRICTIONS DO NOT APPLY TO WHITE HAIR.¹¹

MISHNAH 4. IF THE TWO HAIRS¹⁸ WERE BLACK AT THE ROOT AND WHITE AT THE TIP THE MAN IS CLEAN. IF THEY WERE WHITE AT THE ROOT AND BLACK AT THE TIP THE MAN IS UNCLEAN. HOW MUCH OF WHITENESS MUST THERE BE?¹⁹ R. MEIR RULED: ANY. R. SIMEON RULED: ENOUGH TO BE CUT WITH A PAIR OF SCISSORS. IF IT WAS SINGLE AT THE ROOT BUT SPLIT AT THE TIP, HAVING THE APPEARANCE OF TWO HAIRS, THE MAN IS CLEAN. IF A BRIGHT SPOT HAD [TWO] WHITE HAIRS AND²⁰ BLACK HAIR THE MAN IS UNCLEAN. THERE IS NO NEED TO CONSIDER THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE PLACE OF THE BLACK HAIR²¹ LESSENED THE SPACE OF THE BRIGHT SPOT,²² SINCE THE FORMER²³ IS OF NO CONSEQUENCE.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF A BRIGHT SPOT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND A STREAK EXTENDED FROM IT, THE LATTER, PROVIDED IT WAS TWO HAIRS IN BREADTH, SUBJECTS IT²⁵ TO THE RESTRICTIONS IN RESPECT OF WHITE HAIR AND SPREADING,²⁶ BUT NOT TO THAT IN RESPECT OF ITS QUICK FLESH.²⁷ IF THERE WERE TWO BRIGHT SPOTS AND A STREAK EXTENDED FROM ONE TO THE OTHER, PROVIDED IT WAS TWO HAIRS IN BREADTH, IT COMBINES THEM;²⁸ OTHERWISE IT DOES NOT COMBINE THEM.

MISHNAH 6. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN HAD WITHIN IT QUICK FLESH OF THE SIZE OF A LENTIL AND THERE WAS WHITE HAIR WITHIN THE QUICK FLESH, IF THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED²⁹ THE SPOT BECOMES UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE WHITE HAIR; IF THE WHITE HAIR DISAPPEARED³⁰ IT BE COMES UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE QUICK FLESH. R. SIMEON RULES THAT³¹ IT IS CLEAN, SINCE IT WAS NOT THE BRIGHT SPOT³² THAT CAUSED THE HAIR TO TURN WHITE.³³ IF A BRIGHT SPOT TOGETHER WITH THE QUICK FLESH IN IT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND THERE WAS WHITE HAIR WITHIN THE SPOT, IF THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED³⁴ THE SPOT IS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE WHITE HAIR; IF THE WHITE HAIR DISAPPEARED IT IS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE (QUICK FLESH. R. SIMEON RULES THAT³⁴ T³⁵ IS CLEAN, SINCE IT WAS NOT A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN THAT CAUSED THE HAIR TO TURN WHITE. HE AGREES, HOWEVER, THAT IT IS UNCLEAN IF IT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN³⁶ WHERE THE WHITE HAIR WAS.

MISHNAH 7. WITH REGARD TO A BRIGHT SPOT³⁷ WITHIN WHICH WAS³⁸ QUICK FLESH AND A SPREADING,³⁹ IF THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED IT IS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE SPREADING; IF THE SPREADING DISAPPEARED IT IS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE QUICK FLESH. SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF WHITE HAIR AND A SPREADING.⁴⁰ IF A LEPROSY SIGN³⁷ DISAPPEARED⁴¹ AND APPEARED AGAIN AT THE END OF THE WEEK,⁴² IT IS REGARDED AS THOUGH IT HAD REMAINED AS IT WAS.⁴³ IF IT REAPPEARED AFTER IT⁴⁴ HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN, IT MUST BE INSPECTED AS A NEW ONE.⁴⁵ IF IT HAD BEEN BRIGHT WHITE BUT WAS NOW DULL WHITE, OR IF IT HAD BEEN DULL WHITE BUT WAS NOW BRIGHT WHITE,³⁴ T⁴⁶ IS REGARDED AS THOUGH IT HAD REMAINED AS IT WAS, PROVIDED THAT IT DOES NOT BECOME LESS WHITE THAN THE FOUR PRINCIPAL COLOURS.⁴⁷ IF IT⁴⁸ CONTRACTED AND THEN SPREAD, OR IF IT SPREAD⁴⁹ AND THEN CONTRACTED, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN,⁵⁰ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.⁵¹

MISHNAH 8. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN⁵² SPREAD TO THE EXTENT OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN, WHILE OF THE ORIGINAL SPOT THERE DISAPPEARED AS MUCH AS HALF A SPLIT BEAN, R. AKIBA RULED: IT MUST BE INSPECTED AS A NEW ONE,⁵³ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 9. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN SPREAD TO THE EXTENT OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN AND A LITTLE MORE, WHILE AS MUCH AS HALF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN DISAPPEARED FROM THE ORIGINAL SPOT, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN,⁵⁵ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.⁵⁶ IF THE BRIGHT SPOT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND IT SPREAD TO THE EXTENT OF A SPLIT BEAN AND A LITTLE MORE, WHILE THE ORIGINAL SPOT DISAPPEARED, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IS IT UNCLEAN,⁵⁷ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT SHOULD BE INSPECTED AS A NEW ONE.⁵⁸

MISHNAH 10. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN SPREAD⁵⁹ TO THE EXTENT OF A SPLIT BEAN, AND IN THE SPREADING THERE APPEARED QUICK FLESH OR WHITE HAIR, WHILE THE ORIGINAL SPOT DISAPPEARED, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN,⁶⁰ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT MUST BE INSPECTED AS A NEW ONE.⁶¹ IF IN A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN NOTHING ELSE⁶² APPEARED, AND THEN THERE APPEARED⁶³ A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN AND IN IT THERE GREW ONE HAIR, SUCH A SPOT MUST BE SHUT UP. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN HAD ONE HAIR AND THEN THERE APPEARED⁶³ ANOTHER SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN WHICH ALSO HAD ONE HAIR, SUCH A SPOT MUST BE SHUT UP.⁶⁴ IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN HAD TWO HAIRS AND ANOTHER SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN APPEARED⁶³ WITH ONE HAIR,⁶⁵ SUCH A SPOT MUST BE SHUT UP.⁶⁶

MISHNAH 11. IF IN A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN THERE WAS NOTHING ELSE, AND THEN THERE APPEARED⁶³ A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A SPLIT BEAN HAVING TWO HAIRS, SUCH MUST BE CERTIFIED UNCLEAN,⁶⁷ BECAUSE IT HAS BEEN LAID DOWN: IF THE BRIGHT SPOT PRECEDED THE WHITE HAIR THE MAN IS UNCLEAN; IF THE WHITE HAIR PRECEDED THE BRIGHT SPOT HE IS CLEAN; AND IF THIS IS A MATTER OF DOUBT HE IS UNCLEAN. R. JOSHUA REGARDS THIS AS UNSOLVABLE.⁶⁸

- (1) When a leprosy sign is first inspected.
 - (2) Even if it is dimmer than any of the four principal colours.
 - (3) A spreading, however, may be one when it extended over the whole body.
 - (4) White hair is subject to a minimum of two hairs of a prescribed length.
 - (5) Even in those of garments and houses.
 - (6) White hair, however, is no token of uncleanness unless it appeared within the leprosy sign.
 - (7) Cf. prev. nn.
 - (8) While the spreading causes uncleanness only if it has one of the four principal colours.
 - (9) Quick flesh, however, causes uncleanness only if it is of the prescribed size and only on skin, flesh, scalp baldness and forehead baldness.
 - (10) But quick flesh is a cause of uncleanness only if it appears within the leprosy sign.
 - (11) Cf. prev. nn.
 - (12) One hair at one side of the leprosy sign and another at the other side.
 - (13) By the leprosy sign.
 - (14) Cf. Lev. XIII, 13. V. foll. n.
 - (15) Sc. whether the quick flesh appeared after the bright spot or whether the latter appeared after the former. In the case of white hair if it preceded the bright spot no uncleanness is caused.
 - (16) If its size is no less than that of a lentil.
 - (17) Cf. Ibid. XIII, 12ff. White hair in such a case causes no uncleanness.
 - (18) In a leprosy sign.
 - (19) On the hairs to be regarded as turned white.
 - (20) Var. lec. 'or'.
 - (21) According to var. lec. (in previous note) add 'or the white hair'.
 - (22) In consequence of which the bright spot may have been reduced to less than the prescribed minimum of a split bean.
 - (23) The hair follicles whose size is almost imperceptible.
 - (24) Lit., 'substance', 'reality'.
 - (25) The bright spot.
 - (26) If either of these signs appear in the streak the spot is deemed unclean.
 - (27) Which must be encompassed by the bright spot.
 - (28) The two bright spots. Both are in all respects regarded as one unit to make up the prescribed minimum of a split bean and to combine the two hairs if one grew on the one and the other on the other side of the spot.
 - (29) The leprosy sign having spread over its place.
 - (30) Having fallen off or turned black.
 - (31) In the first case.
 - (32) But the quick flesh from which it grew.
 - (33) The first Tanna, however, maintains that in this respect the quick flesh is regarded as a part of the bright spot.
 - (34) The leprosy sign having spread over its place.
 - (35) V. p. 247, n. 12.
 - (36) Without the addition of the quick flesh.
 - (37) Of the prescribed size of a split bean that had been shut up for a week.
 - (38) At the end of the week (cf. prev. n.).
 - (39) In consequence of which it was certified unclean.
 - (40) If one disappeared it is still unclean on account of the other that remained.
 - (41) During the week.
 - (42) Or if it disappeared at the end of the week on the day of inspection and appeared again later on the same day.
 - (43) And is to be shut up again for a second week. It is not to be treated as a new leprosy sign to be possibly shut up for two weeks.
 - (44) Having been diminished in size.
 - (45) Lit., 'as at the beginning'. Var lec., 'in the beginning'.
 - (46) Since its size still conformed to the minimum prescribed.
 - (47) Enumerated supra I, 1. If It did become less white it must be pronounced clean.

- (48) A leprosy sign of the size of a split bean.
- (49) At the end of the first or the second week.
- (50) In his opinion the spreading, in either case, is a mark of uncleanness.
- (51) The spreading, they maintain, may be disregarded, since the size of the leprosy sign is now the same as it was originally.
- (52) That was shut up.
- (53) Because, of the original, less than the prescribed minimum remained, while the remainder together with the extension conform to the prescribed minimum.
- (54) Since the original spot had been reduced to half the prescribed minimum it must be regarded as clean. Its clean remainder, therefore, cannot be added to the extension to constitute a new leprosy sign.
- (55) Because the spreading exceeded the size of half a split bean.
- (56) Since, owing to the disappearance of half of the original spot, the new one (only slightly bigger than half a split bean) is less than the prescribed minimum.
- (57) Since the spot is now bigger than it was originally.
- (58) Because the original spot had entirely disappeared.
- (59) After it had been pronounced clean.
- (60) The spreading taking the place of the original spot.
- (61) Hence two sacrifices will have to be brought, one for each spot.
- (62) Neither quick flesh nor white hair.
- (63) At its side.
- (64) Since the first hair preceded the second half of the spot.
- (65) And much more so if it had no hair at all.
- (66) Since the full sized spot did not precede the first two hairs.
- (67) Provided that it is known that the second half of the spot preceded the two hairs.
- (68) Aliter: Doubtful; alter: Demurred; aliter: Rejected, v. Nid. 19b.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 5

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAR ON ACCOUNT OF WHITE HAIR, AND THE WHITE HAIR DISAPPEARED AND OTHER WHITE HAIR APPEARED, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF QUICK FLESH³ AND A SPREADING,³ WHETHER THIS⁴ OCCURRED IN THE BEGINNING,⁵ AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK, OR AFTER THE MAN HAD BEEN RELEASED FROM UNCLEARNESS, HE⁶ IS REGARDED AS BEING IN THE SAME POSITION AS BEFORE.⁷ IF HE HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAR ON ACCOUNT OF QUICK FLESH, AND THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED AND OTHER QUICK FLESH APPEARED, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF WHITE HAIR⁸ AND A SPREADING,⁸ WHETHER THIS⁴ OCCURRED IN THE BEGINNING,⁵ AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK, OR AFTER THE MAN HAD BEEN RELEASED FROM UNCLEARNESS, HE⁶ IS REGARDED AS BEING IN THE SAME POSITION AS BEFORE.⁷ IF HE HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAR ON ACCOUNT OF A SPREADING, AND THE SPREADING DISAPPEARED AND ANOTHER SPREADING APPEARED, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF WHITE HAIR,⁹ WHETHER THIS¹⁰ OCCURRED AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK, OR AFTER THE MAN HAD BEEN RELEASED FROM UNCLEARNESS, HE¹¹ IS IN THE SAME POSITION AS BEFORE.¹²

MISHNAH 3. DEPOSITED HAIR, AKABIAH B. MAHALALEEL HOLDS TO BE UNCLEAR. BUT THE SAGES HOLD IT TO BE CLEAN. WHAT IS 'DEPOSITED HAIR'?¹³ IF A MAN HAD A BRIGHT SPOT WITH WHITE HAIR IN IT, AND THE BRIGHT SPOT DISAPPEARED LEAVING THE WHITE HAIR IN POSITION AND THEN IT REAPPEARED AKABIAH B. MAHALALEEL HOLDS THE MAN TO BE UNCLEAR,¹⁴ BUT THE SAGES HOLD HIM TO BE CLEAN. R. AKIBA OBSERVED: IN THIS CASE I ADMIT THAT THE MAN IS CLEAN; BUT WHAT IS 'DEPOSITED HAIR'?¹⁵ IF A MAN HAD A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN WITH TWO HAIRS IN IT, AND A PART THE SIZE OF A HALF SPLIT BEAN DISAPPEARED LEAVING THE WHITE HAIR IN THE PLACE OF THE WHITE SPOT AND THEN IT REAPPEARED.¹⁶ THEY¹⁷ SAID TO HIM: AS THEY¹⁸ REJECTED THE RULING OF AKABIAH SO IS THERE NO VALIDITY IN YOUR RULING.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT IN LEPROSY SIGNS IN THE BEGINNING IS REGARDED AS CLEAN BEFORE UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED, BUT AFTER UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAR. IN WHAT MANNER? IF TWO MEN CAME TO THE PRIEST ONE HAVING A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND THE OTHER HAVING ONE OF THE SIZE OF A SELA', AND AT THE END OF THE WEEK THAT OF EACH WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SELA, AND IT IS NOT KNOWN ON WHICH OF THEM THE SPREADING HAD OCCURRED (WHETHER THIS OCCURRED WITH ONE MAN²⁰ OR WITH TWO MEN). EACH ONE IS CLEAN. R. AKIBA RULED: IF ONE MAN IS INVOLVED HE IS UNCLEAR,²¹ BUT IF TWO MEN ARE INVOLVED EACH IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. 'BUT AFTER UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAR'.²² IN WHAT MANNER? IF TWO MEN CAME TO THE PRIEST, ONE HAVING A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND THE OTHER HAVING ONE OF THE SIZE OF A SELA' AND AT THE END OF THE WEEK THAT OF EACH WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SELA' AND A LITTLE MORE, BOTH ARE UNCLEAR; AND EVEN THOUGH BOTH RESUMED THE SIZE OF A SELA' BOTH ARE UNCLEAR, AND REMAIN SO UNLESS BOTH RESUME THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN. IT IS THIS THAT WAS MEANT WHEN IT WAS LAID DOWN, 'BUT AFTER UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAR'.

(1) The last mentioned (supra IV, 11).

(2) That had spread.

(3) That appeared in the place of the white hair.

(4) The certification as unclear.

(5) When the first inspection took place.

(6) So MS.M. Var. lec., 'it'.

(7) He is unclear and there is no need again to certify his uncleanness.

(8) Appearing in place of the quick flesh.

(9) 'Quick flesh' is omitted since under certain circumstances it is a cause of cleanness.

(10) V. p. 251, n. 4.

(11) V. p. 251, n. 6.

(12) V. p. 251, n. 7.

(13) This is explained presently.

(14) As the bright spot reappeared where it was originally it is regarded as the original spot which preceded the white hair and which was certified unclear.

(15) That is a token of uncleanness.

(16) Only in such a case is the man unclear.

(17) His colleagues.

- (18) The Sages.
(19) Since a leprosy sign that is less than half a split bean is deemed to be non-existent.
(20) Who had two bright spots.
(21) Since one of the spots at least is unclean.
(22) Cf. prev. MISHNAH .

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. THE MINIMUM SIZE¹ OF A BRIGHT SPOT² MUST BE THAT OF A CILICIAN SPLIT BEAN SQUARED.³ THE SPACE COVERED BY A SPLIT BEAN EQUALS THAT OF NINE LENTILS, THE SPACE COVERED BY A LENTIL EQUALS THAT OF FOUR HAIRS;⁴ THUS THE SIZE OF A BRIGHT SPOT MUST BE NO LESS THAN THAT OF THIRTY-SIX HAIRS.

MISHNAH 2. IF A BRIGHT SPOT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND IN IT THERE WAS QUICK FLESH OF THE SIZE OF A LENTIL,⁵ IF THE BRIGHT SPOT GREW LARGER⁶ IT IS UNCLEAN,⁷ BUT IF IT GREW SMALLER IT IS CLEAN. IF THE QUICK FLESH GREW LARGER IT IS UNCLEAN,⁸ AND IF IT GREW SMALLER IT IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. IF A BRIGHT SPOT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND IN IT THERE WAS QUICK FLESH LESS IN SIZE THAN A LENTIL, IF THE BRIGHT SPOT GREW LARGER IT IS UNCLEAN,⁷ BUT IF IT GREW SMALLER IT IS CLEAN. IF THE QUICK FLESH GREW LARGER IT IS UNCLEAN, BUT IF IT GREW SMALLER,⁹ R. MEIR RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN;¹⁰ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN, SINCE A LEPROSY SIGN CANNOT BE DEEMED TO SPREAD WITHIN ITSELF.¹¹

MISHNAH 4. IF A BRIGHT SPOT WAS LARGER IN SIZE THAN A SPLIT BEAN AND IN IT THERE WAS QUICK FLESH LARGER IN SIZE THAN A LENTIL, IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THEY INCREASED OR DECREASED, THEY ARE UNCLEAN, PROVIDED THAT THEY DO NOT DECREASE TO LESS THAN THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM.¹²

MISHNAH 5. IF A BRIGHT SPOT WAS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN, QUICK FLESH OF THE SIZE OF A LENTIL ENCOMPASSING IT, AND OUTSIDE THE QUICK FLESH THERE WAS ANOTHER BRIGHT SPOT, THE INNER ONE MUST BE SHUT UP AND THE OUTER ONE MUST BE CERTIFIED UNCLEAN.¹³ R. JOSE RULED: THE QUICK FLESH IS NO TOKEN OF UNCLEANNESS FOR THE OUTER ONE, SINCE THE INNER BRIGHT SPOT IS WITHIN IT.¹⁴ IF¹² T¹⁵ DECREASED OR DISAPPEARED, RABBAN GAMALIEL RULED: IF ITS DESTRUCTION WAS ON ITS INNER SIDE¹⁶ IT IS A TOKEN OF A SPREADING OF THE INNER BRIGHT SPOT¹⁷ WHILE THE OUTER ONE IS CLEAN,¹⁸ BUT IF ITS DESTRUCTION WAS ON ITS OUTER SIDE,¹⁹ THE OUTER ONE IS CLEAN²⁰ WHILE THE INNER ONE²¹ MUST BE SHUT UP. R. AKIBA RULED: IN EITHER CASE²² IT²³ IS CLEAN.²⁴

MISHNAH 6. R. SIMEON²⁵ STATED: WHEN IS THIS THE CASE?²⁶ WHEN THE QUICK FLESH WAS EXACTLY THE SIZE OF A LENTIL;²⁷ BUT IF IT EXCEEDED THE SIZE OF A LENTIL THE EXCESS IS A TOKEN OF SPREADING OF THE INNER ONE,²⁸ AND THE OUTER ONE IS UNCLEAN.²⁹ IF THERE WAS THERE³⁰ A TETTER LESS IN SIZE THAN A LENTIL, IT³¹ IS A TOKEN OF THE SPREADING³² OF THE INNER BRIGHT SPOT³³ BUT IT IS NO TOKEN OF SPREADING OF THE OUTER ONE.³⁴

MISHNAH 7. THERE ARE TWENTY-FOUR TIPS OF LIMBS IN THE HUMAN BODY THAT DO NOT BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF QUICK FLESH:³⁵ THE TIPS OF THE FINGERS AND THE TOES, THE TIPS OF THE EARS, THE TIP OF THE NOSE, THE TIP OF

THE MEMBRUM; AND ALSO THE NIPPLES OF A WOMAN. R. JUDAH RULED: THOSE OF A MAN ALSO. R. ELIEZER RULED: ALSO WARTS AND WENS DO NOT BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF QUICK FLESH.³⁶

MISHNAH 8. THE FOLLOWING PLACES IN MEN³⁷ DO NOT BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF A BRIGHT SPOT:³⁸ THE INSIDE OF THE EYE, THE INSIDE OF THE EAR, THE INSIDE OF THE NOSE AND THE INSIDE OF THE MOUTH, WRINKLES,³⁹ WRINKLES IN THE NECK, UNDER THE BREAST⁴⁰ AND THE ARMPIT,⁴¹ THE SOLE OF THE FOOT,⁴² THE NAILS, THE HEAD AND THE BEARD;⁴³ AND A BOIL, A BURNING AND A BLISTER⁴⁴ THAT ARE FESTERING. ALL THESE DO NOT BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF LEPROSY SIGNS NOR ARE THEY COMBINED⁴⁵ WITH OTHER LEPROSY SIGNS,⁴⁶ NOR IS A LEPROSY SIGN DEEMED TO SPREAD INTO THEM,⁴⁷ NOR DO THEY BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF QUICK FLESH,⁴⁸ NOR ARE THEY⁴⁹ A HINDRANCE⁵⁰ WHERE A PERSON IS ALL TURNED⁵¹ WHITE.⁵² IF SUBSEQUENTLY A BALD SPOT AROSE IN THE HEAD OR BEARD,⁵³ OR IF A BOIL, A BURNING OR A BLISTER FORMED A SCAR, THEY MAY BECOME UNCLEAN BY LEPROSY SIGNS THOUGH THEY CANNOT BE COMBINED WITH OTHER LEPROSY SIGNS,⁵⁴ NOR IS A LEPROSY SIGN DEEMED TO SPREAD INTO THEM,⁴⁷ NOR DO THEY BECOME UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF QUICK FLESH. THEY ARE, HOWEVER, A HINDRANCE⁵⁰ WHERE⁴⁹ A PERSON IS ALL TURNED WHITE.⁵² THE HEAD AND THE BEARD BEFORE THEY HAVE GROWN HAIR, AND WENS ON THE HEAD OR THE BEARD, ARE⁵⁵ TREATED AS THE SKIN OF THE FLESH.

(1) Lit., 'body'.

(2) That is to be pronounced unclean.

(3) Sc. each of its four sides must be as long as a Cilician split bean.

(4) Growing on the body other than the head or face.

(5) Thus reducing its size to less than the prescribed minimum.

(6) Extending outwards.

(7) On account of the spreading.

(8) Var. lec., 'clean', since the bright spot decreased where the quick flesh had spread.

(9) The bright spot having spread in that direction.

(10) An extension within being as unclean as one without.

(11) Only an external expansion is regarded as a spreading that causes uncleanness.

(12) Viz., quick flesh of the size of a lentil surrounded on all sides by a bright spot of the size of a lentil.

(13) On account of the quick flesh within it.

(14) Only quick flesh that is encompassed by a bright spot is a token of uncleanness. The quick flesh in this case is not only encompassed, but also broken up by a bright spot.

(15) The quick flesh under discussion.

(16) The inner bright spot having covered up the quick flesh.

(17) And it must be certified as unclean.

(18) Since its quick flesh disappeared or decreased to less than the prescribed minimum.

(19) The outer bright spot having covered it up.

(20) Because its quick flesh was destroyed and its spreading inwards is of no consequence.

(21) Having retained its size.

(22) Whether the reduction or disappearance was on the inner or the outer side.

(23) The inner bright spot.

(24) In the former case, because, as stated, the spreading of the outer one inwards is of no consequence; and in the latter case, because the spreading of the inner one into the outer spot is similarly of no consequence.

(25) Referring to R. Akiba's ruling in the previous MISHNAH ad fin.

(26) That the outer one is clean.

(27) Lit., 'like a lentil brought' or 'applied'.

(28) If it spread over that excess.

- (29) On account of the quick flesh.
- (30) Between the inner bright spot and the quick flesh around it.
- (31) The extension of the inner bright spot.
- (32) And of uncleanness.
- (33) Because a tetter that is less than the prescribed minimum may be disregarded.
- (34) Because its quick flesh was destroyed and its spreading inwards is of no consequence.
- (35) Because, owing to their convexity it is usually impossible to see at once the prescribed minimum of quick flesh and the leprosy sign.
- (36) Cf. prev. n.
- (37) Which are either not included in the expression, 'skin of his flesh' (Lev. XIII, 2) or are concealed parts of the body.
- (38) Or any other of the four colours (supra I, 1).
- (39) In any part of the body.
- (40) Of a suckling woman, which is covered when the child is nursed.
- (41) Which is concealed when the person is in the posture of one plucking olives (cf. supra II, 4).
- (42) Its hardened part which cannot be regarded as normal skin.
- (43) Where the only unclean leprosy sign is the scall (cf. Lev. XIII, 29ff).
- (44) That was due to an external cause.
- (45) To make up the prescribed minimum.
- (46) Even though their greater part is on the normal skin.
- (47) Sc. even if there was a spreading it is no sign of uncleanness.
- (48) That appeared in a leprosy sign on them.
- (49) If they did not turn white.
- (50) To cleanness.
- (51) Except for any of these places.
- (52) Which is a mark of cleanness (cf. Lev. XIII, 13).
- (53) Thus assuming the character of normal skin of the body.
- (54) E.g. one on the head with one on the beard.
- (55) In all respects.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING BRIGHT SPOTS ARE CLEAN: THOSE THAT ONE HAD BEFORE THE TORAH WAS GIVEN,¹ THOSE THAT A HEATHEN HAD WHEN HE BECAME A PROSELYTE OR A CHILD WHEN IT WAS BORN, OR THOSE THAT WERE IN A CREASE² AND WERE SUBSEQUENTLY LAID BARE. IF THEY WERE ON THE HEAD OR THE BEARD, ON A BOIL, A BURNING OR BLISTER THAT IS FESTERING, AND SUBSEQUENTLY THE HEAD OR THE BEARD BECAME BALD, AND THE BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER TURNED INTO A SCAR, THEY ARE CLEAN. IF THEY WERE ON THE HEAD OR THE BEARD BEFORE THESE GREW HAIR,³ AND THEY THEN GREW HAIR⁴ AND SUBSEQUENTLY BECAME BALD,³ OR IF THEY WERE ON THE BODY BEFORE THE BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER WAS FORMED⁵ AND THEN THESE⁶ FORMED A SCAR⁷ OR WERE HEALED,³ R. ELIEZER B. JACOB RULES THAT THEY ARE UNCLEAR SINCE AT THE BEGINNING AND AT THE END THEY WERE UNCLEAR, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.⁸

MISHNAH 2. IF THEIR COLOUR⁹ CHANGED,¹⁰ WHETHER THE CHANGE WAS A CAUSE OF LENIENCY OR ONE OF RESTRICTION — (HOW IS IT A 'CAUSE OF LENIENCY'? IF, FOR INSTANCE, A BRIGHT SPOT HAD BEEN¹¹ AS WHITE AS SNOW AND¹² IT BECAME WHITE AS THE LIME OF THE TEMPLE, AS WHITE WOOL OR AS THE SKIN OF AN EGG. OR IF A RISING¹³ HAS ASSUMED A SECONDARY SHADE,¹⁴ OR IF ONE AS WHITE AS SNOW HAS ASSUMED A SECONDARY SHADE.¹⁴ HOW IS IT 'ONE OF RESTRICTION'? IF, FOR INSTANCE, ITS COLOUR WAS¹⁵ THAT OF THE SKIN OF AN EGG AND IT ASSUMED¹² THAT OF WHITE WOOL, THE LIME OF THE TEMPLE OR SNOW) — R. ELIEZER¹⁶ B. AZARIAH RULES THAT THEY ARE CLEAN. R. ELIEZER¹⁶ HISMA RULED: IF THE CHANGE WAS A CAUSE OF LENIENCY¹⁷ THE BRIGHT SPOT IS CLEAN, BUT IF IT WAS ONE OF RESTRICTION THE SPOT MUST BE INSPECTED AS IF IT WERE A NEW ONE. R. AKIBA RULED: WHETHER THE CHANGE WAS A CAUSE OF LENIENCY OR ONE OF RESTRICTION THE SPOT MUST BE INSPECTED AS IF IT WERE A NEW ONE.

MISHNAH 3. A BRIGHT SPOT IN WHICH¹⁸ THERE WERE NO SIGNS OF UNCLEANNESS¹⁹ AT THE BEGINNING,²⁰ OR AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, MUST BE SHUT UP; AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK OR AFTER IT HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN, IT MUST HENCEFORTH BE HELD TO BE CLEAN. IF WHILE THE PRIEST WAS ABOUT TO SHUT IT UP OR TO PRONOUNCE IT CLEAN TOKENS OF UNCLEANNESS²¹ APPEARED IN IT, HE MUST CERTIFY IT AS UNCLEAR. A BRIGHT SPOT IN WHICH APPEARED¹⁸ TOKENS OF UNCLEANNESS MUST BE CERTIFIED AS UNCLEAR. IF WHILE THE PRIEST WAS ABOUT TO CERTIFY IT AS UNCLEAR THE TOKENS OF UNCLEANNESS DISAPPEARED EITHER AT THE BEGINNING,²⁰ OR AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, IT MUST BE SHUT UP; BUT IF THEY DISAPPEARED AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK OR AFTER THE SPOT HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN,²² IT MUST HENCEFORTH BE HELD TO BE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. A MAN WHO PLUCKS OUT TOKENS OF UNCLEANNESS²³ OR CAUTERIZES QUICK FLESH TRANSGRESSES A NEGATIVE COMMANDMENT.²⁴ AND AS REGARDS CLEANNESS, IF THEY WERE PLUCKED OUT BEFORE THE MAN CAME TO THE PRIEST, HE IS CLEAN; BUT IF AFTER HE HAD BEEN CERTIFIED AS UNCLEAR, HE REMAINS UNCLEAR. SAID R. AKIBA: I ASKED RABBAN GAMALIEL AND R. JOSHUA WHEN THEY WERE ON THE WAY TO NADWAD,²⁵ ‘WHAT IS THE RULING IF THE PLUCKING OCCURRED WHILE IT WAS SHUT UP?’ THEY SAID TO ME, ‘WE HEARD NO SUCH RULING, BUT WE HAVE HEARD THAT IF THEY WERE PLUCKED BEFORE THE MAN CAME TO THE PRIEST HE IS CLEAN, AND IF AFTER HE HAD BEEN CERTIFIED AS UNCLEAR HE REMAINS UNCLEAR’. I BEGAN TO BRING THEM PROOFS²⁶ TO THE EFFECT THAT, WHETHER THE MAN STANDS BEFORE THE PRIEST²⁷ OR WHETHER HE IS THEN²⁷ SHUT UP, HE IS CLEAN UNLESS THE PRIEST HAD PRONOUNCED HIM UNCLEAR. WHEN DOES HE²⁸ ATTAIN CLEANNESS? R. ELIEZER RULED: AFTER ANOTHER LEPROSY SIGN HAS ARISEN IN HIM AND HE HAS ATTAINED CLEANNESS AFTER IT; BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY AFTER ANOTHER LEPROSY SIGN HAS SPREAD OVER HIS WHOLE BODY OR AFTER HIS BRIGHT SPOT HAS BEEN REDUCED TO LESS THAN THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN.

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN HAD A BRIGHT SPOT AND IT WAS CUT OFF, HE BECOMES CLEAN; BUT IF HE CUT IT OFF INTENTIONALLY, R. ELIEZER RULED: HE BECOMES CLEAN ONLY AFTER ANOTHER LEPROSY SIGN HAS ARISEN IN HIM AND HE HAS ATTAINED CLEANNESS AFTER IT; BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY AFTER IT HAS SPREAD OVER ALL HIS BODY. IF IT²⁹ WAS ON THE TIP OF ONE'S FORESKIN, CIRCUMCISION³⁰ IS PERMITTED.³¹

(1) Though they continued after it was given.

(2) Of the body.

(3) Which, being like the normal skin of the body, would be a cause of uncleanness.

(4) Normally a cause of cleanness.

(5) ‘A scar’ is, with some texts, to be deleted.

(6) The boil, burning or blister, a bright spot on which is clean.

(7) A bright spot on which is unclear.

- (8) Because there was an interval of cleanness between the two phases of uncleanness.
- (9) That of the clean bright spots spoken of in the previous MISHNAH .
- (10) During the periods of their uncleanness.
- (11) While the man for instance was still a heathen.
- (12) After he became a proselyte.
- (13) Whose colour is white as white wool.
- (14) That of lime of the Temple or the skin of an egg, which is dimmer than its first colour.
- (15) V. p. 258, n. 11.
- (16) Var. lec., 'Eleazar'.
- (17) Sc. if a bright colour assumed a dimmer shade.
- (18) When inspected by the priest.
- (19) Lit., 'nothing', neither quick flesh nor white hair.
- (20) When it was first submitted to the priest's inspection.
- (21) White hair or quick flesh.
- (22) Sc. tokens of uncleanness that appeared after it had been pronounced clean disappeared before the priest had certified it as unclean.
- (23) E.g. white hair from a leprosy sign on a normal skin.
- (24) Cf. Deut. XXIV, 8.
- (25) Var. lec., Narwad, Nadabath.
- (26) These are given in Tosef. Neg. III, 4.
- (27) When his tokens of uncleanness were plucked out.
- (28) The man whose tokens of uncleanness were plucked after he had been certified unclean.
- (29) The spreading of the leprosy sign.
- (30) Even when it is performed later than the prescribed eighth day after birth. Circumcision on the eighth day, which overrides the Pentateuchal prohibition against work on the Sabbath, obviously overrides that against the removal of a leprosy sign which is but a Rabbinical prohibition.
- (31) Since the positive commandment of circumcision overrides the negative one of removing a token of uncleanness.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. IF LEPROSY BROKE OUT ABROAD¹ WHEN A MAN WAS UNCLEAR,² HE BECOMES CLEAN;³ BUT IF ONLY THE ENDS OF HIS MEMBERS⁴ REAPPEARED,⁵ HE BECOMES UNCLEAR⁶ UNTIL THE BRIGHT SPOT IS REDUCED TO LESS THAN THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN. [IF IT BROKE OUT ABROAD] WHEN HE WAS [DECLARED] CLEAN,⁷ HE BECOMES UNCLEAR;⁸ BUT IF THE ENDS OF HIS MEMBERS REAPPEARED, HE REMAINS UNCLEAR UNTIL HIS BRIGHT SPOT RESUMES ITS FORMER SIZE.

MISHNAH 2. IF A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN IN WHICH WAS QUICK FLESH OF THE SIZE OF A LENTIL BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING A PERSON'S ENTIRE SKIN AND THEN THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED, OR IF THE QUICK FLESH DISAPPEARED AND THEN⁹ THE BRIGHT SPOT BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS SKIN, HE IS CLEAN.¹⁰ IF QUICK FLESH AROSE SUBSEQUENTLY HE IS UNCLEAR.⁶ IF HE GREW WHITE HAIR, R. JOSHUA RULES THAT HE IS UNCLEAR,¹¹ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT HE IS CLEAN.¹²

MISHNAH 3. IF A BRIGHT SPOT IN WHICH GREW WHITE HAIR¹³ BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING A MAN'S ENTIRE SKIN, EVEN THOUGH THE WHITE HAIR REMAINED IN ITS PLACE,¹⁴ HE IS CLEAN. IF A BRIGHT SPOT IN WHICH THERE WAS A SPREADING¹⁵ BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING A MAN'S ENTIRE SKIN, HE IS CLEAN. BUT IN THE CASE OF ALL THESE¹⁶ IF THE ENDS OF THE MAN'S MEMBERS REAPPEARED,¹⁷ THE MAN IS UNCLEAR. IF THE LEPROSY BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING A PART¹⁸ OF THE MAN'S SKIN HE IS UNCLEAR; IF IT BROKE OUT ABROAD

COVERING ALL HIS SKIN HE IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. IN ALL CASES OF BREAKING OUT ABROAD AND COVERING THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS WHEREBY THE UNCLEAN HAVE BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN, IF THEY¹⁹ REAPPEARED²⁰ THESE²¹ BECOME UNCLEAN AGAIN. IN ALL CASES OF REAPPEARANCE OF THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS²⁰ WHEREBY THE CLEAN HAVE BEEN PRONOUNCED UNCLEAN, IF THEY¹⁹ WERE COVERED AGAIN THESE²¹ BECOME CLEAN AGAIN. IF SUBSEQUENTLY THEY BECOME UNCOVERED THESE²¹ ARE UNCLEAN, EVEN IF THIS OCCURS A HUNDRED TIMES.

MISHNAH 5. ANY PART [OF THE BODY] THAT CAN BE SUBJECT TO THE UNCLEANNESS OF A LEPROSY SIGN²² OF A BRIGHT SPOT MAY²³ PREVENT THE EFFECTIVENESS²⁴ OF THE BREAKING OUT ABROAD, AND ANY PART THAT CANNOT BE SUBJECT TO THE UNCLEANNESS OF A LEPROSY SIGN OF THE BRIGHT SPOT DOES NOT PREVENT THE EFFECTIVENESS²⁴ OF THE BREAKING OUT ABROAD. FOR INSTANCE: IF IT²⁵ BROKE OUT ABROAD, COVERING ALL ONE'S SKIN, BUT NOT THE HEAD OR THE BEARD,²⁶ OR A FESTERING BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER,²⁶ AND THEN THE HEAD OR THE BEARD BECAME BALD,²⁷ OR THE BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER TURNED INTO A SCAR,²⁷ THE MAN IS NEVERTHELESS CLEAN.²⁸ IF IT BROKE OUT ABROAD, COVERING ALL ONE'S SKIN, EXCEPT A SPOT OF THE SIZE OF HALF A LENTIL²⁹ NEAR THE HEAD OR BEARD, OR NEAR A BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER, AND THEN THE HEAD OR THE BEARD BECAME BALD, OR THE BOIL, BURNING OR BLISTER TURNED INTO A SCAR, EVEN THOUGH THE PLACE OF THE QUICK FLESH³⁰ BECAME³¹ A BRIGHT SPOT, THE MAN IS UNCLEAN³² UNLESS IT BREAKS OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS BODY.

MISHNAH 6. IF THERE WERE TWO BRIGHTS SPOTS, THE ONE UNCLEAN AND THE OTHER³³ CLEAN, AND LEPROSY BROKE OUT FROM ONE TO THE OTHER, AND THEN IT BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL THE MAN'S SKIN, HE BECOMES CLEAN.³⁴ IF THE BRIGHT SPOTS³⁵ WERE RESPECTIVELY ON HIS UPPER LIP AND LOWER LIP, ON TWO OF HIS FINGERS, OR ON HIS TWO EYELIDS, EVEN THOUGH THEY CLEAVE TOGETHER AND APPEAR AS ONE,³⁶ HE IS CLEAN. IF IT³⁷ BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS SKIN EXCEPT A TETTER,³⁸ HE IS UNCLEAN. IF³⁹ THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEARED IN THE COLOUR OF A TETTER, HE IS CLEAN.⁴⁰ IF THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEARED TO THE EXTENT OF LESS THAN A LENTIL, R. MEIR RULES THAT HE IS UNCLEAN, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT A TETTER [OR SKIN],⁴¹ LESS IN SIZE THAN A LENTIL, IS A TOKEN OF UNCLEANNESS IN THE BEGINNING,⁴² BUT IS NO TOKEN OF UNCLEANNESS AT THE END.⁴³

MISHNAH 7. A MAN WHO CAME⁴⁴ WITH ALL HIS BODY WHITE MUST BE SHUT UP. IF SUBSEQUENTLY⁴⁵ WHITE HAIR GREW, HE MUST BE CERTIFIED UNCLEAN. IF BOTH HAIRS OR ONE OF THEM TURNED BLACK,⁴⁶ IF BOTH OR ONE OF THEM BECAME SHORT, IF A BOIL ADJOINED BOTH OR ONE OF THEM, OR IF A BOIL ENCOMPASSED BOTH OR ONE OF THEM, OR IF A BOIL, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BOIL, A BURNING, THE QUICK FLESH OF A BURNING, OR A TETTER SUNDERED THEM,⁴⁷ AND THEN⁴⁸ THERE AROSE QUICK FLESH OR WHITE HAIR, HE IS UNCLEAN; BUT IF NEITHER QUICK FLESH NOR WHITE HAIR AROSE HE IS CLEAN. IN ALL THESE CASES, HOWEVER, IF THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEARED THE MAN⁴⁹ REMAINS AS HE WAS BEFORE.⁵⁰ IF THE LEPROSY THEN⁵¹ BROKE OUT ABROAD, COVERING A PART OF THEM,⁵² HE IS UNCLEAN.⁵³ IF SUBSEQUENTLY⁵⁴ IT BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL OF THEM, HE IS CLEAN.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 8. IF⁵⁶ LEPROSY BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL A MAN'S SKIN AT ONCE, HE IS UNCLEAN IF THIS ORIGINATED IN A CONDITION OF CLEANNES⁵⁷, AND CLEAN IF IT ORIGINATED IN A CONDITION OF UNCLEANNES⁵⁷. THE MAN WHO ATTAINS CLEANNES AFTER HE WAS SHUT UP IS EXEMPT FROM THE OBLIGATION OF LOOSENING THE HAIR AND RENDING THE CLOTHES,⁵⁸ FROM CUTTING OFF THE HAIR⁵⁹ AND FROM BRINGING THE BIRDS.⁶⁰ IF HE ATTAINS CLEANNES AFTER HE HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAN, HE IS LIABLE TO ALL THESE. BOTH, HOWEVER, CONVEY UNCLEANNES⁶¹ BY ENTERING.⁶²

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN CAME⁶³ WITH HIS WHOLE BODY WHITE, AND ON IT THERE WAS QUICK FLESH TO THE EXTENT OF A LENTIL,⁶⁴ AND THEN⁶⁵ THE LEPROSY BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS SKIN,⁶⁶ AFTER WHICH⁶⁷ THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEARED, R. ISHMAEL RULED: THE LAW IN THIS CASE IS THE SAME AS WHEN THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEAR IN THAT OF A LARGE BRIGHT SPOT.⁶⁸ R. ELIEZER⁶⁹ B. AZARIAH RULED: AS WHEN THE ENDS OF THE MEMBERS REAPPEARED IN A SMALL BRIGHT SPOT.⁷⁰

MISHNAH 10. SOME MAN MIGHT SHOW HIS LEPROSY SIGN TO THE PRIEST AND THEREBY GAIN ADVANTAGE, WHILE ANOTHER MIGHT SHOW HIS AND LOSE THEREBY. IN WHAT MANNER? IF A MAN WAS CERTIFIED UNCLEAN AND THE TOKENS OF HIS UNCLEANNES DISAPPEARED, AND BEFORE HE COULD SHOW IT TO THE PRIEST THE LEPROSY BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS SKIN, HE IS CLEAN; WHEREAS IF HE HAD SHOWN IT TO THE PRIEST⁷¹ HE WOULD HAVE BEEN UNCLEAN.⁷² IF HE HAD A BRIGHT SPOT IN WHICH THERE WAS NOTHING ELSE, AND BEFORE HE COULD SHOW IT TO THE PRIEST IT BROKE OUT ABROAD COVERING ALL HIS SKIN, HE IS UNCLEAN;⁷³ WHEREAS IF HE HAD SHOWN IT TO THE PRIEST⁷⁴ HE WOULD HAVE BEEN CLEAN.⁷⁵

(1) And covered all his skin. Cf. Lev. XIII, 12.

(2) Either after certification or even only when shut up.

(3) Ibid. 13.

(4) Though quick flesh on these is no cause of uncleanness.

(5) Sc. were freed from the leprosy.

(6) Ibid. 14.

(7) Either after being shut up or after the termination of a certified uncleanness, cf. infra p. 263.

(8) As the Biblical text refers only to a case where the plague broke out abroad in one who had been declared unclean.

(9) Before the priest could pronounce the man clean.

(10) On the same principle as in MISHNAH 1.

(11) As if quick flesh arose.

(12) Since the text speaks only of quick flesh.

(13) And consequently had been declared unclean by the priest.

(14) And much more so if it fell off and the priest had not yet pronounced the man to be clean.

(15) V. p. 262 n. 13.

(16) That were ruled supra (MISHNAH 2 and 3) to be clean.

(17) V. p. 262 n. 5.

(18) Even if it was the greater part.

(19) The ends of the members.

(20) After they and all the man's skin had been covered by bright spot.

(21) The cases of bright spot.

(22) Cf. supra VI, 8.

(23) If any part of it remained free from leprosy.

(24) Sc. as a cause of cleanness.

- (25) The bright spot.
- (26) Which is not subject to the uncleanness of bright spot.
- (27) When it is subject as a rule to the uncleanness of bright spot like the normal skin of the body.
- (28) Because at the time the bright spot first covered the body these were not subject to its uncleanness.
- (29) Which was covered by quick flesh.
- (30) Cf. prev. n.
- (31) Subsequently.
- (32) Since the leprosy did not break out abroad, covering all parts that can be affected, either before or now.
- (33) Having remained unchanged for two weeks.
- (34) Even where the breaking out began from the clean one, since its merging with the unclean one subjects it to the same status.
- (35) Each being of the size of half a split bean.
- (36) Of the size of a split bean.
- (37) The leprosy.
- (38) Bohak, a spot on the skin dimmer than any of the four principal colours; Lev. XIII, 39.
- (39) After the tetter too had been covered with the leprosy, and thus pronounced clean.
- (40) Since it is not 'quick flesh'.
- (41) Cf L.
- (42) These prevent the effectiveness of the breaking out abroad to make the leper clean.
- (43) When the small space mentioned reappeared after the entire skin had been covered.
- (44) To the priest, for a first inspection.
- (45) Having been shut up.
- (46) After the certification.
- (47) The two hairs.
- (48) Having in virtue of these been released from the uncleanness of the white hair.
- (49) Who COMES WITH ALL HIS BODY WHITE.
- (50) If, for instance, he was to be shut up for a week and during that time the ends of the members reappeared, he must be shut up again for a similar period. If, on the other hand, they reappeared after he had been pronounced clean he remains clean (v. L. and cf. Bert.).
- (51) After the ends of the members have reappeared.
- (52) Of the ends of the members.
- (53) On account of the spreading.
- (54) After a part had been covered and the man had become unclean.
- (55) Since the breaking out arose from a condition of uncleanness (cf. next MISHNAH).
- (56) As set forth in previous MISHNAH .
- (57) This is taken as the continuation of the preceding MISHNAH . One comes with his whole body white and is subjected to the various regulations set forth, and then the ends of members reappear only subsequently to be again affected with leprosy.
- (58) Cf. Lev. XIII, 45.
- (59) Cf. Ibid. XIV, 8.
- (60) Cf. Ibid. XIV, 4.
- (61) To all that is in a room.
- (62) The room (cf. prev. n.).
- (63) To the priest, for a first inspection.
- (64) So that, quick flesh being a token of uncleanness at a first inspection, the man should have been pronounced unclean.
- (65) Before the priest pronounced him unclean (cf. prev. n.).
- (66) As a result of which he must be shut up (cf. supra VII, 3).
- (67) Having been shut up.
- (68) Sc. it is regarded as though the whole body is still white, as in MISHNAH 7.
- (69) Var. lec., 'Eleazar'.
- (70) I.e., one confined to a part of the skin and unclean as in MISHNAH 3 (Bert.).

- (71) Who would have pronounced it clean.
(72) Since the breaking out would have begun in a condition of cleanness.
(73) Sc. it must be shut up.
(74) Who would have shot him up for a week.
(75) Because the breaking out would have begun from a leprosy that was shut up.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. A BOIL¹ OR A BURNING¹ MAY BECOME UNCLEAN IN A WEEK² AND BY TWO TOKENS, VIZ., BY WHITE HAIR OR BY A SPREADING.³ WHAT EXACTLY IS A 'BOIL'? AN INJURY RECEIVED FROM WOOD, STONE, OLIVE PEAT, OR THE WATER OF TIBERIAS,⁴ OF FROM ANY OTHER OBJECT WHOSE HEAT IS NOT DUE TO FIRE IS A BOIL. WHAT EXACTLY IS A 'BURNING'? A BURN CAUSED BY A LIVE COAL, HOT EMBERS, OR ANY OBJECT WHOSE HEAT IS DUE TO FIRE IS A BURNING.

MISHNAH 2. A BOIL AND A BURNING CANNOT BE COMBINED,⁵ NOR CAN THEY EFFECTIVELY⁶ SPREAD FROM ONE TO THE OTHER, FROM THEM TO THE SKIN OF THE FLESH, OR FROM THE SKIN OF THE FLESH TO THEM.⁷ IF THEY FESTERED THEY ARE CLEAN.⁸ IF THEY FORMED A SCALE AS THICK AS GARLIC PEEL, SUCH IS THE SCAR OF THE BOIL THAT IS SPOKEN OF IN THE TORAH.⁹ IF THEY WERE SUBSEQUENTLY HEALED, EVEN THOUGH THERE WAS A CICATRIX IN THEIR PLACE, THEY ARE REGARDED AS 'THE SKIN OF THE FLESH'.¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. R. ELIEZER WAS ASKED, 'WHAT IS THE RULING WHERE A BRIGHT SPOT OF THE SIZE OF A SELA' AROSE ON THE INSIDE OF ONE'S HAND AND COVERED UP¹¹ THE SCAR OF A BOIL?'¹² HE REPLIED: 'IT MUST BE SHUT UP'. THEY SAID TO HIM, 'FOR WHAT PURPOSE, SEEING THAT IT IS NEITHER CAPABLE OF GROWING WHITE HAIR¹³ NOR CAN IT EFFECTIVELY¹⁴ SPREAD¹⁵ NOR DOES QUICK FLESH¹⁶ CAUSE IN IT ANY UNCLEANNESS?' HE REPLIED, 'IT IS POSSIBLE THAT IT WILL CONTRACT¹⁷ AND THEN SPREAD AGAIN'.¹⁸ THEY SAID TO HIM, 'BUT WHAT ABOUT WHEN ITS EXTENT BE ONLY THAT OF A SPLIT BEAN?'¹⁹ 'I HAVE NOT HEARD THE REASON', HE REPLIED.²⁰ SAID R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA TO HIM, 'I WOULD SUBMIT AN ARGUMENT ON IT'. THE OTHER REPLIED, 'IF YOU WOULD THEREBY CONFIRM THE RULING OF THE SAGES, WELL AND GOOD'. HE SAID, 'IT IS POSSIBLE THAT ANOTHER BOIL WOULD ARISE OUTSIDE IT? AND THE LATTER²¹ WOULD THEN SPREAD TO THE FORMER,²² 'YOU ARE A GREAT SAGE', THE OTHER EXCLAIMED, 'FOR YOU HAVE CONFIRMED A RULING OF THE SAGES.

- (1) V. supra, III, 4.
(2) If there appeared a bright spot.
(3) During which the sufferer is shut up.
(4) Flowing from its hot springs.
(5) To make up the prescribed size of a split bean.
(6) To be a cause of uncleanness.
(7) Only a spreading on the boil or burning itself is effective.
(8) Though covered by a bright spot.
(9) Lev. XIII, 23.
(10) Lev. XIII, 3.
(11) Lit., 'and its place'.
(12) So that nothing of the scar is visible.
(13) Since no hair grows on the inside of a hand.
(14) To be a cause of uncleanness.

(15) As stated supra MISHNAH 2.

(16) Which is not one of its two tokens of uncleanness (supra MISHNAH 1).

(17) To the size of a split bean.

(18) Over the scar; and thus cause uncleanness.

(19) 'For what purpose should it then be shut up?' For were it to contract it would be less than the minimum size and would become altogether clean.

(20) Though the ruling in the latter case also is that the sufferer is to be shut up.

(21) The one already there that is to be shut up.

(22) And this would, of course, be a cause of uncleanness.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. SCALLS¹ MAY BECOME UNCLEAN FOR TWO WEEKS² AND BY TWO TOKENS, VIZ., BY YELLOW THIN³ HAIR OR BY A SPREADING. BY YELLOW THIN HAIR', MEANS SO DISEASED THAT IT IS SHORT; SO R. AKIBA. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: EVEN THOUGH IT IS LONG.⁴ R. JOHANAN B. NURI ARGUED: WHAT IS THE MEANING OF THE EXPRESSION WHEN PEOPLE SAY, 'THIS STICK IS THIN', OR 'THIS REED IS THIN'? DOES 'THIN' IMPLY THAT IT IS STUNTED⁵ AND SHORT AND NOT⁶ STUNTED, AND LONG?⁷ R. AKIBA REPLIED: BEFORE WE LEARN FROM THE REED LET US LEARN FROM THE HAIR. IN 'SO AND SO'S HAIR IS THIN', 'THIN' MEANS THAT IT IS STUNTED⁵ AND SHORT AND NOT STUNTED AND LONG.

MISHNAH 2. YELLOW THIN HAIR CAUSES UNCLEANNESS WHETHER IT IS CLUSTERED TOGETHER⁸ OR DISPERSED, WHETHER IT IS ENCOMPASSED⁹ OR UNENCOMPASSED, OR WHETHER IT CAME AFTER THE SCALL¹⁰ OR BEFORE IT; SO R. JUDAH. R. SIMEON RULED: IT CAUSES UNCLEANNESS ONLY WHEN IT CAME AFTER THE SCALL. R. SIMEON ARGUED: THIS IS A LOGICAL INFERENCE: IF WHITE HAIR,¹¹ AGAINST WHICH OTHER HAIR AFFORDS NO PROTECTION,¹² CAUSES UNCLEANNESS ONLY WHEN IT COMES AFTER THE SCALL,¹⁰ HOW MUCH MORE THEN SHOULD YELLOW THIN HAIR, AGAINST WHICH OTHER HAIR DOES AFFORD PROTECTION,¹³ CAUSE UNCLEANNESS ONLY WHEN IT COMES AFTER THE SCALL? R. JUDAH REPLIED: WHENEVER IT WAS NECESSARY TO SAY, 'IF IT COMES AFTER'¹⁴ SCRIPTURE HAS SAID, 'IF IT COMES AFTER', BUT THE SCALL, SINCE ABOUT IT SCRIPTURE SAID, THERE BE IN IT NO YELLOW HAIR,¹⁵ CAUSES UNCLEANNESS WHETHER IT CAME BEFORE OR AFTER IT.

MISHNAH 3. [BLACK HAIR]¹⁶ THAT GROWS UP¹⁷ AFFORDS PROTECTION AGAINST YELLOW HAIR AND AGAINST A SPREADING,¹⁸ WHETHER IT WAS CLUSTERED TOGETHER OR DISPERSED, WHETHER IT WAS ENCOMPASSED OR UNENCOMPASSED. AND THAT WHICH IS LEFT¹⁹ AFFORDS PROTECTION AGAINST YELLOW HAIR AND AGAINST A SPREADING, WHETHER IT IS CLUSTERED TOGETHER OR DISPERSED, AND ALSO WHEN ENCOMPASSED, BUT IT AFFORDS NO PROTECTION WHERE IT IS AT THE SIDE²⁰ UNLESS IT IS DISTANT FROM THE STANDING HAIR BY THE PLACE OF TWO HAIRS. IF ONE HAIR²¹ WAS YELLOW AND THE OTHER BLACK, OR IF ONE WAS YELLOW AND THE OTHER WHITE,²² THEY AFFORD NO PROTECTION.

MISHNAH 4. YELLOW HAIR THAT PRECEDED A SCALL IS CLEAN. R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB EXPLAINED:²³ IT NEITHER CAUSES UNCLEANNESS NOR DOES IT AFFORD PROTECTION. R. SIMEON EXPLAINED:²³ ANY GROWTH IN A SCALL THAT IS NOT A TOKEN OF UNCLEANNESS IS IPSO FACTO A TOKEN OF CLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. HOW IS ONE SHAVED WHO HAS A SCALL?²⁴ THE SPACE OUTSIDE IT IS SHAVED WHILE NEXT TO IT TWO HAIRS ARE LEFT²⁵ IN ORDER THAT IT MAY BE NOTICED WHETHER IT SPREADS. IF IT WAS CERTIFIED UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF YELLOW HAIR, AND THEN THE YELLOW HAIR DISAPPEARED AND OTHER YELLOW HAIR APPEARED, AND SO ALSO IF THERE WAS A SPREADING,²⁶ IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THE CERTIFICATION²⁷ TOOK PLACE AT THE BEGINNING,²⁸ AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK OR AFTER THE RELEASE FROM UNCLEANNESS, THE MAN REMAINS AS HE WAS BEFORE.²⁹ IF THE MAN WAS CERTIFIED UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF A SPREADING, AND THE SPREADING DISAPPEARED AND THEN REAPPEARED, AND SO ALSO IF THERE WAS YELLOW HAIR,³⁰ IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THE CERTIFICATION TOOK PLACE AT THE END OF THE FIRST WEEK, AT THE END OF THE SECOND WEEK OR AFTER RELEASE FROM UNCLEANNESS, THE MAN REMAINS AS HE WAS BEFORE.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. IF THERE WERE TWO SCALLS³¹ SIDE BY SIDE AND A LINE OF HAIR INTERVENED BETWEEN THEM, IF A GAP APPEARED³² IN ONE PLACE THE MAN IS UNCLEAN,³³ BUT IF IT APPEARED IN TWO PLACES HE IS CLEAN.³⁴ HOW BIG SHOULD THE GAP³⁵ BE?³⁶ THE SPACE OF TWO HAIRS. IF THERE WAS A GAP IN ONE PLACE, EVEN THOUGH IT IS AS BIG AS A SPLIT BEAN, THE MAN IS UNCLEAN.³⁷

MISHNAH 7. IF THERE WERE TWO SCALLS ONE WITHIN THE OTHER AND A LINE OF HAIR INTERVENED BETWEEN THEM, IF³⁸ THERE APPEARED A GAP IN ONE PLACE THE INNER ONE IS UNCLEAN,³⁹ BUT IF IN TWO PLACES IT IS CLEAN.⁴⁰ HOW BIG MUST THE GAP⁴¹ BE?⁴² THE SPACE OF TWO HAIRS. IF THERE WAS A GAP IN ONE PLACE OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN⁴³ THE MAN IS CLEAN.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 8. A MAN WHO HAS A SCALL WITH YELLOW HAIR WITHIN IT IS UNCLEAN.⁴⁵ IF SUBSEQUENTLY BLACK HAIR GREW IN IT, HE IS CLEAN; EVEN IF THE BLACK HAIR DISAPPEARED AGAIN⁴⁶ HE REMAINS CLEAN. R. SIMEON B. JUDAH CITING R. SIMEON RULED: ANY SCALL THAT HAS ONCE BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN CAN NEVER AGAIN BE SUBJECTED TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁷ R. SIMEON RULED: ANY YELLOW HAIR THAT HAS ONCE BEEN PRONOUNCED CLEAN CAN NEVER AGAIN BE SUBJECTED TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁸

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN HAD A SCALL OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN AND IT SPREAD⁴⁹ OVER ALL HIS HEAD⁵⁰ HE BECOMES CLEAN.⁵¹ THE HEAD AND THE BEARD ARE NOT INTERDEPENDENT;⁵² SO R. JUDAH. R. SIMEON RULED: THEY ARE INTERDEPENDENT. R. SIMEON ARGUED: IS NOT THIS A LOGICAL INFERENCE: IF THE SKIN OF THE FACE AND THE SKIN OF THE BODY, BETWEEN WHICH SOMETHING⁵³ INTERVENES, ARE NEVERTHELESS INTERDEPENDENT, IS THERE NOT MORE REASON TO ASSUME THAT THE HEAD AND THE BEARD, BETWEEN WHICH NOTHING INTERVENES, SHOULD BE INTERDEPENDENT? THE HEAD AND THE BEARD⁵⁴ CANNOT BE COMBINED,⁵⁵ NOR IS A SPREADING⁵⁶ FROM ONE TO THE OTHER EFFECTIVE.⁵⁷ WHAT EXACTLY COUNTS AS THE BEARD? THE HAIR FROM THE JOINT OF THE JAW⁵⁸ TO THE THYROID CARTILAGE.⁵⁹

MISHNAH 10. SCALP BALDNESS OR FOREHEAD BALDNESS⁶⁰ MAY BECOME UNCLEAN⁶¹ FOR TWO WEEKS⁶² AND BY TWO TOKENS, VIZ., BY QUICK FLESH OR BY A SPREADING. WHAT CONSTITUTES BALDNESS? IF A MAN HAD EATEN NESHEM⁶³ OR SMEARED HIMSELF WITH NESHEM OR HAD A WOUND FROM WHICH HAIR CAN NO LONGER GROW. WHAT IS THE EXTENT OF SCALP BALDNESS? FROM THE CROWN SLOPING BACKWARDS TO THE PROTRUDING CARTILAGE OF THE NECK. WHAT IS

THE EXTENT OF FOREHEAD BALDNESS? FROM THE CROWN SLOPING FORWARDS TO THE REGION FACING THE HAIR ABOVE.⁶⁴ SCALP BALDNESS AND FOREHEAD BALDNESS CANNOT BE COMBINED,⁶⁵ NOR IS A SPREADING FROM ONE TO THE OTHER EFFECTIVE.⁵⁷ R. JUDAH RULED: IF THERE IS HAIR BETWEEN THEM THEY CANNOT BE COMBINED,⁶⁵ BUT IF THERE IS NONE THEY MUST BE COMBINED.

(1) Cf. Lev. XIII, 30ff.

(2) During which the sufferer is shut up, and is in consequence in a condition of uncleanness even though no token of uncleanness had made its appearance.

(3) Dak (Lev. XIII, 30).

(4) 'Thin' (dak) referring to sparseness only.

(5) In thickness.

(6) Var. lec., 'or'.

(7) The answer, of course, is that the latter meaning is also included.

(8) Sc. a minimum of two yellow hairs in one place.

(9) By the leprosy sign.

(10) Lit., 'turned over'.

(11) In a leprosy sign on the normal skin.

(12) Even the presence of black hair does not nullify the effect of the white hair which are a token of uncleanness.

(13) Two black hairs in a scall nullify the effect of the yellow hair.

(14) V. p. 270 n. 10.

(15) Lev. XIII, 32.

(16) No less than two hairs.

(17) In a scall.

(18) If, for instance, the scall was certified unclean on account of any of these tokens and then black hair grew up the man becomes clean.

(19) Of the black hair which was there before the scall.

(20) Of the scall.

(21) That came before the scall and caused no uncleanness.

(22) Two white hairs, however, like two black ones, afford protection (Elijah Wilna).

(23) The ruling of the first Tanna.

(24) Cf. Lev. XIII, 33.

(25) All round the scall, so that a circle of two hairs in depth is formed around it.

(26) After the yellow hair disappeared, though no other yellow hair has made its appearance.

(27) As unclean, on account of the yellow hair.

(28) When the priest first inspected the scall.

(29) Sc. unclean.

(30) After the spreading had disappeared, no other spreading appearing.

(31) Each of the size of a split bean.

(32) In the line of hair.

(33) Since the scall has spread.

(34) Because black hair is now encompassed by the scall and provides protection.

(35) In each place.

(36) That it should be capable of offering protection.

(37) Because the black hair is unencompassed.

(38) During the week it was shut up.

(39) Since it spread and the black hair growing at its side is not encompassed. The outer scall, however, remains clean since black hair that is left and is encompassed affords protection (cf. MISHNAH 3 supra).

(40) Because both scalls are regarded as merged into one and the hair encompassed affords protection to both.

(41) In each place.

(42) That it should be capable of affording protection.

(43) A gap that causes the two scalls, to be regarded as one.

- (44) Cf. supra n. 3.
- (45) Since yellow hair is a token of uncleanness at all times.
- (46) Only the yellow hair remaining.
- (47) Even though subsequently there was a spreading or other yellow hair grew up.
- (48) It is unclean, however, where other yellow hair grew or a new spreading appeared after the black hair disappeared.
- (49) After it had been pronounced unclean on account of one of the tokens of uncleanness.
- (50) Or beard.
- (51) As a bright spot that breaks out abroad and covers all one's skin.
- (52) Sc. if the scall spread all over one and not over the other the man is nevertheless clean.
- (53) The hair off the chin.
- (54) In respect of scalls.
- (55) A scall on the former cannot be combined with a scall on the latter to form the prescribed size if either is less than that minimum.
- (56) Of a scall.
- (57) To be a cause of uncleanness.
- (58) The upper one.
- (59) Or (with Danby) 'the knob of the windpipe'.
- (60) Cf. Lev. XIII, 40ff.
- (61) If they have a bright spot of one of the four colours enumerated supra I, n. 1.
- (62) Cf. supra p. 270, n. 2.
- (63) A drug that causes the hair to fall out.
- (64) Excluding the eyebrows.
- (65) To constitute the prescribed minimum.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 11

MISHNAH 1. ALL GARMENTS¹ MAY CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY EXCEPT THOSE OF GENTILES.² IF GARMENTS [WITH LEPROSY SIGNS] ARE BOUGHT FROM GENTILES THEY³ MUST BE INSPECTED AS IF THE SIGNS HAD THEN FIRST APPEARED. THE HIDES [OF THE ANIMALS] OF THE SEA CANNOT CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY. IF ONE JOINED TO THEM ANYTHING OF THAT WHICH GROWS ON LAND, EVEN IF IT IS ONLY A THREAD OR A CORD,⁴ PROVIDED IT IS OF A MATERIAL THAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, THEY ALSO BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 2. CAMEL'S HAIR AND SHEEP'S WOOL THAT HAVE BEEN HACKLED TOGETHER⁵ ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS IF THE GREATER PART IS CAMEL'S HAIR; BUT IF THE GREATER PART IS SHEEP'S WOOL THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS. IF EACH REPRESENTS A HALF⁶ THEY ARE ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS. AND THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO FLAX AND HEMP THAT HAVE BEEN HACKLED TOGETHER.⁵

MISHNAH 3. COLOURED⁷ HIDES AND GARMENTS ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS. HOUSES,⁸ WHETHER THEY ARE COLOURED OR NOT COLOURED, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS; SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: HIDES ARE [SUBJECT TO THE SAME RESTRICTIONS] AS HOUSES. A. SIMEON RULED: THOSE THAT ARE NATURALLY⁹ [COLOURED] ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT THOSE THAT ARE ARTIFICIALLY¹⁰ [DYED] ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 4. IN A GARMENT WHOSE WARP WAS COLOURED AND WHOSE WOOF WAS WHITE, OR WHOSE WOOF WAS COLOURED AND WHOSE WARP WAS WHITE, ALL DEPENDS ON WHAT IS THE MORE APPARENT. GARMENTS CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS IF THEY ARE AN INTENSE GREEN OR AN INTENSE RED. IF A LEPROSY SIGN WAS GREEN¹¹ AND IT SPREAD OUT¹² RED, OR IF IT WAS RED AND IT SPREAD OUT GREEN, IT IS UNCLEAN. IF ITS COLOUR CHANGED¹² AND THEN IT SPREAD, OR IF IT CHANGED AND IT DID NOT SPREAD, IT IS REGARDED AS IF IT HAD NOT CHANGED.¹³ R. JUDAH RULED: LET IT BE INSPECTED AS IF IT THEN APPEARED FOR THE FIRST TIME.¹⁴

MISHNAH 5. [A LEPROSY SIGN] THAT REMAINED UNCHANGED DURING THE FIRST WEEK¹⁵ MUST BE WASHED¹⁶ AND SHUT UP AGAIN. ONE THAT REMAINS UNCHANGED DURING THE SECOND WEEK MUST BE BURNED. ONE THAT SPREAD DURING THE FIRST OR THE SECOND WEEK MUST BE BURNED. IF IT BECOMES DIMMER IN THE BEGINNING,¹⁷ R. ISHMAEL RULED: IT SHOULD BE WASHED AND BE SHUT UP. BUT THE SAGES RULED: THIS IS NOT REQUIRED.¹⁸ IF THE LEPROSY SIGN BECAME DIMMER DURING THE FIRST WEEK IT MUST BE WASHED AND SHUT UP. IF IT BECAME DIMMER DURING THE SECOND WEEK IT MUST BE TORN OUT, AND THAT WHICH IS TORN OUT MUST BE BURNT, BUT IT IS NECESSARY FOR A PATCH TO BE PUT ON.¹⁹ R. NEHEMIAH RULED: A PATCH IS NOT NECESSARY.

MISHNAH 6. IF THE LEPROSY SIGN HAS REAPPEARED ON THE GARMENT,²⁰ THE PATCH IS PROTECTED;²¹ IF IT REAPPEARED ON THE PATCH THE GARMENT MUST BE BURNT.²² IF FROM THE MATERIAL OF A GARMENT THAT WAS SHUT UP²³ A PATCH WAS MADE ON A CLEAN GARMENT AND THE LEPROSY SIGN REAPPEARED ON THE GARMENT,²⁴ THE PATCH MUST BE BURNT; BUT IF IT REAPPEARED ON THE PATCH, THE FIRST GARMENT²⁴ MUST BE BURNT, AND THE PATCH SERVES THE SECOND

GARMENT WHILE THE TOKENS ARE UNDER OBSERVATION.²⁵

MISHNAH 7. IN A SUMMER GARMENT THAT HAD COLOURED AND WHITE STRIPES²⁶ A LEPROSY SIGN MAY EFFECTIVELY SPREAD²⁷ FROM ONE OF THE LATTER TO THE OTHERS.²⁸ R. ELIEZER WAS ASKED: BUT SUPPOSE THERE WAS ONLY ONE WHITE STRIPE?²⁹ HE REPLIED: I HAVE HEARD NO RULING ON THIS QUESTION. SAID R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA TO HIM: 'I WOULD SUBMIT AN ARGUMENT ON THIS'. THE OTHER REPLIED, IF THIS WOULD CONFIRM THE WORDS OF THE SAGES, WELL AND GOOD'. 'IT IS POSSIBLE', EXPLAINED THE FIRST, 'THAT IT WOULD REMAIN ON IT IN AN UNCHANGED CONDITION FOR TWO WEEKS, AND THAT WHICH REMAINS UNCHANGED ON GARMENTS FOR TWO WEEKS IS UNCLEAN'.³⁰ 'YOU ARE', THE OTHER EXCLAIMED, 'A GREAT SAGE, FOR YOU HAVE CONFIRMED THE WORDS OF THE SAGES'. A SPREADING THAT ADJOINS [A FIRST LEPROSY SIGN IS EFFECTIVE]³¹ HOWEVER SMALL IT MAY BE; ONE THAT IS Distant³² [IS EFFECTIVE' ONLY] IF IT IS OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN; AND ONE THAT REAPPEARS³³ [IS ALSO EFFECTIVE³¹ IF IT IS] OF THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN.³⁴

MISHNAH 8. THE WARP AND THE WOOF MAY FORTHWITH³⁵ CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS. R. JUDAH RULED: THE WARP, ONLY AFTER IT HAD BEEN BOILED; BUT THE WOOF, FORTHWITH; AND BUNDLES OF FLAX,³⁶ AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN BLEACHED. HOW MUCH MUST THERE BE IN A COIL³⁷ FOR IT TO BE CAPABLE OF CONTRACTING THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS? AS MUCH AS TO WEAVE FROM IT A PIECE OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS SQUARE, EITHER WARP OR WOOF, THOUGH IT IS ALL WARP OR ALL WOOF. IF IT³⁸ CONSISTED OF BROKEN THREADS³⁹ IT DOES NOT CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS. R. JUDAH RULED: EVEN IF THE THREAD WAS BROKEN ONLY IN ONE PLACE, THOUGH IT WAS KNOTTED TOGETHER, IT DOES NOT CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS.

MISHNAH 9. IF A THREAD WAS WOUND FROM ONE COIL TO ANOTHER,⁴⁰ OR FROM ONE SPOOL TO ANOTHER,⁴⁰ OR FROM THE UPPER BEAM⁴¹ TO THE LOWER BEAM,⁴⁰ AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF THE TWO WINGS OF A SHIRT,⁴² IF A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED ON THE ONE, THE OTHER REMAINS CLEAN. IF IT APPEARED ON THE SHEDDED WEFT OR ON THE STANDING WARP, THESE MAY FORTHWITH CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY. R. SIMEON RULED: THE WARP MAY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS ONLY IF IT IS CLOSELY ORDERED.

MISHNAH 10. [IF A LEPROSY SIGN] APPEARED ON THE STANDING WARP THE WEB REMAINS CLEAN; IF IT APPEARED ON THE WEB THE STANDING WARP REMAINS CLEAN. IF IT APPEARED ON A SHEET THE FRINGES ALSO MUST BE BURNT; IF IT APPEARED ON THE FRINGES THE SHEET REMAINS CLEAN. A SHIRT ON WHICH A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED AFFORDS PROTECTION TO ITS HEMS,⁴³ EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE OF PURPLE WOOL.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 11. ANY OBJECT THAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS, THOUGH INSUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS, MAY CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS; AS, FOR INSTANCE, THE SAIL OF A SHIP, A CURTAIN, THE FOREHEAD BAND OF A HAIR-NET, THE WRAPPINGS OF SCROLLS, A GIRDLE, THE STRAPS OF A SHOE OR SANDAL; IF THESE ARE AS WIDE AS A SPLIT BEAN THEY MAY CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS. A THICK CLOAK ON WHICH A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED REMAINS CLEAN, R. ELIEZER B. JACOB RULED, UNLESS THE SIGN APPEARED ON THE TEXTURE AND ON THE SOFT WOOL.⁴⁵ A SKIN BOTTLE OR A SHEPHERD'S LEATHER WALLET ARE INSPECTED IN THE POSITION IN WHICH THEY ARE USED,⁴⁶ AND A LEPROSY SIGN MAY EFFECTIVELY SPREAD⁴⁷ FROM ITS INNER SIDE TO ITS OUTER SIDE AND FROM ITS OUTER SIDE TO ITS INNER SIDE.

MISHNAH 12. IF A GARMENT⁴⁸ THAT HAD BEEN SHUT UP WAS MIXED UP WITH OTHERS,⁴⁹ ALL ARE CLEAN.⁵⁰ IF IT WAS CUT UP AND MADE INTO SHREDS,⁵¹ IT IS CLEAN, AND BENEFIT MAY BE DERIVED FROM IT; BUT IF A GARMENT THAT HAD BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAN WAS MIXED UP WITH OTHERS, ALL ARE UNCLEAN. IF IT WAS CUT UP AND MADE INTO SHREDS IT ALSO REMAINS UNCLEAN AND IT IS FORBIDDEN TO HAVE ANY BENEFIT FROM IT.⁵²

(10) Lit., 'by the hands of man'.

(11) And of the prescribed minimum.

(12) While it was shut up.

(13) Hence it is burned in the former case and shut up for a second week in the latter.

(14) A change, in his opinion causes the leprosy sign to be regarded as a new one.

(15) Of being shut up.

(16) Sc. the place of the sign alone is washed with the seven substances specified in Nid. IX, 6.

(17) When it was first submitted to the priest's inspection before he ordered its shutting up.

(18) The garment being clean in any case.

(19) Over the hole. The reason is apparent from the following MISHNAH.

(20) In a different spot.

(21) Sc. it need not be burned though the garment must be burned.

(22) The patch itself, if its size is of no less than three by three fingerbreadths, must be shut up again.

(23) Sc. a garment the colour of whose leprosy sign did not become dimmer until the second week when the place of the sign is torn out and burnt.

(24) That was shut up.

(25) The patch is shut up together with the garment as if the leprosy sign had been on the latter. The former, however, must ultimately be burnt even where the garment attained complete cleanness.

(26) Or 'checks'.

(27) To be a cause of uncleanness.

(28) The coloured stripes or checks forming no valid intervention.

(29) Which was completely covered by a leprosy sign, the rest of the garment being coloured. Why, then, should such a garment be shut up, seeing that the leprosy sign can never effectively spread?

(30) Cf. Lev. XIII, 55.

(31) To be a cause of uncleanness.

(32) From the first leprosy sign; but on the same side of the garment.

(33) After a leprosy sign that became dimmer during the second week had been torn out and the garment had been washed.

(34) In which case the entire garment must be burnt.

(35) Sc. as soon as they are woven even before they have been bleached.

- (36) The threads of which are of the same thickness for both the warp and the woof.
- (37) Of thread.
- (38) The coil.
- (39) That were not knotted together.
- (40) So that both are joined together by the threads.
- (41) Of the loom.
- (42) That are held together by a single thread.
- (43) Sc. they remain clean.
- (44) Much more so if they are of silk which cannot contract leprosy uncleanness.
- (45) The woolly hairs on the surface of the material.
- (46) So that a leprosy sign on parts that are joined together when in use is a cause of uncleanness though these parts are separated from each other when it is not in use.
- (47) To be a cause of uncleanness.
- (48) Which, e.g., had been dyed after it had contracted leprosy so that no leprosy sign on it is now distinguishable.

- (52) V. Lev. XIII, 52; the phrase 'a malignant leprosy' implying that it is forbidden for any use.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 12

MISHNAH 1. ALL HOUSES¹ MAY CONTRACT LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS,² EXCEPT THOSE OF GENTILES. IF ONE BOUGHT HOUSES FROM GENTILES,¹ ANY LEPROSY SIGNS IN THEM³ MUST BE INSPECTED AS IF THEY HAD THEN⁴ FIRST APPEARED. A ROUND HOUSE, A TRIANGULAR HOUSE, OR A HOUSE BUILT ON A SHIP,⁵ ON A RAFT⁵ OR ON FOUR BEAMS,⁵ DOES NOT CONTRACT LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS; BUT IF IT WAS FOUR-SIDED, EVEN IF IT WAS BUILT ON FOUR PILLARS,⁶ IT MAY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 2. A HOUSE ONE OF WHOSE WALLS IS COVERED WITH MARBLE,⁷ WITH ROCK,⁸ WITH BRICKS OR WITH EARTH,⁹ IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS.¹⁰ A HOUSE THAT HAD NOT IN IT¹¹ STONES, WOOD AND EARTH,¹² AND A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED IN IT, THOUGH AFTERWARDS STONES, WOOD AND EARTH WERE INTRODUCED INTO IT, REMAINS CLEAN. SO ALSO A GARMENT IN WHICH THERE WAS NO WOVEN PART OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS SQUARE AND A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED IN IT, THOUGH AFTERWARDS THERE WAS WOVEN INTO IT A PIECE OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS SQUARE, REMAINS CLEAN. A HOUSE DOES NOT CONTRACT LEPROSY UNCLEANNESS UNLESS THERE ARE IN¹ T¹¹ STONES, WOOD AND EARTH.¹²

MISHNAH 3. AND HOW MANY STONES MUST THERE BE IN IT?¹³ R. ISHMAEL RULED: FOUR.¹⁴ R. AKIBA RULED: EIGHT.¹⁵ FOR R. ISHMAEL USED TO RULE: A LEPROSY SIGN IS NO CAUSE OF UNCLEANNESS UNLESS IT APPEARED IN THE SIZE OF TWO SPLIT BEANS ON TWO STONES OR ON ONE STONE.¹⁶ R. AKIBA RULED: UNLESS IT APPEARS IN THE SIZE OF TWO SPLIT BEANS ON TWO STONES, AND NOT ON ONE STONE.¹⁷ R. ELIEZER SON OF R. SIMEON RULED: UNLESS IT APPEARS IN THE SIZE OF TWO SPLIT BEANS, ON TWO STONES, ON TWO WALLS IN A CORNER, ITS LENGTH BEING THAT OF TWO SPLIT BEANS AND ITS BREADTH THAT OF ONE SPLIT BEAN.

MISHNAH 4. THE QUANTITY OF WOOD¹⁸ MUST BE SUCH AS WOULD SUFFICE TO BE SET UNDER THE LINTEL. R. JUDAH RULED: IT MUST SUFFICE TO MAKE THE SUPPORT AT¹⁹ THE BACK OF THE LINTEL.²⁰ THE QUANTITY OF EARTH MUST BE SUCH AS

WOULD SUFFICE TO FILL UP THE SPACE BETWEEN ONE ROW OF STONES AND ANOTHER. THE WALLS OF A CATTLE-STALL OR THE WALLS OF A PARTITION²¹ DO NOT CONTRACT THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS. A HOUSE IN JERUSALEM OR IN ANY PLACE OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL DOES NOT CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY SIGNS.²²

MISHNAH 5. WHAT IS THE PROCEDURE IN THE INSPECTION OF A HOUSE?²³ THEN HE THAT OWNEETH THE HOUSE SHALL COME AND TELL THE PRIEST, SAYING, THERE SEEMETH TO ME TO BE AS IT WERE A PLAGUE IN THE HOUSE.²⁴ EVEN IF HE IS A LEARNED SAGE AND KNOWS THAT IT IS DEFINITELY A LEPROSY SIGN, HE MAY NOT SPEAK WITH CERTAINTY SAYING, A LEPROSY SIGN HAS APPEARED TO ME IN THE HOUSE', BUT ONLY, 'THERE SEEMETH TO ME TO BE AS IT WERE A PLAGUE IN THE HOUSE'. AND THE PRIEST SHALL COMMAND THAT THEY EMPTY THE HOUSE, BEFORE THE PRIEST GO IN TO SEE THE PLAGUE, THAT ALL THAT IS IN THE HOUSE BE NOT MADE UNCLEAN; AND AFTERWARD THE PRIEST SHALL GO IN TO SEE THE HOUSE;²⁵ EVEN BUNDLES OF WOOD²⁶ AND EVEN BUNDLES OF REEDS MUST BE REMOVED; SO R. JUDAH. R. SIMEON OBSERVED: THIS²⁷ IS A BUSINESS FOR AN IDLER ONLY.²⁸ SAID R. MEIR: BUT WHICH [OF HIS GOODS] COULD BECOME UNCLEAN? IF YOU WERE TO SAY, 'HIS ARTICLES OF WOOD, OF CLOTH OR OF METAL', THESE, SURELY, CAN BE IMMERSSED IN A RITUAL BATH WHEN THEY BECOME CLEAN. WHAT IS IT THAT THE TORAH HAS SPARED? HIS EARTHENWARE, EVEN HIS CRUSE AND HIS EWER.²⁹ IF THE TORAH THUS SPARED A MAN'S HUMBLE POSSESSIONS, HOW MUCH MORE SO WOULD IT SPARE HIS CHERISHED POSSESSIONS! IF FOR HIS MATERIAL POSSESSIONS SO MUCH CONSIDERATION IS SHOWN, HOW MUCH MORE SO FOR THE LIFE OF HIS SONS AND DAUGHTERS! IF FOR THE POSSESSIONS OF A WICKED MAN³⁰ SUCH CARE IS EXERCISED, HOW MUCH MORE SO FOR THE POSSESSIONS OF A RIGHTEOUS ONE!

MISHNAH 6. [THE PRIEST] MUST NOT GO INTO³¹ HIS OWN HOUSE TO SHUT UP,³² NOR MAY HE STAND WITHIN THE HOUSE WHEREIN IS THE LEPROSY SIGN TO SHUT IT UP. HE MUST RATHER STAND AT THE DOOR OF THE HOUSE WHEREIN IS THE LEPROSY SIGN, AND SHUTS IT FROM THERE;³³ FOR IT IS SAID, THEN THE PRIEST SHALL GO OUT OF THE HOUSE TO THE DOOR OF THE HOUSE, AND SHUT UP THE HOUSE SEVEN DAYS.³⁴ HE COMES AGAIN AT THE END OF THE WEEK AND INSPECTS THE SIGN. IF IT HAS SPREAD, THEN THE PRIEST SHALL COMMAND THAT THEY TAKE OUT THE STONES IN WHICH THE PLAGUE IS, AND CAST THEM INTO AN UNCLEAN PLACE WITHOUT THE CITY.³⁵ AND THEY SHALL TAKE OTHER STONES, AND PUT THEM IN THE PLACE OF THOSE STONES; AND HE SHALL TAKE OTHER MORTAR, AND SHALL PLASTER THE HOUSE.³⁶ HE MUST NOT TAKE STONES FROM THE ONE SIDE AND BRING THEM TO THE OTHER; NOR EARTH FROM THE ONE SIDE AND BRING IT TO THE OTHER; NOR LIME FROM ANYWHERE.³⁷ HE MUST NOT BRING ONE STONE TO REPLACE TWO, NOR TWO TO REPLACE ONE. HE MUST RATHER BRING TWO TO REPLACE TWO OR TO REPLACE THREE OR TO REPLACE FOUR. FROM THIS TEXT³⁸ IT HAS BEEN INFERRED: WOE TO THE WICKED,³⁹ WOE TO HIS NEIGHBOUR: BOTH⁴⁰ MUST TAKE OUT THE STONES,³⁵ BOTH MUST SCRAPE THE WALLS,⁴¹ AND BOTH MUST BRING THE NEW STONES.⁴² HE⁴³ ALONE, HOWEVER, BRINGS THE EARTH, FOR IT IS SAID, AND HE⁴⁴ SHALL TAKE OTHER EARTH,⁴⁵ AND PLASTER THE HOUSE;⁴² HIS NEIGHBOUR NEED NOT JOIN WITH HIM IN IN THE PLASTERING.

MISHNAH 7. HE⁴⁶ COMES AGAIN AT THE END OF THE WEEK⁴⁷ AND INSPECTS THE SIGN. IF IT HAS RETURNED, HE SHALL BREAK DOWN THE HOUSE, THE STONES OF IT, AND THE TIMBER THEREOF, AND ALL THE MORTAR OF THE HOUSE; AND HE SHALL

CARRY THEM FORTH OUT OF THE CITY INTO AN UNCLEAN PLACE.⁴⁸ A SPREADING THAT IS ADJOINING⁴⁹ IS EFFECTIVE⁵⁰ HOWEVER SMALL IT MAY BE; ONE THAT IS DISTANT MUST BE⁵⁰ NO LESS THAN THE SIZE OF A SPLIT BEAN; AND A LEPROSY SIGN THAT RETURNS IN HOUSES MUST BE⁵⁰ NO LESS THAN THE SIZE OF TWO SPLIT BEANS.⁵¹

MISHNAH 1. THERE ARE TEN [CASES OF LEPROSY IN] HOUSES: IF DURING THE FIRST WEEK A LEPROSY SIGN BECAME FAINT OR DISAPPEARED,¹ IT² MUST BE SCRAPED AND IS THEN CLEAN. IF DURING THE SECOND WEEK IT BECAME FAINT OR DISAPPEARED,³ IT² MUST BE SCRAPED AND THE OWNER MUST BRING THE BIRDS.⁴ IF IT SPREAD DURING THE FIRST WEEK, THE STONES MUST BE TAKEN OUT AND THE WALL SCRAPED AND⁵ PLASTERED, AND ANOTHER WEEK MUST BE ALLOWED.⁶ IF IT THEN RETURNED THE ENTIRE HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN; IF IT DID NOT RETURN, THE BIRDS⁴ MUST BE BROUGHT.³ IF IT REMAINED UNCHANGED DURING THE FIRST WEEK BUT SPREAD DURING THE SECOND WEEK, THE STONES MUST BE TAKEN OUT AND THE WALL SCRAPED AND⁵ PLASTERED, AND ANOTHER WEEK MUST BE ALLOWED.⁶ IF IT THEN RETURNED, THE HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN; IF IT DID NOT RETURN THE BIRDS⁴ MUST BE BROUGHT.³ IF IT REMAINED UNCHANGED IN BOTH WEEKS, THE STONES MUST BE TAKEN OUT, AND THE WALL SCRAPED AND⁵ PLASTERED, AND A WEEK MUST BE ALLOWED.⁶ IF IT THEN RETURNED THE HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN; IF IT DID NOT RETURN, THE BIRDS⁴ MUST BE BROUGHT.³ IF BEFORE CLEANNESS WAS ATTAINED THROUGH THE BIRDS A NEW LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED, THE HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN; BUT IF IT APPEARED AFTER CLEANNESS THROUGH THE BIRDS HAD BEEN ATTAINED, IT MUST BE INSPECTED AS IF IT HAD APPEARED FOR THE FIRST TIME.

MISHNAH 2. IN THE CASE OF A STONE IN A CORNER,⁷ WHEN THE STONE IS TAKEN OUT IT MUST BE TAKEN OUT WHOLLY; BUT WHEN [THE HOUSE IS] PULLED DOWN ITS OWNER PULLS DOWN HIS OWN [PART]⁸ AND LEAVES THAT WHICH BELONGS TO HIS NEIGHBOUR. THUS IT FOLLOWS THAT THERE ARE GREATER RESTRICTIONS FOR TAKING OUT⁹ THAN FOR PULLING DOWN.¹⁰ R. ELIEZER RULED: IF A HOUSE IS BUILT OF ROWS OF BIG STONES¹¹ AND SMALL STONES,¹² AND A LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED ON A BIG STONE,¹³ ALL OF IT¹⁴ MUST BE TAKEN OUT; BUT IF IT APPEARED ON THE SMALL STONES, HE¹⁵ TAKES OUT HIS STONES AND LEAVES THOSE OF HIS NEIGHBOUR.

MISHNAH 3. IF A HOUSE IN WHICH THERE APPEARED A LEPROSY SIGN HAD AN UPPER ROOM ABOVE IT, THE BEAMS¹⁶ ARE ALLOWED TO THE UPPER ROOM.¹⁷ IF THE LEPROSY SIGN APPEARED IN THE UPPER ROOM THE BEAMS¹⁶ ARE ALLOWED TO THE LOWER ROOM.¹⁸ IF THERE WAS NO UPPER ROOM ABOVE IT, ITS STONES AND WOOD AND EARTH MUST BE PULLED DOWN WITH IT. ONE MAY, HOWEVER, SAVE THE FRAMES¹⁹ AND THE WINDOW LATTICES. R. JUDAH RULED: A FRAME²⁰ THAT IS BUILT OVER THE HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN WITH IT. ITS STONES AND WOOD AND EARTH CONVEY UNCLEANNESS IF THEY ARE OF THE MINIMUM SIZE OF AN OLIVE. R. ELIEZER HISMA RULED: WHATEVER THEIR SIZE.

MISHNAH 4. A HOUSE THAT IS SHUT UP²¹ CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS²² FROM ITS

INNER SIDE;²³ AND ONE THAT HAS BEEN CERTIFIED UNCLEAR, BOTH FROM ITS INNER SIDE AND FROM ITS OUTER SIDE. BOTH,²⁴ HOWEVER, CONVEY UNCLEANNESS IF ONE ENTERS IN.²⁵

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN BUILDS STONES FROM A HOUSE THAT WAS SHUT UP²⁶ INTO A CLEAN ONE,²⁷ AND THE LEPROSY SIGN RETURNED TO THE [FORMER] HOUSE, THE STONES MUST BE TAKEN OUT. IF IT RETURNED TO THE STONES,²⁸ THE FIRST HOUSE MUST BE PULLED DOWN, AND THE STONES SERVE THE SECOND HOUSE WHILE THE TOKENS ARE UNDER OBSERVATION.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. IF A HOUSE OVERSHADOWED A LEPROUS HOUSE, AND SO ALSO IF A TREE OVERSHADOWED A LEPROUS HOUSE, ANY ONE WHO ENTERS THE OUTER [OF THE TWO] REMAINS CLEAN; SO R. ELEAZAR³⁰ B. AZARIAH. R. ELIEZER³¹ OBSERVED: IF ONE STONE OF IT³² CAUSES UNCLEANNESS BY ENTERING,³³ SHOULD NOT THE HOUSE ITSELF CAUSE UNCLEANNESS BY ENTERING?³⁴

MISHNAH 7. IF AN UNCLEAR MAN³⁵ STOOD UNDER A TREE AND A CLEAN MAN PASSED BY, THE LATTER BECOMES UNCLEAR. IF A CLEAN MAN STOOD UNDER A TREE AND AN UNCLEAR ONE³⁵ PASSED BY, THE FORMER REMAINS CLEAN IF THE LATTER STOOD STILL, THE FORMER BECOMES UNCLEAR. SIMILARLY IN THE CASE OF A LEPROUS STONE³⁶ HE³⁷ REMAINS CLEAN; BUT IF IT WAS SET DOWN³⁸ HE BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN PUT HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY INSIDE AN UNCLEAR HOUSE,³⁹ HE BECOMES UNCLEAR; AND IF AN UNCLEAR MAN³⁹ PUT HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY INSIDE A CLEAN HOUSE HE CAUSES IT TO BE UNCLEAR. IF OF A CLEAN CLOAK A PART THAT WAS THREE FINGERBREADTHS SQUARE WAS PUT INSIDE AN UNCLEAR HOUSE, THE CLOAK BECOMES UNCLEAR; AND AN UNCLEAR [CLOAK], OF WHICH EVEN ONLY THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE WAS PUT INSIDE A CLEAN HOUSE, CAUSES THE LATTER TO BE UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN ENTERED A LEPROUS HOUSE, CARRYING HIS CLOTHES UPON HIS SHOULDERS, AND HIS SANDALS AND RINGS IN HIS HANDS,⁴⁰ BOTH HE AND THEY BECOME UNCLEAR FORTHWITH.⁴¹ IF, HOWEVER, HE WAS WEARING HIS CLOTHES AND HAD HIS SANDALS ON HIS FEET AND HIS RINGS ON HIS HANDS, HE BECOMES UNCLEAR FORTHWITH, BUT THEY⁴² REMAIN CLEAN,⁴³ UNLESS HE STAYED AS MUCH TIME AS IS REQUIRED FOR THE EATING⁴⁴ OF HALF A LOAF⁴⁵ OF WHEATEN BREAD BUT NOT OF BARLEY BREAD,⁴⁶ WHILE IN A RECLINING POSTURE⁴⁷ AND EATING WITH SOME CONDIMENT.⁴⁸

MISHNAH 10. IF A MAN WAS STANDING WITHIN;⁴⁹ STRETCHING HIS HANDS OUTSIDE, WITH HIS RINGS ON HIS HANDS,⁵⁰ IF HE STAYED AS MUCH TIME AS IS REQUIRED FOR THE EATING OF HALF A LOAF, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.⁵¹ IF HE WAS STANDING OUTSIDE, STRETCHING HIS HANDS INSIDE, WITH HIS RINGS ON HIS HANDS,⁵⁰ R. JUDAH RULES THAT THEY⁵² ARE UNCLEAR FORTHWITH, BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY AFTER HE STAYED THERE AS MUCH TIME AS IS REQUIRED FOR THE EATING OF HALF A LOAF.⁵³ THEY⁵⁴ SAID TO R. JUDAH: IF WHEN ALL HIS BODY IS UNCLEAR⁵⁵ HE DOES NOT RENDER THAT WHICH IS ON HIM UNCLEAR UNLESS HE STAYED THERE LONG ENOUGH TO EAT HALF A LOAF, IS THERE NOT MORE REASON THAT, WHERE NOT ALL HIS BODY IS UNCLEAR,⁵⁶ HE SHOULD NOT RENDER THAT WHICH IS ON HIM UNCLEAR UNLESS HE STAYED THERE LONG ENOUGH TO EAT

MISHNAH 11. IF A LEPER ENTERED A HOUSE ALL VESSELS IN IT, EVEN TO THE HEIGHT OF THE ROOF BEAMS, BECOME UNCLEAN. R. SIMEON RULED: ONLY TO A HEIGHT OF FOUR CUBITS.⁵⁸ VESSELS⁵⁹ BECOME UNCLEAN FORTHWITH. R. JUDAH RULED: ONLY IF THE LEPER STAYED THERE AS MUCH TIME AS IS REQUIRED FOR THE LIGHTING OF A LAMP.

MISHNAH 12. IF HE⁶⁰ ENTERS A SYNAGOGUE, A PARTITION TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH AND FOUR CUBITS WIDE MUST BE MADE FOR HIM.⁶¹ HE MUST ENTER FIRST AND COME OUT LAST.⁶² ANY VESSEL THAT AFFORDS PROTECTION⁶³ BY HAVING A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE⁶⁴ AFFORDS PROTECTION BY A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER IN A LEPROUS HOUSE; AND WHATSOEVER AFFORDS PROTECTION,⁶⁵ WHEN COVERED,⁶⁶ IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE⁶⁴ AFFORDS PROTECTION WHEN COVERED IN A LEPROUS HOUSE; SO R. MEIR. R. JOSE RULED: ANY VESSEL THAT AFFORDS PROTECTION BY HAVING A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE AFFORDS PROTECTION WHEN COVERED⁶⁶ IN A LEPROUS HOUSE; AND WHATSOEVER AFFORDS PROTECTION WHEN COVERED IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE REMAINS CLEAN EVEN WHEN UNCOVERED IN A LEPROUS HOUSE.

- (60) A leper (cf. prev. MISHNAH).
- (61) One of smaller measurements constitutes no valid protection for the remainder of the synagogue.
- (62) Since otherwise, should he happen to stand still in his passage from the door to the partition, he would render the people in the synagogue unclean.
- (63) Cf. Kelim X, 1.
- (64) Sc. under a roof that overshadows a corpse.
- (65) Cf. Oh. V, 6.
- (66) Even when the cover was not tightly fitting.

Mishna - Mas. Nega'im Chapter 14

MISHNAH 1. HOW WAS A LEPER CLEANSED?¹ A NEW EARTHENWARE FLASK WAS BROUGHT AND A QUARTER OF A LOG OF LIVING WATER² WAS PUT IN IT. TWO UNDOMESTICATED³ BIRDS ARE ALSO BROUGHT. ONE OF THESE WAS SLAUGHTERED OVER THE EARTHENWARE VESSEL AND OVER THE LIVING WATER, A HOLE WAS DUG AND IT WAS BURIED IN HIS⁴ PRESENCE. THEREUPON CEDARWOOD, HYSSOP AND SCARLET WOOL WERE TAKEN AND BOUND TOGETHER WITH THE PROJECTING ENDS OF THE STRIP OF WOOL.⁵ NEAR TO THESE WERE BROUGHT THE TIPS OF THE WINGS AND THE TIP OF THE TAIL OF THE SECOND BIRD, AND ALL TOGETHER WERE DIPPED,⁶ AND THEREWITH THE BACK OF THE LEPER'S HAND WAS SPRINKLED UPON

SEVEN TIMES. SOME SAY THAT THE SPRINKLING WAS DONE UPON HIS⁴ FOREHEAD. IN THE SAME MANNER ONE SPRINKLED THE LINTEL OF A HOUSE⁷ FROM THE OUTSIDE.

MISHNAH 2. WHEN HE WAS ABOUT TO SET FREE THE LIVING BIRD,⁸ HE DID NOT TURN HIS FACE TOWARDS THE SEA OR TOWARDS THE CITY OR TOWARDS THE WILDERNESS, FOR IT IS SAID, BUT HE SHALL LET GO THE LIVING BIRD OUT OF THE CITY INTO THE OPEN FIELD.⁹ WHEN HE WAS ABOUT TO CUT OFF THE HAIR OF THE LEPER HE PASSED THE RAZOR OVER THE WHOLE OF HIS SKIN,¹⁰ AND THE LATTER WASHED HIS GARMENTS AND IMMERSSED HIMSELF. HE IS THEN CLEAN SO FAR AS NOT TO CONVEY UNCLEANNESS BY ENTERING IN,¹¹ BUT HE STILL CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS LIKE A [DEAD] CREEPING THING.¹² HE MAY ENTER WITHIN THE WALL,¹³ BUT MUST KEEP AWAY FROM HIS HOUSE FOR SEVEN DAYS, AND¹⁴ HE IS FORBIDDEN MARITAL INTERCOURSE.

MISHNAH 3. ON THE SEVENTH DAY HE CUT OFF HIS HAIR A SECOND TIME IN THE MANNER OF THE FIRST CUTTING, HE WASHED HIS GARMENTS AND IMMERSSED HIMSELF, AND THEN HE WAS CLEAN IN SO FAR AS NOT TO CONVEY UNCLEANNESS AS A DEAD CREEPING THING, BUT HE WAS STILL LIKE A TEBUL YOM.¹⁵ HE¹⁶ MAY EAT SECOND TITHE; AND AFTER HE HAD AWAITED SUNSET HE MAY ALSO EAT TERUMAH. AFTER HE HAD BROUGHT¹⁷ HIS OFFERING OF ATONEMENT, HE MAY ALSO EAT HALLOWED THINGS. THUS THERE ARE THREE GRADES IN THE PURIFICATION OF A LEPER¹⁸ AND THREE GRADES IN THAT OF A WOMAN AFTER CHILD BIRTH.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. THREE CLASSES OF PERSONS CUT OFF THEIR HAIR,²⁰ AND THEIR CUTTING OF IT IS A COMMANDMENT: THE NAZIRITE,²¹ THE LEPER,²² AND THE LEVITES.²³ ALL THESE, FURTHERMORE, IF THEY CUT THEIR HAIR BUT NOT WITH A RAZOR, OR IF THEY LEFT BUT TWO HAIRS, THEIR ACT IS OF NO VALIDITY.

MISHNAH 5. THE TWO BIRDS²⁴ MUST, ACCORDING TO THE COMMANDMENT, BE ALIKE IN APPEARANCE, IN SIZE AND IN PRICE; AND THEY MUST BE PURCHASED AT THE SAME TIME. BUT THOUGH THEY ARE NOT ALIKE THEY ARE VALID; AND IF ONE WAS PURCHASED ON ONE DAY AND THE OTHER ON THE MORROW THEY ARE ALSO VALID. IF AFTER ONE OF THE BIRDS HAD BEEN SLAUGHTERED IT WAS FOUND THAT IT WAS NOT UNDOMESTICATED, A FELLOW MUST BE PURCHASED FOR THE SECOND, AND THE FIRST MAY BE EATEN. IF AFTER IT HAD BEEN SLAUGHTERED IT WAS FOUND TO BETREFAH, A FELLOW MUST BE PURCHASED FOR THE SECOND AND THE FIRST MAY BE MADE USE OF.²⁵ IF THE BLOOD²⁶ HAD BEEN POURED AWAY²⁷ THE BIRD THAT WAS TO BE LET GO²⁸ MUST BE LEFT TO DIE. IF THE ONE THAT WAS TO BE LET GO DIED, THE BLOOD²⁶ MUST BE POURED AWAY.

MISHNAH 6. THE PRESCRIBED MEASUREMENTS OF THE CEDARWOOD²⁴ ARE ONE CUBIT IN LENGTH, AND IN THICKNESS A QUARTER OF THAT OF THE LEG OF A BED, WHEN ONE LEG IS DIVIDED INTO TWO HALVES AND THESE TWO INTO FOUR.²⁹ THE PRESCRIBED KIND OF HYSSOP IS ONE THAT IS NEITHER THE GREEK HYSSOP NOR STIBIUM HYSSOP NOR ROMAN HYSSOP NOR WILD HYSSOP NOR ANY KIND OF HYSSOP THAT HAS A SPECIAL NAME.

MISHNAH 7. ON THE EIGHTH DAY³⁰ HE³¹ BROUGHT THREE BEASTS: A SIN-OFFERING, A GUILT-OFFERING AND A BURNT-OFFERING; AND A POOR MAN³² BROUGHT A SIN-OFFERING OF A BIRD AND A BURNT-OFFERING OF A BIRD.³³

MISHNAH 8. APPROACHING THE GUILT-OFFERING HE PUT HIS TWO HANDS ON IT AND THEN SLAUGHTERED IT. TWO PRIESTS RECEIVED ITS BLOOD, THE ONE IN A VESSEL AND THE OTHER IN HIS HAND.³⁴ HE WHO RECEIVED IT IN THE VESSEL PROCEEDED TO SPRINKLE IT ON THE WALL OF THE ALTAR, WHILE THE OTHER WHO RECEIVED IT IN HIS HAND APPROACHED THE LEPER. THE LEPER IN THE MEANTIME HAD IMMERSSED HIMSELF IN THE CHAMBER OF THE LEPERS,³⁵ AND CAME AND TOOK UP A POSITION AT THE NIKANOR GATE.³⁶ R. JUDAH STATED: HE DID NOT REQUIRE IMMERSION.³⁷

MISHNAH 9. [THE LEPER] PUT IN HIS HEAL³⁸ AND [THE PRIEST] APPLIED [THE BLOOD] TO THE TIP OF HIS EAR; [HE PUT IN] HIS HAND AND [THE PRIEST] APPLIED [THE BLOOD] TO THE THUMB OF HIS HAND; [HE PUT IN] HIS FOOT AND [THE PRIEST] APPLIED [THE BLOOD] TO THE GREAT TOE OF HIS FOOT. R. JUDAH STATED: HE PUT IN ALL THE THREE TOGETHER. IF HE HAD NO THUMB ON HIS HAND OR NO GREAT TOE ON HIS FOOT OR NO RIGHT EAR HE COULD NEVER ATTAIN CLEANNES.³⁹ R. ELIEZER RULED: [THE BLOOD] IS APPLIED TO THE PLACE WHERE THEY⁴⁰ WERE ORIGINALLY. R. SIMEON RULED: IF IT WAS APPLIED TO THE LEFT SIDE, THE OBLIGATION HAS BEEN FULFILLED.

MISHNAH 10. [THE PRIEST] THEN TOOK SOME [OF THE CONTENTS] OF THE LOG OF OIL⁴¹ AND POURED IT INTO HIS COLLEAGUE'S HAND;⁴² BUT EVEN IF HE POURED IT INTO HIS OWN HAND, THE OBLIGATION IS FULFILLED. HE THEN DIPPED [HIS RIGHT FOREFINGER] IN THE OIL AND SPRINKLED IT SEVEN TIMES TOWARDS THE HOLY OF HOLIES, DIPPING IT FOR EVERY SPRINKLING. HE THEN APPROACHED THE LEPER, AND TO THE SAME PLACES THAT HE APPLIED THE BLOOD HE NOW APPLIED THE OIL, FOR IT IS SAID, UPON THE PLACE OF THE BLOOD OF THE GUILT-OFFERING. AND THE REST OF THE OIL THAT IS IN THE PRIEST'S HAND HE SHALL PUT UPON THE HEAD OF HIM THAT IS TO BE CLEANSSED TO MAKE ATONEMENT.⁴³ THUS IF HE 'PUT UPON', ATONEMENT IS MADE, BUT IF HE DID NOT 'PUT UPON', NO ATONEMENT IS MADE; SO R. AKIBA. R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULED: THESE⁴⁴ ARE BUT THE RESIDUE OF THE PRECEPT⁴⁵ AND, THEREFORE, WHETHER HE PUT UPON OR DID NOT 'PUT UPON', ATONEMENT IS MADE,⁴⁶ ONLY TO HIM⁴⁷ IT IS ACCOUNTED AS IF HE MADE NO ATONEMENT.⁴⁸ IF ANY OIL WAS MISSING FROM THE LOG BEFORE IT WAS POURED OUT⁴⁹ IT MAY BE FILLED UP AGAIN; IF AFTER IT WAS POURED OUT, OTHER OIL⁵⁰ MUST BE BROUGHT ANEW; SO R. AKIBA. R. SIMEON RULED: IF ANY OIL WAS MISSING FROM THE LOG BEFORE IT WAS APPLIED,⁵¹ IT MAY BE FILLED UP; BUT IF AFTER IT HAD BEEN APPLIED, OTHER OIL⁵⁰ MUST BE BROUGHT ANEW.

MISHNAH 11. IF A LEPER BROUGHT HIS SACRIFICE AS A POOR MAN⁵² AND HE BECAME RICH, OR AS A RICH MAN⁵³ AND HE BECAME POOR, ALL DEPENDS ON THE SIN-OFFERING;⁵⁴ SO R. SIMEON. R. JUDAH RULED: ALL DEPENDS ON THE GUILT-OFFERING.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 12. A POOR LEPER WHO BROUGHT THE SACRIFICE OF A RICH MAN HAS FULFILLED HIS DUTY; BUT A RICH LEPER THAT BROUGHT THE SACRIFICE OF A POOR MAN HAS NOT FULFILLED HIS DUTY. A MAN⁵⁶ MAY BRING A POOR MAN'S SACRIFICE FOR HIS SON, HIS DAUGHTER, HIS BONDMAN OR BONDWOMAN, AND THEREBY ENABLE THEM TO EAT OF THE OFFERINGS.⁵⁷ R. JUDAH RULED:⁵⁸ FOR HIS WIFE ALSO⁵⁹ HE MUST BRING THE SACRIFICE OF A RICH MAN; AND THE SAME APPLIES TO ANY OTHER SACRIFICE TO WHICH SHE IS LIABLE.

MISHNAH 13. IF THE SACRIFICES OF TWO LEPERS WERE MIXED UP AND AFTER THE SACRIFICE OF ONE OF THEM HAD BEEN OFFERED ONE OF THE LEPERS DIED, — THIS⁶⁰ IS WHAT THE MEN OF ALEXANDRIA ASKED OF R. JOSHUA. HE ANSWERED THEM: LET HIM ASSIGN⁶¹ HIS POSSESSIONS TO ANOTHER PERSON,⁶² AND BRING THE POOR MAN'S SACRIFICE.⁶³

(13) Of Jerusalem.
(14) So Elijah Wilna. Aliter: 'viz'. (Maim. Bert. and L.).
(15) Who disqualifies terumah.
(16) Like a tebul yom.
(17) On the day following.
(18) Viz., after the first hair cutting he no longer conveys uncleanness by entering in; after the second hair cutting and the sunset of that day he may also eat terumah; and after he had brought the prescribed offering he may also eat hallowed things.
(19) Cf. Lev. XII, 2ff. After seven days and fourteen days from the birth of a male and a female respectively she is clean for her husband; after immersion (fourty and eighty days after the birth of a male and a female respectively) and the sunset on that day she is also clean for terumah; and after she had brought her prescribed offering she may also eat hallowed things (Elijah Wilna).

(37) On the eighth day, since he had once immersed himself on the seventh.
(38) From the Nikanor Gate into the Court of the Israelites whither he was not yet allowed to enter.
(39) This, however, applies only where the limb was lost after he became unclean or (according to another opinion) after he reached the stage of undergoing the ceremonial of cleansing.
(40) The missing limbs.

- (41) Cf. Lev. XIV, 15.
- (42) A fellow priest's.
- (43) Lev. XIV, 28f.
- (44) The applications spoken of.
- (45) Sc. they are not essentials.
- (46) And the leper attains cleanness.
- (47) The priest.
- (48) Since he did not carry out the commandment in all its details.
- (49) Into the priest's hand.
- (50) To make up a full log.
- (51) To the prescribed limbs of the leper.
- (52) A bird. Cf. Ibid. XIV, 21.
- (53) A beast.
- (54) I.e., the condition of the man when he offered his sin-offering. If he was poor at the time and brought the sin-offering of a poor man (a bird), the burnt-offering that is brought after it must also be that of a poor man (a bird) although he became rich in the meantime. If he was rich at the time and brought the sin-offering of a rich man (a ewe lamb), the burnt-offering also must be that for a rich man (a he-lamb) although he became poor in the meantime. The guilt-offering does not come under consideration since it is the same for both rich and poor.
- (55) Which is the first to be offered. The condition of the man at that moment determines the value of the sin — and the burnt-offerings that follow it. Both R. Simeon and A. Judah derive their rulings from an interpretation of a Scriptural text.
- (56) Even if rich.
- (57) Cf. supra XIV, 3.
- (58) With reference to the ruling supra that a rich leper cannot fulfil his duty by bringing the sacrifice of a poor man.
- (59) A wife's condition being determined by that of her husband.
- (60) Sc. what is to be done by the surviving leper that he should attain his cleanness. He cannot attain it by the offering of the live sin-offering, since it might not be his but the dead man's; and he cannot rely upon the one that was offered, since that one might have been the dead man's and not his. He cannot bring another sin-offering, since the one that was already offered might possibly have been his, and the new animal brought as a sin-offering would in consequence remain unconsecrated and, therefore, forbidden to be offered on the altar.
- (61) Temporarily.
- (62) Thus becoming poor for the time being.
- (63) A bird; which, unlike a beast, even if it is only an uncertain offering may be offered up on the altar, v. Nid. 69b.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. [SOMETIMES] TWO [SERIES OF OBJECTS CAN] BE DEFILED THROUGH A CORPSE,¹ ONE BEING DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT AND ONE BEING DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING.² [SOMETIMES] THREE [SERIES CAN] BE DEFILED THROUGH A CORPSE, TWO BEING DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT AND ONE WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING. [SOMETIMES] FOUR [SERIES CAN] BE DEFILED THROUGH A CORPSE, THREE BEING DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT AND ONE WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING. HOW [IS THE CASE OF] TWO [SERIES TO BE PRESENTED]? A PERSON WHO TOUCHES A CORPSE IS DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT AND A PERSON WHO TOUCHES HIM IS DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING.³

MISHNAH 2. HOW [IS THE CASE OF] THREE [SERIES TO BE PRESENTED]? VESSELS TOUCHING A CORPSE⁴ AND [OTHER] VESSELS [TOUCHING THESE] VESSELS ARE DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT, THE THIRD [SERIES]. WHETHER [CONSISTING OF] PERSONS OR VESSELS, IS DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING.

MISHNAH 3. HOW [IS THE CASE OF] FOUR [SERIES TO BE PRESENTED]? VESSELS TOUCHING A CORPSE, A PERSON [TOUCHING THESE] VESSELS, AND [OTHER] VESSELS [TOUCHING THIS] PERSON,⁵ ARE DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT. THE FOURTH [SERIES], WHETHER [CONSISTING OF] PERSONS OR VESSELS, IS DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING. R. AKIBA SAID: I HAVE [A CASE OF] A FIFTH SERIES, [IF] A PEG⁶ WAS FIXED IN A TENT, THE TENT,⁷ THE PEG,⁸ A PERSON TOUCHING THE PEG⁹ AND VESSELS [TOUCHING] THE PERSON¹⁰ ARE DEFILED WITH A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT. THE FIFTH [SERIES], WHETHER [CONSISTING OF] PERSONS OR VESSELS, IS DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL THE] EVENING. [THE SAGES] SAID TO HIM: THE TENT IS NOT RECKONED.¹¹

MISHNAH 4. [BOTH] PERSONS AND VESSELS CAN BE DEFILED THROUGH A CORPSE.¹² A GREATER STRINGENCY [APPLIES IN SOME CASES] TO PERSONS THAN TO VESSELS AND [IN OTHER CASES] TO VESSELS THAN TO PERSONS; FOR WITH VESSELS [THERE CAN BE] THREE [SERIES OF DEFILEMENT].¹³ WHEREAS WITH PERSONS [THERE CAN BE ONLY] TWO.¹⁴ A GREATER STRINGENCY APPLIES TO PERSONS, FOR WHENEVER THEY FORM AN INTERMEDIATE [SERIES] THERE CAN BE FOUR [SERIES].¹⁵ WHEREAS WHEN THEY DO NOT FORM AN INTERMEDIATE [SERIES] THERE CAN BE [ONLY] THREE.

MISHNAH 5. [BOTH] PERSONS AND GARMENTS CAN BE DEFILED BY A ZAB.¹⁶ A GREATER STRINGENCY [APPLIES IN SOME CASES] TO PERSONS THAN TO GARMENTS AND [IN OTHER CASES] TO GARMENTS THAN TO PERSONS; FOR A PERSON WHO TOUCHES A ZAB CAN DEFILE GARMENTS,¹⁷ WHEREAS GARMENTS THAT TOUCH A ZAB¹⁸ CANNOT DEFILE [OTHER] GARMENTS. A GREATER STRINGENCY [APPLIES] TO GARMENTS, IN AS MUCH AS GARMENTS WHICH FORM THE SUPPORT OF A ZAB CAN DEFILE PERSONS,¹⁹ WHEREAS A PERSON WHO FORMS THE SUPPORT OF A ZAB CAN NOT DEFILE²⁰ [OTHER] PERSONS.

MISHNAH 6. A PERSON CAN NOT DEFILE [AS A CORPSE] UNTIL HIS SOUL IS GONE FORTH, SO THAT EVEN IF HE HAS HIS ARTERIES SEVERED OR EVEN IF HE IS IN HIS

LAST AGONIES HE²¹ [STILL] MAKES LEVIRATE MARRIAGE OBLIGATORY²² AND LIBERATES FROM LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.²³ QUALIFIES [HIS MOTHER]²⁴ FOR EATING TERUMAH²⁵ AND DISQUALIFIES [HIS MOTHER]²⁶ FROM EATING TERUMAH. SIMILARLY IN THE CASE OF CATTLE OR WILD ANIMALS, THEY CANNOT DEFILE UNTIL THEIR SOUL IS GONE FORTH. IF THEIR HEADS HAVE BEEN CUT OFF, EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE MOVING CONVULSIVELY, THEY ARE UNCLEAN;²⁷ [MOVING. THAT IS TO SAY.] LIKE A LIZARD'S TAIL, WHICH MOVES CONVULSIVELY.

MISHNAH 7. MEMBERS²⁸ [OF THE BODY] HAVE NO [RESTRICTION AS TO] SIZE: EVEN LESS THAN AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF A CORPSE. OR LESS THAN AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF CARRION, OR LESS THAN A LENTIL-SIZED PORTION OF A REPTILE CAN DEFILE,²⁹ [EACH AFTER THE MANNER OF] THEIR RESPECTIVE DEFILEMENTS.³⁰

MISHNAH 8. THERE ARE TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY-EIGHT MEMBERS IN A HUMAN BODY: THIRTY IN THE FOOT, [THAT IS] SIX TO EVERY TOE,³¹ TEN IN THE ANKLE, TWO IN THE SHIN, FIVE IN THE KNEE, ONE IN THE THIGH, THREE IN THE HIP,³² ELEVEN RIBS, THIRTY IN THE HAND, [THAT IS] SIX TO EVERY FINGER, TWO IN THE FORE-ARM, TWO IN THE ELBOW, ONE IN THE UPPER ARM AND FOUR IN THE SHOULDER, [THUS MAKING] ONE HUNDRED AND ONE ON THE ONE SIDE [OF THE BODY] AND ONE HUNDRED AND ONE ON THE OTHER; THEN EIGHTEEN VERTEBRAE IN THE SPINE, NINE [MEMBERS] IN THE HEAD, EIGHT IN THE NECK, SIX IN THE KEY OF THE HEART,³³ AND FIVE IN THE GENITALS. EACH ONE [OF THESE MEMBERS] CAN DEFILE BY CONTACT, CARRIAGE OR OVERSHADOWING. WHEN IS THIS SO? WHEN THEY HAVE UPON THEM [THEIR] APPROPRIATE FLESH,³⁴ BUT IF THEY HAVE NOT [THEIR] APPROPRIATE FLESH UPON THEM, THEY³⁵ CAN DEFILE BY CONTACT AND CARRIAGE BUT CANNOT DEFILE³⁶ BY OVERSHADOWING.³⁷

(1) In concatenation, the first series of objects being defiled directly by the corpse, the second by the first after this has ceased to be in contact with the corpse, and so on.

(2) These two periods of defilement are mentioned in Num. XIX, 11 and 22.

(3) A corpse possesses the highest power of defiling, being regarded as the originating source, the 'father of fathers' of defilement (אבי אבות הטומאה). It can confer a generating defilement 'a father of defilement (אב הטומאה) on objects with which it comes into connection. Both these degrees of defilement require a cleansing period of seven days and hence are sometimes referred to as טומאת שבעה . The generating defilement can, in turn, confer a generated defilement (ולד הטומאה) of the first grade (ראשון לטומאה). This requires a cleansing period lasting only till sundown and hence is referred to as טומאת ערב . In our case, the first person acquires a generating defilement from the corpse and the second person a generated defilement from the first.

(4) Vessels, apart from those of earthenware, (according to a special rule deduced from Num. XIX, 16 in Naz. 53b) acquire the same degree of defilement as the source which defiles them; v. 'Ed., Sonc. ed., p. 10, n. I. Here the first series becomes אבי אבות הטומאה and the second אב הטומאה and not until the third series do we get ולד הטומאה .

(5) These latter vessels become אב הטומאה through contact with the preceding person who has that degree of defilement.

(6) שפוד Lit., 'a metal spit', explained by Bert. as a tent-peg and by Maim. as a tent-pole.

(7) In which there is a corpse. The tent, if made of wool or tax, becomes אבי אבות הטומאה .

(8) Also אבי אבות הטומאה even that portion of it outside the tent, because the peg is overshadowed by a tent containing a corpse.

(9) He becomes a 'father of defilement'.

(10) These too become like the source from which they contracted uncleanness, i.e., 'fathers of defilement'.

(11) The peg, being in the tent containing a corpse, is to be regarded as acquiring its defilement, not from the tent, but directly from the corpse. Thus there are four series only.

- (12) This Mishnah summarizes the result of the three previous Mishnahs.
- (13) V.p. 149. n.2.
- (14) V.p. 149, n. I end.
- (15) V.p 149, n. 3.
- (16) A person who has a flux. The laws of a zab are given in Lev. XV, 1-15. As a 'father of defilement' he defiles persons (v. 7) and vessels (v. 12) by contact and other means.
- (17) I.e., the garments he is wearing when he touches the zab, according to an explicit statement in Lev XV. 7.
- (18) Becoming thereby 'generated defilement', they cannot confer defilement on other garments, since no garments can acquire defilement of a lesser grade than the first.
- (19) Lev. XV, 10. Garments upon which a zab rides can defile persons. i.e., they are זב. This applies to any garments upon which a zab is supported. i.e., upon which he stands, sits or lies, by which he is balanced or against which he leans, v. Zab II. 4. This is called midras (pressure-) defilement.
- (20) They themselves are only 'generated defilement'.
- (21) Even though he is manifestly dying, he is still not accounted a corpse and unclean, but living and possessing the full legal implications of a living man as in the four following cases.
- (22) On his childless brother's widow (v. Deut. XXV, 5). Until he actually passes away, or grants her halizah (v. Deut. XXV, 9), she cannot marry another person.
- (23) If he is the sole son, he can liberate his widowed mother from the obligation of marrying her levir.
- (24) If she, being herself the daughter of a non-priest, is the widow of a priest, since she may continue to eat terumah as long as she has a son (a priest).
- (25) Heave-offering, permitted to be eaten only by priests and their families.
- (26) If she, being the daughter of a priest, is the widow of a non-priest. since she is precluded from returning to her father's house to eat terumah as long as she has a son (a non-priest).
- (27) The movement is not a sign of life.
- (28) A unit part of the body having flesh, sinew and bone.
- (29) If these portions form complete members (v. p. 153. n. 4).
- (30) A member of a corpse by contact, carriage and overshadowing (v. p. 153. n. 4), that of carrion by contact and carriage (v. Kel. I, 2) and of a dead reptile by contact only (v. Kel. I, I).
- (31) Reckoning from the ankle to the tip of the toe and in the case of the hand, from the wrist to the finger tips.
- (32) Socket of the hip bone.
- (33) The chest, so called according to Maim, because by its movements it causes the lungs to breathe upon the heart, opening the way for fresh air.
- (34) Defined (Kel. 1.5) as sufficient to form the basis of a growth of healing flesh if the member were part of a living organism.
- (35) But not members of a dead animal or reptile. which, if they have not sufficient flesh upon them, are clean.
- (36) For defilement by overshadowing, either a whole corpse or a whole member of a corpse is required (deduced from Nun., XIX, 14, v. Maim.).
- (37) For a detailed account of the criticism to which this Mishnah has been subjected from a medical point of view and for an anatomical commentary on the terminology v. Katzenelsohn, I. L. Talmud und Medizin (Berlin 1928) pp. 234-303. On p. 257 he states, 'The Rabbinical numeration accords exactly with the number of bones in a seventeen year old male'. That the anatomical knowledge of the Rabbis was based on practical experiments by dissection is known from Bek. 45a. 'The disciples of R. Ishmael dissected the body of a prostitute who had been condemned to death by the government. By examination they found two hundred and fifty-two members'. Four were deducted as being found in the female but not in the male body, thus obtaining the figure 248. V. also J.E. VIII, p. 410 and Preuss, Biblische u. Talmudische Medizin, pp. 66f., who criticizes Katzenelsohn's views.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THESE THINGS DEFILE¹ BY OVERSHADOWING: A CORPSE,² AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION OF FLESH] OF A CORPSE, AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF NEZEL,³ A LADLEFUL⁴ OF CORPSE-MOULD,⁵ THE SPINE OR THE SKULL,⁶ [ANY] MEMBER OF A CORPSE, OR [ANY] MEMBER [SEVERED] FROM A LIVING PERSON, A

QUARTER⁷ [OF A KAB] OF BONES COMPRISING THE STRUCTURAL MAJORITY⁸ OR NUMERICAL MAJORITY, THE STRUCTURAL MAJORITY OR NUMERICAL MAJORITY [OF THE BONES] OF A CORPSE EVEN THOUGH THEY DO NOT AMOUNT TO A QUARTER [OF A KAB]; [ALL THESE] ARE UNCLEAN. HOW MANY [BONES] FORM THE NUMERICAL MAJORITY? ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE.

MISHNAH 2. [THE FOLLOWING LIKEWISE DEFILE:] A QUARTER⁹ [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD,¹⁰ A (QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF MIXED BLOOD¹¹ FROM ONE CORPSE. R. AKIBA SAYS: EVEN FROM TWO CORPSES.¹² [WITH REGARD TO] THE BLOOD OF A CHILD THAT HAS COMPLETELY FLOWED FORTH, R. AKIBA SAYS: [IT DEFILES] BE IT OF ANY QUANTITY SOEVER,¹³ BUT THE SAGES SAY: [THERE MUST BE] A QUARTER [OF A LOG].¹⁴ [WITH REGARD TO] AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF [CORPSE] WORMS WHETHER ALIVE OR DEAD, R. ELIEZER DECLARES [IT] UNCLEAN, LIKE THE FLESH [WHENCE IT COMES], BUT THE SAGES DECLARE [IT] CLEAN. [WITH REGARD TO] THE ASHES OF CREMATED PERSONS, R. ELIEZER DECLARES ITS [MINIMUM] QUANTITY [FOR DEFILEMENT TO BE] A QUARTER [OF A KAB], BUT THE SAGES DECLARE [THEM TO BE] CLEAN. A LADLEFUL AND [A LITTLE] MORE¹⁵ OF GRAVE-DUST¹⁶ IS UNCLEAN. R. SIMEON DECLARES [IT TO BE] CLEAN. A LADLEFUL OF CORPSE-MOULD KNEADED WITH WATER IS NOT [REGARDED AS] JOINED [INTO ONE MASS] FOR [THE PURPOSES OF] DEFILEMENT.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING DEFILE BY CONTACT AND CARRIAGE BUT NOT BY OVERSHADOWING: A BONE OF BARLEYCORN SIZE,¹⁸ EARTH FROM A FOREIGN COUNTRY,¹⁹ A BETH PERAS,²⁰ A MEMBER OF A CORPSE, OR A MEMBER [SEVERED] FROM A LIVING PERSON WHICH HAS NO LONGER ITS APPROPRIATE FLESH, A SPINE OR A SKULL WHICH IS DEFICIENT. HOW MUCH IS [CONSIDERED] A DEFICIENCY IN THE SPINE? BETH SHAMMAI SAY: TWO VERTEBRAE, BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: EVEN ONE VERTEBRA. AND IN THE SKULL? BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [THE SIZE OF A] HOLE [MADE] BY A DRILL, BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: AS MUCH AS IF IT WERE TAKEN FROM A LIVING PERSON, HE WOULD DIE.²¹ OF WHAT DRILL DID THEY SPEAK? OF THE SMALL ONE [USED] BY PHYSICIANS.²² [THIS] IS. THE OPINION OF R. MEIR, BUT THE SAGES SAY: OF THE LARGE ONE IN THE TEMPLE-CHAMBER.²³

MISHNAH 4. THE COVERING STONE²⁴ AND THE BUTTRESSING²⁵ STONE [OF A GRAVE] DEFILE BY CONTACT AND OVERSHADOWING²⁶ BUT NOT BY CARRIAGE.²⁷ R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY DO DEFILE BY CARRIAGE. R. JOSHUA SAYS: IF THERE IS GRAVE DUST BENEATH THEM, THEY DEFILE BY CARRIAGE, BUT IF NOT THEY DO NOT DEFILE BY CARRIAGE. WHAT IS THE BUTTRESSING STONE? THAT UPON WHICH THE COVERING STONE IS SUPPORTED. THE STONE THAT SERVES AS BUTTRESS TO THE BUTTRESSING STONE, HOWEVER, IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. THESE ARE CLEAN IF THEY ARE DEFICIENT:²⁸ AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE, AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF NEZEL, A LADLEFUL OF CORPSE-MOULD, A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD, BONE OF THE SIZE OF A BARLEY-CORN, AND A MEMBER [SEVERED] FROM A LIVING PERSON, THE BONE OF WHICH [MEMBER] IS DEFICIENT.

MISHNAH 6. A BACKBONE OR A SKULL [MADE UP FROM THE BONES] OF TWO CORPSES, A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD FROM TWO CORPSES, A QUARTER [OF A KAB] OF BONES FROM TWO CORPSES, A MEMBER OF A CORPSE FROM TWO CORPSES, AND A MEMBER [SEVERED] FROM A LIVING PERSON, [SUCH A MEMBER BEING MADE UP] FROM TWO PERSONS, THESE R. AKIBA DECLARES UNCLEAN BUT THE SAGES DECLARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. A BONE THE SIZE OF A BARLEY-CORN THAT IS DIVIDED INTO TWO, R. AKIBA DECLARES UNCLEAR BUT R. JOHANAN B. NURI DECLARES CLEAN. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: THEY DID NOT SAY 'BONES' THE SIZE OF A BARLEY-CORN, BUT 'BONE' THE SIZE OF A BARLEY-CORN. A QUARTER [OF A KAB] OF BONES CRUSHED SO FINE THAT THERE IS NOT A SINGLE [BONE] OF BARLEY-CORN SIZE, R. SIMEON DECLARES CLEAN BUT THE SAGES UNCLEAR. A MEMBER [SEVERED] FROM A LIVING PERSON, WHICH [MEMBER] HAS BEEN DIVIDED INTO TWO IS CLEAN. R. JOSE DECLARES [IT] UNCLEAR; BUT HE AGREES THAT IF IT IS TAKEN FROM THE LIVING PERSON BY HALVES IT IS CLEAN.²⁹

(1) Cf. Nab. VII, 2.

(2) Explained in Naz. 50a as being that of an abortion, of less than olive-size.

(3) Possibly from nazal, 'to melt'; explained in Naz. 50a as 'the flesh of a corpse that has coagulated, and liquid secretions from a corpse that has been heated and has congealed'.

(4) Tarwad; Syrian 'large spoon or ladle'. 'Aruch on Kel. XVII, 12: 'the large ladle of physicians'.

(5) Dust known to have originated solely from a corpse. e.g. dust from a corpse buried naked in a marble coffin (v. Naz. 51a).

(6) Either of these, even if they had not their appropriate flesh. They are recognisably part of a human skeleton (Bert.).

(7) One kab = four logs = twenty-four eggs, roughly equivalent to two litres.

(8) Bones which make up the greater part of the skeleton's structure e.g.. two shin bones and a thigh bone (Bek. 45a).

(9) One log (cf. Lev. XIV, 10) = six eggs, roughly, equivalent to half a litre.

(10) That has flowed forth after death.

(11) That has flowed forth partly while alive and partly after death (v. III, 5).

(12) For the reasons the dispute between R. Akiba and the Sages v. Hul. 72a.

(13) Making the case of blood analogous to that of bones, the majority of the skeleton defiling whatever size it be (v. supra 9).

(14) Because one cannot tell, as one can in the case of bones, when the whole amount is present.

(15) According to the text in most Mishnah editions. But the text printed in the Vilna editions of the Talmud read: 'A ladleful of corpse-mould and some grave-dust'. V. Nid. 27b where the same disputants differ over a case of a ladleful of corpse-mould and some (ordinary) dust.

(16) Dust, mixed with blood and cadaverous secretions, from a marble coffin A ladleful and more of this dust is presumed to contain a ladleful of mould.

(17) So that if only a part of his ladleful vote overshadowed, it could not convey tent-defilement. Human agency cannot effect a connection for defilement (v. Infra III, 4).

(18) Katzenelsohn (op. cit., p. 234, n. I) suggests that this size may have been chosen because the ossa sesamoidea, the smallest human bones, are of barleycorn size.

(19) Clods of foreign earth brought in to Palestine were decreed unclear by Jose b. Jo'ezer and Jose b. Johanan (Shab. 15a; v. also Naz. 54b).

(20) A grave-area; a field into which human bodies have been ploughed (v. infra XVIII, 1ff.). Peras according to Bert. from the root meaning 'to break' and according to Maim. from the meaning 'to spread' (viz., the area of uncleanness).

(21) Explained in Bek. 37b as a portion the size of a sela' (a silver coin worth approx. four shillings).

(22) The trepan.

(23) An instrument making a hole the size of a dupondium (Roman penny): v. Kel. XVII, 12.

(24) Golel. Maim. (in comment. on the M.) 'the stone (or wooden board etc.) covering a grave'. Rashi (on Keth. 4b) 'the cover of a coffin'. Perhaps from גלל 'to roll', hence a stone too heavy for lifting and needing to be rolled into position. Cf. גלל אבן Ezra V, 8.

(25) Dofek, from root 'to strike, knock against', hence 'frame against which the golel knocks'. Preuss however (op. cit. p. 609) explains golel as the great rolling stone blocking the entrance to a cave tomb and dofek as the wedge holding it in position.

(26) The grave is expressly included with the corpse in Num. XIX, 16 for defilement by contact, in the passage following the one giving rules for defilement by overshadowing.

(27) Defilement by carriage is not taught in Scripture directly in connection with a corpse but is derived by the Rabbis a fortiori from carrion (v. Sifre on Num. XIX, 16). The Rabbis applied it to a corpse but not to the grave-stones. R. Eliezer here applies it even to the grave-stones

(28) I.e., if they fall short of the prescribed measure.

(29) Because the member has never been of the size to acquire uncleanness

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] ALL¹ OBJECTS DEFILING BY OVERSHADOWING,² IF THEY³ WERE DIVIDED AND BROUGHT INTO A HOUSE, R. DOSA B. HARKINAS DECLARES CLEAN [WHATSOEVER IS IN THE HOUSE],⁴ BUT THE SAGES DECLARE [IT] UNCLEAR. HOW [IS THIS DIFFERENCE OF OPINION TO BE UNDERSTOOD]? IF [A PERSON] TOUCHES TWO [PORTIONS] OF CARRION,⁵ EACH OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, OR CARRIES THEM, OR, IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE, IF HE TOUCHES [A PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE AND OVERSHADOWS [ANOTHER PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, OR IF HE TOUCHES [A PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE AND [ANOTHER PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE OVERSHADOWS HIM, OR IF HE OVERSHADOWS TWO [PORTIONS, EACH] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, OR IF HE OVERSHADOWS [A PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE AND [ANOTHER PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE OVERSHADOWS HIM, R. DOSA B. HARKINAS DECLARES HIM CLEAN, AND THE SAGES DECLARE HIM UNCLEAR. BUT IF HE TOUCHES [A PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE AND [HAS] ANOTHER OBJECT⁶ OVERSHADOWING HIM AND [ANOTHER PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, OR IF HE OVERSHADOWS [A PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE AND [HAS] ANOTHER OBJECT OVERSHADOWING HIM AND [ANOTHER PORTION] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, HE IS CLEAN.⁷ (R. MEIR SAID: EVEN HERE R. DOSA B. HARKINAS DECLARES HIM CLEAN AND THE SAGES DECLARE HIM UNCLEAR. EVERY [CASE] IS UNCLEAR⁸ EXCEPT [A CASE OF] CONTACT [COMBINED] WITH CARRIAGE OR OF CARRIAGE [COMBINED] WITH OVERSHADOWING). THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE:⁹ EVERY OBJECT [WHOSE DEFILEMENT] PROCEEDS FROM ONE CAUSE¹⁰ IS UNCLEAR, FROM TWO CAUSES IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. IF A LADLEFUL OF CORPSE-MOULD WAS SCATTERED ABOUT IN A HOUSE, THE HOUSE IS UNCLEAR¹¹ BUT R. SIMEON DECLARES IT CLEAN.¹² IF A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD WAS ABSORBED IN [THE GROUND] OF A HOUSE, THE HOUSE IS CLEAN. [IN THE CASE OF] IT BEING ABSORBED BY A GARMENT, IF THIS IS WASHED AND A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD EMERGES FROM IT,¹³ IT IS UNCLEAR,¹⁴ IF NOT, IT IS CLEAN,¹⁵ SINCE ANYTHING ABSORBED THAT CANNOT EMERGE IS CLEAN.¹⁶

MISHNAH 3. [IN THE CASE OF] IT¹⁷ BEING POURED OUT IN THE OPEN AIR, IF THE PLACE [WHERE IT FELL] WAS AN INCLINE AND [A PERSON] OVERSHADOWED PART OF IT, HE [REMAINS] CLEAN.¹⁸ IF IT WAS A CAVITY,¹⁹ OR IF THE BLOOD CONGEALED,²⁰ HE [BECOMES] UNCLEAR. IF IT WERE POURED OUT ON A THRESHOLD WHICH INCLINED EITHER INWARDS OR OUTWARDS AND THE HOUSE OVERSHADOWED IT,²¹ [THE HOUSE] IS CLEAN.¹⁸ IF THERE WAS A CAVITY,²² OR IF IT CONGEALED, [THE HOUSE BECOMES] UNCLEAR. EVERYTHING APPERTAINING TO A CORPSE IS UNCLEAR EXCEPT THE TEETH, HAIR AND NAILS;²³ BUT WHEN THEY ARE JOINED [TO THE CORPSE], THEY ARE ALL UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 4. HOW IS THIS²⁴ [TO BE ILLUSTRATED]? IF THE CORPSE WERE OUTSIDE

AND ITS HAIR INSIDE, THE HOUSE IS UNCLEAN. [WITH REGARD TO] A BONE WHICH HAD UPON IT AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF FLESH, IF ONE BROUGHT PART OF IT WITHIN, SO THAT THE HOUSE WAS OVERSHADOWING IT, [THE HOUSE] IS UNCLEAN.²⁵ [WITH REGARD TO] TWO BONES WHICH HAD UPON THEM TWO PORTIONS²⁶ OF FLESH, [EACH] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, IF ONE BROUGHT PART OF THEM WITHIN SO THAT THE HOUSE WAS OVERSHADOWING THEM, [THE HOUSE] IS UNCLEAN. BUT IF [THE PIECES OF FLESH] WERE FIXED IN POSITION BY HUMAN AGENCY, THE HOUSE IS CLEAN SINCE CONNECTIONS EFFECTED BY HUMAN AGENCY ARE NOT [REGARDED AS BEING] CONNECTED.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. WHAT IS 'MIXED BLOOD'?²⁸ 'THE BLOOD OF A CORPSE OF WHICH AN EIGHTH [OF A LOG] ISSUED DURING LIFETIME AND AN EIGHTH AFTER DEATH. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. AKIBA. R. ISHMAEL SAYS: [WE MUST IMAGINE] A QUARTER [OF A LOG TO HAVE ISSUED] DURING LIFETIME AND A QUARTER AFTER DEATH, [THEN IT IS] A QUARTER TAKEN FROM BOTH OF THESE. R. ELEAZAR SON OF R. [JUDAH]²⁹ SAYS: BOTH OF THESE³⁰ ARE AS WATER. WHAT THEN IS 'MIXED BLOOD'? IT IS THAT OF A CRUCIFIED PERSON WHOSE BLOOD IS STREAMING FORTH AND UNDER WHOM IS FOUND A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD. IT IS UNCLEAN.³¹ THAT, HOWEVER, OF A CORPSE WHOSE BLOOD DRIPS FORTH AND UNDER WHOM IS FOUND A QUARTER [OF A LOG] OF BLOOD, IS CLEAN.³² R. JUDAH SAYS: NOT SO, BUT THAT WHICH STREAMS FORTH IS CLEAN³³ AND THAT WHICH DRIPS FORTH³⁴ IS UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. FOR AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF A CORPSE, AN OPENING [IN THE ROOM IN WHICH IT IS FOUND] OF ONE HANDBREADTH [SQUARE], AND FOR A [WHOLE] CORPSE, AN OPENING OF FOUR HANDBREADTHS [SQUARE, SUFFICES] TO PREVENT THE UNCLEANNESS FROM [SPREADING TO THE OTHER] OPENINGS;³⁵ BUT FOR ALLOWING THE UNCLEANNESS TO COME FORTH,³⁶ AN OPENING OF ONE HANDBREADTH [SQUARE SUFFICES].³⁷ [A PORTION] GREATER THAN THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE IS RECKONED AS A [WHOLE] CORPSE. R. JOSE SAYS: [ONLY]³⁸ THE SPINE AND THE SKULL ARE RECKONED AS A [WHOLE] CORPSE.

MISHNAH 7. [AN OBJECT] ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE³⁹ [STANDING] ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH⁴⁰ CAN BRING UNCLEANNESS⁴¹ AND SCREEN⁴² FROM UNCLEANNESS. HOW DOES IT [SCREEN]?⁴³ IN THE CASE OF AN ARCHED-UP⁴⁴ DRAIN BENEATH A HOUSE, IF THERE WAS A SPACE OF A HANDBREADTH WIDE⁴⁵ THEREIN AND ITS OUTLET⁴⁶ WAS A HANDBREADTH WIDE, WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS⁴⁷ INSIDE IT, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN;⁴⁸ AND WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE DRAIN] REMAINS CLEAN, FOR THE MANNER OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT AND NOT TO GO IN. IF THERE WAS A SPACE OF ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE THEREIN BUT ITS OUTLET WAS NOT ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE, WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS THEREIN, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN;⁴⁹ BUT WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN IT REMAINS CLEAN, FOR THE MANNER OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT⁵⁰ AND NOT TO GO IN.⁵¹ IF THERE WAS NOT A SPACE OF ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE THEREIN AND ITS OUTLET WAS NOT ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE,⁵² WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN IT, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN; AND WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, IT [ALSO] BECOMES UNCLEAN. IT IS ONE [AND THE SAME IF THE SPACE IS] A CAVITY EXCAVATED BY WATER OR BY VERMIN OR IF IT HAD BEEN EATEN OUT BY A SALINE SUBSTANCE; AND SIMILARLY [IF IT IS IN] A ROW⁵³ OF STONES OR A PILE⁵⁴ OF BEAMS. R. JUDAH SAYS: ANY 'TENT' NOT MADE BY HUMAN AGENCY⁵⁵ IS NOT CONSIDERED A TENT'. BUT HE AGREES THAT CREVICES AND CRAGS [CAN BE CONSIDERED AS 'TENTS'].

- (1) Cf. 'Ed. III, 1.
- (2) Mentioned supra II, 1f.
- (3) I.e., a portion of the minimum quantity for defilement.
- (4) In their divided state they cannot combine to convey defilement by overshadowing.
- (5) The dispute apparently also included defilement by carrion.
- (6) A board, etc.
- (7) Even according to the Sages. The reason is discussed in Hul. 125b.
- (8) R. Meir, continuing his exposition of the opinion of the Sages. According to him they hold that two quantities may combine to form the minimum quantity in any mixed case of contact and overshadowing (regarded as one and the same cause), but not in any other mixed case arising from two causes.
- (9) Resuming the view of the first Tanna interrupted by the exposition of R. Meir.
- (10) The object is being affected by two portions which together form the minimum quantity, and which both defile through the same cause, either contact, carriage or overshadowing.
- (11) The scattered Portions are regarded as combining.
- (12) Maintaining that since it Presumably is now mixed with the dust of the house, it is just like that corpse-mould originating from a mixture of corpse matter and non-cadaverous dust which does not defile (v. supra II, 1, n. 5).
- (13) This fact is ascertained by mingling a quarter of a log of blood with a quantity of water equal to that used in washing the garment and comparing the colours of the two mixtures (Bert.).
- (14) And renders the house in which it is brought unclean by overshadowing.
- (15) In so far as it does not render the house unclean.
- (16) v. Nid. 62b.
- (17) A quarter log of blood from a corpse.
- (18) The incline cannot be regarded as a connective, holding the full quarter of a log together.
- (19) The equivalent word in Arabic means 'swamp'. 'gathering together of waters'.
- (20) Even on an incline.
- (21) I.e., part of it.
- (22) In the threshold.
- (23) Either because they change their substance continually or because they did not exist at the time the person was created.
- (24) The last fact mentioned in the previous Mishnah.
- (25) The bone forms the handle (ט) for the flesh in transmitting the uncleanness; v. 'Uk. I, 1.
- (26) One portion upon each bone.
- (27) Hence the bone, in this last instance, cannot be considered as forming the 'handle' for the flesh in transmitting uncleanness.
- (28) . Referred to in supra II, 2.
- (29) Sometimes known as R. Eleazar of Bertotha (v. Ab. III, 7).
- (30) Definitions of 'mixed blood' according to R. Akiba and R. Ishmael.
- (31) Such blood, streaming forth continually, is regarded as containing that drop issuing forth at the moment of death and also as containing at least half its bulk of unclean blood, issued after death.
- (32) Each drop of unclean cadaverous blood is regarded as being neutralised as it falls into the greater bulk of non-cadaverous blood.
- (33) Since it is regarded as possible that the drop of blood issuing from the crucified man at the moment of death did not fall into the quarter of a log but remained on the cross (Bert.).
- (34) The slow rate at which the blood issues proving that it is cadaverous (Maim.). The question is discussed in Nid. 71a. V. also Preuss (op. cit.) p. 242.
- (35) As explained infra VII, 3, corpse uncleanness through overshadowing extends beyond the room to the doors thereof, and even if they are closed, to the objects beneath their lintels, because it is assumed that the corpse is due to be removed through any one of them. Where, however, it is known that a definite exit will be used, that exit alone becomes unclean and all the rest, provided the doors be closed, remain clean. The Mishnah gives the minimum size of such an exit.
- (36) And proceed to an adjacent space.

- (37) Even for a whole corpse.
- (38) So Wilna Gaon.
- (39) At least one handbreadth in length and breadth.
- (40) Above the uncleanness.
- (41) To other objects in the same space.
- (42) The object forming the roof protects other things above it from being defiled. If, however, the roof is less than one handbreadth high, the uncleanness will cleave its way upward and downward (v. infra VI, 6).
- (43) So Bert. and most comm., the screening effect being the novel aspect that needs illustrating.
- (44) קמזור The word is akin to Gr.  and Latin camera, 'a vaulted space'.
- (45) I.e., a space one handbreadth cube.
- (46) Carrying the waste out into the street.
- (47) An olive-sized portion of a corpse, a greater quantity necessitating an outlet of four handbreadths.
- (48) Since the uncleanness proceeds by the outlet into the street. The drain, by being of the stipulated size, thus screens the house from uncleanness.
- (49) There being no outlet for the uncleanness, the drain becomes a 'closed grave' whose uncleanness cleaves upwards and downwards.
- (50) To the street.
- (51) To the drain.
- (52) The dimensions of the outlet in this case are really immaterial, the drain in any case being reckoned as part of the ground of the house.
- (53) מרבך The word occurs in the quotation from this Mishnah in Suk. 20b as מרבך . which is, no doubt, from the same root as נדבך , Ezra VI, 4. The root דבך may possibly be the same as דבק 'to join together', hence a 'course of stones'. If one stone falls out a shelter can be formed.
- (54) סואר (also found as סור). Explained in 'Aruch from the cognate Arabic as 'pile'. Possibly from a root similar to 'to collect'.
- (55) The reason of R. Judah's statement is given in Suk. 21a. He considers that 'tent' should be similar in manner to the 'Tent of Meeting', the tabernacle of the wilderness, made by human agency.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] A CUPBOARD¹ STANDING IN THE OPEN AIR, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN IT, VESSELS IN THE [NICHE² IN THE] THICKNESS [OF ITS WALLS] REMAIN CLEAN.³ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN [THE NICHE IN] ITS THICKNESS, VESSELS INSIDE [THE CUPBOARD] REMAIN CLEAN. R. JOSE SAYS: HALF AND HALF.⁴ WHEN IT IS STANDING INSIDE A HOUSE, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS INSIDE [THE CUPBOARD]. THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR;⁵ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE CUPBOARD] REMAINS CLEAN,⁶ FOR THE MANNER OF UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT⁷ AND NOT TO GO IN.⁸ [WITH REGARD TO] VESSELS WHICH ARE BETWEEN [THE CUPBOARD] AND THE GROUND, OR BETWEEN IT AND THE WALL, OR BETWEEN IT AND THE ROOFBEAMS, IF THERE IS A SPACE OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH THERE, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR⁹ BUT IF NOT THEY REMAIN CLEAN.¹⁰ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS THERE,¹¹ THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹²

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] A DRAWER OF THE CUPBOARD, WHICH IS OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH, BUT WHOSE OUTLET IS NOT A SQUARE HANDBREADTH IN SIZE, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS THEREIN, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE DRAWER] REMAINS CLEAN, FOR THE MANNER OF UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT AND NOT TO GO IN. R. JOSE DECLARES [THE HOUSE]¹³ CLEAN, SINCE HE CAN REMOVE [THE UNCLEANNESS] BY HALVES¹⁴ OR BURN IT WHERE IT STANDS.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE CUPBOARD IS STANDING IN THE DOORWAY AND IS OPENED OUTWARD, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS THEREIN, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE CUPBOARD] BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹⁶ FOR THE MANNER OF UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT AND NOT TO GO IN. IF ITS WHEELED BASE¹⁷ PROTRUDED THREE FINGERBREADTHS BEHIND IT¹⁸ AND THERE WAS UNCLEANNESS THEREIN¹⁹ UNDER THE ROOF-BEAMS, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN.²⁰ WHEN DOES THIS RULING APPLY? WHEN THERE IS A SPACE THEREIN OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH,²¹ WHEN IT IS NOT DETACHABLE,²² AND WHEN THE CUPBOARD IS OF THE STIPULATED SIZE.²³

- (1) Of wood, with a cubic content of forty se'ahs. According to Kel. XV, 1 such a cupboard cannot receive uncleanness.
 - (2) These niches, of less than a cubic handbreadth in size, go right through the thickness of the walls and open inwards and outwards.
 - (3) The niches are reckoned as pertaining to the open air.
 - (4) The outside half of the niche is reckoned as pertaining to the open air and the inside half to the cupboard.
 - (5) Even if the cupboard doors are closed because the uncleanness must eventually proceed into the house.
 - (6) If the cupboard doors are closed.
 - (7) From the cupboard to the house.
 - (8) From the house to the cupboard.
 - (9) When there is a corpse in the house.
 - (10) The uncleanness not being able to penetrate.
 - (11) The space being less than a cubic handbreadth.
 - (12) The cupboard, though forming a 'tent' within a 'tent', cannot prevent the uncleanness from escaping, just as a sealed cover cannot do it (cf. Kel. VIII, 6).
 - (13) In the former case.
 - (14) So that the uncleanness going forth would be of less than the prescribed minimum size.
 - (15) So that the uncleanness would never go out.
 - (16) The text in Hul. 125b apparently followed by Bert. reads: 'clean'. This reading regards the uncleanness as going out of the house and missing the cupboard. The reading in this Mishnah is explained by Tosaf. Y.T. as applying to the case where the cupboard occupies almost the whole of the doorway. The uncleanness being unable to emerge. has to force its way through the cupboard walls.
 - (17) מוֹכְנִי Gr. , machine (v. Kel. XVIII, 2).
 - (18) I.e., as the cupboard was standing in the doorway.
 - (19) In a container in the base.
 - (20) The base is regarded as belonging to the cupboard.
 - (21) The uncleanness is then not in a confined space and cannot cleave upwards.
 - (22) The base forms part of the cupboard.
 - (23) Forty se'ahs, v. Mishnah I, n. 1.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] AN OVEN WHICH STOOD IN A HOUSE, WITH ITS OUTLET¹ CURVED TO THE OUTSIDE [OF THE HOUSE]. IF CORPSE-BEARERS OVERSHADOWED IT,² BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ALL BECOMES UNCLEAR.³ BETH HILLEL SAY: THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAR, BUT THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN. R. AKIBA SAYS: EVEN THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN.⁴

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] A HATCHWAY⁵ BETWEEN THE HOUSE AND THE UPPER STOREY, IF THERE WAS A POT PLACED OVER IT AND THIS WAS PERFORATED [BY A HOLE OF SUFFICIENT SIZE] TO ADMIT LIQUID,⁶ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ALL BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁷ BETH HILLEL SAY: THE POT BECOMES UNCLEAR⁸ BUT THE UPPER STOREY REMAINS CLEAN. R. AKIBA SAYS: ALL REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. IF [THE POT]⁹ WAS WHOLE, BETH HILLEL SAY: IT PROTECTS ALL [FROM UNCLEANNESS]. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT PROTECTS ONLY FOOD, DRINK AND EARTHENWARE VESSELS.¹⁰ BETH HILLEL RETRACTED AND TAUGHT AS BETH SHAMMAI.

MISHNAH 4. [WITH REGARD TO] A FLAGON,¹¹ FULL OF LIQUID, THE FLAGON IS DEFILED WITH A DEFILEMENT OF SEVEN [DAYS' DURATION] BUT THE LIQUID REMAINS CLEAN.¹² BUT IF ONE POURED IT OUT INTO ANOTHER VESSEL,¹³ IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹⁴ IF A WOMAN WAS KNEADING [IN THE UPPER STOREY.] AT A TROUGH, THE WOMAN AND THE TROUGH BECOME UNCLEAR, BUT THE DOUGH REMAINS CLEAN. BUT IF ONE TURNED IT OUT INTO ANOTHER VESSEL, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR. BETH HILLEL RETRACTED AND TAUGHT AS BETH SHAMMAI.¹⁵

MISHNAH 5. IF [LYING OVER THE HATCHWAY] THERE WERE VESSELS OF [BAKED] ORDURE,¹⁶ VESSELS OF STONE, OR VESSELS OF [UNBAKED] EARTH,¹⁷ ALL [IN THE UPPER STOREY] REMAINS CLEAN. IF IT WAS A VESSEL KNOWN TO BE CLEAN FOR HOLY THINGS OR FOR [THE WATER OF] PURIFICATION,¹⁸ ALL REMAINS CLEAN,¹⁹ EVERYONE²⁰ BEING TRUSTED WITH [REGARD TO MATTERS OF] PURIFICATION;²¹ FOR CLEAN VESSELS AND EARTHENWARE VESSELS THAT ARE [KNOWN TO BE] CLEAN²² PROTECT IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE WALLS OF 'TENTS'.²³

MISHNAH 6 HOW [IS THE CASE TO BE IMAGINED]? IF THERE WAS A CISTERN OR A CELLAR²⁴ IN A HOUSE²⁵ AND AN OLIVE-BASKET²⁶ WAS PLACED OVER IT, [THE CONTENTS OF THE CISTERN OR CELLAR] REMAIN CLEAN. BUT IF IT WAS A WELL [WITH ITS UPPER EDGE] LEVEL [WITH THE GROUND]. OR A DEFICIENT²⁷ BEEHIVE. UPON WHICH THE OLIVE-BASKET WAS PLACED, [THE CONTENTS] BECOME UNCLEAR.²⁸ IF IT WAS A SMOOTH BOARD OR A KNEADING BOARD²⁹ WITHOUT RIMS, [THE CONTENTS] REMAIN CLEAN.³⁰ FOR VESSELS CANNOT PROTECT ALONG WITH WALLS OF SHELTERS UNLESS THEY THEMSELVES HAVE WALLS. HOW MUCH MUST THE WALL BE? A HANDBREADTH. IF THERE WAS HALF A HANDBREADTH ON ONE AND HALF A HANDBREADTH ON THE OTHER,³¹ IT IS NOT [CONSIDERED] A WALL, AS THERE MUST BE A WHOLE HANDBREADTH ON ONE OBJECT.

MISHNAH 7. JUST AS THEY³² PROTECT INSIDE [A 'TENT'] SO DO THEY PROTECT OUTSIDE. HOW SO? IN THE CASE OF AN OLIVE-BASKET SUPPORTED ON PEGS³³ ON THE OUTSIDE [OF A 'TENT']. IF THERE WAS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT, VESSELS IN THE OLIVE-BASKET REMAIN CLEAN.³⁴ BUT IF IT WAS [NEXT TO] THE WALL OF A COURTYARD OR OF A GARDEN, IT DOES NOT AFFORD PROTECTION.³⁵ [IN THE CASE OF] A BEAM³⁶ PLACED ACROSS FROM ONE WALL TO AN OTHER,³⁷ WITH A POT HANGING FROM IT,³⁸ IF THERE WAS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT,³⁹ R. AKIBA DECLARES THE VESSELS INSIDE IT TO BE CLEAN,⁴⁰ BUT THE SAGES DECLARE THEM UNCLEAR.⁴¹

(1) Of one handbreadth square (v. Kel. VIII, 7). The reference is to an earthenware pot.

(2) With the corpse.

(3) The uncleanness penetrating the house by way of the outlet.

(4) Since only the outlet was overshadowed, not the oven itself.

(5) Of one handbreadth square.

(6) For the prescribed test to determine this fact, v. Nid. 49a.

(7) When there is a corpse in the house. The earthenware pot, because it is defective, is considered on its own and not as a continuation of the roof of the house. It cannot protect its own contents from uncleanness since it no longer has the equivalent of a tightly fitting lid between itself and the defiling source. Hence it cannot protect the objects in the upper storey.

(8) A precautionary measure of the Sages, but really it is clean and therefore can protect the upper storey.

(9) This Mishnah deals with the case of a pot belonging to an 'am ha-arez, a person negligent of Rabbinic law (Bert.). V. 'Ed. I, 14, Sonc. ed., p. 8, for the full argument.

(10) These objects, If they belonged to all 'am ha-arez would not, in any case, be used by a haber, a scrupulous observer of Rabbinic law, without due precaution. Other vessels, however, might be used unless they were definitely declared unclean.

(11) 'Flagon', here of metal or wood. The flagon is in the upper storey, with the pot set over the hatchway.

(12) Being protected by the pot, according to Beth Shammai in supra 3.

(13) Of wood or metal, in the upper storey, which had thus already suffered corpse uncleanness.

(14) Food and drink are only protected when they are in their original container.

(15) V. 'Ed. I, 14.

(16) ארזא 'Aruch and Bert. 'cattle dung'. but Rashi (on Shab. 16b) 'marble'.

(17) All these vessels being insusceptible to uncleanness and affording protection to everything, even wood or metal vessels.

(18) Cf. Par. V, 1; Num. XIX, 17. It was the water used for compounding the ashes of the red heifer.

(19) Cf. n. 7.

(20) Even an 'am ha-arez

(21) Cf. Par. V, 1.

(22) Such as those mentioned in this Mishnah.

(23) As in the case of the pot over the hatchway. No such protection can, however, be afforded by these vessels on their own as is explained in the next Mishnah.

(24) A cistern or chamber with walls of masonry situated beneath a house. Both cistern and cellar have walls projecting at Least one handbreadth above the floor.

(25) In which there is a corpse.

(26) A large basket in which olives were placed in order to become soft. Having a capacity of more than forty Se'ahs, it is insusceptible to uncleanness, cf. Kel. XV, I.

(27) A beehive of more than forty se'ahs' capacity which had been broken and had not been stopped up with straw or the like. Var. lec., 'open'. i.e., at both ends.

(28) In neither case are there any walls that could be associated with the walls of the olive-basket to protect from the uncleanness.

(29) So Bert. Maim.: a perforated board, colander.

(30) Not being regarded as vessels, they require no 'tent' walls with which to be associated.

(31) I.e., half a handbreadth on the vessel and half on the projecting wall.

(32) Vessels in association with 'tent walls.

(33) The basket standing one handbreadth above the ground.

(34) The basket touching the wall of the 'tent' is associated with it to protect its own contents.

(35) The walls not being themselves made to serve as 'tent' walls.

(36) One handbreadth broad, one handbreadth above the ground.

(37) In the open air.

(38) At a distance from the beam of less than a handbreadth.

(39) The beam.

(40) Just as in a room, where uncleanness is not able to penetrate into a space of less than a handbreadth.

(41) The pot, not being directly associated with the walls of any 'tent', cannot protect its own contents.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. BOTH PERSONS AND VESSELS CAN FORM¹ 'TENTS' TO BRING UNCLEANNESS, BUT NOT TO [PROTECT OBJECTS SO THAT THEY] REMAIN CLEAN.² HOW [CAN THIS BE ILLUSTRATED]? [BY THE CASE OF] FOUR PERSONS CARRYING³ A BLOCK OF STONE.⁴ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT, VESSELS UPON IT BECOME UNCLEAR.⁵ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS UPON IT, VESSELS BENEATH IT BECOME UNCLEAR. R. ELIEZER DECLARES THEM CLEAR.⁶ [IN THE CASE OF THE LARGE STONE] BEING PLACED UPON FOUR VESSELS, EVEN IF THEY BE VESSELS OF [BAKED] ORDURE, VESSELS OF STONE, OR VESSELS [UNBAKED] OF EARTH,⁷ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH [THE STONE], VESSELS UPON IT BECOME UNCLEAR. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT, VESSELS UPON IT BECOME UNCLEAR. [IN THE CASE OF THE LARGE STONE] BEING PLACED ON FOUR STONES OR ON ANY LIVING CREATURE, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT, VESSELS UPON IT REMAIN CLEAR.⁸ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS UPON IT VESSELS BENEATH IT REMAIN CLEAR.

MISHNAH 2. IN THE CASE WHERE THE CORPSE-BEARERS WERE PASSING ALONG A PORTICO⁹ AND ONE OF THEM¹⁰ SHUT A DOOR¹¹ AND¹² LOCKED IT WITH A KEY, IF THE DOOR CAN REMAIN IN ITS POSITION ON ITS OWN,¹³ [THE CONTENTS OF THE HOUSE]¹⁴ REMAIN CLEAR, BUT IF NOT, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR. SIMILARLY [IN THE CASE OF] A BARREL¹⁵ OF DRIED FIGS OR A BASKET OF STRAW¹⁶ PLACED IN A WINDOW,¹⁷ IF THE DRIED FIGS OR THE STRAW CAN REMAIN IN THEIR POSITION ON THEIR OWN, [THE CONTENTS OF THE ROOM] REMAIN CLEAR, BUT IF NOT THEY BECOME UNCLEAR. [IN THE CASE OF] A HOUSE PARTITIONED OFF BY WINE-JARS, WHICH HAD BEEN PLASTERED WITH CLAY,¹⁸ IF THE CLAY CAN REMAIN IN ITS POSITION ON ITS OWN, [THE SPACE PARTITIONED OFF] REMAINS CLEAR, BUT IF NOT, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 3. A WALL SERVING A HOUSE IS TREATED BY HALVES. HOW SO? [IN THE CASE OF] A WALL LOOKING TOWARDS AN OPEN SPACE, HAVING UNCLEANNESS WITHIN IT, IF THIS IS IN THE INWARD HALF, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR, BUT WHAT IS ABOVE [THE WALL]¹⁹ REMAINS CLEAR.²⁰ IF IT IS IN THE OUTWARD HALF, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAR, BUT WHAT IS ABOVE [THE WALL] BECOMES UNCLEAR.²¹ IF IT IS EXACTLY IN THE MIDDLE, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR, AND AS FOR WHAT IS ABOVE, R. MEIR DECLARES IT UNCLEAR, BUT THE SAGES CLEAR.²² R. JUDAH SAYS: THE WHOLE OF THE WALL²³ APPERTAINS TO THE HOUSE.

MISHNAH 4. [IN THE CASE OF] A WALL BETWEEN TWO HOUSES,IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN IT, THE HOUSE NEARER TO THE UNCLEANNESS IS UNCLEAR, AND THE HOUSE NEARER TO THE CLEAR PART IS CLEAR. IF [THE UNCLEANNESS] IS IN THE MIDDLE, BOTH ARE UNCLEAR. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN ONE OF THE [HOUSES] AND THERE ARE VESSELS IN [THE THICKNESS OF] THE WALL, THOSE IN THE HALF NEARER THE UNCLEANNESS ARE UNCLEAR, THOSE IN THE HALF NEARER THE CLEAR [HOUSE] ARE CLEAR, AND THOSE IN THE MIDDLE ARE UNCLEAR. [WITH REGARD TO THE] PLASTER-WORK BETWEEN THE HOUSE AND THE UPPER STOREY, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS THEREIN IN THE LOWER HALF, THE HOUSE [BELOW] IS UNCLEANNESS AND THE UPPER STOREY IS UNCLEAR AND THE HOUSE IS CLEAR: BUT IF IT IS IN THE MIDDLE, BOTH ARE UNCLEAR. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN EITHER [THE] HOUSE OR THE UPPER STOREY] AND THERE ARE VESSELS INSIDE THE PAYMENT, THOSE IN THE HALF NEARER THE UNCLEANNESS ARE UNCLEAR, AND THOSE IN THE HALF NEARER THE CLEAR [SPACE] ARE CLEAR. IF THEY ARE IN THE MIDDLE, THEY ARE UNCLEAR. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALL THE PLASTER-WORK [IS RECKONED] TO APPERTAIN TO THE UPPER STOREY.

MISHNAH 5. [IN THE CASE OF] UNCLEANNESS AMONG THE ROOF-BEAMS, [WITH A COVERING] BENEATH IT THIN AS GARLIC-SKIN,²⁴ IF THERE IS A SPACE WITHIN²⁵ OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR.²⁶ IF THERE IS NOT A SPACE OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH, THE UNCLEANNESS IS CONSIDERED PLUGGED UP.²⁷ IF THE UNCLEANNESS WAS VISIBLE WITHIN THE HOUSE, IN EITHER CASE THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 6. A HOUSE SERVING [TO FORM] A WALL²⁸ IS SUBJECT TO THE PRINCIPLE OF GARLIC-SKIN. HOW SO? [IN THE CASE OF] A WALL BETWEEN TWO TOMB-NICHES OR TWO CAVERNS, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THESE SPACES AND IN THE WALLS ARE VESSELS, OVER WHICH THERE IS A COVERING THIN AS GARLIC-SKIN, THEY REMAIN CLEAN. IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE WALL AND THE VESSELS ARE IN THE SPACE, AND THERE IS A COVERING THIN AS GARLIC-SKIN OVER THE UNCLEANNESS, THEY REMAIN CLEAN. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH A PILLAR, THE UNCLEANNESS²⁹ CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.

MISHNAH 7. VESSELS BENEATH THE CAPITAL³⁰ [OF A PILLAR] REMAIN CLEAN.³¹ R. JOHANAN B. NURI DECLARES THEM UNCLEAR. [IN THE CASE OF] THE UNCLEANNESS AND THE VESSELS BEING [TOGETHER] BENEATH THE CAPITAL, IF THERE IS A SPACE OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH THERE, [THE VESSELS] BECOME UNCLEAR; IF NOT, THEY REMAIN CLEAN.³² [IN THE CASE OF] TWO WALL-CUPBOARDS,³³ ONE BESIDE THE OTHER, OR ONE ABOVE THE OTHER,³⁴ IF ONE OF THEM WERE OPENED, BOTH IT AND THE HOUSE BECOME UNCLEAR, BUT ITS COMPANION REMAINS CLEAN.³⁵ THE WALL-CUPBOARDS ARE CONSIDERED³⁶ AS IF PLUGGED UP,³⁷ AND ARE SUBJECT TO THE PRINCIPLE OF HALVES³⁸ FOR CONVEYING UNCLEANNESS INTO THE HOUSE.

(1) Either by they themselves overshadowing or else by supporting a 'tent' as explained further in this Mishnah.

(2) As can clean vessels in association with the walls of 'tents' (v. supra v, 5).

(3) In the open air.

(4) נדבך . Bert. renders the word here 'a large and broad stone'. The reading adopted by the 'Aruch, however, is rendered 'bier'. If this reading is adopted, it is of course understood that there is no corpse on the bier.

(5) The stone overshadows all beneath it, causing all to be unclear, but cannot act as a 'tent' to prevent anything upon it from acquiring uncleanness from the source beneath.

(6) In both cases (so Bert.), R. Eliezer regarding persons and vessels as forming 'tents', valid for all purposes.

(7) These vessels are insusceptible to uncleanness but are too small (less than forty se'ahs) to afford protection.

(8) The stones not being vessels, they serve as valid sides of a 'tent' for all purposes.

(9) Exedra, a covered walk in front of a house.

(10) Of those who followed in the procession (Bert.).

(11) Leading directly from the portico to a house.

(12) L. suggests 'or', The man either keeping The door closed by his own weight or with a key.

(13) Without support of the key. or (L.) of the man.

(14) To which the door gives access.

(15) Of earthenware, with its mouth turned outwards.

(16) These foods, being spoiled beyond all possibility of edible value even for cattle are, of their own, insusceptible to uncleanness (Bert.).

(17) Not less than one handbreadth square and communicating between a clean and unclear space.

(18) There being uncleanness on one side of the partition.

(19) Even if directly above The uncleanness.

(20) The uncleanness being considered as belonging for all purposes to the house alone and not as 'compressed'. with powers of cleaving upwards and downwards.

(21) As compressed uncleanness cleaves upwards.

(22) Whereas R. Meir considers the wall to appertain both to the house and to the open space, the Sages hold that it belongs entirely to the house.

(23) Even the half towards the open space.

- (24) Preventing the uncleanness from being visible within the house (v. Kel. IX, 1).
- (25) Where the uncleanness is.
- (26) The space becomes a 'closed grave' defiling all its surroundings, in this case both the house and the upper storey.
- (27) Compressed uncleanness, cleaving upwards and downwards.
- (28) I.e., the wall has been formed by the excavation of two adjacent houses or caves.
- (29) Being compressed beneath the pillar in this vault (cf. supra III, 7, n. 6).
- (30) Lit., 'flower', hence applied to the flower-like decoration on the capital of a pillar.
- (31) Even when there is 'compressed' uncleanness beneath another part of the capital, since this kind of uncleanness does not spread sideways.
- (32) Less than one handbreadth being insufficient to convey uncleanness by overshadowing.
- (33) פֶּרֶדֶסִּים , Aramaic 'wall-cupboard'. Perhaps some form from Gk.  'a tower', hence 'tower-like structure'.
- (34) With uncleanness beneath one of them. Each has a content of less than a cubic handbreadth '(L.)', a space of greater size constituting a closed grave. (V. Mishnah 5, n. 5).
- (35) The uncleanness is not considered as 'compressed' but Follows the law of uncleanness in a wall. When the companion cupboard is closed, it cannot receive the uncleanness.
- (36) When they are closed.
- (37) Forming part of the solid wall.
- (38) When the uncleanness lies beneath them (v. Mishnah 3).

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNES IN A WALL [IN A FREE] SPACE OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH, ALL UPPER STOREYS ABOVE IT, EVEN IF THERE ARE TEN OF THEM,¹ ARE UNCLEAR.² IF THERE WAS A SINGLE UPPER STOREY [BUILT] OVER TWO HOUSES,³ THAT ONE BECOMES UNCLEAR BUT ALL UPPER STOREYS ABOVE IT REMAIN CLEAR.⁴ [IN A] BEACH-⁵ WALL, UNCLEANNES CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARD.⁶ [WITH REGARD TO] A SOLID TOMB MONUMENT,⁷ A PERSON WHO TOUCHES IT FROM THE SIDE REMAINS CLEAR, SINCE [ITS] UNCLEANNES CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.⁸ BUT IF THERE WAS A [FREE] SPACE OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH IN THE PLACE WHERE THE UNCLEANNES WAS, A PERSON TOUCHING IT ANYWHERE BECOMES UNCLEAR, BECAUSE IT IS LIKE A CLOSED GRAVE. IF BOOTHS WERE PLACED ADJACENT TO [THE MONUMENT] THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.⁹ R. JUDAH DECLARES THEM CLEAR.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. ALL SLOPING [PARTS] OF 'TENTS' ARE RECKONED AS 'TENTS'.¹¹ [IN THE CASE OF] A 'TENT' [WHOSE SIDES] SLOPED DOWNWARDS AND FINISHED OFF [WITH A ROOF]¹² OF ONE FINGERBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNES IN THE 'TENT',¹³ VESSELS BENEATH THE SLOPE BECOME UNCLEAR. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNES BENEATH THE SLOPE, VESSELS IN THE 'TENT' BECOME UNCLEAR. IF THERE HAD BEEN¹⁴ UNCLEANNES WITHIN, A PERSON WHO TOUCHES [THE TENT] FROM THE INSIDE ACQUIRES A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT,¹⁵ BUT FROM THE OUTSIDE, A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL] EVENING.¹⁶ IF THERE HAD BEEN UNCLEANNES OUTSIDE, A PERSON WHO TOUCHES THE 'TENT' FROM THE OUTSIDE ACQUIRES A SEVEN [DAYS'] DEFILEMENT, BUT FROM THE INSIDE, A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL] EVENING. IF THERE WAS [A PORTION OF UNCLEANNES] OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE [TOUCHING IT] FROM WITHIN AND HALF AN OLIVE FROM WITHOUT,¹⁷ A PERSON WHO TOUCHES [THE 'TENT'] EITHER FROM WITHIN OR WITHOUT ACQUIRES A DEFILEMENT [LASTING TILL] EVENING.¹⁸ IF A PART [OF THE 'TENT' SIDE] TRAILED ALONG THE GROUND, WHEN THERE IS UNCLEANNES BENEATH OR ABOVE [THIS PART]. THE UNCLEANNES [THEREOF] CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS. [IN THE CASE OF] A 'TENT' ERECTED IN AN UPPER STOREY, WITH A PORTION [OF ITS SIDE] TRAILING OVER THE HATCHWAY BETWEEN

THE HOUSE AND THE UPPER STOREY, R. JOSE SAYS: IT PROTECTS.¹⁷ R. SIMEON SAYS: IT DOES NOT PROTECT UNLESS IT BE STRETCHED OUT AFTER THE USUAL MANNER OF ERECTING 'TENTS.

MISHNAH 3. IF A CORPSE IS IN A HOUSE IN WHICH THERE ARE MANY DOORS, THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAN.¹⁹ IF ONE OF THEM WAS OPENED, THAT ONE BECOMES UNCLEAN BUT ALL THE REST REMAIN CLEAN. IF IT WAS INTENDED TO CARRY OUT THE CORPSE THROUGH ONE OF THEM OR THROUGH A WINDOW OF FOUR HAND BREADTHS SQUARE, THAT PROTECTS ALL THE OTHER DOORS.²⁰ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE INTENTION MUST HAVE BEEN FORMED BEFORE THE PERSON DIED.²¹ BETH HILLEL SAY: EVEN AFTER HE DIED.²² IF [A DOOR] WAS BLOCKED UP AND IT WAS DECIDED TO OPEN IT, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [IT IS EFFECTIVE]²³ AS SOON AS [A SPACE] FOUR HANDBREADTHS SQUARE HAS BEEN OPENED UP. BETH HILLEL SAY: AS SOON AS [THE PROCESS] HAS BEGUN. THEY AGREE, HOWEVER, THAT WHEN MAKING AN OPENING FOR THE FIRST TIME, FOUR HANDBREADTHS MUST BE OPENED UP.

MISHNAH 4. IF A WOMAN WAS IN HARD TRAVAIL AND WAS CARRIED FROM ONE HOUSE TO ANOTHER,²⁴ THE FIRST HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN BECAUSE OF DOUBT²⁵ AND THE SECOND OF A CERTAINTY. R. JUDAH SAID: WHEN IS THIS SO? WHEN SHE IS CARRIED OUT [SUPPORTED] BY THE ARMPITS, BUT IF SHE WAS ABLE TO WALK, THE FIRST HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN, FOR AFTER THE TOMB'²⁶ HAS BEEN OPENED THERE IS NO POSSIBILITY OF WALKING. STILLBORN CHILDREN ARE NOT [DEEMED TO HAVE] OPENED THE 'TOMB' UNTIL THEY PRESENT A HEAD ROUNDED LIKE A SPINDLE-KNOB.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. IF [AT THE BIRTH OF TWINS] THE FIRST PROCEEDED FORTH DEAD AND THE SECOND ALIVE, THE [LIVE ONE] IS CLEAN.²⁸ IF THE FIRST WAS ALIVE AND THE SECOND DEAD, THE [LIVE CHILD] IS UNCLEAN.²⁹ R. MEIR SAYS: IF THEY WERE IN ONE MEMBRANE, [THE LIVE CHILD] IS UNCLEAN,³⁰ BUT IF THERE WERE TWO MEMBRANES, IT REMAINS CLEAN.³¹

MISHNAH 6. IF A WOMAN IS IN HARD TRAVAIL, ONE CUTS UP THE CHILD IN HER WOMB AND BRINGS IT FORTH MEMBER BY MEMBER, BECAUSE HER LIFE COMES BEFORE THAT OF [THE CHILD]. BUT IF THE GREATER PART HAS PROCEEDED FORTH, ONE MAY NOT TOUCH IT, FOR ONE MAY NOT SET ASIDE ONE PERSON'S LIFE FOR THAT OF ANOTHER.³²

(1) All connected with this wall by having their floor beams fixed into it.

(2) The wall is regarded as a closed grave, defiling all around.

(3) And this unclean wall between the two houses supports the upper storey.

(4) The first upper storey affording them complete protection.

(5) שונית Bert.: a wall built in the place to which the sea comes in rough weather levelling out all free (hollow) spaces. Var. lec. (followed by L.) is שנית, 'rock'.

(6) The wall is regarded as part of the earth, in which no uncleanness is ever treated as a 'closed grave'. According to var. lec., the reason is because the principle of 'free space' applies only to a wall made by human agency (Wilna Gaon).

(7) Lit., 'resting place'. i.e., tomb (cf. Shek. II, 5).

(8) Like compressed uncleanness and not like a closed grave.

(9) Being regarded as 'tents' over corpses.

(10) Since they are placed against the sides.

(11) I.e., spaces under the sloping sides are considered as part of the 'tent' itself.

(12) So Bert. Cf. Shab. 138b where it is implied that the minimum size for the roof of a 'tent' must be a handbreadth. In spite of this rule, for the purpose of conveying uncleanness, a smaller size does not prevent this 'tent' from being constituted.

(13) I.e., under the roof.

(14) In the past. However the uncleanness was not present when the 'tent' was touched.

(15) The inner side and the outer side of the 'tent' being reckoned as two vessels (Bert.). The inner side, having come into contact with the corpse, acquires its degree of uncleanness, אבי אבות הטומאה (cf. supra I, 2 n. 4) and confers both upon the person and the outer side of the 'tent' a generating defilement.

(16) The outer side conferring a generated defilement on the person touching it.

(17) In which case the 'tent' acquires a seven days' defilement, the two half olives combining on the view of the Sages, supra III, 1.

(18) The sides, in relation to those who touch them, being regarded as two vessels. (8) Although it is formed of a substance which is susceptible to uncleanness because it is part of a tent.

(19) V. Supra III, 6, n. 7.

(20) That are closed. Henceforth objects placed underneath them do not become unclean.

(21) After which, only a positive action can avail to afford protection from uncleanness.

(22) Nevertheless, vessels already in position at the time of death remain unclean.

(23) To protect other doors. V. Preuss op. cit. p. 458.

(24) And gave birth there to a dead child. V. also Preuss p. 236.

(25) Perhaps the womb had opened there and the child's head had protruded.

(26) I.e., the opening of the womb.

(27) Cf. Bek. 22a.

(28) If the dead child had been removed from the house. Uncleanness cannot be contracted in the womb.

(29) Having passed through an opening through which uncleanness is due to pass.

(30) Since it presumably touched the dead child outside the womb. On the membrane (שפיר) v. Preuss p. 456.

(31) On the theory that the dead child does not defile until it is out of the womb.

(32) On this principle v. Preuss p. 607.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. SOME THINGS FORM A PASSAGE¹ FOR UNCLEANNESS AND [ALSO] A SCREEN [AGAINST IT]; [SOME] FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESS BUT NOT A SCREEN; [SOME] FORM A SCREEN BUT NOT A PASSAGE; [AND SOME] FORM NEITHER A PASSAGE NOR A SCREEN. THE FOLLOWING FORM [BOTH] A PASSAGE AND A SCREEN: A CHEST,² A BOX, A CUPBOARD, A BEEHIVE OF STRAW, A BEEHIVE OF REEDS, OR THE WATER-TANK OF AN ALEXANDRIAN³ SHIP, SUCH OF WHICH [OBJECTS] HAVE [FLAT] BOTTOMS⁴ AND A CONTENT OF [AT LEAST] FORTY SEAH⁵ LIQUID MEASURE OR TWO KORS⁶ DRY MEASURE.⁷ [FURTHER] A CURTAIN, A LEATHERN APRON,⁸ A LEATHERN UNDERCOVER,⁹ A SHEET, A MATTING UNDERLAY¹⁰ OR A MAT¹¹ WHEN MADE INTO 'TENTS';¹² A HERD OF CATTLE,¹³ UNCLEAN OR CLEAN, PACKS¹⁴ OF WILD ANIMALS OR BIRDS, A RESTING BIRD,¹⁵ A [SHADY] PLACE THAT [A WOMAN] MAKES FOR HER SON AMONGST THE EARS OF CORN; THE IRIS,¹⁶ THE IVY,¹⁷ ASS HERBS,¹⁸ GREEK GOURDS¹⁹ AND CLEAN FOODSTUFFS.²⁰ R. JOHANAN B. NURI DID NOT AGREE WITH REGARD TO CLEAN FOODSTUFFS EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF A CAKE OF DRIED FIGS.²¹

MISHNAH 2. [FURTHER.] PROJECTING CANOPIES,²² BALCONIES,²³ DOVE-COTES, CREVICES AND CRAGS,²⁴ GROTTOS,²⁵ [OVERHANGING] PINNACLES, INTERLACED BOUGHS AND PROTRUDING STONES SUCH AS ARE CAPABLE OF SUSTAINING THIN PLASTER-WORK; ACCORDING TO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY A MEDIUM PLASTER-WORK. THE FOLLOWING IS A CASE OF INTERLACED BOUGHS': A TREE WHICH THROWS SHADE OVER THE GROUND. PROTRUDING STONES' ARE [STONES] THAT PROJECT FROM A WALL.

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING FORM A PASSAGE BUT NOT A SCREEN: A CHEST, A BOX, A CUPBOARD, A BEEHIVE OF STRAW, A BEEHIVE OF REEDS, OR THE WATERTANK OF AN ALEXANDRIAN SHIP, SUCH OF WHICH [OBJECTS] HAVE NOT [FLAT] BOTTOMS OR HAVE NOT A CONTENT OF FORTY SE'AH'S LIQUID MEASURE OR TWO KORS DRY MEASURE.²⁶ [FURTHER.] A CURTAIN, A LEATHERN APRON, A LEATHERN UNDERCOVER, A SHEET, A MATTING UNDERLAY OR A MAT WHEN NOT MADE INTO 'TENTS',²⁶ CATTLE OR WILD ANIMALS WHEN THEY ARE DEAD, AND FOODSTUFFS THAT ARE [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN.²⁷ IN ADDITION TO THESE, A MILL [WORKED BY] MAN-POWER.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. THE FOLLOWING FORM A SCREEN BUT NOT A PASSAGE: A LOOM [WITH A WEB] SPREAD OUT,²⁹ THE ROPEWORK OF A BED, REFUSE BASKETS,³⁰ AND WINDOW-LATTICES.³¹

MISHNAH 5. THE FOLLOWING FORM NEITHER A PASSAGE NOR A SCREEN: SEEDS, PLANTS [STILL] ATTACHED TO THE SOIL, EXCEPT FOR THE PLANTS MENTIONED ABOVE,³² A LUMP³³ OF HAIL, SNOW, FROST, ICE AND SALT. [FURTHER ANYTHING] THAT HOPS FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER, OR LEAPS FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER, A FLYING BIRD, A LOOSELY-FLAPPING GARMENT,³⁴ OR A SHIP FLOATING [FREELY] ON THE WATER. IF THE SHIP WERE TIED WITH SOMETHING THAT CAN KEEP IT STEADY, OR A STONE WERE [PLACED SO AS] TO HOLD DOWN THE GARMENT, THEY CAN FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNES. R. JOSE SAYS: A HOUSE ON A SHIP CANNOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNES.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF TWO JARS CONTAINING TWO PORTIONS [ONE IN EACH] OF A CORPSE OF THE SIZE OF HALF AN OLIVE, AND SEALED WITH TIGHTLY FITTING LIDS³⁶ WERE LYING IN A HOUSE, THEY REMAIN CLEAN,³⁷ BUT THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN.³⁸ IF ONE OF THEM WAS OPENED, THAT [JAR] AND THE HOUSE BECOME UNCLEAN, BUT ITS COMPANION REMAINS CLEAN. A SIMILAR RULE APPLIES TO TWO ROOMS THAT OPEN INTO A HOUSE.³⁹

(1) Cf. supra III, 7.

(2) Heb. Shiddah. This word is frequently found (cf. Shab. 120a, Naz. 55a etc) in connection with tebah and migdal, the two words rendered here 'box' and 'cupboard'. Hence it probably means something similar to them. Kel. XVIII, 1 and 2 contains a description of certain parts of a 'shiddah' from which Rashi (on Shab. 44a) infers that it is a wheeled cart used for carrying people. Bert. and L. describe it as a larger version of tebah. 'Aruch suggests the word is possibly derived from late Gk. , a chair. Perhaps it means a 'wheeled box chair'.

(3) Grain ships going from Alexandria to Rome.

(4) So that they can rest in stable equilibrium.

(5) One se'ah = six kabs, roughly twelve litres.

(6) Cf. 'Uk V, 2. One kor = thirty se'ahs, roughly three hundred ninety-three litres = nearly eleven bushels.

(7) These dimensions are given in connection with the above vessels in Kel. XV, 1, where it is explained that vessels of such a size are insusceptible to uncleanness.

(8) Lat. scortea, 'a leathern article'. Bert., 'workman's apron'; Maim., 'bedcover'.

(9) Gk. , something 'thrown over' the bed, as an undercover.

(10) Cf. Kel. XXIV, 10; XXVII, 2; B.K. 25b. Perhaps from נפץ 'to spread'.

(11) מחצלת . Cf. Kel. XVII, 17: XX, 7. 'Aruch quotes the cognate Arabic meaning 'slender twigs' from which mats are woven.

(12) These articles, of their own, are susceptible to uncleanness. When forming 'tents', however, they can convey and screen in the normal manner.

(13) Standing in one place, packed tightly together (Bert.).

- (14) מכונות Maim. 'packs'. The word is usually taken to mean 'habitation' and here might well be rendered 'stalls', 'coops' (last.). The context, however, suggests a parallel with 'herd of cattle'.
- (15) According to Bert., a captive bird, tied to the place.
- (16) Cf. Kil. V, 8.
- (17) Cf. Kil. l.c.
- (18) ירקות חמור a kind of wild gourd. 'cucumis aqrestis'.
- (19) All the above-mentioned plants are regarded as having broad leaves (Bert.). or as being evergreen (L.). Moreover the reference is to such as are still connected with the soil, so that they form a suitable 'tent' and are insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (20) I.e., such as are insusceptible to uncleanness, not having come in contact with any liquid of the seven kinds, v. Maksh. VI, 4.
- (21) Which he regards as the only foods likely to be used as a shelter.
- (22) Zizirt. 'Aruch quotes the cognate Arabic root meaning 'to project'. Cf. B.B. III, 6 and also Oh. XIV, 2 for the distinction between this and the following word.
- (23) גזריות. A similar word, גזזטרא (Mid. 11,5; Shab. 96a etc.) is taken by 'Aruch from Gk. ' 'gallery'. Our word may be a Hebraized form of this word.
- (24) V. supra III end.
- (25) גהרים corrected by 'Aruch to גהרים, quoting cognate Arabic 'grotto'. Maim.: from גהר, 'to stretch' (I. Kings XVIII, 42) hence 'projecting rock'. Bert.: 'light-holes'.
- (26) Thereby being susceptible to uncleanness.
- (27) Through the process mentioned in Maksh. VI, 4.
- (28) Not by animal power. A portable mill is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (29) The web, consisting of the warp threads alone, spread over a hatchway.
- (30) Cf. Kel. XXIV, 9. 'Aruch connects the word with זבל 'dung'.
- (31) All the articles in this Mishnah have holes in their structure. These holes, however, are less than one square handbreadth in area and therefore form valid screens (cf. Rashi on Hul. 125b).
- (32) V. supra I end.
- (33) Lit., 'a stone'.
- (34) Flying loose through the air.
- (35) If it sheltered over a corpse in the sea and vessels on the ship (L.).
- (36) The tightly fitting lid (Num. XIX, 15) forms a screen for an earthenware jar.
- (37) Each containing only half an olive's bulk of a corpse.
- (38) Since It contains an olive-sized portion of a corpse, a tightly fitting lid, while it serves as a screen for what is contained in an earthenware jar, does not prevent any uncleanness in the vessel from penetrating beyond it and defiling what is outside; v. Kel. VIII, 6.
- (39) If two sealed rooms each contain a portion of a corpse of half an olive size, they remain clean, but the house through which the uncleanness must pass becomes unclean.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. WITH REGARD TO A BEEHIVE¹ [LYING] IN THE DOORWAY² WITH ITS MOUTH [POINTING] OUTSIDE, IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE WERE PLACED BELOW THAT [PART OF THE HIVE] WHICH IS OUTSIDE [THE HOUSE]. EVERYTHING DIRECTLY³ BELOW OR ABOVE THAT OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] BECOMES UNCLEAR;⁴ BUT EVERYTHING THAT IS NOT DIRECTLY [BELOW OR ABOVE] THAT OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION]. OR THAT IS WITHIN [THE HIVE]⁵ OR WITHIN THE HOUSE, REMAINS CLEAN. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN THE HOUSE, NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR EXCEPT THAT WHICH IS WITHIN THE HOUSE.⁶ [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN [THE HIVE] EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁷

MISHNAH 2. [IN THE CASE OF THE HIVE] BEING ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT OR IN THE HOUSE OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN⁸ EXCEPT THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE HIVE]. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN THE HIVE EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN [THE HIVE RETAINS THE STATUS OF] A VESSEL AND IS PERFORATED.⁹ [IN THE CASE OF ITS] BEING DEFECTIVE, ALTHOUGH [ITS DEFICIENCY MAY BE] STOPPED UP WITH STRAW¹⁰ OR BLOCKED UP¹¹ (WHAT IS [CONSIDERED] 'BLOCKED UP?' ANYTHING WHICH HAS NO [LONGER AN OPENING OF] ONE HANDBREADTH [SQUARE] IN ONE PLACE). IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE IS PLACED BELOW IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [BELOW THE PORTION] TO THE NETHERMOST DEEP BECOMES UNCLEAN;¹² [IF PLACED] ABOVE [THE HIVE EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY ABOVE TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] IN THE HOUSE, NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN EXCEPT THE HOUSE. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN [THE HIVE]. NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN EXCEPT THAT WHICH IS WITHIN [THE HIVE].

MISHNAH 4. [IN THE CASE OF SUCH A HIVE] BEING [PLACED] ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT OR IN THE HOUSE, [THE SPACE] BELOW IT AND THE HOUSE BECOME UNCLEAN,¹³ BUT [THE SPACE] ABOVE AND WITHIN REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁴ [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN, NOTHING IS UNCLEAN EXCEPT WHAT IS WITHIN; IF ABOVE [THE HIVE]. WHAT IS DIRECTLY ABOVE UP TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN THE MOUTH [OF THE HIVE IS POINTING] OUTWARDS. IN THE CASE OF THE MOUTH [POINTING] INWARDS, IF AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF THE CORPSE IS PLACED BELOW OR ABOVE [THAT PART OF THE HIVE WHICH IS] OUTSIDE, EVERYTHING DIRECTLY BELOW OR ABOVE¹⁵ THAT OLIVE-SIZED PORTION BECOMES UNCLEAN, AND EVERYTHING NOT DIRECTLY [BELOW OR ABOVE IT]. AND WHAT IS WITHIN [THE HIVE] AND THE HOUSE, REMAINS CLEAN. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN THE HIVE OR THE HOUSE, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.¹⁶

MISHNAH 6. [IN THE CASE OF THE HIVE IN THIS POSITION] BEING ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS BELOW IT OR IN THE HOUSE OR WITHIN [THE HIVE] OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN [THE HIVE RETAINS THE STATUS OF] A VESSEL AND IS PERFORATED. [IN THE CASE OF ITS] BEING DEFECTIVE, ALTHOUGH [ITS DEFICIENCY MAY BE] STOPPED UP WITH STRAW OR BLOCKED UP (WHAT IS CONSIDERED BLOCKED UP? ANYTHING WHICH HAS NO [LONGER AN OPENING OF] ONE HANDBREADTH [SQUARE] IN ONE PLACE), IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE IS PLACED BELOW IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [BELOW THE PORTION] TO THE NETHERMOST DEEP BECOMES UNCLEAN; [IF PLACED] ABOVE [THE HIVE, EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS PLACED] WITHIN [THE HIVE] OR IN THE HOUSE, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.¹⁷

MISHNAH 8. [IN THE CASE OF SUCH A HIVE IN THIS POSITION] BEING ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT OR IN THE HOUSE OR WITHIN [THE HIVE]. EVERYTHING¹⁸ BECOMES UNCLEAN EXCEPT WHAT IS ABOVE IT. IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS ABOVE IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 9. [IN THE CASE WHEN THE HIVE] OCCUPIES ALL THE HOUSE AND THERE WAS NOT A SPACE OF A HANDBREADTH BETWEEN IT¹⁹ AND THE ROOF BEAMS, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN [THE HIVE], THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, WHAT IS WITHIN [THE HIVE] REMAINS CLEAN, FOR THE MANNER OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT AND NOT TO GO IN.²⁰ [THIS APPLIES] WHETHER [THE HIVE] IS STANDING UPRIGHT, OR LYING ON ITS SIDE, WHETHER THERE IS ONE [HIVE] OR TWO.²¹

MISHNAH 10. [IN THE CASE WHERE THE NON-DEFECTIVE HIVE] WAS STANDING UPRIGHT IN THE DOORWAY AND THERE WAS NOT A SPACE OF ONE HANDBREADTH BETWEEN IT AND THE LINTEL, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN IT, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN; BUT IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, WHAT IS WITHIN [THE HIVE] BECOMES UNCLEAR,²² FOR THE MANNER OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS TO GO OUT AND NOT TO GO IN.²³

MISHNAH 11. [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT²⁴ WAS LYING ON ITS SIDE IN THE OPEN AIR, IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE WAS PLACED BELOW IT OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING DIRECTLY BELOW OR ABOVE THE OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT EVERYTHING THAT IS NOT DIRECTLY BELOW OR ABOVE, AND WHAT IS WITHIN [THE HIVE] REMAINS CLEAN. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN [THE HIVE] EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 12. [IN THE CASE WHERE THIS HIVE IN THE OPEN AIR] WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR EXCEPT WHAT IS WITHIN THE HIVE]. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN [THE HIVE RETAINS THE STATUS OF] A VESSEL. [IN THE CASE OF ITS] BEING DEFECTIVE, ALTHOUGH [ITS DEFICIENCY MAY BE] STOPPED UP WITH STRAW, OR ACCORDING TO THE SAGES,²⁵ [IN THE CASE OF IT] CONTAINING FORTY SE' AHS, IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE WERE PLACED BELOW IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [BELOW] UNTO THE NETHERMOST DEEP BECOMES UNCLEAR; ABOVE IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY ABOVE TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAR. [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN [THE HIVE]. NOTHING IS UNCLEAR EXCEPT THAT WHICH IS WITHIN. [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE WAS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT, WHAT IS BELOW BECOMES UNCLEAR;²⁶ [IF THE UNCLEANNESS] WAS WITHIN IT, WHAT IS WITHIN BECOMES UNCLEAR; ABOVE IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 13. [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT WAS RESTING ON ITS BOTTOM AND [RETAINED THE STATUS OF] A VESSEL, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT, WITHIN IT OR ABOVE IT,²⁷ THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.²⁸ [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND OR COVERED²⁹ OR INVERTED [SO AS TO STAND] UPON ITS MOUTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT, WITHIN IT OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 14. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN [THE HIVE RETAINS THE STATUS OF] A VESSEL. [IN THE CASE OF ITS] BEING DEFECTIVE, ALTHOUGH [THE DEFICIENCY MAY BE] STOPPED UP WITH STRAW, OR ACCORDING TO THE SAGES, [IN THE CASE OF IT] CONTAINING FORTY SE' AHS, IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS BELOW IT, WITHIN IT OR ABOVE IT, THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS. R. ELIEZER AND R. SIMEON SAY: UNCLEANNESS CAN NEITHER ASCEND INTO [THE DEFECTIVE HIVE] NOR DESCEND FROM IT.³⁰ [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT, WHAT IS BELOW BECOMES UNCLEAR; WITHIN IT OR ABOVE IT, [EVERYTHING] DIRECTLY [ABOVE] IT TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 15. WITH REGARD TO A COFFIN³¹ WHICH IS BROAD BELOW AND NARROW ABOVE, AND HAD A CORPSE WITHIN, A PERSON TOUCHING IT BELOW³² REMAINS CLEAN; BUT ABOVE, BECOMES UNCLEAR.³³ IF IT IS BROAD ABOVE AND NARROW BELOW, A PERSON TOUCHING IT ANYWHERE BECOMES UNCLEAR. IF IT WAS THE SAME [ABOVE AND BELOW], A PERSON TOUCHING IT ANYWHERE BECOMES UNCLEAR. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. ELIEZER, BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: A HANDBREADTH AND MORE³⁴ BELOW IS CLEAN,³⁵ BUT FROM THAT HANDBREADTH UPWARDS IS UNCLEAR. IF IT IS MADE LIKE A CLOTHES-CHEST,³⁶ A PERSON TOUCHING IT ANYWHERE BECOMES UNCLEAR. IF IT WAS MADE LIKE A CASE,³⁷ A PERSON TOUCHING IT ANYWHERE AT THE PLACE WHERE IT OPENS, REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 16. [WITH REGARD TO] A JAR³⁸ RESTING ON ITS BOTTOM IN THE OPEN AIR, IF AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE IS PLACED BENEATH IT OR WITHIN IT DIRECTLY [ABOVE] ITS BOTTOM, THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS,³⁹ AND THE JAR BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁴⁰ [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] OUTSIDE BELOW THE SIDE, THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS,⁴¹ BUT THE JAR REMAINS CLEAN.⁴² [IN THE CASE WHERE THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN [THE JAR] AND BENEATH THE SIDES,⁴³ IF THERE IS WITHIN THE [CAVITY OF] THE SIDES A SPACE OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH EVERYTHING⁴⁴ [WITHIN THE CAVITY] BECOMES UNCLEAR, BUT WHAT LIES DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE MOUTH REMAINS CLEAN. IF THERE IS NOT [A SPACE OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH]. THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS. WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? WHEN THE JAR IS CLEAN.⁴⁵ [IN THE CASE WHERE IT WAS CAPABLE OF BECOMING] UNCLEAR,⁴⁶ OR WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND,⁴⁷ OR COVERED,⁴⁸ OR INVERTED [SO AS TO STAND] ON ITS MOUTH,⁴⁹ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH IT, WITHIN IT OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁵⁰

(1) A wooden cylinder open at one end (its mouth) for the collection of honey, and perforated at the closed end to give ingress to the bees. It is less than forty se'ahs in content and therefore is to be considered a vessel and not a valid 'tent' on its own; but the fact that it has perforations renders it insusceptible to uncleanness (L.).

(2) Part inside and part outside the house.

(3) In a vertical line.

(4) Being a vessel, the hive can afford no protection (supra VI, 1).

(5) Being insusceptible to uncleanness, the hive can protect its own contents.

(6) The contents of the hive remain clean, the uncleanness not entering by the perforations. regarded as being loosely stopped up.

(7) The uncleanness going out by the perforations.

(8) A 'tent' is thereby formed and the uncleanness is carried into the house.

(9) מהלחלת. Some commentators, basing their interpretation of these words on Kel. X, 3, render 'lying loosely in the doorway'. But there seem to be two qualities required here. Firstly the hive must be a useable vessel and not defective. Secondly, it must have perforations that are free and not blocked up. L. and Bert. both render 'perforated'.

(10) The straw cannot restore it to the status of a vessel.

(11) אפוצה. Some commentators, taking this word to be the opposite of מהלחלת, and basing their interpretation on a passage in J. Pes. I, 27c (where these two words appear as contrasts) render 'fixed tightly in the entrance'. 'Aruch from Arabic 'to compress', whence Bert. 'with the perforations blocked up'.

(12) But all else remains clean. Not being a vessel, the hive can protect.

(13) The uncleanness being transferred from one space to another.

(14) The hive protecting.

(15) Some texts add 'or within (the hive)'.

(16) Even within the hive, the uncleanness entering its mouth.

(17) Only in this respect does this Mishnah differ from Mishnah 3.

(18) cf Mishnah 5 end n. 2.

(19) The hive is regarded as resting on its bottom so that there is not a handbreadth's space between the mouth and the roof beams.

(20) Cf. supra III, 7.

(21) The one standing on top of the other.

(22) Var. lec., clean. V. Rashi.

(23) For this reason if the uncleanness is within the hive the house is clean.

(24) The unbroken hive.

(25) Who maintain, as against R. Meir (v. Tosef. Kel. pt. II, V, 1) that certain articles when they are of the size of forty se'ahs, no longer retain the status of a vessel, but take on that of a 'tent'. V. also Kel. XV, 1.

(26) All below, the object acting as a 'tent'.

(27) Above the opening.

(28) Even when the uncleanness is within, since the open mouth is in direct communication with the air above.

(29) With another vessel, which cannot protect what is within the hive from uncleanness.

(30) Being defective, it can, In their opinion, afford protection.

(31) Excavated from the living rock.

(32) I.e., touching a portion of the rock not directly beneath the inner wall-surface of the tomb but outside it. Not immediately supporting the covering stone (supra II, 4) it is clean, being reckoned part of the ordinary rock.

(33) Touching the covering stone.

(34) Measured from the lower base of the hollow of the coffin.

(35) Being reckoned part of the ordinary rock.

(36) 'A box' (cf. Kel. XVI. 7). The cover lies over the thickness of the sides (Bert.).

(37) גַּלְסִימָה perhaps from Gr.  (the LXX rendering For אֶרֶץ II Chron. XXIV. 8) 'a case'. The cover sinks in within the sides, not touching their thicknesses. It therefore resembles the first case in our Mishnah (Bert.).

(38) Made of a substance insusceptible to uncleanness. It is narrow above and below, bulging in the middle.

(39) Cf. Mishnah 13. n. 4.

(40) I.e., what is within the jar in a direct line with the uncleanness.

(41) In a direct line. There is not a space of one cubic handbreadth below the bulge of the jar, hence the uncleanness is compressed.

(42) Being insusceptible to uncleanness from the outside.

(43) I.e., in the cavity formed by the bulge.

(44) Reckoned a 'tent'.

(45) Insusceptible to uncleanness.

(46) And consequently unable to serve as a screen to protect the contents in the jar where the uncleanness is outside beneath the bulge.

(47) In this case the jar forms a 'tent' which conveys uncleanness and does not serve as a screen (v. supra VI, I). spreading consequently the uncleanness in every case to the jar and its contents.

(48) Whilst they would not affect the case where the uncleanness was outside under the bulge of the jar, where it was placed beneath the jar or within it directly above its bottom or beneath the sides, the contents of the jar become unclean because a tightly fitting cover does not serve as a screen against compressed uncleanness (v. Kel. X. 2). with the result that the cover itself forms a 'tent' defiling the contents of the jar.

(49) Cf. previous note mut. mut.

(50) The cases vary in detail (L.). V. nn. 12-13.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] A HATCHWAY IN A HOUSE,¹ WHICH [HATCHWAY] HAS AN OPENING OF A [SQUARE] HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE,² WHAT IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY REMAINS CLEAN.³ IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN. IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS EITHER IN THE HOUSE OR DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY, AND A PERSON PLACED HIS FOOT ABOVE [THE HATCHWAY]. HE HAS COMBINED⁴ [WITH THE ROOF TO BRING] UNCLEANNESS. IF PART OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE ROOM AND PART OF IT DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY,⁵ THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN AND WHAT IS DIRECTLY [AGAINST] THE UNCLEANNESS BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁶

MISHNAH 2. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE HATCHWAY HAS NOT AN OPENING OF A [SQUARE] HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, WHAT IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY REMAINS CLEAN. IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN.⁷ [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE HOUSE, IF HE PLACED HIS LEG ABOVE [THE HATCHWAY]. HE REMAINS CLEAN.⁸ [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UNCLEANNESS IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY, IF HE PLACED HIS LEG ABOVE IT, R. MEIR DECLARES [HIM] UNCLEAN, BUT THE SAGES SAY: IF THE UNCLEANNESS WAS [IN POSITION] BEFORE HIS LEG, HE BECOMES UNCLEAN,⁹ BUT IF HIS LEG WAS [IN POSITION] BEFORE THE UNCLEANNESS, HE REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁰ R. SIMEON SAYS: [IN THE CASE WHERE] TWO [MEN'S] LEGS, ONE ABOVE THE OTHER, WERE [IN POSITION] BEFORE THE UNCLEANNESS. IF THE FIRST PERSON WITHDREW HIS LEG AND THE OTHER PERSON'S LEG WAS STILL THERE, [THE SECOND] REMAINS CLEAN, BECAUSE THE FIRST PERSON'S LEG WAS [IN POSITION] BEFORE THE UNCLEANNESS.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. IF PART OF THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE HOUSE AND PART DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAY,¹² THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN, AND WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE UNCLEANNESS BECOMES UNCLEAN.¹³ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN BUT WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE UNCLEANNESS REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁴ R. JOSE SAYS: IF THERE IS SUFFICIENT¹⁵ OF THE UNCLEANNESS FOR IT TO BE DIVIDED SO THAT [ONE PART] DEFILES THE HOUSE AND [THE OTHER PART] DEFILES WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE UNCLEANNESS,¹⁶ [BOTH SPACES] BECOME UNCLEAN; IF NOT, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN BUT WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE UNCLEANNESS REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. [IN THE CASE OF] MANY HATCHWAYS, ONE ABOVE THE OTHER,¹⁷ HAVING AN OPENING OF ONE HANDBREADTH [SQUARE], IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE,¹⁸ WHAT IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAYS REMAINS CLEAN. MISHNAH 5. [IN THE CASE] WHERE THE HATCHWAYS HAVE NOT AN OPENING OF A SQUARE HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, WHAT IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAYS REMAINS CLEAN. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAYS, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN. [IN THE CASE]

WHERE THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE HOUSE,²² IF AN ARTICLE WHETHER SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS OR INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WAS PLACED EITHER IN THE UPPER OR THE LOWER [HATCHWAY], NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN EXCEPT THE LOWER STOREY.²³ [IN THE CASE] WHERE THE UNCLEANNESS IS DIRECTLY [BELOW] THE HATCHWAYS, IF AN ARTICLE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WERE PLACED EITHER IN THE UPPER OR LOWER [HATCHWAY], EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.²⁴ IF THE ARTICLE IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, WHETHER [IT IS PLACED] IN THE UPPER OR LOWER [HATCHWAY], NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN EXCEPT THE LOWER STOREY.²⁵

MISHNAH 6. [WITH REGARD TO] A HATCHWAY IN A HOUSE WITH A POT SO PLACED BELOW IT THAT, IF IT WAS RAISED, ITS RIMS WOULD NOT TOUCH THE [EDGES OF THE] HATCHWAY, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW, WITHIN OR ABOVE [THE POT], THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.²⁶ [IN THE CASE] WHERE [THE POT] WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW IT OR IN THE HOUSE, WHAT IS BELOW IT AND IN THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN,²⁷ BUT WHAT IS WITHIN [THE POT] OR ABOVE IT, REMAINS CLEAN.²⁸ [IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS] WITHIN OR ABOVE [THE POT], EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAN.²⁹

MISHNAH 7. (1) In the roof, giving access to the open air.

(2) under the roof away from the hatchway.

(3) Not being overshadowed.

(4) Cf. supra VI, 1. The man's foot has combined with the roof to form a 'tent' For the uncleanness and everything in the room, even what is directly below the hatchway, is unclean.

(5) Although the whole does not exceed an olive's hulk, so that neither part has sufficient to convey uncleanness.

(6) Since vessels overshadowing but a portion of the prescribed minimum of uncleanness present (cf. supra III, 4) become unclean.

(7) These rules are the same as in Mishnah 1.

(8) No uncleanness escapes through a hole less than a square handbreadth in area (Tosef. XI, 7) but all the house becomes unclean as in Mishnah 1 by combination of Foot with roof.

(9) because it overshadowed uncleanness.

(10) Because his leg had already combined to Form a complete 'tent' before the uncleanness had come, and the latter cannot escape now through a hole of less than a square handbreadth in a valid 'tent'.

(11) He is not regarded as coming into position after the uncleanness.

(12) Of less than a square handbreadth in size.

(13) V. Mishnah 1, n, 6.

(14) Any continuation of a portion of uncleanness not being able to defile through an opening of less than a handbreadth.

(15) I.e., a minimum of twice the size of an olive.

(16) Though they are not so divided in fact.

- (17) One in the ceiling of the ground floor and the other in the roof, vertically above the first.
- (18) Not under the hatchways.
- (19) Including whatever is in the house, the article placed over the hatchway Forming a 'tent' overshadowing all. Even if the article was only in the lower hatchway the upper storey would become unclean, seeing that the article is susceptible to uncleanness and cannot therefore screen the upper storey, and hence is regarded as being in the upper hatchway (Bert.). ‘
- (20) Being overshadowed by the article.
- (21) It Forms a valid screen.
- (22) In the lower storey.
- (23) The uncleanness being unable to escape through an opening of less than a square handbreadth.
- (24) As in Mishnah 4.
- (25) Where the uncleanness is, the article screening.
- (26) Even penetrating the earthenware pot which normally cannot be defiled From its outside.
- (27) Since the pot combines with the roof and brings the uncleanness by overshadowing.
- (28) The pot screening in conjunction with the walls of the house (cf. supra V, 5).
- (29) I.e., the pot, which consequently cannot serve as a screen, and hence all else in the house as in Mishnah 4.
- (30) I.e., on the outer side of the house where also the uncleanness was.
- (31) It is a case where the pot was wider below and getting narrower towards the opening, so that when it is raised the opening would be entirely outside the lintel, whereas the bottom part would still be covering the lintel over the space of a handbreadth.
- (32) As in Mishnah 6, n. 4.
- (33) In such a manner as not to touch a handbreadth of the lintel,
- (34) Since there is no handbreadth under the lintel the uncleanness does not pass into the house and consequently what is within and above the pot is clean.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 11

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] A HOUSE, [WHOSE ROOF] HAS BEEN SPLIT [INTO TWO].¹ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE OUTER [PART].² VESSELS IN THE INNER [PART] REMAIN CLEAN.³ IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE INNER [PART]. VESSELS IN THE OUTER [PART ARE DECLARED CLEAN]. ACCORDING TO BETH SHAMMAI, WHEN THE SPLIT IS FOUR HANDBREADTHS WIDE;⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: [WHEN THE SPLIT IS OF] ANY SIZE.⁵ R. JOSE SAYS IN THE NAME OF BETH HILLEL: [WHEN IT IS] ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE.

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] A PORTICO WHICH HAS BEEN SPLIT [INTO TWO]. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS ON THE ONE SIDE,⁶ VESSELS ON THE OTHER SIDE REMAIN CLEAN.⁷ IF A PERSON PLACED HIS LEG OR A REED ABOVE [THE SPLIT],⁸ HE HAS COMBINED [WITH THE ROOF TO BRING THE] UNCLEANNESS.⁹ IF HE PLACED THE REED ON THE GROUND,¹⁰ IT DOES NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS, [NOR CAN IT DO SO] UNTIL IT IS ONE HANDBREADTH OFF THE GROUND.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. A THICK WOOLLEN BLANKET OR A THICK WOODEN BLOCK¹² CANNOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESS¹³ UNLESS THEY ARE ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND. IF [GARMENTS] ARE FOLDED ONE ABOVE THE OTHER THEY CANNOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS UNLESS THE UPPERMOST IS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND.¹⁴ IF A PERSON WERE PLACED THERE,¹⁵ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE CANNOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: A MAN IS HOLLOW AND HIS UPPERMOST SURFACE FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 4. IF A PERSON WAS LOOKING OUT OF A WINDOW AND OVERSHADOWED A FUNERAL PROCESSION,¹⁶ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE DOES NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS.¹⁷ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE DOES FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS. MISHNAH 5. [IN THE CASE] WHERE THE PERSON WAS LYING ON THE THRESHOLD AND THE FUNERAL PROCESSION OVERSHADOWED HIM,²⁰ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE DOES NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS.²¹ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE DOES FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 6. [IN THE CASE] WHERE THE UNCLEANNESS WAS IN THE HOUSE AND CLEAN PERSONS OVERSHADOWED HIM,²² BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM CLEAN, BUT BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM UNCLEAR.²³

MISHNAH 7. [WITH REGARD TO] A DOG WHICH HAD EATEN THE FLESH OF A CORPSE, HAD [SUBSEQUENTLY] DIED²⁴ AND WAS LYING OVER THE THRESHOLD, R. JOSE SAYS: WE [EXAMINE TO] SEE WHERE THE UNCLEANNESS IS. [IF IT LIES FROM BENEATH] THE LINTEL INWARDS, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR; [FROM BENEATH] THE LINTEL OUTWARDS, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF ITS MOUTH [POINTS] INWARDS, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN; IF ITS MOUTH [POINTS] OUTWARDS, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAR, SINCE THE UNCLEANNESS PROCEEDS FORTH THROUGH ITS HINDER

PARTS. R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAYS: WHETHER THE ONE [CONDITION] OR THE OTHER [APPLIES]. THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN.²⁵ HOW LONG SHOULD [THE UNCLEANNESS] HAVE REMAINED IN ITS ENTRAILS?²⁶ THREE WHOLE DAYS.²⁷ [IN THE CASE OF THE UNCLEANNESS BEING IN THE ENTRAILS] OF FISHES OR BIRDS, AS LONG AS [IT TAKES FOR THE UNCLEANNESS] TO FALL IN THE FIRE AND BE CONSUMED; SO R. SIMEON. R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAYS: IN THE CASE OF FISHES OR BIRDS, TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

MISHNAH 8. WITH REGARD TO A CELLAR²⁸ IN A HOUSE,²⁹ WITH A CANDLESTICK [STANDING] THEREIN WHOSE CALYX³⁰ PROTRUDES³¹ AND [SUPPORTS] AN OLIVE-BASKET SO PLACED THAT IF THE CANDLESTICK IS TAKEN AWAY THE OLIVE-BASKET WOULD STILL REMAIN OVER THE MOUTH OF THE CELLAR,³² BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE CELLAR REMAINS CLEAN³³ BUT THE CANDLESTICK BECOMES UNCLEAN.³⁴ BETH HILLEL SAY: THE CANDLESTICK ALSO REMAINS CLEAN. BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF THE OLIVE-BASKET WOULD FALL [INTO THE CELLAR] IF THE CANDLESTICK WAS TAKEN AWAY, ALL WOULD BECOME UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 9. VESSELS [THAT ARE] BETWEEN THE RIMS OF THE OLIVE-BASKET³⁵ AND THE RIMS OF THE CELLAR, EVEN TO THE NETHERMOST DEEP,³⁶ REMAIN CLEAN.³⁷ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE CELLAR, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN.³⁸ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, VESSELS IN THE WALLS OF THE CELLAR³⁹ REMAIN CLEAN, IF THE PLACE WHERE THEY ARE HAS A CONTENT OF ONE CUBIC HANDBREADTH;⁴⁰ IF NOT, THEY BECOME UNCLEAN. - (42) In this case the walls of the cellar are not regarded at all as part of the house.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 12

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] A BOARD PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF A NEW¹ OVEN,² OVERLAPPING IT ON ALL SIDES TO THE EXTENT OF A HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH [THE BOARD]. VESSELS ABOVE IT REMAIN CLEAN; IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS ABOVE IT, VESSELS BENEATH IT REMAIN CLEAN.³ IN THE CASE OF AN OLD OVEN, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.⁴ R. JOHANAN B. NURI DECLARES THEM CLEAN.⁵ [IN THE CASE WHERE THE BOARD] IS PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF TWO [OLD] OVENS, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BETWEEN THEM, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR. R. JOHANAN B. NURI DECLARES THEM CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] A COLANDER⁶ PLACED⁷ OVER THE MOUTH OF AN OVEN, [SO THAT THIS IS] CLOSED WITH A SEALED LID,⁸ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BELOW OR ABOVE IT, EVERYTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE AIR-SPACE OF THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN.⁹ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE AIR-SPACE OF THE OVEN, EVERYTHING DIRECTLY ABOVE IT EVEN TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 3. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE BOARD PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF AN OLD OVEN PROJECTS FROM EITHER [END] TO THE EXTENT OF ONE HAND BREADTH BUT NOT FROM THE SIDES, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS UNDER ONE END [OF THE BOARD]. VESSELS [UNDER] THE OTHER END REMAIN CLEAN.¹⁰ R. JOSE DECLARES THEM UNCLEAR.¹¹ A BATH¹² DOES NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESS.¹³ IF THERE WAS A BRACKET¹⁴ IN IT, R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT [STILL] DOES NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS. R. JOSHUA SAYS: THE BATH IS REGARDED AS NOT BEING THERE, AND THE BRACKET ABOVE FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 4. [WITH REGARD TO] THE SHOE¹⁵ OF A CRADLE,¹⁶ FOR WHICH A HOLE HAD BEEN MADE [IN THE CEILING TO BRING IT] INTO THE HOUSE [BELOW],¹⁷ IF [THE

HOLE] IS ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE, EVERYTHING¹⁸ BECOMES UNCLEAN;¹⁹ BUT IF IT WAS NOT [ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE]. ITS [UNCLEANNES] IS COMPUTED AS ONE RECKONS WITH [CASES OF CONTACT WITH] A CORPSE.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. [WITH REGARD TO] THE ROOF BEAMS²¹ OF THE HOUSE AND OF THE UPPER STOREY WHICH HAVE NO CEILING-WORK UPON THEM AND ARE IN A LINE, [THE UPPER ONES EXACTLY ABOVE THE LOWER]. IF THERE IS UNCLEANNES BENEATH ONE OF THEM, ALL BENEATH THAT ONE BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF IT IS BETWEEN A LOWER AND AN UPPER [BEAM]. WHAT IS BETWEEN THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF IT IS ABOVE THE UPPER [ROOF BEAMS], WHAT IS DIRECTLY ABOVE TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN. [IN THE CASE] WHERE THE UPPER [ROOF BEAMS] WERE [OVER THE GAPS] BETWEEN THE LOWER [ROOF BEAMS],²² IF THERE IS UNCLEANNES BENEATH ONE OF THEM, WHAT IS BENEATH ALL OF THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF ABOVE THEM, WHAT IS DIRECTLY ABOVE TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. [WITH REGARD TO] A BEAM WHICH IS PLACED ACROSS FROM ONE WALL TO ANOTHER AND WHICH HAS UNCLEANNES BENEATH IT, IF IT IS ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE, IT CONVEYS THE UNCLEANNES TO ALL BENEATH IT; IF IT IS NOT [ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE], THE UNCLEANNES CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS. HOW MUCH MUST ITS CIRCUMFERENCE BE SO THAT ITS WIDTH SHOULD BE ONE HANDBREADTH? IF IT IS ROUND, ITS CIRCUMFERENCE MUST BE THREE HANDBREADTHS; IF SQUARE, FOUR HANDBREADTHS, SINCE A SQUARE HAS A [CIRCUMFERENCE] ONE QUARTER GREATER THAN [THAT OF] A CIRCLE.²³

MISHNAH 7. [WITH REGARD TO] A PILLAR LYING [ON ITS SIDE] IN THE OPEN AIR, IF ITS CIRCUMFERENCE IS TWENTY-FOUR HANDBREADTHS, IT FORMS A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNES FOR ALL BENEATH ITS SIDE;²⁴ BUT IF IT IS NOT, THE UNCLEANNES CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.

MISHNAH 8. IF AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF A CORPSE ADHERES TO THE THRESHOLD,²⁵ R. ELIEZER DECLARES THE HOUSE UNCLEAN. R. JOSHUA DECLARES IT CLEAN. IF IT WAS PLACED BENEATH THE THRESHOLD, THE [CASE] IS JUDGED BY THE HALF [IN WHICH THE UNCLEANNES IS].²⁶ IF IT IS ADHERING TO THE LINTEL, THE HOUSE BECOMES UNCLEAN. R. JOSE DECLARES IT CLEAN. IF IT WAS IN THE HOUSE, A PERSON TOUCHING THE LINTEL BECOMES UNCLEAN.²⁷ [AS FOR] A PERSON TOUCHING THE THRESHOLD, R. ELIEZER DECLARES HIM UNCLEAN. R. JOSHUA SAYS: [IF HE TOUCHES IT AT A POINT] BELOW A HANDBREADTH [FROM THE UPPER SURFACE]. HE REMAINS CLEAN; ABOVE THAT HANDBREADTH HE BECOMES UNCLEAN.²⁸

(1) One not yet kindled (v. Kel. V, 1). It is not reckoned a vessel and is unsusceptible to uncleanness; hence it can protect against uncleanness.

(2) Standing in the open air,

(3) The board and new oven serving as a screen.

(4) Heated ovens are vessels susceptible to uncleanness and hence (v. supra VI, 2) serve as 'tents' to bring uncleanness, but not to protect against it.

(5) Ovens differing, in his opinion, from other vessels in respect of the law laid down in VI, 1, being completely attached to the ground.

(6) Cf. supra V, 6.

(7) In the same position as the board in Mishnah 1.

(8) As in Kel. IX. 7.

- (9) Since the air-space itself remains clean because of the sealed lid.
- (10) The board affording no passage for the uncleanness and the oven serving as partition between the two 'tents' formed by each projection.
- (11) In his view the oven forms no partition.
- (12) Attached to the ground, בטה Some readings have אבטה 'Aruch gives a cognate Arabic root meaning 'a bath' or 'sill', whence Bert. renders 'bath' and Maim. 'windowsill'.
- (13) If there is a board placed over it projecting at both ends.
- (14) זיז found also in supra VIII, 2 meaning 'wall-projection'. The bracket overlies the whole length of the bath and the board is over the bracket.
- (15) סנדל 'sandal', explained as metal shoe placed under the cradle legs for protection or adornment.
- (16) Placed in the upper storey.
- (17) Where there is a corpse.
- (18) In the upper storey. Var. lec.: it forms a passage for the uncleanness.
- (19) The shoe affording no protection.
- (20) The shoe and cradle acquiring seven-day uncleanness, and the child in it uncleanness lasting till evening (v. supra I, 2).
- (21) Each of one handbreadth in width.
- (22) And were of the same size as those gaps.
- (23) Of a diameter equal to the side of the square. The circumference of the square is four handbreadths and of the circle, three, using the simplified calculation employed in the Talmud here and elsewhere ('Er. I, 5; Suk. 7b).
- (24) Such a pillar has, according to the Rabbinic reckoning, a diameter of eight handbreadths. When a circle of this size is inscribed in a square, there is sufficient space in the corners between the circle and the square to inscribe a smaller square with a side of one handbreadth. Therefore under a pillar of these dimensions a space of one cubic handbreadth, the minimum size of a shelter for uncleanness, can be found. Mathematically computed, the side of the smaller square inscribed in the corner between a circle and the circumscribed square has a relation to the side of the larger square of $1:4+2/2$. The circle thus has a circumference Gr. $4+2/2$ times the side of the smaller square. If that side was one handbreadth, the circumference would be approximately twenty-one and a half handbreadths. The measurement in our Mishnah is thus slightly too large. V. figure given by Hoffmann (Itzkowski-Kanel ed. Mishnah VI, 2 p. 210).
- (25) Outside the door jamb and not under the lintel.
- (26) Only the inner half of the threshold being reckoned with the inside of the house.
- (27) cf. supra VII, 3.
- (28) Cf. supra IX, 15.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 13

MISHNAH 1. [WITH REGARD TO] A LIGHT HOLE NEWLY MADE, ITS MINIMUM SIZE¹ IS THAT OF A HOLE MADE BY THE LARGE DRILL OF THE TEMPLE CHAMBER.² [IN THE CASE OF] THE RESIDUE OF A LIGHT-HOLE³ [THE SIZE IS] TWO FINGERBREADTHS HIGH BY A THUMB-BREADTH BROAD. THE FOLLOWING IS CONSIDERED A RESIDUE OF A LIGHT-HOLE A WINDOW THAT A PERSON HAD BLOCKED UP BUT HAD NOT BEEN ABLE TO FINISH. [IN THE CASE OF A HOLE] BORED BY WATER, OR BY REPTILES. OR EATEN AWAY BY SALTPETRE. THE MINIMUM SIZE IS THAT OF A FIST.⁴ IF THE HOLE HAD BEEN INTENDED FOR [DOMESTIC] USE, ITS MINIMUM SIZE IS ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE; FOR LIGHTING. ITS MINIMUM SIZE IS THAT OF A HOLE MADE BY THE DRILL. THE HOLES IN GRATING⁵ OR LATTICE-WORK⁶ MAY BE JOINED TOGETHER TO FORM [AN OPENING] THE SIZE OF A HOLE MADE BY THE DRILL, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BETH HILLEL SAY: [NOTHING CAN BE RECKONED] UNLESS THERE IS A HOLE OF THE SIZE MADE BY THE DRILL IN ONE PLACE. [THE FOREGOING SIZES APPLY] FOR PURPOSES OF ALLOWING THE UNCLEANNESS TO COME IN OR TO GO OUT.⁷ R. SIMEON SAYS: ONLY FOR ALLOWING THE UNCLEANNESS TO COME IN; BUT FOR ALLOWING THE UNCLEANNESS TO GO OUT [THE MINIMUM SIZE] IS ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE.

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] A WINDOW MADE FOR LETTING IN AIR, ITS MINIMUM SIZE IS THAT OF A HOLE MADE BY THE DRILL. IF A HOUSE WAS BUILT OUTSIDE IT, ITS MINIMUM SIZE BECOMES ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE. IF THE ROOF⁸ WAS PLACED AT THE HEIGHT OF THE MIDDLE OF THE WINDOW, THE MINIMUM SIZE OF THE LOWER PART IS ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE AND OF THE UPPER PART THAT OF A HOLE MADE BY THE DRILL.

MISHNAH 3. [WITH REGARD TO] A HOLE IN THE DOOR, ITS MINIMUM SIZE IS THAT OF A FIST. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. AKIBA. R. TARFON SAYS: ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE. IF THE CARPENTER HAD LEFT A SPACE AT THE BOTTOM OR THE TOP [OF THE DOOR]. OR IF ONE HAD SHIFT [THE DOOR] BUT NOT CLOSED IT TIGHTLY,⁹ OR IF THE WIND BLEW IT OPEN, THE MINIMUM SIZE IS THAT OF A FIST.

MISHNAH 4. IF A PLACE¹⁰ WAS MADE FOR A ROD, A STAVE,¹¹ OR A LAMP, THE MINIMUM SIZE IS WHATEVER IS NEEDFUL, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE. [IF IT WAS MADE] FOR A PEEP-HOLE,¹² FOR SPEAKING THROUGH TO HIS FELLOW, OR FOR [DOMESTIC] USE, THE MINIMUM SIZE IS ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE.

MISHNAH 5. THE FOLLOWING [OBJECTS SERVE TO] REDUCE [THE AREA OF A SQUARE] HANDBREADTH:¹³ [A PORTION] OF LESS THAN AN OLIVE-SIZE OF FLESH [OF A CORPSE] REDUCES [THE OPENING FOR UNCLEANNESS THAT IS] CAUSED BY A QUARTER OF A KAB OF BONES¹⁴ [FROM A CORPSE]; [A PORTION] OF LESS THAN A BARLEY-CORN SIZE OF BONE REDUCES [THE OPENING FOR UNCLEANNESS THAT IS] CAUSED BY AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF FLESH; LESS THAN AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF A CORPSE,¹⁵ LESS THAN AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF CARRION, LESS THAN A LENTIL-SIZED PORTION OF REPTILE, LESS THAN AN EGG-SIZED PORTION OF FOOD, A PLANT GROWING AGAINST THE WINDOW,¹⁶ A COBWEB¹⁷ HAVING SUBSTANCE, THE CARCASE OF A CLEAN BIRD THAT HAVE NOT BEEN INTENDED [FOR FOOD],¹⁸ AND THE CARCASE OF AN UNCLEAR BIRD THAT HAD BEEN INTENDED [FOR FOOD] THAT HAD NOT BEEN RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE [TO UNCLEANNESS], OR WHICH HAD BEEN RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE [TO UNCLEANNESS] BUT HAD NOT BEEN INTENDED [FOR FOOD].¹⁹

MISHNAH 8. THE FOLLOWING CANNOT REDUCE [THE AFORESAID AREA]: BONE CANNOT REDUCE [THE AREA] FOR [OTHER] BONES;²⁰ NOR [CORPSE] FLESH FOR [OTHER] FLESH; NOR AN OLIVE-SIZED [PORTION] OF A CORPSE, NOR AN OLIVE-SIZED PORTION OF CARRION, NOR A LENTIL-SIZED PORTION OF REPTILE, NOR AN EGG-SIZED PORTION OF FOOD, NOR A PLANT GROWING IN THE WINDOWS,²¹ NOR A COBWEB HAVING NO SUBSTANCE, NOR THE CARCASE OF A CLEAN BIRD WHICH HAD BEEN INTENDED [FOR FOOD], NOR THE CARCASE OF AN UNCLEAR BIRD WHICH HAD BEEN INTENDED [FOR FOOD] AND HAD BEEN RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, NOR WARP AND WOOF THREADS SMITTEN WITH PLAGUE,²² NOR A BRICK FROM A BETH PERAS.²³ [THIS LAST IS] THE OPINION OF R. MEIR,²⁴ BUT THE SAGES SAY: THE BRICK CAN REDUCE, BECAUSE THE DUST [OF THE BETH PERAS] IS CLEAN.²⁵ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHAT IS CLEAN REDUCES [THE AREA], AND WHAT IS UNCLEAR DOES NOT REDUCE IT.

(1) For giving passage to the uncleanness.

(2) V. supra II, 3.

(3) Already made but partially blocked.

- (4) Of a giant called Ben Batiah (Kel. XVII, 12).
- (5) V. supra VIII, 4. Such as are used for the doors of food safes (Bert.).
- (6) רפפות from the root רפף 'to shake', hence 'loosely-moving shutters'. (Tosef. XIV, 3, those of summer houses).
- (7) Some commentators refer the ease of going out to that in supra VII, 3.
- (8) Of the adjacent house.
- (9) מירקה, from מרק 'to finish'.
- (10) I.e., a hole.
- (11) The staff with which the weaver beats together the newly spun woof-threads.
- (12) לזון את עיניו 'to feast his eyes'. i.e., to allow of a look-out. Preuss, however, p. 329. translates 'to nourish the eyes'. i.e., to effect a cure on them.
- (13) Making the opening too small to allow passage for the uncleanness.
- (14) But nor for an olive-sized portion of flesh, in which case the two portions would combine to convey the uncleanness.
- (15) This has already been mentioned, but is repeated here to teach that it reduces the opening in, respect of all things enumerated in II, 1-2, as conveying uncleanness by overshadowing.
- (16) But planted some little distance away (according to L. three handbreadths away).
- (17) ככ"י 'Aruch quotes a cognate Arabic word meaning 'spider's web' (so Bert.). In Mel, XVII, 17 the same word, as is shown by the context, means 'reed-pith'.
- (18) And is therefore not yet susceptible to uncleanness. The law's concerning a clean bird are detailed in Toh. I, 1.
- (19) Unclean birds require both conditions to be fulfilled, intention for food and predisposition by moisture (Maksh.) as in Toh. 1, 3
- (20) V. supra 5, n. 7.
- (21) In a part where such a growth is undesirable and would ultimately be removed (Bert).
- (22) Which are unclean (Neg. XI, 8).
- (23) V. Supra II, 3; infra XVII, 1.
- (24) He holds that such bricks are unclean.
- (25) When the original clod has been broken up.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 14

MISHNAH 1. A CANOPY¹ FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE 'UNCLEANNESSE,² BE IT OF WHATSOEVER WIDTH;³ BUT A BALCONY OR ROUNDED [PROJECTION⁴ ONLY] WHEN THEY ARE ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE. WHAT IS A CANOPY? THAT [PROJECTION] WHOSE [MAIN] SURFACE FACES DOWNWARDS, WHILE A BALCONY HAS ITS [MAIN] SURFACE FACING UPWARDS. IN WHAT [CIRCUMSTANCES] WAS IT SAID THAT A CANOPY FORMED A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESSE BE IT OF WHATSOEVER WIDTH? WITH REGARD TO A CANOPY WHICH IS THREE COURSES,⁵ OR TWELVE HANDBREADTHS, ABOVE THE DOORWAY. WHEN HIGHER THAN THAT, IF FORMS A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESSE ONLY IF IT IS ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE. CORNICES⁶ AND CARVINGS FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESSE WHEN THEY ARE ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE.

MISHNAH 2. A CANOPY THAT IS ABOVE A DOORWAY FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESSE WHEN IT IS ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE;⁷ IF ABOVE A WINDOW TWO FINGERBREADTHS HIGH OR THE SIZE OF A HOLE MADE BY A DRILL,⁶ WHEN OF ANY WIDTH WHATSOEVER. R. JOSE SAYS: WHEN OF EQUAL SIZE [TO THE PARTICULAR WINDOW].

MISHNAH 3. A ROD ABOVE A DOORWAY⁸ EVEN IF ONE HUNDRED CUBITS HIGHER,⁹ FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESSE WHEN IT IS OF ANY WIDTH. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. JOSHUA. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: LET NOT THIS CASE BE MORE STRINGENT THAN THAT OF A CANOPY.

MISHNAH 4. [IN THE CASE OF] A CANOPY¹⁰ GOING ALL ROUND THE HOUSE, OCCUPYING SPACE ABOVE THE DOORWAY TO THE EXTENT OF [BUT] THREE FINGERBREADTHS, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, VESSELS BENEATH [THE CANOPY] BECOME UNCLEAN.¹¹ IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS BENEATH [THE CANOPY]. R. ELIEZER DECLARES THE HOUSE UNCLEAN,¹² BUT R. JOSHUA DECLARES IT CLEAN. A SIMILAR [RULE APPLIES] TO A COURTYARD SURROUNDED BY A PORTICO.¹³

MISHNAH 5. [WITH REGARD TO] TWO CANOPIES, ONE [DIRECTLY] ABOVE THE OTHER, HAVING [EACH] A WIDTH OF ONE HANDBREADTH AND THERE BEING A SPACE OF ONE HANDBREADTH BETWEEN THEM, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH THEM,¹⁴ WHAT IS BENEATH THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF IT IS BETWEEN THEM, WHAT IS BETWEEN THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN; ABOVE THEM,¹⁵ EVERYTHING DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UPPER [CANOPY] OVERLAPPED THE LOWER TO THE EXTENT OF ONE HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH OR BETWEEN THEM, WHAT IS BENEATH AND BETWEEN THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN;¹⁶ IF IT IS ABOVE THEM, WHAT IS DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UPPER [CANOPY] OVERLAPPED THE LOWER TO AN EXTENT OF LESS THAN A HANDBREADTH, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH THEM, WHAT IS BENEATH AND BETWEEN THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF IT IS BETWEEN THEM OR BENEATH THE OVERLAPPING [PART]. R. ELIEZER SAYS: WHAT IS BENEATH THEM AND BETWEEN THEM BECOMES UNCLEAN. R. JOSHUA SAYS: WHAT IS BETWEEN THEM AND BENEATH THE OVERLAPPING [PART] BECOMES UNCLEAN, BUT WHAT IS BENEATH [THE LOWER ONE] REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THEY HAD A WIDTH OF A HANDBREADTH BUT THERE WAS NOT A SPACE OF A HANDBREADTH BETWEEN THEM, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH THEM, WHAT IS BENEATH BECOMES UNCLEAN; IF IT IS BETWEEN THEM¹⁷ OR ABOVE THEM, EVERYTHING DIRECTLY [ABOVE] TO THE SKY BECOMES UNCLEAN.¹⁸

MISHNAH 7. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THEY DID NOT HAVE A WIDTH OF A HANDBREADTH, WHETHER THERE IS A SPACE OF A HANDBREADTH BETWEEN THEM OR WHETHER THERE IS NOT, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH, BETWEEN OR ABOVE THEM, THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS. A SIMILAR [RULE APPLIES] TO TWO CURTAINS,¹⁹ [THE LOWER ONE OF WHICH IS] ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND.²⁰

(1) V. supra VIII, 2, n. 9. Here it seems to be a kind of ornamental moulding going round the house.

(2) Beneath it, transferring it to the house.

(3) Since it is joined to the house (L.).

(4) גבליִת . The cognate Arabic word means 'hill'. The Tosef. XIV explains it as a balcony rounded off at both ends. The word may be similar to גבן 'humpy'.

(5) Sc. of bricks. נדבך . Cf. supra VI. I, n. 4.

(6) עטרות , ornaments in the shape of a crown (corona hence cornice) above doorways and windows.

(7) This rule seems to contradict that in the previous Mishnah. Bert. explains this case to apply when the door is closed; L. when the canopy extends over the doorway alone. (8) V. supra XIII, 1.

(8) Placed parallel to the top of the entrance.

(9) In contradistinction to a canopy where there is the limit of twelve handbreadths.

(10) One handbreadth wide (Bert.).

- (11) Rendered so by the ultimately emerging uncleanness.
- (12) Because of the stringency of the laws applying to canopies of even less than a handbreadth in width (Bert.).
- (13) Whose roofed portion extends for three fingerbreadths over the door of a house in the courtyard.
- (14) Beneath the lower canopy, and so elsewhere.
- (15) Above the upper canopy, and so elsewhere.
- (16) The overlapping combining the upper and lower canopies to form a passage for the uncleanness.
- (17) Being in a space of less than a cubic handbreadth, the uncleanness cleaves upwards and downwards.
- (18) A variant followed by Bert. reads as follows: (In the case where) the canopies had a width of a handbreadth but the spaces were not a handbreadth wide, if there is uncleanness beneath or between them, what is beneath or between them becomes unclean; if it is above, what is directly (above) to the sky becomes unclean. The spaces referred to are those between the canopies and between the lower canopy and the ground. The lower canopy, since there is not a space of a handbreadth below or above it, is treated as non-existent.
- (19) Stretched horizontally.
- (20) The upper curtain being one handbreadth above the lower.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 15

MISHNAH 1. A THICK WOOLLEN BLANKET OR A THICK WOODEN BLOCK DO NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESS UNLESS THEY ARE ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND. IF [THE GARMENTS] ARE FOLDED ONE ABOVE THE OTHER THEY DO NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS UNLESS THE UPPERMOST IS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND.¹ TABLETS OF WOOD [PLACED] ONE ABOVE THE OTHER DO NOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS UNLESS THE UPPERMOST IS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND; BUT IF THEY WERE OF MARBLE, THE UNCLEANNESS² CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.³

MISHNAH 2. [WITH REGARD TO] WOODEN TABLETS TOUCHING EACH OTHER AT THEIR CORNERS,⁴ AND ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH ONE OF THEM, [A PERSON] TOUCHING THE SECOND [TABLET]⁵ BECOMES DEFILED WITH A SEVEN-DAY DEFILEMENT. VESSELS UNDER THE FIRST [TABLET] BECOME UNCLEAR; BUT THOSE UNDER THE SECOND REMAIN CLEAN.⁶ A TABLE CANNOT FORM A PASSAGE FOR UNCLEANNESS UNLESS IT CONTAINS A SQUARE? OF ONE HANDBREADTH.

MISHNAH 3. [WITH REGARD TO] JARS STANDING ON THEIR BOTTOMS OR LYING ON THEIR SIDES IN THE OPEN AIR AND TOUCHING ONE ANOTHER TO THE EXTENT OF A HANDBREADTH,⁷ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH ONE OF THEM, THE UNCLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS.⁸ WHEN DOES THIS RULE APPLY? WHEN THE [JARS] ARE CLEAN.⁹ BUT IN THE CASE WHERE THEY WERE UNCLEAR¹⁰ OR ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH OFF THE GROUND, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH ONE OF THEM, WHAT IS BENEATH ALL BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 4. [WITH REGARD TO] A HOUSE,¹¹ PARTITIONED OFF BY BOARDS OR CURTAINS FROM THE SIDES OR FROM THE ROOF BEAMS,¹² IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS IN THE HOUSE, VESSELS BEYOND THE PARTITION REMAIN CLEAN.¹³ IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BEYOND THE PARTITION, VESSELS IN THE HOUSE BECOME UNCLEAR.¹⁴ [WITH REGARD TO] THE VESSELS BEYOND THE PARTITION,¹⁵ IF THERE IS A SPACE OF A [CUBIC] HANDBREADTH THERE, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR, BUT IF NOT, THEY REMAIN CLEAN.¹⁶

MISHNAH 5. [IN THE CASE WHERE] IT WAS PARTITIONED OFF FROM THE FLOOR, IF

THERE IS UNCLEANNESS BENEATH THE PARTITION, VESSELS IN THE HOUSE BECOME UNCLEAR.¹⁷ [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UNCLEANNESS IS IN THE HOUSE, VESSELS BENEATH THE PARTITION, IF THERE IS A SPACE THERE OF ONE CUBIC HAND BREADTH, REMAIN CLEAN; BUT IF NOT, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR, SINCE THE FLOOR OF THE HOUSE IS RECKONED AS THE HOUSE EVEN TO THE NETHERMOST DEEP.

MISHNAH 6. [WITH REGARD TO] A HOUSE FILLED WITH STRAW, WITHOUT A SPACE OF A HANDBREADTH [BEING LEFT] BETWEEN [THE STRAW] AND THE ROOF BEAMS, IF THERE IS UNCLEANNESS WITHIN [THE STRAW] VESSELS AT THE EXIT¹⁸ BECOME UNCLEAR.¹⁹ [IN THE CASE WHERE] THE UNCLEANNESS WAS OUTSIDE,²⁰ THE VESSELS WITHIN, IF THEY ARE IN A SPACE OF A CUBIC HANDBREADTH, REMAIN CLEAN, BUT IF NOT THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.²¹ IF THERE IS A SPACE OF A HAND BREADTH BETWEEN THE STRAW AND THE ROOF BEAMS, IN EITHER CASE THE VESSELS BECOME UNCLEAR.²²

MISHNAH 7. [WITH REGARD TO] A HOUSE FILLED WITH EARTH²³ OR PEBBLES WHICH HAD BEEN DEEMED VALUELESS,²⁴ ON SIMILARLY A HEAP OF PRODUCE OR A MOUND OF PEBBLES EVEN AS ACHAN'S MOUND,²⁵ EVEN IF THE UNCLEANNESS IS BY THE SIDE OF THE VESSELS, THE [IN CLEANNESS CLEAVES UPWARDS AND DOWNWARDS].²⁶

MISHNAH 8. [WITH REGARD TO] THE FORECOURT OF A TOMB, A PERSON STANDING THEREIN REMAINS CLEAN AS LONG AS THERE IS A SPACE OF FOUR CUBITS SQUARE, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BETH HILLEL SAY: FOUR HANDBREADTHS [IS THE MINIMUM SIZE]. [WITH REGARD TO] A ROOF BEAM WHICH HAD BEEN USED AS A COVERING STONE²⁷ FOR A TOMB, WHETHER IT IS STANDING UPRIGHT²⁸ OR LYING ON ITS SIDE, NOTHING BECOMES UNCLEAR EXCEPT WHAT IS OPPOSITE THE OPENING OF THE GRAVE. IF THE END [OF THE BEAM] WERE MADE THE COVERING STONE OF A GRAVE, ONLY [THAT PART] UP TO FOUR HANDBREADTHS [FROM THE GRAVE] BECOMES UNCLEAR. [THIS APPLIES] WHEN [THE BEAM] IS GOING TO BE CUT. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALL THE BEAM IS REGARDED AS BEING ONE.

MISHNAH 9. [WITH REGARD TO] A JAR FULL OF CLEAN LIQUID AND SEALED WITH A TIGHTLY FITTING LID,²⁹ WHICH HAD BEEN MADE THE COVERING STONE OF A TOMB, A PERSON TOUCHING IT CONTRACTS SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS BUT THE JAR AND THE LIQUID REMAIN CLEAN.³⁰ [IN THE CASE OF] A BEAST³¹ THAT HAD BEEN USED AS A COVERING STONE, A PERSON TOUCHING IT CONTRACTS SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS. R. MEIR SAYS: NOTHING POSSESSING THE BREATH OF LIFE CAN CONVEY UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF [ITS BEING USED AS] A COVERING STONE.³²

MISHNAH 10. IF A PERSON TOUCHES A CORPSE AND [SUBSEQUENTLY]³³ TOUCHES VESSELS, OR OVERSHADOWS A CORPSE AND [SUBSEQUENTLY]³³ TOUCHES VESSELS, THESE BECOME UNCLEAR. IF HE OVERSHADOWS A CORPSE AND OVERSHADOWS VESSELS,³² OR TOUCHES A CORPSE AND OVERSHADOWS VESSELS,³⁴ THESE REMAIN CLEAN. IF HIS HAND HAS A SURFACE OF A HANDBREADTH SQUARE, THEY BECOME UNCLEAR. [WITH REGARD TO] TWO HOUSES CONTAINING TWO PORTIONS OF CORPSE-FLESH OF HALF AN OLIVE SIZE [ONE IN EACH], IF A PERSON STRETCHED BOTH HIS HANDS INTO THEM, AND HIS HANDS WERE EACH ONE HAND BREADTH SQUARE, HE CONVEYS THE UNCLEANNESS;³⁵ BUT IF [THEY WERE] NOT [ONE

HANDBREADTH SQUARE], HE DOES NOT CONVEY THE UNCLEANNESS.

- (1) Repeated from supra XI, 3.
- (2) Beneath them.
- (3) The uncleanness under the marble tablets being regarded as compressed, though the upper is more than a handbreadth high off the ground.
- (4) But to the extent of 'less than a handbreadth.
- (5) Which has contracted אבי אבות הטומאה from direct contact with the 'tent' over the uncleanness (v. supra I, 1 n. 3; 3, n. 3).
- (6) The uncleanness can only be conveyed from the first by contact, not by overshadowing, as the connection between the two tablets is less than one square handbreadth in area. (7) Explained by L. as the minimum area of a square that can be inscribed in a circular table.
- (7) This proviso is mentioned on account of the final clause.
- (8) Being regarded as 'compressed'.
- (9) And are therefore treated like marble tablets.
- (10) Since unclean vessels cannot serve as a screen they are treated like wooden tablets, and the upper parts of the vessels touching each other (as stated) form a 'tent' to spread the uncleanness to all vessels.
- (11) Consisting of a single room.
- (12) I.e., vertically or horizontally.
- (13) The partition serving as a screen, cf. supra VI, 2.
- (14) Through the emerging uncleanness, since a partition like a closely fitted cover can afford protection only against the entrance of uncleanness; but it does not prevent its egress, v. Kel. VIII, 6.
- (15) In which was the uncleanness.
- (16) The uncleanness cleaving upwards and downwards only.
- (17) V. n. 8, and supra III, 7.
- (18) The space left free near the exit.
- (19) As in Mishnah 4 where the vessels in the house become unclean through the uncleanness in the part partitioned off.
- (20) I.e., in the above-mentioned free space.
- (21) As is the case with the vessels beyond the partition where the uncleanness was in the house.
- (22) In this case the straw is regarded not as a partition but as contents of the house and not able to offer protection
- (23) Var. lec., straw
- (24) Lit., 'and he abandoned it'.
- (25) V. Josh. VII, 26.
- (26) And the vessels remains clean.
- (27) V. supra II, 4, n. 4.
- (28) I.e., sloping, its lower end resting on the tomb and the upper leaning on some other object.
- (29) V. Kel. X, 2.
- (30) An earthen jar being insusceptible to uncleanness on its outer surface and its contents being protected by the tightly fitting lid.
- (31) A live one, tied to its place.
- (32) Agreeing with his decision in 'Er. I, 7.
- (33) L.
- (34) Even at the same time, as long as the same part of the body is not performing the two actions (L.).
- (35) Into both houses, since he joins the two portions into one.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 16

MISHNAH 1. ALL MOVABLE THINGS FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS¹ WHEN THEY ARE OF THE THICKNESS OF AN OX-GOAD.² R. TARFON SAID: MAY I [SEE THE] RUIN³ OF MY SONS IF THIS IS [NOT] A RUINED HALACHAH⁴ WHICH SOMEONE [DEDUCED FROM THE FOLLOWING CASE WHICH HE HAD] HEARD AND MISUNDERSTOOD. A FARMER WAS PASSING BY AND OVER HIS SHOULDER WAS AN

OX-GOAD, ONE END OF WHICH OVERSHADOWED A GRAVE. HE WAS DECLARED UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT [OF CARRYING] VESSELS THAT WERE OVERSHADOWING A CORPSE.⁵ R. AKIBA SAID: I CAN AMEND [THE HALACHAH] SO THAT THE WORDS OF THE SAGES CAN EXIST [AS THEY ARE]: ALL MOVABLE THINGS FORM A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS TO COME UPON A PERSON CARRYING THEM, WHEN THEY ARE OF THE THICKNESS OF AN OX-GOAD; UPON THEMSELVES. WHEN THEY ARE OF WHATSOEVER THICKNESS;⁶ AND UPON OTHER MEN OR VESSELS [WHICH THEY OVERSHADOW]. WHEN THEY ARE ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE.⁷

MISHNAH 2. HOW [CAN THIS RULE BE ILLUSTRATED]? [BY THE CASE OF] A SPINDLE⁸ FIXED INTO THE WALL., WITH [A PORTION OF CORPSE FLESH] OF HALF AN OLIVE-SIZE ABOVE IT AND [A PORTION OF CORPSE FLESH] OF HALF AN OLIVE-SIZE BELOW IT. EVEN THOUGH ONE [PORTION] IS NOT DIRECTLY [ABOVE] THE OTHER, [THE SPINDLE] BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁹ HENCE IT IS FOUND THAT [A MOVABLE OBJECT] FORMS A PASSAGE FOR THE UNCLEANNESS TO COME UPON ITSELF WHATSOEVER ITS THICKNESS. IF A POT SELLER PASSES BY A GRAVE WHEN HE HAS ON HIS SHOULDER HIS CARRYING-YOKE,¹⁰ ONE END OF WHICH OVERSHADOWS A GRAVE, VESSELS ON THE OTHER SIDE REMAIN CLEAN. IF THE YOKE IS ONE HANDBREADTH WIDE, THEY BECOME UNCLEAN.¹¹

MOUNDS WHICH ARE NEAR TO A CITY OR TO A ROAD, WHETHER THEY ARE NEW OR OLD, ARE UNCLEAN.¹² [AS FOR THOSE THAT ARE] AFAR OFF, NEW ONES ARE CLEAN BUT OLD ONES ARE UNCLEAN.¹³ WHICH [MOUND IS ACCOUNTED] NEAR? ONE FIFTY CUBITS [AFAR OFF]. AND OLD? ONE SIXTY YEARS OLD. [THIS IS] THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: 'NEAR' [MEANS] THERE IS NONE NEARER THAN IT, AND OLD' [MEANS] THAT NO ONE REMEMBERS [WHEN IT WAS MADE].

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE FINDS¹⁴ A CORPSE UNEXPECTEDLY.¹⁵ LYING IN ITS NATURAL POSITION,¹⁶ HE MAY REMOVE IT ALONG WITH THE [BLOOD-] SATURATED EARTH¹⁷ [ROUND ABOUT].¹⁸ IF HE FINDS TWO, HE MAY REMOVE THEM ALONG WITH THE [BLOOD-] SATURATED EARTH [ROUND ABOUT]. [IN THE CASE WHERE] HE FINDS THREE, IF THERE IS A SPACE OF FROM FOUR TO EIGHT CUBITS BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THE LAST, THAT IS, THE SPACE OF A BIER AND ITS BEARERS,¹⁹ THEN IT MUST BE ACCOUNTED A GRAVEYARD,²⁰ AND HE MUST SEARCH [THE GROUND] FOR TWENTY CUBITS²¹ FROM THAT POINT. IF HE FOUND [ANOTHER CORPSE] AT THE END OF THOSE TWENTY CUBITS, HE MUST SEARCH FOR A FURTHER TWENTY CUBITS FROM THAT PLACE, SINCE THERE ARE ALREADY GROUNDS FOR BELIEF²² [THAT THIS IS A GRAVEYARD], IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT IF HE HAD FOUND THIS [LONE GRAVE] IN THE FIRST CASE, HE COULD HAVE REMOVED IT WITH THE [BLOOD-] SATURATED EARTH [ROUND ABOUT].

MISHNAH 4. HE WHO SEARCHES²³ MUST DO SO OVER A SQUARE CUBIT AND THEN LEAVE A CUBIT, [DIGGING DOWN]²⁴ UNTIL HE REACHES ROCK OR VIRGIN SOIL. [A PRIEST]²⁵ CARRYING OUT EARTH FROM A PLACE OF UNCLEANNESS MAY EAT OF HIS TERUMAH,²⁶ BUT IF HE IS CLEARING AWAY A RUIN,²⁷ HE MAY NOT EAT OF HIS TERUMAH.

MISHNAH 5. IF HE WAS SEARCHING AND CAME TO A RIVER BED, A POOL²⁸ OR A PUBLIC ROAD, HE MAY DISCONTINUE [HIS SEARCH]. [WITH REGARD TO] A FIELD WHERE MEN HAVE BEEN SLAIN, THE BONES MAY BE GATHERED TOGETHER ONE BY ONE, AND ALL [THE AREA] MAY BE ACCOUNTED CLEAN.²⁹ IF A PERSON IS REMOVING A GRAVE FROM HIS FIELD, HE MAY GATHER TOGETHER THE BONES ONE

BY ONE, AND ALL MAY BE ACCOUNTED CLEAN. [WITH REGARD TO] A PIT INTO WHICH ABORTIONS OR PEOPLE THAT HAD BEEN SLAIN USED TO BE THROWN, THE BONES MAY BE GATHERED TOGETHER ONE BY ONE, AND ALL MAY BE ACCOUNTED CLEAN. R. SIMEON SAYS: IF IN THE FIRST PLACE IT HAD BEEN PREPARED AS A GRAVE, THERE IS [THE QUESTION OF BLOOD-] SATURATED EARTH [TO BE CONSIDERED].³⁰

(1) By acting as temporary 'tents'.

(2) Defined as having a circumference of one handbreadth, which is less than the minimum handbreadth in width required with immovable things (Bert.).

(3) אֶקְפָּה 'to destroy'. 'cut off'. The phrase the equivalent of 'May I bury my sons', was a common one of H. Tarfon's. v. B.M. 85a.

(4) Rule.

(5) Which vessels rendered the bearer unclean through carriage. But the person reporting the halachah at the beginning of the Mishnah thought (wrongly according to R. Tarfon) that the man was deemed unclean because he had been overshadowed by a goad simultaneously overshadowing a corpse.

(6) No standard being fixed for the defilement of objects which themselves form a 'tent'.

(7) For further notes v. Shab. Sonc. ed., p. 16b.

(8) כוֹשׁ Jast. 'something hollow', 'reed', cf. כוֹם כִּים . Here 'spindle', cf. Kel. IX, 6. Its size is less than a handbreadth.

(9) Both combine to form an olive's bulk according to the view of the Sages, supra III. 2.

(10) סֵל . Probably, as Kel. XVII, 16. אֶסֶל from Gk.  'a carrying-yoke'.

(11) The carrying-yoke forming a 'tent' overshadowing the vessels on both sides.

(12) Since they may have been used for the secret burial of abortions.

(13) Since they may have been near when newly made.

(14) Whilst ploughing the field. This Mishnah occurs in Naz. 64b, Sonc. ed., p. 244. where it is discussed in the ensuing Gemara. V. loc. cit. for notes: v. also B.B. 101b.

(15) בַּתְּחִלָּה , Lit 'in the first place'. I.e. without knowing before that there was a corpse lying there. The word is missing in the version of B B. loc. cit.

(16) Showing that there had been a normal burial.

(17) C.f. supra III, 5.

(18) The field being thereby restored to a state of cleanliness.

(19) This explanation of the distance is missing from Naz. loc. cit. but appears in the B.B. version. The size of the intervening space is evidence of a regular graveyard.

(20) The graves must then not be disturbed.

(21) The reason for this size is given in B.B.

(22) Lit., 'the matter has legs'.

(23) The prescribed area.

(24) So Bert.

(25) Who may, in the case of emergency, occupy himself with such work.

(26) דְּמֵעוֹ Ex. XXII, 28. The word is referred by Rabbinic commentators to terumah. V. Rashi ad loc. דְּמֵעַ 'tear', 'liquor'.

(27) Of a house that has fallen on a man who may have died.

(28) שְׂוִילִית 'pool'. V. B.K. 61a for the possible meanings and suggested derivations of this word.

(29) No account being taken of blood-saturated earth either in this or the succeeding cases.

(30) no note.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 17

MISHNAH 1. IF A GRAVE IS PLOUGHED [INTO A FIELD] THIS MAKES IT A BETH PERAS.¹ TO WHAT EXTENT IS IT SO MADE? FOR THE LENGTH OF A FURROW OF A HUNDRED CUBITS,² [THAT IS TO SAY, OVER] AN AREA OF FOUR SE'AHs.³ P. JOSE

SAYS: AN AREA OF FIVE [SE'AHs]. [THIS⁴ APPLIES WHEN THE PLOUGH IS DRIVEN] ON A DOWNWARD SLOPE;⁵ BUT WHEN ON AN UPWARD SLOPE, A QUARTER [OF A KAB] OF VETCH SEED SHOULD BE PLACED ON THE KNEE⁶ OF THE PLOUGH,⁷ AND THE SPACE UNTIL WHERE [THE LAST] THREE VETCHES GROW NEXT TO EACH OTHER⁸ IS MADE INTO A BETH PERAS. R. JOSE SAYS: [A BETH PERAS IS ONLY MADE BY A PLOUGH GOING] DOWNWARDS BUT NOT UPWARDS.

MISHNAH 2. IF A PERSON WAS PLOUGHING⁹ AND STRUCK AGAINST A ROCK OR A FENCE, OR IF HE SHOOK THE PLOUGHSHARE,¹⁰ [ONLY] TO THAT PLACE IS THE BETH PERAS FORMED. R. ELIEZER SAYS: ONE BETH PERAS CAN FORM ANOTHER BETH PERAS.¹¹ R. JOSHUA SAYS: SOMETIMES IT CAN, BUT AT OTHER TIMES IT CANNOT. HOW SO? IF HE PLOUGHED FOR HALF A FURROW'S LENGTH¹² AND THEN RETURNED AND PLOUGHED A [FURTHER] HALF, OR SIMILARLY [IF HE PLOUGHED] TO THE SIDE, HE MAKES A BETH PERAS. IF HE PLOUGHED A FULL FURROW'S LENGTH AND THEN RETURNED AND PLOUGHED FROM THAT POINT BEYOND, HE DOES NOT MAKE THIS¹³ A BETH PERAS.

MISHNAH 3. IF A PERSON PLOUGHS FROM A QUARRY,¹⁴ OR FROM A HEAP OF BONES,¹⁵ OR FROM A FIELD IN WHICH A GRAVE HAD BEEN LOST,¹⁶ OR IN WHICH A GRAVE WAS SUBSEQUENTLY FOUND,¹⁷ OR IF HE PLOUGHS A FIELD WHICH WAS NOT HIS OWN,¹⁸ OR IF A GENTILE PLOUGHED, THIS DOES NOT MAKE IT A BETH PERAS; FOR THE RULE OF BETH PERAS DOES NOT APPLY [EVEN] TO SAMARITANS.

MISHNAH 4. [IN THE CASE WHERE] THERE WAS A BETH PERAS ABOVE A CLEAN FIELD, IF RAIN WASHED DOWN SOIL FROM THE BETH PERAS TO THE CLEAN FIELD, EVEN WHERE THIS WAS REDDISH AND THE [OTHER SOIL] TURNED IT WHITE, OR WHERE THIS WAS WHITE AND THE OTHER TURNED IT RED,¹⁹ THIS DOES NOT MAKE IT A BETH PERAS.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. [WITH REGARD TO] A FIELD IN WHICH A GRAVE HAD BEEN LOST, AND IN WHICH A HOUSE HAD BEEN BUILT WITH AN UPPER STOREY ABOVE IT, IF THE DOOR OF THE UPPER ROOM WAS DIRECTLY ABOVE THE DOOR OF THE HOUSE, THE UPPER STOREY REMAINS CLEAN;²¹ BUT IF NOT THE UPPER STOREY BECOMES UNCLEAR.²² [WITH REGARD TO] SOIL FROM A BETH PERAS, OR SOIL FROM A FOREIGN COUNTRY²³ THAT CAME IN WITH VEGETABLES, [SCATTERED PARTICLES ARE REGARDED AS] COMBINING TOGETHER [TO FORM A PORTION] THE SIZE OF A PACKING-BAG²⁴ SEAL.²⁵ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. ELIEZER; BUT THE SAGES SAY: THERE MUST BE ONE PORTION OF THE SIZE OF A PACKING-BAG SEAL. R. JUDAH SAYS: IT HAPPENED ONCE THAT LETTERS CAME FROM OVERSEAS FOR THE SONS OF THE HIGH PRIESTS²⁶ AND THEY HAD ON THEM ABOUT A SE'AH OR TWO SE'AHs OF SEALS,²⁷ BUT THE SAGES DID NOT HAVE ANY SCRUPLES ON ACCOUNT OF UNCLEANNES.²⁸

(1) V. supra II, 3. n. 8.

(2) Each way, length and breadth. So Bert. but Tosef XVII, I has 'in every direction'. The plough is presumed to carry bones with it to that extent.

(3) In which four seeks of seed can be sown. According to 'Er. 23b, the tabernacle area, one hundred cubits by fifty, could be sown by two se'ahs. One se'ah==six kabs (v. supra II, I, n. 7).

(4) Area of four se'ahs.

(5) Or on the level (Bert.). the bones in these cases being likely to be carried the full distance.

(6) בִּוּרָה V. Kel. XXI, 2. A knee-shaped receptacle in the plough sometimes used for containing seed which is gradually shaken out in decreasing number on to the field by the movement of the implement.

- (7) Which is then driven upwards.
- (8) I.e. where no more than three had fallen together out of the knee, thus indicating that practically all the seeds (and hence also bones) have been shaken off.
- (9) Over a grave.
- (10) So as to free it of soil. All these processes tend to remove any bones that may have been attached to the plough.
- (11) If one begins to plough from a point within the original area.
- (12) Fifty cubits.
- (13) Outer portion.
- (14) מִלֵּא טְמִיאָה Possibly Gk.  'quarry', presumably one containing bones. Bert. מִלֵּא טְמִיאָה '(pit) filled with bones'.
- (15) Treated leniently because of the unlikelihood of such a procedure.
- (16) Doubt existing as to whether any bones have actually been touched and even then, as to whether they have been scattered.
- (17) He acted unwittingly.
- (18) And therefore which he cannot render unclean by any doubtful action.
- (19) Proving definitely that soil had been transferred.
- (20) The land of a Beth Peres applies only to solid soil not to washed down soil.
- (21) Even if the grave is under the entrance, the uncleanness proceeds into the house and not to the upper storey.
- (22) The grave might possibly be directly under the entrance.
- (23) Cf. supra II, 3, n. 7.
- (24) מִרְצוּפִין 'packing-bags', from רָצַף 'to pack', 'pave'. It is mentioned in connection with shipping in B.B. V, 1, and may well have been the common Levantine trade term for the object. As such it was possibly adopted by the Greeks as Gr.. (Lat. marsupium, Eng. marsupial).
- (25) The minimum size for uncleanness for a clod.
- (26) Cf. Keth. XIII, I.
- (27) Sc. of clay.
- (28) No single seal attaining the minimum size.

Mishna - Mas. Oholoth Chapter 18

MISHNAH 1. ROW CAN THE GRAPES OF A BETH PERAS BE GATHERED?¹ THE MEN AND THE VESSELS MUST BE SPRINKLED [ONCE]² AND THEN A SECOND TIME.³ THEREUPON THEY GATHER THE GRAPES AND TAKE THEM OUT OF THE BETH PERAS. OTHERS⁴ THEN RECEIVE [THE GRAPES] AND TAKE THEM TO THE WINEPRESS.⁵ IF THE LATTER SET [OF PERSONS] CAME INTO CONTACT WITH THE FORMER, THEY BECOME UNCLEAN. THIS IS ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH HILLEL. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [THE GATHERER] MUST HOLD THE SICKLE WITH BAST,⁶ OR MUST CUT OFF THE GRAPES WITH A SHARP FLINT,⁷ LETTING [THE GRAPES FALL] INTO AN OLIVE-BASKET,⁸ AND THEN HE TAKES [THEM] TO THE WINEPRESS.⁹ R. JOSE SAID: WHEN DO THESE RULES APPLY? [ONLY] IN THE CASE OF A VINEYARD WHICH SUBSEQUENTLY BECAME A BETH PERAS; BUT A PERSON WHO PLANTS [VINES] IN A BETH PERAS MUST SELL [THE GRAPES] IN THE MARKET.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. THERE ARE THREE [KINDS OF] BETH PERAS:¹¹ A FIELD INTO WHICH A GRAVE HAS BEEN PLOUGHED MAY BE PLANTED WITH ANY KIND OF PLANT,¹² BUT MUST NOT BE SOWN WITH ANY KIND OF SEED,¹³ EXCEPT WITH SEED [YIELDING PRODUCE] WHICH IS REAPED. IF [SUCH PRODUCE] WERE PLUCKED, THE THRESHING-FLOOR MUST BE PILED UP IN [THE FIELD] ITSELF,¹⁴ AND THE [GRAIN] SIFTED THROUGH TWO SIEVES.¹⁵ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: GRAIN [MUST BE SIFTED] THROUGH TWO SIEVES, BUT PULSE THROUGH THREE SIEVES.¹⁶ THE STUBBLE AND THE STALKS MUST BE BURNED.¹⁷ [SUCH A FIELD] CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND CARRIAGE BUT DOES NOT CONVEY

UNCLEANNESS BY OVERSHADOWING.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. A FIELD IN WHICH A GRAVE HAS BEEN LOST¹⁹ MAY BE SOWN WITH ANY KIND OF SEED,²⁰ BUT MUST NOT BE PLANTED WITH ANY KIND OF PLANT,²¹ NOR MAY ANY TREES BE PERMITTED TO REMAIN THERE EXCEPT SHADE-TREES WHICH DO NOT PRODUCE FRUIT.²² [SUCH A FIELD] CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT, CARRIAGE AND OVERSHADOWING.

MISHNAH 4. A MOURNERS' FIELD²³ MAY NEITHER BE PLANTED NOR SOWN,²⁴ BUT ITS EARTH IS REGARDED AS CLEAN AND OVENS MAY BE MADE OF IT FOR HOLY USE.²⁵ [WITH REGARD TO THE FIRST²⁶ CASE OF A BETH PERAS] BETH SHAMMAI AND BETH HILLEL AGREE THAT IT IS EXAMINED²⁷ FOR ONE WHO WOULD PERFORM THE PASCHAL SACRIFICE,²⁸ BUT IS NOT EXAMINED FOR ONE WHO WOULD EAT TERUMAH.²⁹ [WITH REGARD TO A] NAZIRITE,³⁰ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT IS EXAMINED,³¹ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS NOT EXAMINED.³² HOW IS IT EXAMINED? THE EARTH THAT IS ABLE TO BE MOVED IS TAKEN,³³ PLACED INTO A SIEVE WITH FINE MESHES, AND CRUMBLED. IF A BONE OF BARLEY-CORN SIZE IS FOUND THERE [THE PERSON PASSING THROUGH THE FIELD] IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. HOW IS A BETH PERAS³⁴ RENDERED CLEAN? [SOIL TO A DEPTH OF] THREE HANDBREADTHS³⁵ IS REMOVED FROM IT, OR³⁶ [SOIL TO A HEIGHT OF] THREE HANDBREADTHS IS PLACED UPON IT. IF FROM THE ONE HALF [SOIL TO A DEPTH OF] THREE HANDBREADTHS WAS REMOVED, AND UPON THE OTHER HALF [SOIL TO A HEIGHT OF] THREE HANDBREADTHS WAS PLACED, IT BECOMES CLEAN. R. SIMEON SAYS: EVEN IF ONE HANDBREADTH AND A HALF WAS REMOVED³⁷ AND ONE HANDBREADTH AND A HALF FROM ANOTHER PLACE WAS PLACED UPON IT, IT BECOMES CLEAN. IF A BETH PERAS IS PAVED WITH STONES THAT CANNOT [EASILY] BE MOVED, IT BECOMES CLEAN. R. SIMEON SAYS: EVEN IF [THE SOIL OF] A BETH PERAS IS BROKEN UP IT BECOMES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. A PERSON WHO WALKS THROUGH A BETH PERAS³⁸ ON STONES THAT CANNOT [EASILY] BE MOVED, OR [WHO RIDES] ON A MAN OR BEAST WHOSE STRENGTH IS GREAT, REMAINS CLEAN; [BUT IF HE WALKS] ON STONES THAT CAN [EASILY] BE MOVED, OR [RIDES] UPON A MAN OR BEAST WHOSE STRENGTH IS SMALL,³⁹ HE BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁴⁰ A PERSON WHO TRAVELS IN THE LAND OF THE GENTILES OVER MOUNTAINS OR ROCKS, BECOMES UNCLEAN;⁴¹ BUT IF [HE TRAVELS] BY THE SEA OR ALONG THE STRAND,⁴² HE REMAINS CLEAN. WHAT IS [MEANT BY] 'THE STRAND'? ANY PLACE TO WHICH THE SEA RISES WHEN IT IS STORMY.

MISHNAH 7. IF ONE BUYS A FIELD IN SYRIA NEAR TO THE LAND OF ISRAEL, IF IT CAN BE ENTERED IN CLEANNESS,⁴³ IT IS DEEMED CLEAN AND IS SUBJECT TO [THE LAWS OF] TITHES AND SABBATICAL YEAR [PRODUCE];⁴⁴ BUT IF IT CANNOT BE ENTERED IN CLEANNESS, IT [IS DEEMED] UNCLEAN, ALTHOUGH IT IS STILL SUBJECT TO [THE LAWS OF] TITHES AND SABBATICAL YEAR [PRODUCE].⁴⁵ THE DWELLING-PLACES OF HEATHENS⁴⁶ ARE UNCLEAN.⁴⁷ HOW LONG MUST [THE HEATHEN] HAVE REMAINED IN [THE DWELLING-PLACES] FOR THEM TO REQUIRE EXAMINATION? FORTY DAYS,⁴⁸ EVEN IF THERE WAS NO WOMAN WITH HIM. IF, HOWEVER, A SLAVE⁴⁹ OR [AN ISRAELITE] WOMAN WATCHED OVER [THE DWELLING-PLACE], IT DOES NOT REQUIRE EXAMINATION.

MISHNAH 8. WHAT DO THEY EXAMINE? DEEP DRAINS AND EVIL-SMELLING

WATERS. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: EVEN ASH-HEAPS AND CRUMBLLED EARTH.⁵⁰ BETH HILLEL SAY: ANY PLACE WHERE A PIG OR A WEASEL⁵¹ CAN GO REQUIRES NO EXAMINATION.⁵²

MISHNAH 9. COLONNADES⁵³ ARE NOT [SUBJECT TO THE LAWS] OF HEATHEN DWELLING' PLACES.⁵⁴ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: A HEATHEN CITY⁵⁵ THAT HAS BEEN DESTROYED IS NOT [SUBJECT TO THE LAWS] OF HEATHEN DWELLING-PLACES. THE EAST [SIDE] OF CAESAREA⁵⁶ AND THE WEST [SIDE] OF CAESAREA⁵⁷ ARE GRAVEYARDS. THE [NATURE OF THE] EAST [SIDE] OF ACRE WAS DOUBTFUL,⁵⁸ BUT THE SAGES DECLARED IT CLEAN. RABBI AND HIS LAW COURT VOTED [TO DECIDE] ABOUT KENI⁵⁹ AND DECLARED IT CLEAN.

MISHNAH 10. [THE FOLLOWING] TEN PLACES ARE NOT [SUBJECT TO THE LAWS] OF HEATHEN DWELLING-PLACES: ARABS' TENTS,⁶⁰ FIELD-HUTS, LEAN-TO SHEDS, FRUIT-SHELTERS,⁶¹ SUMMER SHELTERS,⁶² A GATE-HOUSE, THE OPEN SPACES OF A COURTYARD, A BATH-HOUSE, AN ARMOURY⁶³ AND THE PLACE WHERE THE LEGIONS [CAMP].⁶⁴

- (1) So that they remain clean and can be used for making wine without rendering unclean by virtue of the law of Lev. XI, 38.
- (2) On the third day (Num. XIX, 18f) notice of the gathering having been given.
- (3) The sprinkling serves as a precaution, reminding the gatherers of the laws of uncleanness appertaining to a Beth peras and thereby preventing carelessness. Although the grapes have been rendered susceptible to uncleanness by virtue of the gathering (v. Shab. 14a), they are not affected by the uncleanness of Beth Peras 'which is only Rabbinical, and the method whereby they have been rendered susceptible also being only Rabbinical.
- (4) Who did not enter the Beth Peras.
- (5) Once taken to the winepress they become susceptible to uncleanness by virtue of Biblical law, and to such the uncleanness of Beth Peras applies, hence they must be taken to the winepress by others.
- (6) סִיב 'fibre', palm-bast'. (perhaps from סָבַב 'to be hairy'). East is insusceptible to uncleanness and therefore protects the sickle and hence also the grapes against uncleanness.
- (7) Insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (8) Cf. supra V, 6.
- (9) Having taken these precautions, he will be reminded of the laws of Beth Peras even whilst in the winepress.
- (10) As a penalty he is not allowed to use the methods enabling wine to be made.
- (11) Enumerated respectively in Mishnahs 2, 3 and 4.
- (12) Because its fruit cannot become unclean, as the law of overshadowing does not apply to such a field (v. end of Mishnah).
- (13) The roots of such plants are sometimes pulled out with the produce and they may have been in contact with a portion of bone.
- (14) So as not to spread the uncleanness abroad.
- (15) To detect any portion of bone.
- (16) More earth being found in association with this type of produce.
- (17) On the field.
- (18) The field owes its uncleanness to the possible presence of a barleycorn-sized portion of bone and therefore has the same laws as that object (v. supra II, 3).
- (19) The exact location of the grave being unknown. This is the second type of Beth Peras.
- (20) Because the roots could not reach as far as the grave (Maim). Tosef. XVIII, 11, however, has the reading, in the name of R. Judah. 'may not be sown', and this is read also in our Mishnah by Beth. and others.
- (21) Because the roots would reach to the grave (Maim.). Bert.: Otherwise people might be attracted to the field and thus contract defilement by overshadowing.
- (22) Such may be planted at the outset (Bert.).
- (23) שְׂדֵה בּוֹכִי' Lit. 'field of those who bewail'. This is the third type of Beth Peras. It is explained in M.K. 5b as a - field in which final leave is taken of the departed before the burial. It was close to the cemetery. Tosef. XVII, 12 reads כוכין 'tomb niches'.

- (24) Because the owner has given up hope of ever using the field again, and it now becomes common property. v. M.K. loc. cit. Maim. explains the prohibition as a precaution lest a corpse may possibly be concealed therein, since it is in proximity to the cemetery.
- (25) The field differs in this respect from the two former types.
- (26) So Bert.
- (27) To determine whether it is unclean or not.
- (28) Who must definitely be clean (Num. IX, 6).
- (29) The neglect to eat terumah is not as grave as in the case of the paschal lamb.
- (30) Who passed through such a field.
- (31) B. Sh. afford the Nazirite an opportunity of having himself declared clean.
- (32) The Nazirite is considered unclean and must perform the rites prescribed in Num. VI, 9-12.
- (33) I.e., loose earth.
- (34) Of the first type.
- (35) The depth to which a ploughshare penetrates (cf. B.B. II, 12).
- (36) Some texts prefix 'Rabbi (Judah the Patriarch) says'.
- (37) From the surface of the whole field.
- (38) Of the first type
- (39) As defined in B.M. 105b.
- (40) By his own weight he may have moved a bone.
- (41) Earth from the neighbouring regions may have collected there and it is unclean (supra II, 3).
- (42) שונית. V. supra VII, 1. Possibly from שן 'rock'.
- (43) No gentile land intervening.
- (44) It is considered part of the Land of Israel.
- (45) The laws of Sabbatical year produce applied in Syria (v. Tosef. Kel. BK I, 5).
- (46) כנענים. I.e., heathens living in the Land of Israel.
- (47) Because of the heathen practice of burying abortions in their houses (Bert.).
- (48) The time of the formation of the child in the womb. V. Nid. III, 7.
- (49) Of an Israelite.
- (50) The crumbling may be an indication of a burial.
- (51) חולדה Bert. reads instead ברדלם ('hyena' or 'marten') which is found together with חולדה in the Tosef. XVI, 13.
- (52) The animals would have discovered and devoured the uncleanness.
- (53) אצטונית. From Gk. , 'colonnade'.
- (54) As no abortions are likely to be buried there.
- (55) Situated in the Land of Israel.
- (56) Maritima, the Roman capital of Palestine.
- (57) קסרין In a variant version קסריון the district of Caesarea (Phillipi). in the north of Palestine, near the headwaters of the Jordan. It was a less important city than C. Maritima, hence the diminutive form.
- (58) According to one opinion as to whether it was on Israelite territory (cf. Git. I, 1), and to another as to whether it was a graveyard.
- (59) Neubauer's Geographie du Talmud p. 276 suggests an identification with Wady Kanah (in Samaria). Perhaps Cana (of Galilee), five miles from Sepphoris, the seat of Rabbi's court.
- (60) Of the nomadic Bedouin who move their tents from one place to another. The place on which they stand is only temporarily occupied.
- (61) According to Bert. a field-shelter in which the fruit was kept in order to guard it from rain (v. Ma'as. III, 7 where the word is found along with the other agricultural buildings mentioned here).
- (62) אלקטיות 'Aruch quotes Aramaic קיטא 'summer'. Bert. describes the structure as one which has a roof but no walls.
- (63) Lit., 'the place of the arrows'.
- (64) All these places are only temporarily occupied and hence no fear is entertained lest abortion had been buried in them.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. R. ELIEZER RULED: THE HEIFER¹ MUST BE NO MORE THAN ONE YEAR OLD AND THE RED COW² NO MORE THAN TWO YEARS OLD. BUT THE SAGES RULED: THE HEIFER¹ MAY BE EVEN TWO YEARS OLD AND THE RED COW² EVEN THREE OR FOUR YEARS OLD. R. MEIR RULED: EVEN FIVE YEARS OLD. ONE THAT IS OLDER IS VALID, BUT THEY DID NOT WAIT WITH IT SO LONG SINCE IT MIGHT IN THE MEANTIME GROW SOME BLACK HAIRS AND [THUS] BECOME INVALID.³ R. JOSHUA STATED: I ONLY HEARD⁴ OF [A COW] THAT WAS SHELASHETH.⁵ THEY SAID TO HIM: WHAT DOES THE EXPRESSION 'SHELASHETH' SIGNIFY? HE REPLIED: THUS HAVE I HEARD IT WITHOUT ANY EXPLANATION. BEN 'AZZAI SAID, I WILL EXPLAIN: IF YOU SAY SHELISHITH THE MEANING IS 'THE THIRD' IN NUMBER TO OTHERS,⁶ BUT WHEN YOU SAY SHELASHETH THE MEANING IS ONE THAT IS 'THREE YEARS OLD. SIMILARLY IT WAS SPOKEN OF A VINEYARD THAT IS REBA'I. THEY SAID TO HIM: WHAT DOES THE EXPRESSION REBA'I SIGNIFY? HE REPLIED: THUS HAVE I HEARD IT WITHOUT ANY EXPLANATION. BEN AZZAI SAID, I WILL EXPLAIN: IF YOU SAY 'REBI'¹ ' THE MEANING IS 'THE FOURTH IN NUMBER TO OTHERS, BUT WHEN YOU SAY 'REBA'I' THE MEANING IS ONE THAT IS FOUR YEARS OLD'. SIMILARLY IT WAS RULED: IF A MAN ATE⁷ IN A LEPROUS HOUSE HALF A LOAF, THREE⁸ OF WHICH ARE MADE OF A KAB, HE BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁹ THEY SAID TO HIM: SAY RATHER, 'EIGHTEEN⁸ OF WHICH ARE MADE OF A SE'AH'.¹⁰ HE REPLIED: THUS HAVE I HEARD IT WITHOUT ANY EXPLANATION. BEN'AZZAI SAID, I WILL EXPLAIN: WHEN YOU SAY, THREE OF WHICH ARE MADE OF A KAB THE LOAF WOULD CONTAIN NO DOUGH-OFFERING,¹¹ BUT IF YOU SAY, EIGHTEEN OF WHICH ARE MADE OF A SE'AH', THE LOAF¹² HAS BEEN REDUCED BY ITS DOUGH-OFFERING.¹³

MISHNAH 2. R. JOSE THE GALILEAN RULED: BULLOCKS¹⁴ MUST BE NO MORE THAN TWO YEARS OLD, FOR IT IS SAID, AND THE SECOND¹⁵ YOUNG BULLOCK SHALT THOU TAKE FOR A SIN-OFFERING.¹⁶ BUT THE SAGES RULED: THEY MAY BE EVEN THREE YEARS OLD. R. MEIR RULED: EVEN THOSE THAT ARE FOUR OR FIVE YEARS OLD ARE VALID, BUT OLD ANIMALS ARE NOT BROUGHT¹⁷ OUT OF RESPECT.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. LAMBS¹⁴ MUST BE NO MORE THAN ONE YEAR OLD, AND RAMS¹⁴ NO MORE THAN TWO YEARS OLD; AND ALL THESE YEARS ARE RECKONED FROM DAY TO DAY.¹⁹ ONE THAT IS THIRTEEN MONTHS OLD IS NOT VALID EITHER AS A RAM OR AS A LAMB. R. TARFON CALLED IT PALGAS;²⁰ BEN 'AZZAI CALLED IT NUKAD;²¹ R. ISHMAEL CALLED IT PARAKDIGMA.²² IF A MAN OFFERED IT HE MUST BRING FOR IT THE DRINK-OFFERING OF A RAM,²³ BUT IT IS NOT COUNTED AS HIS OFFERING.²⁴ ONE THAT IS THIRTEEN MONTHS OLD AND A DAY IS REGARDED AS A RAM.

MISHNAH 4. THE SIN-OFFERINGS OF THE CONGREGATION AND THEIR BURNT-OFFERINGS,²⁵ THE SIN-OFFERING OF AN INDIVIDUAL,²⁶ THE GUILT-OFFERING OF A NAZIRITE²⁷ AND THE GUILT-OFFERING OF A LEPER²⁸ ARE VALID FROM THE THIRTIETH DAY²⁹ ONWARDS, AND ALSO ON THE THIRTIETH DAY. IF, HOWEVER, THEY WERE OFFERED ON THE EIGHTH DAY²⁵ THEY ARE VALID. VOW-OFFERINGS AND FREEWILL-OFFERINGS, FIRSTLINGS AND THE TITHE OF CATTLE AND THE PASCHAL LAMB ARE VALID FROM THE EIGHTH DAY²⁵ ONWARDS, AND ALSO ON THE EIGHTH DAY.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. R. ELIEZER RULED: A [RED] COW FOR THE SIN-OFFERING¹ THAT IS WITH YOUNG² IS VALID,³ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS INVALID. R. ELIEZER RULED: IT⁴ MAY NOT BE BOUGHT FROM IDOLATERS,⁵ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT SUCH A ONE IS VALID;⁶ AND NOT ONLY THIS, BUT ALL OFFERINGS OF THE CONGREGATION OR THE INDIVIDUAL MAY BE BROUGHT FROM THE LAND OF ISRAEL AND FROM OUTSIDE THE LAND, FROM NEW PRODUCE AND FROM THE OLD; EXCEPT THE OMER⁷ AND THE TWO LOAVES,⁸ WHICH MAY BE BROUGHT ONLY FROM NEW PRODUCE AND FROM WITHIN THE LAND.

MISHNAH 2. IF THE HORNS OR THE HOOFS OF THE [RED] COW ARE BLACK THEY ARE CHOPPED OFF.⁹ THE EYE BALL, THE TEETH AND THE TONGUE¹⁰ CAUSE NO INVALIDITY IN THE [RED] COW.¹¹ ONE THAT IS DWARF-LIKE IS VALID. IF THERE WAS ON IT A WEN AND THIS WAS CUT OFF, R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS INVALID.¹² R. SIMEON RULED: [ONLY] WHEREVER, IF REMOVED, NO RED HAIR GROWS IN ITS PLACE IS IT INVALID.

MISHNAH 3. ONE THAT IS BORN FROM THE SIDE,¹³ THE HIRE OF A HARLOT OR THE PRICE OF A DOG IS INVALID.¹⁴ R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT IS VALID, FOR IT IS WRITTEN, THOU SHALT NOT BRING THE HIRE OF A HARLOT OR THE PRICE OF A DOG INTO THE HOUSE OF THE LORD THY GOD,¹⁵ WHILE THIS¹⁶ WAS NOT BROUGHT INTO THE HOUSE.¹⁷ ALL BLEMISHES THAT CAUSE CONSECRATED ANIMALS TO BE INVALID¹⁸ CAUSE ALSO THE [RED] COW TO BE INVALID. IF ONE HAD RIDDEN ON IT.¹⁶

LEANED ON IT, HUNG ON ITS TAIL, CROSSED¹⁹ A RIVER BY ITS HELP, DOUBLED ON ITS LEADING ROPE,²⁰ OR PUT ONE'S CLOAK ON IT, IT IS INVALID.²¹ BUT IF ONE HAD ONLY FASTENED IT BY ITS LEADING ROPE OR MADE FOR IT A SANDAL TO PREVENT IT FROM SLIPPING OR SPREAD ONE'S CLOAK ON IT BECAUSE OF FLIES, IT REMAINS VALID. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHEREVER ANYTHING IS DONE FOR ITS OWN SAKE, IT REMAINS VALID; BUT IF FOR THE SAKE OF ANY OTHER,²² IT BECOMES INVALID.

MISHNAH 4. IF A BIRD RESTED ON IT, IT REMAINS VALID. IF A MALE BEAST MOUNTED IT, IT BECOMES INVALID.²³ R. JUDAH RULED: IF THE MALE WAS MADE TO MOUNT, IT BECOMES INVALID; BUT IF IT DID SO OF ITSELF, IT REMAINS VALID.

MISHNAH 5. IF IT¹⁶ HAD TWO BLACK OR WHITE HAIRS GROWING WITHIN ONE FOLLICLE,²⁴ IT IS INVALID. R. JUDAH SAID, 'WITHIN²⁵ ONE KOS'.²⁶ IF THEY GREW WITHIN TWO FOLLICLES THAT WERE ADJACENT TO²⁷ ONE ANOTHER, IT IS INVALID. R. AKIBA RULED: EVEN IF THERE WERE FOUR OR EVEN FIVE BUT THEY WERE DISPERSED, THEY MAY BE PLUCKED OUT.²⁸ R. ELIEZER RULED: EVEN AS MANY AS FIFTY.²⁹ R. JOSHUA B. BATHYRA RULED: EVEN IF IT HAD BUT ONE ON ITS HEAD AND ONE ON ITS TAIL, IT IS INVALID. IF IT HAD TWO HAIRS³⁰ WITH THEIR ROOTS BLACK AND THEIR TIPS RED OR WITH THEIR ROOTS RED AND THEIR TIPS BLACK, ALL IS DETERMINED BY WHAT IS VISIBLE;³¹ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: BY THE ROOT.³²

(1) A phrase whereby the red cow is designated.

(2) Provided the covering was done without the owner's knowledge.

(3) Though the carrying of any other burden renders it invalid. The embryo being regarded as a part of the mother's body does not come under the category of 'burden'.

(4) The red cow.

(5) Since they may have subjected it to improper use.

(6) For reasons cf. Bert., L. and Elijah Wilna.

(7) Cf. Lev. XXIII, 10ff.

(8) Cf. Ibid. XXIII, 17.

(9) And the red cow is then valid.

(10) Though they are not red.

(11) Where no other is available (Elijah Wilna).

(12) As is the case with other sacrifices, v. Ibid. XXII, 22.

(13) By means of the caesarean cut.

(14) As a red cow, as it is invalid for any other sacrifice.

(15) Deut. XXIII. 19' emphasis on 'house'.

(16) The red cow.

(17) 'The house of the Lord'.

(18) As sacrifices.

(19) Aliter: Hung . . . tail and crossed.

(20) Placing it on its back.

(21) In accordance with Num. XIX, 2, and upon which never came yoke.

(22) Though it was for its own sake also.

(23) Because the latter is supposed to be with the approval of the owner.

(24) 'Guma' (v. next note but one).

(25) 'Even', in cur. edd. is to be deleted (Bert.).

(26) 'Follicle', kos in this context having the same meaning as 'guma' (follicle) used by the first Tanna (cf. prev. n. but one). The difference between R. Judah and the first Tanna lies only in the Hebrew and Aramaic terms they respectively use.

(27) Aliter: opposite.

(28) And the cow is valid even before they were plucked, the plucking being done only for appearance sake.

(29) Or even any larger number may be plucked (cf. prev. n.).

(30) In one follicle.

(31) Sc. the tips. If they were red the cow is valid; if they were black it is invalid.

(32) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. SEVEN DAYS BEFORE THE BURNING OF THE [RED] COW THE PRIEST WHO WAS TO BURN THE COW WAS REMOVED FROM HIS HOUSE TO A CHAMBER THAT WAS FACING THE NORTH-EASTERN CORNER OF THE BIRAH;¹ AND WHICH WAS CALLED THE STONE CHAMBER.² THROUGHOUT THE SEVEN DAYS³ HE WAS SPRINKLED UPON⁴ WITH [A MIXTURE⁵ OF] ALL THE SIN-OFFERINGS THAT WERE THERE.⁶ R. JOSE STATED: HE WAS SPRINKLED UPON ON THE THIRD AND THE SEVENTH DAYS ONLY. R. HANINA THE VICE-HIGH PRIEST STATED: ON THE PRIEST THAT WAS TO BURN THE COW THEY SPRINKLED ALL THE SEVEN DAYS, BUT ON THE ONE THAT WAS TO PERFORM THE SERVICE ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT THEY SPRINKLED ON THE THIRD AND THE SEVENTH DAYS ONLY.

MISHNAH 2. COURTYARDS WERE BUILT IN JERUSALEM OVER A ROCK,⁷ AND BENEATH THEM WAS A HOLLOW WHICH SERVED AS A PROTECTION AGAINST A GRAVE IN THE DEPTHS,⁸ AND THEY USED TO BRING THERE PREGNANT WOMEN, AND THERE THEY GAVE BIRTH TO THEIR CHILDREN AND THERE THEY REARED THEM.⁹ AND¹⁰ THEY BROUGHT OXEN, UPON WHOSE BACKS WERE PLACED DOORS,¹¹ AND THE CHILDREN SAT UPON THEM WITH STONE CUPS¹² IN THEIR HANDS. WHEN THEY REACHED SILOAM¹³ THEY ALIGHTED AND FILLED THE CUPS WITH WATER¹⁴ AND THEN THEY ASCENDED AND SAT AGAIN ON THE DOORS.¹¹ R. JOSE SAID: EACH CHILD USED TO LET DOWN HIS CUP¹⁵ AND FILL IT FROM HIS PLACE.¹⁶

MISHNAH 3. HAVING ARRIVED¹⁷ AT THE TEMPLE MOUNT THEY ALIGHTED. BENEATH THE TEMPLE MOUNT AND THE COURTS¹⁸ WAS A HOLLOW WHICH SERVED AS A PROTECTION AGAINST A GRAVE IN THE DEPTHS,¹⁹ WHILE AT THE ENTRANCE OF THE COURT²⁰ THE JAR OF THE ASHES OF THE SIN-OFFERINGS²¹ WAS PROVIDED. A MALE FROM AMONG THE SHEEP WAS BROUGHT AND A ROPE WAS TIED BETWEEN ITS HORNS, AND A STICK OR²² A BUSHY TWIG WAS TIED AT THE OTHER END OF THE ROPE, AND THIS²³ WAS THROWN INTO THE JAR.²⁴ THE MALE [SHEEP] WAS THEN STRUCK SO THAT IT STARTED BACKWARDS²⁵ WHEN [A CHILD] TOOK THE ASHES AND MIXED²⁶ AS MUCH OF IT AS COULD BE VISIBLE ON THE WATER. R. JOSE SAID: DO NOT GIVE THE HERETICS²⁷ AN OPPORTUNITY TO CAVIL;²⁸ BUT [A CHILD] HIMSELF TOOK IT²⁹ AND MIXED IT.³⁰

MISHNAH 4. ONE MAY NOT BRING A SIN-OFFERING³¹ BY VIRTUE OF [THE PURIFICATIONS MADE FOR] ANOTHER SIN-OFFERING,³² NOR ONE CHILD³³ BY VIRTUE OF [THE PREPARATIONS MADE FOR] ANOTHER.³⁴ THE CHILDREN, FURTHERMORE, HAD TO BE SPRINKLED;³⁵ SO R. JOSE THE GALILEAN. R. AKIBA STATED: THEY HAD NO NEED TO BE SPRINKLED.³⁶

MISHNAH 5. IF THEY DID NOT FIND THE RESIDUE OF THE ASHES OF THE SEVEN [RED COWS]³⁷ THEY PERFORMED THE SPRINKLING WITH THOSE OF SIX, OF FIVE, OF FOUR, OF THREE, OF TWO OR OF ONE, AND WHO PREPARED THESE?³⁸ MOSES PREPARED THE FIRST, EZRA PREPARED THE SECOND, AND FIVE WERE PREPARED

SINCE EZRA; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES STATED: SEVEN WERE PREPARED SINCE THE DAYS OF EZRA. AND WHO PREPARED THEM? SIMEON THE JUST AND JOHANAN THE HIGH PRIEST PREPARED TWO ELIEHOENAI THE SON OF HA-KOF AND HANAMEL THE EGYPTIAN AND ISHMAEL THE SON OF PIABI PREPARED ONE EACH.³⁹

MISHNAH 6 A CAUSEWAY WAS MADE FROM THE TEMPLE MOUNT TO THE MOUNT OF OLIVES, BEING CONSTRUCTED OF ARCHES ABOVE ARCHES, EACH ARCH PLACED DIRECTLY ABOVE EACH PIER [OF THE ARCH BELOW] AS A PROTECTION⁴⁰ AGAINST A GRAVE IN THE DEPTHS,⁴¹ WHEREBY THE PRIEST WHO WAS TO BURN THE COW, THE COW ITSELF AND ALL WHO AIDED IN ITS PREPARATION WENT FORTH TO THE MOUNT OF OLIVES.

MISHNAH 7. IF THE COW REFUSED TO GO OUT, THEY MAY NOT TAKE OUT WITH IT A BLACK ONE LEST IT BE SAID, 'A BLACK [COW] HAS BEEN SLAIN' NOR ANOTHER RED [COW] LEST IT BE SAID, 'TWO HAVE BEEN SLAIN'. R. JOSE STATED: IT WAS NOT FOR THIS REASON BUT BECAUSE IT IS SAID IN SCRIPTURE AND HE SHALL BRING HER FORTH,⁴² BY HERSELF.⁴³ THE ELDERS OF ISRAEL USED TO PRECEDE THEM ON FOOT TO THE MOUNT OF OLIVES, WHERE THERE WAS A PLACE OF IMMERSION.⁴⁴ THE PRIEST THAT WAS TO BURN THE COW WAS (DELIBERATELY) MADE UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE SEDDUCEES: IN ORDER THAT THEY SHOULD NOT SAY,⁴⁵ 'ONLY BY THOSE ON WHOM THE SUN HAS SET⁴⁶ MUST IT BE PREPARED'.

MISHNAH 8. THEY LAID THEIR HANDS UPON HIM⁴⁷ AND SAID,⁴⁸ MY LORD THE HIGH PRIEST,⁴⁹ PERFORM IMMERSION ONCE. HE THEREUPON WENT DOWN AND IMMERSED HIMSELF AND CAME UP AND DRIED HIMSELF. DIFFERENT KINDS OF WOOD WERE SET IN ORDER THERE: CEDAR 'WOOD, PINE, SPRUCE AND THE WOOD OF SMOOTH FIG TREES.⁵⁰ [THE PILE] WAS BUILT UP IN THE SHAPE OF A TOWER FURNISHED WITH AIR HOLES,⁵¹ AND ITS FORESIDE⁵² WAS TURNED TOWARDS THE WEST.⁵³

MISHNAH 9. IT⁵⁴ WAS BOUND WITH A ROPE OF BAST⁵⁵ AND PLACED ON THE PILE WITH ITS HEAD TOWARDS THE SOUTH AND ITS FACE TOWARDS THE WEST.⁵³ THE PRIEST STOOD IN THE EAST WITH HIS FACE TOWARDS THE WEST. HE SLAUGHTERED WITH HIS RIGHT HAND AND RECEIVED THE BLOOD WITH HIS LEFT. R. JUDAH SAID: HE RECEIVED THE BLOOD WITH HIS RIGHT HAND, PUT IT ON HIS LEFT HAND AND THEN SPRINKLED WITH HIS RIGHT. SEVEN TIMES HE DIPPED HIS FINGER IN THE BLOOD AND SPRINKLED IT TOWARDS THE HOLY OF HOLIES, DIPPING ONCE AGAIN FOR EACH SPRINKLING. HAVING FINISHED THE SPRINKLING HE WIPED HIS HAND ON THE BODY OF THE COW, CAME DOWN AND KINDLED THE FIRE WITH CHIPS. R. AKIBA SAID: WITH DRY BRANCHES OF PALM-TREES.

MISHNAH 10. WHEN IT⁵⁴ BURST⁵⁶ HE TOOK UP A POSITION OUTSIDE ITS PIT⁵⁷ AND TAKING HOLD OF CEDAR WOOD, HYSSOP AND SCARLET WOOL, HE SAID TO THE BYSTANDERS, 'IS THIS CEDARWOOD? IS THIS CEDARWOOD?' 'IS THIS HYSSOP? IS THIS HYSSOP' 'IS THIS SCARLET WOOL? IS THIS SCARLET Wool?' THREE TIMES HE REPEATED EACH QUESTION AND THEY ANSWERED HIM 'YEA, YEA!' — THREE TIMES TO EACH QUESTION.

MISHNAH 11. HE THEN WRAPPED THEM⁵⁸ TOGETHER WITH THE ENDS OF THE STRIP OF WOOL⁵⁹ AND CAST THEM INTO THE BURNING HEAP, WHEN IT WAS BURNT UP IT WAS BEATEN WITH RODS AND THEN⁶⁰ SIFTED WITH SIEVES. R. ISHMAEL STATED: THIS WAS DONE WITH STONE HAMMERS⁶¹ AND STONEWARE SIEVES.⁶¹ A BLACK

CINDER ON WHICH THERE WERE SOME ASHES WAS CRUSHED BUT ONE ON WHICH THERE WERE NONE WAS LEFT BEHIND. A BONE WAS CRUSHED IN EITHER CASE. IT⁶² WAS THEN DIVIDED INTO THREE PARTS: ONE PART WAS DEPOSITED ON THE RAMPART, ONE ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES, AND ONE WAS DIVIDED AMONG THE COURSES.⁶³

- (1) The Temple (cf. I Chron. XXIX, 1). Aliter: The name of a place on the Temple mount (cf. Yoma 2a).
 - (2) So named because all services in connection with the red cow had to be performed only in vessels made either of baked ordure or of earthenware or of any material which, like stone, is insusceptible to uncleanness (cf. Yoma 2a).
 - (3) Except the fourth.
 - (4) As a precaution against the possibility of having contracted corpse uncleanness.
 - (5) So Elijah Wilna.
 - (6) From the days of Moses, when the first red cow was prepared, to date.
 - (7) That was primordial.
 - (8) Sc. the possibility of the existence of an unknown grave under the rock, טומאת התהום. unless there is a minimum space of a cubic handbreadth above it the uncleanness of the grave penetrates through the rock and beyond it; v. Suk. 21a.
 - (9) For the service of the red cow.
 - (10) When the water for the red cow had to be brought from Siloam.
 - (11) Which prevented any uncleanness below from penetrating to the children.
 - (12) Which are not susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (13) Heb. ha-Shiluah, the conduit near Jerusalem the completion of which is recorded on the famous Siloam inscription.
 - (14) In order to use them for sprinkling on the priest who was to burn the red cow.
 - (15) Without leaving his place on the door.
 - (16) As a precaution against the uncleanness of a possible grave in the depth near Siloam.
 - (17) On their return journey.
 - (18) Of the Temple.
 - (19) Cf. supra p. 309, n. 8. And therefore they could safely alight.
 - (20) Of the women, on a particular spot between it and the Rampart.
 - (21) In which were preserved ashes of all previously burnt red cows.
 - (22) Var. lec. 'and'.
 - (23) The stick or the twig.
 - (24) It is not permitted to put it there directly since the man who did it, if he were suffering from the uncleanness of a flux or the like, would, by hesset, (v. Glos.), have conveyed uncleanness to the ashes.
 - (25) And, as a result of his sudden movement, spilled the ashes collected on the stick.
 - (26) With water. Lit., 'sanctified'.
 - (27) Or 'Sadducees'.
 - (28) Or 'mock', at such excessive care and precaution.
 - (29) The ashes from the jar.
 - (30) With water. Lit., 'sanctified'.
 - (31) Sc. a red cow for which the necessary preparations in regard to cleanness have not been made.
 - (32) Which died or became invalid after all the necessary preparations for it have been completed.
 - (33) Even if he was kept in conditions of cleanness.
 - (34) Who died or became unclean after he has been duly prepared for a particular red cow for which the first mentioned child (cf. prev. n.) was not specifically prepared. it was necessary that the preparations be made solely and specifically for each particular red heifer and that a particular child also be specifically assigned for it.
 - (35) With the ashes of the red cow, In case any of them had become unclean through a dead creeping thing. They themselves performed the sprinkling upon one another since no one could possibly be cleaner than they. Bert. on the basis of the Tosef. explains that this complicated procedure was adopted by the exiles on their return From Babylon when they were all unclean as a result of corpse-uncleanness and had no other means of becoming clean, save through the medium of children and the ashes of the red cows of former generations that had been left in safe keeping when they went to exile. B. Jose states that there were still among them a few individuals who had kept themselves Free from corpse-uncleanness all the time and they could have made the necessary preparations.

(36) They only required immersion as a precaution against the possibility of having become unclean through contact with a dead creeping thing.

(37) That had been burnt since the days of Moses to that day. The sprinkling had to be done with a compound of the ashes of all the seven cows (cf. supra III, I and nn).

(38) Seven cows.

(39) R. Meir disregards one cow of each pair since owing to invalidity it was entirely superseded by the other.

(40) For those who crossed the causeway.

(41) Whose corpse uncleanness would otherwise have penetrated (cf. supra p 309, n. 8).

(42) Num. XIX, 3, emphasis on 'her'.

(43) The practical difference between the first Tanna and R. Jose is the permissibility of taking out with it any other animal or beast. According to R. Jose even this is not permitted.

(44) Also built, like the causeway, over a hollow as a protection against a corpse uncleanness in the depths.

(45) Var. lec., 'because they used to say'.

(46) Sc. those only who are in all respects clean.

(47) The priest who was to horn the cow.

(48) If he happened to be a High Priest.

(49) V. infra IV, I.

(50) All these kinds of wood produce suitable ashes.

(51) Lit., 'and they opened windows in it'.

(52) The largest opening into which the fire was put.

(53) Where was the Holy of Holies.

(54) The red cow.

(55) Which is insusceptible to uncleanness.

(56) From the heat.

(57) In which it was being burnt.

(58) The cedarwood and the hyssop.

(59) Which, being longer than the cedarwood and the hyssop, projected downwards.

(60) When it had been pounded to dust.

(61) Which are insusceptible to uncleanness.

(62) The ashes of the red cow.

(63) The twenty-four courses of the priests that took the Temple services in turn, v. Glos. s. v. Mishmar.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF A COW FOR THE SIN-OFFERING WAS SLAIN UNDER SOME OTHER NAME, OR IF ITS BLOOD WAS RECEIVED OR SPRINKLED UNDER SOME OTHER NAME, OR IF THIS¹ WAS DONE UNDER ITS OWN NAME AND UNDER SOME OTHER NAME, OR UNDER SOME OTHER NAME AND UNDER ITS NAME, IT IS INVALID.² R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT IS VALID.³ IF THE SERVICE¹ WAS PERFORMED BY ONE WHOSE HANDS OR FEET WERE UNWASHED,⁴ IT IS INVALID; BUT R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT IS VALID.³ IF IT⁴ WAS PERFORMED BY ONE WHO WAS NOT THE HIGH PRIEST, IT IS INVALID; BUT R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS VALID. IF IT WAS PERFORMED BY ONE WHO WAS NOT WEARING ALL THE PRESCRIBED GARMENTS,⁵ IT IS INVALID; AND IT WAS IN WHITE GARMENTS⁵ THAT IT WAS TO BE PREPARED.

MISHNAH 2. IF IT WAS BURNT OUTSIDE ITS PIT,⁶ OR IN TWO PITS,⁷ OR IF TWO COWS WERE BURNT IN THE SAME PIT, IT IS INVALID. IF [THE BLOOD] WAS SPRINKLED BUT NOT EXACTLY IN THE DIRECTION OF THE ENTRANCE OF THE HOLY OF HOLIES, IT IS INVALID. IF HE MADE THE SEVENTH SPRINKLING OUT OF THE SIXTH⁸ AND THEN SPRINKLED AGAIN A SEVENTH TIME, IT IS INVALID. IF HE SPRINKLED AN EIGHTH TIME OUT OF THE SEVENTH⁹ AND THEN SPRINKLED AGAIN AN EIGHTH TIME, IT IS

VALID.¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. IF IT WAS BURNT UP WITHOUT WOOD,¹¹ OR WITH ANY KIND OF WOOD,¹² AND EVEN IF ONLY WITH STRAW OR STUBBLE, IT IS VALID. IF IT WAS FLAYED AND CUT UP, IT IS VALID. IF IT WAS SLAIN WITH THE INTENTION OF EATING ITS FLESH OR DRINKING ITS BLOOD, IT IS VALID. R. ELIEZER RULED: NO [UNLAWFUL] INTENTION¹³ CAUSES IN VALIDITY IN THE RED COW.

MISHNAH 4. ALL WHO ARE ENGAGED IN THE PREPARATION OF THE [RED] COW, FROM THE BEGINNING UNTIL THE END, RENDER THEIR GARMENTS¹⁴ UNCLEAR, AND THEY ALSO RENDER IT¹⁵ INVALID BY [OTHER] WORK.¹⁶ IF SOME IN VALIDITY OCCURRED WHILE IT WAS BEING SLAIN, IT CONVEYS NO UNCLEANNESS TO GARMENTS. IF IT OCCURRED WHILE THE BLOOD WAS BEING SPRINKLED, FOR ALL WHO WERE ATTENDING TO IT BEFORE THE INVALIDITY OCCURRED, IT RENDERS GARMENTS UNCLEAR, BUT FOR THOSE WHO ATTENDED TO IT AFTER IT HAD BECOME INVALID IT DOES NOT RENDER GARMENTS UNCLEAR. THUS IT FOLLOWS THAT THE RESTRICTION¹⁷ TURNS INTO A RELAXATION.¹⁸ THE LAW OF SACRILEGE¹⁹ APPLIES TO IT THROUGHOUT.²⁰ WOOD MAY BE ADDED TO THE FIRE.²⁰ ITS SERVICES²¹ MUST BE PERFORMED BY DAY AND BY A PRIEST.²² WORK²³ RENDERS IT INVALID UNTIL IT BECOMES ASHES, AND WORK²³ CAUSES THE WATER TO BE INVALID UNTIL THE ASHES ARE PUT INTO IT.

(1) The slaying, receiving or sprinkling.

(2) Since Scripture described it as a 'sin-offering' the services mentioned must in their entirety be performed under that name alone; v. Zeb. 2a.

(3) Because, unlike other sin-offerings, the services mentioned were performed outside the Temple precincts.

(4) V. Ex. XXX, 19, 20.

(5) Worn by the officiating priest.

(6) The cavity on the Mount of Olives opposite the Holy of Holies in which the red cows were burnt.

(7) A portion in each.

(8) Sc. having dipped his finger for the sixth sprinkling he used the same blood for both the sixth and the seventh sprinklings. Aliter: 'Sprinkled the seventh instead of the sixth', having made a mistake in the counting.

(9) Cf. p. 315, n. 8 mut.mut.

(10) The one additional sprinkling cannot invalidate the heifer after the seven prescribed sprinklings have been duly performed.

(11) The fire having been set to the body of the cow itself.

(12) Other than those prescribed supra III, 8.

(13) However wrong the act intended.

(14) Or any utensils with which they may come in contact.

(15) The red cow.

(16) Done during the time one was engaged in the preparation of the red cow.

(17) Invalidity of the cow where one is engaged in other work.

(18) Exemption of the man's clothes from uncleanness.

(19) Me'ah (v. Glos.). cf. Lev. V, 15f.

(20) Until it is burnt into ashes.

(21) With the exception of the collection of the ashes, the filling of the jar with water and the mixing of the water and ashes which may also be done by night and by a non-priest.

(22) V Yoma, 42a.

(23) Other than that connected with the service of the cow.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. HE WHO BRINGS THE EARTHEN VESSEL FOR THE SIN-OFFERING¹ MUST PERFORM IMMERSION,² AND SPEND THE NIGHT³ BY THE FURNACE.⁴ R. JUDAH RULED: HE MAY ALSO BRING IT FROM THE HOUSE⁵ AND IT IS VALID,⁶ FOR ALL ARE DEEMED TRUSTWORTHY IN REGARD TO THE SIN-OFFERING.⁷ IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH⁸ ONE MAY OPEN THE FURNACE⁹ AND TAKE OUT [THE VESSEL]. R. SIMEON RULED: FROM THE SECOND ROW.¹⁰ R. JOSE RULED: FROM THE THIRD ROW.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN IMMERSED A VESSEL FOR THE SIN-OFFERING¹² IN WATER THAT IS NOT FIT FOR THE MIXING¹³ HE MUST DRY IT;¹⁴ IF IN WATER THAT IS FIT FOR THE MIXING HE NEED NOT DRY IT,¹⁵ BUT IF [HE INTENDED]¹⁶ TO COLLECT IN IT¹⁷ WATER THAT WAS ALREADY MIXED WITH THE ASHES, HE MUST DRY IT IN EITHER CASE.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. IF A PUMPKIN SHELL¹⁹ WAS IMMERSSED²⁰ IN WATER THAT WAS NOT FIT FOR THE MIXTURE,²¹ IT IS PERMISSIBLE²² TO MIX IN IT THE ASHES WITH THE WATER,²³ PROVIDED IT HAD NEVER BEFORE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS. IF IT HAS CONTRACTED AN UNCLEANNESS, IT IS NOT PERMISSIBLE²⁴ TO MIX IN IT THE ASHES WITH THE WATER.²⁵ R. JOSHUA ARGUED: IF ONE IS ALLOWED TO MIX IN IT THE ASHES AND WATER AT THE BEGINNING,²⁶ ONE SHOULD ALSO²⁷ BE ALLOWED TO DO SO AT THE END;²⁸ AND IF ONE IS NOT ALLOWED²⁹ TO DO THIS AT THE END²⁸ ONE SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED²⁹ TO DO IT AT THE BEGINNING.²⁶ IN³⁰ EITHER CASE³¹ IT IS NOT PERMISSIBLE TO COLLECT IN IT¹⁷ WATER THAT WAS ALREADY PREPARED.³²

MISHNAH 4. A REED PIPE THAT WAS CUT³³ [FOR USE AS A CONTAINER] FOR [THE WATER OR ASHES OF] THE SIN-OFFERING, R. ELIEZER RULED, MUST³⁴ BE IMMERSSED FORTHWITH.³⁵ R. JOSHUA RULED: IT MUST FIRST BE RENDERED UNCLEAR AND THEN IT IS IMMERSSED.³⁶ ALL ARE ELIGIBLE TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE,³⁷ EXCEPT A DEAF MUTE, AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR. R. JUDAH HOLDS A MINOR TO BE ELIGIBLE, BUT DISQUALIFIES A WOMAN AND A HERMAPHRODITE.

MISHNAH 5. THE MIXTURE³⁷ MAY BE PREPARED IN ALL KINDS OF VESSELS, EVEN IN VESSELS MADE OF CATTLE DUNG, OF STONE OR OF EARTH.³⁸ THE MIXTURE³⁵ MAY ALSO BE PREPARED IN A SHIP.³⁹ IT MAY NOT BE PREPARED IN THE SIDES OF VESSELS,⁴⁰ OR IN THE FLANKS OF A LADLING JAR, OR IN THE BUNG OF A JAR, OR IN ONE'S CUPPED HANDS, FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING MAY BE DRAWN IN, MIXED IN, AND SPRINKLED FROM A VESSEL ONLY. PROTECTION⁴¹ BY A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER⁴² CAN BE AFFORDED ONLY BY VESSELS, AS PROTECTION AGAINST AN UNCLEANNESS WITHIN AN EARTHEN VESSEL CAN BE AFFORDED ONLY BY VESSELS.⁴³

MISHNAH 6. THE POTTERS' EGG⁴⁴ IS FIT [AS A VESSEL].⁴⁵ R. JOSE HOLDS THAT IT IS UNFIT. A HEN'S EGG, R. MEIR AND R. JUDAH RULE, IS FIT [AS A VESSEL]; BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS UNFIT.

MISHNAH 7. IN A TROUGH THAT IS [HEWN] IN A ROCK⁴⁶ IT IS NOT PERMISSIBLE TO COLLECT THE WATER,⁴⁷ OR TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE,⁴⁸ NOR MAY THE SPRINKLING BE DONE FROM IT. IT, FURTHERMORE, NEEDS NO TIGHTLY FITTING COVER,⁴⁹ AND IT DOES NOT RENDER A RITUAL BATH⁵⁰ INVALID.⁵¹ IF IT WAS FIRST A MOVABLE VESSEL AND IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY JOINED TO THE GROUND WITH LIME, IT IS PERMISSIBLE TO COLLECT THE WATER⁴⁷ IN IT, TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE IN IT AND TO SPRINKLE FROM IT. IT ALSO NEEDS A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER⁵² AND RENDERS A RITUAL BATH INVALID.⁵³ IF THERE WAS A HOLE IN IT⁵⁴

BELOW, AND IT WAS STOPPED UP WITH A RAG, THE WATER IN IT IS INVALID,⁵⁵ SINCE⁵⁶ IT IS NOT WHOLLY ENCLOSED BY THE VESSEL. IF THE HOLE WAS IN THE SIDE⁵⁷ AND IT WAS STOPPED UP WITH A RAG, THE WATER IN IT IS VALID, SINCE IT IS WHOLLY ENCLOSED BY THE VESSEL. IF THE VESSEL WAS PROVIDED WITH A BRIM OF CLAY AND THE WATER HAD RISEN TO THAT SPOT, IT⁵⁸ IS INVALID; BUT IF IT⁵⁹ WAS FIRM ENOUGH FOR THE VESSEL TO BE MOVED WITH IT,⁶⁰ THE WATER REMAINS VALID.

MISHNAH 8. IF THERE WERE TWO TROUGHS IN ONE STONE⁶¹ AND THE MIXTURE⁶² WAS PREPARED IN ONE OF THEM, THE WATER IN THE OTHER IS NOT PREPARED THEREBY.⁶³ IF A HOLE OF THE SIZE OF THE SPOUT OF A WATER SKIN⁶⁴ WAS PASSING FROM ONE TO THE OTHER, OR IF THE WATER OVERFLOWED BOTH,⁶⁵ EVEN IF ONLY [TO A DEPTH OF] THE THICKNESS OF GARLIC PEEL, AND THE MIXTURE⁶⁶ WAS PREPARED IN ONE OF THEM, THE WATER IN THE OTHER IS ALSO PREPARED THEREBY.⁶⁷ MISHNAH 9. IF TWO STONES WERE PLACED CLOSE TO ONE ANOTHER AND MADE INTO A TROUGH,⁶⁸ AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF TWO KNEADING TROUGHS,⁶⁹ AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A TROUGH THAT WAS SPLIT,⁷⁰ THE WATER BETWEEN THEM⁷¹ IS NOT DEEMED TO BE PREPARED.⁷² IF THEY WERE JOINED TOGETHER WITH LIME OR GYPSUM AND THEY CAN BE MOVED TOGETHER, THE WATER BETWEEN THEM⁷¹ IS DEEMED TO HAVE BEEN DAILY PREPARED.

- (1) In which the ashes are mixed with water for the sprinkling.
- (2) Cleansing himself thereby from any possible uncleanness.
- (3) That follows the immersion.
- (4) Where the earthen vessels are burnt. As vessels become susceptible to uncleanness only after their manufacture has been completed by being burnt in the furnace, he has to stand by all the time so that no unclean person may open the furnace to see whether the vessel is done, and render it unclean by contact.
- (5) Of the potter.
- (6) Even if the potter is an 'am-ha-arez who is usually careless in matters of uncleanness.
- (7) This was a special provision intended to prevent the 'am ha-arez class from preparing separate red cows for themselves.
- (8) Sc. if a vessel is required for foodstuffs of terumah.
- (9) At any time, even though no watch was kept after the vessels have been duly burnt and because susceptible to uncleanness.
- (10) May a vessel be taken for the purposes mentioned. It may not be taken from the first row where the 'am ha-arez may possibly, by opening first the furnace, have caused it to shake and thus rendered it unclean.
- (11) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
- (12) Sc. to draw the water with it or to mix in it the ashes with the water.
- (13) Cf. prev. n. Only living or running water may be used.
- (14) After the immersion, before he fills it with suitable water.
- (15) Though they get mixed up with the water that he deliberately puts in subsequently for mixing it with the ashes. As he must have known in the course of the immersion that some of the water would cling to the vessel, this water may be regarded as having been put in deliberately.
- (16) When immersing it.
- (17) Var. lec. 'to add to it'.
- (18) Sc. irrespective of whether the immersion took place in water that was, or water that was not fit for the mixing; for even in the former case the water would render invalid the water that was already mixed with the ashes (v. infra VI, 2.)
- (19) That was clean and used for drawing water.
- (20) As an extra precaution (cf. prev. n.).
- (21) Of the ashes of the red cow with the water; var. lec. 'that was fit for the mixture'.

- (22) After it had been dried.
- (23) The possibility of its giving out some of the unfit water which it had previously absorbed is disregarded owing to the insignificance of its quantity which is neutralised in the fit water.
- (24) Even after immersion.
- (25) Since the smallest drop that it might give out would convey uncleanness to all its contents.
- (26) Sc. before it contracted uncleanness.
- (27) Since the re-issue of absorbed liquid is disregarded.
- (28) After uncleanness had been contracted.
- (29) On account of the possible re-issue of some absorbed liquid.
- (30) This is a continuation of the ruling of the first Tanna.
- (31) Whether the pumpkin-shell had contracted uncleanness before or not.
- (32) Lit., 'Sanctified'. Sc. in which the ashes of the red cow have been mixed with the water.
- (33) Directly from the ground where, as a growing plant, it was not susceptible to uncleanness.
- (34) Though clean.
- (35) And used before sunset (v. foll. n.).
- (36) As a demonstration against the Sadducees (cf. supra III, 7). According to R. Eliezer the use before sunset (cf. prev. n.) is alone a sufficient demonstration.
- (37) Of the ashes and water of the sin-offering.
- (38) Sc. unbaked clay.
- (39) Though it is not regarded as a 'vessel' in respect of susceptibility to uncleanness.
- (40) That were broken.
- (41) Against uncleanness under the same roof beneath which lay a corpse.
- (42) For the contents under it. Cf. Kelim X, 1.
- (43) Cf. Kel. VIII, 3.
- (44) An egg-shaped lump of clay with a cavity in it runs which the pot is formed.
- (45) For the mixing of the ashes of the sin-offering with the water.
- (46) Which was fixed to the ground.
- (47) For mixing it with the ashes of the red cow.
- (48) because it is not considered a 'vessel'.
- (49) To afford protection to its contents under a roof over itself and a corpse. Having the same status as a pit or ditch any cover on it affords the same protection, v. Oh. V. 6.
- (50) That contained less water than the prescribed minimum.
- (51) If rain water that collected in it flowed into the bath. As the trough is an immovable fixture the water in it is not regarded as 'drawn water' which renders a ritual bath invalid.
- (52) If it is to protect its contents under a roof overshadowing it and a corpse.
- (53) Cf. supra n. 6 mut. mut.
- (54) A vessel that was fit for the preparation of the mixture of the water and ashes.
- (55) For mixing it with ashes of the red cow.
- (56) Owing to the interposition of the rag.
- (57) Of the vessel.
- (58) The water that reached the brim.
- (59) The brim.
- (60) When grasping the brim only.
- (61) That was movable.
- (62) Of the ashes of the red cow and the water.
- (63) And may not, therefore, be used for sprinkling.
- (64) Sc. one in which the two fingers nearest the thumb can be easily turned.
- (65) The separating partition between them being lower than the other sides.
- (66) v. p. 321, n. 17.
- (67) Provided that the quantity of the ashes put in was sufficient to be visible in both.
- (68) Some gap remaining between the two stones.
- (69) That were placed close together to form one large receptacle leaving some gap between them.

(70) Thus leaving some gap between the two halves.

(71) In the gaps (cf. prev. three nn.).

(72) Even where the main body of the water 'was duly mixed with the ashes of the red cow.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN WAS ABOUT TO MIX THE ASHES WITH THE WATER¹ AND THE ASHES² FELL UPON HIS HAND OR UPON THE SIDE OF THE TROUGH³ AND THEN FELL INTO THE TROUGH, THE MIXTURE IS INVALID.⁴ IF THEY⁵ FELL⁶ FROM THE TUBE⁷ INTO THE TROUGH, THE MIXTURE IS INVALID. IF HE TOOK THE ASHES FROM THE TUBE⁷ AND THEN⁸ COVERED IT,⁹ OR SHUT A DOOR,¹⁰ THE ASHES¹ REMAIN VALID BUT THE WATER BECOMES INVALID.¹¹ IF⁸ HE PUT IT⁹ UP ERECT ON THE GROUND,¹² THE WATER BECOMES INVALID;¹³ IF IN HIS HAND, THE WATER IS VALID, SINCE¹⁴ IT IS POSSIBLE PROPERLY¹⁵ TO DO SO.¹⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF THE ASHES² FLOATED ON THE WATER, R. MEIR AND R. SIMEON RULED: ONE MAY TAKE SOME OF THEM¹⁷ AND USE THEM IN ANOTHER PREPARATION; BUT THE SAGES RULED: WITH ANY ASHES THAT HAVE TOUCHED WATER NO OTHER MIXTURE MAY BE PREPARED. IF THE WATER¹⁸ WAS EMPTIED OUT AND SOME ASHES¹⁹ WERE FOUND AT THE BOTTOM, R. MEIR AND R. SIMEON RULED: ONE MAY DRY THEM AND THEN USE THEM FOR ANOTHER PREPARATION; BUT THE SAGES RULED: WITH ANY ASHES THAT HAVE TOUCHED WATER NO OTHER MIXTURE MAY BE PREPARED.

MISHNAH 3. IF THE MIXTURE WAS PREPARED IN A TROUGH²⁰ WHILE A EWER WAS WITHIN IT, HOWEVER NARROW ITS NECK,²¹ THE WATER IN THE LATTER IS DEEMED TO USE DULY PREPARED. IF THERE WAS A SPONGE IN THE TROUGH, THE WATER IN IT²² IS INVALID.²³ HOW SHOULD ONE PROCEED?²⁴ ONE EMPTIES OUT THE WATER²⁵ UNTIL THE SPONGE IS REACHED.²⁶ IF ONE TOUCHED THE SPONGE,²⁷ HOWEVER MUCH THE WATER THAT WASHES OVER IT, THE WATER BECOMES INVALID.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN PLACED HIS HAND OR HIS FOOT OR LEAVES OF VEGETABLES²⁹ IN SUCH A MANNER AS TO ENABLE THE WATER TO RUN INTO A JAR, THE WATER IS INVALID.³⁰ IF HE USED³¹ LEAVES OF REEDS OR LEAVES OF NUTS³² THE WATER IS VALID. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [WATER PASSING OVER] THAT WHICH IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IS INVALID, BUT [WATER PASSING OVER] THAT WHICH IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IS VALID.

MISHNAH 5. IF A WELL WAS DIVERTED INTO A WINE VAT OR INTO CISTERNS, THE WATER³³ IS INVALID FOR ZABS³⁴ AND LEPERS;³⁵ AND ALSO FOR THE PREPARATION OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING,³⁶ BECAUSE IT WAS NOT DRAWN INTO A VESSEL.³⁷

(1) Lit., 'sanctifying', mixing the ashes of the red cow with suitable water in a trough.

(2) Lit., 'sanctification'.

(3) That contained the water.

(4) Since the ashes must be put direct (cf. Num. XIX, 17) into the vessel. They must not fall into it of their own accord.

(5) The ashes.

(6) Of their own accord.

(7) In which they are kept.

(8) Before putting the ashes into the water.

(9) The tube.

- (10) Thus doing other 'work' while engaged in the preparation of the mixture.
- (11) As supra IV, 4 ad fin.
- (12) So as to prevent the ashes in the tube from spilling.
- (13) The act distracting his mind from the preparation of the mixture.
- (14) Being a very simple act.
- (15) Without distracting one's mind from the preparation of the mixture.
- (16) Hence it is not regarded as work. Var. lec. 'since it is impossible (to do otherwise)', if one is to prevent the ashes in the tube from spilling without covering 'it.
- (17) Of the floating ashes.
- (18) Of a mixture.
- (19) Lit., 'sanctification'.
- (20) Containing water.
- (21) Lit., 'mouth'.
- (22) The sponge.
- (23) Because a sponge cannot be regarded as a 'vessel.'
- (24) In the latter case, if all the water is not to become invalid.
- (25) From the trough into another vessel.
- (26) As the water above has not been in contact with the sponge it remains valid and may be used.
- (27) So that some of its absorbed contents might possibly have been squeezed out.
- (28) Since the water that issued from the sponge gets mixed up with that in the trough.
- (29) Under running water.
- (30) Because it has passed over an object that is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (31) Instead of his hand, foot or vegetable leaves.
- (32) Which are not susceptible to the uncleanness of food-stuffs.
- (33) In the vat or cistern since it can no longer be regarded as 'running' water.
- (34) Whose immersion must be performed in running water (Lev. XV, 13).
- (35) For whose sprinkling running water is required (Lev. XIV, 5).
- (36) Even in the vat or cistern itself.
- (37) Neither vat nor cistern can be regarded as a valid 'vessel'.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF FIVE MEN FILLED¹ FIVE JARS TO PREPARE WITH THEM FIVE MIXTURES² [RESPECTIVELY]³ AND THEN THEY CHANGED THEIR MINDS TO PREPARE⁴ ONE MIXTURE FROM ALL OF THEM, OR IF THEY FILLED THE JARS TO PREPARE WITH THEM ONE MIXTURE AND THEN THEY CHANGED THEIR MINDS TO PREPARE WITH THEM FIVE MIXTURES,³ ALL THE WATER REMAINS VALID.⁵ IF ONE MAN FILLED¹ FIVE JARS INTENDING TO PREPARE FIVE [SEPARATE] MIXTURES, EVEN THOUGH HE CHANGED HIS MIND TO PREPARE ONE MIXTURE⁴ FROM ALL OF THEM, ONLY THE LAST⁶ IS VALID.⁷ IF HE⁸ INTENDED TO PREPARE ONE MIXTURE FROM ALL OF THEM AND THEN HE CHANGED HIS MIND TO PREPARE FIVE SEPARATE MIXTURES, ONLY THE WATER IN THE ONE THAT WAS MIXED FIRST IS VALID.⁹ IF HE⁸ SAID¹⁰ TO ANOTHER MAN, PREPARE MIXTURES¹¹ FROM THESE FOR YOURSELF', ONLY THE FIRST¹² IS VALID;¹³ BUT IF HE SAID, PREPARE A MIXTURE¹¹ FROM THESE FOR ME', ALL ARE VALID.¹⁴

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN FILLED THE WATER WITH ONE HAND AND DID SOME OTHER WORK WITH THE OTHER HAND, OR IF HE FILLED THE WATER FOR HIMSELF AND FOR ANOTHER MAN,¹⁵ OR IF HE FILLED TWO JARS AT THE SAME TIME,¹⁶ THE WATER OF BOTH IS INVALID, FOR WORK¹⁷ CAUSES INVALIDITY WHETHER ONE ACTS FOR ONESELF OR FOR ANOTHER MAN.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN PREPARED THE MIXTURE¹⁸ WITH ONE HAND AND DID SOME OTHER WORK WITH THE OTHER HAND, THE MIXTURE IS INVALID¹⁹ IF HE PREPARED IT FOR HIMSELF, BUT IF HE PREPARED IT FOR ANOTHER MAN, IT IS VALID.²⁰ IF THE MAN PREPARED A MIXTURE¹⁸ BOTH FOR HIMSELF AND FOR ANOTHER MAN,²¹ HIS IS INVALID AND THAT OF THE OTHER MAN IS VALID.²² IF HE PREPARES MIXTURES FOR TWO MEN SIMULTANEOUSLY, BOTH ARE VALID.²²

MISHNAH 4. [IF A MAN SAID TO AN OTHER.]²³ 'PREPARE THE MIXTURE FOR ME AND I WILL PREPARE THE ONE FOR YOU, THE FIRST²⁴ IS VALID.²⁵ [IF HE SAID.] 'FILL IN THE WATER FOR ME AND I WILL FILL THE WATER FOR YOU', THAT OF THE LATTER IS VALID.²⁶ [IF HE SAID,] 'PREPARE THE MIXTURE FOR ME AND I WILL DRAW THE WATER FOR YOU', BOTH MIXTURES ARE VALID.²⁷ [IF HE SAID.] 'FILL THE WATER FOR ME AND I WILL PREPARE THE MIXTURE²⁸ FOR YOU',²⁹ BOTH MIXTURES ARE INVALID.³⁰

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN IS DRAWING WATER FOR HIS OWN USE³¹ AND FOR THE MIXTURE OF THE SIN-OFFERING, HE MUST DRAW FOR HIMSELF FIRST AND FASTEN [THE BUCKET] TO THE CARRYING YOKE AND THEN HE DRAWS THE WATER FOR THE SIN-OFFERING. IF, HOWEVER, HE DREW FIRST THE WATER FOR THE SIN-OFFERING AND THEN HE DREW THE WATER FOR HIMSELF, IT IS INVALID. HE MUST³² PUT HIS OWN BEHIND HIM AND THAT FOR THE SIN-OFFERING BEFORE HIM,³³ AND IF HE PUT THAT FOR THE SIN-OFFERING BEHIND HIM IT IS INVALID.³⁰ IF BOTH WERE FOR THE SIN-OFFERING, HE MAY³² PUT ONE BEFORE HIM AND ONE BEHIND HIM AND BOTH ARE VALID, SINCE IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DO OTHERWISE.³⁴

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN CARRIED THE ROPE³⁵ IN HIS HAND, [THE MIXTURE] IS VALID IF HE KEEPS TO HIS USUAL WAY; BUT IF HE GOES OUT OF HIS WAY, IT IS INVALID.³⁶ THE QUESTION WAS SENT ON TO JABNEH ON THREE FESTIVALS AND ON THE THIRD FESTIVAL.³⁷ IT WAS RULED THAT THE MIXTURE WAS VALID, AS A TEMPORARY MEASURE.³⁸

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN COILS THE ROPE LITTLE BY LITTLE,³⁹ [THE MIXTURE] IS VALID;⁴⁰ BUT IF HE COILED IT AFTERWARDS,⁴¹ IT IS INVALID.⁴² R. JOSE STATED: THIS ALSO HAD BEEN RULED TO BE VALID AS A TEMPORARY MEASURE.

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN PUT THE JAR⁴³ AWAY IN ORDER THAT IT SHALL NOT BE BROKEN, OR IF HE INVERTED IT IN ORDER TO DRY IT SO THAT HE MIGHT DRAW MORE WATER WITH IT,⁴⁴ [THE WATER HE HAD ALREADY DRAWN] IS VALID;⁴⁵ BUT IF HE INTENDED TO CARRY IN IT THE ASHES, IT IS INVALID.⁴² IF HE CLEARED POTSDHERDS FROM A TROUGH⁴⁶ IN ORDER THAT IT MAY HOLD MORE WATER, THE WATER IS VALID;⁴⁷ BUT IF IT WAS INTENDED THAT THEY SHOULD NOT HINDER HIM WHEN HE POURS OUT THE WATER,⁴⁸ IT IS INVALID.

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN CARRYING HIS WATER ON HIS SHOULDER DECIDED A MATTER OF LAW, OR SHOWED OTHERS THE WAY, OR KILLED A SERPENT OR A SCORPION, OR TOOK FOODSTUFFS FOR STORAGE, IT IS INVALID; BUT [IF HE TOOK] FOODSTUFFS TO EAT, THEN IT IS VALID.⁴⁹ IF HE KILLED A SERPENT OR A SCORPION THAT HINDERED HIM, IT REMAINS VALID. R. JUDAH STATED: THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: IN THE CASE OF ANY ACT THAT IS IN THE NATURE OF WORK, THE MIXTURE IS INVALID WHETHER THE MAN STOPPED⁵⁰ OR NOT, BUT IF IT WAS NOT IN THE NATURE OF WORK,⁵¹ THE MIXTURE IS INVALID IF HE STOPPED, BUT IF HE DID NOT STOP IT REMAINS VALID.

MISHNAH 10. IF A MAN ENTRUSTED⁵² HIS WATER⁵³ TO AN UNCLEAN MAN, IT IS INVALID;⁵⁴ BUT IF TO A CLEAN ONE IT IS VALID.⁵⁵ R. ELIEZER RULED: EVEN IF IT WAS ENTRUSTED TO AN UNCLEAN MAN IT IS VALID,⁵⁶ PROVIDED THE OWNER DID NO OTHER WORK IN THE MEANTIME.

MISHNAH 11. IF TWO MEN WERE DRAWING WATER FOR THE SIN-OFFERING AND ONE ASSISTED THE OTHER TO RAISE IT OR IF ONE PULLED OUT A THORN⁵⁷ FOR THE OTHER, IT IS VALID IF THERE IS TO BE ONLY ONE MIXTURE;⁵⁸ BUT IF THERE ARE TO BE TWO SEPARATE MIXTURES, IT IS INVALID.⁵⁹ R. JOSE RULED: EVEN IF THERE ARE TO BE TWO MIXTURES THE WATER IS VALID IF THE TWO MEN HAD MADE A MUTUAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN THEM.⁶⁰

MISHNAH 12. IF A MAN⁶¹ BROKE DOWN A FENCE⁶² WITH THE INTENTION OF PUTTING IT UP AGAIN,⁶³ THE WATER REMAINS VALID;⁶⁴ BUT IF HE PUT [A FENCE] UP,⁶⁵ THE WATER BECOMES INVALID. IF⁶⁶ HE ATE⁶⁷ FIGS INTENDING⁶⁸ TO STORE SOME OF THEM, THE WATER IS VALID;⁶⁹ BUT IF HE STORED FIGS⁷⁰ IT IS INVALID. IF⁶⁶ HE WAS EATING FIGS AND, LEAVING SOME OVER, THREW WHAT WAS IN HIS HAND UNDER THE FIG TREE OR AMONG DRYING FIGS IN ORDER THAT IT SHALL NOT BE WASTED, THE WATER BECOMES INVALID.⁷¹

(1) With suitable water.

(2) Of ashes of the red cow with the water.

(3) Each man his own mixture with the water he drew.

(4) In one vessel.

(5) Since no act of extraneous work intervened between the putting of the water in each jar and the mixing of it with the ashes.

(6) Between the filling of which and the mixing in it of the ashes no extraneous act of work intervened.

(7) The water in all the others is invalid since an act of extraneous work (the filling of the next jar or jars) intervened between the drawing of the water and the mixing of the ashes with it.

(8) The man who filled all the five jars.

(9) Because, all the five jars having been filled for one mixture, there is no intervention of extraneous work between the filling of the first jar and the mixing of its contents with the ashes. The mixtures of the other jars are invalid since the mixing of the first one, which is an act of work, intervened between the filling of them with the water and the mixing of that water with the ashes.

(10) After he filled the five jars intending to use them for one single mixture.

(11) Each jar separately.

(12) Between the filling of which and the mixing in it of the ashes no other act of work intervened.

(13) Cf. supra n. 9.

(14) Since the first man (who filled the jar) did no work between the filling and the mixing, while the second (who prepared the mixtures) cannot cause invalidity to that which does not belong to him.

(15) At the same time. The filling for the other man being an act of extraneous work.

(16) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

(17) Other than that necessitated for the preparation on which one is engaged.

(18) Of ashes of the red cow with the water.

(19) On account of the other work that was done by him while he was engaged in the preparation.

(20) Since that man did no other work. Only in the filling of the water is the act of an agent (who may be paid for his services and who derives benefit from his act) deemed to be identical with that of the owner, but in the preparation of the mixture (or which no fee may be paid) the act of the agent cannot be regarded as that of the owner.

(21) At the same time.

(22) Since the mixture that was not his could not be rendered invalid by his work.

(23) After each of them had already drawn his water.

- (24) Sc. the mixture that was prepared first.
- (25) The mixture that was prepared subsequently is invalid since its owner made an interruption between the filling of the vessels with the water for it and its mixing by the act of the preparation of the first mixture which in relation to it is extraneous work.
- (26) Since there was no interruption by other work on the part of the owner between the filling of the vessel and the mixing of the ashes. That old the first, however, is invalid since he had done an act of extraneous work, by filling the water for the other man, between the filling of the water for his own mixture, and the preparation of it.
- (27) Because in neither case was there any interruption by extraneous work.
- (28) 'With the water which you have drawn for yourself before I asked you to draw for me'.
- (29) 'Before I will prepare mine'.
- (30) Since in the case of both mixtures there was an interruption by other work done by their respective owners.
- (31) For his ordinary needs.
- (32) When carrying the two buckets of water.
- (33) Because, in accordance with Scripture, it has to be carefully guarded.
- (34) Var. lec. 'It is possible', Sc. it is possible in this case, since the bucket before him is for the sin-offering, to bestow equal care upon the bucket behind also.
- (35) Which he had borrowed for the purpose of drawing the water for mixing with the ashes and which he now returns to the lender.
- (36) The extra journey is regarded as 'other work' which causes invalidity.
- (37) V. Hul. 48a.
- (38) Having regard to the exigencies of the time.
- (39) While drawing water from the well.
- (40) The coiling being regarded as part of the work of the preparations for the red cow.
- (41) After the water had been drawn.
- (42) Cf. supra p. 328, n. 11 mut. mut.
- (43) After emptying the water he drew with it into the vessel, but prior to the mixing of the ashes.
- (44) For the same mixture.
- (45) Since the acts mentioned are the usual procedure they cannot be regarded as 'extraneous work'.
- (46) Between his drawing of the water and his mixing it with the ashes.
- (47) Since the act is part of the services in connection with the preparation of the mixture.
- (48) For the sprinkling after the mixing of the ashes.
- (49) As this serves to fortify him in his task it is not deemed extraneous work.
- (50) When the act was done.
- (51) As those mentioned in this Mishnah.
- (52) For safe keeping and protection against uncleanness.
- (53) For the mixture of the ashes of the red cow.
- (54) Because an unclean person cannot be trusted to exercise all the necessary care.
- (55) Even if the owner did some other work in the meantime. While the water is under the protection of the guardian it is deemed to be in his (and not in the owner's) possession, and only if the guardian did some other work does the water become invalid.
- (56) For, knowing that the guardian is unclean, the owner himself keeps his eye on it.
- (57) That happened to stick in his finger, in the interval between the drawing of the water and its mixing with the ashes.
- (58) Since the assistance afforded, which was essential for the joint effort, cannot be regarded as extraneous work.
- (59) Because the assistance given was not essential for the giver's mixture, it is extraneous work and causes invalidity.
- (60) To assist each other in all their preparations for the mixtures. As each one was entirely dependent on the other, any help rendered is deemed to be work on one's own preparation.
- (61) While carrying the water for the ashes of the red cow.
- (62) That was in his way.
- (63) And much more so if he had no intention of putting it up again.
- (64) Elijah Wilna: The destruction is not regarded as constructive work though it is preparatory to it.
- (65) On his own accord, before the water had been mixed with the ashes. According to the second interpretation (previous note). the reference is to the same fence, if he put it up.

(66) During the interval between the drawing of the water and the mixing of it with the ashes of the red heifer.

(67) V. Mishnah 9.

(68) Under compulsion by one who, otherwise, refused to allow him to eat.

(69) Even if the storing was done before the preparation of the mixture. Since the storing was an essential of his eating (cf. prev. n.) and the latter was a necessity for his drawing of the water, the storing is regarded as an act essential to the preparation.

(70) V. prev. n. mut. mut.

(71) Since the storing of foodstuffs is an act of extraneous work.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. IF TWO MEN WERE KEEPING WATCH OVER THE TROUGH¹ AND ONE OF THEM CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, THE WATER² REMAINS VALID, SINCE IT IS STILL UNDER THE PROTECTION OF THE OTHER. IF THE FIRST BECAME CLEAN AND THE OTHER CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE WATER IS STILL VALID SINCE IT IS UNDER THE PROTECTION OF THE FIRST. IF BOTH CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS SIMULTANEOUSLY THE WATER BECOMES INVALID. IF ONE OF THEM DID³ SOME WORK,⁴ THE WATER REMAINS VALID SINCE IT IS UNDER THE PROTECTION OF THE OTHER. IF THE FIRST CEASED⁵ AND THE OTHER DID SOME WORK,⁴ THE WATER STILL REMAINS VALID SINCE IT IS UNDER THE PROTECTION OF THE FIRST. IF BOTH DID SOME WORK⁴ AT THE SAME TIME THE WATER BECOMES INVALID.

MISHNAH 2. THE MAN THAT PREPARES THE MIXTURE⁶ OF THE SIN-OFFERING⁷ MUST NOT WEAR HIS SANDALS, FOR WERE SOME OF THE LIQUID⁸ TO FALL ON A SANDAL THE LATTER WOULD BECOME UNCLEAR⁹ AND THUS CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO HIM.¹⁰ WELL MAY HE SAY, 'THAT¹¹ WHICH MADE YOU UNCLEAR DID NOT MAKE ME UNCLEAR, BUT YOU HAVE MADE ME UNCLEAR IF SOME OF THE LIQUID FELL ON HIS SKIN¹² REMAINS CLEAR.¹³ IF IT FELL ON HIS GARMENT THE LATTER BECOMES UNCLEAR AND CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO HIM. WELL MAY HE SAY, THAT¹⁴ WHICH MADE YOU UNCLEAR DID NOT MAKE ME UNCLEAR, BUT YOU HAVE MADE ME UNCLEAR

MISHNAH 3. HE WHO BURNS THE RED COW¹⁵ OR THE BULLOCKS¹⁶ AND HE THAT LEADS AWAY THE SCAPEGOAT,¹⁷ RENDER GARMENTS¹⁸ UNCLEAR.¹⁹ THE RED COW, HOWEVER, AND THE BULLOCKS AND THE SCAPEGOAT DO NOT THEMSELVES CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO GARMENTS.²⁰ WELL MAY IT²¹ SAY,²² 'THOSE²³ THAT CAUSE YOU TO BE UNCLEAR DO NOT CAUSE ME TO BE UNCLEAR, BUT YOU HAVE CAUSED ME TO BE UNCLEAR'.

MISHNAH 4. A MAN THAT EATS UP THE CARRION OF A CLEAN BIRD, WHILE IT IS YET IN HIS GULLET,²⁴ CAUSES GARMENTS TO BE UNCLEAR;²⁵ BUT THE CARRION ITSELF DOES NOT CAUSE GARMENTS TO BE UNCLEAR. WELL MAY IT²¹ SAY,²² 'THAT²⁶ WHICH CAUSED YOU TO BE UNCLEAR DID NOT CAUSE ME TO BE UNCLEAR, BUT YOU CAUSED ME TO BE UNCLEAR'.

MISHNAH 5. ANY DERIVED UNCLEANNESS CONVEYS NO UNCLEANNESS TO VESSELS, BUT [IT DOES CONVEY IT] TO A LIQUID. IF A LIQUID BECAME UNCLEAR IT CAN CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THEM.²⁷ WELL MAY THEY²⁷ SAY,²⁸ 'THAT'²⁹ WHICH CAUSED YOU TO BE UNCLEAR DID NOT CAUSE ME TO BE UNCLEAR, BUT YOU CAUSED ME TO BE UNCLEAR'.

MISHNAH 6. AN EARTHEN VESSEL CANNOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO ANOTHER

SUCH VESSEL, BUT [CAN CONVEY IT] TO A LIQUID; AND WHEN THE LIQUID BECOMES UNCLEAN IT CAN CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE VESSEL. WELL MAY IT³⁰ SAY,³¹ 'THAT³² WHICH HAS CALLED YOUR UNCLEANNESS COULD NOT CAUSE ME TO BE UNCLEAN, BUT YOU HAVE CAUSED ME TO BE UNCLEAN'.

MISHNAH 7. WHATSOEVER³³ CAUSES TERUMAH TO BE INVALID CAUSES LIQUID³⁴ TO BECOME UNCLEAN IN THE FIRST GRADE SO THAT THEY CAN CONVEY UNCLEANNESS³⁵ AT ONE REMOVE, AND RENDER UNFIT³⁶ AT ONE OTHER REMOVE,³⁷ EXCEPT ONLY A TEBUL YOM.³⁸ WELL MAY IT³⁹ SAY,⁴⁰ 'WHAT⁴¹ HAD CAUSED YOU TO BE UNCLEAN COULD NOT CAUSE ME TO BE UNCLEAN, BUT YOU HAVE CAUSED ME TO BE UNCLEAN'.

MISHNAH 8. ALL SEAS ARE⁴² ON A PAR WITH A RITUAL BATH,⁴³ FOR IT IS SAID, AND THE GATHERING OF THE WATERS CALLED HE SEAS;⁴⁴ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: ONLY THE GREAT SEA⁴⁵ IS ON A PAR WITH A RITUAL BATH,⁴⁶ 'SEAS'⁴⁷ HAVING BEEN STATED⁴⁴ ONLY BECAUSE THERE ARE IN IT⁴⁵ MANY KINDS OF SEAS. R. JOSE RULED: ALL SEAS⁴⁸ AFFORD CLEANNESS WHEN RUNNING,⁴⁹ AND YET THEY ARE UNFIT⁵⁰ FOR ZABS AND LEPERS AND FOR THE PREPARATION OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING.⁵¹

MISHNAH 9. AFFECTED⁵² WATERS ARE UNFIT.⁵³ THE FOLLOWING ARE AFFECTED⁵² WATERS: THOSE THAT ARE SALTY OR LUKEWARM. WATERS THAT FAIL: ARE UNFIT.⁵³ THE FOLLOWING ARE WATERS THAT FAIL; THOSE THAT FAIL EVEN ONCE IN A SEPTENNIAL CYCLE. THOSE THAT FAIL ONLY IN TIMES OF WAR⁵⁴ OR IN YEARS OF DROUGHT ARE FIT.⁵³ R. JUDAH RULED: THEY ARE UNFIT.⁵³

MISHNAH 10. THE WATERS OF THE KERAMIYON AND THE WATERS OF PUGAH⁵⁵ ARE UNFIT,⁵³ BECAUSE THEY ARE MARSH WATERS.⁵⁶ THE WATERS OF THE JORDAN AND THE WATERS OF THE YARMUK⁵⁷ ARE UNFIT,⁵³ BECAUSE THEY ARE MIXED WATERS.⁵⁸ AND THE FOLLOWING ARE MIXED WATERS: A FIT KIND AND AN UNFIT KIND THAT WERE MIXED TOGETHER. IF TWO KINDS THAT ARE FIT WERE MIXED TOGETHER BOTH REMAIN FIT: R. JUDAH RULES THAT THEY ARE UNFIT.⁵⁹

MISHNAH 11. AHAB'S WELL AND THE POOL IN THE CAVE OF PAMIAS⁶⁰ ARE FIT.⁵³ WATER THAT HAS CHANGED ITS COLOUR AND THE CHANGE AROSE FROM ITSELF, REMAINS FIT. A WATER CHANNEL THAT COMES FROM A DISTANCE⁶¹ IS FIT, PROVIDED ONLY THAT IT IS WATCHED SO THAT NO ONE CUTS IT OFF.⁶² R. JUDAH RULED; THE PRESUMPTION ALWAYS⁶³ IS THAT IT IS IN A PERMITTED STATE. IF THERE FELL INTO A WELL SOME CLAY OR EARTH, ONE MUST WAIT⁶⁴ UNTIL IT BECOMES CLEAR; SO R. ISHMAEL. R. AKIBA RULED: IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO WAIT.

(1) That contained water for mixing with the ashes of the red cow

(2) Cf. prev. n.

(3) While he was supposed to keep watch over the water.

(6) And likewise he that sprinkles it.

(7) Much more so the man who sprinkle it.

(8) Of the mixture.

(9) From the liquid which had become invalid the moment it dropped on the sandal and was no longer subjected to the special care prescribed for the mixture of the sin-offering.

(10) As a special measure enacted in connection with the preparations of the red cow mixture.

- (34) As a preventive measure.
- (35) To foodstuffs even if they are common hullin (v. Glos.).
- (36) To terumah, but not to common foodstuffs. To become 'unfit' denotes to contract an uncleanness without being able to convey it further.
- (37) But no more.
- (38) V. Glos. Though a tebul you renders terumah unfit, he cannot cause liquids, even if they are terumah, to become a first grade of uncleanness.
- (39) A foodstuff (cf. supra n. 6).
- (40) To the liquids.
- (41) The second grade of uncleanness.

- (58) These rivers being fed by tributaries whose waters 'fail' or 'are affected'.

- (59) As a preventive measure against the possibility of using a mixture of two kinds of water one of which was unfit.
(60) Or 'Banias', one of the sources of the Jordan.
(61) Having its source in a spring.
(62) From its source. Should it be cut off, it can no longer be regarded as spring water.
(63) Even if it was not kept under watch.
(64) Before the water may be used.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. IF A DROP¹ OF WATER FELL INTO A FLASK,² R. ELIEZER RULED, THE SPRINKLING MUST BE DONE TWICE;³ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THE MIXTURE IS INVALID.⁴ IF DEW DROPPED INTO IT,⁵ R. ELIEZER RULED: LET IT⁵ BE PUT OUT IN THE SUN AND THE DEW WILL RISE⁶ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THE MIXTURE IS INVALID. IF A LIQUID OR FRUIT JUICE FELL INTO IT,⁵ ALL THE CONTENTS MUST BE POURED AWAY AND IT IS ALSO NECESSARY TO DRY THE FLASK.⁷ IF ONLY INK, GUM OR COPPERAS, OR ANYTHING THAT LEAVES A MARK, FELL INTO IT,⁵ THE CONTENTS MUST BE POURED AWAY BUT IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO DRY THE FLASK.⁸

MISHNAH 2. IF INSECTS OR CREEPING THINGS FELL INTO IT,⁵ AND THEY BURST ASUNDER⁹ OR THE COLOUR OF THE WATER CHANGED, THE CONTENTS BECOME INVALID. A BEETLE¹⁰ CAUSES INVALIDITY IN ANY CASE,¹¹ BECAUSE IT IS LIKE A TUBE.¹² R. SIMEON AND R. ELIEZER B. JACOB RULED: A MAGGOT OR A WEEVIL OF THE CORN¹⁰ CAUSES NO INVALIDITY, BECAUSE IT CONTAINS NO MOISTURE.

MISHNAH 3. IF A BEAST OR A WILD ANIMAL DRANK FROM IT,¹³ IT BECOMES INVALID.¹⁴ ALL BIRDS¹⁵ CAUSE INVALIDITY, EXCEPT THE DOVE SINCE IT ONLY SUCKS UP THE WATER.¹⁶ ALL CREEPING THINGS CAUSE NO INVALIDITY, EXCEPT THE WEASEL SINCE IT LAPS UP THE WATER. R. GAMALIEL RULED: THE SERPENT ALSO¹⁷ BECAUSE IT VOMITS. R. ELIEZER RULED: THE MOUSE ALSO.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE INTENDED¹⁸ TO DRINK THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING, R. ELIEZER RULED: IT BECOMES INVALID. R. JOSHUA RULED: ONLY WHEN ONE TIPS THE FLASK.¹⁹ R. JOSE STATED: THIS²⁰ APPLIES ONLY TO WATER THAT HAD NOT YET BEEN PREPARED,²¹ BUT IN THE CASE OF WATER THAT HAD BEEN PREPARED,²² R. ELIEZER RULED: IT BECOMES INVALID [ONLY] WHEN ONE TIPS THE FLASK;¹⁹ AND R. JOSHUA RULED: [ONLY] WHEN ONE DRINKS.²³ AND IF IT WAS POURED DIRECT INTO ONE'S THROAT,²⁴ IT REMAINS VALID.

MISHNAH 5. IF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING²⁵ BECAME INVALID IT MAY NOT BE STAMPED INTO THE MUD SINCE IT MIGHT BECOME A SNARE FOR OTHERS.²⁶ R. JUDAH RULED: IT²⁷ BECOMES NEUTRALISED.²⁸ IF A COW DRANK OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING, ITS FLESH²⁹ BECOMES UNCLEAN FOR TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.³⁰ R. JUDAH RULED: IT BECOMES NEUTRALISED IN ITS BOWELS.³¹

MISHNAH 6. NO MAN MAY CARRY WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING³² OR THE ASHES OF THE SIN-OFFERING³³ ACROSS A RIVER ON BOARD A SHIP,³⁴ NOR MAY ONE FLOAT THEM UPON THE WATER,³⁵ NOR MAY ONE STAND ON THE BANK ON ONE SIDE AND THROW THEM ACROSS TO THE OTHER SIDE.³⁵ A MAN³⁶ MAY, HOWEVER, CROSS OVER³⁷ WITH THE WATER UP TO HIS NECK. HE THAT IS CLEAN FOR THE SIN-OFFERING³² MAY CROSS [A RIVER]³⁸ CARRYING IN HIS HANDS AN EMPTY VESSEL THAT IS CLEAN FOR THE SIN-OFFERING³² OR WATER THAT HAS NOT YET BEEN DULY PREPARED.³⁹

MISHNAH 7. IF VALID ASHES⁴⁰ WERE MIXED [UP WITH WOOD ASHES,⁴¹ ONE IS GUIDED BY THE GREATER QUANTITY IN RESPECT OF THE CONVEYANCE OF UNCLEANNESS,⁴² BUT [THE MIXTURE]⁴³ MAY NOT BE PREPARED WITH IT.⁴⁴ R. ELIEZER RULED: THE MIXTURE⁴³ MAY BE PREPARED WITH ALL OF THEM.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 8. WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING, EVEN IF IT IS INVALID,⁴⁶ CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS⁴⁷ TO A MAN WHO IS CLEAN FOR TERUMAH⁴⁸ [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS HANDS OR WITH HIS BODY; AND TO A MAN WHO IS CLEAN FOR THE SIN-OFFERING IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS NEITHER [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS HANDS NOR [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS BODY.⁴⁹ IF IT⁵⁰ BECAME UNCLEAR, IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO A MAN WHO IS CLEAN FOR TERUMAH [BY CONTACT EITHER] WITH HIS HANDS OR WITH HIS BODY, AND TO THE MAN WHO IS CLEAN FOR THE SIN-OFFERING IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS HANDS BUT NOT [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS BODY.⁵¹

MISHNAH 9. IF VALID ASHES WERE PUT ON WATER THAT WAS UNFIT FOR THE PREPARATION,⁵² [THE LATTER] CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO HIM THAT IS CLEAN FOR TERUMAH [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS HANDS OR WITH HIS BODY, BUT TO HIM WHO IS CLEAN⁵³ FOR THE SIN-OFFERING IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS NEITHER [BY CONTACT] WITH HIS HANDS NOR WITH HIS BODY.

(1) Lit., 'any soever'.

(2) Zelohith, the vessel containing the mixture of the ashes of the red cow and the water, duly prepared for sprinkling.

(3) Thus making sure that one drop at least was valid water.

(4) V. Zeb. 80a.

(5) The flask.

(6) Leaving the mixture free from all dew.

(7) Before it can be used again for a valid mixture.

(8) For, had any of the foreign substance remained, a mark would have been left in the flask.

(9) The water penetrating them and carrying back some of the moisture of their body into the mixture.

(10) If it fell into the mixture.

(11) Whether it burst asunder or not and whether or not the colour of the water changed.

(12) Through which the water of the mixture passes and absorbs moisture from its body.

(13) The contents of the flask (cf. supra p. 336n. 10).

(14) Since spittle mixes with the water.

(15) If they drank from the mixture.

(16) Cf. supra n. 2 mut. mut.

(17) Causes invalidity if it drank from the mixture.

(18) Expressing his intention.

(19) To drink out of it. Intention alone does not suffice to cause invalidity.

(20) The ruling of R. Eliezer as well as that of R. Joshua just cited.

(21) By the mixture of the ashes.

(22) When it is evident that the water had been drawn only for that purpose.

(23) From the flask.

(24) So that no spittle could possibly have been mixed up with the contents that remained.

(25) The prepared mixture of the water and the ashes of the red cow.

(26) Who, unsuspecting the existence of the water in the mud, would touch the latter and contract uncleanness without being aware of it.

(27) On being mixed up with the mud.

(28) And no longer conveys any uncleanness.

(29) If the cow has been slain.

- (30) From the time of drinking.
- (31) And no longer conveys any uncleanness.
- (32) The prepared mixture of the water and the ashes of the red cow.
- (33) Even if it was not mixed with the water.
- (34) As a preventive measure. It once happened that a piece of a corpse was found stock in the deck of a ship on board of which the mixture of the water and ashes of the red heifer was carried, v. Hag. 28a.
- (35) Since this is similar to carrying them on board a ship.
- (36) Carrying the mixture or the ashes.
- (37) On foot.
- (38) Even in a ship.
- (39) By the mixture of the ashes, having only been drawn for the purpose.
- (40) Of the red cow.
- (41) That are unfit for sprinkling.
- (42) By touch. If the valid ashes constitute the greater quantity, one who touched it is unclean; and if the wood ashes constitute the greater quantity no uncleanness is conveyed.
- (43) Of the ashes with water.
- (44) Even where the greater quantity was valid ashes.
- (45) With both kinds of ashes whether the greater part was wood ashes or valid ashes. As no minimum quantity of ashes was prescribed for the sprinkling, and as each application would contain at least some fraction of the valid ashes, the entire mixture may be regarded as valid and used for the purpose.
- (46) Owing, for instance, to a change in colour that was due to an external cause.
- (47) Rabbinically.
- (48) But not to one who is only clean for common food; for, owing to the invalidity of the water it is no longer subject to Pentateuchal uncleanness.
- (49) So that, though he becomes unclean in certain other respects, he remains clean to draw the water, to mix it with the ashes of the red cow (the sin-offering), and to sprinkle it.
- (50) The water of the sin-offering.
- (51) Liquid uncleanness can generally be conveyed only by contact with the hands.
- (52) Which are thus on a par with water that became invalid.
- (53) Var. lec., 'the hands of him who is clean for terumah and the hands of him who is clean'.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. ANY OBJECT THAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS¹ IS FOR THE PURPOSE OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF,² WHETHER IT WAS OTHERWISE UNCLEAN OR CLEAN.³ A MAN TOO⁴ IS SUBJECT TO THE SAME RESTRICTION.⁵ ANY OBJECT THAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS,⁶ WHETHER IT IS OTHERWISE UNCLEAN OR CLEAN, R. ELIEZER RULED, IS NOT DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF;⁷ R. JOSHUA RULED: IT IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF;⁸ AND THE SAGES RULED: THAT WHICH WAS UNCLEAN IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF,³ AND THAT WHICH WAS CLEAN IS NOT DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING TOUCHED WHAT WAS UNCLEAN OF MIDDAF,⁹ HE¹⁰ BECOMES UNCLEAN.¹¹ IF A FLAGON THAT WAS APPOINTED FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING TOUCHED A MIDDAF UNCLEANNESS,¹² IT BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING TOUCHED FOODSTUFFS OR LIQUIDS¹³ WITH HIS HAND, HE BECOMES UNCLEAN, BUT IF HE DID IT WITH HIS FOOT HE REMAINS CLEAN. IF HE SHIFTED THEM WITH HIS HAND,¹⁴ R. JOSHUA RULES THAT HE BECOMES UNCLEAN, AND THE SAGES RULE THAT HE REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. AN [EARTHEN] JAR OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING THAT TOUCHED A [DEAD] CREEPING THING, REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁵ IF THE JAR WAS PUT ON IT,¹⁶ R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT REMAINS CLEAN, AND THE SAGES RULE¹⁷ THAT IT BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF THE JAR TOUCHED FOODSTUFFS OR LIQUIDS¹⁸ OR THE HOLY SCRIPTURES,¹⁹ IT REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁵ IF IT WAS PUT ON THEM, R. JOSE RULES THAT IT REMAINS CLEAN,²⁰ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT BECOMES UNCLEAN.²¹

MISHNAH 4. A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING THAT TOUCHED AN OVEN²² WITH HIS HAND BECOMES UNCLEAN,²³ BUT IF HE DID IT WITH HIS FOOT HE REMAINS CLEAN.²³ IF HE STOOD ON AN OVEN AND PUT OUT HIS HAND BEYOND THE OVEN WITH THE FLAGON²⁴ IN HIS HAND, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A CARRYING-YOKE WHICH WAS PLACED OVER THE OVEN AND FROM WHICH TWO JARS WERE SUSPENDED ONE AT EITHER END,²⁵ R. AKIBA RULES THAT THEY REMAIN CLEAN,²⁶ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE UNCLEAN.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. IF HE WAS STANDING OUTSIDE AN OVEN AND HE STRETCHED FORTH HIS HAND TO A WINDOW WHEREFROM HE TOOK A FLAGON AND PASSED IT OVER THE OVEN, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN,²⁸ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. HE, HOWEVER, WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING MAY STAND OVER AN OVEN WHILE HOLDING IN HIS HAND AN EMPTY VESSEL THAT IS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING OR ONE FILLED WITH WATER THAT HAS NOT YET BEEN MIXED WITH THE ASHES OF THE RED COW.

MISHNAH 6. IF A FLAGON CONTAINING THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING TOUCHED A VESSEL CONTAINING CONSECRATED FOOD OR TERUMAH, THAT CONTAINING THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING BECOMES UNCLEAN,²⁹ BUT THE ONE CONTAINING THE CONSECRATED FOOD OR THE TERUMAH REMAINS CLEAN.³⁰ IF HE HELD THE TWO VESSELS³¹ ONE IN EACH OF HIS TWO HANDS, BOTH BECOME UNCLEAN.³² IF THEY WERE BOTH WRAPPED IN SEPARATE PAPERS, THEY REMAIN CLEAN.³³ IF THE VESSEL OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING WAS WRAPPED IN A PAPER WHILE THAT OF THE TERUMAH WAS HELD IN HIS HAND,³⁴ BOTH BECOME UNCLEAN.³⁵ IF THE ONE CONTAINING THE TERUMAH WAS HELD IN HIS HAND WRAPPED UP IN PAPER WHILE THAT CONTAINING THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING WAS HELD IN HIS HAND, BOTH REMAIN CLEAN.³⁶ R. JOSHUA RULED: THAT CONTAINING THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF BOTH WERE PLACED ON THE GROUND AND A MAN TOUCHED THEM,³⁷ THAT OF THE SIN-OFFERING BECOMES UNCLEAN³⁸ BUT THAT OF THE CONSECRATED FOOD OR TERUMAH REMAINS CLEAN.³⁹ IF HE ONLY SHIFTED IT,⁴⁰ R. JOSHUA RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN, AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.

(1) Sc. one that is appointed for use as a couch or a seat, v. Glos. s.v.

(2) A form of a minor or indirect uncleanness imposed Rabbinically (v. Glos. s.v.).

(3) Hence if a man who is clean for the purposes of the sin-offering shifted (hesset) any such object (unless it had been specially guarded for the purposes of the sin-offering) he becomes unclean and unfit for the services of the mixing or sprinkling of the water and ashes of the red cow as if he had shifted an actual midras uncleanness.

(4) Even if he was clean for holy things but not specially cleansed for the purposes of the sin-offering.

(5) As the objects mentioned. Hence if the man who is clean for the sin-offering water touched him he becomes equally unclean and unfit (cf. prev. n. but one).

(6) But not to midras.

(7) Hence a man who is clean for the water of the sin-offering does not become unclean by shifting it as when he shifted that which is subject to midras uncleanness.

(8) Even if the object shifted was clean.

- (9) Sc. the coverlet of a zab that was not in direct contact with the zab, (other coverlets having intervened) which is Rabbinically unclean as middaf.
- (10) Even if he did not touch it with his hand but only with his body.
- (11) Much more so if he touched the bedding under the zab, which is Pentateuchally a 'father of uncleanness.'
- (12) Cf. supra n. 2.
- (13) That were clean in regard to terumah and consecrated things, but not in regard to the water of the sin-offering.
- (14) Without touching them.
- (15) Since earthenware do not contract uncleanness from their outer sides.
- (16) The dead creeping thing.
- (17) On the strength of a deduction from Num. XIX, 9 according to which the container of the water of the sin-offering must be set in 'a clean place'.
- (18) That were unclean.
- (19) Which Rabbinically convey uncleanness to the hands or foodstuffs that touch them (cf. Yad. IV, 6).
- (20) Since it did not rest on a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (21) Because, in their view, it must rest in a place which is clean in all respects (cf. supra n. 6).
- (22) Even one that was clean for holy things.
- (23) As In the case of foodstuffs (supra X, 2).
- (24) For the water of the sin-offering.
- (25) Outside the oven.
- (26) Being outside and beyond the oven they may be regarded as resting on a clean place.
- (27) Since they are supported by the man, or the yoke that rests on the oven, they also are deemed to rest on a place that is unclean.
- (28) Passing in the air-space above the oven is in his opinion regarded as on a par with passing through the interior of the oven.
- (29) Even for common food. The flagon that contracted uncleanness from the vessel of the terumah conveys uncleanness to the water of the sin-offering within it, and this unclean water then renders the flagon itself unclean in the first degree.
- (30) Since it only touched an uncleanness of the first degree which cannot convey any uncleanness to vessels.
- (31) That of the water of the sin-offering and that of the consecrated food or terumah.
- (32) That of the sin-offering becomes unclean on account of its contact with the man's hand which has become unclean like all his body, when he touched that of the Terumah, while the vessel of terumah for consecrated food becomes unclean by contact with the man who was carrying the water of the sin-offering.
- (33) Because, though a vessel of paper (papyrus) may contract uncleanness, a scrap of paper does not, and it, therefore, forms an intervention between the uncleanness and the man.
- (34) With no paper wrapper around it.
- (35) Because, when the man had touched with his hand the vessel of the terumah, that of the sin-offering becomes unclean since the paper in this case constitutes no interposition. The man who becomes unclean because of his carrying of the invalid water of the sin-offering conveys uncleanness to the vessel of the terumah which he had touched with his hand.
- (36) That of the terumah remains clean because the paper constitutes an Interposition between the hand and the other vessel, and that of the water of the sin-offering remains clean since the uncleanness of the man, which was caused by this water, cannot be retransmitted to the water that caused it.
- (37) Simultaneously.
- (38) Since the man who became unclean by touching the flagon of the terumah conveys uncleanness to the water of the sin-offering which, in turn conveys uncleanness to the Hagon that contains them.
- (39) Since the man did not carry the invalid water but only touched its container which, being but a first grade of uncleanness, cannot convey any uncleanness to the man who is only susceptible to the uncleanness imparted by a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (40) But did not directly touch it.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 11

MISHNAH 1. A FLASK¹ THAT ONE HAS LEFT UNCOVERED AND ON RETURNING FOUND IT TO BE COVERED, IS INVALID.² IF ONE LEFT IT COVERED AND ON RETURNING FOUND IT TO BE UNCOVERED, IT IS INVALID IF A WEASEL³ COULD HAVE DRUNK FROM IT⁴ OR, ACCORDING TO THE RULING OF RABBAN GAMALIEL,⁵ A SERPENT, OR IF IT WAS POSSIBLE FOR DEW TO FALL INTO IT IN THE Night.⁶ THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING⁷ IS NOT PROTECTED⁸ BY A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER;⁹ BUT WATER THAT HAD NOT YET BEEN MIXED WITH THE ASHES IS PROTECTED BY A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT THAT IS REGARDED AS CLEAN IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH IS ALSO REGARDED AS CLEAN IN THE CASE OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING. IN ANY CONDITION OF SUSPENSE WHERE TERUMAH IS CONCERNED¹¹ THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING IS POURED AWAY. IF CLEAN THINGS WERE HANDLED¹² ON ACCOUNT OF IT,¹³ THEY MUST BE HELD IN SUSPENSE.¹⁴ WOODEN LATTICE WORK¹⁵ IS CLEAN IN RESPECT OF HOLY FOOD, TERUMAH, AND THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING. R. ELIEZER RULED: LOOSELY FASTENED BOARDS¹⁶ ARE UNCLEAR¹⁷ IN THE CASE OF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. IF PRESSED FIGS OF TERUMAH FELL INTO THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING AND WERE TAKEN OUT AND EATEN, THE WATER BECOMES UNCLEAR,¹⁹ AND HE WHO EATS OF THE FIGS INCURS DEATH²⁰ IF THEIR BULK WAS NO LESS THAN THE SIZE OF AN EGG,²¹ IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THEY WERE UNCLEAR OR CLEAN. IF²² THEIR BULK WAS LESS THAN THE SIZE OF AN EGG, THE WATER REMAINS CLEAN BUT²³ HE WHO EATS OF THEM INCURS DEATH. R. JOSE RULED: IF THEY²⁴ WERE CLEAN THE WATER REMAINS CLEAN.²⁵ IF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING PUT IN HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY INTO THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING, HE BECOMES UNCLEAR.²⁶

MISHNAH 4. ALL²⁷ THAT²⁸ REQUIRE IMMERSION IN WATER ACCORDING TO THE RULINGS OF THE TORAH CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO CONSECRATED THINGS, TO TERUMAH, TO COMMON FOOD,²⁹ AND TO SECOND TITHE; AND³⁰ IS FORBIDDEN TO ENTER THE SANCTUARY. AFTER IMMERSION³¹ ONE³⁰ CONVEYS [UNCLEANNESS TO HOLY THINGS AND CAUSES TERUMAH TO BE UNFIT; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: HE³⁰ CAUSES CONSECRATED THINGS AND TERUMAH TO BE INVALID,³² BUT IS PERMITTED UNCONSECRATED FOOD AND SECOND TITHE; AND IF HE ENTERED THE SANCTUARY,³³ WHETHER BEFORE OR AFTER HIS IMMERSION, HE INCURS GUILT.³⁴

MISHNAH 5. ALL³⁵ THAT REQUIRE IMMERSION IN WATER IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE WORDS OF THE SCRIBES CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO CONSECRATED THINGS AND CAUSE TERUMAH TO BE UNFIT, BUT³⁰ ARE PERMITTED UNCONSECRATED FOOD AND SECOND TITHE; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES FORBID³⁰ SECOND TITHE. AFTER IMMERSION³⁶ A MAN IS PERMITTED ALL THESE, AND IF HE ENTERED THE SANCTUARY, WHETHER BEFORE OR AFTER HIS IMMERSION, HE INCURS NO GUILT.

MISHNAH 6. ALL THAT REQUIRE IMMERSION IN WATER, WHETHER ACCORDING TO THE WORDS OF THE TORAH OR ACCORDING TO THE WORDS OF THE SCRIBES, CAUSE³⁷ WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING, THE ASHES OF THE SIN-OFFERING, AND HIM

WHO SPRINKLED THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING,³⁸ TO BECOME UNCLEAN EITHER THROUGH CONTACT OR THROUGH CARRYING; AND ALSO CAUSE THE HYSSOP THAT HAS BEEN RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, THE WATER THAT HAD NOT YET BEEN PREPARED,³⁹ AND AN EMPTY VESSEL THAT IS CLEAN FOR THE SIN-OFFERING TO BECOME UNCLEAN THROUGH CONTACT AND CARRYING; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY BY CONTACT⁴⁰ BUT NOT BY CARRYING.

MISHNAH 7. ANY HYSSOP THAT BEARS A SPECIAL NAME IS INVALID⁴¹ ORDINARY⁴² HYSSOP IS VALID. GREEK HYSSOP, STIBIUM HYSSOP, ROMAN HYSSOP OR WILD HYSSOP IS INVALID. THAT OF UNCLEAN TERUMAH⁴³ IS INVALID; BUT THAT OF CLEAN TERUMAH⁴⁴ SHOULD NOT BE USED FOR SPRINKLING,⁴⁵ THOUGH IF ONE HAD USED IT FOR SPRINKLING IT IS VALID. THE SPRINKLING MUST NOT BE DONE EITHER WITH THE YOUNG SHOOTS OR WITH THE BERRIES.⁴⁶ NO GUILT IS INCURRED [AFTER THE SPRINKLING HAD BEEN DONE] WITH YOUNG SHOOTS FOR ENTERING THE SANCTUARY. R. ELIEZER RULED: NOR IF IT WAS DONE WITH THE BERRIES. THE FOLLOWING ARE REGARDED AS YOUNG SHOOTS: THE STALKS BEFORE THE BUDS HAVE RIPENED.

MISHNAH 8. THE HYSSOP THAT WAS USED FOR SPRINKLING [THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING] IS ALSO FIT FOR CLEANSING THE LEPER.⁴⁷ IF IT⁴⁸ WAS GATHERED FOR FIREWOOD, AND LIQUID⁴⁹ FELL UPON IT, IT MAY BE DRIED AND IT BECOMES FIT.⁵⁰ IF IT⁴⁸ WAS GATHERED FOR FOOD, AND LIQUID⁵¹ FELL UPON IT, EVEN THOUGH IT WAS DRIED, IT IS INVALID.⁵² IF IT⁵³ WAS GATHERED FOR [THE SPRINKLING OF THE WATER OF] THE SIN-OFFERING, IT IS SUBJECT TO THE SAME LAW AS IF IT WERE GATHERED FOR FOOD. SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH, R. JOSE AND R. SIMEON RULED: AS IF IT WERE GATHERED FOR FIREWOOD.

MISHNAH 9. THE PRESCRIBED RITE OF THE HYSSOP IS [THAT THE BUNCH⁵⁴ SHALL CONTAIN THREE STALKS BEARING THREE BUDS.⁵⁵ R. JUDAH RULED: STALKS BEARING THREE BUDS EACH. HYSSOP THAT CONSISTS OF A GROWTH OF THREE STALKS⁵⁶ SHOULD BE CUT UP⁵⁷ AND THEN BOUND TOGETHER. IF THE STALKS WERE SEVERED BUT WERE NOT BOUND TOGETHER, OR IF THEY WERE BOUND TOGETHER BUT WERE NOT SEVERED, OR IF THEY WERE NEITHER SEVERED NOR BOUND TOGETHER, THEY ARE NEVERTHELESS VALID. R. JOSE RULED: THE PRESCRIBED RITE OF THE HYSSOP IS THAT THE BUNCH SHALL CONTAIN THREE⁵⁸ BUDS, BUT ITS REMNANTS⁵⁹ NEED ONLY HAVE TWO, WHILE ITS STUMPS⁶⁰ MAY BE⁶¹ OF THE SMALLEST SIZE.

(1) Zelohith (cf. relevant n. supra IX, I) containing the water and the ashes of the red cow for sprinkling.

(2) Since it is obvious that someone had handled it and this one might have been unclean for the sin-offering, who thus conveyed uncleanness to it.

(3) Which vomits when it drinks.

(4) Because its spittle, mingling with the water, causes invalidity.

(5) supra IX, 3.

(6) Otherwise it is valid, since no man would be likely to uncover it (cf. supra n. 2).

(7) That was already mixed with the ashes; and the same applies to the ashes alone.

(8) From uncleanness, if it is with a corpse under the same roof.

(9) Though other objects are thereby protected (cf. Num. XIX, 25). The protection cannot be extended to the water of the sin-offering since under the same roof as the corpse it cannot be said to be set in a clean place (cf. Num. XIX, 9).

(10) Since the requirement to set in 'a clean place' (cf. prev. n) does not apply, to the water alone.

(11) Sc. when it is neither eaten nor burned.

(12) By a person who became clean (v. foll. n.).

- (13) Sc. after the water that had to be poured away was sprinkled upon him.
- (14) Cf. supra p. 344, n. 11.
- (15) Which is not susceptible to midras or corpse uncleanness.
- (16) Hare'adoth, 'which shake' when one leans on them.
- (17) As middaf.
- (18) Since they might be used to sit or lie upon and thus are susceptible to midras uncleanness, v. supra X, 1.
- (19) On account of its contact with the figs of terumah whose grade of cleanness is deemed to be an uncleanness in respect of the water of the sin-offering.
- (20) Sc. by the hands of Heaven; for eating terumah while his body is unclean on account of the water on it.
- (21) The minimum of foodstuffs required for conveying uncleanness.
- (22) Some edd. omit this sentence to 'death'.
- (23) 'But . . . death' is omitted in some edd. and by Elijah Wilna.
- (24) The pressed figs.
- (25) In his opinion the grade of uncleanness required for Terumah is not regarded as unclean in respect of the water of the sin-offering.
- (26) From the water in the vessel which being 'drawn' has a defiling effect, v. Zab. V, I. This water in turn, being sin-offering water, coming in contact with him is rendered unclean and assumes the restrictions of a 'father of uncleanness' which causes him in turn to be unclean in the first grade.
- (27) Men and vessels.
- (28) Having contracted uncleanness from a 'father of uncleanness' and became a first grade of uncleanness.
- (29) Since a first grade of uncleanness causes even ordinary food to become a second grade of uncleanness.
- (30) In the case of a man. According to Maim. this applies equally in vessels.
- (31) Before the sun had set over him when as a tebul yom he is still subject to a second grade of uncleanness.
- (32) Sc. even consecrated things do not become unclean (and thus capable of conveying uncleanness) but unfit only.
- (33) The Court of the Israelites.
- (34) No guilt, however, is incurred for entering the Court of the Women, though entry into it is forbidden.
- (35) Such as men who ate or drank what is unclean, or vessels that have touched unclean liquids.
- (36) Even before sunset.
- (37) Even after an immersion that was not intended as a preparation for the services of the sin-offering.
- (38) Sc. all who are clean for the sin-offering.
- (39) By mixing it with the ashes of the red cow.
- (40) Do these become unclean.
- (41) For the sprinkling of the water of the sin-offering.
- (42) Lit., 'this'.
- (43) Though it was less in bulk than the size of an egg which, in regard to the water of the sin-offering, is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (44) That was duly prepared for the water of the sin-offering.
- (45) In case the water of the sin-offering might become invalid and thus convey uncleanness to the terumah.
- (46) Of the hyssop.
- (47) Cf. lev. XIV, 4ff.
- (48) The hyssop.
- (49) That was unfit for the water of the sin-offering.
- (50) For use in the sprinkling of the water of the sin-offering. Such use is forbidden while the liquid is upon it since the invalid liquid would cause invalidity to water of the sin-offering with which it mingles.
- (51) v. p. 347, n. 11.
- (52) Because the liquid caused the hyssop to be susceptible to uncleanness and at the same time (since it was unfit for the sin-offering) conveyed uncleanness to it.
- (53) V. p. 347, n. 10.
- (54) With which the sprinkling is done.
- (55) One bud on each stalk.
- (56) Growing from one root.
- (57) Into three separate stalks.

- (58) Some edd. insert 'stalks having three'.
(59) If one was lost in the course of sprinkling.
(60) Which must originally be a handbreadths in length.
(61) If the bunch was worn away from use.

Mishna - Mas. Parah Chapter 12

MISHNAH 1. HYSSOP THAT IS TOO SHORT¹ MAY BE MADE TO SUFFICE¹ WITH A THREAD AND A SPINDLE-REED. IT² IS THEN DIPPED AND BROUGHT UP AGAIN, WHEN ONE GRASPS THE HYSSOP ITSELF AND SPRINKLES WITH IT. R. JUDAH AND R. SIMEON RULED: AS THE SPRINKLING MUST BE DONE WITH THE HYSSOP ITSELF SO MUST THE DIPPING ALSO BE DONE WITH THE HYSSOP ITSELF.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN SPRINKLED³ AND IT IS DOUBTFUL. WHETHER THE WATER CAME FROM THE THREAD OR THE SPINDLE-REED OR THE BUDS, THE SPRINKLING IS INVALID.⁴ IF HE SPRINKLED UPON TWO VESSELS AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER HE SPRINKLED ON BOTH OR WHETHER SOME WATER FROM THE ONE HAD DRIPPED ON TO THE OTHER, IT IS IN VALID. IF A NEEDLE WAS FIXED TO AN EARTHENWARE AND THE MAN SPRINKLED UPON IT, AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER HE SPRINKLED ON THE NEEDLE OR WHETHER SOME WATER DRIPPED ON IT FROM THE EARTHENWARE, HIS SPRINKLING IS INVALID. IF THE FLASK⁵ HAS A NARROW MOUTH, ONE MAY DIP IN⁶ AND DRAW OUT IN THE USUAL WAY.⁷ R. JUDAH RULED: THIS MAY BE DONE ONLY FOR THE FIRST SPRINKLING.⁸ IF THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING WAS DIMINISHED,⁹ ONE MAY DIP ONLY THE TIPS OF THE BUDS AND SPRINKLE, PROVIDED THE HYSSOP DOES NOT ABSORB [ANY OF THE MOISTURE ON THE SIDES OF THE FLASK].¹⁰ IF A MAN INTENDED TO SPRINKLE IN FRONT OF HIM AND HE SPRINKLED BEHIND HIM, OR BEHIND HIM AND HE SPRINKLED IN FRONT OF HIM, HIS SPRINKLING IS INVALID. IF HE INTENDED TO SPRINKLE IN FRONT OF HIM AND HE SPRINKLED TO THE SIDES IN FRONT OF HIM, HIS SPRINKLING IS VALID. IT IS PERMITTED TO SPRINKLE UPON A MAN WITH HIS KNOWLEDGE OR WITHOUT HIS KNOWLEDGE, AND IT IS PERMITTED TO SPRINKLE UPON A MAN AND VESSELS¹¹ EVEN THOUGH THERE ARE A HUNDRED OF THEM.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN INTENDED TO SPRINKLE UPON A THING THAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND HE SPRINKLED UPON ONE THAT WAS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹² THERE IS NO NEED TO DIP AGAIN IF ANY OF THE WATER¹³ STILL REMAINED ON THE HYSSOP.¹⁴ [IF HE INTENDED TO SPRINKLE] UPON A THING THAT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND HE SPRINKLED ON THAT WHICH IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, EVEN THOUGH THERE WAS STILL SOME WATER¹³ ON THE HYSSOP, HE MUST DIP AGAIN.¹⁵ [IF HE INTENDED TO SPRINKLE] UPON A MAN AND HE SPRINKLED UPON A BEAST, HE NEED NOT DIP¹⁵ AGAIN IF ANY OF THE WATER¹³ REMAINED ON THE HYSSOP; BUT [IF HE INTENDED TO SPRINKLE] UPON A BEAST AND HE SPRINKLED UPON A MAN, EVEN THOUGH THERE WAS STILL SOME WATER¹³ ON THE HYSSOP, HE MUST DIP AGAIN. THE WATER THAT DRIPS OFF¹⁶ IS VALID,¹⁷ AND THEREFORE IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS AS THE USUAL WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING.

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE WAS SPRINKLING¹⁸ FROM A WALL-NICHE¹⁹ IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN AND [A MAN WHO WAS SO SPRINKLED UPON]²⁰ ENTERED THE SANCTUARY,²¹ AND THE WATER WAS FOUND TO BE INVALID, HE IS BLAMELESS;²² BUT IF THE SPRINKLING WAS DONE FROM A PRIVATE WALL-NICHE AND [A MAN WHO WAS SO SPRINKLED UPON]²⁰ ENTERED THE SANCTUARY,²¹ AND THE WATER

WAS FOUND TO BE INVALID, HE INCURS THE PENALTY.²³ A HIGH PRIEST, HOWEVER, IS EXEMPT,²⁴ WHETHER THE SPRINKLING UPON HIM WAS DONE FROM A PRIVATE WALL-NICHE OR FROM ONE IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN, FOR A HIGH PRIEST NEVER INCURS A PENALTY FOR ENTERING THE SANCTUARY. [THE PEOPLE] USED TO SLIP BEFORE A CERTAIN WALL-NICHE IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN,²⁵ AND MOREOVER²⁶ THEY TROD²⁷ [ON THAT SPOT] AND DID NOT REFRAIN [FROM ENTERING THE SANCTUARY]. BECAUSE IT WAS LAID DOWN THAT WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING THAT SERVED ITS PURPOSE²⁸ CONVEYED NO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. A CLEAN PERSON MAY HOLD IN HIS SKIRT AN UNCLEAR AXE²⁹ AND SPRINKLE UPON IT;³⁰ AND ALTHOUGH THERE IS ON IT³¹ SUFFICIENT WATER FOR A SPRINKLING HE REMAINS CLEAN.³² OF WHAT QUANTITY MUST THE WATER CONSIST TO BE SUFFICIENT FOR A SPRINKLING? SUFFICIENT FOR THE TOPS OF THE BUDS TO BE DIPPED THEREIN AND FOR THE SPRINKLING TO BE PERFORMED.³³ R. JUDAH RULED: THEY³⁴ ARE REGARDED AS THOUGH THEY WERE ON A HYSSOP OF BRASS.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF THE SPRINKLING WAS DONE WITH UNCLEAR HYSSOP,³⁶ THE WATER BECOMES INVALID, AND THE SPRINKLING IS INVALID IF IT³⁷ WAS OF THE BULK OF AN EGG. IF IT WAS LESS THAN THE BULK OF AN EGG,³⁸ THE WATER REMAINS VALID BUT THE SPRINKLING IS INVALID.³⁹ IT⁴⁰ ALSO CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS⁴¹ TO OTHER HYSSOP,⁴² AND THAT OTHER HYSSOP TO OTHER, EVEN IF THEY BE A HUNDRED.⁴³

MISHNAH 7. IF THE HANDS⁴⁴ OF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN FOR THE WATER OF THE SIN-OFFERING BECAME UNCLEAR, HIS BODY ALSO BECOMES UNCLEAR, AND HE CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO HIS FELLOW, AND HIS FELLOW TO HIS FELLOW, EVEN IF THEY BE A HUNDRED.

MISHNAH 8. SHOULD THE OUTER PART OF A FLAGON⁴⁵ BECOME UNCLEAR,⁴⁶ ITS INNER PART ALSO BECOMES UNCLEAR,⁴⁷ AND IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO AN OTHER FLAGON, AND THE OTHER TO ANOTHER, EVEN IF THEY ARE A HUNDRED. A BELL AND A CLAPPER ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTED.⁴⁸ IN THE CASE OF A SPINDLE USED FOR COARSE MATERIAL, ONE MUST NOT SPRINKLE ON ITS ROD⁴⁹ OR RING,⁴⁹ YET IF IT WAS SO SPRINKLED IT IS VALID; IN A SPINDLE USED FOR FLAX THEY⁵⁰ ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTED. IF A LEATHER COVER OF A COT IS FASTENED TO ITS KNOBS, BOTH⁵¹ ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTED.⁴⁸ THE BASE⁵² DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A CONNECTION⁵³ EITHER IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS⁵⁴ OR CLEANNES.⁵⁵ ALL DRILLED HANDLES OF UTENSILS⁵⁶ ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES.⁵⁷ R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULES: ALSO THOSE⁵⁸ THAT⁵⁹ ARE WEDGED INTO HOLES IN THE UTENSILS.⁶⁰

MISHNAH 9. THE BASKETS OF A PACK-SADDLE,⁶¹ THE BED OF A BARROW,⁶² THE IRON⁶³ CORNER OF A BIER, THE [DRINKING] HORNS OF TRAVELLERS,⁶² A KEY CHAIN,⁶⁴ THE LOOSE STITCHES OF WASHERMEN,⁶⁵ AND A GARMENT STITCHED TOGETHER WITH KIL'AYIM ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES⁶⁶ IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS⁶⁷ BUT NOT IN THAT OF SPRINKLING.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 10. IF THE LID OF A KETTLE IS JOINED TO A CHAIN,⁶⁸ BETH SHAMMAI RULED: THESE⁶⁹ ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTED IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS⁷⁰ BUT NOT IN RESPECT OF SPRINKLING.⁷¹ BETH HILLEL RULED: IF THE KETTLE⁷² WAS SPRINKLED UPON IT IS THE SAME AS IF THE LID⁷³ ALSO WAS SPRINKLED UPON; BUT IF THE LID ONLY⁷³ WAS SPRINKLED UPON IT IS NOT THE SAME AS IF THE KETTLE ALSO⁷² WAS SPRINKLED UPON. ALL⁷⁴ ARE ELIGIBLE TO SPRINKLE, EXCEPT A

TUMTUM,⁷⁵ A HERMAPHRODITE, A WOMAN, AND A CHILD THAT IS WITHOUT UNDERSTANDING. A WOMAN MAY ASSIST [A MAN] WHILE HE SPRINKLES, AND HOLD THE WATER⁷⁶ FOR HIM WHILE HE DIPS AND SPRINKLES. IF SHE HELD HIS HAND, EVEN IF ONLY AT THE TIME OF SPRINKLING,⁷⁷ IT IS INVALID.⁷⁸

MISHNAH 11. IF THE HYSSOP WAS DIPPEL⁷⁹ IN THE DAYTIME AND THE SPRINKLING ALSO WAS DONE ON THE SAME DAY, IT IS VALID.⁸⁰ IF ONE DIPPED IT IN THE DAYTIME AND SPRINKLED AT NIGHT, OR DIPPED AT NIGHT AND SPRINKLED ON THE FOLLOWING DAY, (OR DIPPED IN THE DAYTIME AND SPRINKLED ON THE FOLLOWING DAY),⁸¹ THE SPRINKLING IS INVALID.⁸² [THE MAN HIMSELF], HOWEVER, MAY PERFORM IMMERSION AT NIGHT AND DO THE SPRINKLING ON THE FOLLOWING DAY, FOR SPRINKLING IS NOT ALLOWED⁸³ UNTIL THE SUN IS RISEN;⁸⁴ YET IF ANY OF THESE WAS DONE AS EARLY AS THE RISE OF DAWN IT IS VALID.

- (1) To reach the water of the sin-offering in the flask.
 - (2) Being held by the spindle.
 - (3) The water of the sin-offering.
 - (4) Since the man is under presumptive uncleanness. Only when it is certain that the water came from the hyssop is the sprinkling valid.
 - (5) Containing the water and the ashes of the red cow.
 - (6) The hyssop in the water.
 - (7) One need have no scruples lest the water on the hyssop would be squeezed out in its passage through the narrow neck.
 - (8) But not For a subsequent one when any water that would have been squeezed out from the first might have returned to the flask and tendered its contents invalid.
 - (9) Being insufficient for the proper dipping of the hyssop into it.
 - (10) The requirement being to dip into the water.
 - (11) Simultaneously, by one movement.
 - (12) This is explained presently.
 - (13) Of the sin-offering.
 - (14) From the first dip.
 - (15) The hyssop in the water.
 - (16) Into the flask From the hyssop that was dipped with the intention of sprinkling upon a thing that is insusceptible to uncleanness.
 - (17) For sprinkling.
 - (18) The water with the ashes of the red cow.
 - (19) A special niche with water of sin-offering was provided For the purification of the unclean.
 - (20) Having been unclean and requiring the performance of the rite.
 - (21) Not ascertaining beforehand whether the water was valid.
 - (22) Because, a doubtful condition of uncleanness in a public domain being regarded as clean, he was under no obligation to enquire after the validity of the water.
 - (23) Of a sacrifice. As a doubtful condition of uncleanness in a private domain is deemed to be unclean it was his duty to enquire after the validity of the water before he entered the Sanctuary.
 - (24) If he entered the Sanctuary after he had been sprinkled upon with water that was found to be invalid.
 - (25) On account of the abundance of the water of the sin-offering that was sprinkled there.
 - (26) Though such water would be expected to convey uncleanness
 - (27) Intentionally.
 - (28) Sprinkling.
 - (29) Though it was a 'Father of uncleanness'.
 - (30) Since the skirt which, owing to contact with the axe (cf. prev. n.), becomes only a first grade of uncleanness cannot convey any uncleanness to the man to whom only a 'Father of uncleanness' could convey uncleanness.
 - (31) The axe, after the sprinkling.

- (32) Having served their purpose they no longer convey uncleanness.
- (33) Sc. there must be as much water as to suffice For these as well as for the quantity of water absorbed by the buds.
- (34) The buds.
- (35) Which absorbs no water. Hence the water absorbed is added to what remains on the surface and a smaller quantity (cf. supra n. 2) suffices.
- (36) Sc. unclean for the water of the sin-offering though clean in other respects.
- (37) The hyssop having been gathered For Food (cf. supra XI, 8.)
- (38) The prescribed minimum for conveying uncleanness.
- (39) Since the hyssop was not clean for the sin-offering (cf. supra n. 5).
- (40) The unclean hyssop.
- (41) By contact.
- (42) Rendering consequently unclean him who touches it.
- (43) Rendering it unfit For sprinkling. Since in regard to the water of the sin-offering the conveyance of uncleanness is not limited to the third grade.
- (44) Or even only one hand.
- (45) Containing the water of the sin-offering.
- (46) From unclean liquids.
- (47) Contrary to the rule in other cases (cf. Kel. XXV, 9).
- (48) Both as regards uncleanness and sprinkling. Contact with or sprinkling upon one equally affects the other.
- (49) Alone; since they are not regarded as connected. The sprinkling must be done on the spindle-hook which is the principal part of the instrument.
- (50) Rod and ring.
- (51) Cot and cover.
- (52) On which the cot or a bed stands.
- (53) With the cot or bed.
- (54) If only one contracted uncleanness the other remains clean.
- (55) If one was sprinkled upon the other still remains unclean.
- (56) The handle of a knife, for instance, into the hole of which the blade is inserted and secured.
- (57) With the utensils.
- (58) Handles.
- (59) No hole being drilled in them.
- (60) Are connectives with the utensils.
- (61) That are joined together.
- (62) Consisting of detachable parts.
- (63) And detachable.
- (64) Holding a number of keys.
- (65) Whereby garments are held together and protected against loss.
- (66) The baskets with each other, the parts of the barrow, the iron corner and the bier, the parts of the drinking horns, the stitches and the garments, and the garment stitched together with kil'ayim.
- (67) If one part becomes unclean the other also becomes similarly unclean.
- (68) Which is attached to the kettle.
- (69) The lid and the kettle.
- (70) v. p. 353, n. 20.
- (71) V. p. 353, n. 8.
- (72) Which is the main vessel.
- (73) Which is only subsidiary to the kettle.
- (74) Even the uncircumcised.
- (75) V. Glos.
- (76) Of the sin-offering.
- (77) Much more so if she held it when he was dipping.
- (78) Since, according to Num. XIX, 18, a 'clean man' must perform these services.
- (79) In the water of the sin-offering.

(80) Though there may have been a long interval between the dipping and the sprinkling.

(81) Var. lec. omits.

(82) Cf. ibid. 19.

(83) In the night.

(84) Hence the sprinkling must be performed by day.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING ARE THE THINGS FOR WHICH NO DEFINITE QUANTITY IS PRESCRIBED:¹ THE CORNERS [OF THE FIELD].² FIRST-FRUITS,³ [THE OFFERINGS BROUGHT] ON APPEARING [BEFORE THE LORD AT THE THREE PILGRIM FESTIVALS].⁴ THE PRACTICE OF LOVINGKINDNESS,⁵ AND THE STUDY OF THE TORAH.⁶ THE FOLLOWING ARE THE THINGS FOR WHICH A MAN ENJOYS THE FRUITS IN THIS WORLD WHILE THE PRINCIPAL REMAINS FOR HIM IN THE WORLD TO COME: THE HONOURING OF FATHER AND MOTHER,⁷ THE PRACTICE OF CHARITY, AND THE MAKING OF PEACE BETWEEN A MAN AND HIS FRIEND; BUT THE STUDY OF THE TORAH IS EQUAL TO THEM ALL.⁸

MISHNAH 2. ONE SHOULD NOT MAKE THE AMOUNT OF PE'AH LESS THAN ONE-SIXTIETH⁹ [OF THE ENTIRE CROP]. BUT ALTHOUGH NO DEFINITE AMOUNT IS GIVEN FOR PE'AH,¹⁰ YET EVERYTHING DEPENDS UPON THE SIZE OF THE FIELD, THE NUMBER OF POOR MEN,¹¹ AND THE EXTENT OF THE STANDING CROP.¹²

MISHNAH 3. PE'AH MAY BE GIVEN EITHER AT THE BEGINNING OF THE [REAPING OF THE] FIELD OR AT THE MIDDLE THEREOF.¹³ R. SIMEON SAYS: [THIS IS SO] PROVIDED HE GIVES AT THE END ACCORDING TO THE AMOUNT FIXED.¹⁴ R. JUDAH SAYS: SHOULD HE EVEN LEAVE [FOR THE CONCLUSION OF THE REAPING] ONE STALK, HE CAN RELY ON THIS¹⁵ AS [FULFILLING THE LAW OF] PE'AH; AND IF HE DID NOT DO SO, [THEN EVEN THOSE STALKS LEFT AT THE BEGINNING OR AT THE MIDDLE] ARE TO BE REGARDED AS OWNERLESS PROPERTY.¹⁶

MISHNAH 4. A GENERAL PRINCIPLE HAS BEEN ENJOINED CONCERNING PE'AH: WHATSOEVER IS USED FOR FOOD,¹⁷ AND IS LOOKED AFTER,¹⁸ AND GROWS FROM THE SOIL,¹⁹ AND IS HARVESTED ALTOGETHER,²⁰ AND IS BROUGHT IN FOR STORAGE,²¹ IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF PE'AH. GRAIN²² AND PULSE²³ FALL INTO THIS GENERAL PRINCIPLE.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. AMONG TREES: THE SUMMACH, THE CAROB²⁵ THE NUT, THE ALMOND, THE VINE, THE POMEGRANATE, THE OLIVE AND THE PALM²⁶ ARE SUBJECT TO PE'AH.

MISHNAH 6. ONE CAN ALWAYS GIVE PE'AH;²⁷ AND BE EXEMPT FROM GIVING TITHES²⁸ [FROM IT] UNTIL IT IS FINALLY STACKED.²⁹ OR ONE MAY PRONOUNCE [HIS FIELD] OWNERLESS AND BE EXEMPT FROM GIVING TITHE THEREOF UNTIL IT IS FINALLY STACKED.³⁰ ONE MAY FEED CATTLE, WILD ANIMALS AND BIRDS [OF THE CROP] BEFORE IT IS FINALLY STACKED AND BE EXEMPT FROM TITHES.³¹ HE MAY TAKE FROM THE THRESHING FLOOR AND USE AS SEED AND BE EXEMPT FROM TITHES UNTIL IT IS STACKED.³² SO R. AKIBA. IF A PRIEST OR LEVITE PURCHASE [THE GRAIN OF] A THRESHING FLOOR THE TITHES ARE THEIRS UNLESS THE STACKING HAS TAKEN PLACE.³³ ONE WHO DEDICATED [HIS CROP]³⁴ AND REDEEMS IT [AFTERWARDS] IS BOUND TO GIVE TITHES SO LONG AS THE TREASURER HAD NOT YET FINALLY STACKED IT.

(1) In the Torah; but v. the next Mishnah where Rabbinic tradition fixes the minimum at one-sixtieth.

(2) Lev. XIX, and XXIII, 22 enjoin the owner to leave unreaped the former for the poor and the stranger to gather.

(3) Bikkurim; v. Ex. XXIII, 19; Deut. XXVI, 1-11. These were presented to the priests in the Temple.

(4) Re'ayon; v. Ex. XXIII, 17; Deut. XVI, 16. Biblically, 'every man according to the gift of his hand' (Deut. XVI, 17), but Rabbinic halachah prescribes a ma'ah (a silver coin) as the minimum value of the burnt-offering and two silver coins

- that of the festival offering, v. Hag. 1a. According to Bertinoro, Re'ayon denoted 'appearing' in the Temple, i.e., there is no limit as to the number of times the Israelite may enter the Temple during the three festivals.
- (5) Gemilluth hasadim, a term implying more than mere charity and denoting personal service to all men of all classes.
- (6) Josh. 1, 8.
- (7) Fifth Commandment; Ex. XX, 12, Deut. V, 16.
- (8) The fuller version given in our Prayer Books (v. P.B. p. 5) is based on a Baraita quoted in Shab. 127a.
- (9) But he can, of course, give more.
- (10) V. supra I, 1.
- (11) If the field is large and the poor few, the amount of Pe'ah is determined by the size of the field, and he has to give the minimum of one-sixtieth; if, on the other hand, the field is small and the poor many, it is determined by the number of the poor and is to be increased beyond the barest minimum.
- (12) Pe'ah may not be chosen only of the inferior crop, but from the whole field. עֲנֵבָה usually identified with עֲנֵבָה whence the adopted translation. V. infra VI, 7. Others render: 'according to the piety (of the landowner)'.
- (13) Pe'ah need not necessarily be given at the very end of the reaping.
- (14) Opinion varies as to the precise meaning of this proviso. Maim. maintains that one-sixtieth must be left at the end, irrespective of what he has left before; others interpret R. Simeon's statement to mean that what he leaves at the end must supplement towards the minimum quantity prescribed. The object of the proviso is to counteract a deceitful plea that Pe'ah had been set aside already before. Tosephta and Yerushalmi cite other reasons.
- (15) I.e., the last stalk and that which he gave at the beginning or middle together constitute the Pe'ah.
- (16) If nothing is set aside for Pe'ah at the end, then even that left hitherto is hefker (v. Glos.), and even the rich can acquire possession thereof no less than the poor. In this R. Judah differs from R. Simeon, whereas according to R. Simeon all that he left counts as Pe'ah and is reserved for the poor; but according to It. Judah, if nothing is left as Pe'ah at the end, then the stalks left before are treated as hefker.
- (17) To exclude aftergrowths not fit for human food. And when ye harvest, Lev. XIX, 9 rules out crop not normally cut.
- (18) To exclude hefker, which is already the property of the poor; hence Lev, XIX, 10 can no longer apply to it.
- (19) Mushrooms, which according to the Rabbis, receive their nurture not from the soil, are thus excluded. Lev. XIX, 9 stresses the harvest of your land (soil).
- (20) Not singly as they ripen, as in the case of figs.
- (21) Hence greens and herbs that will not keep are excluded.
- (22) Of this, five species are included: wheat, barley, rye, oats and spelt.
- (23) Such as lentils and peas.
- (24) Because they fulfil the conditions concerning which the general principle was laid down, they are subject to the law of Pe'ah.
- (25) Or Sr. John's bread; cf, Ma'as. I, 3. The 'Aruch (s.v. חֶרֶב) says it takes seventy years for this tree to bear fruit from its planting.
- (26) The eight trees here mentioned in no wise exclude others that fulfil the given conditions, but only those most common in Palestine are enumerated.
- (27) If omitted from the standing corn, the stipulated amount (I, 2) must be given from the corn already cut.
- (28) Tithes are of three kinds: (a) that given to the Levite, who in turn gives a tenth thereof to the priest (Num. XVIII, 26), is called First Tithe (cf. Num. XVIII, 21); (b) that which the owner himself must eat in Jerusalem (Deut. XIV, 23) is known as Second Tithe. The produce could be converted into money for which, plus one quarter of its original value, food was bought and eaten in Jerusalem (Deut. XIV, 26); (c) in the third and sixth year of the seven-year cycle a tithe was taken from the produce and given to the poor. This was known as Poor Man's Tithe, Deut. XIV, 29; XXVI, 12. Tithes are not given from Pe'ah.
- (29) שִׁמְרָה , 'to smoothe, to make level'. The custom was to stack the produce, after the winnowing, in upright piles, broad at the base and thinning towards the top. The 'smoothing' was the final act of making the pile even prior to its being stored. If, however, the giving of the Pe'ah was delayed until after the stacking, the tithes had to be given from it.
- (30) The exemption of hefker from tithes is based on Deut. XIV, 28. A declaration of hefker after the process of stacking, when the duty of tithes had already become incumbent, does not exempt the 'ownerless' produce from tithes. The fear was lest an 'am ha-arez eat thereof under the impression that it had been tithed as soon as it had been finally stacked, Cf. Dem. III, 2.
- (31) He could even snatch an improvised meal for himself since the law of tithe does not become binding prior to the final stacking. His cattle, however, could partake of regular meals therefrom. This is based on a statement in Ma'as. I, 1: 'Whatsoever is not used for food at first but only in its later stage, is not liable to tithes until it has become fit for human food',

(32) In Deut. XIV, 23, and thou shalt eat is used in reference to tithes; that used for seed is therefore excluded. Rabbinic tradition, however, compels also the tithe to be given from seeds. R. Akiba maintains that all seed before stacking is exempt.

(33) Had they purchased the store after the stacking, the tithes would not have been theirs as a penalty for snatching away the 'gifts' which might have been given to other priests and Levites. The custom indulged by some Levites of buying the grain prior to the winnowing in order to make sure of the tithes was condemned by the Rabbis.

(34) Hekdesh (v. Glos.) like hefker was not liable to tithes. Should this redemption take place before the Temple Treasurer had stacked it, the duty falls on the redeemer. Only if the stacking was done when it was still in the possession of the Sanctuary does it become exempt. The point stressed throughout the Mishnah is that the law of tithes comes into force with the stacking.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING SERVE AS DIVIDING-LINES FOR PE'AH:¹ A STREAM, A POOL,² A PRIVATE ROAD,³ A PUBLIC ROAD,⁴ A PUBLIC PATH,⁵ OR A PRIVATE PATH IN CONSTANT USE IN SUMMER AND THE RAINY SEASON, FALLOW LAND, NEWLY-CULTIVATED LAND AND A DIFFERENT SEED.⁶ IF ONE CUT [YOUNG CORN] FOR FODDER, [THE PLOT SO REAPED] SERVES AS A DIVIDING-LINE.⁷ THUS R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT DOES NOT SERVE AS A BOUND FOR PE'AH UNLESS [THIS PLOT USED FOR FODDER] IS RE-PLOUGHED.⁸

MISHNAH 2. IF A WATER CHANNEL MAKES THE CUTTING OF THE CORN [ON EITHER SIDE] IMPOSSIBLE [FROM ITS MIDST],⁹ R. JUDAH SAYS: IT SERVES AS A DIVISION.¹⁰ ANY HILL-TOP THAT CAN BE DUG WITH A HOE,¹¹ ALTHOUGH THE HERD¹² CANNOT PASS OVER IT IN THEIR OUTFIT,¹³ [IS REGARDED AS PART OF THE FIELD] FROM WHICH ONLY ONE PE'AH IS GRANTED.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. ALL [THESE ABOVE ENUMERATED] SERVE AS DIVISIONS IN THE CASE OF SOWN CROPS,¹⁵ BUT IN THE CASE OF TREES NOTHING SAVE A FENCE SERVES AS A DIVISION.¹⁶ SHOULD THE BRANCHES INTERTWINE,¹⁷ THEN [EVEN A FENCE] DOES NOT DIVIDE AND ONE PE'AH IS GRANTED FOR THE WHOLE FIELD.

MISHNAH 4. AS FOR CAROB TREES, THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE IS THAT THEY MUST BE IN SIGHT OF ONE ANOTHER.¹⁸ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: THE CUSTOM PREVAILING IN THE HOUSE OF MY FATHER WAS TO GIVE SEPARATE PE'AH FROM THE OLIVE TREES IN EACH DIRECTION¹⁹ AND [ONE PE'AH] FOR ALL THE CAROB TREES WITHIN SIGHT OF EACH OTHER. R. ELEAZAR SON OF R. ZADOK SAID IN HIS NAME, THAT ALSO FOR THE CAROB TREES THEY HAD IN THE WHOLE CITY²⁰ [ONE PE'AH ONLY WAS GIVEN].

MISHNAH 5. HE WHO SOWS HIS FIELD WITH ONE KIND OF SEED, THOUGH HE MAKES UP OF IT TWO THRESHING-FLOORS, NEED GIVE ONLY ONE PE'AH [FOR THE LOT]. IF HE SOWS IT OF TWO KINDS, THEN EVEN, IF ONLY HE MAKES UP OF IT ONE THRESHING-FLOOR, HE MUST GIVE TWO PE'AHs.²¹ HE WHO SOWS HIS FIELD WITH TWO SPECIES OF WHEAT²² AND HE MAKES UP OF IT ONE THRESHING-FLOOR, HE GIVES ONLY ONE PE'AH; BUT IF TWO THRESHING-FLOORS, HE GIVES TWO PE'AHs.

MISHNAH 6. THE STORY IS TOLD OF R. SIMEON OF MIZPAH²³ THAT HE SOWED ONCE HIS FIELD [WITH TWO DIFFERENT KINDS] AND CAME BEFORE RABBAN GAMALIEL.

THEY BOTH WENT UP TO THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONE²⁴ AND ENQUIRED [THE LAW]. NAHUM THE SCRIBE²⁵ SAID: I HAVE A TRADITION FROM R. ME'ASHA,²⁶ WHO RECEIVED IT FROM ABBA,²⁷ WHO RECEIVED IT FROM THE ZUGOTH,²⁸ WHO RECEIVED IT FROM THE PROPHETS AS AN HALACHAH OF MOSES FROM SINAI,²⁹ THAT A MAN WHO SOWS HIS FIELD WITH TWO KINDS OF WHEAT AND MAKES IT UP INTO ONE THRESHING-FLOOR MUST GIVE ONE PE'AH, IF TWO THRESHING-FLOORS, [HE GIVES] TWO PE'AHs.³⁰

MISHNAH 7. A FIELD REAPED BY GENTILES,³¹ OR ROBBERS, OR WHICH ANTS HAVE BITTEN [THE GRAINS THEREOF AT THE ROOTS]. OR WHICH WIND AND CATTLE HAVE BROKEN DOWN, IS EXEMPT FROM PE'AH.³² IF [THE OWNER] REAPED HALF THEREOF AND ROBBERS THE REMAINING HALF, IT IS EXEMPT FROM PE'AH; FOR THE OBLIGATION OF PE'AH IS IN THE STANDING CORN.³³

MISHNAH 8. IF ROBBERS REAPED HALF AND THE OWNER THE OTHER HALF, HE GIVES PE'AH FROM WHAT HE HAS REAPED. IF HE REAPED HALF AND SOLD THE OTHER HALF, THEN THE PURCHASER MUST GIVE PE'AH FOR THE WHOLE.³⁴ IF HE REAPED HALF AND DEDICATED THE OTHER HALF, THEN HE WHO REDEEMS IT FROM THE TREASURER MUST GIVE PE'AH FOR THE WHOLE.³⁵

(1) From a field divided by these into sections, Pe'ah is given separately from each.

(2) A 'wady', smaller than a stream.

(3) Only four cubits in breadth.

(4) Sixteen cubits.

(5) Much smaller than a road. If used constantly, it is a division.

(6) E.g. a plot growing spelt 'twixt two growing wheat. The length of the last three divisions mentioned must be three turns of the plough at least.

(7) Corn not quite a third of its full growth used to serve as fodder for cattle; hence is not to be regarded as crop from which Pe'ah is due. V. supra I, 4.

(8) The Sages hold that the cutting of fodder is to be regarded as the beginning of the reaping and consequently one Pe'ah for the whole field is to be given. Only when the plot cut for fodder is broken afresh does it indicate its separateness from the rest of the field.

(9) The reaper, standing in mid-stream, is unable to reap the field on either side.

(10) R. Judah opposes the view of the preceding Mishnah where a שְׁלוּלִית (the same as אֶמֶת הַמַּיִם) is held always to serve as a division, regardless of the stipulation here given.

(11) Isa. VII, 25. The criterion is the hoeing; the fact that its height precludes the oxen from passing over it does not serve as a division.

(12) Var. lec.: הַבָּקָר 'the herdsman'.

(13) Pack-saddle and cushions.

(14) It will not be regarded on this account as fallow ground which serves as a division. People will interpret this inability of the oxen or herdsmen to pass over it as a disinclination on their part to dig to-day.

(15) Should even a rock interrupt the even tenure of the plough across the field, it is regarded as a division (J.).

(16) The fence must be at least ten handbreadths in height. Not all trees come under this category, for the following Mishnah prescribes a different rule for the carob and olive trees. Pe'ah was given also from trees.

(17) שֵׁעַר 'hair'; here, the ramifications of a tree; כּוֹתֵשׁ from כָּתַשׁ 'to crush'; here, 'to twine'. This intertwining renders the fence no division as to Pe'ah.

(18) Not even a fence divides as long as, standing near one tree, the other can be seen.

(19) East, west, north and south.

(20) Even when not in sight of one another.

(21) The point stressed is that Pe'ah is given from every kind and not according to quantity.

(22) Even of the same kind but of two different colours, like dark and white. Wheat is in a different category from seed, for here quantity rather than different species decides.

- (23) With the def. article: Josh. XV, 38 (in Judah); XVIII, 26 (in Benjamin); II Kings XXV, 23. In Hos. V, 1 Mizpah appears without the def. article.
- (24) V. Mid. v, 4; Sanh. XI, 2. One of the five chambers in the Temple Court, north of the Court of the Israelites. Named גִּזְיֵת either because of its hewn stone, or because it was 'cut off' (separate) from the other chambers, or on account of it being the seat of the Sanhedrin.
- (25) לִבֵּלָר from the Latin 'libellarius'.
- (26) The only reference to this Palestinian Tanna who lived in the time of Hillel's descendants.
- (27) Or '(his) father'. As a praenomen the reference here is probably to Abba, a contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zakkai (v. J.E. I, s.v.).
- (28) For a century and a half—from the time of Jose b. Joezer (c. 160 B.C.E.) to the time of Hillel and Shammai, there were two chiefs of the Sanhedrin, a President (נָשִׂיא) and a Vice-President (סֵבִיב). V. Aboth I, 4 — 10; Hag. II, 2.
- (29) A formula denoting an ancient established tradition not derived from the Written Law.
- (30) This tradition makes quantity the decisive factor in the giving of Pe'ah and contradicts the view of the preceding Mishnah which made the different species of wheat the criterion.
- (31) Some versions instead of 'gentiles' read 'Cutheans', a sect of Samaritans. This is due to censorial influence. The Mishnah refers to non-Jews who reaped their own field; for had they been in the employ of Jews, Pe'ah would have been due.
- (32) Even if the produce reaped had been returned (v. supra I, 6). The principle to bear in mind is that וּבְקִצְרָכֶם (Lev. XXIII, 22) excludes Pe'ah from any reaping not done by or for the owner.
- (33) Since the Law of Pe'ah comes into force with the cutting of the standing corn, it does not apply when reaped by someone other than the owner.
- (34) For the Pe'ah due from the first reaping is included in that part of the field subsequently bought by the purchaser.
- (35) Likewise the dedication cannot declare 'holy' the Pe'ah already due from the moment of the first reaping; accordingly the redeemer must return to the poor their due. In supra I, 6 the 'dedication' took place before Pe'ah was due, i.e., prior to any reaping whatsoever.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IN THE CASE OF PLOTS OF CORN¹ BETWEEN OLIVE TREES, BETH SHAMMAI SAY ONE MUST GIVE PE'AH FROM EACH PLOT,² BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN THAT FOR ALL [THE PLOTS] ONE PE'AH IS GIVEN. BETH SHAMMAI AGREE, HOWEVER, THAT IF THE ENDS OF THE ROWS BORDER ON ONE ANOTHER, ONE PE'AH IS GRANTED FROM ONE PLOT FOR THE WHOLE.³

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE GIVES A STRIPED APPEARANCE⁴ TO HIS FIELD AND LEAVES BEHIND SOME MOIST STALKS,⁵ R. AKIBA SAID, HE GIVES PE'AH FROM EVERY PATCH.⁶ BUT THE SAGES SAY: FROM ONE PATCH ONLY FOR ALL. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, AGREE WITH R. AKIBA THAT ONE WHO SOWS DILL⁷ OR MUSTARD SEED IN THREE PLACES MUST GIVE PE'AH FROM EACH PLACE.⁸

MISHNAH 3. HE WHO PLUCKS⁹ FRESH ONIONS FOR THE MARKET AND LEAVES THE DRY ONES [IN THE GROUND] FOR LATER STORAGE, MUST GIVE PE'AH FROM EACH SEPARATELY.¹⁰ THE SAME APPLIES TO BEANS¹¹ AND TO A VINEYARD. IF HE, HOWEVER, ONLY THINS THEM OUT,¹² THEN HE GIVES [PE'AH] FROM THE REMAINDER ACCORDING TO THE QUANTITY OF THAT WHICH HE LEFT. HE THAT PLUCKS UP FROM ONE PLACE,¹³ GIVES FROM THE REMAINDER FOR THE WHOLE.

MISHNAH 4. SEED ONIONS¹⁴ ARE LIABLE TO PE'AH, BUT R. JOSE EXEMPTS THEM.¹⁵ IN THE CASE OF PLOTS OF ONIONS [GROWING] BETWEEN VEGETABLES, R. JOSE SAYS: PE'AH MUST BE GIVEN FROM EACH [PLOT].¹⁶ BUT THE SAGES SAY: FROM ONE [PLOT] FOR ALL.

MISHNAH 5. [TWO] BROTHERS WHO HAVE DIVIDED [AN INHERITANCE] MUST GIVE [TWO] PE'AHs.¹⁷ IF THEY AFTERWARDS AGAIN BECOME PARTNERS [IN THE WHOLE POSSESSION]. THEY NEED ONLY GIVE ONE PE'AH.¹⁸ TWO WHO PURCHASE A TREE¹⁹ GIVE ONE PE'AH. IF ONE BUYS THE NORTHERN SECTION THEREOF AND THE OTHER ITS SOUTHERN PART, EACH MUST GIVE PE'AH SEPARATELY. HE WHO SELLS THE TREE-STALKS IN HIS FIELD²⁰ MUST GIVE PE'AH FROM EACH STALK. R. JUDAH SAID: THIS IS ONLY WHEN THE OWNER OF THE FIELD LEFT NOTHING [FOR HIMSELF].²¹ BUT IF HE DID LEAVE AUGHT FOR HIMSELF, HE GIVES ONE PE'AH FOR THE WHOLE.²²

MISHNAH 6. R. ELIEZER SAYS: A PIECE OF GROUND, ONE FOURTH OF A KAB²³ IN SIZE IS SUBJECT TO PE'AH. R. JOSHUA SAYS: IT MUST [BE LARGE ENOUGH] TO PRODUCE TWO SE'AHs.²⁴ R. TARFON MAINTAINS THAT IT MUST BE SIX HANDBREADTHS BY SIX.²⁵ R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA²⁶ SAYS: [IT MUST BE LARGE ENOUGH] FOR THE SICKLE TO CUT AT LEAST TWO HANDFULS.²⁷ THE HALACHAH IS ACCORDING TO HIS WORDS. R. AKIBA SAYS: EVEN THE TINIEST PLOT IS LIABLE TO PE'AH AND THE FIRST-FRUITS,²⁸ AND [IS SUFFICIENT] FOR THE WRITING OF THE PROZBUL,²⁹ AND ALSO TO ACQUIRE THROUGH IT MOVABLE PROPERTY³⁰ BY MONEY, BY DEED OF SALE, OR BY A CLAIM BASED ON UNDISTURBED POSSESSION.³¹

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN ON THE POINT OF DYING³² ASSIGNED HIS PROPERTY IN WRITING [TO ANOTHER]. AND HE RETAINED ANY LAND, HOWEVER SMALL,³³ HE RENDERS HIS GIFT VALID; BUT IF HE RETAINS NO LAND WHATSOEVER, HIS GIFT IS NOT VALID.³⁴ HE WHO ASSIGNED IN WRITING HIS PROPERTY TO HIS CHILDREN, AND HE ASSIGNED TO HIS WIFE IN WRITING ANY PLOT OF LAND, HOWEVER SMALL, SHE THEREBY FORFEITS³⁵ HER KETHUBAH. R. JOSE SAYS: IF SHE ACCEPTED [SUCH AN ASSIGNMENT] EVEN THOUGH HE DID NOT ASSIGN IT TO HER IN WRITING. SHE FORFEITS HER KETHUBAH.³⁶

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN ASSIGNED IN WRITING HIS POSSESSIONS TO HIS SLAVE, HE THEREBY BECOMES A FREEDMAN.³⁷ IF HE, HOWEVER, RESERVED FOR HIMSELF ANY IMMOVABLE PROPERTY, HOWEVER SMALL, HE DOES NOT BECOME A FREEDMAN.³⁸ R. SIMEON SAYS: HE BECOMES A FREEDMAN UNDER ALL CONDITIONS,³⁹ UNLESS [THE MASTER] SAYS: BEHOLD, ALL MY GOODS ARE GIVEN TO SO-AND-SO MY SLAVE, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF ONE TEN-THOUSANDTH PART OF THEM.⁴⁰

(1) Garden beds ploughed and sown with seed between the trees and arranged in square shapes in the form of bricks. Olive trees are specifically mentioned to teach that though liable to Pe'ah (II, 4) they do not, according to Beth Hillel, act as divisions between the grain plots. Others take מלבנות to refer to the light (white) colour of the grain.

(2) Since the corn of each row does not touch that of the other, each plot acts as a separate unit for Pe'ah.

(3) Since the entire field is then regarded as one, regardless of the intervening plots. (Cf. supra II, 4 in reference to the carob trees whose branches intertwined.)

(4) Each patch is reaped separately as soon as its corn is ready for cutting, a process the effect of which is to give a speckled appearance to the field. The more manured parts would, of course, ripen first.

(5) Those still unripe and not ready for cutting.

(6) When he later proceeds to cut the remaining stalks; for each patch must be regarded as a distinct unit.

(7) Dill is an 'umbelliferous, annual, yellow-flowered herb' (Concise Oxford Dictionary).

(8) Each patch is rendered a separate unit for Pe'ah, since the normal practice is not to have more than one plot of these in one field. Dill and mustard seed are subject to Pe'ah, though the general rule is to exempt vegetables (v. supra I, 4), since they are kept for seed.

(9) מחריק the act of removing at least three trees growing side by side. Another explanation is to divide the field's products into portions, some for storing and others for the market.

- (10) Different objects in view convert the onions, as it were, into two kinds. Supra II, 5.
- (11) Cf. Kel. III, 2.
- (12) מִדֵּל is explained as the act of removing one or two olive tree seeds to allow the others crowded together more 'breathing-space'. Those seeds removed to make room for the others are not subject to Pe'ah, since their removal cannot be regarded as the beginning of reaping.
- (13) יָד, 'place'. Maim. explains it to mean that he reserved special parts of the field respectively for storage purposes and for the market. The Bertinoro explains מִזֵּהָת יָד 'If he uprooted some of the onions for the same purpose for which he leaves the rest (i.e., either for storage or for sale)'.
- (14) Lit., 'the roots of onions'.
- (15) Onions left in the ground too long become unfit to eat and therefore not subject to Pe'ah.
- (16) Since this is not the usual practice, each plot must be regarded as a different unit, cf. supra II, 5.
- (17) Each from his own portion.
- (18) Since each has a right in the whole field, the number of owners makes no difference.
- (19) Of those trees mentioned in I, 5.
- (20) Stalks or tree-trunks from which Pe'ah is due. Cf. Kil. I, 8. Since he does not sell with the stalks the soil on which they grow, there is no connecting link to make them all of one 'kind'.
- (21) Also provided that the owner did not begin to reap the field prior to selling it, for in that case his would have been the duty of giving one Pe'ah for the whole (cf. II, 8).
- (22) R. Judah elucidates the opinion of the first authority quoted anonymously in the Mishnah, without in any way differing from him.
- (23) Approximately 10 1/2 X 10 cubits (Bert.).
- (24) Twelve kabs' space or forty-eight times the size required by R. Eleazar; R. Joshua stresses the produce rather than size of soil.
- (25) One handbreadth equals four fingerbreadths (circa. 9 1/3 centimetres). R. Tarfon measures by distance instead of by dry measure. His measure equals one cubit or six handbreadths.
- (26) A Tanna of the First Generation (c. 10-80 C.E.).
- (27) Lit., 'to cut and repeat'. Reapers usually cut a handful at a time, cf. Ps. CXXIX, 7. If there is sufficient for two cuttings, the law of Pe'ah is binding.
- (28) Ex. XXIII, 19. The word אֲדָמָתָךְ is there mentioned and refers to wheat and barley. The stipulation regarding first-fruits, that there should be sixteen cubits soil round the tree — the space required for its proper nurture, applies only to fruits of the tree (Bert.).
- (29) Explained as an abbreviation of GR. (before the council). A declaration made in court by the creditor to the effect that the operation of the law of the Sabbatical year (Deut. XV, 2) shall not apply to the loan transacted. V. Sheb. x, 3 and Git. (Sonc. ed.) p. 148, n. 4. The 'Prozbul' could only be drawn up when the debtor possessed immovable property. Of this, even the smallest amount sufficed in regarding the debt as mortgaged in a Court of Law, the principle being that the law of defrauding does not apply to immovable property, v. Sheb. X, 6.
- (30) Lit., 'property that has no security'. Movable goods cannot be resorted to by the creditor in the case of non-payment.
- (31) Usucaption. The legally fixed period is three years and with it there must be a plea of purchase or any other mode of legal acquisition. v. B.B. 28a. Movable property is generally acquired by the purchaser 'drawing' it to himself (Meshikah, v. Glos.). But the tiniest piece of immovable property acquired by means of money, writ, or usucaption effects title to any movable property brought together along with it.
- (32) Lit., 'one that lies sick'.
- (33) Thus indicating that the assignment was not prompted by thoughts of death, with the result that he cannot retract from the gift on his recovery. Bertinoro calls attention to the fact that קֶרְקַע, (land, immovable property) mentioned in this and the following Mishnah, does not refer specifically to immovable property; for even the minimum amount of movable goods is included in this term. The word קֶרְקַע is used here since it is the sine qua non of Pe'ah, Bikkurim and Prozbul mentioned in the Mishnah preceding.
- (34) Had he not anticipated death, he would not have left himself penniless; his recovery. therefore, revokes the validity of his gift.
- (35) The implication is that she prefers to be regarded among the heirs of her husband rather than demand her rights under her marriage settlement, the kethubah (v. Glos.).

(36) She cannot afterwards retract and claim it.

(37) Since the slave is part of the master's possessions, he becomes owner of himself, too. A more correct reading, which not all versions have, is 'all his possessions'.

(38) Perhaps the slave is included in the part reserved for himself; if so, then the entire gift is nullified, since a slave has no legal right of possession. It is only when the master explicitly says: 'I give thee thyself and my property', that the slave becomes free, even if the owner still reserves aught for himself.

(39) Whether the master possessed naught else beside the slave and the portion reserved for himself, in which case the assignment of his possessions must refer to the slave; or whether he had other goods besides the portion reserved for himself, the slave becomes free. R. Simeon wishes to stress that the modification made in the assignment afterwards by no means invalidates the emancipation of the slave.

(40) Since this fraction is not specified, it may easily refer to the slave, though he be worth ever so much more.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. PE'AH IS GIVEN FROM [THE CROP] STILL DIRECTLY CONNECTED WITH THE SOIL,¹ BUT IN THE CASE OF HANGING VINE-BRANCHES² AND THE DATE-PALM, THE OWNER BRINGS DOWN [THE FRUIT] AND DISTRIBUTES IT AMONG THE POOR.³ R. SIMEON SAYS: THE SAME APPLIES TO SMOOTH NUT TREES.⁴ EVEN IF NINETY-NINE [OF THE POOR]⁵ URGE DISTRIBUTION [BY THE OWNER] AND ONE ONLY IS [IN FAVOUR] OF INDIVIDUAL SNATCHING, THIS LATTER IS LISTENED TO,⁶ SINCE HE SPOKE IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE HALACHAH.

MISHNAH 2. BUT IT IS OTHERWISE WITH HANGING VINE-BRANCHES AND PALM TREES;⁷ FOR EVEN IF NINETY-NINE URGE INDIVIDUAL SNATCHING AND ONE POOR MAN PRESSES FOR DISTRIBUTION,⁸ THE LATTER IS LISTENED TO, SINCE HE SPOKE ACCORDING TO THE HALACHAH.

MISHNAH 3. IF [A POOR MAN] TOOK SOME OF THE PE'AH [ALREADY COLLECTED] AND CAST IT OVER THE REMAINDER [NOT YET COLLECTED],⁹ HE THEREBY FORFEITS THE WHOLE.¹⁰ IF HE FELL DOWN UPON IT,¹¹ OR SPREAD HIS CLOAK OVER IT,¹² IT IS TAKEN AWAY FROM HIM.¹³ THE SAME APPLIES TO GLEANINGS,¹⁴ AND THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF.¹⁵

MISHNAH 4. [THE POOR] MAY NOT REAP PE'AH WITH SCYTHES OR TEAR IT UP WITH SPADES, SO THAT THEY MIGHT NOT STRIKE AT ONE ANOTHER [WITH THESE IMPLEMENTS].¹⁶

MISHNAH 5. THRICE A DAY [THE POOR] MAKE A SEARCH:¹⁷ MORNING,¹⁸ NOON,¹⁹ AND SUNSET.²⁰ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS, THESE [TIMES] WERE SET LEST THE POOR SEARCH LESS OFTEN.²¹ ACCORDING TO R. AKIBA: THESE WERE SET LEST [THEY SEARCH] MORE OFTEN.²² [THE MEN] OF BETH NAIM²³ USED TO REAP [THEIR CROPS] WITH THE AID OF A ROPE,²⁴ AND LEFT PE'AH AT THE END OF EACH FURROW.

MISHNAH 6. IF A GENTILE REAPED HIS FIELD AND BECAME AFTERWARDS A PROSELYTE, HE IS EXEMPT FROM [LEAVING] GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF AND PE'AH.²⁵ R. JUDAH DECLARES HIM LIABLE TO LEAVE THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF SINCE THAT BECOMES DUE AT THE TIME OF THE SHEAF-BINDING.²⁶

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN DEDICATED STANDING CORN [TO THE TEMPLE]. AND REDEEMED IT WHILE IT WAS YET STANDING CORN, HE IS LIABLE [TO GIVE THE POOR MAN'S GIFTS].²⁷ [IF HE DEDICATED] SHEAVES AND REDEEMED THEM WHILST THEY WERE YET SHEAVES, HE IS ALSO LIABLE [TO RENDER THE GIFTS].²⁸ [IF HE DEDICATED] STANDING CORN AND REDEEMED IT [WHEN IT WAS ALREADY IN] SHEAVES, HE IS EXEMPT,²⁹ SINCE AT THE TIME WHEN IT BECAME LIABLE [AS STANDING CORN]. IT WAS EXEMPT [BY BEING DEDICATED].

MISHNAH 8. SIMILARLY IF ONE DEDICATED HIS HARVESTED PRODUCTS PRIOR TO THE STAGE WHEN THEY ARE SUBJECT TO TITHES³⁰ AND REDEEMED THEM AFTERWARDS, THEY ARE LIABLE³¹ [TO THE GIFTS]. IF [HE DEDICATED THEM] WHEN THEY HAD ALREADY BECOME SUBJECT TO TITHES AND REDEEMED THEM, THEY ARE ALSO LIABLE [TO THE GIFTS].³² IF HE DEDICATED THEM BEFORE THEY HAD RIPENED, AND THEY BECAME RIPE WHILE IN THE POSSESSION OF THE [TEMPLE] TREASURER, AND HE AFTERWARDS REDEEMED THEM, THEY ARE EXEMPT, SINCE AT THE TIME WHEN THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN LIABLE, THEY WERE EXEMPT.³³

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE COLLECTED PE'AH AND SAID: THIS IS FOR SUCH-AND-SUCH A POOR MAN',³⁴ THEN R. ELIEZER SAYS HE HAS THUS ACQUIRED IT FOR HIM.³⁵ THE SAGES SAY: HE MUST GIVE IT TO THE POOR MAN HE FIRST COMES ACROSS.³⁶ GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF AND THE PE'AH OF GENTILES ARE SUBJECT TO TITHES,³⁷ UNLESS HE [THE GENTILE] HAD DECLARED THEM OWNERLESS.³⁸

MISHNAH 10. WHAT CONSTITUTES GLEANINGS?³⁹ THAT WHICH FALLS DOWN DURING THE REAPING. IF WHILE HE WAS REAPING, HE GRASPED A HANDFUL OR PLUCKED A FISTFUL, AND THEN A THORN PRICKED HIM, AND WHAT HE HAD IN HIS HAND FELL TO THE GROUND, IT STILL BELONGS TO THE OWNER.⁴⁰ [THAT WHICH DROPS FROM] INSIDE THE HAND OR THE SICKLE [BELONGS] TO THE POOR,⁴¹ BUT [THAT WHICH FALLS FROM] THE BACK OF THE HAND OR THE SICKLE [BELONGS] TO THE OWNER.⁴² [ANYTHING FALLING OUT OF] THE TOP OF THE HAND OR SICKLE,⁴³ R. ISHMAEL SAYS, BELONGS TO THE POOR;⁴⁴ BUT R. AKIBA SAYS, IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 11. [GRAIN FOUND IN] ANT-HOLES⁴⁶ WHILE THE CORN IS STILL STANDING⁴⁷ BELONGS TO THE OWNER;⁴⁸ AFTER THE REAPERS [HAD PASSED OVER THEM]⁴⁹ THOSE [FOUND LYING] UPPERMOST⁵⁰ [IN THE ANT-HOLES BELONG] TO THE POOR, BUT [THOSE FOUND] BENEATH⁵¹ [BELONG] TO THE OWNER. R. MEIR SAYS: EVERYTHING BELONGS TO THE POOR;⁵² FOR GLEANINGS ABOUT WHICH THERE IS ANY DOUBT ARE REGARDED AS GLEANINGS.

(1) The Law: 'Thou shalt leave it to the poor and the stranger' (Lev. XIX, 10) implies that the Pe'ah must be left to the poor to seize for themselves while it is still joined to the ground.

(2) Branches of the vine twined to an espalier.

(3) Every caution must be taken to obviate any risk to the poor during their gathering. 'Distribution' is stressed, because the owner is precluded from giving the Pe'ah to a poor relative or to the first poor man who chances to pass by the field.

(4) Smooth nut trees, being free from joints or protuberances are all the more difficult to climb.

(5) This refers to the first clause of the Mishnah.

(6) Though his claim might be weakened by the fact that he is stronger or more voracious than the other poor and likely to obtain more of the Pe'ah.

(7) In whose case the Pe'ah is given after the fruit has been plucked by the owner, as stated' in the preceding Mishnah.

(8) Though he may be weakest of the poor and his claim construed as due to the fear lest he receive little Pe'ah, his view must be upheld.

(9) Under the impression that he has in this wise gained possession of the rest; though legally, this act by no means effects a title, v. B.M. 10b.

(10) Even the Pe'ah he had gathered; this is a punishment for his greed.

(11) The law which enables a man to claim possession of things found within his four cubits, applies only to alleys adjoining open places or short cuts to public roads; not to fields owned by others. Moreover, by falling across the Pe'ah, his intention seems to have been to acquire possession by the act of falling and not by the law of אמות ד (B.M. 10aff.).

(12) Either as an assertion of possession or to hide the Pe'ah from the view of the other poor.

(13) From our text it would seem, that with the exception of the first instance, only the Pe'ah over which he fell or spread his cloak is taken away from him, but that he is allowed to retain that gathered in the ordinary way. According to Maim., however, it would seem that in all cases is the fine imposed on him by taking away even the Pe'ah he had already gathered. (So Tosaf. Y.T.).

(14) V. infra 10.

(15) V. infra V, 8.

(16) So great might the throng of poor be, that in their eagerness to gather they might accidentally strike one another with their sickles and spades; or some quarrels might easily break out between them and these implements be improvised as weapons.

(17) אֲבֵעִינָה, 'searchings'. Another rendering is 'appearings'. The translation, accordingly, would be: 'Thrice a day does the owner appear in his 'field to attract the poor to come'. The word has also been connected with הַמְבֵּעָה (B.K.I., 1) and the following translation effected: 'Thrice daily is the crop of Pe'ah removed from the field'. Cf. T.f. IV, 3.

(18) To enable poor nursing mothers to come, whilst the children are still asleep.

(19) So that young children, awake by now, assist their poor parents in the search.

(20) To enable the old and the infirm, whose pace is of necessity slow, to obtain their share before the day passes.

(21) In order to afford an equal opportunity for all poor to come.

(22) Probably so as not to take up the time of the owner unduly.

(23) Either the town mentioned in Num. XXXII, 3, or the name of a family. It has been identified by some with the modern Nimrin in Transjordan. Others explain it as a field cultivated in irregular strips and patches (cf. supra III, 2).

(24) A rope was tied around the standing corn in a straight line and the reaping went on till the end of the measuring line. This generous practice is here held up for commendation for it enabled the poor to gather at the end of each furrow, instead of waiting patiently for the very end of the reaping. Other explanations have also been offered. The people of Beth Namer used to divide the field into three portions with a rope, a portion being reaped at each of the three searches, (v. n. 1 supra); the idea being that the three kinds of poor for whom provision was made do not encroach upon one another. Var lec.: יָמִים, 'they made the poor to gather'.

(25) The phrase 'and when ye reap' (Lev. XXIII, 22) in reference to Gleanings and Pe'ah rules out non-Jews. In speaking of the Forgotten Sheaf, the word is also 'thy reaping' (Deut. XXIV, 19); hence a proselyte is exempt from giving the 'poor man's gifts' if the reaping took place before his conversion.

(26) When he has already become a Jew, upon whom all obligations are due.

(27) The law being binding as long as the corn is rooted in the soil, regardless of the change of ownership that took place in the interval.

(28) Even the Forgotten Sheaf (supra IV, 6); for Gleanings and Pe'ah automatically become due with the first reaping.

(29) The same word 'thy reaping' (Deut. XXIV, 19) that excludes non-Jews also excludes all Temple property from gifts to the poor and tithes. R. Judah would no doubt disagree with the Sages here, too, as he does in the case of the non-Jew who becomes a proselyte after the reaping.

(30) At the time when they were finally stacked (supra I, 6). Had they been finally stacked by the Treasurer they would be exempt from tithes. (V. Ma'as I, 2 for the times when the various fruits became subject to tithes). By 'Tithes' is understood the Heave-offering, the First (or Levitic) Tithe and the Second Tithe, and the Poor Man's Tithe in the third and sixth years of the seven years' cycle.

(31) Since they ripen in his possession.

(32) One cannot dedicate the property of another, and the tithes were already virtually the property of the poor prior to the dedication.

(33) Temple property was exempt from tithes and gifts and by becoming ripe when still in the possession of the Temple, the law does not apply to them at all.

(34) A man not poor himself, i.e., a man possessing more than two hundred zuz, who wishes to acquire the Pe'ah for a poor friend.

(35) Because he could easily have declared all his possession 'ownerless' and thus rendered himself qualified to get the Pe'ah for himself; and consequently he can acquire it for another.

(36) The Sages do not admit the argument advanced by R. Eliezer (v. B.M. 9b). But if the poor man for whom he had collected passes by first, it is given to him.

(37) The law of tithes does not apply to the gifts of the poor; but since a non-Jew is exempt from tithes, the gifts of the poor obtained from his field are not treated as such and any Jew who acquires them must set aside tithes.

(38) Ownerless property is exempt from dues.

(39) Lev. XIX, 9.

(40) That which drops accidentally out of his hand is not subject to 'Gleanings'. The Bible stresses 'the gleaning of thy reaping' (Lev. XXIII, 22), thus precluding any accidental falling, such as the pricking of a thorn.

(41) After being within the hand, its falling out is not considered as accidental.

(42) This is evidently a pure accident.

(43) His fist is full to capacity and the grains that fall are those between his fingers.

(44) R. Ishmael regards the tops of his fingers as part of the hand (v. supra n. 6).

(45) R. Akiba regards the tops of the fingers as the back of the hand, hence the falling is accidental.

(46) Ants usually bring the grain into their holes.

(47) prior to the reaping

(48) While the corn is yet uncut, the poor have no claim.

(49) The ants had probably gathered the grains from the gleanings.

(50) I.e., grain still fresh and whitish in appearance (Bert.).

(51) The grain showing signs of staleness in appearance — an even better proof that the grains had been stored in these ant-holes for some considerable time before the reaping.

(52) Even the grain found below, for some rotten grains are found even among corn freshly cut. What assurance is there that these have not been brought even after the reaping had commenced or finished?

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF A HEAP OF CORN WAS PLACED [ON PART OF A FIELD] FROM WHICH GLEANINGS HAD NOT YET BEEN COLLECTED,¹ WHATEVER TOUCHES THE GROUND BELONGS TO THE POOR.² IF THE WIND SCATTERED THE SHEAVES,³ ONE ESTIMATES THE AMOUNT OF GLEANINGS THE FIELD WOULD HAVE YIELDED AND GIVES THAT TO THE POOR.⁴ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: ONE MUST GIVE TO THE POOR THE USUAL AMOUNT THAT FALLS [AT THE TIME OF REAPING].⁵

MISHNAH 2. IF THE TOP OF A SINGLE EAR OF CORN [THAT ESCAPED THE SICKLE] AFTER THE REAPING⁶ TOUCHES THE STANDING CORN, IF IT CAN BE CUT WITH THE STANDING CORN, IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER;⁷ BUT IF NOT, IT IS THE PROPERTY OF THE POOR. IF AN EAR OF CORN OF GLEANINGS BECAME MIXED UP WITH THE STACKED CORN, [THE OWNER] MUST TITHE ONE EAR OF CORN AND GIVE THAT TO HIM [THE POOR].⁸ R. ELIEZER SAID: HOW CAN THIS POOR MAN GIVE IN EXCHANGE SOMETHING THAT HAD NOT YET BECOME HIS?⁹ NO; [THE OWNER] MUST TRANSFER TO THE POOR MAN THE OWNERSHIP OF THE WHOLE STACK¹⁰ AND THEN TITHE AN EAR OF CORN AND GIVE IT TO HIM.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. ONE SHOULD NOT [IN SOWING] MIX INFERIOR SEEDS [WITH THE REST OF THE GRAIN].¹² THUS R. MEIR. THE SAGES PERMIT IT, BECAUSE IT IS STILL POSSIBLE [FOR THE POOR TO GET THEIR PROPER DUE].¹³

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN OF PROPERTY¹⁴ WAS TRAVELLING ABOUT FROM PLACE TO PLACE AND HAPPENED TO BE IN NEED OF TAKING GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF, PE'AH OR THE POOR MAN'S TITHE,¹⁵ HE MAY TAKE THEM; AND ON HIS RETURN HOME, HE MUST PAY [FOR THE AMOUNT GATHERED]. SO R. ELIEZER. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, SAY: HE WAS A POOR MAN AT THAT TIME [AND SO HE NEED

MAKE NO RESTITUTION].

MISHNAH 5. HE THAT MAKES AN EXCHANGE WITH THE POOR,¹⁶ [WHAT THEY GIVE IN EXCHANGE] FOR HIS IS EXEMPT [FROM TITHES].¹⁷ BUT WHAT [HE GIVES IN EXCHANGE] FOR THAT OF THE POOR IS SUBJECT [TO TITHES].¹⁸ TWO¹⁹ WHO LEASE A FIELD ON A TENANCY²⁰ MUST GIVE, EACH TO THE OTHER, HIS DUE OF THE POOR MAN'S TITHE.²¹ ONE²² WHO UNDERTAKES TO REAP A FIELD MUST NOT TAKE GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF, PE' AH OR THE POOR MAN'S TITHE.²³ R. JUDAH SAID: WHEN IS THIS SO? WHEN HE RENTS FROM THE OWNER ON THE TERMS OF [PAYING] A HALF, THIRD OR QUARTER²⁴ [OF THE CROP]; BUT [IF THE OWNER] HAD STIPULATED WITH HIM THAT: 'A THIRD OF WHAT THOU REAPEST IS THINE',²⁵ THEN HE IS PERMITTED TO TAKE GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF AND PE'AH, BUT NOT THE POOR MAN'S TITHE.²⁶

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE SELLS A FIELD THE VENDOR IS PERMITTED²⁷ [TO GATHER THE DUES OF THE POOR]. BUT NOT THE PURCHASER. A MAN MAY NOT HIRE A LABOURER ON THE CONDITION THAT THE SON [OF THE LABOURER] SHOULD GATHER THE GLEANINGS AFTER HIM.²⁸ ONE WHO PREVENTS THE POOR TO GATHER, OR ALLOWS ONE BUT NOT ANOTHER, OR HELPS ONE OF THEM [TO GATHER]. IS DEEMED TO BE A ROBBER OF THE POOR. CONCERNING SUCH A ONE HATH IT BEEN SAID: REMOVE NOT THE LANDMARK OF THOSE THAT COME UP.²⁹

MISHNAH 7. A SHEAF WHICH THE LABOURERS HAD FORGOTTEN BUT NOT THE LANDLORD, OR WHICH THE LANDLORD FORGOT BUT NOT THE LABOURERS;³⁰ OR A SHEAF IN FRONT OF WHICH THE POOR STOOD, OR COVERED UP WITH STUBBLE, IS NOT TO BE REGARDED AS A FORGOTTEN SHEAF.

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE BINDS SHEAVES TO COVER THE TOP OF THE HEAF³¹ OR TO PLACE AT THE BOTTOM OF THE STACK,³² OR FOR A TEMPORARY PILE,³³ OR INTO [SMALL BUNDLES OF] SHEAVES,³⁴ HE IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF;³⁵ IF THEY ARE AFTERWARDS TAKEN THENCE TO THE THRESHING-FLOOR, THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF DOES APPLY. IF ONE PILES UP THE SHEAVES FOR THE STACK,³⁶ HE IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF; IF HE AFTERWARDS REMOVES THEM THENCE TO THE THRESHING-FLOOR, THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF DOES NOT APPLY.³⁷ THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: WHOEVER PILES UP THE SHEAVES AT THE PLACE WHICH MARKS THE END OF THE WORK [WHERE THEY ARE GOING TO BE THRESHED]. IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF; BUT [IF THEY ARE REMOVED] FROM THENCE TO THE THRESHING-FLOOR, THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF DOES NOT APPLY. HE, HOWEVER, WHO PILES UP THE SHEAVES AT A PLACE WHICH IS NOT TO MARK THE END OF THE WORK, IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF; BUT [IF THEY ARE REMOVED] FROM THENCE TO THE THRESHING-FLOOR, THE LAW OF THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF APPLIES.

(1) A fine is imposed lest his intention was to hide the 'Gleanings' due to the poor.

(2) Even if he heaps up wheat upon 'Gleanings' of barley, the wheat which touches the ground also belongs to the poor.

(3) With the result that the sheaves of the owner got confused with those of 'Gleanings' belonging to the poor.

(4) In accordance with R. Meir's principle, infra v, 3.

(5) So Bertinoro and Tiferes Yisrael; roughly, the prescribed fortyfifth part. Maim., however, in E.M. IX, 5 explains as the amount of seed required for the field.

(6) Cf. 'Ed.' II. 4.

(7) If it is so near that it can be cut together with the standing corn in one fistful, the standing corn saves it from being regarded as 'Gleanings' since the words 'thou shalt not go back to fetch it' (Deut. XXIV, 19) do not apply to it.

(8) Upon each ear of corn there is the doubt whether it is 'Gleanings' and so exempt from all tithes, or whether it belongs to the owner and is subject to tithes. To solve this doubt, the owner must take another 'ear of corn' and give that to the poor, for the poor must be given that which is free from dues. Tithes, unlike Pe'ah (which falls due with the reaping), become liable with the final stacking. (V. supra I. 6). The 'tithing' here referred to is thus performed: Two ears of corn are brought from the stack which contains the 'ear' that became mixed up. The owner then says over one of the 'ears': 'Should this one be the "Gleanings", well and good; but if not, then let the tithe due from it be fixed in the other ear and the first be given to the poor'.

(9) R. Eliezer is surprised at the view of the Sages seeing that they maintained (supra IV, 9) that the owner has no proprietary right to transfer gifts to any particular poor. How can they now allow the owner to exchange, in the name of a poor man, an ear of corn which had so far not become his? (It will be remembered that R. Eliezer in IV, 9 was of the opinion that a man could transfer ownership of Pe'ah to another).

(10) Holding the view that a gift given on condition of returning it later is valid. This makes the exchange possible here.

(11) The Sages, without agreeing with R. Eliezer, would reply that in this case the ear of corn was regarded as the poor man's property, in order to make the exchange possible.

(12) So Bert. and Maim. who take טופח to be an inferior type of barley seed or beans; for this mixing would be to the detriment of the poor (for the 'Gleanings' might fall from the inferior grain). Aliter: One should not irrigate the field (before Gleanings have been taken) with a pitcher (טיפה) of water (an irrigation); since this would make it all the more difficult for the poor to glean.

(13) Is it not equally possible for the 'Gleanings' to fall from the superior kinds of grain? According to the second explanation: 'Is it not possible for the owner of the field to compensate the poor for their loss?'

(14) Lit., 'a householder'; one who possesses more than two hundred zuz is disqualified from receiving these poor man's dues (v. infra VIII, 8).

(15) In the third and sixth years of the Sabbatical cycle, the Second Tithe was given to the poor (Deut. XIV. 29).

(16) Giving them some other produce in exchange for the 'Gleanings'.

(17) All the dues of the poor are exempt from tithes.

(18) The produce of the owner must be tithed prior to the exchange.

(19) Poor men,

(20) An אריס is a labourer who accepts as his payment a stipulated portion of the field's harvest, The labourer thus becomes virtually the owner of the field and, though poor otherwise, is disqualified from taking the dues.

(21) In Lev. XIX, 10 the words לא תלקט לעני are taken to refer as a warning to the poor not to gather their own 'Gleanings'. From this verse is also derived the law that one cannot gather 'dues' for another poor man (v. Git. 12a). Hence here, each one being the owner of his part of the field, can only accept the tithe due to the other (cf. Hul. 131b).

(22) A poor man.

(23) He is no longer regarded as poor.

(24) The produce then becomes the property of the labourer already before the reaping, when still attached to the soil.

(25) Since in this case, the poor man has only a share in the corn after its reaping, the duty falls upon the owner. Even from the Forgotten Sheaf is the poor man exempt, although its law comes into force at the time of the stacking of the sheaves (after reaping), since the word 'thy reaping' cannot here be applied; for it becomes the poor man's only after it had been cut.

(26) Since the tithe becomes due after the reaping (I, 6) when the poor man is already owner of his share in the produce.

(27) If compelled by poverty to do so. This only applies if he sold the field together with the standing corn thereon. For should he dispose of the latter and reserve the field for himself, both the vendor and buyer would be debarred; the former because 'thy field' (Lev. XIX, 9) still applies to him, and the latter because of the application in his case of 'thy reaping' (ibid.).

(28) On account of this concession, the labourer reduces his fees and the employer is thus found settling part of his debts with money due to the poor.

(29) Prov. XXII, 28; the word עולם 'of old' is read by the Mishnah as עולים 'those who go up', a euphemistic name for the poor, who 'have come down in the world' (יורדים); cf. infra VII, 3. Bert. also gives the following rendering: 'Do not change the warnings (fences round the law) that were given to those who went up from Egypt'.

(30) The principle is that before being regarded as (Forgotten Sheaf), it must have been forgotten by both.

(31) In the shape of a hat. Or perhaps the hat improvised from a few sheaves and worn by the labourers as a protection from the sun (Bert.).

(32) As a foundation for the pile above. Others explain the reference to the holes dug in the field in which the sheaves were stacked temporarily.

(33) Often used with which to bake an improvised cake (חררה) or two on live coals. Bert. appends this illuminating note: 'Some cut corn and heap it up into one place, afterwards carrying it to the threshing-floor. The names in the Mishnah are those given to the shapes of the piles prior to their removal to the threshing-floor. Accordingly, this temporary stacking does not constitute the end of the process'. In view of this explanation, חררה is a cake-shaped temporary pile.

(34) To be arranged afterwards into bigger piles, from which the threshing will be done.

(35) Those sheaves dropped during the process of carrying from place to place; for just as the law of Pe'ah in Deut. XXIV, 19 refers to the end of reaping, so the law of the Forgotten Sheaf applies only to the very end of the process of threshing.

(36) On the understanding that they are going to be threshed there.

(37) This change of mind shows that the process was not to be finished there and hence it does not conform to the general principle enunciated at the end of our Mishnah.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. BETH SHAMMAI SAY THAT RENUNCIATION OF OWNERSHIP¹ [OF THE CROP] IN FAVOUR OF THE POOR IS VALID; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY THAT IT IS NOT 'OWNERLESS'² UNLESS THE RENUNCIATION IS ALSO MADE IN FAVOUR OF THE RICH, AS IN THE CASE OF THE YEAR OF RELEASE.³ IF ALL THE SHEAVES IN A FIELD ARE A KAB⁴ EACH IN QUANTITY, WHEREAS ONE COMPRISES FOUR KABBS AND THAT ONE IS FORGOTTEN, BETH SHAMMAI SAY IT IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN';⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY THAT IT IS DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF A SHEAF IS LEFT NEAR A STONE FENCE⁷ OR NEAR A STACK [OF CORN]. OR NEAR OXEN AND [FIELD] IMPLEMENTS,⁸ BETH SHAMMAI SAY IT IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN';⁹ BETH HILLEL SAY THAT IT IS DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.

MISHNAH 3. [WHETHER OR NOT ANY SHEAF] AT THE END OF THE ROW IS TO BE REGARDED AS FORGOTTEN', THE SHEAF LYING OVER AGAINST IT SERVES AS AN INDICATION.¹⁰ IF [THE OWNER] TOOK UP A SHEAF WITH THE INTENTION OF BRINGING IT TO THE CITY AND FORGOT IT, ALL AGREE¹¹ THAT IT IS NOT DEEMED A 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF'.

MISHNAH 4. THESE ARE TO BE CONSIDERED ENDS OF THE ROWS:¹² IF TWO MEN BEGIN [TO GATHER] FROM THE MIDDLE OF THE ROW, ONE FACING NORTHWARDS AND THE OTHER SOUTHWARDS¹³ AND THEY FORGET [SOME SHEAVES] EITHER IN FRONT OF THEM OR BEHIND THEM,¹⁴ THEN THOSE LEFT IN FRONT OF THEM ARE TO BE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN',¹⁵ BUT THOSE LEFT BEHIND THEM ARE NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.¹⁶ IF¹⁷ AN INDIVIDUAL BEGINS FROM THE END OF THE ROW AND HE FORGETS [SOME SHEAVES] EITHER IN FRONT OF HIM OR BEHIND HIM, THOSE IN FRONT OF HIM ARE NOT TO BE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN',¹⁸ WHEREAS THOSE BEHIND HIM ARE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'; FOR THIS COMES UNDER THE CATEGORY OF 'THOU SHALT NOT GO BACK [TO FETCH IT].¹⁹ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ANYTHING THAT CAN BE SAID TO FALL UNDER THE LAW 'THOU SHALT NOT GO BACK' IS DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'; BUT THAT TO WHICH THE PRINCIPLE OF THOU SHALT NOT GO BACK' CANNOT BE APPLIED IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. TWO SHEAVES [LEFT LYING TOGETHER] ARE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN', BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED FORGOTTEN'.²¹ TWO BUNDLES²² OF OLIVES OR

CAROBS [LEFT LYING] ARE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'. BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'. TWO FLAX-STALKS²³ ARE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN', BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'. TWO BERRIES ARE DEEMED 'GRAPE GLEANINGS',²⁴ BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED 'GRAPE GLEANINGS'. TWO EARS OF CORN ARE DEEMED 'GLEANINGS',²⁵ BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED GLEANINGS'. ALL THESE [RULINGS] ARE ACCORDING TO BETH HILLEL;²⁶ OF THEM ALL BETH SHAMMAI SAY THAT THREE [THAT ARE LEFT] BELONG TO THE POOR, AND FOUR BELONG TO THE OWNER.²⁷

MISHNAH 6. IF A SHEAF OF TWO SE'AHS²⁸ WAS FORGOTTEN IT IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.²⁹ IF TWO SHEAVES [BE FOUND] THAT TOGETHER COMPRISE TWO SE'AHS, RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS THEY BELONG TO THE OWNER, BUT THE SAGES SAY THAT THEY BELONG TO THE POOR.³⁰ THEREUPON RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: 'ARE THE RIGHTS OF THE OWNER STRENGTHENED OR WEAKENED ACCORDING TO THE GREATER NUMBER OF THE SHEAVES?' [TO WHICH] THEY REPLIED, 'HIS RIGHTS ARE STRENGTHENED'.³¹ THEN SAID HE UNTO THEM: 'IF, THEREFORE, ONE SHEAF OF TWO SE'AHS IS NOT DEEMED "FORGOTTEN", THEN HOW MUCH MORE SHOULD BE THE CASE OF TWO SHEAVES THAT TOGETHER CONTAIN TWO SE'AHS?' THEREUPON THEY REPLIED: 'NO. IF YOU ARGUE IN THE CASE OF ONE SHEAF [TO WHICH WE AGREED]. BECAUSE IT IS LARGE ENOUGH TO BE CONSIDERED A STACK, ARE YOU GOING TO ARGUE LIKEWISE IN THE CASE OF TWO SHEAVES WHICH ARE AS SMALL BUNDLES?'

MISHNAH 7. IF STANDING CORN³² THAT CONTAINS TWO SE'AHS WAS FORGOTTEN, IT IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN.' IF IT DOES NOT CONTAIN TWO SE'AHS NOW, BUT WAS FIT TO YIELD TWO SE'AHS,³³ EVEN IF IT WAS OF AN INFERIOR KIND OF BARLEY.³⁴ IT IS REGARDED AS A YIELD³⁵ OF BARLEY.

MISHNAH 8. STANDING CORN³⁶ CAN SAVE A SHEAF AND OTHER STANDING CORN³⁷ [FROM BEING REGARDED AS 'FORGOTTEN'].³⁸ THE SHEAF,³⁹ HOWEVER, CANNOT SAVE EITHER ANOTHER SHEAF OR STANDING CORN.⁴⁰ WHAT STANDING CORN CAN SAVE THE SHEAF?⁴¹ THAT WHICH HAS NOT BEEN FORGOTTEN, EVEN THOUGH IT IS A SINGLE STALK.⁴²

MISHNAH 9. A SE'AH OF PLUCKED CORN AND A SE'AH OF UNPLUCKED CORN⁴³ (AND THE SAME APPLIES TO FRUIT TREES,⁴⁴ GARLIC AND ONIONS)⁴⁵ CANNOT BE COMBINED TOGETHER FOR THE PURPOSE OF COUNTING THEM AS TWO SE'AHS.⁴⁶ BUT THEY MUST BE LEFT TO THE POOR. R. JOSE SAYS: IF ANYTHING THAT BELONGS TO THE POOR⁴⁷ INTERVENES, THE TWO CANNOT BE COMBINED TOGETHER;⁴⁸ , OTHERWISE, THEY MAY BE SO COMBINED.

MISHNAH 10. CORN USED FOR FODDER⁴⁹ OR [GRAIN-STALKS] USED FOR BINDING A SHEAF, (THE SAME APPLIES TO GARLIC-STALKS⁵⁰ USED FOR TYING OTHER BUNCHES, OR TIED BUNCHES⁵¹ OF GARLIC AND ONIONS)⁵² DO NOT COME UNDER THE LAW OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF'.⁵³ ANYTHING STORED IN THE GROUND LIKE THE ARUM⁵⁴ AND GARLIC AND ONIONS, R. JUDAH SAYS, THEY DO NOT COME UNDER THE CATEGORY OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF',⁵⁵ BUT THE SAGES SAY, THE LAW OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF' APPLIES TO THEM.⁵⁶

MISHNAH 11. ONE WHO REAPS BY NIGHT AND BINDS SHEAVES [BY NIGHT] OR ONE WHO IS BLIND⁵⁷ IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF'. IF HE INTENDS TO REMOVE ONLY THE LARGE LEAVES,⁵⁸ THEN THE LAW DOES NOT

APPLY.⁵⁹ IF HE SAYS: BEHOLD, I AM REAPING ON THE CONDITION THAT I TAKE AFTERWARDS THAT WHICH I HAVE FORGOTTEN', THE LAW OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF' STILL APPLIES TO HIM.⁶⁰

(1) Heb. Hefker (v. Glos.). The word הפקר in our Mishnah is the Palestinian dialect for הפקר. Cf. 'Ed. IV, 3. Deemed as ownerless, the standing crop is exempt from all tithes as is the case with all the other gifts to the poor discussed in this Tractate. The Shammaites find support for their view in Lev. XIX, 10 (v. Bert.).

(2) And, therefore, not exempt from tithes.

(3) Deut. XV, 1-6 describes the Sabbatical year in which the soil was to rest and in which all debts were cancelled. Beth Hillel argue that no hefker can be exempt from tithes unless it be declared the property of rich and poor alike, as is the case with the products of the Sabbatical year which all could enjoy.

(4) The kab was four logs == 24 eggs in size, and equal to a sixth of a se'ah.

(5) Since it comprises four kabs, it is to be regarded as a sheaf from which a row of four smaller sheaves could be made; and according to Beth Shammai (infra Mishnah 5) only three sheaves belonged to the poor, but not four. A similar provision would apply to a field in which all the sheaves were two kabs each in size and the Forgotten Sheaf of 8 kabs.

(6) Beth Hillel refuse to regard the large sheaf as so many potential smaller ones and regard it only as one sheaf that is left.

(7) Or a heap of stones piled one on top of another loosely (Bert.).

(8) Including the outfit of the oxen.

(9) The very fact that the sheaf had been left near these objects is an indication that the owner had but temporarily deposited it there.

(10) If a sheaf is left at the end of the row, then the other sheaf over against it at the end of the second row indicates whether it is to be deemed 'Forgotten'. A fuller explanation of what is implied by 'the ends of a row' is given in the Mishnah following.

(11) Even Beth Hillel. V. supra VI, 2.

(12) The reference is to many rows equally arranged; for example, ten rows of ten sheaves each, all arranged side by side.

(13) I.e., they stand back to back and face the two opposite ends of the fields. Each would thus recede further away from each other as they proceed.

(14) In the course of their gathering a sheaf or two came to be overlooked.

(15) Because Deut. XXIV, 19 can be applied to it.

(16) Since the sheaf is behind both of them, each relies on the other to pick it up.

(17) An illustration of the statement in the preceding Mishnah that the sheaf lying over against the ends of the row serves as an indication whether a sheaf is to be regarded as 'Forgotten' or not (Bert.).

(18) His intention may have been to include it in the new row about to be formed from east to 'west (Bert.).

(19) Deut. XXIV, 19.

(20) For other interpretations of this difficult Mishnah v. Tosaf. Y.T.

(21) The underlying principle seems to be, according to Beth Hillel, that whereas two can be deemed 'Forgotten', the number three suggests that these had been deposited there temporarily. Three is a number too large to be overlooked.

(22) 'Bundles' of olives, not single ones; for there must be a completion of the process of gathering (גמר מלאכה) before the law of the 'Forgotten Sheaf' is applied.

(23) These stalks must still be in the hard state, prior to being prepared for spinning and also fit for human food; otherwise the law of the 'Forgotten Sheaf' does not apply to them.

(24) V. Lev. XIX, 10.

(25) V. Ibid. XIX, 9.

(26) They find support for their contention in the words 'for the poor and the stranger', Ibid. XIX, 10, one for each; hence two in all.

(27) They cite Deut. XXIV, 19 instead of Lev. XIX, 10, and cite the words 'the stranger, the orphan and the widow' as proof that even three are to be regarded as the property of the poor.

(28) Twelve kabs are more than a man could carry. and the law regarding the 'Forgotten Sheaf' seems to stress the word to take it (Deut. XXIV, 19) that is, a sheaf which a man can easily carry.

(29) Since in size and weight it is almost as a stack, it cannot come under the law of the 'Forgotten Sheaf', which refers

- only to the single sheaf. V. supra the argument of the Sages.
- (30) Both their views are clarified in the course of their discussion.
- (31) Because the law refers only to a single sheaf that is left.
- (32) The same law equally operates upon the standing corn as upon the sheaf.
- (33) I.e., in a more fruitful year.
- (34) 'An aquatic plant like the Colocasia' (fast.). Maim. defines it as 'a seed similar to barley'. cf. Kil. I, 1.
- (35) I.e., though the ears of corn have been blasted and do not contain two se'ahs, they are treated as if they were full (Bert.).
- (36) That has clearly not been overlooked.
- (37) Which seems to have been overlooked and that stands near to the corn that has not been so overlooked.
- (38) For when he will return to cut the corn, he will bethink himself of the sheaf and the other corn unintentionally left. According to Bert. this is based on Deut. XXIV, 19.
- (39) Which has obviously not been forgotten.
- (40) Which have been forgotten and which lie in its proximity.
- (41) Or the forgotten standing corn near it.
- (42) Aliter: 'Even a single ear of corn left forgotten in the whole corn, can save'.
- (43) Both had evidently been left forgotten; for had he forgotten only the plucked corn and not the other, the first would have saved the other from coming under the category of the 'Forgotten Sheaf'. V. preceding Mishnah.
- (44) Plucked and unplucked fruit that only together combine to make two se'ahs that have been forgotten. Had all the fruit been plucked, they would have belonged to the owner, according to Rabban Gamaliel (supra VI, 6).
- (45) The same refers to all vegetables; two kinds cannot be combined together.
- (46) And thus not be regarded as liable to the law; supra 6, n. 10.
- (47) This refers only to the field or vineyard, where there can be 'Gleanings' or 'Grape Gleanings' between one se'ah and another. Unapplicable in the case of trees, where these laws do not operate.
- (48) To make two se'ahs; but they belong to the poor.
- (49) The Hebrew term for corn that had not yet reached a third of its full maturity. It was usually given to the cattle, cf. supra II, 1.
- (50) Others render: 'bunches of garlic on one stalk'.
- (51) Tosef. Pe'ah III, 8, אונרי
- (52) These small bundles are afterwards re-tied into larger bundles; the 'finishing process' is not yet completed, hence the law is not yet applicable. Cf. supra V, 8.
- (53) They are not used for human food.
- (54) A species of onion whose root is exceedingly bitter. 'A plant similar to colocasia with edible leaves and root, and bearing beans' (Jast.). Like טפח in Mishnah 7 supra. V. Sheb. V, 2; VII, 1; Ter. IX, 6. A full discussion of the word 'arum' will be found in Kohut's ed. of the 'Aruch s.v. הלון
- (55) R. Judah is of the opinion that the law of the 'Forgotten Sheaf' does not apply to things, though edible, that are stored in the ground.
- (56) V. Bert. for the exegetical basis for the respective opinions of R. Judah and the Sages.
- (57) Night-time or blindness cannot be grouped into the category of things that had been forgotten owing to an untoward accident. V. supra IV, 10.
- (58) The largest leaves are those that began to grow first. Cf. Sheb. IV, 1. Nid. 2b.
- (59) Since he does not gather them all but selects only the largest, the forgetfulness may be said to be due to untoward circumstances.
- (60) The principle throughout the Talmud is that, 'If one makes a stipulation which is contrary to what is written in the Torah, his stipulation is void'. Keth. IX, 1.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. AN OLIVE TREE THAT HAS A DISTINGUISHING NAME¹ IN THE FIELD, LIKE² THE OLIVE TREE OF 'NETOFAH' IN ITS SEASON,³ AND THAT HAS BEEN LEFT FORGOTTEN, IS NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.⁴ WHEN DOES THIS STIPULATION APPLY? [ONLY TO A TREE THAT IS DISTINGUISHED] BY ITS NAME, OR ITS PRODUCE,

OR ITS SITUATION. 'BY ITS NAME': IF IT WERE [FOR INSTANCE] A SHIFKONI⁵ OR BESHANI⁶ TREE. 'ITS PRODUCE': IF IT YIELDS LARGE QUANTITIES. 'ITS SITUATION': IF IT STANDS AT THE SIDE OF THE WINEPRESS OR NEAR THE GAP IN THE FENCE.⁷ AS FOR OTHER KINDS OF OLIVE TREES,⁸ TWO [IF THEY ARE LEFT] ARE DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN', BUT THREE ARE NOT DEEMED 'FORGOTTEN'.⁹ R. JOSE IS OF THE OPINION THAT THE LAW OF THE 'FORGOTTEN SHEAF' DOES NOT AT ALL APPLY TO OLIVE TREES.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. IF AN OLIVE-TREE WAS FOUND STANDING BETWEEN THREE ROWS [OF OLIVE TREES] AT A DISTANCE OF TWO PLOTS¹¹ FROM ONE ANOTHER, AND FORGOTTEN, IT IS DEEMED, 'FORGOTTEN'.¹² IF AN OLIVE TREE CONTAINING TWO SE'AH¹³ HAS BEEN LEFT, IT IS NOT DEEMED FORGOTTEN. WHEN DOES THIS APPLY?¹⁴ ONLY WHEN HE [THE OWNER] HAD NOT YET BEGUN [TO PLUCK THE TREE]; BUT IF HE HAD BEGUN, (EVEN IF IT WERE LIKE THE OLIVE TREE NETOFAH IN ITS SEASON)¹⁵ AND THEN FORGOTTEN IT, IT IS DEEMED FORGOTTEN'. AS LONG AS THE OWNER HAS SOME OF THE FRUIT BELONGING TO HIM LYING AT THE FOOT OF THE TREE, HE CAN CLAIM POSSESSION OF THOSE STILL ON TOP OF THE TREE.¹⁶ R. MEIR SAYS: [THE LAW APPLIES ONLY] AFTER THOSE WITH THE BEATING-ROD¹⁷ HAVE DEPARTED.

MISHNAH 3. WHAT IS MEANT BY PERET?¹⁸ THAT WHICH FALLS DOWN DURING THE VINTAGE. IF WHILE HE WAS CUTTING [THE GRAPES], HE CUT OFF AN ENTIRE CLUSTER BY ITS STALK AND THIS WAS INTERCEPTED BY THE FOLIAGE, AND THEN IT FELL FROM HIS HAND TO THE GROUND AND THE SINGLE BERRIES DISPERSED THEREFROM, THEY STILL BELONG TO THE OWNER.¹⁹ HE WHO PLACES A BASKET UNDER THE VINE²⁰ WHEN HE IS CUTTING [THE GRAPES], IS ROBBING THE POOR;²¹ OF HIM IT HAS BEEN SAID: 'REMOVE NOT THE LANDMARK OF THOSE THAT COME UP'.²²

MISHNAH 4. WHAT CONSTITUTES A DEFECTIVE CLUSTER?²³ ANY CLUSTER²⁴ WHICH HAS NO SHOULDER²⁵ AND [OF WHICH THE TOP GRAPES] DO NOT HANG DOWN [FROM THE TRUNK].²⁶ IF IT HAS A SHOULDER OR ITS TOP GRAPES HANG DOWN, IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER; IF THERE IS A DOUBT, IT BELONGS TO THE POOR.²⁷ AS TO A DEFECTIVE CLUSTER ON THE JOINT²⁸ OF A VINE, IF IT²⁹ CAN BE NIPPED OFF WITH THE CLUSTER,³⁰ IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER; BUT IF IT CAN NOT, IT BELONGS TO THE POOR. R. JUDAH SAYS: A SINGLE STALK [OF BERRIES]³¹ IS DEEMED AS A WHOLE CLUSTER,³² BUT THE SAGES CONTEND THAT [THEY ARE TO BE REGARDED] AS A DEFECTIVE CLUSTER.³³

MISHNAH 5. HE WHO IS ENGAGED IN THINNING OUT³⁴ VINES MAY THIN OUT THE VINES THAT BELONG TO THE POOR JUST AS HE THINS OUT WHAT BELONGS TO HIMSELF;³⁵ SO R. JUDAH. BUT R. MEIR SAYS: HE CAN ONLY DO SO TO THAT WHICH BELONGS TO HIM BUT NOT TO THAT WHICH IS THE PROPERTY OF THE POOR.³⁶

MISHNAH 6. [AS FOR THE GRAPES OF] A VINEYARD IN ITS FOURTH YEAR,³⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY, THE LAWS OF THE ADDED FIFTH³⁸ AND REMOVAL³⁹ DO NOT APPLY TO THEM; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY, THEY DO. BETH SHAMMAI FURTHER SAY: THE LAWS OF PERET⁴⁰ AND THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS⁴¹ APPLY TO THEM, AND THE POOR CAN REDEEM THE GRAPES FOR THEMSELVES;⁴² BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN THAT THE WHOLE MUST GO TO THE WINE-PRESS.⁴³

MISHNAH 7. IF A VINEYARD CONSISTS ENTIRELY OF DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS',⁴⁴ R. ELIEZER SAYS IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER, BUT R. AKIBA SAYS, TO THE POOR. SAID

R. ELIEZER: [IT IS WRITTEN,] 'WHEN THOU GATHEREST THE GRAPES OF THY VINEYARD, THOU SHALT NOT TAKE THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS AFTER THEE'.⁴⁵ IF THERE IS NO GRAPE GATHERING,⁴⁶ WHENCE WILL YOU HAVE 'DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS'? SAID R. AKIBA TO HIM: [IT IS WRITTEN,] 'AND FROM THY VINEYARD SHALT THOU NOT TAKE THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS'.⁴⁷ — EVEN IF IT CONSISTS ENTIRELY OF DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS. IF THAT IS SO, WHY IS IT SAID: 'WHEN THOU GATHEREST THE GRAPES OF THY VINEYARD THOU SHALT NOT TAKE THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS AFTER THEE'? — [TO TEACH THAT] THE POOR HAVE NO RIGHT TO CLAIM THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS PRIOR TO THE VINTAGE.⁴⁸

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE DEDICATES HIS ENTIRE VINEYARD [TO THE SANCTUARY] BEFORE EVEN THE 'DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS'⁴⁹ WERE RECOGNISABLE, THE 'DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS' DO NOT BELONG TO THE POOR; BUT [IF THE DEDICATION TOOK PLACE] AFTER THE DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS WERE RECOGNISABLE,⁵⁰ THEN THEY DO BELONG TO THE POOR.⁵¹ R. JOSE SAYS: LET [THE POOR] GIVE THE VALUE OF THEIR IMPROVED GROWTH TO THE TEMPLE.⁵² WHAT CAN BE DEEMED 'FORGETFULNESS' IN THE CASE OF AN 'ESPALIER'?⁵³ WHEN ONE IS NO LONGER ABLE TO STRETCH FORTH HIS HAND AND TAKE THEREFROM.⁵⁴ AND IN THE CASE OF RUNNERS?⁵⁵ ONLY AFTER [THE GATHERERS] HAD PASSED BY IT.⁵⁶

(1) A differentiating epithet given on account of its general excellence.

(2) The word 'even' in our editions is best omitted; its inclusion here is due to its occurring in the next Mishnah.

(3) v. Ezra II, 22; Neh. VII, 26. In II Kings XXV, 23 it refers to a city near Bethlehem, in Judah, wherein olive trees were renowned. Others derive the word from נטף 'to flow', because it was a tree always overflowing with oil, and render: like an olive tree that yields much oil in its season. An alternative rendering: An olive tree which at one time bore a special name like the Netofah (olive tree).

(4) The literal interpretation of the law in Deut. XXIV, 19: 'and thou shalt forget a sheaf in the field' is of a sheaf that will always be left forgotten; but an olive tree of the kind referred to here is remembered after a time.

(5) The name applied to a species of olive tree, literally pouring forth (שפך) large quantities of oil. Others take the word as a place-name, like the following 'Beshani'.

(6) The general explanation of this word is that it is an abbreviation of the place-name 'Beth-Shean'. Others interpret the word figuratively, thus: 'A tree, that on account of the abundance of its fruit and oil, puts all the other trees to shame'. The two words are thus either taken as adjectives or proper names; though logically they would point to being place-names. Since they are included under the rubric of 'in its name' and not 'in its produce'. But then the retort of those who treat them as adjectives would be: 'If so, then why are they not included as examples of "in its situation"?' Others again render as the 'ill-yielding'.

(7) When its trunk is used to block up the gap in the fence.

(8) Those not distinguished by a special title.

(9) Agreeing with Beth Hillel, v. supra VI, 5.

(10) R. Jose referred to the days when owing to the Hadrianic persecutions (2nd cent. C.E.) Palestinian olive trees were rare; for the owner who left behind olives would bethink himself of them later, but at a time when the olive trees were no rarity, he would agree that the law of the 'Forgotten Sheaf' applies even to them (v. Bert.).

(11) A malben is a small garden plot, quadrangular in shape and three handbreadths in width, cf. supra III, 1, 4.

(12) As it is hidden from view by the other trees. V. supra V, 7. The reason why olive trees receive here such frequent mention, though the law applies to other trees, is that they are the most common trees of Palestine.

(13) V. supra VI, 6.

(14) This refers back to the opening Mishnah of this Chapter: 'When does the law not apply to the tree of a special name?'

(15) It would be considered 'Forgotten' unless the fruit comprised two se'ahs.

(16) The fruit still ungathered at his feet is an indication that the 'finishing process' of plucking the whole tree has not yet been completed. V. supra V, 8.

(17) Aliter: 'The workers searching after the remaining (hidden) olives'. This searching was done with the aid of a stick,

- with which they used to beat the branches, so that the olives still nestling between the leaves may fall down. T.J. Pe'ah substitutes the word כרכר 'turner' for the מחבא of our Mishnah.
- (18) 'Grape Gleanings'. Lev. XIX, 10. V. supra VI, 5, n. 6.
- (19) Only those grapes belong to the poor that fall to the ground in the natural course of the vintage. The case cited in the Mishnah can be construed as an accidental cause.
- (20) With the intention of collecting therein the single grapes that fall.
- (21) The reason being that single grapes (peret) are already prior to their reaching earth the property of the poor.
- (22) V. supra V, 6, n. 3.
- (23) 'Oleleth (lit., 'grape gleanings') which, according to Lev. XIX, 20 must be given to the poor. 'Oleleth here used for a defective cluster is connected with עולל (a small child), the defective cluster being in proportion to the full cluster as that of the child to the man.
- (24) That still remains on a stem.
- (25) Its grapes hang loose and do not rest on other stalks as if on a shoulder as is usual with fully ripe grapes.
- (26) Lit., 'have no pendant'.
- (27) Who always receive the benefit of the doubt. V. supra IV, 11.
- (28) The word usually applied to the knee-joint, or the leg from under the hip bone to the ankle; Hul. IV, 6. Here it refers to one branch of the vine that comes out of another branch, like so many joints, or to that part of the vine which is bent down and laid in the ground to rise at another place; cf. Rail. VII, 1.
- (29) Namely, the defective cluster on the joint of the vine.
- (30) That adjoins it.
- (31) Single grapes that are joined to the stem itself or to the rib of the cluster and not small bunches on top of one another.
- (32) Belonging, accordingly, to the owner.
- (33) And, therefore, the property of the poor.
- (34) המדל, V. supra III, 3, n. 4.
- (35) The reason being a logical one: since the object of this thinning out process is so that the grapes, or the clusters, may grow better by being less cramped together. V. next note.
- (36) According to R. Meir, the poor are to be regarded only in the role of purchasers of the defective clusters, not as partners (which is the view of R. Judah) with the original owners; hence the latter have no right to touch these grapes.
- (37) Cf. Lev. XIX, 23-25. After the first three years during which the fruit of any tree could not be eaten (ערלה), the fruit was in the fourth year taken to Jerusalem to be enjoyed there.
- (38) Though the grapes required redemption if not taken to Jerusalem, yet the 'Fifth' which is prescribed for Second Tithe, need not be added; for the Torah mentions this only in the case of the Second Tithe. V. B.M. 55b.
- (39) This refers to the removal from the house of fruits in the third and sixth year of the Sabbatical period; Deut. XIV, 28; XXVI, 13; Ma'as. Sh. V, 3, 6; Sheb. VII, 1.
- (40) V. supra VII, 3.
- (41) V. supra VII, 4.
- (42) The poor can eat the grapes wherever they are, provided that they afterwards bring the redemption money to Jerusalem.
- (43) Since in their view the grapes are 'consecrated', the poor have no right to them and they are, therefore, the property of the owner to bring them to Jerusalem or redeem them, as he thinks fit. Even the 'defective clusters' are thus 'trodden' together with the other grapes and the value of the whole yield taken off to the Holy City.
- (44) I.e., in the entire vineyard there is not a single cluster which has either shoulder (כתף) or pendant (נמף).
- (45) Deut. XXIV, 21.
- (46) The extent of a vintage is at least three full clusters yielding at least one fourth of a log (v. Glos.). Since our Mishnah speaks of defective clusters, hardly likely to produce this required vintage the grapes therefore belong, according to R. Eliezer, to the owner.
- (47) Lev. XIX, 10. This verse does not mention 'grape gathering' at all but just 'thy vineyard'; hence, according to R. Akiba, even a vineyard of defective clusters belongs to the poor.
- (48) They must wait until the owner has finished gathering his grapes. R. Eliezer would take R. Akiba's verse to debar the owner from taking possession of the defective clusters before he has finished the vintage.
- (49) V. supra VII, 4. In ordinary circumstances, these would become the share of the poor.

(50) To be defective and not full clusters.

(51) The generally accepted principle being that a man cannot consecrate anything which does not belong to him.

(52) Unto the Temple authorities is due the value of the improvement the grapes have made since they were first dedicated. Cf. Me'il. III, 6.

(53) A lattice-work on which trees or shrubs are trained. In Kil. VI, 1 the word is explained as a row of at least five vines running along a fence, or perched on any high pole.

(54) When, later, he recalls the grapes thereon, he finds that he can no longer reach them.

(55) These are ground-trained vines; grapes growing in a row on isolated vines, almost foot level.

(56) For getting all about them. Each 'runner' vine is regarded as a border-bed or an outmost furrow by itself; on this account, the owner, after having forgotten to collect them once, can no longer return to them.

Mishna - Mas. Pe'ah Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. FROM WHAT TIME ARE ALL MEN PERMITTED TO TAKE THE 'GLEANINGS'? AFTER THE LAST TROOP OF THE POOR¹ HAD GONE. AND IN THE CASE OF 'PERET'² AND 'DEFECTIVE CLUSTERS'?³ AFTER THE POOR HAD GONE INTO THE VINEYARD AND COME BACK AGAIN.⁴ AND IN THE CASE OF THE OLIVE TREES? AFTER THE DESCENT OF THE SECOND RAINFALL?⁵ SAID R. JUDAH: 'BUT ARE THERE NOT SOME WHO DO NOT HARVEST THEIR OLIVES BEFORE THE SECOND RAINFALL?' NO;⁶ [THE TIME LIMIT FOR OLIVES IS] AFTER THE POOR MAN GOES OUT⁷ AND CANNOT BRING BACK WITH HIM [MORE THAN THE VALUE OF] FOUR ISSARS.⁸

MISHNAH 2. THEY⁹ ARE TO BE BELIEVED CONCERNING GLEANINGS', THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF AND PE'AH DURING THEIR [HARVEST] SEASON, AND CONCERNING THE POOR MAN'S TITHE¹⁰ DURING THE WHOLE YEAR THEREOF. A LEVITE IS ALWAYS TO BE TRUSTED.¹¹ THEY MUST NOT BE TRUSTED [IN OTHER CASES] SAVE IN THOSE THINGS WHICH MEN ARE WONT TO GIVE THEM.¹²

MISHNAH 3. THEY ARE TO BE TRUSTED CONCERNING WHEAT,¹³ BUT NOT CONCERNING FINE FLOUR OR BREAD;¹⁴ CONCERNING RICE STILL IN ITS STALK,¹⁵ BUT NOT WHEN IT IS EITHER RAW OR COOKED.¹⁶ THEY CAN BE TRUSTED CONCERNING BEANS BUT NOT WHEN THESE ARE POUNDED, WHETHER RAW OR COOKED. THEY ARE TO BE BELIEVED WHEN THEY DECLARE THAT THEIR OIL IS FROM THE 'POOR MAN'S TITHE', BUT THEY ARE NOT BELIEVED WHEN THEY CLAIM THAT IT IS FROM THE FEW OLIVES THAT HAVE BEEN KNOCKED DOWN.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. THEY ARE TO BE TRUSTED CONCERNING RAW VEGETABLES,¹⁸ BUT NOT CONCERNING THOSE THAT ARE COOKED, UNLESS HE HAD ONLY A SMALL QUANTITY; FOR SO IT WAS THE CUSTOM OF THE HOUSEHOLDER TO TAKE OUT OF HIS STEW-POT [AND GIVE TO THE POOR].¹⁹

MISHNAH 5. ONE MUST NOT GIVE TO THE POOR FROM THE THRESHING-FLOOR,²⁰ LESS THAN A HALF KAB OF WHEAT OR A KAB OF BARLEY.²¹ R. MEIR SAYS: [ONLY] HALF A KAB.²² [ONE MUST GIVE] A KAB AND A HALF OF SPELT, A KAB OF DRIED FIGS OR A MINA²³ OF PRESSED FIGS; R. AKIBA SAYS: [ONLY] HALF. [ONE MUST GIVE] HALF A LOG²⁴ OF WINE; BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: A QUARTER.²⁵ [ONE MUST GIVE] A QUARTER OF OIL; BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: AN EIGHTH.²⁶ AS FOR OTHER KINDS OF PRODUCE, ABBA SAUL SAYS, [THE AMOUNT GIVEN MUST BE SUCH] AS TO ENABLE THE POOR MAN TO SELL THEM AND BUY WITH THE PRICE THEREOF FOOD SUFFICIENT FOR TWO MEALS.

MISHNAH 6. THIS MEASURE IS STIPULATED FOR THE PRIEST, LEVITE AND

ISRAELITE ALIKE.²⁷ SHOULD HE DESIRE TO SAVE AUGHT,²⁸ HE CAN ONLY RETAIN A HALF²⁹ AND GIVE THE OTHER HALF AWAY. IF HE HAS ONLY A VERY SMALL QUANTITY,³⁰ THEN HE MUST PLACE IT BEFORE THEM AND THEY THEN DIVIDE IT AMONG THEMSELVES.³¹

MISHNAH 7. ONE MUST NOT GIVE THE WANDERING POOR MAN LESS THAN A LOAF WORTH A PONDION³² AT A TIME WHEN FOUR SE'AHs [OF WHEAT COST] ONE SELA'.³³ IF HE SPENDS THE NIGHT [AT A PLACE], ONE MUST GIVE HIM THE COST OF WHAT HE NEEDS FOR A NIGHT.³⁴ IF HE STAYS OVER THE SABBATH HE IS GIVEN FOOD FOR THREE MEALS.³⁵ HE WHO HAS THE MEANS FOR TWO MEALS, MUST NOT ACCEPT ANYTHING FROM THE CHARITY DISH;³⁶ AND IF HE HAS FOR FOURTEEN MEALS, HE MAY NOT ACCEPT ANY SUPPORT FROM THE COMMUNAL FUND.³⁷ THE COMMUNAL FUND IS COLLECTED BY TWO³⁸ AND DISTRIBUTED BY THREE PEOPLE.³⁹

MISHNAH 8. HE WHO POSSESSES TWO HUNDRED ZUZ⁴⁰ MAY NOT TAKE 'GLEANINGS', THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF, PE'AH OR THE POOR MAN'S TITHE. IF HE POSSESSES TWO HUNDRED MINUS ONE DENAR,⁴¹ THEN EVEN IF A THOUSAND [MEN] EACH GIVE HIM [ONE ZUZ], HE MAY ACCEPT.⁴² IF HIS PROPERTY IS MORTGAGED UNTO HIS CREDITORS OR TO THE KETHUBAH⁴³ OF HIS WIFE, HE MAY ACCEPT. THEY⁴⁴ CANNOT COMPEL HIM⁴⁵ TO SELL HIS HOUSE OR HIS TOOLS.⁴⁶

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN POSSESSES FIFTY ZUZ AND HE USES THEM FOR HIS BUSINESS, HE MUST NOT TAKE [THE POOR GIFTS].⁴⁷ WHOEVER DOES NOT NEED TO TAKE [CHARITY] AND YET TAKES, WILL NOT DEPART FROM THIS WORLD BEFORE BEING ACTUALLY IN NEED OF HIS FELLOW-MEN;⁴⁸ BUT HE WHO NEEDS TO TAKE AND DOES NOT TAKE,⁴⁹ WILL NOT DIE BEFORE HE WILL HAVE COME IN OLD AGE TO SUPPORT OTHERS FROM HIS OWN [BOUNTY]. CONCERNING HIM THE VERSE SAYS: BLESSED BE THE MAN WHO TRUSTETH IN THE LORD AND WHOSE HOPE IS THE LORD.⁵⁰ THE SAME MAY BE APPLIED TO A JUDGE WHO JUDGES IN TRUTH ACCORDING TO ITS INTEGRITY.⁵¹ AND IF A MAN IS NOT LAME,⁵² BLIND OR HALTING, AND HE FEIGNS TO BE AS ONE OF THESE, HE WILL NOT DIE IN HIS OLD AGE BEFORE HE ACTUALLY BECOMES AS ONE OF THESE;⁵³ AS IT IS SAID: HE WHO SEARCHES FOR EVIL, IT SHALL COME UNTO HIM,⁵⁴ AND ALSO AS IT IS SAID: RIGHTEOUSNESS, RIGHTEOUSNESS SHALT THOU SURELY PURSUE.⁵⁵ AND ANY JUDGE WHO ACCEPTS A BRIBE OR WHO PERVERTS JUSTICE WILL NOT DIE IN OLD AGE BEFORE HIS EYES HAVE BECOME DIM, AS IT IS SAID: AND A GIFT SHALT THOU NOT ACCEPT; FOR A GIFT BLINDETH THEM THAT HAVE SIGHT.⁵⁶

(1) נמושות from מוש 'to grope', 'search'. T.J. gives two explanations of the word. They are either so called because they are the very last searchers; or because they are the very old people, who have to grope their way painfully along (supra IV, 5). When these last have gone and the poor no longer seem to claim it, it becomes 'ownerless' — the property of rich and poor alike.

(2) V. supra VII, 3.

(3) V. supra VII, 4.

(4) A second time; v. Ta'an. 6a.

(5) Circa 23rd Heshwan (Ned. VIII, 5; Ta'an. I, 4). So called because this rain fructifies the soil. 'The rain is husband to the soil' (Ta'an. 6b). Cf. also Lev. XIX, 19. The Talmud (Ta'an. 6b) explains what is meant by a satisfactory second rainfall; when the soil is left fit to be used for sealing the mouth of a cask.

(6) This, therefore, cannot be the stipulated time.

(7) Of the vineyard.

(8) An issar = 8 perutahs (the smallest copper coin current). This sum was calculated as sufficient for a man to buy meals — two for himself and two for his wife. Cf. infra 7.

- (9) Even the uninstructed poor ('amme ha-arez) are to be relied on when they claim that the wheat they sell is what they received as gifts and hence exempt from all tithes.
- (10) The tithe was given during the third and sixth year of the Sabbatical cycle.
- (11) He is to be trusted in his declaration that the wheat is the 'First Tithe'. Since this tithe to the Levite was unrestricted as to time, there is no doubt that he must afterwards give the tithe due to the priest. Just as an Israelite 'am ha-arez was not suspected of retaining for himself the terumah due to the priest, because the penalty of eating this terumah was death at the hands of heaven, so the Levite is not to be suspected of having failed to give the 'tithe of the tithe' which he owes to the priest. (Num. XVIII, 26).
- (12) As explained in the following Mishnah.
- (13) To state that they receive it as Poor Man's Tithe.
- (14) It is not usual to give these to the poor on account of the additional trouble and expense they involve. The same reason applies to the other instances cited in our Mishnah.
- (15) Because in this state it was usually given to the poor. The word שְׂעָרָה is also explained as the kernels of the rice after the threshing and prior to the peeling of the husks.
- (16) That is after the rice has been threshed or peeled.
- (17) It is hardly likely that the oil could have been produced from the few olives left on the tree after the continual beatings (נִקְוָה) made upon it during the harvest-time, for the olives to drop down. (Cf. Isa. XVII, 6; XXIV, 13); and since the poor only receive the few remaining olives, their statement is not credible. Cf. Hallah III, 9.
- (18) Vegetables (since they are perishable) though exempt from Pe'ah, supra I, 4, are subject rabbinically to the poor Man's Tithe.
- (19) It is very likely that the owner, having forgotten to give his dues, does so afterwards direct from the stew-pot. This, however, would only be a small quantity; for as explained (supra 3, n. 5) it is unlikely for the owner to give the poor readily prepared food.
- (20) The measures quoted in the Mishnah are based on the stipulation of Deut. XXVI, 12 that the gifts to the poor must be such as to satisfy them. This refers to the Poor Man's Tithe only; for with regard to 'Gleanings' or Pe'ah or the 'Forgotten Sheaf', the owner could leave these dues in the field for the poor to divide among themselves (supra IV, 1).
- (21) . A kab == 4 logs == one sixth of a se'ah == 24 eggs (in size).
- (22) The variance as to the amounts mentioned here is due to what is considered sufficient to satisfy temporarily the needs of the poor.
- (23) A weight measure equalling 25 sela's or 100 denars. After the figs are pressed, they are sold according to weight.
- (24) A log (v.n. 3) was 2 litras.
- (25) Of a log. This is the standard measure mentioned in connection with religious ceremonies. V.B.B. 58b.
- (26) All the measures given here apply only when the distribution takes place in the threshing-floor, amidst the scene of plenty; in his house, however, the owner can obey the dictates of his own heart, since the Rabbis have not fixed a minimum.
- (27) The priest and the Levite, like the Israelite, are subject to the Poor Man's Tithe of which they must give sufficient for at least two meals (Bert.). Moreover, even if the priest and Levite had already received their tithes, they are further entitled, should they be very poor, to the stipulated minimum due to the poor (R. Samson of Sens).
- (28) He is not desirous of giving away all the tithes he has at once, but would save some for his own poor relatives.
- (29) For this purpose, but not more.
- (30) After setting aside the half for his poor relative, the remainder is not sufficient with which to give each poor man the stipulated amount.
- (31) As long as the poor have all that is left, it does not matter even if each does not receive the stipulated amount. The onus is thus shifted from the owner to the poor.
- (32) Abridged from dupondium, a Roman coin equal to a half zuz or two issars (Ma'as. Sh. IV, 8).
- (33) The sela' == 4 denars == 24 ma'ah == 48 pondions. Four se'ahs would equal twenty-four kabs, though actually in the loaf worth one sela', there would be less than this amount, since the baker would wish to profit for the expense of grinding and baking. Only when the distribution takes place in the threshing-floor is the poor to receive not less than the stipulated sum — half a kab; when receiving a baked loaf, this need not be more than a quarter of a kab, or six eggs in size. V. 'Er. VIII, 2.
- (34) I.e., for bed and warmth; Shab. 118a.
- (35) On the Sabbath day each Jew is enjoined to partake of three meals.

- (36) Tamhui, a dish containing victuals for distribution among the poor, each receiving at least the amount of two meals, v. B.B. 8b.
- (37) The Kuppah from which sustenance was disbursed among the poor every Friday, and since he has enough to eat for the whole of next week, he is not entitled to poor relief from this source.
- (38) All charitable collections must be undertaken by at least two accredited persons, Shek. V, 2.
- (39) The disbursement required the presence of three adjudicators as in a Beth din; v. B.B. 8a.
- (40) The sum considered by the Rabbis sufficient for food and clothing for a whole year.
- (41) Latin denarius, another name for a zuz. Roughly speaking, a denar or zuz may be considered the equivalent of a shilling or mark (Danby).
- (42) The poor man's gifts above mentioned.
- (43) The marriage contract, v. Glos.
- (44) The overseers of the poor.
- (45) The applicant for these gifts.
- (46) Or such articles of furniture used to adorn his house on the Sabbath and festivals. Cf. Keth. 68a.
- (47) Fifty zuz sunk in business are as good as two hundred lying idle.
- (48) As a penalty for robbing the poor of their due.
- (49) Preferring to lead a humbler, more economical life instead.
- (50) Jer. XVII, 7.
- (51) Lit., 'who judges a true judgment according to its truth', i.e., an absolutely true verdict which can be arrived at by the judge if he endeavours to find out the truth himself and does not rely on evidence alone, v. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 27, n. 8. A judge whose hope is God is one to whom the truth is above the fear of men; cf. Shab. 10.
- (52) The distinction drawn between הגנר and פסח is that the first describes a man lame in one foot and the second a man lame in both. (cf. II Sam. IV, 4). A few versions add also 'deaf and dumb'.
- (53) In accordance with the Rabbinic principle that God punishes 'measure for measure'.
- (54) Prov. XI, 27.
- (55) Deut. XVI, 20.
- (56) Ex. XXIII, 8; the verse goes on: 'and perverteth the words of the righteous'. The judge who accepts a gift to pervert judgment is compared to the man who feigns blindness. He, therefore, courts the same punishment.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 2a

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. THERE ARE FOUR NEW YEARS.¹ ON THE FIRST OF NISAN² IS NEW YEAR FOR KINGS³ AND FOR FESTIVALS.⁴ ON THE FIRST OF ELUL⁵ IS NEW YEAR FOR THE TITHE OF CATTLE.⁶ R. ELEAZAR AND R. SIMEON, HOWEVER, PLACE THIS ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI.⁷ ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI⁸ IS NEW YEAR FOR YEARS,⁴ FOR RELEASE AND JUBILEE YEARS,⁹ FOR PLANTATION¹⁰ AND FOR [TITHE OF] VEGETABLES.¹¹ ON THE FIRST OF SHEBAT¹² IS NEW YEAR FOR TREES,¹³ ACCORDING TO THE RULING OF BETH SHAMMAI; BETH HILLEL, HOWEVER, PLACE IT ON THE FIFTEENTH OF THAT MONTH.

GEMARA. FOR KINGS. Why this law?¹⁴ — R. Hisda said: For dealing with documents,¹⁵ as we have learnt: 'Bonds if antedated are invalid,¹⁶ but if postdated are valid'.

Our Rabbis learnt: If a king ascended the throne on the twenty-ninth of Adar, as soon as the first of Nisan arrives¹⁷ he is reckoned to have reigned a year. If on the other hand he ascended the throne on the first of Nisan, he is not reckoned to have reigned a year till the next first of Nisan comes round.

The Master has said, 'If a king ascends the throne on the twenty-ninth of Adar, as soon as the first of Nisan arrives he is reckoned to have reigned a year.'

(1) I.e., the year is reckoned to commence at different dates for different purposes, as the Mishnah goes on to specify.

(2) The first month of the Jewish calendar (in Biblical times known as 'the month of Abib', or the springing corn), commencing in the latter half of March or the earlier part of April.

(3) If a document is dated with a certain year in a king's reign, the year is reckoned to have commenced in Nisan, no matter in what month the king came to the throne. The Gemara discusses what kinds of kings are meant — whether Israelitish or other.

(4) The meaning of this is discussed infra in the Gemara.

(5) The sixth month of the Jewish calendar.

(6) For purposes of tithe it was necessary to specify the year in which cattle were born, because cattle born in one year could not be given as tithe for cattle born in another, v. Lev. XXVII, 32.

(7) So that according to these authorities there were only three New Years.

(8) The seventh month.

(9) I.e., from the first of Tishri in these years ploughing and similar operations were forbidden. V. Lev. XXV, 4, 11.

(10) For reckoning the years of 'uncircumcision'. V. Lev. XIX, 23.

(11) I.e., those gathered after this date could not be used as tithe for those gathered before. Cf. n. 6.

(12) The eleventh month.

(13) For tithing the fruit. V. notes 6 and 11.

(14) Why should we not be content to reckon the year of the king from the day on which he ascended the throne?

(15) I.e., to enable us to determine which are antedated.

(16) If a man borrowed money in Tishri and the bond was dated in Tammuz (the fourth month of the Jewish calendar) the bond is invalid and does not give the lender any right to seize property which the borrower may have sold even subsequent to Tishri. This is a fine for having conspired to seize by means of the bond property which had been sold prior to the making of the loan. Now if the reigning king came to the throne some time between Tammuz and Tishri, then if we reckoned his years from the date of his accession, Tishri would always come before Tammuz, and the document should therefore be valid. To prevent this leading to confusion, it was consequently ordained that the king's year should always be regarded as commencing with Nisan. Tosaf. point out that it is very difficult to conceive of an instance where this might actually lead to confusion, as scribes can usually be trusted to remember the year of the reign; the example Tosaf. give is where the king came to the throne on the first of Nisan and a scribe has to write a document on the first of Nisan in the following year. In such a case the scribe might easily think that the king came to the throne on the second of Nisan, and so, but for the regulation, might date the document a whole year wrong.

(17) I.e., on the next day.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 2b

This teaches us that Nisan is the New Year for kings, and that one day in a year is reckoned as a year. 'But if he ascended the throne on the first of Nisan he is not reckoned to have reigned a year till the next first of Nisan comes round'. This surely is self-evident? — It had to be stated in view of the case where his election to the throne was determined upon¹ in Adar. You might think that in that case we should reckon him [by the next first of Nisan] to have reigned two years. We are therefore told [that this is not so].

Our Rabbis learnt: If [a king] died in Adar and was succeeded by another in Adar, we can designate [the rest of] the year [up to the first of Nisan] as belonging to either.² If he died in Nisan and was succeeded by another in Nisan, we can date the year by either.³ If he died in Adar and was succeeded by another in Nisan, the earlier year is dated by the first and the later by the second.

The Master has here said, 'If he died in Adar and was succeeded by another, we can date the year by either'. Surely this is obvious? — You might think that we never date the same year by two kings;⁴ hence we are told [that this can be done]. 'If the first died in Nisan and was succeeded by another in Nisan, the year may be dated by either'. This also seems to be obvious? — You might think that when we lay down that a day in the year is reckoned as a year we mean only at the end of the year but not at the beginning;⁵ therefore we are told [that this is not so]. 'If the first died in Adar and he was succeeded by another in Nisan, the earlier year is dated by the first and the later by the second'. This surely is obvious? — It had to be stated in view of the case where his election was determined upon from Adar and he is succeeding his father.⁶ In that case you might think that we should reckon two years to him. We are therefore told [that this is not so].

R. Johanan said: How do we know [from the Scripture] that the years of kings' reigns are always reckoned as commencing from Nisan? Because it says, And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv which is the second month.⁷ Here Solomon's reign is put side by side with the exodus from Egypt,⁸ [to indicate that] just as [the years from] the exodus from Egypt are reckoned from Nisan, so [the years of] Solomon's reign commenced with Nisan.

But how do we know that the years from the exodus from Egypt itself are reckoned as commencing with Nisan? Perhaps we reckon them from Tishri?⁹ — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And Aaron the priest went up into Mount Hor at the commandment of the Lord, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fifth month,¹⁰ on the first day of the month,¹¹ and it is further written, And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month,¹² on the first day of the month, that Moses spoke, etc.¹³ Now since the text when referring to Ab places it in the fortieth year and again when referring to [the following] Shebat places it also in the fortieth year, we may conclude that Tishri is not the beginning of the year.¹⁴ [This, however] is not conclusive. I grant you that the former text states explicitly that [the year spoken of was] 'from the going forth from Egypt'; but how do we know that [the year mentioned in] the latter text is reckoned from the exodus?¹⁵ Perhaps it is from the setting up of the Tabernacle?¹⁶ — [We may reply to this] on the model of R. Papa, who said [in another connection]¹⁷ that the occurrence of the expression 'twentieth year' in two contexts provides us with a gezerah shawah:¹⁸ so here, [I may say that the occurrence of] the expression 'fortieth year' in the two contexts provides us with a gezerah shawah, [showing that] just as in the one case¹⁹ [the date is reckoned] from the Exodus, so in the other case²⁰ also.

But how do you know that [in respect of these two incidents] that of Ab was prior? Perhaps that of Shebat was prior?²¹ — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written [in connection with the latter], ‘After he had smitten Sihon’;²² and when Aaron died Sihon was still alive, as it is written

And the Canaanite the king of Arad heard.¹ What was the report that he heard? He heard that Aaron had died and that the clouds of glory had departed, and he judged that it was now permitted to attack Israel; and this is intimated in the verse, And all the congregation saw [wa-yiru] that Aaron was dead,² [commenting on which] R. Abbahu said, Do not read wayiru, but wa-yerau [and they were seen],³ [the next word⁴ being translated] in accordance with the dictum of Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said, Ki has four significations — ‘if’, ‘perhaps’, ‘but’ ‘for’.⁵ [In objection to this it may be asked], Are the two things alike?⁶ [The verse] there speaks of Canaan, whereas [here] it [speaks of] Sihon? — It has been taught: Sihon, Arad, and Canaan are all one. He was called Sihon as resembling a sayyah [foal] of the wilderness, he was called Canaan after his kingdom; and as for his real name, this was Arad. According to other authorities, he was called Arad as resembling an ‘arad [wild ass] of the wilderness, and Canaan after his kingdom, while as for his real name, this was Sihon.

But can I not suppose that New Year is in Iyar?⁷ — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And it came to pass in the first month in the second year on the first day of the month that the tabernacle was reared up,⁸ and it is written elsewhere, And it came to pass in the second year in the second month . . . that the cloud was taken up front over the tabernacle of the testimony.⁹ Seeing that the text when referring to Nisan places it in the second year and when referring to Iyar places it also in the second year, we may conclude that Iyar is not New Year. Can I suppose then that New Year is in Sivan?¹⁰ — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, In the third month after the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt;¹¹ and if Sivan is New Year, it should say, ‘In the third month in the second year after the children of Israel etc.’ But why not say that New Year is in Tammuz,¹² in Ab,¹³ in Adar?¹⁴ — Rather, said R. Eleazar, we learn [that Nisan is New Year] from here: And he began to build in the second month in the second¹⁵ in the fourth year of his reign.¹⁶ What [is here meant by] ‘in the second’? Does not [the superfluous word] mean the second by which his reign is reckoned? Rabina strongly demurred to this. Why not, [he said], suppose it to mean the second day of the month? — In that case it would have said distinctly, ‘on the second day of the month’.¹⁷ But may I not suppose it means on the second day of the week? [This cannot be for two reasons.] One is that we never find the second day of the week mentioned in Scripture, and the other is that the second ‘sheni’ [second] is put on the same footing as the first sheni, [indicating that] just as the first sheni refers to a month, so the second sheni refers to a month.

It has been taught in accordance with R. Johanan: How do we know [from the Scripture] that the years of kings’ reigns are always reckoned as commencing from Nisan? Because it says, ‘And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt etc.,’ and it is further written, ‘And Aaron the priest went up to Mount Hor at the commandment of the Lord, etc.,’ and it is further written, And it came to pass in the fortieth year in the eleventh month’,¹⁸ and it is further written, ‘After he had smitten Sihon etc.,’ and it is further written, And all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead etc.,’ and it is further written, ‘And it came to pass in the first month in the second year etc., and it is further written, ‘And it came to pass in the second year in the second month etc.,’ and it is further written, ‘In the third month after the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt etc.,’ and it is further written, ‘And he began to build etc.’

R. Hisda said: The rule [that New Year for kings is in Nisan] was only meant to apply to the kings of Israel, but the years of non-Israelitish kings are reckoned from Tishri,¹⁹ as it says, The words of Nehemiah the son of Hachaliah. Now it came to pass in the month of Kislev,²⁰ in the twentieth year²¹ etc., and it is written further, And it came to pass in the month of Nisan in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes.²² Now since when speaking of Kislev he places it in the twentieth year and when speaking of Nisan he places it also in the twentieth, we may conclude that New Year is not in Nisan. [This, however, is not conclusive]. In the latter text, it is true, it is expressly stated that [it was the twentieth year] of Artaxerxes, but in the former how do we know that the reign of Artaxerxes is referred to? Perhaps some other system of dating is adopted? — R. Papa replied: The occurrence in each text of the expression 'twentieth year' provides us with a gezerah shawah,¹ [indicating that] just as in the latter case it means 'of the reign of Artaxerxes', so in the former. But how do you know that the incident of Kislev was prior? Perhaps the incident of Nisan was prior?² — Do not imagine such a thing, since it has been taught: The things that Hanani told Nehemiah in Kislev were related by Nehemiah to the king in Nisan. 'The things that Hanani told Nehemiah', as we read, The words of Nehemiah the son of Hachaliah. Now it came to pass in the month of Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the castle, that Hanani, one of my brethren, came out of Judah, he and certain men; and I asked them concerning the Jews that had escaped, that were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said unto me: The remnant that are left of the captivity there in the province are in great affliction and reproach; the wall of Jerusalem also is broken down, and the gates thereof are burned with fire.³ These things 'were related by Nehemiah to the king in Nisan,' as we read, And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, when wine was before him, that I took up the wine and gave it unto the king. Now I had not been beforetimes sad in his presence. And the king said unto me, Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? This is nothing else but sorrow of heart. Then I was very sore afraid. And I said unto the king, Let the king live for ever; why should not my countenance be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' sepulchres, lieth waste and the gates thereof are consumed with fire? Then the king said to me: For what dost thou make request? So I prayed to the God of heaven. And I said unto the king: If it please the king and if thy servant have found favour in thy sight, that thou wouldst send me unto Judah, unto the city of my fathers' sepulchres, that I may build it. And the king said unto me, the queen also sitting by him, For how long will thy journey be and when wilt thou return? So it pleased the king to send me; and I set him a time.⁴

R. Joseph sought to disprove [the statement that the years of non-Israelitish kings are reckoned from Tishri, as follows]: [It is written], In the four and twentieth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king,⁵ and it is further written, In the seventh month in the second year in the one and twentieth day of the month.⁶ Now if it is [as you say], then we should have here 'in the seventh month in the third year'! — R. Abbahu replied: Cyrus was a worthy king,⁷ and therefore they reckoned his years like those of the kings of Israel.⁸

R. Joseph demurred strongly against this [last notion]. For one thing [he said, if this is so,] then there is a contradiction between two biblical texts. For it is written, And the house⁹ was finished on the third day of the month of Adar, which was the sixth year of Darius the king,¹⁰ and in connection with this it has been taught: 'At that period, in the year following,¹¹ Ezra went up from Babylon along with his band of exiles'. Now it is written further, And he [Ezra] came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king; and if it is [as you say], it should be 'in the eighth year'? Further, is there any connection [between your answer and the question]? You speak of Cyrus and the text¹² speaks of Darius! — It has been taught: 'Cyrus,¹³ Darius, and Artaxerxes¹⁴ were all one. He was called Cyrus because he was a worthy king;¹⁵ Artaxerxes after his realm;¹⁶ while Darius was his own name. All the same, the contradiction still remains?¹⁷ — There is no contradiction. The one verse¹⁸ speaks of him before he degenerated,¹⁹ the other after he degenerated.

R. Kahana strongly demurred to this [saying], Did he indeed degenerate? Is it not written,

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 4a

And that which they have need of, both young bullocks and rams and lambs, for burnt-offerings to the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine and oil, according to the word of the priests that are in Jerusalem, let it be given them day by day without fail?¹ — Said R. Isaac to him: [Here is something] out of your own package:² That they may offer sacrifices of sweet savour unto the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king and of his sons.³ But even so, is not the action still a meritorious one, seeing that it has been taught: 'If a man says, I offer this sela' for charity in order that my children may live and in order that through it I may merit the future world, he may still be a wholly righteous man?' — There is no contradiction; this statement applies to Israelites, there we speak of heathens.⁴

Alternatively I may say that we know he deteriorated because it is written, with three rows of great stones and a row of new timber, and let the expenses be given out of the king's house.⁵ Why did he make these conditions? He thought to himself, If the Jews revolt against me, I will burn it with fire. But did not Solomon do the same thing, as it is written, three rows of hewn stone and a row of cedar beams?⁶ — Solomon placed the wood above and he placed it below; Solomon sunk it in the building and he did not sink it in the building; Solomon plastered it over and he did not plaster it over.

R. Joseph, (or, as some say, R. Isaac) said: Whence do we know that he deteriorated? From here: And the king said unto me, the shegal also sitting by hint.⁷ What is 'shegal'? Rabbah b. Lema said In the name of Rab, a she-dog.⁸ But if that is so, what are we to make of the verse, But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven, and they have brought the vessels of His house before thee, and thou and thy lords, thy shegaloth and thy concubines have drunk wine in them.⁹ Now how can 'shegal' here be a dog? Do dogs drink wine? — This is no difficulty, as [we can suppose that] it was taught to drink. But what of the verse where it is written, Kings' daughters are among thy favourites, at thy right hand doth stand the shegal in gold of Ophir?¹⁰ Now if 'shegal' is a dog, what promise is the prophet bringing to Israel? — What he means is this: Because the Torah is as dear to Israel as a 'shegal' to the heathens, you have earned as your reward the gold of Ophir. Alternatively I may say that 'shegal' does as a rule mean 'queen', but in this case Rabbah b. Lema had a tradition [that it means 'dog'], and the reason why [in the text] it is called 'shegal' is because it was as dear to him¹¹ as a queen; or, possibly, because he put it on the queen's seat.

Alternatively I may say that we know he deteriorated from here: Unto a hundred talents of silver and to a hundred measures of wheat and to a hundred baths of wine and salt without prescribing how much.¹² At first there was no limit, but now he made a limit. But perhaps at first he simply had not decided on the limit? The truth is that the best explanation is that which was given first.

AND FOR FESTIVALS. How can [New Year] for the festivals be on the first of Nisan? It is surely on the fifteenth of Nisan?¹³ — R. Hisda said: What it means is that the festival which occurs in it is the New Year for the festivals. The legal import of this rule is for determining when one who makes a vow transgresses the precept of 'not delaying'.¹⁴ and R. Simeon is here followed, as it has been taught: Whether a man makes a vow, or sanctifies,¹⁵ or makes a valuation,¹⁶ as soon as three festivals elapse [before he carries out his word], he transgresses the precept of 'not delaying'. R. Simeon says: The three festivals must be in order, with Passover first. So too R. Simeon b. Yohai used to say: The festivals [referred to] are sometimes three [in number], sometimes four, sometimes five. For instance, if a man made a vow before Passover, they are three, if before Pentecost five, if before Tabernacles four.

Our Rabbis taught: Those who are liable for a money valuation,¹⁷ for a valuation,¹⁸ for a herem,¹⁹ for consecrations,²⁰ for sin-offerings, trespass-offerings, burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, charity contributions, tithes, firstborn and tithe of cattle, paschal lamb, gleanings, forgotten sheaves and corners of the field,¹ as soon as three festivals have elapsed transgress the precept of 'not delaying'. R. Simeon said: The three festivals must be in order, with Passover first. R. Meir said: As soon as one festival has passed, he transgresses the precept of 'not delaying'. R. Eliezer b. Jacob said: As soon as two festivals have elapsed, he transgresses the precept of 'not delaying'. R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon said: As soon as the feast of Tabernacles has passed, he transgresses the precept of 'not delaying'.

What is the reason of the First Tanna?² — Let us see, [he says]: The text³ has been speaking of them⁴ [the three festivals]. Why then does it repeat,⁵ on the feast of unleavened bread, on the feast of weeks, and on the feast of tabernacles? We must understand it to be laying down the rule for 'not delaying'.⁶ R. Simeon again says that there was no need [even so] to repeat 'on the feast of tabernacles', of which the text was just speaking.⁷ Why then was it mentioned? To show that this one must be the last. What is R. Meir's reason?⁸ — Because it is written, And thither thou shalt come and thither ye shall bring.⁹ What do the Rabbis [say to this]? — They say that this constitutes only a positive injunction.¹⁰ What has R. Meir [to say to this]? — [He says that] since the All-Merciful told him to bring and he did not bring, automatically he has transgressed the precept of 'not delaying'. What is the reason of R. Eliezer b. Jacob?¹¹ Because it is written, These ye shall offer unto the Lord in your appointed seasons;¹² the minimum of 'seasons' is two. What do the Rabbis [say to this]? — [They say] that this word is required for the exposition of R. Jonah; for R. Jonah said,¹³ All the festivals are put on the same footing with one another, to show that all¹⁴ atone for the uncleanness of the Sanctuary and its holy things.¹⁵ What is the reason of R. Eleazar son of Simeon?¹⁶ As it has been taught: R. Eleazar son of Simeon said: There was no need for the feast of Tabernacles to be mentioned in this verse,¹⁷ as the text was already speaking of it. Why then was it mentioned? To show that this one is the determining factor. What exposition then do R. Meir and R. Eliezer b. Jacob give of the words 'on the feast of unleavened bread and on the feast of weeks and on the feast of tabernacles'? — They require them for the same purpose as R. Eleazar b. Oshaia. For R. Eleazar b. Oshaia said: How do we know that [a sacrifice due but not brought on] Pentecost¹⁸ can be made up for during the next seven days? Because it says, On the feast of unleavened bread and on the feast of weeks and on the feast of tabernacles. Just as [a sacrifice not brought on the first day of] the feast of Passover can be made up for during the next seven days,¹⁹ so [a sacrifice not brought on] the Feast of Weeks can be made up for during the next seven days.

But why should not the Feast of Weeks be put on the same footing [in this respect] as the feast of Tabernacles, so that just as in that case [the duration of the festival is] eight days, so here eight days [should be allowed]? — The eighth day [of Tabernacles] is a separate festival.²⁰ I can still say that we call the eighth day a separate festival in respect of P'Z'R' K'SH'B',²¹ but that in the matter of compensation all agree that this can be made on it for the first day, as we have learnt: If one did not bring his festival sacrifice on the first day of Tabernacles, he can bring during the whole of the festival, including the last day of the festival? — If you grasp a lot you cannot hold it, if you grasp a little you can hold it.²²

But what injunction then²³ did the All-Merciful indicate by mentioning the festival of Tabernacles [in this verse]? — [It is mentioned] in order to be put on the same footing as the feast of Passover [in this respect]:

(1) If an owner took these, he has to restore them to the poor.

R == regel (festival); the eighth day is no longer termed ‘Tabernacles’ but is known as ‘the eighth day of solemn assembly’. K == Korban (offering); the sacrifice of the day (one bullock, one ram and seven sheep) was quite different from that of the days of Tabernacles. SH == shir (song); the psalm chanted by the Levites was not the same as that for Tabernacles. just as on the feast of Passover [the celebrant is] required to stay overnight¹ [in Jerusalem], so on the feast of Tabernacles he is required to stay overnight. How do we know this in the case of Passover? — Because it is written,² And thou shalt turn in the morning and go unto thy tents.³

But whence then do the First Tanna and R. Simeon⁴ derive the rule of compensation for the Feast of Weeks? — They derive it from the statement of Rabbah b. Samuel; for Rabbah b. Samuel stated: The Torah said, Count days⁵ and sanctify the new moon,⁶ count days and sanctify the Feast of Weeks,⁷ [indicating that] just as the new moon [is sanctified for the period corresponding with the unit of time] by which it is counted,⁸ so the Feast of Weeks [is sanctified for the period corresponding with the unit of time] by which it is counted.⁹ [In that case] I should say that [the compensation period of] the Feast of Weeks is only one day?¹⁰ — Raba replied: Do we count only days to the Feast of Weeks and not weeks [also]? Has not a Master said, It is a mizwah to count days and it is also a mizwah to count weeks?¹¹ And further, we read in the text, ‘the feast of weeks’.¹²

But can the paschal lamb¹³ be offered on any of the festivals? The paschal lamb [surely] has a fixed date:¹⁴ if it is brought then, well and goods but if not, it is rejected?¹⁵ — R. Hisda replied: The paschal lamb is mentioned incidentally. R. Shesheth said: ‘Paschal lamb’ here means the peace-offering [brought] in lieu of the paschal lamb.¹⁶ But if that is so, this is covered by the term peace-offerings'?¹⁷ — Our authority mentions the peace-offering [which is brought] in lieu of the paschal lamb and he also mentions the peace-offerings which are brought for their own sake. You might be inclined to think that [the former] being brought in lieu of the paschal lamb is on the same footing as the paschal lamb.¹ Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

What is the authority [in the Scripture] for these rules? — As our Rabbis have taught: 'When thou shalt vow a vow:² this tells me only [the rule for] a vow; how do I know that a freewill-offering³ is also included? We have here the term 'vow' and in another place⁴ we find the expression if a vow or a free will-offering; just as there a freewill-offering goes with the vow, so here, a freewill-offering goes with it. To the Lord thy God: this indicates money valuations, valuations, devoted things, and consecrated things.⁵ Thou shalt not be slack to pay it: it, but not its substitute.⁶ For he will surely require it: this indicates sin-offerings, trespass-offerings, burnt-offerings and peace-offerings.⁷ The Lord thy God: this indicates charity contributions, tithes and firstborn.⁸ From thee: this indicates gleanings, forgotten sheaves and corners of the field. And it will be sin in thee; but not sin in thy offering.⁹

The Master has [just] said: "'Thou shalt not be slack in paying it"; It and not its substitute'. Substitute for what? If the substitute for a burnt-offering or a peace-offering is meant, this is actually offered.¹⁰ If the substitute for a sin-offering, this is allowed to perish.¹¹ How then are we to understand 'its substitute'? — The substitute for a thanksgiving-offering, as R. Hiyya taught: If a thanksgiving offering became mixed up with its substitute and one of them died, there is no remedy for the other,¹² For what is he [the owner] to do? Shall he offer it and offer the bread¹³ with it? Perhaps it is the substitute.¹⁴ Shall he offer it without the bread? Perhaps it is the original thank-offering. But [if that is so,] seeing that it cannot be offered, why do I require a text to exclude it? — R. Shesheth replied: In point of fact, [the intention of the verse is] to exclude the substitutes for burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, and we are dealing here with the case of one which was kept over during two festivals and then became blemished and the owner made it profane by substituting another and this was kept over one festival. You might imagine in this case that since it takes the place of the first, it is as if it had been kept over for three festivals; therefore we are told that this is not so. But on the view of R. Meir who said that as soon as one festival has been allowed to elapse there is a transgression of the precept 'not to delay', what can be said? — Raba replied: Here we are dealing with a case where the animal became blemished during the festival and he declared it profane [by substituting another], and this was kept over the festival. You might imagine that since it takes the place of the first it is as if it had been kept over during the whole of the festival.¹⁵ Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

"And it will be sin in thee," but not sin in thy offering'. Do we derive this lesson from here? Surely it is derived from the text adduced by the 'Others', as it has been taught: 'Others say, I might say that a firstling after a year has passed¹⁶ is like consecrated things that have become disqualified¹⁷ and so is disqualified. Therefore it says, And thou shalt eat before the Lord thy God the tithe of thy corn and of thy wine and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herd and of thy flock.¹⁸ Here firstling is mentioned alongside of tithe, [to indicate that] just as tithe is not disqualified by being kept from one year to another,¹⁹ so a firstling is not disqualified by being kept from one year to another.' — It was still necessary [to learn the lesson in the other way]. For you might have imagined that this applies only to a firstling, which is not for appeasement, but consecrated²⁰ things which are for appeasement²¹ will not appease [if kept over]. Therefore I am told that this is not so.

But still [I may object that]

(1) And the transgression of 'not delaying' is incurred with the passing of one festival (Rashi).

(2) Deut. XXIII, 22.

(3) In making a vow a man said, 'I undertake to bring such-and-such an offering'; in making a freewill-offering he said, 'I undertake to bring this animal as an offering'.

(4) Lev. VII, 16.

(5) V. supra p. 11 nn. 5-8. Because all these went for the repair of the Temple and not to the priests.

(6) This is explained below.

(7) All these as distinct from the vow and freewill-offerings were an obligation the fulfilment of which could be demanded. The burnt-offerings and peace-offerings referred to are those which were brought as an additional offering on the festival. If they had been already set aside, they could be brought on a subsequent festival (V. Tosaf., s.v. למחר).

(8) The words 'the Lord thy God' here are strictly speaking superfluous, and can therefore be used for an exposition.

(9) I.e., the offering is not disqualified thereby.

(10) If the original animal was lost and another substituted and then the first was found, both are offered and the substitute also comes under the rule of 'not delaying'.

(11) And never offered.

(12) I.e., it must be allowed to perish.

(13) V. Lev. VII, 12, 13.

(14) And according to Men. 79b, bread was not to be brought with the substitute of a thanksgiving-offering.

(15) And thus, according to R. Meir, is the rule of 'not delaying' transgressed.

(16) A firstling has to be sacrificed within its first year, v. Deut. XV, 20.

(17) For being offered on the altar.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 6a

the lesson is derived from the exposition of Ben 'Azzai, as It has been taught: Ben 'Azzai said: What is the point of the word otho [it]?¹ Since it says, Thou shalt not be slack in paying it,² I might think that a vow which is delayed also fails to appease. Therefore it says, 'it': this one fails to appease, but a delayed vow does not fail to appease! — No; [what we must say is], “in thee a sin”, but not in thy wife a sin’. For you might think that, since R. Johanan [or, as some say, R. Eleazar] has said, ‘A man’s wife dies only because money is [rightfully] demanded of him and he has it not,’³ as it says, Why should he take thy bed from under thee’?⁴ and so I would say that his wife will die also because of this transgression of ‘not delaying’. We are therefore told [that this is not so].

Our Rabbis taught: ‘That which is gone out of thy lips:⁵ this is an affirmative precept.⁶ Thou shalt observe: this is a negative precept. And do: this is an injunction to the Beth din to make thee do, According as thou hast vowed: this means a vow. To the Lord thy God: this means sin-offerings and trespass-offerings, burnt-offerings and peace-offerings.⁷ A freewill-offering:⁸ this has its literal meaning. Even that which thou hast promised: this means things sanctified for the repair of the Temple. With thy mouth: this means charity.’

The Master has here said that “that which is gone out of thy lips” implies an affirmative precept’. Why do I require the words for this purpose? This lesson can be derived from the words, and thither thou shalt come and thither ye shall bring.⁹ “Thou shalt observe”; this implies a negative precept’. Why do I require these words? This lesson can be derived from ‘thou shalt not be slack in paying it’.¹⁰ “And do”: this is an injunction to the Beth din to make thee do’. Why do I require these words? This lesson can be derived from he shall bring it,¹¹ as it has been taught: He shall bring it: this teaches us that he is to be constrained¹² [if necessary]. I might say, even against his will. Therefore it says, of his own will.¹³ What is to be done then? We constrain him until he says ‘I am willing’. [What is the answer?] — The one [set of texts¹⁴ deal with the case] where he had pledged himself but had not yet set aside the animal, the other with the case where he had set it aside but had not yet offered it. And both are required. For if the rule had been laid down only for the case where he had pledged himself but had not yet set aside the animal, [I might say that the reason is] because he has not yet carried out his word, but where he has set it aside but not yet offered it I might argue that wherever it is, it is in the treasury of the All-Merciful. These texts therefore were necessary. And if again the rule had been laid down only for the cases where he has set the animal aside but not yet offered it, I might say that the reason is because he is keeping it by him, but if he has pledged himself without having yet set it aside I might argue that his mere word counts for nothing. Therefore these texts are also necessary.

But how can you say that [one set of texts is] where he has pledged himself but not yet set aside, seeing that ‘freewill-offering’ is mentioned, and we have learnt, What is a vow? When a man says, I pledge myself to bring a burnt-offering. What is a freewill-offering? Where a man says, I declare this to be a burnt-offering. What is the difference [in practice] between a vow and a freewill-offering? If [an animal set aside to perform] a vow dies or is stolen, he has to replace it, but if a freewill-offering dies or is stolen he is not bound to replace it! — Raba replied: You can find a freewill-offering of this kind¹⁵ in the case where he said, ‘I pledge myself to bring a burnt-offering on condition that I shall not be obliged to replace it’.

“With thy mouth”: this is charity’. Raba said: For [paying] charity-offerings one becomes liable at once. What is the reason? Because the poor are waiting.¹⁶ Surely this is obvious? — [Not so, since] you might think that, as charity is mentioned in the passage dealing with offerings, [it need not be paid] till three festivals have elapsed, as in the case of offerings. We are therefore told that this is not so. Only the others [the offerings] were made by the All-Merciful dependent on the festivals, but this [charity] is not so, because the poor are waiting.¹⁷

Raba said: As soon as one festival has elapsed, he transgresses an affirmative precept. The following objection was raised:¹⁸ R. Joshua and R. Pappias testified regarding the offspring of a peace-offering¹⁹ that it should also be brought as a peace-offering. R. Pappias said: I testify that we had a heifer which was sacrificed as a peace-offering, and we ate it on Passover, and we ate its young as a peace-offering on the Festival.²⁰ Now I can understand why it was not offered on Passover, the ground being that it was still too short-lived.²¹ But how could the young be kept over Pentecost, which would involve the transgression of an affirmative precept? — R. Zebid said in the name of Raba: It may have been that it was sick on Pentecost. R. Ashi said: What is meant by the statement 'we ate its young as a peace-offering on the Festival'? it means, the Feast of Weeks. What says the other to this? — [He says that] wherever [Pentecost] is mentioned in connection with Passover, it is called 'Assembly' ['azereth].¹

Raba said: As soon as three festivals have elapsed, he transgresses every day the precept of 'not delaying'. The following was cited in objection to this: [The rule] both for a firstling and for all consecrated animals is that so soon as they have been kept back a year [even] without three festivals,² or three festivals even it less than a year, the precept of 'not delaying' is transgressed. What objection is there here?³ — R. Kahana said: The objection is a sound one.⁴ See now: the Tanna is looking for prohibitions; let him then state, 'he transgresses the precept of "not delaying" every day'.⁵ What says the other to this? — [He says that] the Tanna is only anxious to stamp the act as forbidden;⁶ he does not look for extra prohibitions.⁷

[To revert to] the [above] text: '[The rule] both for a firstling and for all consecrated animals is that so soon as they have been kept back a year even without three festivals or three festivals even if less than a year, the precept of "not delaying" is transgressed'. I grant that three festivals without a year are possible; but how is a year possible without three festivals? And I still grant that this is possible for one who requires the three festivals to be in order, but for one who does not require them to be in order how is it possible? And I still grant that this is possible for Rabbi in a leap year, since it has been taught, [It is written] 'a complete year'⁸ : Rabbi says, he [the seller] reckons three hundred and sixty-five days, which is the number of days in the solar year, while the Sages say that he reckons twelve months from day to day,⁹ and if it is a leap year he gets the benefit.¹⁰ — It is possible for Rabbi [to have a year without three festivals] in the case where one sanctified the animal after¹¹ the festival of Passover, since when the end of the next second Adar¹² comes round the year is completed but the number of festivals is not completed. But for the Rabbis how is it possible? — [It is possible] on the basis of what R. Shemaiah learnt: Pentecost is sometimes on the fifth of the [third] month, sometimes on the sixth, and sometimes on the seventh. For instance, if both of them¹³ are full,¹⁴ it is on the fifth;¹⁵ if both of them are defective.,¹⁶ it is on the seventh; if one is full and the other defective, it is on the sixth.¹⁷ Who is the Tanna who takes a different view from R. Shemaiah?¹⁸ It is the 'Others', as it has been taught: Others say that between Pentecost and Pentecost, between New Year and New Year there is always an interval of four days [of the week],¹⁹ or, in a leap year, five.²⁰

R. Zera asked: Does the rule of 'not delaying' apply to an heir?²¹ [Do we reason that] the All-Merciful has said 'When thou shalt vow a vow', and he has not made a vow, or [perhaps we apply the text], and thither thou shalt come and thither shall ye bring,²² and he also is liable?²³ — Come and hear, since R. Hiyya has taught: 'From thee [me'imak]':²⁴ this excludes the heir. But this 'me'imak' is required to bring under the rule gleanings, forgotten sheaves, and corners of the field?²⁵ — I expound 'imak, and I expound me'imak.²⁶

R. Zera also asked: Does the rule of 'not delaying' apply to a woman? Do we reason that she is not obliged to appear [at Jerusalem on the festivals]²⁷ or perhaps do we reason that she is enjoined to rejoice?²⁸ — Abaye replied: Is not the answer provided by the fact that she is enjoined to rejoice? But could Abaye say this, seeing that Abaye has said that a woman is made joyful by her husband?²⁹ Abaye was answering R. Zera on his own premises.

The question was raised: From what day is the year of the firstling reckoned? — Abaye said, From the hour of its birth; R. Aha b. Jacob said, From the time when it can be used for appeasement.³⁰ Nor is there any conflict of opinion between them; one speaks of an animal without blemish,³¹

, the other of an animal with a blemish.¹ Can a blemished animal be eaten [on the day of birth]?² [We speak of one] of which we know for certain that it has not been born prematurely.³

Our Rabbis taught: On the first of Nisan is New Year for months,⁴ for leap-years,⁵ and for the offering of shekalim;⁶ some say, also for the renting of houses.⁷

'New Year for months': whence do we know this? — Because it is written, This month shall be unto you the beginning of months, it shall be the first month of the year to you. Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take unto then: every man a lamb, according to their fathers' houses, a lamb for a household. . . and ye shall keep it until the fourteenth day of the same month, and they shall kill it⁸ etc. It is also written [elsewhere],⁹ Observe the month of Abib¹⁰ [springing corn]. Now which is the month in which there is springing corn? You must say this is Nisan; and this is called 'first'. But cannot I say that it is Iyar? — We require springing corn', and there is none. But cannot I say that it is Adar? — We require the bulk of the springing corn, and this we have not [in Adar]. But does the text say, 'the bulk of the springing corn'? Rather, said R. Hisda; we learn it from here: Howbeit on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruits of the land.¹¹ What is the month in which there is 'gathering in'?¹² You must say that this is Tishri, and the text calls it 'seventh'. But cannot I say that it is Marheshvan, and by 'seventh' is meant the seventh to Iyar? — We require 'gathering in', and this we have not [in Marheshvan]. But cannot I say that it is Elul, and by seventh' is meant seventh to Adar? — We require the bulk of the ingathering, which we have not [in Elul]. But does the text say, 'the bulk of the ingathering'? — The fact is, said Rabina, that we cannot learn this from the Torah of Moses our teacher, but we have to learn it from the later Scriptures,¹³ [viz.,] Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Shebat.¹⁴ Rabbah b. 'ulla said, [We learn it] from here: So Esther was taken unto king Ahasuerus into his house royal in the tenth month which is the month Tebeth.¹⁵ R. Kahana said: [We learn it] from here, In the fourth day of the ninth month, even in Kislev.¹⁶ R. Aha b. Jacob said, [We learn it] from here: Then were the king's scribes called at that time in the third month which is the month of Sivan.¹⁷ R. Ashi said, [We learn it] from here: They cast pur, that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day and from month to month to the twelfth month, which is the month Adar.¹⁸ If you prefer, I can learn it from here: In the first month which is the month Nisan.¹⁹ Why did not all the others derive it from here?²⁰ — Perhaps 'first' here means, 'first in relation to his [Haman's] affair'.²¹

Why did not our Tanna²² [reckon the first of Nisan as the New Year for months]? — Our Tanna speaks only of years, he does not speak of months.

‘For leap years’. Do we reckon [a New Year] for leap years from Nisan?²³ Has it not been taught: ‘A leap year is not decreed²⁴ before New Year,²⁵ and if such a decree is issued it is not effective. In cases of emergency,²⁶ however, the decree may be issued immediately after New Year, and even so the intercalary month must be [the second] Adar’!²⁷ — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: What is meant here by ‘leap years’? The closing of a leap year, as we have learnt: ‘They’s testified that the year may be declared a leap year throughout the whole of Adar, since others asserted that this could be done only until Purim.’²⁸ What was the reason of those who held that this could be done only until Purim? — Since a Master has stated that ‘enquiries are made regarding the laws of Passover for thirty days before Passover,’²⁹ People might be led into neglecting the rules of heaven.³⁰ What says the other to this? — He says that people know that a leap year depends on calculation, and they say to themselves that the Rabbis have only now got the calculation right.³¹

What of our Tanna?³² — He speaks only of commencements, not of terminations.

‘And for the offering of shekalim’.³³ How do we know this [from Scripture]? — R. Josiah said: The Scripture says, This is the burnt-offering of each month in its month throughout the months of the year.³⁴ The Torah here enjoins:³⁵ ‘Renew [the year] and bring an offering from the new contributions’. That the ‘year’ here commences with Nisan is learnt by analogy with the text,³⁶ It is the first to you of the months of the year.³⁷ But why not suppose it is Tishri from the analogy of, From the beginning of the year?³⁸ — To a year with which months are mentioned we apply the analogy of a year with which months are mentioned, but to a year with which months are not mentioned, we do not apply the analogy of a year with which months are not mentioned.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: It is proper to bring the congregational sacrifices that are offered on the first of Nisan from the new contributions. If, however, they are brought from the old, the duty has been performed,³⁹ but not in the most appropriate manner.⁴⁰ It has been taught to the same effect: ‘It is proper to bring the congregational sacrifices which are offered on the first of Nisan from the new contributions; if, however, they were brought from the old, the duty has been performed, but not in the most appropriate manner. If a private person has offered them from his own property, they are unexceptionable, provided he hands them over to the congregation’. Surely this is self-evident? — You might think that we should have some scruples [in accepting them], in case he has not transferred them with all his heart.¹ We are told therefore [that this is not necessary].

Why does our Tanna [not reckon New Year for shekalim]? — Since it is laid down that if the sacrifices are brought [from the old contributions] the duty is still performed, he was not certain [whether this should be counted a New Year].

'Some say, Also for the renting of houses'. Our Rabbis have taught: 'If a man lets a house to another for a year, he reckons it as twelve months from day to day.² If, however, he stipulates "for this year", then even if the tenant only entered into occupation³ on the first of Adar, as soon as the first of Nisan arrives,⁴ a year has been completed.' And even according to those who say that one day in the year is reckoned as a year, this does not apply here, because a man would not trouble to rent a house for less than thirty days. But why should I not say that Tishri [is the New Year for letting houses]?⁵ — It is taken for granted that when a man takes a house [in Tishri], he takes it for the whole of the rainy season. Why do the first Tanna of the Baraita and our Tanna [not reckon the renting of houses]? — In Nisan also there is often cloudy weather.⁶

ON THE FIRST OF ELUL IS NEW YEAR FOR THE TITHE OF CATTLE. Who is the authority for this? — It is R. Meir, as it has been taught: 'R. Meir says, On the first of Elul is New Year for the tithe of cattle'. Who is the authority in respect of festivals? It is R. Simeon,⁷ Now look at the succeeding clause: R. ELEAZAR AND R. SIMEON SAY, ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI. [Am I to say that] the first and third statements here follow the authority of R. Simeon and the middle one that of R. Meir? — R. Joseph said: The authority here is Rabbi, and he decides now in accordance with one, now with another Tanna. In respect of festivals he concurs with R. Simeon, and in respect of tithe of cattle he concurs with R. Meir. If that is so, how can he say FOUR [New Years]? There are five?⁸ — Raba replied: There are four according to all authorities. There are four according to R. Meir, excluding the festivals,⁹ and four according to R. Simeon, excluding the tithe of cattle.¹⁰ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: [The meaning of our Mishnah is], There are four months in which there are a number of New Years.¹¹

An objection was raised: 'The sixteenth of Nisan is the New Year for the 'Omer';¹² the sixth of Sivan is the New Year for the two loaves'.¹³ Now [this being so], according to Raba the Mishnah should say six, and according to R. Nahman b. Isaac five? — R. Papa said: In fixing the number, [the Tanna] reckons only such [New Years] as commence with the evening,¹⁴ he does not reckon those that do not commence with¹⁵ the evening.¹⁶ But what of festivals which [in respect of vows] do not commence with the evening¹⁷ and yet are reckoned? — Since he has to bring [his vow], he becomes guilty [of 'delaying'] from the very commencement [of the festival].¹⁸ But what of Jubilees which do not commence with the evening,¹⁹ and yet are reckoned in? — This follows the view of R. Johanan b. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka, who said that the Jubilee commences with the New Year. R. Shisha the son of R. Idi said: In fixing the number, [the Tanna] reckoned only New Years that are not inaugurated with some ceremony,²⁰ but he does not reckon those that are inaugurated with a ceremony.²¹ But what of festivals, which [in respect of vows] are inaugurated with a ceremony,²² and yet are not reckoned? — The [transgression of] 'not delaying' comes automatically.²³

(1) Lit., 'very well'.

(2) I.e., from a date in one month to the same date in the same month next year.

(3) Lit., 'stood'.

(4) I.e., as soon as thirty days have passed.

(5) So that, if a man rents a house on the first of Elul for a year, he takes it only to the first of Tishri.

(6) And therefore at no time would a man if he took a house for a year mean merely thirty days.

(7) As explained above, that R. Simeon requires three festivals in order in the matter of vows, and he is therefore the authority for the first statement in the Mishnah, that there is a New Year for festivals.

(8) The New Year for festivals being on the fifteenth of Nisan.

(9) Since R. Meir is of the view that the transgression is involved after the lapse of one festival. V. supra 4b.

(10) I.e., the first of Elul as a separate New Year; since R. Simeon places it on the first of Tishri which is in any case a new year.

(11) There being two in Nisan, and these are counted as one.

(12) I.e., for making permissible the new corn. Lev. XXIII, 14.

(13) For bringing meal-offerings from the new corn. Ibid. 17.

(14) E.g., the New Year for kings commences with the evening of the first of Nisan.

(15) Lit., 'full'.

(16) As instanced presently.

(17) It being assumed that the precept of 'not delaying' is not transgressed till the hour arrives when the animal vowed may be offered, i.e., till the perpetual offering of the morning is brought.

(18) Even though he is unable to bring the sacrifice till the morning.

(19) But which are ushered in with a blast of the shofar on the Day of Atonement, in the daytime.

(20) Lit. 'depend on an act'. I.e., the New Years which begin with the advent of the day itself.

(21) The prohibition of the new corn for personal consumption and for offerings respectively is raised only by the offering of the Omer and the two loaves.

(22) No sacrifice could be offered before the bringing of the daily morning sacrifice.

(23) As soon as the Festival sets in.

But what of Jubilees?¹ — This follows the authority of R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka. R. Ashi said: [The meaning of our Mishnah is,] There are four New Years which fall on four firsts of the month.² [Do you then reckon] the first of Shebat [as one and so] follow Beth Shammai?³ — He [R. Ashi] meant it in this way: There are three according to all authorities; with regard to the first of Shebat there is a difference of opinion between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.

R. ELEAZAR AND R. SIMEON SAID, ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI. R. Johanan said: They both based their opinions on the same verse, viz., The rams have mounted the sheep⁴ and the valleys also are covered over with corn, they shout for joy, yea, they sing.⁵ R. Meir reasoned: When do the rams mount the sheep? At the time when the valleys are covered over with corn. And when are the valleys covered over with corn? In Adar. The sheep conceive in Adar and bear in Ab,⁶ and their New Year is in Elul. R. Eleazar and R. Simeon said: When do the rams mount the sheep? At the time when they [the ears of corn] shout for joy and sing.⁷ When do the ears of corn burst into song? In Nisan. They conceive in Nisan and bear in Elul, and their New Year is in Tishri. How then does the other [R. Meir] account for the words, ‘they shout for joy, yea they sing’? — This refers to the late ones, whose conception takes place in Nisan. But how then does the other [R. Eleazar] account for the words, the valleys are covered with corn? — That refers to the early ones, whose conception takes place in Adar. Now according to R. Meir, there is no difficulty; the text says, ‘The rams mount the sheep’, to wit at the time when ‘the valleys are covered with corn’, but there are some also [which do not conceive till] they shout aloud and sing’. But on the view of R. Eleazar and R. Simeon, the clauses should be reversed, thus: ‘The rams mount the sheep’, to wit, at the time when the ears of corn ‘shout for joy and sing’, but there are some which do so [already] ‘when the valleys are covered with corn’? — The fact is, said Raba, that all authorities hold that the rams mount the sheep at the time when the valleys are covered with corn, which is in Adar, but where they differ is in the exposition of the following text, viz., Thou shalt surely tithe,⁸ [in regard to which we have learnt that] the Scripture speaks of two tithes, the tithe of cattle and the tithe of corn. Now R. Meir was of opinion that the tithe of cattle is put on the same footing as the tithe of corn in this way: just as corn becomes liable to tithe, soon after it reaches completion,⁹ so cattle becomes liable to tithe soon after it reaches completion.¹⁰ R. Eleazar and R. Simeon again held that the tithe of cattle is put on the same footing as the tithe of corn in this way: just as the New Year for the tithe of corn is in Tishri, so the New Year for the tithe of cattle is in Tishri.

ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI IS NEW YEAR FOR YEARS. What legal bearing has this? — R. Papa said: For [determining the validity of] documents, as we have learnt, ‘Bonds if antedated are invalid, but if postdated are valid’.¹¹ But we have learnt, ON THE FIRST OF NISAN IS NEW YEAR FOR KINGS, and we asked, What is the legal bearing of this, and R. Hisda replied, For [determining the validity of] documents?¹² — There is no contradiction; the one statement refers to kings of Israel, the other to kings of other nations. What then of the dictum of R. Hisda, ‘This statement refers only to the kings of Israel, but for the kings of other nations we reckon from Tishri’; was R. Hisda telling us only something that we already know from a Mishnah? — No; R. Hisda wanted to tell us the import of some Scriptural verses.¹³ If you like I can say that R. Hisda explains the Mishnah here in the same way as R. Zera, since R. Zera said [that it¹⁴ means], for reckoning cycles,¹⁵ in this following the view of R. Eleazar, who said that the world was created in Tishri.¹⁶ R. Nahman b. Isaac [explained the Mishnah to refer] to the Divine judgment ‘as it is written, From the beginning of the year to the end of the year,¹⁷ [which means], From the beginning of the year sentence is passed as to what shall be up to the end of it. How do we know that this takes place in Tishri? — Because it is written, Blow the horn at the new moon, at the covered time [keseh]¹⁸ for our feastday.¹⁹ Which is the feast on which the moon is covered over [mithkaseh]? You must say that this is New Year;¹ and it is written [in this connection], For it is a statute for Israel, an ordinance for the God of Jacob.²

Our Rabbis taught: 'For it is a statute for Israel, an ordinance for the God of Jacob': this teaches that the heavenly Beth din does not assemble for judgment until the Beth din on earth has sanctified the month'.

Another [Baraitha] taught: 'For it is a statute for Israel'; this tells me only that Israel [are judged]; how do I know that this applies also to the [other] nations of this world? Because it is written, an ordinance for the God of Jacob'. If that is the case, what is the point of saying, For it is a statute for Israel?³ — It teaches that Israel are brought up for trial first. And this is in harmony with the [following] saying of R. Hisda. For R. Hisda said: Where a king⁴ and a community appear together, the king is brought up for judgment first, as it says, the judgment of his servant [Solomon] and the judgment of his people.⁵ What is the reason? — If you like I can say, because it is not seemly that the king should stand outside, and if you like I can say, [the king is tried] before [the Divine] wrath becomes really fierce.⁶

FOR RELEASE YEARS. How do we know this [from the Scripture]? — Because it is written, And in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land,⁷ and that this commences with Tishri we learn from the analogy with the word 'year'⁸ in from the beginning of the year.⁹ But let us learn that it is Nisan from analogy with the word 'year' in the text, it is the first to you of the months of the year?¹⁰ — We draw an analogy to a year with which months are not mentioned from a year with which months are not mentioned, but we do not draw an analogy to a year with which months are not mentioned from a year with which months are mentioned.¹¹

AND FOR JUBILEE YEARS. [is the New Year for] Jubilees on the first of Tishri? Surely [the New Year for] Jubilees is on the tenth of Tishri, as it is written, on the day of atonement shall ye make proclamation with the horn?¹² — What authority is here followed? R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka, as it has been taught: And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year.¹³ What is the point of these words? [It is this]. Since it says, On the day of atonement [ye shall make proclamation],¹² I might think that the year is sanctified only from the Day of Atonement onwards. Therefore it says, And ye shall sanctify the fiftieth year. This teaches that it is sanctified from its inception. On this ground R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka laid down that from New Year to the Day of Atonement slaves were neither dismissed to their homes nor subjected to their masters, but they ate and drank and made merry, wearing garlands on their heads.¹⁴ When the Day of Atonement came, the Beth din sounded the horn; slaves were dismissed to their homes and fields returned to their original owners. And the Rabbis [— what do they make of this verse]? — [They say it teaches that] you are to sanctify years but not months.¹⁵

Another [Baraitha] taught: 'It is a Jubilee.'¹⁶ What is the point of these words? — Since it says, And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year,¹³ I might think that, just as it is sanctified from its inception onwards, so it remains sanctified [for a time] after its termination. And there would be nothing to wonder at in this, seeing that we [regularly] add from the profane on to the holy.¹⁷ Therefore it says, it is a Jubilee to you, the fiftieth year, [to show that] you are to sanctify the fiftieth year, but not the fifty-first year.¹⁸

And the Rabbis [— what do they make of these words]?¹ — [They say]: You are to count the fiftieth year, but you are not to count the fifty-first,² to exclude the view of R. Judah, who said that the fiftieth year is reckoned both ways.³ We are here told that this is not so.

And how do we know [from the Scripture] that we add from the profane on to the holy?⁴ — As it has been taught: In plowing time and in harvest time thou shalt rest.⁵ R. Akiba, [commenting on this,] said: There was no need [for Scripture] to specify the ploughing and harvest of the Sabbatical year, since this has already been mentioned [in] thy field thou shalt not sow etc.⁶ What must be meant therefore is the ploughing of the year before the seventh which is passing into the seventh,⁷ and the harvest of the seventh year which is continuing into the period after the seventh year.⁸ R. Ishmael said: Just as ploughing is optional,⁹ so the harvest [here referred to] is an optional one, excluding the harvesting of the 'Omer, which is a religious duty.¹⁰ Whence then does R. Ishmael derive the rule that an addition is to be made from the profane on to the holy? — From what has been taught: And ye shall afflict your souls on the ninth day:¹¹ I might think [literally] on the ninth day. It therefore says, In the evening.¹² if in the evening, I might think, after dark? It therefore says, 'or, the ninth day'.¹³ What then am I to understand? That we begin fasting while it is yet day; which shows that we add from the profane on to the holy. I know this [so far] only in regard to the inception [of the holy day]; how do I know it in regard to its termination? Because it says, from evening to evening.¹² So far I have brought only the Day of Atonement under the rule; how do I know that it applies to Sabbaths also? Because it says, ye shall rest.¹⁴ How do I know that it applies to festivals? Because it says, your Sabbath.¹⁴ How am I to understand this? That wherever there is an obligation to rest, we add from the profane on to the holy.

What then does R. Akiba make of this, 'and ye shall afflict your souls on the ninth day'? — He requires it for the lesson learnt by R. Hiyya b. Rab from Difti.¹⁵ For R. Hiyya b. Rab from Difti learnt: 'And ye shall afflict your souls on the ninth day'. Do we then fast on the ninth day? Is it not on the tenth day that we fast? [We do]; but [the use of this word] indicates that if a man eats and drinks on the ninth day, the Scripture accounts it to him

(1) They have no need of this lesson, seeing that they do not consider the year sanctified from its inception. (Cf. Tosaf. s.v. ורבנן 8b).

(2) Lit. 'the year fifty and first'. So our texts, the meaning being, according to Rashi, that you are not to reckon the fiftieth year as fiftieth to the Jubilee and first to the next septennate. Tosaf., by a slight change of wording, renders: 'You are to count the fiftieth year (as fiftieth to the Jubilee), but you are not to count the fiftieth year as one (to the following septennate)', which is a smoother reading.

(3) As fiftieth to the Jubilee and first to the next septennate.

as if he fasted on both the ninth and the tenth days.¹

Our Rabbis taught: It is a Jubilee² — 'A Jubilee'³ even though they did not observe the release of fields, even though they did not observe the blowing of the trumpet.⁴ I might say [that it is still a Jubilee] even though they did not observe the dismissal of slaves. Therefore it says, 'it is'.⁵ So R. Judah. R. Jose said: 'It is a Jubilee', — 'A Jubilee'³ even though they did not release fields, even though they did not dismiss slaves. I might think [that it is still a Jubilee] even if they did not blow the trumpet. It therefore says, 'it is'. Now⁶ since one text brings some cases under the rule and another text excludes others from it, why should I expound: 'A Jubilee',⁷ even though they did not dismiss, but it is not a Jubilee unless they blew the trumpet? Because it is possible that there should be no [opportunity for]⁸ dismissing slaves, but it is not possible that there should be no [opportunity for] blowing the trumpet.⁹ Another explanation is that the performance of the latter depends on the Beth din, but the performance of the former does not depend on the Beth din.¹⁰ What need is there for the alternative explanation? — Because you might argue that it is impossible that there should not be someone in some part of the world who has not a slave to dismiss. Therefore I say that the one depends on the Beth din but the other does not depend on the Beth din.

I understand R. Jose's point of view, his reason being as he stated. But what is R. Judah's reason? — The text says, And ye shall proclaim liberty throughout the land,¹¹ and he holds that a text may be expounded in connection with the clause immediately preceding it, but not with the one before that.¹²

All authorities agree that the word deror¹³ means freedom. What does this tell us? — As it has been taught: The word deror means freedom. R. Judah said: What is the significance of the word deror? [The freedom of] one who dwells [medayyer] where he likes¹⁴ and can carry on trade in the whole country.

R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: The views given above are those of R. Judah and R. Jose, but the Sages say that [the neglect of] any of these three ceremonies renders the Jubilee inoperative. Their view was that a text can be expounded in connection both with the clause immediately preceding it and with the one before that and with the one that follows it.¹⁵ But it is written 'Jubilee'¹⁶ — This is to show that it must be kept even outside of Palestine. But it is written 'throughout the land'¹⁷ — This means that when liberation is carried out in the land it is carried out abroad, and when it is not carried out in the land it need not be carried out abroad.

AND FOR PLANTATION. How do we know this [from the Scripture]? — Because it is written, Three years [it shall be] uncircumcised,¹⁸ and it is written, and in the fourth year,¹⁹ and we learn that this year commences with Tishri from the analogy of the word 'year' in the text from the beginning of the year.²⁰ But why not conclude that it commences with Nisan from the analogy of the word 'year' in It is the first to you of the months of the year? — We draw an analogy to a year with which months are not mentioned from a year with which months are not mentioned, but we do not draw an analogy to a year with which months are not mentioned from a year with which months are mentioned.

Our Rabbis taught: 'If one plants or bends over²¹ or grafts a tree in the year before²² the Sabbatical year thirty days before New Year — in all three cases, [by New Year] a year has passed for him,²³ and he can preserve the growth during the seventh year. [If he does so] less than thirty days before New Year, the interval [up to New Year] does not count as a year for him and he may not preserve the growth in the Sabbatical year

(1) Because the eating and drinking on the ninth day is called in the text 'fasting'.

(2) Lev. XXV, 11.

(3) Added by Bah.

(4) The superfluous word 'Jubilee' shows that even in these cases the year is observed as a Jubilee for the abstaining from sowing etc.

(5) ש"ך This word having a limiting force.

(6) This is a continuation of R. Jose's statement.

(7) So Bah; cur. edd. 'It is a Jubilee'.

(8) Lit., 'it is possible for the world'. E.g., if no Israelite had a slave.

(9) It is hardly possible that there should be no trumpet.

(10) Because the Beth din may not be able to compel all persons to dismiss their slaves.

(11) Just before the words 'it is a Jubilee'.

(12) Hence we apply the limiting force of the words 'it is' to the dismissal of slaves, but not to the blowing of the trumpet, which does not immediately precede.

(13) In Lev. XXV, 10. E.V. 'liberty'.

- (16) This should cancel the limiting force of 'it is'.
- (17) So how can you say that it should be kept outside of Palestine?

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 10a

. The fruit of such a plantation is forbidden until the fifteenth of Shebat,¹ whether as "uncircumcised" in [the year of] "uncircumcision", or as fourth year fruit in the fourth year',² What is the ground for this ruling? — R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan (though some trace it back to the authority of R. Jannai): Scripture says, And in the fourth year. . . and in the fifth year.³ There are occasions when fruit appears in the fourth year and it is still forbidden on account of uncircumcision', and there are occasions when fruit appears in the fifth year and it is still forbidden on account of 'fourth year'.

Shall I say that that is not [in agreement with] R. Meir,⁴ since R. Meir has affirmed⁵ that one day in the year is reckoned as a year, as it has been taught: 'Par [bullock] is mentioned in the Torah without further qualification and means an animal twenty-four months and one day old. So R. Meir. R. Eleazar says, it means an animal twenty-four months and thirty days old. For R. Meir used to say: Wherever 'egel [calf] is mentioned in the Torah without further qualification, it means of the first year; ['egel]⁶ ben bakar [young ox] means, of the second year; par [bullock] means, of the third year'! — You may still say [it is in agreement with] R. Meir. When R. Meir said that one day in a year is counted as a year, he meant at the end of a period,⁷ but not at the beginning.⁸

Raba said: Cannot we apply here an argument a fortiori,⁹ [to wit]: Seeing that in the case of a niddah,¹⁰ though the beginning of the [seventh] day is not reckoned as concluding her period,¹¹ the end of the [first] day yet counts for the beginning of her period,¹² in the case of [a period of] years where one day is counted [as a whole year] at the end,¹³

(11) Her period of uncleanness ending only at nightfall on the seventh day, and not at any hour earlier in the day.

(12) I.e., if she begins counting in the middle of a day, as soon as nightfall arrives she is reckoned as having completed one day. [The reference here is to Niddah who according to Biblical law was allowed to cleanse herself when seven days had passed from her first menstrual flow, provided it ceased on the seventh day before sunset. This law was later replaced by the more stringent Rabbinic rule necessitating a period of seven clean days after a single blood issue.]

(13) As in the case of the par.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 10b

does it not follow that one day should be counted [as a year] at the beginning? — What then? Will you say [that the passage quoted¹ follows] R. Eleazar? [How can this be, seeing that] R. Eleazar requires thirty days and thirty days,² as we have learnt: ‘It is not allowed to plant nor to bend over nor to graft in the year before the Sabbatical year less than thirty days before New Year, and if one did plant or bend over or graft, he must uproot the plant. So R. Eleazar. R. Judah said: If a grafting does not take within three days, it will not take at all. R. Jose and R. Simeon said that it takes two weeks’,³ and [commenting on this] R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: On the view that thirty days are the period [for taking] we require thirty days and thirty;⁴ on the view that three days are the period, thirty-three days are required; on the view that two weeks are the period, two weeks and thirty days are required. Now even if [we accept the view of] R. Judah, thirty-three days are required? — The truth is [that the statement in question follows] R. Meir, and when it says thirty days, it means the thirty days of taking. In that case it should say thirty-one days?⁵ — He held that the thirtieth day counts both ways.

R. Johanan said: Both of them [R. Meir and R. Eleazar] based their views on the same verse, viz., And it came to pass in the one and six hundredth year, in the first month, on the first day of the month.⁶ R. Meir reasoned: Seeing that the year was only one day old and it is still called a year, we can conclude that one day in a year is reckoned as a year. What says the other to this? — [He says that] if it were written, ‘In the six hundred and first year’, then it would be as you say. Seeing, however, that it is written, ‘In the one and six hundredth year’, the word ‘year’ refers to ‘six hundred’, and as for the word ‘one’, this means ‘the beginning of one’.⁷ And what is R. Eleazar's reason? — Because it is written, ‘In the first month on the first day of the month. Seeing that the month was only one day old and it is yet called ‘month’, we can conclude that one day in a month is reckoned as a month; and since one day in a month is reckoned as a month, thirty days in a year are reckoned as a year, a month being reckoned by its unit and a year by its unit.

(We infer from what has just been said that both [R. Meir and R. Eleazar] were of opinion that the world was created in Nisan.)⁸

It has been taught: R. Eliezer says: In Tishri the world was created; in Tishri the Patriarchs⁹ were born; in Tishri the Patriarchs died; on Passover Isaac was born; on New Year Sarah, Rachel and Hannah were visited;¹⁰ on New Year Joseph went forth from prison

(7) I.e., it merely gives the date, but gives no indication that a day can be counted as a year.

(8) Because both agree that ‘the first day of the first month’ in the text marks the beginning of another year. Rashi points out that both might equally well hold that the ‘first month’ here means Tishri, it being so called as first month to the creation and he therefore rejects this sentence. But v. Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 11a

; on New Year the bondage of our ancestors in Egypt ceased;¹ in Nisan they were redeemed and in Nisan they will be redeemed in the time to come. R. Joshua says: In Nisan the world was created; in Nisan the Patriarchs were born; in Nisan the Patriarchs died; on Passover Isaac was born; on New Year Sarah, Rachel and Hannah were visited; on New Year Joseph went forth from prison; on New Year the bondage of our ancestors ceased in Egypt; and in Nisan they will be redeemed in time to come.

It has been taught: 'R. Eliezer says: Whence do we know that the world was created in Tishri? Because it says, And God said, Let the earth put forth grass, herb yielding seed, and fruit-tree.² Which is the month in which the earth puts forth grass and the trees are full of fruit? You must say that this is Tishri. That time was the season of rainfall,³ and the rain came down and the plants sprouted, as it says, And a mist went up from the earth.⁴

R. Joshua says: Whence do we know that the world was created in Nisan? Because it says, And the earth brought forth grass, herb yielding seed after its kind, and tree bearing fruit.⁵ Which is the month in which the earth is full of grass and trees [begin to] produce fruit? You must say that this is Nisan. That time was the period when cattle, beasts and fowls copulate with one another, as it says, The rains have mounted the sheep etc.⁶ And how does the other explain the text, 'tree bearing fruit'? — This signifies a blessing for future generations. And what does the other make of the words 'fruit-tree'? — This is to be explained in accordance with the dictum of R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: All creatures of the creation were brought into being with their full stature, their full capacities, and their full beauty, as it says, And the heaven and the earth were finished, and all the host of them [zeba'am]. Read not zeba'am, but zibyonam [their beauty].

R. Eliezer said: Whence do we know that the Patriarchs were born in Tishri? Because it says, And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto King Solomon, at the feast in the month Ethanim;⁷ that is, the month in which the mighty ones [ethanim] of the world were born. How do you know that this word ethan means 'mighty'? — Because it is written, Thy dwelling-place is firm [ethan],⁸ and it also says, Hear, ye mountains, the Lord's controversy, and ye mighty rocks [ethanim] the foundations of the earth.⁹ It also says, The voice of my beloved, behold he cometh, leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills,¹⁰ [where] 'leaping upon the mountains' means, for the merit of the patriarchs, and 'skipping upon the hills' means, for the merit of the matriarchs.

R. Joshua said: Whence do we know that the patriarchs were born in Nisan? Because it says, and it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year in the month of Ziv¹¹ — that is, the month in which the brilliant ones [zewthane] of the world were born. But how does he explain the expression 'month of Ethanim'? — It means, [the month] which is strong in religious duties.¹² What does the other make of the expression 'in the month of Ziv'? — It means, the month in which there is splendour for the trees, for so Rab Judah has said: When a man goes abroad in the days of Nisan and sees trees blossoming, he should say, 'Blessed is He that hath not left His world short of anything and has created therein goodly creatures and goodly trees to rejoice mankind'.

He who holds that they were born in Nisan holds that they died in Nisan, and he who holds that they were born in Tishri holds that they died in Tishri, as it says, I am a hundred and twenty years old this day.¹³ The word 'this day' seems here superfluous. What then is the point of it? [As much as to say], This day my days and years have reached full measure, which teaches that the Holy One, blessed be He, sits and completes the years of the righteous from day to day and from month to month, as it says, The number of thy days I will fulfil.¹⁴

Whence do we know that Isaac was born on Passover? — Because it is written, On the [next] festival¹⁵ I will return unto thee.¹⁶ Now when was he [the angel] speaking?¹⁷ Shall I say [he was speaking] on Passover and referring to Pentecost? Could she bear in fifty days?¹⁸ Shall I say then that [he was speaking on] Pentecost and was referring to Tishri? Even in five months could she bear? I must suppose then that he was speaking on Tabernacles and referring to Passover.¹⁹ Even so, could she bear in six months? — It has been taught that that year was a leap year. All the same, if the Master deducts the days of uncleanness,²⁰ the time is too short? — Mar Zutra replied: Even those who hold that when a woman bears at nine months she does not give birth before the month is complete²¹ admit that if she bears at seven months she can give birth before the month is complete, as it says, And it came to pass after the cycle of days;²² the minimum of cycles is two, and the minimum of days is two.

‘On New Year Sarah, Rachel and Hannah were visited’. Whence do we know this? — R. Eliezer said: We learn it from the two occurrences of the word ‘visiting’, and the two occurrences of the word ‘remembering’. It is written concerning Rachel, And God remembered Rachel,²³ and it is written concerning Hannah, And the Lord remembered her,²⁴ and there is an analogous mention of ‘remembering’ in connection with New Year, as it is written, a solemn rest, a remembering of the blast of the trumpet.²⁵ The double mention of visiting [is as follows]. It is written concerning Hannah, For the Lord had visited Hannah,²⁶ and it is written concerning Sarah, And the Lord visited Sarah.²⁷

‘On New Year Joseph went forth from the prison’. Whence do we know this? — Because it is written, Blow the horn on the new moon, on the covering day for our festival . . .

(3) Lit., ‘fructification’.

(4) Gen. II, 6. This is supposed to have been at the time of the creation, and is therefore a proof that the world was created in Tishri.

(21) Lit., ‘defective (months)’. I.e., less than twenty-nine or thirty days.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 11b

He appointed it for Joseph for a testimony when he went forth¹ etc.

‘On New Year the bondage of our ancestors ceased in Egypt’. It is written in one place, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians,² and it is written in another place, I removed his shoulder from the burden.³ ‘In Nisan they were delivered’, as Scripture recounts. ‘In Tishri they will be delivered in time to come’. This is learnt from the two occurrences of the word ‘horn’. It is written in one place, Blow the horn on the new moon,⁴ and it is written in another place, In that day a great horn shall be blown.⁵ ‘R. Joshua says, In Nisan they were delivered, in Nisan they will be delivered in the time to come’. Whence do we know this? — Scripture calls [the Passover] ‘a night of watchings’,⁶ [which means], a night which has been continuously watched for from the six days of the creation. What says the other to this? — [He says it means], a night which is under constant protection against evil spirits.⁷

R. Joshua and R. Eliezer are herein consistent [with views expressed by them elsewhere], as it has been taught: ‘In the sixth hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, on the seventeenth day of the month.’⁸ R. Joshua said: That day was the seventeenth day of Iyar, when the constellation of Pleiades sets at daybreak and the fountains begin to dry up, and because they [mankind] perverted their ways, the Holy One, blessed be He, changed for them the work of creation and made the constellation of Pleiades rise at daybreak and took two stars from the Pleiades and brought a flood on the world. R. Eliezer said: That day was the seventeenth of Marheshvan, a day on which the constellation of Pleiades rises at daybreak, and [the season] when the fountains begin to fill

, and because they perverted their ways, the Holy One, blessed be He, changed for them the work of creation, and caused the constellation of Pleiades to rise at daybreak and took away two stars [from it] and brought a flood on the world’.¹ Now accepting the view of R. Joshua, we can understand why the word ‘second’ is used;² but on R. Eliezer's view, what is meant by ‘second’? — [It means], the second to [the day of] judgment.³ Again, on R. Joshua's view we see what change there was in the work of creation; but on R. Eliezer's view what change was there?⁴ — The answer is found in the dictum of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda said: With hot liquid they sinned and with hot liquid they were punished. ‘With hot liquid they sinned’, namely, in [sexual] transgression. ‘With hot liquid they were punished’: it is written here⁵ , and the waters assuaged,⁶ and it is written elsewhere, and the wrath of the king was assuaged.⁷

Our Rabbis taught: ‘The wise men of Israel follow R. Eliezer in dating the Flood⁸ and R. Joshua in dating the annual cycles,⁹ while the scholars of other peoples follow R. Joshua in dating the Flood also’.

AND FOR VEGETABLES. A Tanna taught: 'For vegetables and for tithes and for vows'. What is meant by vegetables? The tithe of vegetables? But this is the same as 'tithes'? — [The Tanna] mentions first a tithe prescribed by the Rabbis and then those prescribed by the Torah.¹⁰ But let him mention those prescribed by the Torah first? — Since he was specially pleased with the others,¹¹ he mentions them first. And our Tanna [— why does he not mention tithes]? — He mentions a tithe prescribed by the Rabbis,¹² and [leaves us to infer] a fortiori those prescribed by the Torah. Why does not the Tanna here say simply 'tithe' [in the singular]? — He desires to include both the tithe of cattle and the tithe of cereals. Then why does he not say vegetable' [in the singular]? — He refers to two kinds of vegetables, as we have learnt: '[Tithe is to be given from] vegetables which are commonly made up into bundles, from the time they are so made up, and from those which are not commonly so made up, from the time when he fills a vessel with them.

Our Rabbis taught: If one¹³ gathered herbs on the eve of New Year before sunset, and then gathered some more

(1) There seems to be some confusion in the text here. To make it astronomically correct we should read (with the Seder Olam) in the dictum of R. Joshua, 'When Pleiades rises at daybreak', and in the dictum of R. Eliezer, 'sets at daybreak'.

(2) Because we find Nisan called the first month in the Torah.

(3) Which is also recognized by Scripture as the beginning of a year in the text, 'The eyes of the Lord are upon it (the Land of Israel) from the beginning of the year'.

(4) Seeing that it was the season of rain.

(12) I.e., tithes for vegetables.

(13) Apparently a non-Jew is meant (Tosaf.).

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 12b

after sunset, terumah¹ and tithe are not given from one lot for another, because terumah and tithe are not given from the new for the old nor from the old for the new. If it was at the meeting point of the second and third years² [of the septennial cycle], from that [which is plucked in] the second year first and second tithe³ [have to be given], [and from that which was plucked in] the third year, first tithe and the tithe of the poor.

Whence this rule? — R. Joshua b. Levi says: [It is written], When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithe of thine increase in the third year, which is the year of the tithe.⁴ This means the year in which there is only one tithe.⁵ How is then one to act? [He gives] the first tithe and the tithe of the poor, and the second tithe is omitted. Is this correct, or should the first tithe also be omitted? — [Not so], because it says, Moreover thou shalt speak unto the Levites and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithe which I have given you from them for your inheritance.⁶ The text here compares the tithe [of the Levites] to an inheritance, [to signify that] just as an inheritance is to be held uninterrupted, so their tithe is to be given without interruption. It has been taught to the same effect: 'When thou hast made an end of tithing etc.' [This means] a year in which there is only one tithe. How is one to act? [He gives] first tithe and tithe of the poor, and the second tithe is omitted. Should perhaps the first tithe also be omitted? — [Not so], because it says, and the Levite shall come,⁷ which means to say, every time he comes give him.⁸ So R. Judah. R. Eliezer b. Jacob says:

We have no need [to appeal to this text].⁹ It says, Moreover thou shalt speak unto the Levites and say unto them, When ye take from the children of Israel the tithe which I have given you from them for your inheritance.¹⁰ The text here compares the tithe to an inheritance, to signify that just as an inheritance is held uninterruptedly, so the tithe is to be given without interruption.

AND FOR VOWS. Our Rabbis taught: If one is interdicted by vow to have no benefit from another person for a year, he reckons twelve months from day to day. If he said 'for this year', then even if he made the vow on the twenty-ninth of Elul, as soon as the first of Tishri arrives a year is completed for him; and this even on the view of those who say that one day in a year is not counted as a year. For he undertook to mortify himself, and he has mortified himself. But why not say [that his year ends in] Nisan? — In respect of vows, follow the ordinary use of language.¹¹

We have learnt elsewhere: 'Fenugrec¹² [becomes liable to tithe] from the time when it grows;¹³ produce¹⁴ and olives, from the time when they have grown a third'. What is meant by 'from the time when it grows'? — From the time when it grows sufficiently for resowing.¹⁵ 'Produce and olives from the time when they are a third grown'. Whence this rule? — R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan (some trace it back to the name of R. Jose the Galilean): Scripture says: At the end of every seven years, in the set time of the year of release, in the feast of Tabernacles.¹⁶ Now how comes the year of release to be mentioned here? The feast of Tabernacles is already the eighth year? It is in fact to intimate to us that if produce has grown a third in the seventh year before New Year, the rules of the seventh year are to be applied to it in the eighth year.¹⁷

Said R. Zera to R. Assi:

(1) V. Glos.

(2) Lit., 'if the second entered into the third'. In the second year a tithe was taken to Jerusalem to be consumed there; in the third year a tithe was given to the poor, but not taken to Jerusalem. The first tithe which went to the Levites was given every year. v. infra.

(3) I.e., tithe of the Levites and tithe for Jerusalem.

(4) Deut. XXVI, 12.

(5) I.e., one of the two regular tithes.

(6) Num. XVIII, 26.

(7) Deut. XIV, 29.

(8) In the third year also.

(9) R. Eliezer apparently was not completely satisfied with the proof from this text, because it speaks of the Levite as in the category of the poor.

(10) Num. XVIII, 26.

(11) And men ordinarily talk of the year as beginning in Tishri.

(12) Or 'fenugreek', a leguminous plant allied to clover.

(13) I.e., its year is determined by the time of its growth and not of its gathering, as in the case of vegetables.

(14) התבואה It is a question whether this includes grapes or not. V. Tosaf.

(15) Cf. Tosaf. s.v. משתצמח .

(16) Deut. XXXI, 10.

(17) Tosaf. (s.v. מנהג) points out that this would seem to come under the rule already given above of adding from the profane on to the holy, and answers that from this verse we should learn only that the produce if harvested must be treated as seventh-year produce e.g.. in respect of trading interest, but not that it is forbidden to harvest it.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 13a

But perhaps even though it has not begun to ripen at all, the All-Merciful has still laid down that it is to be left alone until the feast of Tabernacles? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, and the feast of ingathering [asif] at the end of the year.¹ Now what is 'ingathering'? Shall I say it means the feast which comes at the time of ingathering? This is already signified in the words when thou gatherest in.² What then must be meant here by asif? Harvesting;³ and the Rabbis take it for granted that all produce which is harvested by Tabernacles must have grown to a third by New Year, and Scripture applies to it the words at the end of the year.⁴ Said R. Jeremiah to R. Zera: And were the Rabbis certain that there is this distinction between a third and less than a third?⁵ He replied to him: Am I not always telling you not to let yourself go beyond the established rule? All the measurements laid down by the Sages are of this nature. In forty se'ahs [of water] a ritual bath may be taken; in forty se'ahs less a kurtub⁶ it may not be taken. [A quantity of food equal to the] size of an egg can be rendered unclean as foodstuff; if it is short of that quantity by a grain it cannot be rendered unclean. [A piece of cloth] three handbreadths by three can be rendered unclean by being trodden on,⁷ less than this quantity by one hair is not so rendered unclean. R. Jeremiah subsequently said: What I said is of no account. For R. Kahana was asked by members of the college, Whence did the Israelites bring the omer which they offered on their entry into the Land [of Israel]? If you say, it grew⁸ while still in the possession of the heathen, [this cannot be, since] the All Merciful prescribed your harvest⁹ and not the harvest of the stranger. (But how do we know that they [the Israelites] offered it at all? Perhaps they did not offer it at all? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And they did eat of the produce of the land on the morrow after the Passover.¹⁰ On the morrow after the Passover they ate, but not before, [which shows that] they brought the omer and only then ate. Whence then did they obtain it?) — He [R. Kahana] replied to them: All that had not grown to a third while in the possession of the stranger [was fitting for their use]. Now [it might be argued here also that] perhaps it had grown [in the possession of the stranger] and they were not certain. The fact, however, [that they ate it] shows that they were certain. So here,¹¹ the Rabbis are certain. But perhaps [the Israelites brought the omer from] corn which had not commenced to grow [when they entered the land], but where it had grown to a quarter they were not certain about the difference between a third and less than a third?¹² — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And the people went up from the Jordan on the tenth of the month.¹³ Now if you assume that by then the corn had not grown at all, could it become ripe in five days? But [on your assumption] that it had grown to a fourth or a fifth, could [such corn] become ripe in five days? What you consequently have to answer [even on this assumption] is that the land of Canaan is called 'the land of the hind';¹⁴ so [on the other assumption] you can answer that it is called 'the land of the hind'.

R. Hanina objected strongly to the statement made above. Can you, he said, maintain that this 'asif' is 'harvesting', seeing that it is written, when thou gatherest in from thy threshing floor and from thy wine press,¹⁵ and [commenting on this] a Master has said, The verse speaks of the waste of the threshing floor and the wine press?¹⁶ Said R. Zera: I thought I was sure of this,¹⁷ and now R. Hanina has come and put a spoke in my wheel.¹⁸ How then do we know [this rule about a third]? — As it has been taught: R. Jonathan b. Joseph says: And it shall bring forth produce for the three years;¹⁹

(1) Ex. XXIII, 16.

(2) Ibid.

(3) The verse meaning that the harvest gathered in at this season belongs to the year going out.

(4) Which shows that it is regarded as belonging to the year which is going out.

(5) Viz., that what is grown to a third belongs to one year, and what is less grown to another year. This seems to R. Jeremiah rather arbitrary.

read not lishlosh [for three], but lishlish [to a third].¹ But this text is required for its literal meaning?² It is written in another verse, And ye shall sow for the eighth year and eat of the produce, the old store, until the ninth year.³

We have learnt elsewhere:⁴ 'Rice, millet, hanie⁵ and sesame,⁶ if they have taken root by New Year, are for purposes of tithe counted⁷ as belonging to the year before [the New Year],⁸ and are permitted in the seventh year.⁹ Otherwise they are forbidden in the seventh year,⁹ and are reckoned for tithe as belonging to the next year.¹⁰ Rabbah said: The Rabbis have laid down that [the tithe year of] a tree is determined by its blossoming, that of produce and olives by their becoming a third grown, that of vegetables by their ingathering. In which class have these been placed by the Rabbis? — Rabbah answered himself by saying: Since they are gathered for shelling as required,¹¹ the Rabbis made the taking root the determining factor.¹²

Said Abaye to him: Can he not collect the whole crop in a heap,¹³ so that ex post facto he will have set aside from the new crop in it for the new crop in it, and from the old crop in it for the old crop?¹⁴ Has it not been taught:¹⁵ 'R. Jose b. Kippar says in the name of R. Simeon Shezuri: If Egyptian beans have been sown for seed and part takes root before New Year and part after, terumah and tithe must not be given from one lot for another, because terumah and tithe are not given from the new for the old nor from the old for the new. How then is one to manage? He collects the whole crop in a heap, so that in the end he gives terumah and tithe from the new crop in the heap for the new crop in the heap, and from the old crop in the heap for the old crop in the heap! — He replied to him: You cite R. Simeon Shezuri. R. Simeon Shezuri held that mixing can be relied on,¹⁶ whereas the Rabbis held that mixing cannot be relied on.

R. Isaac b. Nahmani said in the name of Samuel: The halachah follows the ruling given by R. Jose b. Kippar in the name of R. Simeon Shezuri. R. Zera strongly demurred to this. Did Samuel, he asked, really say this? Has not Samuel said: Mixing is not relied on for anything save wine and oil? — R. Zera overlooked the following dictum of Samuel: The determining factor is in all cases the full ripening.¹⁷

(1) Meaning that it is considered ripe when it has grown a third.

(2) And how therefore can you use it for a deduction?

(3) Ibid. 22. This shows that the produce of the sixth year will last three years, and therefore the other verse is not required to tell us this and may be used for a deduction.

(4) Sheb. II, 7.

(5) A species of millet.

(6) These are all counted as varieties of pulse.

(7) In an ordinary year.

(8) Second or third as the case may be. V. p. 44, n. 6.

(9) Viz., those that take root in the sixth.

(10) V. Sheb. II, 7.

(11) I.e., some before New Year and some after. [The phrase עשויין פרכין פרכין is difficult. Rashi renders: They (their gathering) are made (as they are needed) for shelling. R. Hananel reads פרגין ('beds') and renders, They ripen (at different times) in different beds, even though they may 'take' at the same time].

(12) Because otherwise it would be difficult to keep the old and the new separate for tithing purposes without great inconvenience.

(13) Lit., 'heap up his threshing-floor in the middle of it'.

(14) Abaye holds that if the whole crops old and new, is well mixed together, then when he sets aside terumah and tithe from it, the proportion of old and new in the terumah and tithe will be the same as the proportion of old and new in the whole crop.

(15) Tosef. Sheb. II.

(16) To produce old and new in proper proportions in the tithe. Lit., 'there is mixing'.

(17) And therefore in fact tithe is given from Egyptian beans all together, whether they took root in the outgoing or in the incoming year, which is as R. Simeon Shezuri said, in so far that the two crops can be tithed together, although according to each for a different reason. For on the view of Samuel the whole is regarded as belonging to the incoming year, which is not what R. Simeon said.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 14a

And all three dicta of Samuel are necessary.¹ For if he had told us only that the law follows R. Simeon b. Shezuri, I should have said that his reason was because we can rely on mixing; he tells us therefore that mixing is not to be relied on for anything. And if he had told us that mixing is not to be relied on for anything, I should have said that he holds with the Rabbis;² therefore he tells us that the halachah follows R. Simeon Shezuri. If again we had only these two dicta, I should have said that Samuel contradicts himself;³ he therefore tells us that the determining factor is in all cases the full ripening.⁴ And if he had told us [only] that the determining factor is in all cases the full ripening, I should have said that this applies also to produce and olives. Therefore he tells us that the halachah follows R. Simeon Shezuri where he expresses a different view.⁵ [But if so], let him indicate [only] these two points; why does he tell us that mixing is not in all cases to be relied on? — His object is to tell us that for wine and oil mixing is to be relied on.

It has been taught: R. Jose the Galilean says: After that thou hast gathered in from thy threshing-floor and from thy wine press:⁶ [this tells us that] just as the [produce brought to the] threshing floor and the wine press have this special feature, that they are nurtured by the waters⁷ of the outgoing year and are [consequently] tithed for the outgoing year, so all products which are nurtured by the waters of the outgoing year are tithed for the outgoing year. This excludes vegetables, which are nurtured by the waters of the current year⁸ and are [consequently] tithed for the current year. R. Akiba said: 'After that thou hast gathered it, from thy threshing-floor and thy wine press:' just as [the products brought to the] threshing-floor and wine press have this special feature that they are nurtured by rain water⁹ and [consequently] are tithed for the outgoing year, so all products that are nurtured by rain water are tithed for the outgoing year. This excludes vegetables, which are nurtured by all kinds of water¹⁰ and are consequently tithed for the current year. Where do they [R. Jose and R. Akiba] differ in practice? — R. Abbahu said: They take different views with regard to seedless onions and Egyptian beans, as we have learnt:¹¹ Seedless onions and Egyptian beans which have been kept without water for thirty days before New Year [and are gathered after New Year] are tithed for the outgoing year and are permitted in the Sabbatical year. Otherwise they are forbidden in the Sabbatical year and are tithed for the current year.¹²

ON THE FIRST OF SHEBAT IS NEW YEAR FOR TREES. What is the reason? — R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Oshaia: Because [by then] the greater part of the year's rain has fallen¹³ and the greater part of the cycle¹⁴ is still to come. What is the sense of this? What it means is this: 'Although the greater part of the cycle is still to come, yet since the greater part of the year's rain has fallen, [therefore etc.]’.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘It is recorded of R. Akiba that he once plucked a citron tree on the first of Shebat and gave two tithes from

(1) For making clear to us his point of view.

(2) So that if old and new have become mixed together, tithe for both parts of the mixture must proportionately be given from some other quarter.

(3) By saying on the one hand that the law follows R. Simeon, which would imply that mixing can be relied on, and on the other that mixing cannot be relied on.

(4) And this is the reason why the law follows R. Simeon.

(5) From the Rabbis. That is, only in the case of beans etc. but not of produce, where Samuel would hold that the decisive factor is the growth of a third. [R. Hananel reads ‘where they (R. Simeon b. Shezuri and the Rabbis) differ’].

(6) Deut. XVI, 13.

(7) This apparently includes both rain water and irrigation.

(8) Lit., ‘the year that covers’. The year in which they are gathered.

(9) Lit., ‘most (kinds of) water’.

(10) Including irrigation.

(11) Sheb. II, 9.

(12) Rashi gives two views as to what is implied in this. According to one opinion, if these vegetables have been kept without water for the last thirty days of the outgoing year, then R. Jose would hold that they must have been nurtured by the rain water of that year, and so are to be tithed for that year; whereas R. Akiba would hold that their growth is due in part to irrigation. and so they would be tithed for the next year; and the Mishnah quoted follows R. Jose. The other opinion is that as they have not been irrigated for thirty days, it is R. Akiba and not R. Jose who would hold that they have been nurtured by the rain of the outgoing year, and the Mishnah therefore follows R. Akiba. It was customary to withhold water from these two species for thirty days before plucking them so as to harden them.

(13) And the trees now begin to blossom.

it,¹ one² in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai and one³ in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel.⁴ R. Jose b. Judah said: He did not follow the [two] rulings of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel, but the [two] rulings of Rabban Gamaliel and R. Eliezer, as we have learnt:⁵ ‘A citron tree follows the rule of a tree in three respects and of a vegetable in one respect. It follows the rule of a tree in three respects — for ‘uncircumcision,’⁶ for fourth-year fruit, and for the Sabbatical year. It follows the rule of a vegetable in one respect, its tithe [year] being determined by its plucking. So Rabban Gamaliel. R. Eliezer, however, says that a citron follows the rule of a tree in all respects.’⁷

But is it right to adopt the harder rule from both sides?⁸ Has it not been taught: ‘As a general principle, the halachah follows Beth Hillel. If one prefers, however, to adopt the rule of Beth Shammai, he may do so, and if he desires to adopt the rule of Beth Hillel he may do so. One, however, who adopts the more lenient rulings of both Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel [on the same subject] is a bad man, while to one who adopts the more stringent rulings of both Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel may be applied the verse, But the fool walketh in darkness.’⁹ No; either one must follow Beth Shammai both where they are more severe and more lenient or Beth Hillel both where they are more severe and more lenient? — [The answer is that] R. Akiba was doubtful about the tradition, and did not know whether Beth Hillel fixed [the New Year for trees] on the first of Shebat or on the fifteenth of Shebat.¹⁰

‘R. Jose b. Judah said: He did not adopt the two rulings of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel, but of Rabban Gamaliel and R. Eliezer [But would R. Jose hold that] in respect of the first of Shebat he adopted the ruling of Beth Shammai?¹¹ — R. Hanina (or some say R. Hananiah) said: The case here is one of a citron which had blossomed before the fifteenth of Shebat of the previous year,¹² and R. Akiba might equally well have done the same thing at all earlier date,¹³ but this happened to be the actual date. Rabina said: Combine¹⁴ the two statements. It was not the first of Shebat but the fifteenth of Shebat,¹⁵ and he [R. Akiba] did not adopt the two rulings of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel but of Rabban Gamaliel and R. Eliezer.

Rabbah son of R. Huna said: Seeing that Rabban Gamaliel has said that the tithe year of a citron tree is determined by its plucking like that of a vegetable, its New Year [like that of a vegetable] must be the first of Tishri. The following was cited in objection to this: 'R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: If a man plucked the fruit of a citron tree on the eve of the fifteenth of Shebat before sunset, and then plucked some more after sunset, terumah and tithe must not be given from one lot for the other because terumah and tithe are not given from the new for the old nor from the old for the new. [If it was at the meeting point of the third and] fourth years, [from the fruit of] the third year he gives first tithe and the tithe of the poor, and from the fruit of the fourth year the first tithe and the second tithe'.¹⁶

 - (8) Where two authorities give each two rulings with regard to a certain subject, one being more stringent in respect of one point and the other in respect of the other. For instance, Beth Shammai rule that the lack of one vertebra in a human spine still leaves it capable of defiling by 'overshadowing' (v. Glos. s.v. ohel) but does not make an animal trefa (v. Glos.) whereas Beth Hillel says that it makes an animal trefa but leaves it incapable of defiling by overshadowing. Here Beth Shammai are more stringent in the matter of defilement and Beth Hillel in the matter of trefa (v. 'Er. 6b). So here, R. Akiba took on himself two burdens when one would have sufficed.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 15a

Now which authority is reported to make plucking the determining factor? Rabban Gamaliel; and he says here Shebat?¹ — The statement should have been reported differently,² [thus]: Rabbah b. bar Huna said: Although Rabban Gamaliel said that [the tithe-year of] a citron tree is determined by its plucking like [that of] a vegetable, yet its New Year is Shebat.

Why in the former statement³ is the expression used, 'if it was the meeting point of the second and third years', and in this statement the expression, 'if it was the meeting point of the third and fourth years'? — This points out to us incidentally that the citron tree suffers from being handled, and since everybody handles it in the seventh year,⁴ it does not yield fruit till the third year [after blossoming].

R. Johanan inquired of R. Jannai: When is the New Year of the citron tree? — He replied: In Shebat. Do you mean [he asked further] Shebat of the calendar⁵ or Shebat of the cycle?⁶ — He replied: Shebat of the calendar.⁷

Raba inquired of R. Nahman (or, according to others, R. Johanan inquired of R. Jannai): Suppose it was a leap year, what is the rule?⁸ — He replied: Do as in ordinary years.⁹

Rabbah said: A citron tree which has blossomed in the sixth year and ripened in the seventh¹⁰ is not liable to tithe and not liable to clearance;¹¹ while one which has blossomed in the seventh year and produced fruit in the eighth is not liable to tithe but is liable to clearance. Said Abaye to him: Your second clause is unobjectionable, because [you can say that] you take the more stringent view.¹² But your first clause [surely involves a contradiction]? [For you say], 'It is not liable to clearance'. Why so? Because we say, Make the blossoming the determining factor.¹³ But if so, it should surely be liable to tithe? — He replied to him: Everybody handles it, and you say it should be liable to tithe! R. Hamnunah, however, said: A citron tree which blossoms in the sixth year and ripens in the seventh is always reckoned as belonging to the sixth, and one which blossoms in the seventh and ripens in the eighth is always regarded as belonging to the seventh. The following was cited in objection: 'R. Simeon b. Judah said in the name of R. Simeon: A citron tree which blossoms in the sixth year and ripens in the seventh is not liable to tithe and not liable to clearance, since no fruit is liable to tithe which has not both grown and been plucked in a period of liability.¹⁴ A citron tree which blossoms in the seventh year and ripens in the eighth year is not liable either to tithe or to clearance, since no fruit is liable to clearance which has not both grown and been plucked in the seventh year'. Now the first part of this statement seems to contradict R. Hamnunah,¹⁵ and the second part both Rabbah and R. Hamnunah?¹⁶ — There is a difference of Tannaim on this point,¹⁷ as it has been taught: 'R. Jose said: Abtolmus testified in the name of five elders that a citron is determined by its plucking in the matter of tithe. Our teachers, however, took a vote in Usha and decided that it is determined by its plucking for purposes both of tithe and of Sabbatical year'. How does Sabbatical year come to be mentioned here? —

(1) And not Tishri.

(2) Lit., 'if the statement was made it was stated thus'.

(3) In the Tosef. quoted on 12a ad fin.

(4) Since, like all other trees, it is common property in that year.

(5) I.e., the lunar month Shebat-thirty days from the first of Tebeth.

(6) Thirty days from the cycle of Tebeth (Winter Solstice, usually Dec. 22).

(7) In spite of the fact that fructification is due to the action of the sun.

(8) Do we make the New Year in Shebat which comes next to Tebeth, or in First Adar which takes the place of Shebat in this year?

(9) Lit., 'follow most of the years'. I.e., adhere to Shebat.

(10) Lit., 'the daughter of the sixth which enters into the seventh'.

(11) In the third and sixth years of the Septennate. V. Deut. XXVI, 13.

(12) I.e., the view which is more stringent in this case, viz., that we go by the blossoming and not by the plucking. And since we do this for purposes of clearance, we also do it for purposes of tithes, although this means taking the more lenient view. (V. Tosaf s.v. בשלא).

(13) And so it belongs to the sixth year.

(14) And the seventh year is not a period of liability for tithe.

(15) Who holds that if it blossoms in the sixth it is liable to tithe.

(16) Who both hold that if it blossomed in the seventh year it is liable to clearance.

(17) As to whether we go by the plucking or the blossoming for purposes of the Sabbatical year.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 15b

There is an omission in the statement, which should read as follows: '[Abtolmus testified that] a citron tree is determined by its plucking for purposes of tithe and by its blossoming for purposes of the Sabbatical year.¹ Our teachers, however, took a vote in Usha and decided that it is determined by its plucking for purposes both of tithe and of Sabbatical year'.

It has been stated: R. Johanan and Resh Lakish both lay down that a citron tree which blossoms in the sixth year and ripens in the seventh year is always reckoned as belonging to the sixth year.² When Rabin came [from Palestine], he said in the name of R. Johanan: A citron which blossomed in the sixth year and ripened in the seventh, even though [at the beginning of the seventh] it was no bigger than an olive and it subsequently became as big as a loaf, can render one guilty of breaking the rule of tebel.³

Our Rabbis taught: If the fruit of a tree blossoms before the fifteenth of Shebat, it is tithed for the outgoing year; if after the fifteenth of Shebat, it is tithed for the incoming year. R. Nehemiah said: This rule applies only to trees which produce two broods in a year.⁴ (Two broods,⁵ do you say? — He should say, as it were two broods).⁶ Trees, however, which produce only one brood, like date trees, carob trees and olive trees, even though they blossom before the fifteenth of Shebat are tithed for the incoming year.

R. Johanan said: In regard to carob trees, it has become the general custom to follow the rule of R. Nehemiah. Resh Lakish sought to confute R. Johanan from the following: 'As regards wild fig-trees, their seventh year is the second year [of the Septennate] because [after blossoming] their fruit takes three years to grow'.⁷ — He made no answer.⁸ Said R. Abba the priest to R. Jose: Why did he make no answer? He could have said to him, I give the view of R. Nehemiah, and you bring against me the view of the Rabbis! — [He could not have answered him thus], because Resh Lakish could have retorted: Do you abandon the Rabbis and follow R. Nehemiah? — But he could have said to him, I speak to you of the general custom, and you speak to me of a prohibition?⁹ — [He could not answer thus], because he could have said to him: Where a prohibition applies, even if there is a general custom, do we allow it? — But he could have said to him: I speak to you of the tithe of carobs, which is Rabbinical, and you speak to me of the Sabbatical year, which is Pentateuchal! — The truth is, said R. Abba the priest, I wonder whether Resh Lakish put this question. Whether he put this question? But we are distinctly told that he did so! — What R. Abba should say is, whether he [R. Johanan] admitted the difficulty or not.¹⁰

(1) And this is the view taken by Rabbah and R. Hamnurah in respect of the law of clearance. For the purposes of tithes, however, Rabbah is of the opinion that although Abtolmus makes the plucking the decisive factor, he would nevertheless exempt from tithe a citron tree which blossomed in the sixth year and ripened in the seventh, for the reason that it is handled by everybody (Rashi)].

(2) Whether for purposes of the Sabbatical year or tithes.

(3) V. Glos. If it was consumed before tithe was given for it, R. Johanan being of the opinion that we go by the blossoming.

(4) R. Nehemiah's statement is here interrupted while the use of the strange word 'broods' is explained.

(5) Heb. בְּרִיכוֹת, a word strictly applicable only to broods of birds.

(6) I.e., their fruit is not all gathered at one time; e.g., figs; cf. supra 13b, the rule in the case of beans.

(7) Sheb. V, 1. Which would show that the blossoming is the determining factor in all trees, even those which are all plucked at one time.

(8) Lit. 'he was silenced'.

(9) The prohibition to determine the year by the plucking.

(10) I.e., whether his silence was due to the fact that he had no answer, or to the fact that he thought it obvious that tithe of carobs, which is Rabbinical, could not be put on the same footing as produce of the Sabbatical year which is

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 16a

MISHNAH. AT FOUR SEASONS [DIVINE] JUDGMENT IS PASSED ON THE WORLD:¹ AT PASSOVER IN RESPECT OF PRODUCE; AT PENTECOST IN RESPECT OF FRUIT; AT NEW YEAR ALL CREATURES PASS BEFORE HIM [GOD] LIKE CHILDREN OF MARON,² AS IT SAYS, 'HE THAT FASHIONETH THE HEART OF THEM ALL, THAT CONSIDERETH ALL THEIR DOINGS';³ AND ON TABERNACLES JUDGMENT IS PASSED IN RESPECT OF RAIN.

GEMARA. Which produce is referred to? Shall I say, the produce which is already grown?⁴ If so, then when were the hardships decreed which it has already suffered? It must be then the produce which is to be sown later.⁵ You assume then that only one judgment is passed. But it has been taught: 'If some calamity or misfortune⁶ happens to produce before Passover, it is in virtue of a judgment passed on the previous Passover, if after Passover, of a judgment passed at the Passover which has just gone.⁷ If a calamity or misfortune happens to a man before the Day of Atonement, it is in virtue of a judgment passed on the last Day of Atonement, if just after the Day of Atonement, of a judgment passed on the one just gone'! — Raba replied: This shows that two judgments are passed on the produce.⁸ Abaye remarked: Therefore if a man sees that the slow-maturing seed⁹ is doing well he should sow the quick-maturing seed¹⁰ in good time, so that it may be well grown before the time comes to judge it.¹¹

Our Mishnah seems to agree neither with R. Meir nor with R. Judah nor with R. Jose nor with R. Nathan. For it has been taught: 'All are judged¹² on New Year and their doom is sealed on the Day or Atonement. So R. Meir. R. Judah says: All are judged on New Year and the separate dooms are sealed each in its time — on Passover in respect of produce, on Pentecost in respect of fruit, on Tabernacles judgment is passed in respect of rain, and man is judged on New Year and his doom is sealed on the Day of Atonement. R. Jose says: Man is judged every day, as it says, And thou dost visit him every morning.¹³ R. Nathan says: Man is judged every moment, as it says, Thou dost try him every moment'.¹⁴ Should you maintain that it is after all in accordance with Rabbi Judah, [the seasons] mentioned in our Mishnah referring to the final doom, we may retort that if so there is a difficulty with the case of man!¹⁵ — Raba replied: This Tanna [of our Mishnah] follows the Tanna of the school of R. Ishmael, since it has been taught in the school of R. Ishmael: 'At four seasons judgment is passed on the world, on Passover in respect of produce, on Pentecost in respect of fruit, on Tabernacles judgment is passed in respect of rain, and man is judged on New Year and his doom is sealed on the Day of Atonement'. The statements of the Mishnah must then be taken to refer to the preliminary judgment.

R. Hisda said: What is the reason of R. Jose? — [How can you ask this?] Surely it is as he has stated, [viz., the text], 'And thou dost visit him every morning'! — What we mean is this: What is his reason for not taking the same view as R. Nathan? — 'Trying' merely means scrutinizing. But 'visiting' also merely means scrutinizing? The truth is, said R. Hisda, that R. Jose's reason is to be found in this text: To do the judgement of his servant and the judgement of his people Israel, as every day shall require.¹⁶

R. Hisda further said: If a king and a people present themselves together, the king stands his trial first, as it says, To do the judgement of his servant and the judgement of his people Israel.¹⁶ What is the reason? — If you like, I can say, because it is not proper that a king should remain outside, or if you like I can say, [so that he may be judged] before the [divine] anger waxes hot.¹⁷

R. Joseph said: Whose authority do we follow nowadays in praying [daily] for the sick and for the ailing?¹⁸ — Whose authority? That of R. Jose.¹⁹ Or if you like I can say that it is after all that of the Rabbis,²⁰ but that at the same time we follow the counsel of R. Isaac. For R. Isaac said: Supplication²¹ is good for a man whether before the doom is pronounced or after it is pronounced.²²

It has been taught: R. Judah said in the name of R. Akiba: Why did the Torah enjoin on us to offer an 'Omer on Passover? Because Passover is the season of produce. Therefore the Holy One, blessed be He, said, Bring before Me an 'Omer' on Passover so that your produce in the fields may be blessed.²³ Why did the Torah enjoin on us to bring two loaves on Pentecost? Because Pentecost is the season for fruit of the tree. Therefore the Holy One, blessed be He, said: Bring before Me two loaves on Pentecost so that the fruit of your trees may be blessed.²⁴ Why did the Torah enjoin on us to pour out water on Tabernacles?²⁵ The Holy One, blessed be He, said, Pour out water before Me on Tabernacles, so that your rains this year may be blessed. Also recite before Me on New Year [texts making mention of] kingship, remembrance, and the shofar-kingship, so that you may proclaim Me king over you; remembrance, so that your remembrance may rise favourably before Me; and through what? Through the shofar.²⁶

R. Abbahu said: Why do we blow on a ram's horn? The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Sound before Me a ram's horn so that I may remember on your behalf the binding of Isaac the son of Abraham,²⁷ and account it to you as if you had bound yourselves before Me.

R. Isaac said: Why do we sound the horn on New Year? — [You ask], why do we sound? The All-Merciful has told us to sound!²⁸ — What he means is, why do we sound a teru'ah?²⁹ [You ask] why do we sound a teru'ah? The All-Merciful has proclaimed 'a memorial of teru'ah!³⁰ — What he means is, why do we sound a teki'ah and teru'ah!³⁰ — sitting and then again sound a teki'ah and teru'ah standing? — It is so as to confuse the Accuser.¹

R. Isaac further said: If the shofar is not sounded² at the beginning of the year, evil will befall at the end of it. Why so? Because the Accuser has not been confused.

R. Isaac further said: Every year which is poor³ at its opening becomes rich before it ends, as it says, From the beginning of the year — where the word is spelt meroshith⁴ — 'unto the end'; such a year is destined to have a 'latter end'.⁵

R. Isaac further said: Man is judged only according to his actions up to the time of judgment,⁶ as it says, God hath heard the voice of the lad as he is there.⁷

R. Isaac further said: Three things call a man's iniquities to mind, namely, a shaky wall,⁸ the scrutinizing of prayer,⁹ and calling for [Divine] judgment on one's fellow man. For R. Abin said: He who calls down [Divine] judgment on his neighbour is himself punished first [for his own sins], as it says, And Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee,¹⁰ and it is written later, And Abraham came to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her.¹¹

R. Isaac further said: Four things cancel the doom of a man, namely, charity, supplication, change of name and change of conduct. Charity, as it is written, And charity delivereth from death.¹² Supplication, as it is written, Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses.¹³ Change of name, as it is written, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be;¹⁴ and it continues, And I will bless her and moreover I will give thee a son of her. Change of conduct, as it is written, And God saw their works, and it continues, and God repented of the evil which he said he would do unto them and he did it not.¹⁵ Some say that change of place [also avails], as it is written, Now the Lord said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and it proceeds, and I will make of thee a great nation.¹⁶ And the other [— why does he not reckon this]? — In that case it was the merit of the land of Israel which availed him.

R. Isaac further said: It is incumbent on a man to go to pay his respects to his teacher on festivals, as it says, Wherefore wilt thou go to him today? It is neither new moon nor sabbath,¹⁷ from which we infer that on New Moon and Sabbath¹⁸ one ought to go.¹⁹

R. Isaac further said: A man should purify himself for the festival, as it says, and their carcasses ye shall not touch.²⁰ It has been taught to the same effect: 'And their carcasses ye shall not touch'. I might think that [ordinary] Israelites are cautioned not to touch carcasses. Therefore it says, Say unto the priests the sons of Aaron;²¹ [which shows that] the sons of Aaron are cautioned but ordinary Israelites are not cautioned. May we not then argue a fortiori: Seeing that in the case of a serious uncleanness,²² while the priests are cautioned Israelites are not cautioned, how much less [are they likely to be cautioned] in the case of a light uncleanness!²³ What then am I to make of the words, 'and their carcasses ye shall not touch'? — On the festival.

R. Kruspedai said in the name of R. Johanan: Three books are opened [in heaven] on New Year, one for the thoroughly wicked,²⁴ one for the thoroughly righteous, and one for the intermediate. The thoroughly righteous are forthwith inscribed definitively in the book of life; the thoroughly wicked are forthwith inscribed definitively in the book of death;²⁵ the doom of the intermediate is suspended from New Year till the Day of Atonement; if they deserve well, they are inscribed in the book of life; if they do not deserve well, they are inscribed in the book of death. Said R. Abin, What text tells us this? — Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous.²⁶ 'Let them be blotted out from the book — this refers to the book of the wicked. 'Of life — this is the book of the righteous. 'And not be written with the righteous' — this is the book of the intermediate. R. Nahman b. Isaac derives it from here: And if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written,²⁷ 'Blot me, I pray thee' — this is the book of the wicked. 'Out of thy book' — this is the book of the righteous. 'Which thou has written' — this is the book of the intermediate.

It has been taught: Beth Shammai say, There will be three groups at the Day of Judgment²⁸ — one of thoroughly righteous, one of thoroughly wicked, and one of intermediate. The thoroughly righteous will forthwith be inscribed definitively as entitled to everlasting life; the thoroughly wicked will forthwith be inscribed definitively as doomed to Gehinnom, as it says. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life and some to reproaches and everlasting abhorrence.²⁹ The intermediate will go down to Gehinnom

[The Shofar on New Year is blown twice: once at the close of the morning prayer and the reading of the Law when the congregation is seated, and again during the Musaf prayers while the people stand. According to J.R.H. IV, 8 the Shofar was originally blown only at the morning service, whence it was transferred to a later hour in the Musaf because their enemies on one occasion took the Shofar blasts early in the morning as a call to arms, whereupon they attacked the Jews. The custom of blowing the Shofar at Musaf service was retained even after the rite had been restored to the morning service].

and squeal¹ and rise again, as it says, And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name and I will answer them.² Of them, too, Hannah said, The Lord killeth and maketh alive, he bringeth down to the grave and bringeth up.³ Beth Hillel, however, say: He that abounds in grace inclines [the scales] towards grace,⁴ and of them David said, I love that the Lord should hear my voice and my supplication,⁵ and on their behalf David composed the whole of the passage, I was brought low and he saved me.⁶

Wrongdoers of Israel who sin with their body⁷ and wrongdoers of the Gentiles who sin with their body go down to Gehinnom and are punished there for twelve months. After twelve months their body is consumed and their soul is burnt and the wind scatters them under the soles of the feet of the righteous as it says, And ye shall tread down the wicked, and they shall be as ashes under the soles of your feet.⁸ But as for the minim⁹ and the informers and the scoffers,¹⁰ who rejected the Torah and denied the resurrection of the dead, and those who abandoned the ways of the community,¹¹ and those who 'spread their terror in the land of the living',¹² and who sinned and made the masses sin, like Jeroboam the son of Nebat and his fellows — these will go down to Gehinnom and be punished there for all generations, as it says, And they shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men that have rebelled against me¹³ etc. Gehinnom will be consumed but they will not be consumed, as it says, and their form shall wear away the nether world.¹⁴ Why all this? Because they laid hands on the habitation [zebul], as it says, that there be no habitation [zebul] for Him,¹⁵ and zebul signifies the Temple, as it says, I have surely built thee a house of habitation [zebul].¹⁶ Of them Hannah said, They that strive with the Lord shall be broken to pieces.¹⁷ R. Isaac b. Abin said: And their faces shall be black like the sides of a pot. Raba added: Among them are the most handsome of the inhabitants of Mahuza, and they shall be called 'sons of Gehinnom'.¹⁸

The Master said [above]: 'Beth Hillel say, He that abounds in grace inclines [the scales] towards grace'. [How can this be], seeing that it is written, And I shall bring the third part through the fire?¹⁹ That refers to wrongdoers of Israel who sin with their body. Wrongdoers of Israel who sin with their body! But you said that there is no remedy for them?²⁰ — There is no remedy for them when their iniquities are more numerous [than their good deeds]. We now speak of those whose iniquities and good deeds are evenly balanced, but whose iniquities include that which is committed by sinners of Israel with their body. In that case they cannot escape the doom of 'I shall bring the third through the fire', but otherwise, [in regard to them], 'He that is abundant in grace inclines towards grace', and of them David said, I love that the Lord should hear. [On this verse] Raba discoursed as follows: What is meant by the words, 'I love that the Lord should hear'? The Community of Israel exclaimed before the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, when am I beloved in thy sight? At the time when thou hearest the voice of my supplications. 'I was brought low [dalothi] and he saved me': although I am poor (dallah) in the performance of religious duties, yet it is fitting to save me.

What is meant by 'wrongdoers of Israel who sin with their body'? — Rab said: This refers to the cranium which does not put on the phylactery.²¹ Who are 'the wrongdoers of the Gentiles who sin with their body'? — Rab said: This refers to [sexual] sin. 'Who have spread their terror in the land of the living': [who are these]? — R. Hisda said: This is a communal leader²² who makes himself unduly feared by the community for purposes other than religious.²³ Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Any communal leader who makes himself unduly feared by the community for purposes other than religious will never have a scholar for a son, as it says, Therefore if men fear him, he shall not see [among his sons] any wise of heart.²⁴

'Beth Hillel say: He that abounds in grace inclines [the scales] to grace'. How does He do? — R. Eliezer²⁵ says: He presses down [the scale of merit], as it says, He will again have compassion on us, he will press down our iniquities.²⁶ R. Jose b. Hanina says: [He does so] by raising [the scale of iniquities], as it says, Raising²⁷ iniquity and passing by transgression.²⁸ In the school of R. Ishmael they taught: He puts aside every first iniquity;²⁹ and herein lies the attribute [of grace]. Raba said: The iniquity itself is not obliterated, and if there is an excess of iniquities³⁰ [God] reckons it with the others.³¹

Raba said: He who forgoes his right [to exact punishment]³² is forgiven all his iniquities, as it says, Forgiving iniquity and passing by transgression. Who is forgiven iniquity? One who passes by transgression [against himself]. R. Huna the son of R. Joshua was once ill. R. Papa went to inquire about him. He saw that he was very ill³³ and said to those present, Make ready provisions for his [everlasting] journey.³⁴ Eventually, however, he [R. Huna] recovered, and R. Papa felt ashamed to see him. He said to him, What did you see [in your illness]? He replied, It was indeed as you thought, but the Holy One, blessed be He, said to them [the angels]: Because he does not insist upon his rights, do not be particular with him, as it says, Forgiving iniquity and passing by transgression. Who is forgiven iniquity? He who passes by transgression. [The verse continues], 'to the remnant of his heritage'. R. Aha son of R. Hanina said: We have here a fat tail with a thorn in it.³⁵ 'for the remnant of his inheritance', but not for all his inheritance.

(10) אַפִּיקורְסִים ; those who treat the Rabbis and students of the Torah with disdain. If this is meant, then we should insert with MS.M. the words 'and those' before the word 'who'.

Abin said, And their faces (that is, of the intermediate class) shall (on rising from Gehinnom) be black like the sides of the pot. Raba added, And yet (despite this disfigurement) they shall be more beautiful than the most handsome men of Mahuza who shall be called the sons of Gehinnom'. V. D.S. a.l.].

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 17b

[What it means is], for him who makes himself a mere remnant.¹

R. Huna contrasted [two parts of the same verse]. It is written, The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and then it is written, and gracious in all his works.² [How is this]?³ — At first righteous and at the end gracious.⁴ R. Eleazar [similarly] contrasted two texts. It is written, Also unto thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy, and then it is written, For thou renderest to every man according to his work.⁵ [How is this]? — At first, 'Thou renderest to every man according to his work', but at the end, 'unto thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy'.

Ilfi (or, as some report, Ilfa) [similarly] contrasted two texts: It is written, abundant in goodness, and then it is written, and in truth.⁶ [How is this]? — At first, 'truth', and at the end 'abundant in goodness'.

And 'the Lord passed by before him and proclaimed [etc.].'⁷ R. Johanan said: Were it not written in the text, it would be impossible for us to say such a thing; this verse teaches us that the Holy One, blessed be He, drew his robe round Him like the reader⁸ of a congregation and showed Moses the order of prayer. He said to him: Whenever Israel sin, let them carry out this service before Me,⁹ and I will forgive them.

'The Lord, the Lord': I am the Eternal¹⁰ before a man sins and the same¹⁰ after a man sins and repents. 'A God merciful and gracious:' Rab Judah said: A covenant has been made with the thirteen attributes¹¹ that they will not be turned away empty-handed,¹² as it says, Behold I make a covenant.¹³

R. Johanan said: Great is the power of repentance that it rescinds¹⁴ a man's final sentence, as it says, Make the heart of this people fat and make their ears heavy and shut their eyes, lest they seeing with their eyes and hearing with their ears and understanding with their heart return and be healed.¹⁵ Said R. Papa to Abaye: Perhaps this was before the final sentence? — He replied: It is written, 'and he be healed'. What is that which requires healing? You must say, the final sentence.

An objection [against this view] was raised [from the following]: 'If one repents in the interval,¹⁶ he is forgiven; if he does not repent in the interval, should he even offer [subsequently] all the rams of Nebayoth,¹⁷ he is not forgiven'! — There is no contradiction: the latter statement refers to an individual, the former to a community.

A further objection was raised [from the following]: ‘The eyes of the Lord thy God are upon it [the land of Israel],¹⁸ sometimes for good, sometimes for evil. How sometimes for good? Suppose Israel were [in the class of] the thoroughly wicked at New Year,¹⁹ and scanty rains were decreed for them, and afterwards they repented. [For God] to increase the supply of rain is impossible, because the decree has been issued. The Holy One, blessed be He, therefore sends down the rain in the proper season on the land that requires it,²⁰ all according to the district. How sometimes for evil? Suppose Israel were [in the class of] the thoroughly virtuous on New Year, and abundant rains were decreed for them, but afterwards they backslided. To diminish the rains is impossible, because the decree has been issued. The Holy One, blessed be He, therefore sends them down not in their proper season and on land that does not require them’.²¹ Now, [if the decree can be rescinded], for good at any rate, let the decree be rescinded and let the rains be increased? — There is a special reason there, namely, that this²² is sufficient.

Come and hear [a further objection]: ‘They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters, they saw the works of the Lord . . . For he commanded and raised the stormy wind which lifted up the waves thereof . . . they reeled to and fro and staggered like a drunken man . . . They cried unto the Lord in their trouble . . . let them give thanks unto the Lord for his mercy²³ etc. [The Psalmist] inserted here signs²⁴ having the same force as the ‘buts’ and ‘onlys’ of the Torah,²⁵ to indicate that if they cried before the final sentence they were answered, but if they cried after the final sentence they were not ‘answered’! — These also are on the same footing as individuals.

Come and hear [again]: ‘Bluria²⁶ the proselyte put this question to Rabban Gamaliel: It is written in your Law, [she said], who lifteth not up the countenance,²⁷ and it is also written, The Lord shall lift up his countenance upon thee.²⁸ R. Jose the priest joined the conversation and said to her: I will give you a parable which will illustrate the matter.²⁹ A man lent his neighbour a maneh and fixed a time for payment in the presence of the king, while the other swore to pay him by the life of the king. When the time arrived he did not pay him, and he went to excuse himself to the king. The king, however, said to him: The wrong done to me I excuse you, but go and obtain forgiveness from your neighbour. So here: one text speaks of offences committed by a man against God, the other of offences committed by a man against his fellow man. [This explanation was generally accepted] until R. Akiba came and taught

: One text speaks of God's attitude before the final sentence, the other of his attitude after the final sentence!' — Here too the case is that of an individual.

On the question of the final sentence of an individual there is a difference between Tannaim, as it has been taught: R. Meir used to say: Two men take to their bed suffering equally from the same disease, or two men are before a criminal court to be judged¹ for the same offence; yet one gets up² and the other does not get up, one escapes death and the other does not escape death. Why does one get up and the other not? Why does one escape death and the other not? Because one prayed and was answered, and the other prayed and was not answered. Why was one answered and the other not? One prayed with his whole heart³ and was therefore answered, the other did not pray with his whole heart and was not answered. R. Eleazar, however, said: The one man was praying before his final sentence had been pronounced [in heaven], the other after his final sentence had been pronounced.

R. Isaac said: Supplication⁴ is good for a man whether before the final sentence has been pronounced or after.

But can the final sentence on a community be rescinded? Have we not one text which says, Wash thy heart from wickedness,⁵ and another which says, For though thou wash thee with nitre and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before me,⁶ and does not the one text apply before the final sentence is pronounced and the other after? — No; both apply after the final sentence has been pronounced, yet there is no contradiction; in the one case the final sentence has been accompanied by an oath, in the other it has not been accompanied by an oath. This accords with the dictum of R. Samuel b. Ammi. For R. Samuel b. Ammi (or, as some say R. Samuel b. Nahmani) said in the name of R. Jonathan: How do we know that a final sentence accompanied by an oath is never rescinded? Because it says, Therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be expiated with sacrifice nor offering.⁷ Raba said: With sacrifice and offering it cannot be expiated, but it can be expiated with Torah. Abaye said: With sacrifice and offering it cannot be expiated, but it can be expiated with Torah and charitable deeds. Rabbah⁸ and Abaye were of the house of Eli. Rabbah who devoted himself to the Torah lived forty years, Abaye who devoted himself both to the Torah and to charitable deeds lived sixty years.⁹

The Rabbis taught: There was a family in Jerusalem the members of which used to die at the age of eighteen. They came and told Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai. He said to them, Perhaps you are of the family of Eli, to whom it was said, and all the increase of thy house shall die young men.¹⁰ Go and study the Torah and you may live. They went and studied the Torah and lived, and they used to call that family the family of Rabban Johanan after his name.

R. Samuel b. Inia said in the name of Rab: Whence do we know that the final sentence on a community is never sealed? — Never sealed, [you say]? Is it not written, Thine iniquity is marked before me?¹¹ What he should say is, [How do we know that] although it is sealed it can yet be rescinded? Because it says, as the Lord our God is whenever we call upon him.¹² But it is written, Seek ye the Lord while he may be found?¹³ — This verse speaks of an individual, the other of community. When can an individual [find God]? — Rabbah b. Abbuha said: These are the ten days between New Year and the Day of Atonement.

And it came to pass after the ten days that the Lord smote Nabal.¹⁴ How come these ten days here? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: They correspond to the ten dishes which Nabal gave to the servants of David.¹⁵ R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: These are the ten days between New Year and the Day of Atonement.

ON NEW YEAR ALL MANKIND PASS BEFORE HIM LIKE CHILDREN OF MARON.¹⁶ What is the meaning of the expression 'like children of Maron'? — In Babylon it was translated, 'like a flock of sheep'.¹⁷ Resh Lakish said: As [in] the ascent of Beth Maron.¹⁸

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: Like the troops of the house of David.¹⁹ Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: [All the same] they are all viewed with a simple glance. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: We also have learnt the same idea: He that fashioneth the hearts of them all, that considereth all their doings.²⁰ What does this mean? Shall I say that it means this, that [God] has created all creatures and unites all their hearts together? But we see that this is not so! No; what it means is this: 'The Creator sees²¹ their hearts together and considereth all their doings'.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 18b

seeing that R. Hanah b. Bizna has said in the name of R. Simeon the Saint: 'What is the meaning of the verse, Thus had said the Lord of Hosts: The fast of the fourth month and the fast of the fifth and the fast of the seventh and the fast of the tenth shall be to the house of Judah joy and gladness?'¹ The prophet calls these days both days of fasting and days of joy, signifying that when there is peace they shall be for joy and gladness, but if there is not peace they shall be fast days'! — R. Papa replied: What it means is this: When there is peace they shall be for joy and gladness; if there is persecution,² they shall be fast days; if there is no persecution but yet not peace, then those who desire may fast and those who desire need not fast.³ If that is the case, the ninth of Ab also [should be optional]? — R. Papa replied: The ninth of Ab is in a different category, because several misfortunes happened on it, as a Master has said: On the ninth of Ab the Temple was destroyed both the first time and the second time, and Bethar was captured⁴ and the city [Jerusalem] was ploughed.⁵

It has been taught: R. Simeon said: There are four expositions among those given by R. Akiba with which I do not agree. [He said]:⁶ 'The fast of the fourth month' — this is the ninth of Tammuz, on which a breach was made in the walls of the city,⁷ as it says, On the fourth month on the ninth of the month the famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land, and a breach was made in the city.⁸ Why is it called fourth? As being fourth in the order of months. 'The fast of the fifth month': this is the ninth of Ab, on which the House of our God was burnt. Why is it called fifth? as being fifth in the order of months. 'The fast of the seventh month': this is the third of Tishri on which Gedaliah the son of Ahikam was killed.⁹ Who killed him? Ishmael the son of Nethaniah killed him; and [the fact that a fast was instituted on this day] shows that the death of the righteous is put on a level with the burning of the House of our God. Why is it called the seventh? As being the seventh in the order of months. 'The fast of the tenth month': this is the tenth of Tebeth on which the king of Babylon invested Jerusalem, as it says, And the word of the Lord came unto me in the ninth year in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, saying, Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this selfsame day; this selfsame day the king of Babylon hath invested Jerusalem.¹⁰ Why is it called the tenth? As being the tenth in the order of months. [It might be asked], should not this have been mentioned first?¹¹ Why then was it mentioned in this place [last]? So as to arrange the months in their proper order. I, however, [continued R. Simeon], do not explain thus. What I say is that ‘the fast of the tenth month, is the fifth of Tebeth on which news came to the Captivity that the city had been smitten, as it says, And it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that one who had escaped out of Jerusalem came to me saying, The city is smitten,¹² and they put the day of the report on the same footing as the day of burning. My view is more probable than his, because I make the first [mentioned by the prophet] first [chronologically] and the last last,¹³ whereas he makes the first last and the last first, he, however, following [only] the order of months I [also follow] the order of calamities.

It has been stated [elsewhere]: Rab and R. Hanina hold that the Megillath Ta'anith¹⁴ has been annulled,¹⁵ whereas R. Johanan and Resh Lakish hold that the Megillath Ta'anith, has not been annulled. Rab and R. Hanina hold that the Megillath Ta'anith has been annulled, interpreting the words of the prophet thus: ‘When there is peace, these days¹⁶ shall be for joy and gladness, but when there is no peace, they shall be fasts’, and placing the days mentioned in the Megillath Ta'anith, on the same footing. R. Johanan and Resh Lakish hold that the Megillath Ta'anith has not been annulled, maintaining that it was those others [mentioned by the prophet] that the All-Merciful made dependent on the existence of the Temple,¹⁷ but these [mentioned in Megillath Ta'anith] remain unaffected.

R. Kahana cited the following in objection: ‘On one occasion a fast was decreed in Lydda on Hanukah¹⁸ and R. Eliezer went down there and bathed and R. Joshua had his hair cut,¹⁹ and they said to the inhabitants, Go and fast in atonement for having fasted [on this day]’!²⁰ — R. Joseph said: Hanukah is different, because there is a religious ceremony [attached to it]²¹ Said Abaye to him: Let it be abolished and its ceremony with it?²² — R. Joseph thereupon [corrected himself and] said: Hanukah is different because it commemorates publicly a miracle.²³

R. Aha b. Huna raised an objection [from the following]: ‘On the third of Tishri the mention [of God] in bonds was abolished:²⁴ for the Grecian²⁵ Government had forbidden the mention of God's name²⁶ by the Israelites, and when the Government of the Hasmoneans became strong and defeated them, they ordained that they should mention the name of God even on bonds, and they used to write thus: ‘In the year So-and-so of Johanan, High Priest to the Most High God’, and when the Sages heard of it they said, ‘To-morrow this man will pay his debt and the bond will be thrown²⁷ on a dunghill’, and they stopped them, and they made that day a feast day.²⁸ Now if you maintain that the Megillath Ta'anith has been annulled, [is it possible that] while the former [prohibitions of fasting] have been annulled, new ones should be added? — With what are we here dealing? With the period when the Temple was still standing

. But [if that is so], cannot the prohibition [of the third of Tishri] be derived from the fact that it was the day on which Gedaliah the son of Ahikam was killed?¹ — Rab replied: Its [insertion in the Megillath Ta'anith] was required only to prohibit the day before it also.² But the prohibition of the day before it can also be derived from the fact that it is the day after New Moon?² — New Moon is ordained by the Written Law, and the ordinances of the Written Law do not require reinforcement, as it has been taught: 'These days which are mentioned in Megillath Ta'anith are forbidden [for fasting on] along with both the day before them and the day after them. As to Sabbaths and New Moons, they themselves are forbidden, but the days before and after them are permitted. What is the difference between one set and the other? The one set are ordained by the Torah,³ and the words of the Torah require no reinforcement, whereas the other are laid down by the Scribes, and the words of the Scribes require reinforcement'.⁴ But cannot the prohibition [of the second of Tishri] be derived from the fact that it is the day before the day on which Gedaliah the son of Ahikam was killed?⁵ — R. Ashi replied: The fast of Gedaliah the son of Ahikam is laid down in the later Scriptures,⁶ and the words of the later Scriptures are on the same footing as those of the Torah.

R. Tobi b. Mattenah raised the following objection [against the statement that Megillath Ta'anith has been annulled]: "On the twenty-eighth thereof [of Adar] came glad tidings to the Jews that they should not abandon the practice of the Law". For the Government [of Rome] had issued a decree that they should not study the Torah and that they should not circumcise their sons and that they should profane the Sabbath. What did Judah b. Shammu'a and his colleagues do? They went and consulted a certain matron whom all the Roman notables used to visit.⁷ She said to them: "Go and make proclamation [of your sorrows] at night time". They went and proclaimed at night, crying, "Alas, in heaven's name, are we not your brothers, are we not the sons of one father and are we not the sons of one mother? Why are we different from every nation and tongue that you issue such harsh decrees against us?" The decrees were thereupon annulled, and that day was declared a feast day'.⁸ Now if you maintain that the Megillath Ta'anith⁹ was annulled, [is it possible that] after the earlier prohibitions had been annulled they should add new ones? And should you reply that this also was in the period when the Temple was still standing, [this cannot be], because Judah b. Shammu'a was the disciple of R. Meir, and R. Meir was after the destruction of the Temple. We know [that R. Judah was R. Meir's disciple] because it has been taught: 'If holes were made in a vessel of glass and filled up with lead, R. Simeon b. Gamaliel reports that R. Judah b. Shammu'a in the name of R. Meir declares it unclean,'¹⁰ whereas the Sages declare it clean'! — There is a difference of opinion between Tannaim [as to whether the Megillath Ta'anith, has been annulled], as it has been taught: 'These days which are mentioned in the Megillath Ta'anith are prohibited [to be kept as fast days] whether in the period when the Temple is standing or in the period when the Temple is not standing. So R. Meir. R. Jose says: In the period when the Temple is standing they are prohibited, because they [Israel] have cause for rejoicing; in the period when the Temple is not standing they are permitted, because they have cause for mourning'. The law is that these prohibitions are annulled and the law is that they are not annulled. There is a contradiction, is there not, between these two laws? — There is no contradiction: the one¹ relates to Hanukah and Purim, the other to the other days.

OF ELUL ON ACCOUNT OF NEW YEAR, OF TISHRI FOR THE ADJUSTMENT OF THE FESTIVALS. Once the messengers have gone forth to report [the new moon of] Elul, why should they be required to do so for Tishri? Should you reply that [the reason is because] perhaps Elul has been prolonged,² [this cannot be], because R. Hinena b. Kahana has said in the name of Rabbi: 'From the days of Ezra onwards we have found no instance of Elul being prolonged'! — [Exactly so]: 'We find no instance', because there was no reason [to prolong it]; where, however, there is a special reason,³ we do prolong it. But in that case New Year is interfered with?⁴ — It is better that New Year should be interfered with than that all the festivals should be interfered with. There is also an indication [that this view is correct in the language of the Mishnah], which states, OF TISHRI FOR THE ADJUSTMENT OF THE FESTIVALS. This is clear proof.

OF KISLEV ON ACCOUNT OF HANUKAH AND OF ADAR ON ACCOUNT OF PURIM. [The Mishnah], however, does not say, 'When the year is prolonged,⁵ messengers go forth to report [the new moon of] the second Adar also on account of Purim'. [This shows that] our Mishnah does not agree with Rabbi, since it has been taught: 'Rabbi says that if the year has been prolonged, messengers go forth to report also regarding the second Adar on account of Purim'. Shall we say that the point on which they join issue is this, that one authority holds that all the ceremonies observed in the second Adar⁶ are observed also in the first,⁷ while the other holds that the ceremonies observed in the second are not observed in the first?⁸ — No. Both hold that the ceremonies observed in the second are not observed in the first, and here they differ on the question of the prolongation of the year,⁹ as it has been taught: 'How long is the period of the prolongation of the year? Thirty days. Simeon b. Gamaliel, however, says a month'.¹⁰ But why should only [the one who says] thirty days [require no messengers to be sent]? Because, you say, people in this case know when the month ends?¹¹ If the period is a month, they also know! — R. Papa said: The one who said 'a month' holds that [the Beth din may prolong the year] either by thirty days or by a month at their option.¹²

R. Joshua b. Levi testified on behalf of the holy community of Jerusalem concerning the two Adars, that they are sanctified on the day of their prolongation.¹³ This is equivalent to saying that we make them defective but we do not make them full, and excludes the statement made in a discourse by R. Nahman b. Hisda; [for R. Nahman b. Hisda stated in a discourse]: 'R. Simai testified in the name of Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi concerning the two Adars that if they [the Beth din] desired they could make both of them full, and if they desired they could make both of them, defective, and if they desired they could make one full and the other defective; and such was their custom in the Diaspora. In the name of our teacher,¹⁴ however, they said: One is always to be full and the next defective, unless you have been informed that New Moon has been fixed at its proper time'.¹⁵

They sent [from Palestine] to Mar 'Ukba to say: The Adar which precedes Nisan is always defective. R. Nahman raised an objection [from the following]: 'For the fixing of two New Moons the Sabbath may be profaned,¹⁶ for those of Nisan and of Tishri'. Now if you say that [the Adar before Nisan] is sometimes full and sometimes defective, I can understand how occasions arise for profaning the Sabbath

(1) That fasting is prohibited.

(2) I.e., made to last thirty days, and therefore the Diaspora may make a mistake about the Day of Atonement and Tabernacles.

(3) The 'special reason' is discussed infra, 20a.

(4) Lit., 'spoilt'. The Diaspora will keep it one day too soon.

(5) I.e., made to consist of thirteen months, by the insertion of a second Adar.

(6) Including in particular Purim.

(7) And therefore the observance of Purim in the first Adar is really sufficient for religious purposes, and so there is no need to send out messengers to fix the date of the second.

(8) And therefore it is important that Purim in the second Adar should be kept on the right day, v. Meg. 6b.

(9) I.e., the [days of the month of the first Adar which is inserted to prolong the year (Rashi)].

(10) I.e., twenty-nine days. This is apparently the opinion of Rabbi also.

(11) When the first Adar ends and the second Adar begins.

(12) And therefore it is necessary to keep the public informed. (9) [Regarded by some as a survival of an Essene community, v. J.E V. p. 226].

(13) The thirtieth day is known as the day of prolongation (יום עיבור) as it is the day which is added to make the preceding month full (v. supra p. 21, n. 7). In the case of the two Adars the thirtieth day of each is sanctified as the New Moon of the next month.

(14) Rab.

(15) I.e., that the Beth din in Jerusalem fixed the New Moon of Adar II on the thirtieth day of the first Adar, the thirtieth day always being regarded as the 'proper time' of New Moon.

(16) By the watchers for the new moon, who are allowed to exceed the two thousand cubit limit in order to report their observation to the Beth din in Jerusalem. V. infra 23b.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 20a

. But if it is always defective, why should they profane it?¹ — Because it is a religious duty to sanctify [the New Moon] on the strength of actual observation.² According to another version, R. Nahman said: We also have learnt: 'For the fixing of two New Moons the Sabbath may be profaned, for those of Nisan and of Tishri'. Now if you say that the Adar which precedes Nisan is always defective, there is no difficulty; the reason why Sabbath may be profaned is because it is a religious duty to sanctify [the New Moon] on the strength of actual observation. But if you say that it is sometimes full and sometimes defective, why should [the Sabbath] be profaned? Let us prolong [the month] today and sanctify [the New Moon] to-morrow?³ — If the thirtieth day happens to be on Sabbath, that is actually what we do. Here, however, we are dealing with the case where the thirty-first day happens to fall on Sabbath [and we allow the Sabbath to be profaned because] it is a religious duty to sanctify on the strength of actual observation.⁴

R. Kahana raised [against the instruction sent to Mar 'Ukba] the following objection: 'When the Temple stood, Sabbath was profaned for the fixing of all the months, for the sake of the adjustment of the sacrifice'.⁵ Now since the reason [for allowing the profanation of the Sabbath] was not in the case of all the other [months] because it is a religious duty to sanctify on the strength of actual observation, neither is the reason in the case of Nisan and Tishri because it is a religious duty to sanctify on the strength of actual observation.⁶ Now if you say that the Adar preceding Nisan is sometimes full and sometimes defective, there is no difficulty: for the reason mentioned we allow the profanation of the Sabbath. But if you say that it is always defective, why should we allow the profanation?⁷ — This is unanswerable.⁸

When 'Ulla came [from Palestine to Babylon], he said: They have prolonged Elul.⁹ Said 'Ulla thereupon: Do our Babylonian colleagues recognize what a boon we are conferring on them? What was the boon? — 'Ulla said: On account of the vegetables;¹⁰

R. Aha b. Hanina said: On account of the [unburied] dead.¹¹ What difference does it make [in practice which view we adopt here]? — There is a difference, in the case of a Day of Atonement coming just after Sabbath. According to him who says that the reason is because of the [unburied] dead, we prolong Elul [so as to prevent this], but according to him who says that it is because of vegetables, [we do not do so, because] when are the vegetables required? For the evening [after the Day of Atonement]; and in the evening we can get fresh ones. But even if we accept the view that the reason is because of vegetables, we should still prolong Elul because of the unburied dead? — We must therefore say that the practical difference is in the case of a festival which comes just before or just after Sabbath. In such a case, according to him who says the reason is because of vegetables,¹² we prolong Elul [to prevent this], but according to him who says it is because of the [unburied] dead, [we do not do so], because they can be attended to by heathens. But even if we accept the view that it is because of the [unburied] dead, let us still prolong Elul on account of the vegetables? — Vegetables can be [freshened by being put] in hot water. If that is the case, why is it a boon only for us [in Babylon]? Why not also for them [in Palestine] — We suffer from oppressive heat, they do not suffer from oppressive heat.¹³

Is all this correct,¹⁴ seeing that Rabbah b. Samuel has learnt: I might think that just as the year is prolonged in case of emergency,¹⁵ so the month may be prolonged to meet an emergency; therefore it says, This month is for you the head of months,¹⁶ [which implies], See [the moon] like this and then sanctify!¹⁷ — Raba replied: There is no contradiction: in the once case we speak of prolonging the month, in the other of sanctifying it,¹⁸ and what [the above teaching] meant is this: I might say that just as the year is prolonged to meet an emergency, so the month may be sanctified to meet an emergency, therefore it says, 'This month is for you'; See [the moon] like this, and then sanctify. This is illustrated by the dictum of R. Joshua b. Levi: 'Witnesses¹⁹ can be intimidated [to withhold the report of] the new moon which has appeared in its due time²⁰ in order that the month may be prolonged,²¹ but they may not be intimidated into reporting the new moon which has not appeared in its proper time in order that a New Moon may be sanctified [on the thirtieth]'. Is this so? Did not R. Judah the Prince²² send to R. Ammi a message saying: Know that when R. Johanan was alive he used to teach us that witnesses may be intimidated into reporting [on the thirtieth day] the new moon which has not appeared in its due time, in order that the New Moon may be sanctified, and even though they have not seen it they may say, We have seen it? — Abaye said: There is no contradiction: the one rule²³ holds good for Nisan and Tishri, the other for the other months of the year.²⁴ Raba said: This teaching which Rabbah b. Samuel learnt follows the 'Others', as it has been taught: 'Others say that between one Pentecost and another and between one New Year and 'another there are always four days [of the week] difference, or, if it was a leap year, five'.²⁵ R. Dimi from Nehardea reports the teaching in the reverse form: 'Witnesses can be intimidated to report [on the thirtieth day] the appearance of the moon which has not appeared in its proper time, in order that the month may be sanctified, but they may not be intimidated to withhold the report of the new moon which has been seen at its proper time in order that the month may be prolonged. What is the reason?

- (1) Since the New Moon can be fixed without actual observation.
 - (2) Even though the observation is not necessary for the purpose.
 - (3) I.e., in all such cases we can make Adar thirty days, and if the watchers have seen the new moon on Sabbath, they need not report till the next day.
 - (4) Hence we do not make New Moon on the thirtieth day, the new moon not yet having been observed, and it is not permitted to make it on the thirty-second.
 - (5) I.e., so that the sacrifice for New Moon should be offered at the proper time.
 - (6) But, as in the case of all the others, to secure that the New Moon offering should be brought on the proper day.
 - (7) Seeing that the observation makes no difference.
 - (8) Lit., 'this is a confutation'.
 - (9) So as to prevent Sabbath and a festival falling on successive days.
 - (10) Which would become stale if kept over two days. Vegetables eaten raw are referred to, and of course, there could be no plucking on Sabbath or Festivals.
 - (11) Which would commence to decompose if kept over two days.
 - (12) Which would be required on the second of the holy days.
 - (13) Lit., 'the world is oppressive for us'. In Palestine vegetables or dead bodies could be kept for two days.
 - (14) That a month may be prolonged to prevent inconvenience to the public. Lit. 'It is not so?'
 - (15) E.g., to make Passover fall in the season of new corn., v. Sanh. 11b.
 - (16) Ex. XII, 2.
 - (17) The word 'this' is interpreted to mean that God showed Moses the new moon as a model for all future time
 - (18) V. infra.
 - (19) Men sent out by the Beth din to watch for the appearance of the new moon from points of vantage.
 - (20) I.e., on the thirtieth day.
 - (21) Over the thirtieth day and the next New Moon declared on the thirty-first, which shows that the month can be prolonged in case of need.
 - (22) The grandson of Rabbi.
 - (23) That the month may be sanctified to meet a special need.
 - (24) A 'special need' might arise in the other months of the year if, for instance, eight months in a year (which was the maximum) had already been made 'full' and in the next month the moon did not appear on the thirtieth: v. 'Ar. 8b.
 - (25) V. p. 21, nn. 12, 13, and note. For this to happen the months would have to follow the moon strictly.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 20b

— The latter statement would be seen to be false,¹ the former statement is not seen to be false.²

Samuel said: I am quite able to make a calendar³ for the whole of the Diaspora. Said Abba the father of R. Simlai to Samuel: Does the Master know [the meaning] of this remark which occurs in

[the Baraitha known as] the secret of the Calendar?⁴ ‘If the new moon is born before midday or after midday’? — He replied: I do not. He then said to him: Since the Master does not know this, there must also be other things which the Master does not know. When R. Zera went up [to Palestine], he sent back word to them [in Babylon]: It is necessary that there should be [on New Moon] a night and a day of the new moon.⁵ This is what Abba the father of R. Simlai meant: ‘We calculate [according to] the new moon's birth. If it is born before midday, then certainly it will have been seen shortly before sunset. If it was not born before midday, certainly it will not have been seen shortly before sunset’. What is the practical value of this remark? — R. Ashi said: To [help us in] confuting the witnesses.⁶

R. Zera said in the name of R. Nahman: The moon is invisible for twenty-four hours [round about new moon]. For us [in Babylon] six of these belong to the old moon and eighteen to the new;⁷ for them [in Palestine] six to the new and eighteen to the old.⁸ What is the practical value of this remark? — R. Ashi said: To confute the witnesses.

The Master has just said: It is necessary that there should be [on New Moon] a night and a day of the new moon. Whence is this rule derived? — R. Johanan said: [From the text]. From evening to evening;⁹ Resh Lakish said: [From the text], Until the twenty-first day of the month in the evening.¹⁰ What practical difference is there between them? — Abaye said: The difference between them is only one of exegesis.¹¹ Raba said: They differ in regard to [the hours up to] midnight.¹²

R. Zera said in the name of R. Nahman: Wherever [an extra day is kept] out of doubt, we make it the succeeding day.¹³ This means to say that we keep [Passover and Tabernacles] on the fifteenth and sixteenth but not on the fourteenth.¹⁴ But should not the fourteenth also be kept, in case both Ab and Elul¹⁵ have been declared short?¹⁶

(1) Because other people might have seen the new moon.

(2) Because it could not be proved that they had not seen it (Rashi). R. Hananel: Provided they had seen a semblance of the new moon].

(3) Heb. עָבוּר lit., ‘taking across’: the word used for the prolonging of the year and the month.

(4) This was a Baraitha made up of enigmatic sentences like the one which follows.

(5) I.e., that there should be no appearance of the old moon in this period, viz., after the closing of the twenty-ninth day; otherwise New Moon cannot be proclaimed on the thirtieth.

(6) Because if the conjunction is calculated to have been after midday and they claim to have seen the new moon before nightfall, they are not telling the truth.

(7) Which would imply that in Babylon the new moon is not visible till eighteen hours after its birth (Rashi).

(8) Which would imply that in Palestine the new moon is visible six hours after its birth (Rashi).

(9) Lev. XXIII, 32, in connection with fasting on the Day of Atonement. This shows that the day follows the night in reference to the festivals.

(10) Ex. XII, 18, in connection with eating unleavened bread on Passover. This shows that the festivals end at even.

(11) Lit., ‘the interpretation of exegeses’.

(12) According to R. Johanan, the ‘night’ referred to is on the same footing as the night of the Day of Atonement which commences at nightfall. But according to Resh Lakish, it is on a par with the first night of Passover, which, in relation to the Paschal lamb, was a continuation of the afternoon before. Hence Resh Lakish holds that even if the old moon was seen in the early part of the evening, the next day may still be declared New Moon.

(13) Lit., ‘wherever there is a doubt, we cast it forward’.

(14) I.e., that we reckon fifteen days from the thirtieth day, and also from the thirty-first day of the previous Adar or Elul, out of doubt, but in no case from the twenty-ninth. This dictum would seem to be superfluous, as in no circumstances was New Moon proclaimed on the twenty-ninth day after the previous New Moon.

(15) Rashi reads ‘Shebat’.

(16) And in this case, what we suppose to have been the twenty-ninth day of Adar or of Elul would really have been the first of Nisan or of Tishri.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 21a

— If two [successive] months¹ are declared short, the thing becomes known.

Levi once arrived in Babylon on the eleventh of Tishri.² He said [to the people there]: How good and sweet is the dish of the Babylonians on the great day of the West.³ They said to him, Testify [that this is the tenth day].⁴ He replied: I did not [personally] hear the Beth din [in Jerusalem proclaim] ‘sanctified’.⁵

R. Johanan issued a proclamation: ‘In all those places which can be reached by the messengers sent out in Nisan but not by those sent out in Tishri,⁶ two days should be kept [on Passover],⁷ Nisan being included so that there should be no mistake as to Tishri’.⁸

R. Aibu b. Nagri and R. Hiyya b. Abba once arrived at a certain place which had been reached by the messengers sent out in Nisan but not by those sent out in Tishri, and though the inhabitants kept only one day [of Passover] they did not reprove them. When R. Johanan heard this he was annoyed and said to them: Did I not tell you that in places which have been reached by the messengers sent out in Nisan but not by those sent out in Tishri they should keep two days, Nisan being included so that no mistake should be made in Tishri?

Rabbah was accustomed to fast two days [on the Day of Atonement].⁹ Once he was found to be right.¹⁰ R. Nahman had once fasted the whole of the Day of Atonement, when in the evening a man came and told him, To-morrow is the great day in the West. He said to him, Whence are you? He replied, From Damharia.¹¹ ‘Blood will be his latter end’¹² he ejaculated, applying to himself the verse, Swift were our pursuers.¹³

R. Huna b. Abin sent an instruction to Raba: When you see that the cycle of Tebeth¹⁴ extends to the sixteenth of Nisan,¹⁵ declare that year¹⁶ a leap year and have no scruples,¹⁷ since it is written, Observe the month [hodesh] of Abib,¹⁸ which signifies, See to it that the Abib of the cycle¹⁹ should commence in the earlier half [hodesh]²⁰ of Nisan.

R. Nahman said to those who were going to sea: As you will not know when New Moon is fixed, [I will tell you what to do]. When you see the moon ceases shining with daylight,²¹ clear away leaven [for Passover]. When does it so shine? On the fifteenth [of the month]. But we clear away leaven on the fourteenth? — For them, as they had a clear view,²² the moon commenced to shine into the day from the fourteenth.

(1) Viz., (apparently) Ab and Elul, or Tebeth and Shebat. Rashi: Tebeth and Tammuz are always, according to the principles of fixed calendar, defective, and if Shebat' which follows Tebeth, Ab and Tammuz were also to be defective, it would have become known to the Diaspora before the advent of the festivals.

(2) I.e., according to the reckoning of the Babylonians who were not aware that the previous month had been prolonged in Palestine by one day. He either came from near the frontier or just before nightfall, before they had broken their fast (v. Tosaf. s.v. לוי).

(3) I.e., this is the Day of Atonement in Palestine, and you are eating, or you are ready to break your fast, cf. p. 86, n. 10.

(4) And we will keep this day too.

(5) I.e., that the day was sanctified as New Moon and therefore he could not testify, although he knew from independent sources that this was only ten days before, v. infra 21b. [MS.M.: ‘(proclaim)’, ‘prolonged’ מעובר instead of מקודש].

(6) The messengers sent out from Jerusalem to announce the New Moon of Nisan would be able to travel further by Passover than the messengers sent out in Tishri would be able to travel by Tabernacles, because the latter would lose two days on New Year and the Day of Atonement, when it was forbidden to travel.

- (7) Although the inhabitants would know when the New Moon of Nisan had been proclaimed.
- (8) I.e., if they kept Passover only one day, they might come to keep Tabernacles only one day.
- (9) Being uncertain whether the month of Elul, which normally consisted of twenty-nine days, had not been prolonged by the Beth din in Jerusalem.
- (10) Lit., 'it was found (to be) according to him'.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 21b

MISHNAH. FOR THE SAKE OF TWO MONTHS SABBATH MAY BE PROFANED,¹ NAMELY, NISAN AND TISHRI, SINCE IN THEM MESSENGERS GO FORTH TO SYRIA AND IN THEM THE DATES OF THE FESTIVALS ARE FIXED.² WHEN THE TEMPLE WAS STANDING THEY USED TO PROFANE SABBATH FOR ALL THE MONTHS, IN ORDER THAT THE SACRIFICE [OF NEW MOON] MIGHT BE OFFERED ON THE RIGHT DAY.³

GEMARA. [Do messengers go forth] for two months only? The following was cited as conflicting with this: 'Messengers go forth to proclaim six months'!⁴ — Abaye replied: What is meant is this: For all [the other months] the messengers set out while it is still night,⁵ but for Nisan and Tishri they do not set out till they have heard the Beth din proclaim, 'sanctified'.⁶

It has been taught to the same effect: 'For all [the other months] they [the messengers] went forth while it was still night, but for Nisan and Tishri not until they had heard the Beth din proclaim 'sanctified'.

Our Rabbis taught: How do we know [from the Scripture] that Sabbath may be profaned on account of these? Because it says, These are the appointed seasons of the Lord . . . which ye shall proclaim in their appointed season.⁷ I might say then that just as it may be profaned until they [the months] are sanctified, so it may be profaned [further] until they are promulgated?⁸ Not so, since it says, 'which ye shall proclaim:' for their proclamation you may profane the Sabbath, but not for their promulgation.⁹

WHEN THE TEMPLE WAS STANDING THEY USED TO PROFANE SABBATH FOR ALL THE MONTHS, IN ORDER THAT THE SACRIFICE MIGHT BE OFFERED ON THE RIGHT DAY. Our Rabbis taught : Originally the Sabbath could be profaned for all of them. When the Temple was destroyed, Rabban Johanan b. Zakkai said to them [the Beth din], Is there then a sacrifice [waiting to be brought]? They therefore ordained that Sabbath should not be profaned save for Nisan and Tishri alone.¹⁰

MISHNAH. WHETHER [THE NEW MOON] HAS BEEN SEEN CLEARLY¹¹ OR HAS NOT

BEEN SEEN CLEARLY, SABBATH MAY BE PROFANED ON ACCOUNT OF IT. R. JOSE SAYS, HOWEVER, THAT IF IT HAS BEEN SEEN CLEARLY SABBATH IS NOT TO BE PROFANED ON ACCOUNT OF IT.¹² IT HAPPENED ONCE THAT MORE THAN FORTY PAIRS OF WITNESSES WERE ON THEIR WAY¹³ [TO JERUSALEM] AND R. AKIBA DETAINED THEM IN LYDDA. R. GAMALIEL THEREUPON SENT TO HIM SAYING: IF YOU PREVENT THE MULTITUDE [FROM COMING TO GIVE EVIDENCE] YOU WILL PROVE TO BE THE CAUSE OF THEIR STUMBLING IN THE TIME TO COME.¹⁴

GEMARA. How do we know that the word 'alil here means 'clear'? — R. Abbahu replied: Because the Scripture says, The words of the Lord are pure words, as silver tried in the clear sight [ba-'alil] of the earth, refined seven times.¹⁵

Rab and Samuel [gave different interpretations of a certain text]. One said: Fifty gates of understanding were created in the world, and all were given to Moses save one, as it says, Yet thou hast made him but little lower than a God,¹⁶ Now, Koheleth sought to find out words of delight.¹⁷ [That is to say,] Koheleth sought to be like Moses, but a bath kol¹⁸ went forth and said to him, It is written uprightly even words of truth,¹⁹ 'There arose not a prophet again in Israel like Moses'.²⁰ The other said: Among the prophets there arose not, but among the kings there did arise. How then do I interpret the words, Koheleth sought to find out words of delight? Koheleth sought to pronounce verdicts from his own insight,²¹ without witnesses and without warning,²² whereupon a bath kol went forth and said, It is written uprightly even words of truth, 'At the mouth of two witnesses' etc.²³

(1) By witnesses who have seen the new moon, in order that they may give information in Jerusalem at the earliest possible moment. V. supra.

(2) It is difficult to see what reason this furnishes for allowing the witnesses to break the Sabbath. Rashi explains that if the witnesses are not allowed to bring the news on Sabbath, the New Moon will not be sanctified till Sunday, and so the messengers instead of setting out as soon as Sabbath is over will not set out till several hours later, and this might make them late in some places in giving notice of the date of Passover. V. Rashi and Tosaf.

(3) Lit., 'for the proper adjustment of the sacrifice'.

(4) I.e., whenever the month is lengthened to thirty days.

(5) On the thirty-first day, since it is already certain that New Moon will be on this day.

(6) Which would be at some hour in the daytime.

(7) Lev. XXIII, 4. Stress is laid on the words 'in their appointed season'.

(8) I. e., to the Diaspora, by the messengers.

(9) I. e., the witnesses may profane, but not the messengers.

(10) On account of their extra sanctity.

(11) Lit., 'in an 'alil'. V. Gemara infra.

(12) There being no necessity, as many people will have seen it.

(13) Lit., 'were passing'.

(14) As people will be reluctant to come to give evidence.

(15) Ps. XII, 7. E.V. 'in a crucible'.

(16) Ps. VIII, 6. E.V. 'than the angels'.

(17) Eccl. XII, 10.

(18) A voice from heaven, V. Glos.

(19) Ibid.

(20) Deut. XXXIV, 10.

(21) Lit., 'that are in the heart'. [Omitted in MS.M.].

(22) The forewarning required by law for the punishment of an offender.

(23) Deut. XIX, 15.

IT HAPPENED ONCE THAT MORE THEN FORTY PAIRS [OF WITNESSES] WERE ON THEIR WAY [TO JERUSALEM] AND R. AKIBA DETAINED THEM etc. It has been taught: R. Judah said: Far be it from us to think that R. Akiba detained them. It was Shazpar the head of Geder¹ who detained them, and Rabban Gamaliel thereupon sent and they deposed him from his office.²

MISHNAH. IF A FATHER AND A SON HAVE SEEN THE NEW MOON, THEY SHOULD BOTH GO [TO JERUSALEM], NOT THAT THEY CAN ACT AS JOINT WITNESSES³ BUT SO THAT IF ONE OF THEM IS DISQUALIFIED⁴ THE OTHER MAY JOIN WITH SOME OTHER WITNESS. R. SIMEON, HOWEVER, SAYS THAT A FATHER AND SON AND ALL RELATIVES ARE ELIGIBLE TO TESTIFY TO THE APPEARANCE OF THE NEW MOON. R. JOSE SAID: IT HAPPENED ONCE WITH TOBIAH THE PHYSICIAN THAT HE SAW THE NEW MOON IN JERUSALEM ALONG WITH HIS SON AND HIS EMANCIPATED SLAVE, AND THE PRIESTS ACCEPTED HIS EVIDENCE AND THAT OF HIS SON AND DISQUALIFIED HIS SLAVE, BUT WHEN THEY APPEARED BEFORE THE BETH DIN THEY ACCEPTED HIS EVIDENCE AND THAT OF HIS SLAVE AND DISQUALIFIED HIS SON.

GEMARA. R. Levi said: What is the reason of R. Simeon? — Because it is written, and the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying, This month shall be unto you the beginning of months,⁵ which implies, ‘this testimony shall be valid [when given] by you’.⁶ And the Rabbis? — [It implies], this evidence shall be entrusted to you.⁷

R. JOSE SAID, IT HAPPENED ONCE WITH TOBIAH THE PHYSICIAN etc. R. Hanan b. Raba said: The law⁸ is as stated by R. Simeon. Said R. Huna to R. Hanan b. Raba, We have R. Jose and an incident [on the other side], and you say that the law is as stated by R. Simeon! — He replied: Many times I said in the presence of Rab, ‘The law is as stated by R. Simeon’, and he did not correct me.⁹ He then asked him, How did you repeat [the Mishnah]? — He [R. Hanan] replied [I repeated it to him with the names] reversed.¹⁰ He [R. Huna] thereupon said to him, That was the reason why Rab did not correct you. Tabi said in the name of Mari Tabi who had it from Mar ‘Ukba: The law is as stated by R. Simeon.

MISHNAH THE FOLLOWING ARE INELIGIBLE: GAMBLER,¹¹ USURERS, PIGEON-FLYERS,¹² THOSE WHO TRAFFIC IN PRODUCE OF THE SABBATHAL YEAR,¹³ AND SLAVES. IT IS A GENERAL RULE THAT FOR ANY TESTIMONY FOR WHICH A WOMAN IS DISQUALIFIED THESE ALSO ARE DISQUALIFIED.

GEMARA. I infer from this that any testimony which a woman is qualified to give¹⁴ they are also qualified to give. R. Ashi said: This is equivalent to saying that one who is Rabbinically¹⁵ accounted a robber is qualified to give the same evidence as a woman.

MISHNAH. IF ONE WHO HAS SEEN THE MOON IS NOT ABLE TO GO ON FOOT, HE MAY BE BROUGHT ON AN ASS OR EVEN IN A LITTER [ON SABBATH]. IF THEY [THE WITNESSES] ARE LIKELY TO BE WAYLAID,¹⁶ THEY MAY TAKE CUDGELS [TO DEFEND THEMSELVES].¹⁷ IF THE DISTANCE IS GREAT [TO JERUSALEM], THEY MAY TAKE PROVISIONS WITH THEM, SINCE FOR AS MUCH AS A NIGHT AND A DAY'S JOURNEY¹⁸ THEY WERE ALLOWED TO PROFANE SABBATH AND GO FORTH TO TESTIFY TO THE APPEARANCE OF THE NEW MOON, AS IT SAYS: THESE ARE THE APPOINTED SEASONS OF THE LORD . . . WHICH YE SHALL PROCLAIM IN THEIR APPOINTED SEASON.¹⁹

MISHNAH. IF THAT ONE²⁰ IS NOT KNOWN TO THEM [THE BETH DIN IN JERUSALEM], THEY [THE BETH DIN OF HIS OWN PLACE] SEND ANOTHER WITH HIM TO CERTIFY

HIM [AS RELIABLE]. ORIGINALLY TESTIMONY WITH REGARD TO [THE APPEARANCE OF] THE NEW MOON WAS RECEIVED FROM ANYONE. WHEN, HOWEVER, THE BOETHUSIANS²¹ ADOPTED EVIL COURSES, IT WAS ORDAINED THAT TESTIMONY SHOULD BE RECEIVED ONLY FROM PERSONS KNOWN [TO THE BETH DIN].

GEMARA. What is meant by ANOTHER? [I would naturally suppose], one other person.

- (1) [Gederah in Judah. V. Josh. XV, 36].
- (2) Lit., 'greatness'.
- (3) Near relatives being disqualified from offering evidence together.
- (4) I.e., found by the Beth din to be unreliable.
- (5) Ex. XII, 1, 2.
- (6) Even if you are near relatives.
- (7) The communal leaders, to sanctify the month on the strength of it. Nothing, however, is implied about relatives.
- (8) [MS.M. 'the Halachah' and so in all other cases in this passage].
- (9) Lit., 'he did not say anything to me'.
- (10) I.e., saying that R. Jose declared a father and son to be eligible, and that R. Simeon related the incident.
- (11) Lit., 'those who play with dice'.
- (12) For wagers.
- (13) V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 142, nn. 3-5.
- (14) E.g., to testify the death of a husband so as to enable the widow to remarry.
- (15) Like those mentioned above, who are not accounted robbers according to the strict letter of the Pentateuch, since although they acquire money wrongfully they do not take anything by force: v. Yeb. 25a
- (16) Lit., 'if there are lyers-in-wait for them'.
- (17) Although it was forbidden to carry on Sabbath.
- (18) If the distance was much larger there would be no point in their evidence since in the absence of witnesses the New Moon is on the first day.
- (19) Lev. XXIII, 4. V. supra, p. 89. n. 5.
- (20) V. Gemara, infra.
- (21) The followers of a certain Boethus, who seems to have lived in the second century B.C.E. Like the Sadducees, they rejected the Oral Law and opposed the Rabbis. [MS.M. 'Minim' (v. Glos. s.v. Min.)]

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 22b

But [is the word of] one person to be taken? Has it not been taught, 'On one occasion he came accompanied by the witnesses¹ who were to testify to his bona fides'? — R. Papa replied: What is meant by ANOTHER? Another pair. This view too is borne out by an examination [of the language of the Mishnah]. For should you hold otherwise, [consider the words] IF THAT ONE [OTHO] IS NOT KNOWN TO THEM. Now what is referred to by THAT ONE? Shall I say, a single person? But is [the word of] one person accepted,² seeing that the word judgment³ is used in connection with it? But in fact what is meant by THAT ONE? That pair. So here, what is meant by ANOTHER? Another pair.

But is not the word of one witness taken [in this matter]? Has it not been taught, 'On one occasion R. Nehorai accompanied the witness to testify to his bona fides on Sabbath in Usha'?⁴ — I can reply that there was another witness along with R. Nehorai, and the reason why he was not mentioned was out of respect for R. Nehorai.⁵ R. Ashi said: In R. Nehorai's case there was [already] another witness in Usha,⁶ and R. Nehorai went to join his testimony with his. If that is the case, what is the point of the statement?⁷ — You might think that we do not allow the Sabbath to be profaned [by one witness] where there is any doubt [about the other].⁸ Hence we are told [that this is not so].

When 'Ulla came [to Babylon], he announced that they had sanctified the New Moon [on a certain day] in the West [Palestine]. Said R. Kahana: Not only [in such a case] do we take the word of 'Ulla who is a great man, but we take the word of any ordinary man. What is the reason? Because whenever a thing is bound to come to light later on, men do not lie about it. It has been taught to the same effect: If a man comes from the other end of the world and says, The Beth din have sanctified the New Moon, his word is taken.

ORIGINALLY TESTIMONY WITH REGARD TO THE APPEARANCE OF THE NEW MOON WAS RECEIVED FROM ANYONE. Our Rabbis taught: What evil course did the Boethusians⁹ adopt? Once the Boethusians sought to mislead the Sages.¹⁰ They hired two men for four hundred zuzim, one belonging to our party and one to theirs. The one of their party gave his evidence and departed. Our man [came and] they said to him: Tell us how you saw the moon. He replied: I was going up the ascent of Adumim¹¹ and I saw it couched between two rocks, its head like [that of] a calf, its ears like [those of] a hind, and its tail lying between its legs, and as I caught sight of it I got a fright and fell backwards, and if you do not believe me, why, I have two hundred zuzim tied up in my cloak. They said to him: Who told you to say all this?¹² He replied: I heard that the Boethusians were seeking to mislead the Sages, so I said [to myself], I will go myself and tell them, for fear lest untrustworthy men should come and mislead the Sages. They said: You can have the two hundred zuzim as a present,¹³ and the man who hired you shall be laid out on the post.¹⁴ There and then they ordained that testimony should be received only from persons who were known to them.

MISHNAH. ORIGINALLY THEY USED TO LIGHT¹⁵ BEACONS.¹⁶ WHEN THE CUTHEANS [SAMARITANS] ADOPTED EVIL COURSES,¹⁷ THEY MADE A RULE THAT MESSENGERS SHOULD GO FORTH. HOW DID THEY LIGHT THE BEACONS? THEY USED TO BRING LONG POLES OF CEDAR AND REEDS AND OLIVE WOOD AND FLAX FLUFF WHICH THEY TIED TO THE POLES WITH A STRING, AND SOMEONE USED TO GO UP TO THE TOP OF A MOUNTAIN AND SET FIRE TO THEM AND WAVE THEM TO AND FRO AND UP AND DOWN UNTIL HE SAW THE NEXT ONE DOING THE SAME THING ON THE TOP OF THE SECOND MOUNTAIN; AND SO ON THE TOP OF THE THIRD MOUNTAIN. WHENCE DID THEY CARRY THE [CHAIN OF] BEACONS? FROM THE MOUNT OF OLIVES [IN JERUSALEM] TO SARTABA, AND FROM SARTABA TO GROFINA, AND FROM GROFINA TO HAURAN, AND FROM HAURAN TO BETH BALTIN.¹⁸ THE ONE ON BETH BALTIN DID NOT BUDGE FROM THERE BUT WENT ON WAVING TO AND FRO AND UP AND DOWN UNTIL HE SAW THE WHOLE OF THE DIASPORA¹⁹ BEFORE HIM LIKE ONE BONFIRE.²⁰

GEMARA. How do we know that the word massi'ir²¹ connotes 'burning'? — Because it is written in the Scripture, wa-yisa'em, David and his men,²² and we translate²³ 'and David burnt them'.

Our Rabbis taught 'Beacon fires are lit only for the new moon which has been seen at its proper time,²⁴ [to announce that] it has been sanctified. When are they lit? On the night following its announcement.²⁵ This means to say that we light beacons for defective months but not for full months. What is the reason? — R. Zera said: It is a precaution on account of a defective month which ends on Friday. [In that case] when do we light? On the termination of Sabbath; and if you were to insist that we should light up also for full months, this might give rise

(1) This would show that at least two were required.

(2) In giving evidence regarding the New Moon.

(3) In the verse, For it is a statute for Israel, a judgment for the God of Jacob. Ps. LXXXI, 5. 'Judgment' could be delivered only on the evidence of at least two witnesses.

(4) At the time when the Beth din was in Usha.

(5) I.e., so as not to put him on the same footing as R. Nehorai. Cf. Git. 5b for a similar incident.

(6) This witness may have been either one who had seen the new moon, or one who could testify to the bona fides of the man who has seen it. V. Tosaf. s.v. סדרא.

(7) What reason was there why R. Nehorai should not have gone on Sabbath, seeing that the Mishnah permits this?

(8) Who might disappear in the interval.

(9) [MS.M.: Minim, v. supra p. 94, n. 2].

(10) By making them believe that the new moon had been seen on the thirtieth of Adar, which was a Sabbath, when in fact it had not, so that the second day of Passover might be on a Sunday and the counting of the 'Omer might commence literally 'on the morrow of the Sabbath', according to their interpretation of the words (Rashi).

(11) V. Josh. XV, 7.

(12) Lit., 'who compelled you to all this'.

(13) Beth din having the right to expropriate. [On the reading Minim, if the reference is to Jewish Christians, their desire to have the first day of Passover fall on Friday and Pentecost on Sunday as was the case in the year of the crucifixion, would supply them with a reason for tampering with the Calendar, V. Herford, Christianity in the Talmud, p. 330.]

(14) For a flogging.

(15) The Hebrew word is massi'in, which literally means 'raise up'.

(16) To convey the news of the New Moon to the diaspora in Babylon.

(17) And lit beacons on the thirtieth day, so as to mislead the Babylonians.

(18) [There is no general agreement about the identification of these places. Obermeyer (p. 17ff) locates them as follows: Sartaba == Karn Sartaba, five km from the western bank of the Jordan; Grofina (or 'Agrufina, v. D.S.) 'Arafun, a hill situated among the Gilead range of mountains; Hauran south of Damascus, cf. Ezek. XLVII, 18. Beth Baltin == Beiram (v. infra) some miles N.W. of Pumbeditha. For other views, v. Horowitz Palestine, p. 125].

(19) I.e., the district of Pumbeditha. V. Gemara. [Rashi omits 'the whole of'.]

(20) Because, as explained infra in the Gemara, the inhabitants on seeing the beacon fire used to light torches.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 23a

to confusion, since people would say: This month may be defective, and the reason why beacons were not lit yesterday is because it was impossible,¹ or perhaps it is full and they are lighting up at the proper time. But why should we not light up whether for a full month or a defective month, and when New Moon is on Friday not light up at all, so that since we do not light at the termination of Sabbath, in spite of the fact that we usually light for a full month, people will know that it is defective? — This nevertheless may lead to errors, since people will say, This month is full, and the reason why they have not lit up is because they have been prevented.² But why not light up for the full months and not at all for the defective months? — Abaye replied: So as not to deprive the public of two working days.³

HOW DID THEY LIGHT THE BEACONS? THEY USED TO BRING LONG POLES etc. Rab Judah said: There are four kinds of cedar — cedar, kedros,⁴ pinewood⁵ and cypress [What is] kedros? — R. Idra stated that in the school of R. Shila it was defined as mabliga,⁶ though others held that it is gulmish. He [Rab Judah] differs herein from Rabbah son of R. Huna; for Rabbah son of R. Huna reported that in the school of Rab it was stated that there are ten kinds of cedar, as it says, I will plant in the wilderness erez, shitah, and hadas and oil-tree, I will set in the desert berosh, tidhor and teashur together.⁷ 'Erez' is cedar; 'shitah' is pine; 'hadas' is myrtle; 'oil-tree' is balsam; berosh is cypress; tidhor is teak;⁸ teashur is larch.⁹ This makes seven. When R. Dimi came, he said: To these were added alonim, almonim, and almugim. 'Alonim' are terebinths; almonim are oaks; almugim are coral-wood. According to others it should be aronim, 'armonim, and almugim. Aronim are bay-trees; 'armonim are planes; almugim are coral-wood.

Neither shall gallant ship pass thereby.¹⁰ Rab said: This refers to the great ship.¹¹ How is it carried out?¹² They bring there six thousand men for twelve months (or according to others twelve thousand men for six months) and load the boat with sand until it rests on the sea-bottom.¹³ Then a diver goes down and ties a rope of flax to the coral while the other end is tied to the ship, and the sand is then taken and thrown overboard, and as the boat rises it pulls up the coral with it. The coral is worth twice its weight in silver. There were three ports, two belonging to the Romans¹⁴ and one belonging to the Persians. From the Roman side they brought up coral, from the Persian side pearls. This [the Persian] one was called the port of Mashmahig.¹⁵

R. Johanan said: Every acacia tree that was taken by the invaders from Jerusalem will be restored to it by the Holy One, blessed be He, in time to come, as it says, I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia tree,¹⁶ and 'wilderness' means Jerusalem, as it is written, Zion is become a wilderness¹⁷ etc.

R. Johanan further said: One who studies the Torah but does not teach it is like the myrtle in the wilderness.¹⁸ Others report [the saying thus]: One who studies the Torah and teaches it in a place where there is no [other] talmid hakam¹⁹ is like the myrtle in the wilderness, which is precious.

R. Johanan also said: Alas for the idol-worshippers since they have no means of remedy,²⁰ as it says, For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass and for stones iron.²¹ But what can they bring to replace R. Akiba and his companions? Of them the Scripture says, Though I cleanse them [of other transgressions] from their blood I shall not cleanse them.²²

WHENCE DID THEY CARRY THE CHAIN OF BEACONS etc.? FROM BETH BALTIN. What is Beth Baltin? — Rab said: This is

(1) On account of Sabbath.

(2) Through having drunk too much on Sabbath, and become intoxicated (Rashi).

(3) It was customary to abstain from work on New Moon (v. Tosaf. s.v. משום). In this case the thirtieth day would always be kept as New Moon from doubt, and if the actual day fixed was the thirty-first, there would be two days New Moon.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 23b

Biram.¹ What is meant here by DIASPORA [GOLAH]? — R. Joseph said: This is Pumbeditha. What is meant [then] by LIKE ONE BIG BONFIRE? — A Tanna taught: ‘Every inhabitant [of Pumbeditha] takes a torch in his hand and goes up on to his roof’.² It has been taught: ‘R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: [Beacon fires were lit] also on Harim and Kayir and Geder and the neighbouring places’.³ Some say that these places are between [those mentioned in the Mishnah].⁴ Others say that they are on the further side from the Land of Israel, and that one authority [the Mishnah] reckons the places on one side,⁵ and the other reckons the places on the other.⁶ R. Johanan said: Between each one and the next⁷ there were eight parasangs.⁸ How many [parasangs] then were there altogether? Thirty-two.⁹ But to-day there is much more? — Abaye said: The [direct] roads have been closed,¹⁰ as it is written, Therefore behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns [etc.].¹¹ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: It is stated in this verse, viz., He hath made my paths crooked.¹²

MISHNAH. THERE WAS A LARGE COURT IN JERUSALEM CALLED BETH YA'AZEK. THERE ALL THE WITNESSES USED TO ASSEMBLE AND THE BETH DIN USED TO EXAMINE THEM. THEY USED TO ENTERTAIN THEM LAVISHLY THERE¹³ SO THAT THEY SHOULD HAVE AN INDUCEMENT¹⁴ TO COME. ORIGINALLY THEY USED NOT TO LEAVE THE PLACE THE WHOLE DAY,¹⁵ BUT RABBAN GAMALIEL THE ELDER INTRODUCED A RULE THAT THEY COULD GO TWO THOUSAND CUBITS FROM IT IN ANY DIRECTION. THESE WERE NOT THE ONLY ONES [TO WHOM THIS CONCESSION WAS MADE]. A MIDWIFE WHO HAS COME [FROM A DISTANCE] TO HELP IN CHILDBIRTH OR ONE WHO COMES TO RESCUE FROM A FIRE OR FROM BANDITS OR FROM A RIVER IN FLOOD OR FROM A BUILDING THAT HAS FALLEN IN — ALL THESE ARE ON THE SAME FOOTING AS THE RESIDENTS OF THE TOWN, AND MAY GO TWO THOUSAND CUBITS [ON SABBATH] IN ANY DIRECTION.

GEMARA. The question was raised: Do we read here Beth Ya'azek or Beth Ya'zek? Do we read Beth Ya'azek, regarding the name as an elegancia¹⁶ based on the Scriptural expressions, And he ringed it round and cleared it of stones?¹⁷ Or do we read Beth Ya'zek, taking the name to connote constraint,¹⁸ as it is written, being bound in chains?¹⁹ — Abaye said: Come and hear [a proof that it is the former]: THEY USED TO ENTERTAIN THEM LAVISHLY THERE SO THAT THEY SHOULD HAVE AN INDUCEMENT TO COME. [This is not conclusive], as perhaps they treated them in both ways.²⁰

MISHNAH. HOW DO THEY TEST THE WITNESSES? THE PAIR WHO ARRIVE FIRST ARE TESTED FIRST. THE SENIOR OF THEM IS BROUGHT IN AND THEY SAY TO HIM, TELL US HOW YOU SAW THE MOON — IN FRONT OF THE SUN OR BEHIND THE SUN?²¹ TO THE NORTH OF IT OR THE SOUTH? HOW BIG WAS IT, AND IN WHICH DIRECTION WAS IT INCLINED?²² AND HOW BROAD WAS IT? IF HE SAYS [HE SAW IT] IN FRONT OF THE SUN, HIS EVIDENCE IS REJECTED.²³ AFTER THAT THEY WOULD BRING IN THE SECOND AND TEST HIM. IF THEIR ACCOUNTS TALLIED, THEIR EVIDENCE WAS ACCEPTED, AND THE OTHER PAIRS WERE ONLY QUESTIONED BRIEFLY,²⁴ NOT BECAUSE THEY WERE REQUIRED AT ALL, BUT SO THAT THEY SHOULD NOT BE DISAPPOINTED, [AND] SO THAT THEY SHOULD NOT BE DISSUADED FROM COMING.²⁵

GEMARA. ‘IN FRONT OF THE SUN’ is surely the same as ‘TO THE NORTH OF IT’, and ‘BEHIND THE SUN’ is surely the same as TO THE SOUTH OF IT’?²⁶ — Abaye said: [It means], whether the concavity of the moon is in front of the sun or behind the sun.²⁷ If he says, in front of the sun, his evidence is rejected, since R. Johanan has said: What is meant by the verse, Dominion and fear are with him, He maketh peace in his high places?²⁸ Never did the sun behold the concavity of the new moon nor the concavity of the rainbow. It never sees the concavity of the moon, so that she should not feel humiliated.²⁹ It never sees the concavity of the rainbow so that the worshippers of the sun should not say,

- (1) Apparently some place between Syria and Mesopotamia; v. supra p. 97, n. 1.
- (2) To spread the news throughout Babylon.
- (3) [These places are likewise difficult to identify. For various attempts v. Horowitz loc. cit. Graetz, Geschichte p. 67, n. 1 emends on the basis of the Tosef. a.l. חרים וכייר וגדר into הרי מכור וגדר the mountains of Macherus (in the south) and Gadera in the north. 'The neighbouring places' will include Tabor which is also mentioned in the Tosef.]
- (4) And therefore in Palestine.
- (5) Perhaps those nearer to Jerusalem.
- (6) Perhaps those nearer to Babylon. This reference in both cases is uncertain; v. Horowitz, Palestine, loc. cit.
- (7) Of those mentioned in the Mishnah.
- (8) About forty miles.
- (9) [Apparently from Mount of Olives to Beth Baltin, the last station in Palestine.]
- (10) And travellers are obliged to take a round about route.
- (11) Hos. II, 8. The verse continues, that she shall not find her paths.
- (12) Lam. III, 9.
- (13) Lit., 'they made for them large banquets'.
- (14) Lit., 'become accustomed to come'.
- (15) If they came on Sabbath, as they had already exceeded the limit of two thousand cubits.
- (16) Lit., 'an elevated' or 'refined expression', i.e., not belonging to the language of everyday life.
- (17) Isa. V, 2. E.V. 'and he digged it and cleared it'. The Heb. is ויעזקהו which the Talmud connects with the Aramaic עזקא 'a ring', so that Beth Ya'azek would refer to the stone wall round the court.
- (18) In allusion to the fact that they were (originally) confined to the courtyard the whole of the day. But cf. Tosaf. s.v. אס.
- (19) Jer. XL, 1. The Hebrew word is באזיקים.
- (20) I.e., both kindly and rigorously.
- (21) The meaning of this is discussed in the Gemara.
- (22) I.e., in which direction were the horns turning.
- (23) Lit., 'he has not said anything'.
- (24) Lit., 'with heads of subjects'.
- (25) Lit., 'so that they should (still) be accustomed to come'.
- (26) The new moon can be seen only about sunset, close to the sun, when the sun is travelling towards the north. We should therefore naturally take 'in front of the sun' to mean 'to the north of the sun', and 'behind the sun' to mean 'to the south of the sun'.
- (27) I.e., whether the rim of the moon visible from the earth is concave or convex in relation to the sun. By 'in front of' Abaye understands 'turned towards', and by 'behind', 'turned away from'.
- (28) Job XXV, 2.
- (29) And in this way God keeps the peace between the sun and the moon.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 24a

He is shooting arrows [at those who do not worship him].¹

HOW HIGH WAS IT AND IN WHICH DIRECTION WAS IT INCLINED. One Tanna taught: [If he says], To the north, his evidence is accepted; [if he says], To the south, his evidence is rejected.² But it has been taught to the opposite effect: '[If he says], To the south, his evidence is accepted; [if he says], To the north, his evidence is rejected'? — There is no contradiction; one statement speaks of the dry season,³ the other of the rainy season.⁴

The Rabbis taught: If one⁵ says that it was two ox-loads high⁶ and the other three,⁷ their evidence is accepted. If one, however, says that it was three and the other five, their evidence is nullified, only each of them can be joined with another witness.⁸

Our Rabbis taught: '[If they say], We saw it in water, we saw it in a mirror, we saw it through the clouds, they are not allowed to testify concerning it. [If they say], We saw half of it in water, half of it through the clouds, half of it in a mirror, they are not allowed to testify concerning it'. Since you disallow them [when they see] the whole, can there be any question [when they see] only half? — In fact the statement should run as follows: '[If they say they saw] half of it in water and half in the sky, half of it through the clouds and half in the sky, half of it in a mirror and half in the sky, they are not allowed to testify.'

Our Rabbis taught: [If they say], We saw it [once], but did not see it again, they are not allowed to testify concerning it. [Why so?] Are they to go on seeing it the whole time? — Abaye replied: What is meant is this. [If they say], We saw it by chance,⁹ but when we came to look for it deliberately¹⁰ we could not see it, they are not allowed to testify concerning it. What is the reason? Because I might say, they saw only a circular disc in the clouds.

MISHNAH. THE HEAD OF THE BETH DIN SAYS, 'SANCTIFIED', AND ALL THE PEOPLE REPEAT AFTER HIM, 'SANCTIFIED, SANCTIFIED'. WHETHER THE NEW MOON IS SEEN AT ITS PROPER TIME¹¹ OR NOT AT ITS PROPER TIME, IN EITHER CASE [THE NEW MOON] IS SANCTIFIED.¹² R. ELEAZAR B. ZADOK, HOWEVER, SAYS THAT IF IT IS NOT SEEN AT ITS PROPER TIME [THE NEW MOON] IS NOT [FORMALLY] SANCTIFIED, BECAUSE HEAVEN HAS ALREADY SANCTIFIED IT.

GEMARA. THE HEAD OF THE BETH DIN etc. What is the Scriptural warrant for this? — R. Hiyya b. Gamda said in the name of R. Jose b. Saul, who had it from Rabbi: The Scripture says, And Moses declared the appointed seasons of the Lord;¹³ from this we learn that the head of the Beth din says, 'sanctified'.

AND ALL THE PEOPLE REPEAT AFTER HIM, 'SANCTIFIED, SANCTIFIED'. Whence do we learn this? — R. Papa said: Scripture says, which ye shall proclaim [them].¹⁴ [For otham] read attem.¹⁵ R. Nahman b. Isaac said, [we learn it from here]: Even these [hem] are my appointed seasons;¹⁶ [which implies], they shall say, my seasons.¹⁷

SANCTIFIED, SANCTIFIED: why twice? — Because it is written, holy convocations.¹⁸

R. ELEAZAR B. ZADOK SAYS THAT IF IT IS NOT SEEN AT ITS PROPER TIME IT IS NOT SANCTIFIED. It has been taught: Polemo says: If seen at its time it is not sanctified,¹⁹ if seen out of its time it is sanctified. R. Eleazar b. Simeon says: in either case it is not sanctified, since it says, And ye shall sanctify the fiftieth year,²⁰ which shows that you are to sanctify years, but are not to sanctify months.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as laid down by R. Eleazar b. Zadok. Abaye said: We have also learnt to the same effect: 'If the Beth din and all Israel saw it,²¹ and if the witnesses had been tested, but they had no time to say 'sanctified' before it grew dark, the month is prolonged', which implies that it is prolonged²² but that [the new month] is not sanctified [later in the day]. [This is not conclusive, since] there was a special reason for mentioning the prolonging. You might think that since the Beth din and all Israel saw it [the new moon] everyone knew that it had appeared and therefore the month should not be prolonged. Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

MISHNAH. R. GAMALIEL USED TO HAVE A DIAGRAM OF PHASES OF THE MOON ON A TABLET [HUNG] ON THE WALL OF HIS UPPER CHAMBER, AND HE USED TO SHOW THEM TO THE UNLEARNED AND SAY, DID IT LOOK LIKE THIS OR THIS?

GEMARA. Is this allowed, seeing that it is written, Ye shall not make with me,²³ which we interpret, 'Ye shall not make the likeness of my attendants'? — Abaye replied: The Torah forbade only those attendants of which it is possible to make copies,²⁴ as it has been taught: A man may not make a house in the form of the Temple, or an exedra in the form of the Temple hall,²⁵ or a court corresponding to the Temple court, or a table corresponding to the [sacred] table or a candlestick corresponding to the [sacred] candlestick, but he may make one

(1) The rainbow in this case having the appearance of a bow bent by the sun against the earth.

(2) Reading this sentence in its present context, we must suppose it to mean, 'if he says, (it was inclined) to the north' etc. This is very difficult to understand, and it is much more natural to suppose that the words to be supplied are 'that he saw it', and that this sentence is to be connected with the words in the Mishnah TO THE NORTH OF IT OR TO THE SOUTH. So apparently it is taken by Rashi. V. Maharsha, ad loc.

(3) Lit., 'the days of the sun': the summer months.

(4) The new moon always appears due west. Hence in the summer months when the sun sets in the north-west it is south of the sun, and similarly in the winter months north of the sun.

(5) Apparently this means here, one of a pair of witnesses.

(6) I.e., above the horizon.

(7) If the preceding paragraph related to the inclination of the moon, it obviously should have followed this paragraph, which is another reason for transferring the last Mishnah heading to the beginning of this paragraph. V. n. 1.

(8) Who gives the same version as he does.

(9) Lit., 'of ourselves'.

(10) I.e., with the object of testifying.

(11) I.e., on the thirtieth day.

(12) On the thirtieth or the thirty-first day, as the case may be.

(13) Lev. XXIII, 44.

(14) Ibid. 4. Heb. אוֹתָם.

(15) Lit., 'you', implying that the public should join in the proclamation.

(16) Ibid. 2.

(17) The word הֵם 'they', being superfluous.

(18) Ibid. The Hebrew word is מִקְרָאִי, 'callings' or 'proclamings', the plural implying at least two.

(19) Since there is no need to impress its sanctity on the public.

(20) Lev. XXV, 10.

(21) On the thirtieth day.

(22) I.e., New Moon is not declared till the thirty-first day.

(23) Ex. XX, 20.

(24) Lit., 'like them'. Out of the same or other materials.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 24b

with five or six or eight lamps, but with seven he should not make, even of other metals.¹ R. Jose b. Judah said: He should not make one even of wood, this being the way in which the kings of the house of the Hasmoneans made it.² They said to him: Can you adduce this as a proof? The spits³ were of iron and they overlaid them with tin.⁴ When they grew richer they made them of silver.

When they grew richer still, they made them of gold.

But is it allowed [to make likenesses] of attendants of which it is impossible to make copies, seeing that it has been taught: 'Ye shall not make with me': [this implies], ye shall not make the likeness of My attendants who minister before Me on high?' — Abaye replied: The Torah forbade only the likeness of the four faces⁵ all together. If that is so, the portrait of a human being by himself should be allowed; why then has it been taught: All portraits are allowed, save the portrait of man? — R. Huna the son of R. Idi replied: From a discourse of Abaye I learnt: 'Ye shall not make with me' [implies], ye shall not make Me.⁶

Still, are the other attendants permitted, seeing that it has been taught: "'Ye shall not make with me": ye shall not make the likeness of My attendants who serve before Me on high, such as Ofanim and Seraphim and holy Hayyoth and ministering angels'? — Abaye replied: The Torah forbade only the attendants in the upper sphere.⁷ But are those in the lower sphere⁸ permitted? Has it not been taught: 'Which are in the heaven:⁹ this brings under the rule the sun, the moon, the stars and constellations; "above":¹⁰ this brings under the rule the ministering angels?' — That statement refers to the prohibition of [making a likeness] for serving them.

If for serving, then the tiniest worm should also [be prohibited]? — Yes, that is so, as it has been taught: Which are in the earth:¹¹ this brings under the rule mountains, hills, seas, rivers, streams and valleys. Beneath:¹² this brings under the rule the tiniest worm.

But is the mere making allowed? Has it not been taught: "'Ye shall not make with me": ye shall not make a likeness of My attendants who minister before Me, such as the sun, the moon, the stars and constellations'? — R. Gamaliel's case was different, because others¹³ made for him. But what of Rab Judah who [had a figure on a seal which] others had made for him, and yet Samuel said to him, Shinena,¹⁴ put out that fellow's eye?¹⁵ — In that case the seal was projecting, and [Samuel forbade it] so that it should not arouse suspicion,¹⁶ as it has been taught: 'A ring of which the seal projects must not be worn on the finger, but it is permitted to sign with it. If the seal is sunk in, it is permitted to wear it but forbidden to sign with it'. But does it matter if we do arouse suspicion? Was there not a synagogue which 'moved and settled' in Nehardea¹⁷ and in it was a statue [of a king] and Rab and Samuel and the father of Samuel used to go in there to pray, and were not afraid of arousing suspicion? — Where a whole body of persons is concerned it is different. But Rabban Gamaliel was an individual? — Since he was the Nasi,¹⁸ a large company was always with him. If you like I can say that it was [drawn] in sections,¹⁹ or if you like I can say that he did it for purposes of study, and it is written, Thou shalt not learn to do,²⁰ which implies that you may learn to understand and to teach.
